Washington, Aug. 13. - The peace protocol was signed yesterday afternoon, and the U.S. army and navy commanders were cabled at once to cease hostilities. Ambassador Cambon and Secretary Thiebaul drove over to the White House from the French embassy in a heavy rain. Both were immediately ushered into the cabinet room, where President McKinley, Secretary Day, and Assistant Secretaries of State Moore, Adde and Cridler had been awaiting them five minutes. There, in the historic cabinet room, the ceremony of formally agreeing to and sign-

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY'S PROCLA-MATION.

The preamble of the president's proclamation gives in formal terms the facts above stated and says:
Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, President of the United States, do, in protocol, declare and proclaim on the part of the United States a suspension of hostilities, and do hereby command that orders be immediately given thereto through the proper channels to the commanders of the military and naval

New York, Aug. 13 .- A special from Washington says: Assistant Secretary Allen, of the navy department, has received a dispatch notifying him that a naval force sent by Admiral Sampson had appeared in the harbor at Man-1.631.000 zanillo and demanded its surrender. The commander of the city declined to comply with the demand and an engamement took place, which is said to have resulted victoriously for the Americans. The fight at Manzanillo was begun at four o'clock, 23 minutes before the protocol was signed, by a bombardment from the fleet. In view of the signing of the protocol today and the suspension of hostilities every effort was made by the authorities to stop the fight at Manzanillo.

The First Division in the Ontario Legislature.

Government Majorty of Six With One Liberal Absent.

House Sat Until Nearly Three O'Clock in the Morning.

Mr. Whitney Invites Every Opposition Member to Talk-Mr. Ross' Effective Reply-The Address From the Throne Carried.

Toronto, Aug. 13.-The opposition talked itself out at an early hour this morning. Mr. Ross wound up the debate for the government in a telling speech which shattered the filmsy fabric of the opposition. The division taken at 2:40 a.m. resulted in a government majority of six, which would have been seven but for the illness of Mr. Craig, East Wellington. Mr. Beatty (Parry Sound) voted Liberal and Mr. Tucker (West Wellington) Conservative. The result was greeted with cheers. The debate was resumed by Mr Carscallen, of Hamilton, whose florid rhetoric was rather amusing to the government side. He accused the Lib. eral members of "craven suppliant worship" in the adulation of the ministers. He condemned personalities in the house as beneath his dignity. He exonerated the member for West Peterreflect on the judiciary and went on to nothing less than boro (Mr. Stratton) of any desire to give the judges credit for uniform courtesy and impartiality. He denied the necessity of calling the house toaccordance with the stipulations of the gether. The constable question should be left to the trial judges. The Liberals claimed a popular majority of 7,000, but their majority in the house of eight should, under proper conditions, represent a popular majority of 175,000. (Liberal laughter.) The whole study of the government has been cenforces of the United States to abstain tralization of power in themselves.

They had got control of so many offifrom all acts inconsistent with this ces that they actually controlled the worst family compact that ever exist-

> Mr. Conmee (Liberal), West Algoma, neatly tripped up Carscallen upon the quoted from Mr. Carscallen's Liberal speeches, in which the member for Hamilton eulogized Sir Oliver Mowat's purity of government, and defended the Ontario ballot. Mr. Conmee said that Col. Matheson owed his position to Hon. John Haggart. Col. Matheson protested against this and Mr. Conmee withdrew his statement.

Mr. Conmee resumed at the evening session. He denied that one dollar of colonization money had been used to effect either his own or his colleagues election in the Algomas. Referring to ernment purchased more supplies by tender than did railway companies other private corporations. He denied that Mr. Meredith had initiated government's mining policy. Mr. Meredith supported that policy in 1892, and he (Mr. Conmee) was the only man who opposed it. Mr. Meredith always supported the government when it was wrong. (Laughter.) The speaker scored the opposition for denouncing imaevils in Ontario when they supported the government which per-petrated the McGreevy and Curran bridge scandals. Mr. Carscallen had said of that government: "With the Dominion Government it was a constant grab for every cent of money that hands could be laid on from every source to be put into the treasury and fished out by contractors who contributed to the election fund."

Wardell (Con.) North Wentworth, next spoke, and opposed retroactive legislation. He charged that Mr. Conmee had been dogging the government for a cabinet position, and ernment if he did not get !

Mr. Hardy—Never. Mr. Conmee—I never asked this government nor any other government for

Mr. Wardell said that the contrary had been reported. He accused Mr. Conmee of being unduly interested in mining locations, of introducing legis-lation presumably in the interests of speaking from what he had heard.

Mr. Conmee said that if a member were permitted to make hearsay charges, he could slander any one in the house.

Mr. Wardell was sorry.

MR. ROSS' REPLY. Mr. Ross took the floor when Mr. Wardell sat down, and it was soon apparent that he was in excellent form At the recent election, he said, 300,000 electors had expressed their will at the ballot box, and by a majority of 7,000 had declared their confidence in the present government. There could be no more important duty for the legislature than to see that the will of the electors was carried out and not thwarted by such issues as were raised by the opposition. The policy of the government would, he was satisfied, commend itself to the good sense of the house, and he had not seen a single Liberal that had offered the slightest objection to the bill or the policy embraced in it. They had heard a great deal this session about the result of the last election, and he congratulated the leader of the opposition upon the increase in the number of his supporters, but he pointed out that his majorty was not growing, as they were now where they were twenty-five years ago, and he gave them as an arithmetical problem to work out, if they had made no progress in that period, how long would it take them to obtain control of majority? (Cheers.) Honorable gentlemen had without success alopted as many policies as there are points in the sailor's compass; they had appealed to every faction above ground and below-(laughter)-but they were now precisely where they stood twenty-five years ago. The government have a majority of seven, the sacred number, a solid vote, in which the opposition can make no inroads. Discussing the election. Mr. Ross pointed out that the members for Stormont, Glengarry and cumbents, not by the majority of the votes of the electors, but by reason of the fact that they had slipped in in a three-cornered fight. He showed that the opposition was just in the place it was in 26 years ago, no better. no worse, and there was just as little one for it now as there was then. The honorable gentleman had boasted of what he had done, and began to other constituencies, making probably a dozen votes on a division, had been carried by the present Conservative in-say that the government had the "scare," that they had turned tail, opposition in parliament? (Cheers.)

Referring to the charges of bribing the constituencies, the arguments of honorable gentlemen opposite were small. The government did not buy the Victoria College from the people of West Northumberland, but from the Methodist Church; ergo, by the arguments of the leader of the opposition, the purchase was made for the purpose of bribing the Methodist Church. Then they had planted the Normal School in London for a bribe. John School in London for a bribe. John Carling had planted a large asylum in London as a bribe; a school of infantry was put into London for a bribe. The Tay Canal was built near the honorable gentleman's town for a bribe. (Cheers) The honorable gentleman was not then a "briber," "bribee" in that case. (Cheers.) The honorable gentleman had dreamed dreams and seen visions, and these visions carried him away with the be lief that he is a stateman. (Laughter.) His honorable friend had referred to a mutiny in the Reform ranks-

Mr. Matheson-Hear, hear. Hon. Mr. Ross-No, it was "There, there!" over there. Honorable gentlemen opposite would see that honorable not like their honorable friends at Ottawa, who deserted their leader for a few days, but, when they found that the patronage was slipping from them. returned like whipped spaniels into the folds of their party, until the country rejected them with scorn and indignation. (Cheers.) His honorable friends appealed for British justice. What surprised him was the constitution which the British constitution had to stand such strains. (Laughter.) He referred to the struggle for the possession of the disputed and incidentally recalled the fact that the member for East Hamilton was then a champion of the government. Mr Ross touched on the question of the vacant portfolios and the constables with constitutional acumen. The government were right in taking the course they proposed to carry out. They contended that the policy should be to broaden and extend the franchise rights of the people, and that the full, free, and sovereign will of the people as expressed at the poll should prevail. (Cheers.) They believed that the peo-

carrying out this policy. (Cheers.)
Mr. Whitney followed in an impassioned address, during which he appealed to every one of his supporters who had not already spoken not to allow the vote to be taken until they had voiced their protest. The suggestion was acted upon by Messrs, Boyd and Fox (West Victoria).

at the Position of Affairs

Talk of a Secret Treaty Between China and Russia.

Serious Character of the Rebuff to Great Britain.

London, Aug. 13 .- The morning papers express the growing indignation of the country at the condition of affairs in China. The Daily Graphic says: "If this state of things continues, the guns will go off of themselves." The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail, who professes to divulge the terms of a long existing secret between China and Russia says: " It is

AN OFFENSIVE ALLIANCE. China undertakes to regard Russia as having a preponderating influence in all questions of commercial and internal politics, while Russia will support China against all 'open door' demands. SIMPLY TO SHUT BRITAIN OUT. If the Daily Mail's version may be trusted, it will explain much that had hitherto been inexplicable in the development of the question. The manager of the Hong Kong and Shanghai bank in London, in the course of an interview yesterday, said: "I believe the Pekin Han-Kow line, owing to natural obstructions and its costliness, will never be built, Russia merely wishing to keep England out."

THE FRENCH CHUCKLE. The French press comment gleefully upon the situation, and the newspapers at Berlin and Vienna are at no pains to hide their satisfaction at the discomfiture of England,

The continental press regards the project of an Anglo-American alliance as chimerical. These journals consider that the U. had enough of war for the present, and will not care to give Great Britain anything more than moral support in China. Therefore, they argue, England is not likely to pick a quarrel with Russia, but will content herself with seeking compensation elsewhere. A special dispatch from Shanghai The Russian agents are again intriguing to obtain control of the Chinese maritime customs department. SERIOUS REBUFF.

The Pekin correspondent of the Times telegraphing with reference to the Pe-kin Han-Kow contract says: The rebuff is all the more serious because the Tsung Li Yamen gave assurances that the decree confirming the contract would not be issued until after a further conference with Sir Claude Mac-Donald, the British minister.

IMPORTANT RAILWAY DEAL.

The Erie and Huron Absorbed by the L. H. and D. R. R.

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 13.-The Erie and Huron Railway, which runs from Sarnia to Rondeau, a distance of 74 miles, has passed into the hands of the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway. The M. C. R., as well as the L. E. and D. R. R., had been negotiating to get control of the E. and H. The selling price is to be $750,000.

It is understood that in consequence of the deal. Chatham is likely to lose the E. and H. shops, which will probably be removed to Walkerville, together with the head offices of the E. and H. About September a new timetable will go into effect, and trains after that date will run from Ridgetown to Sarnia, and from Chatham to Walkerville, with Blenheim as a common junction The extension of the system will connect Rondeau with the boat service already established between Port Stanley and Ohio, so that the new system now extends from Port Huron and Sarnia on the north to Cleveland and other Ohio ports on the south, from London, St. Thomas and Port Stanley on the Mrs. Silcoks, Miss Clares and Miss Alleast, to Windsor and Walkerville on the west. The lake traffic of the L. E. and D. R. R. Company will in this way be a very important factor. That for the western peninsula will be via the Eau and they are looking for a big business via Port Stanley to St. Thomas and London. The E. and H. Railway was owned by

WON FROM CHATHAM. In a fast and interesting game at Tecumseh Park yesterday afternoon the Londons succeeded in defeating the Bbes, who, by the way, have unquestionably cut their eye-teeth, and might be more appropriately called the Red Men of the West, since they have donned their new uniforms. McElvaine was hard hit from the start, but his splendid support shut the locals out from scoring until the sixth inning. Then London did a bargain-counter business. I'wo triples and three singles were safely placed in the outfield and the ru. came in with a rush. The batters lept chasing ten other around the passes in quier ecession, until five of them had croudd the plate and

-victory was cinched. Crowe was in good form, and for the first three innings the Bubes went down before him in one, two, three order. With two men out in the fourth he was touched up for three baggers by Phelps and Miles, but induced Mc-Livaine to ran out, so that the heavy batting netted Phelps' run only.

The next tally for the visitors came in the seventh on Crowe's error. A and Peitz. wild pitch enabled Conklin to get to third, and he was on the line, coming | St home, when Crowe, who had fielded the ball at the plate, threw wide to Keenan, and the runner scored. In the ninth, Jones hit to Carey. Conklin made a two bagger and was batted around by Phelps. Miles singled. Mc-Elvaine struck out, and Lowney sent the ball into Meara's mitt. But it didn't stay there, and Phelps and

The First Division.

The first division in the Legislature a solid working majority of for the Government. Owing to the absence through illness of Mr. Craig, of East Wellington, the actual majority was six, but that gentleman is recovering. Mr. Beatty, of Parry Sound, whom the Opposition previously claimed, is a staunch supporter of the Government, as he announced before his election. Mr. Tucker, of West Wellington, nominally an Independent, has all along been conceded to the Conservatives. Counting the Speaker, the Liberal members in the House number 51 and the Conservatives 43. The Government's position is Impregnable

Now that the address to the throne is passed, the Legislature should get business. If the Opposition have any regard for public opinion, they will repress their exuberant verbosity. Such talk is not cheap at $6 per day per member. Mr. Whitney should admit himself beaten, and abandon his mock heroics.

Should Free Public Schools Teach?

"Schools maintained by public taxation, and whose advantages are open to all regardless of what they contribe justified only on the ground of their necessity to safe citizenship." So says Dr. T. S. Hamlin, in a sensible, though not wholly convincing article, in the New Work Independent of the 4th inst. We should prefer to substitute the word "good" for "safe." This fact, which is almost a truism, is not always kept in mind as it should be, in determining courses and methods of instruction in our publie schools. The education of the child for life, which implies much more than his preparation for making a living, is primarily the duty of the parent or guardian. It is only because there are so many children whose Tarents or guardians are either unable or ling to pay for the education of the children under their care that it becomes the right and duty of the state to undertake the work at the public Universal education, as undertaken by the state is thus simply a measure of self-preservation.

If this view be accepted, and very few will deny it, it must become the prevailing principle in determining the subjects and limits of the instruction to be given in state-supported schools. It is, for instance, clear that the safety and prosperity of the state demand that the number of ignorant and idle or incapable citizens shall be reduced to the smallest possible dimensions. Ninetenths of the world's work, as Dr. Hamlin says, must be done with the hands. Is it not, then, a strange inconsistency that hitherto the education of the hands has been almost entirely neglected in the public schools? What does this mean but that nine out of every ten boys and girls who attend these schools receive no training that stands in direct relation to their future life-work? Much of their school training, on the other handwe should be unwilling to admit that this is by any means a necessary or legitimate result-as a matter of fact. tends to create an actual distaste for what necessity will make the future life-work. This distaste is often aggravated by the fact that the muscles have not been trained, nor in any way inured to the movements which are inseparable from the pursuits in question. Thus manual labor of any kind irksome, because literally tiresome. Not so with the muscles accustomed to such movements, as we centend those of every child should be. Take as an illustration of the point the difference between boys of similar age and ability, but of entirely diverse training and habits, when confronted with the necessity of doing some little iob of mechanical work. The one undertakes it readily and deftly, because how and has the strength arm and the ability to use the tools To the other, lacking these malifications, the molehill becomes But while we advocate nual training for all, we are as far possible from sharing the views of think too much mind-cule detrimental to manual industry, o would keep the farm boys on th m, etc. On the contrary, we believe encouraging a healthy circulation ween city and country. The Trouble in the East. The situation in China is one of extraordinary complications. Russia making a catspaw of France, her vassal, and France is making a similar tool of Belgium.

The immediate explanation of Belgium's interference lies in the fact that a French-Belgian syndicate has secur ed a concession to build a railway from Pekin south to Kankau, which is the Yang-tse-Klang valley, about 500 miles from the mouth of the Yang-tse-Kiang river. The British Government endeavored to prevent the ratifica tion of the contract, and justly so. The Yang-tse-Kiang valley is in the British sphere of influence, and the Pekin Government has given a pledge never to alienate any part of that valley without Great Britain's consent.

The Yang-tse-Kiang valley, the mid dle kingdom of China, is by far the richest part of the empire, and contains about 200,000,000 people. The bulk of its foreign trade is British. The Americans also have large and growing interests here. If Great Britain is to retain a foothold in China at all, it must be in this region. There is no denying the fact that Russia has pre-empted the great northern provinces, excepting Shantung, in which Germany has secured a lodgement. France looks upor the whole southern part of China as her own. The Yang-tse-Kiang valley lying between the French and Russian spheres, would be the only part left for Great Britain in the event of a territorial scramble. Yet France is already pushing up into the western portion of the valley, and the line from Pekin to Hankau would be the connecting link between the French and Russian railway systems. There is no doubt the two powers are working in collusion, and Belgium has been dragged in by giving her banks a financial interest in their

Great Britain in China is between the upper and nether millstones of France and Russian expansion, but she does not intend to be crushed.

Canada's prosperity is reflected in the postoffice savings bank returns for the past year. In that period the number of banks increased from 779 to 814, number of depositors from 161,-151 to 179,814, the amount on deposit from $8,223,000 to $9,183,693, and the individual average credit from $238 55 to $242 47-and this despite an aggregate reduction of interest from $1,024,511 to $982,725. The withdrawals for 1898 were $8,853,188 and in 1897, $7,656,086.

In 1897 London imported 850,846 boxes of cheese; Bristol 551,786 boxes: and Liverpool 417,175 boxes. Of butter, in 1897, Bristol imported 116,397 packages; London 53,684; and Liverpool 30,749. Mr. Titley added, that they used to get good cheese from New York, but now there was a little sentiment, and they tried to improve. The average of Canadian cheese and butter, he said, was better than the average of English produce; but they were able to make cheese a little finer than as yet they in Canada could do, and they would continue to do so, and to turn out a finer Cheddar than they could make in Canada.

now rapidly a false report spreads! The senior member for the city of Ottawa in the Ontario Legislature, in his recent speech, touched on the respective parties in the House, and among other things he dealt with the remarks of an Opposition speaker who commented on the comparative size of the majority of the Liberal party. Mr. Lumsden's retort was that if, as had been stated, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that the Liberal party in the Legislature was his right arm, it was nothing to the claim that the Opposition leader would have made had the majority in the Legislature been at Mr. Whitney's back instead of alongside of Hon. Mr. Hardy. In that case, said Mr. Lumsden, the Opposition leader would have claimed that the majority in the Legislature was not only the right arm, but the body and breeches as well. Now the Conservative papers, including their so-called "independent" allies, are saying that Mr. Lumsden said of Sir Wilfrid Laurier what he said of Mr. Whitney, and they feel very wroth thereat. It is thus that they manufacture their grievances, and endeavor to mislead the public, but the people of this fair province are not so stupid as they endeavor to make-believe.

The traditional policies of Britain and Russia were never in sharper conflict, and the field is so supremely important that it is difficult to see how the outcome can be other than an appeal, in the end, to the ultimate resource of nations. It is most strongly felt here that the great weakness of British diplomacy is a refusal to recognize the fact that China is a nation in name only, that her rehabiliment as a nation is impossible, that her people-partly through corruption in high places and partly through their adherence for centuries to the enervating peace doctrines of Confucius-are a one-sided commercial people, void of the semblance of patriotism and incapable of the slightest heroic effort. It is undoubtedly true-as our local Shanghai paper wrote at the time of Salisbury's speech, in which he referred to China as a nation of '400,000,000 brave men' -that 'a boatswain and twenty bluejackets can today take any port or fort in China.' David Mills' article in the June North American Review, discussing the question, "Which Shall Dominate-Saxon or Slav?" has reached China, where, it is believed by many, the final arbitrament will have to be fought out, with Great Britain and Russia as the chief participants. A letter has just been received from Yokohama, written by an unusually wellinformed observer of current events, who says: "I have just this moment finished reading the very able article by the Dominion Minister of Justice in the June North American Review on the question 'Which Shall Dominate-Saxon or Slav?' I have thought that Hon. Mr. Mills might not take amiss an expression of the sincere pleasure which the reading of his article afforded me, though I have not the good fortune of his personal acquaintance. This fact-a most important one-is not sufficiently recognized. ese Bank (a government institution) demonstrates too clearly how Russia proposes to 'encourage' the trade of foreigners in those territories. The most difficult point in the whole game was to understand by what process of reasoning Germany, herself a rapidly developing manufacturing nation, could decide to stand idly by while these vast markets were being hermetically sealed against the commerce of the world. "Heretofore I have always thought that in the inevitable struggle approaching Britain need look for no allies to help her in the fight; but the Hispano-American war appears to have paved the way for at least a possible Anglo-American rapproachement It would certainly be a magnificent alliance, and would, to my mind, dominate the situation. The charter stated that the system would have to be completed by Dec. 1. Every week was therefore very valuable to them. The reason they came before the committee was that they could not carry out their schemes on a 15-year franchise. It was thought they were getting terms similar to those of the street railway company.

Ald. O'Meara said that with the expeption of the shortening of the term from twenty years to fifteen, the People's Company had got just what they asked for. The purchasing clause was never discussed, but was brought forward afterward. In reply, Mr. Bayly said that the present franchise was not workable, and, therefore, they were asking for more favorable terms.

McCallum thought that no council had power to grant a perpetual franchise for a term of years, but was informed by Mr. Fisher, for the ing of the council the city solicitor had stated that the bylaw for the People's Company was along the same lines as the street railway agreement. The city wanted the People's Company to invest $100,000, and at the end of fifteen years they would have to take man Winnett, stating that he had re- up their plant. Continuing, he said:

In replying to Ald. McPhillips, Mr. Scott stated that the People's Company wanted to get the city into their power, and at the end of fifteen years the Feople's Company would have the council by the heels, instead of the council holding sway over them. Mr Scott, in contrasting the rates of the two companies, said business men paid $15 for their 'phones and 2 cents a call, which made them practically the same as offered by the new company. Instead of paying $1,000, as was stated, they actually paid $2,200, or $200 more the expiration of the 15 years, to take Scott thought this gave a very fair valuation to be fixed by three arbitra- "a great monopoly," as they had been tors, one selected by the city, one by branded by the new company. They the company, these two to oppoint a paid 10 per cent of their gross revenue l or do not desire to the city per annum, and there was not another institution in the city that enjoy their franchise for a further term did the same. He could not see why so many slurs were being directed at the Bell. In Peterboro, a new company was formed, which lasted just one year and dropped $19,000. Ald. McPhillips-Your company reduced the rates to nothing. Mr. Scott-Yes, sir. Ald. McPhillips replied that thought as much. Mr. Scott, in continuing, said that the People's Company claimed to have already some 350 subscribers, which he thought a very poor showing. Mr. Bayly-We are quite satisfied. Mr. Scott said personally he did not think the People's Company had 300 subscribers.

At this juncture Ald. O'Meara joined in the discussion. He said he would be a traitor to the city if he were to vote to tie the corporation to a perpetual or exclusive franchise. Mr. Scott informed Ald. McPhillips, in reply to a question, that the Bell Company did not pay the Canada Company of Toronto a cent to get them to

Ald. McCallum - Did the People's Company approach you in any way? Mr. Scott said he could not reply to the question. The mayor asked Mr. Bayly if any offer had been made to the Bell Company by the People's Company, and was informed that no offer had ever been contemplated. Mr. Smallman said that the money to construct the plant had been subscribed by the promoters, and he denied the statement that the stock was to raised in small lots among the citizens.

Mr. Judd followed, and wanted know if the money had been raised as Mr. Smallman had said, would it not be necessary to insert the clause asked for. Mr. Smallman had put his foot into it. If they had the money, they would be able to work under the present franchise and go on with the fight. The Bell Company shared their profits with the city, and the offer now made by the Bell Telephone Company would be carried out to the letter, even if the Company should withdraw People's of the People's Company be accepted, and recommended to the council. Ald. McCallum—I will never vote for a perpetual franchise to any com-give an exclusive right to the People's Company without getting into litigation with the Bell Company. The motion was lost on the following division: Yeas — Ald. McPhillips and Mayor Wilson. Nays—Ald. McCallum, O'Meara and Nutkins. Chairman Winnett then voiced his opinion on the matter. He had asked the two companies to submit their best offer. His object was to bring something definite before the committee. Personally, he agreed with the majority of the members, that it would not wise to grant a perpetual franchise to any company.

At this juncture Mayor Wilson jumped up and stated that he thought Ald. Winnett had gone beyond his jurisdiction. No chairman of any committee had any right to communicate with any

THE BANK ROBBERY

Canadian Trade Considerably Above the Average.

Situation on the Other side-Bradstreet's and Dun & Co.'s Reviews.

GOOD DUTLOOK

New York, Aug. 13.—Regarding the condition of Canadian trade, Dun's review says: Canadian reports are, on the whole, fairly good, especially so far as they depend upon to outlook for crops, which is altogether satisfactory. At St. John business in provisions is very moderate, but there is a little gain in assorting orders for drygoods and boots and shoes, while trade in nardware is a fair average. Wholesale trade at Halifax is about average for the season. Collections are fair, and retail trade is quiet. Grain crops promise very well in Quebec Province, and farmers are expected to liquidate store bills. The money market at Montreal is easy, though money will soon be in more active request for moving crops. Trade at Toronto is above average, with encouraging prospects, and money is easy, with payments satisfactory. Midsummer quiet prevails in ost lines at Hamilton, with good collections. Trade at Victoria is rather quiet. but wholesalers report business with the Kootenay district as more active. Vancouver reports a poor salmon run on the Fraser River, with every indication of a short pack, and in con sequence local trade is retarded, but regular business is seasonably quiet, with slow collection. Bradstreet's review says: The excellent Canadian wheat outlook has been further improved by the hot, dry weather of the past two weeks. For the same cause, however, distributive trade has become quieter. Montreal reports less doing in business, but failures are few in number, and trade prospects are good. Toronto papers report a good business on fall account, with the probability of wheat yield of Canada larger and better than ever before. This is expected to be reflected in a volume of business passing all previous records. Stocks of imported goods are heavy, but Canadian mills are working full time in an endeavor to catch up with orders. Business in the Eastern Maritime Provinces is but in British Columbia the jobbing trade fully meets expectations, and a heavy salmon pack is indicated. Bank clearings in the Dominion aggregate $24,209,000 for the week, a decrease of per cent from last week, but a gain of per cent over this week a year ago. Business failures for the week number 33, against 23 last week, 31 in this week a year ago, 35 in 1896, 29 in 1895, and 40 in 1894.

OVER THE LINE. New York, Aug. 13.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Prospects of peace have had a curious influence on business contracts, not quite explainable on common sense grounds. Nobody feared disaster, or exhaustion of natural resources, and nobody feared that anybody else was afraid of either. Yet orders unusual in number and size have been placed since Spain asked for peace industries the gain has been large for about two weeks, while in some textile manufactures it has just begun to appear this week, but it involves a considerable increase in the working force. While wheat is 4 cents higher for the week, there is less doubt than a week ago that it will rule lower during the coming year. The general holding back of grain by farmers and consequent heavy shrinkage in western receipts, have reduced the visible supply below all past records, but everybody expects that at this date many times that quantity is almost within a day's run of Chicago. The more effective condition is the decrease in exports, which have been only 3,237,819 bushels, our included.from both coasts, against 3,832,974 last year, showing but a slight increase of half a million bushels for two weeks compared with last year. The price of corn has declined a shade for cash, and the government report romising almost two billion, against 1,185,000,000 promised by commercial agents, has more weight because the official returns as to corn have not been systematically misleading and everywhere discredited. The demand for woolen goods is now much better. The magnitude of stock of old wool held by manufacturers constantly perplexed traders, and has much to do with the fixing of prices for goods. For the week failures have been 196 in the United States, against 239 last year, and 18 in Canada, against

38 last year. Bradstreet's trade review says: Changes in general trade and business week have been generally toward further improvement. Notably in this respect has been the iron and steel trade, which has passed from the stage of promise to that of fulfillment on increased demand and market advances in values. Further encouraging features have been the accentuated demand on foreign account for wheat and corn, which is reflected in advances for these cereals, in spite of a rather more favorable than expected government report of possible yield. Popular estimates tend to allow of an underestimate by the government in wheat fully equal to that of last year, and point to a total crop not less than 700,000,000 bushels. The corn yield, as indicated by the government reports, is in excess of that last year, and only 300,000,000 bushels smaller than the maximum yield of 1896; but the yield of oats is reported cut short by dry weather, and an out turn indicated rather smaller than last year. Effects of the holding of

Ald. O'Meara would not bind the city wheat by farmers for better prices are down to any company. They could not found in the reduced volume of grain carried during July, with some com-plaints of interfered with collections. Price strength is also a feature. Business failures still incline toward a minimum, numbering only 157, against 189 last week, 214 in this week a year ago, 258 in 1896, 195 in 1895 and 254 in Cereal exports are of a satisfactory volume, and are still ahead of last season's liberal movement. Wheat shipments for the week, including aggregate 4.386,53 wheat. bushels, against 4,111,312 bushels last week, and compare with 4,460,519 bushels in the corresponding week of 1897. Since July 1 this year, the exports of wheat aggregate 18,712,657 bushels, against 16,115,543 bushels during the same period last year. Corn exports for the week aggregate 3,517,952 bushels, against 2,856,923 bushels last week, company, unless authorized by the 3,275,652 bushels a year ago. Since July 10 this year exports of corn aggregate 17,032,344 bushels, against 15,736,858 bushels last year.

Bank clearings totals at 89 cities as telegraphed to Bradstreet's for the week ending Aug. 11 show total clearings $1,221,921,527, an increase of 5.8 per cent. Outside of New York city the clearances were $455,680,000, an increase of 4.4 per cent. The clearances for the Dominion of Canada: Montreal, $13,650,366, an increase of 22.0. Toronto, $6,666,967, decrease 13.5. Winnipeg, $1,195,221, decrease 2.5. Halifax,

They had been up before, but had not gone in, because there was company. I wrote that letter. 1 never heard Ponton's name mentioned. I recognize the photo of Jack Roach as that of the man Mrs. Mackie called Jack, and I saw him but once. In cross-examination Miss French did not weaken. Chief Adams produced the tin box and oilcloth found in the plant where Ponton's money was kept. Sydney Scott, A. W. Grange and R. Coxall also testified, but divulged nothing important. Josle Haycock, Mrs. McGreer's nephew, said he was in a room right over Ponton's the night of the robbery and heard noises in the room be-"I was awakened by a crashing like a falling shutter," he said. noise, like a falling shutter,' "I also heard moving feet. That same night early I saw a man with a black mustache standing on the walk just in front of the entrance of the stairs leading to Ponton's rooms." Ex-Manager Baines testified that he was suspicious of Ponton's complicity on Sunday night, when it was found that the bank had been robbed. Saturday morning Ponton sent Green up to tell me the safe would not unlock. Ordinarily he would have 'phoned me, and this I considered a suspicious circumstance. I know of no other. On Aug. 26 I knew we were out of $10 notes. We had but eleven in the safe. On Saturday, the 27th, I put some into circulation. As to the government bonds, while the assets of the bank showed $10,000 of such, in reality they were kept in Toronto.

Detective Wilkes was in the when the court adjourned at 6:30 p.m. Napanee, Aug. 13.—The preliminary examination in the bank robbery case closed vesterday.

Detective Wilkes was again put the box. He denied ever having look-ed through the bank books. His of last year was put into court and taken as read. The detective addressed a few words to the court, denying that he had any personal animus against the prisoners, and complaining of the conduct of the defense lawyers, especially during last year's trial. Clarence Bogart, manager of the Dominion Bank at Montreal, was sworn, but gave no evidence. The evidence he gave at last year's trial was put into was done with Wm. J. Norman's evia bicycle.

Then ensued argument by Mr. Osler and Mr. Porter as to whether the magistrate should try the case or not. Mr. Osler claimed that the magistrate should not try the case, because all three prisoners did not elect. He said this was the rule that guided county judge.

Mr. Porter claimed this rule did not apply to magistrates, and that the should not ask for a decision till all the evidence had been put in. The magistrate said that Mr. Osler was his legal adviser, and the responsibility of his action rests solely upon the crown. He decided not to try the case, but said he was willing to any evidence the defense had to offer. The defense asked for time to get witnesses. The magistrate fixed Tuesday at 2 o'clock.

THE MECHANIC AND ARTISAN

The bakers of Utica, N. Y., have started an agitation to abolish night work as much as possible. Hugh O'Donnell, the leader of the Homestead, Pa., strike is now editor of the Baltimore Federation of Labor Journal. Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, has been invited by the labor unions Philadelphia to be the orator of the day on Labor Day.

The 25-cent assessment levied by Typographical Union, No. 6, New York, for the shorter work day fund, realized over $6,500. The Bricklayers' and Masons' International Union is now issuing a 32-page monthly journal. The first copy made its appearance last week. The city council of Philadelphia passed an ordinance requiring that all work done for the city shall be executed by union men and union scales of wages prevail. The American Federation of Labor has captured all the Knights of Labor brewery workers' unions in Rochester N. Y., and the union scale of wages has been signed by the proprietors. The Chicago Typographical Union has been negotiating with the employ-ing printers for a shorter work day for the book and job printers. The indications are that the request will be The Chicago woodworkers' strike which has been on for the past two months, it is expected, will be settled in a few days, as the employers have signified their intention of negotiating to that end. Investigations made by the U. S. commissioner of labor, and which will be made the subject of a special report shortly, show that wages are higher by something like 20 per cent on an verage in places where labor is well organized than in places where organization is weak.

Union carpenters of Grand Rapids. Mich., wear a union badge, changing the color quarterly. In this way the attention of the non-union men is attracted, and a number of applications for membership are the result of questions asked on the subject of union ism introduced by the badge.

Six hundred machinists employed by R. Hoe & Co., press builders, of New York, are on strike. The New York State board of arbitration offered its services to the employers to try and effect a settlement, but their services were declined. Grand Master Machinist O'Connell is endeavoring to settle the difference.

The carpenters' strike at Kansas City has been settled, a compromise having been effected between the union and the packing houses on a basis of 271/2 cents an hour and ten hours a day. The agreement entered into is the recognition of union men and the eight-hour day to be established as soon as possible. The boycott on the Swift Packing Company by the Trades Assembly, at the request of the carpenters, has past four years than they are at pre-sent for all painters to get back under one head.

An important victory for labor has just been scored at Marion, Ind., where a non-union concern instituted suits for damages to the extent of $1,000 against the Building Trades Council of that city, and J. M. Shellhouse, its business agent. The firm also petitioned for an injunction restraining the defendants from prosecuting the dence regarding Ponton's purchase of ing trades organization. Judge Chipman refused to grant the injunction, and dismissed the damage suit.

Members of the labor organizations in Denver are proving themselves to be not only enthusiastic but practical. Just now they are engaged in an effort to fortify themselves in a new charter for the city of Denver, Col., which is now in course of preparation, that all efforts for their future oppression may be void. They have cured representation on the commission of the new charter. Among their demands are absolute local self-government, the elimination of all property qualification as to office-holding the substitution of a day's labor for the contract plan in all municipa work, the adoption of an eight-hour day with a $2 minimum wage, th power to establish a municipal printing office, and the right of the people to vote on the revised charter bill as In addition to these they de mand the total prohibition in the ture of all public franchises and the public ownership of all the means o

OUR SHORT STORY

"The Word of an Englishman."

*6666666

[From Temple Bar.] In the rich plain of Sharon, midway between the mountains and the sea, lies the village of Sulfoon. Its houses are built of mud, not unmixed with stone, but the mud predominates. Here and there among the hovels and strange conical mud-huts-which last serve as granaries, storehouses and the likedate palms rise, each tapering shaft crowned with a noble plume of widespreading leaves and pendant fringe of reddening fruit. To the east and south west grove of silver-grey olives stretches without a break into the blue distance as far as Lydda and the white mosque of Ramleh, and away to the foot of the mountains. To the north ing the line of the orange gardens of

The men of Sulfoon were till lately of evil repute in the land. They were robbers, and of course liars. They were fanatics, Moslem in name, but in nothing else save their hatred of unbeliev-Worse crime of all, they were inhospitable. A good man may be a rob--by robbery one may come to riches and great honor. And he who will not a lie for his own advantage is a fool, and the son of a fool; but for any man to send a stranger hungry and thirsty from his door is a crime, and the blackest of crimes.

But a change, hard to understand, has taken place in the men of Sulfoon. Formerly no European could ride past the village unstoned; now he can hardly avoid being feasted.

It was the third hour of a spring day. The season of the latter rain was past, but the land was still green and flowery. The sun beat down upon the village, making the palm-leaves quiver high in air in a haze of heat. The children of Sulfoon, boys and girls alikehalf naked, brown-skinned, dusty, with blue beads strung round their necks as a charm against all evil—were playing in the narrow path which runs through the village, serving at once the purposes of roadway, dust-heap and general gutter. The game could hardly be called scientific. It could not be said to have a beginning, middle or end. They were pelting each other furiously with dried camel's dung and other refuse, shouting and screaming the while as if their very lives depended on it. Now and then a dismal howl of pain would be raised, as some well-aimed missile struck one of the players full in the face, blinding him or her for the mo-

Foremost in the fray was Ahmed, son of Mustapha. Being nearly nine years old-the oldest boy engaged in the skirish-he showed his manhood and superiority by smothering every girl who within range with dirt. His father had ridden away to Jaffa at sunrise, upon an ass, together with a load of tobacco leaves to be sold to the Regie, and Ahmed had begun his holiday by kicking his little sister Lulu, aged three-it was lucky that Mustapha was far away at Jaffa, for Lulu was a great pet-till she howled with pain, and then rolling her over and over in the refuse of the roadway to stop her crying. Then, his mother coming to the rescue, he fled to the maize fields, where he had laid hidden till he thought that the storm had had time to blow over. The game was very much to Ahmed's mind, for, being the biggest boy present, he had things all his own way. He had just succeeded in making one little girl cry, and was in the act of throwing a great clod of filth at a very small boy, naked save for a battered and tasseldess fez, when the clatter of approaching hoofs alarmed him, and the clod fell from his hand. Two Frankish horsemen were entering the village. "Unbelieving dogs!" muttered Ahmed, with clenched teeth. The other children fled in terror, every one to his or her own doorway, but Ahmed stood his ground. He was almost a man now, and knew well how a man would behave on such an occa-

The horsemen were both clad in white coats, white riding-breeches and brown top-boots. The one wore a pith helmet, and a puggery, the other a broad-brimmed felt hat. Ahmed had seen the like once before, when he had been to Jaffa with his father. They were Franks, unbelievers and accursed. He of the pith helmet held a white

A woman in this condition cannot be a capable and amiable helpmate. There is no necessity for a woman to suf-fer in this way. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all remedies for ailing women. It acts directly on the distinctly womanly organism and makes it strong and healthy. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain, stops debili-tating drains and tones the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It banishes the indispositions of the period of trepida-tion and makes baby's coming easy and almost painless. It insures the health of the little new comer and an ample supply of urishment. It tones and soothes the serves. Taken in connection with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, it makes the skin clear and beautiful. Over nety thousand women have testified to its lerful virtues. All good dealers sell it.

rag to his nose as he rode. Ahmed, who knew nothing of the uses of a pocket-handkerchief, saw something sinister in the action. They were chatting together in an unknown tongue, and their voices were in their mouths, not in their throats.

'Surely," thought the boy, "they speak cruel spells against us, and the rag is an evil charm."

He shrank close up to the mud wall as they passed, his bare feet finding a soft, warm cushion in the sun-baked refuse, and clutched at his blue bead's for protection. Then he stooped, and picking up a large stone with jagged edges, he flung it after them, muttering the while a string of curses long enough to have killed three moderately healthy missionaries.

The stone struck one of the horses; and west is the wide plain, swelling had all he could do to keep his seat, seaward with gentle undulations, a and at the same time save his leg from being crushed against the wall, as the frightened beast kicken and plunged in the narrow way. Ahmed grinned with delight, and was just bending down to find another stone for his purpose, when he was aware of the horsenian in the broad-brimmed hat riding towards him with whip upraised. The boy stood still, his arm hanging helpless with horror and dismay. Could the unbeliever be about to whip him, a good Moslem, in his own village, in a Moslem land?-to whip him for vindicating the honor of his religion in the orthodox way? The thought filled him with such terror and disgust that he began to howl and scream, even before he felt the avenging lash curl lovingly round his bare, brown limbs, with the sting of ten thousand serpents. At the first touch of the whip Ahmed threw himself, face downward, upon the ground, writhing and shricking in an ecstasy of pain-the pain he was going to feel. And he lay there, still writhing, howling and cursing, long after the Frank had made an end of whipping him. The sounds of his anguish brought haggard, slovenly women and turbaned men to the door of every hovel, and, penetrating even to the maize and tobacco fields, caused the workers to throw aside their tools and hasten to the place of torment. A crowd gathered at either end of the narrow way, and the sound of muttered curses was in the air. The stranger took in the position at a glance. He motioned his friend, who looked frightened, to draw closer to him. "That will teach thee to show some the stranger dismounted with a sigh of "We've won the day," he shouted to his friend in English. "Swagger goes a long way in this land."

He glanced disdainfully at the cowed faces of the villagers-one of whom rushed with fulsome servility to help the other stranger in dismounting-and went on to fill and light his pipe. There is nothing which so awes an ignorant and half savage people as perfect coolness and self-possesion, and these qualities are best shown in the deliberate filling and lighting of a pipe.

The number of stools and pitchers brought was overwhelm-When the strangers had made their choice and seemed quite at ease, two men led the horses to a shady place, and the rest of the villagers withdrew to a respectful distance, whispering together, with eyes fixed upon the unlooked-for guests.

"You don't mind stopping where you are and keeping an eye on the horses do you, Jim?" said the supposed doctor to his friend as he prepared to follow. The house of the sheikh was larger than the other hovels of the place, and its walls were almost entirely of stone. It stood at the northwest corner of the giant palm-tree rose before the door-

a landmark for miles round.

In the low doorway, sheltered from the sun's glare, a young woman was sitting, kneading dough in an earthen pan. She was very dirty, but plump and not ill-looking, though her eyes were tired and anxious. She rose, drawing her veil across her face, as the sheikh and his companion passed into the house. A group of villagers—men, women and children—gathered at the threshold, watching with eager curiosity the movements of the Frankish

"Aye, medicine! It is medicine that he needs," came in chorus from the group about the threshold.
"I have spoken," said the Frank, making towards the door. "It is my last word, and I repeat it. Send thy son to the hospital at Jaffa if thou hast a mind to save his life. It will cost thee nothing."

He was already on the threshold, and the villagers had drawn aside to let him pass, when the young woman, who had till then been crouching beside her child, sprang forward, flinging herself upon the ground, clasped his feet. "Khawajah, save him! Save him!" she cried. "He is my only child!"

The opposition, after a long and hard fought battle, have fully surrendered to the famous WILLIAMS PIANO. Its MERITS have told so forcibly that they have finally thrown down the gauntlet and admit, though unwillingly, that the WIFLIAMS is the KING of pianos. Only those AGENTS having a very LIMITED knowledge of what a first-class piano should be will attempt to say anything against a WILLIAMS PIANO. Experienced agents are fully aware that the music-laying public everywhere know the WILLIAMS fully aware that the music-loving public everywhere know the WILLIAMS is the finest piano on the Continent, and know it would display ignorance on their part to say anything different, as for the past half-hundred years the WILLIAMS PIANO has been preferred where a high-grade piano was wanted. It is not necessary to mention, but we will for the benefit of the very few people who may have neglected to look into it, that the Williams Piano Company s one of the oldest and strongest financially in the world, having the largest and best equipped factory and employing only the most expert piano makers. The finest tone, best materials, best werkmanship and most modern designs in ght and Grand Pianos are exclusive features of the WILLIAMS PIANO. The Williams Piano Company have such an immense capital that it enables purchasers to buy High-Grade Pianos on the easiest terms and at a moderate price, without giving their note or notes. Write out your own contract and what you are willing to pay monthly, quarterly, half-yearly or yearly, and that ends it. dearneath, and all sorts of lovely colors on top: Old Speck's chickens were all yellow and very fluffy. Puss kept her babies in a box behind the stove in the kitchen, and old Speck kept hers in a barrel in the woodshed. Every day, after the hearth was swent, Puss brought her kittens out and put them under the stove; and, likewise, every day, after the sun was up, old Speck brought her chickens out in the back yard. Now, one would think, since Puss and the speckled hen had so much in ing the merits of Hamlet with a young common and were such near neighbors, man who was equally fatuous as a that they would be good friends. But, dear me, Puss never stepped out into the back yard but old Speck began to scold. Puss could not even sit awful shame to drown Ophelia and kill ruffle up her feathers and begin to call her chickens.

"Errer!" she would say, lifting first one foot and then the other. "Errerer! Don't you see that cat? Err! Look out! Err! Keep close to me!" and so she would go on, while Puss sat with her eyes closed, and never once thought of the chickens.

Only a dreadful thing happened in the speckled hen's family. The housemaid had left a pail of water standing near the woodshed door, and the speckled hen's largest chicken, anxious to try his wings, flew up on the edge of the pail. He tilted back and forth a few times trying to get his balance, and then, splash! he went into the water. The poor little thing fluttered and gasped, and old Speck, lifting up her wings and her voice, flew in terror about the pail. After a while the chicken became very quiet, and the old speckled hen back to her chickens, trying hard to think what it was that made her feel so uneasy.

Meanwhile the housemaid found the chicken in the pail, and thinking it was dead, but not being quite willing to give it up, she wrapped it in a piece of flannel and put it in the oven. After a while the poor little drowned chicken began to gasp for breath.

So the chicken was wrapped up again in flannel and put under the stove. Now, flannel is not nearly as warm as one's own mother's feathers, and the poor little chicken felt quite forsaken. Pretty soon he crept out from underneath the flannel, lifted up his shrill little voice, and wept.

Puss, who was asleep with her three kittens, moved uneasily, for she did not like harsh noises.

Puss looked at her three kittens nestled up to her so cosy and warm, and then she looked at the poor little forlorn chicken standing out in the cold. "Mew!" said Puss, and such warmth of leve and tenderness as there was in Deny Pussy's voice.

But the chicken, not understanding cat-language, kept on crying, "Peep, peep, peep!"
Then Puss got up carefully, so as not to disturb her babies, and walked over to the chicken.

"Mew!" said Puss again, and put her head down right over the chicken. It might have been Pussy's motherly mew or it might have been her warm fur that won the chicken. Certain it is that the little thing began to utter the most contented and musical peeps that ever a cat heard. Peep, peep. peep! peep, peep, peep! peep, peep,

Then Puss settled down close by the chicken, and the chicken cuddled up close to the cat, and after that Puss had a nice warm place of its own un-

An old Scottish literary man resident in London is wont to amuse his friends by his extreme fondness for Burns. He continually garnishes his remarks with quotations from the author of "Tam O'Shanter," and as he possesses a caustic humor, some of his recitations are very much to the point.

At a dinner party at his house the other evening the conversation turned upon women and their ways, and the more susceptible of the male members of the company became semewhat sentimental in their appreciation of the merits of the "eternal feminine." "Woman was made to temper man," quoted a minor poet who was present.

'And pray what was man made for?" said a bright woman opposite, who had been listening to the conversation, with an expression of amusement. "Man," responded the old Caledon-ian at the head of the table, eyeing the party quizzically from under his shaggy eyebrows, and quoting from his na-

Mr. Lincoin's old backwoodsman had very heavy, overhanging eyebrows, and wore big spectacles with brass rims. One day he came rushing into his cabin, and seizing his rifle, aimed it carefully through a crack of the door at a great oak tree that stood near, 'What is it?" whispered his wife.

"A wildcat, Sairy, the orneriest wild-cat you ever see, and I missed him!" He hastily loaded and fired again, and then again.

STORIES OF THE CHILDREN.

Mamma-What kind of a dolly do you want, Mildred? Little Mildred-I want one that will cry when I whip her.

"Oh, mamma," asked a little girl, "why does the preacher always say 'lastly' in the middle of his sermon?"

Two little girls who had been playing disagreed. The youngest suddenly said, in real mamma tones: "Birdie, I wants you to understand I'se just like my muzzer; when I speaks I'se going to be minded." And the quarrel ceased at While teaching a class in Sunday school recently the teacher asked: "What was Noah supposed to be doing when the animals were going into the ark?" She received several answers. At last a little girl put up her hand. Well," she asked, "what do you say?" "Taking the tickets, miss," said she.

"Now, Mabel, when you say your prayers be sure to ask God to help you to not be a naughty little girl." Mabel promised that she would add this petition to her prayers, so when she had finished her usual form she spoke as follows: "And now, O God, please keep Mabel from being a naughty little girl. There was a pause, then she concluded: 'Nevertheless, Thy will, not mine, be

A little girl in a Chicago church has made a valuable contribution to the new woman literature. She told her mamma the story of Adam and Eve. 'Dod, He made Adam, and He put Him in a big garden, an' Adam he was so, so lonesome; 'n' then He putted him to sleep, He did; 'n' then He took out his brains and made a woman of the brains, 'n' then Adam he wasn't lonesome no more.'

Where Was the Squint?-An illustration of the ridiculous and annoying way in which a church choir will sometimes run together the words of a hymn is afforded by the remark of a small boy in one of the front pews of a large and fashionable church. The hymn beginning, "The consecrated cross I'd bear" had just been sung, and in the momentary quiet which fol-lowed the small boy turned to his Interesting Stories of the Late Sir Edward Burne-Jones.

Some interesting stories are told of the late Sir Edward Burne-Jones. It appears that the first drawing of Rossetti's that fell into his hands really determined his whole life course. He went to town in the vacation of 1855, not to speak to the master-that was beyond his hopes-but at any rate to see him in the flesh. His biographer has given an interesting account of this important moment in the history of modern English art. Mr. Ruskin had at this time impressed Rossetti into the service of the Workingmen's College, and thither Burne-Jones repaired one evening. The visit was to give him two of the determining friendships of his life-Rossetti's and Mr. Ruskin's.

"He sat for some time in the glaring gas-lit room among the new and unfamiliar company, feeling most pitifully ill at ease, wondering, as each fresh comer passed the door, 'Can that be he?' At length Mr. Vernon Lushington, attracted by his eager face, spoke to him, and soon found out the object of his enthusiasm. Presently Rossetti came in-'a man with that sweet, gentle face, with its large, tender eyes, high brow, and sensitive mouth, shadowed by the brown mustache and beard that gives the artist a look of Shakespeare in Mr. Watts' portrait of him.' Young Burne-Jones needed no mentor to tell him who it was. Through Mr. Lushington, the embryo artist was soon after introduced to Rossetti, and a mutual sympathy sprang up between them—a sympathy that led to intimacy, and which made the turning-point in Mr. Burne-Jones' life. Under Rossetti he studied, and through Rossetti's influence his genius developed and fructified, until the disciple surpassed the master.'

An interesting story is told of Rossett! and his disciple. He had lent some drawings of his own for Burne-Jones to copy. Some months later he went to see his pupil at work, and asked what he had done with the drawings. Burne-Jones immediately brought out the precious work, whereupon Rossetti tore them in two. "You have," he said, "nothing more to learn from them." In private life Sir Edward Burne-Jones was modest, shy and retiring. "My public life," he said to an interviewer a few years ago, "belongs to the nation, and I will gladly answer any questions you like to ask about it. My private life, on the other hand, I regard as my own. I do not care to have the curtain drawn aside from it. It puzzles me much," he continued with a sigh, "to know what special interest the public can take in the ordinary domestic life of a man, whether he is well known in his public capacity or not. My pictures are for the peoplemy inner life for myself and my friends." His garden studio was often open on Sunday afternoons to visitors, but he did not care himself to live in a glass house. But those who had the He was born in Ballytearim, where privilege of his intimacy, among them not less a judge than James Russell > culture and his wide and deep edge of literature. Unlike most painters, Sir E. Burne-Jones never made a practice of forcing his work in order to be in time for any of the annual art exhibitions. He preferred rather to paint his pictures in his own way and to suit his own time, and never to let any one of them leave his hand until he felt that he could conscientiously let it go. Thus it was that some of his principal works occupied his attention during a long series of years, so that the dates of their production can only be vaguely approximated. He also formed the habit of painting some of his pictures first in oils and then in water colors, or vice versa, with marked variations both in their size and treatment .- St. James' Gazette.

Nervous prostration is the goal to which more than fifty per cent. of the brain workers are hurrying. How can it be avoided? How can this new disease be cured? We will allow Mr. J. W. Hey, the genial and able editor and publisher of the Ailsa Craig Banner to answer. He says, "I was suffering from nervousness and impoverishment of the blood and commenced the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, believing from what I had heard and read of them that they were an excellent remedy. My faith in them was rewarded very speedily. They vitalized my blood, strengthened my nerves and restored me to perfect health. I do not consider they have an equal for nervousness, brain fag or nervous prostration produced by overwork."

OUR NEW RULER

A Running Sketch of the Earl of Minto's Career.

The Record of the New Governor-General as a Military Man-Severely Wounded in an Egyptian Engage-Countess of Minte.

The appointment of the Harl of Minte as Governor-General to succeed the Karl of Aberdeen is hailed with satisfaction throughout Canada. Lord Minto will not assume his official duties unger the disadvantage of being a stranger, for he is widely known throughout the provinces. It might be truthfully said that he is already a popular map.

The arrival of the Earl and his charming wife, the Countess of Minto, is sure to strengthen the regard now entertained for them. They will be the handsomest couple ever occupying Rideau Hall, and fully capable of maintaining the social prestige of their high position. With them will probably come three highly accomplished and levely daughters and two sons, forming an exceptionally interesting family. Lord Minto comes of one of the best known families in Scotland, and has a fine record in military and civil life. He is the fourth Earl of Minte and a descendant of Gilbert Elliot. whose great-grandson, Sir Gilbert, was created Baron Minto in 1797. His family name is Gilbert John Elliot, and he succeeded to the title in 1891. He is very wealthy, owning an estate of 16,000 acres, which includes the domain in Rox burghshire, near Jedburgh, and property in Fifeshire.

The new Governor-General is 58 years old, tall, athletic and distinguished in his bearing, and one of the most courteous and approachable of men. He was educated at Eton and Cambridge, and took his degree at the latter place. During his college days he went in for athletics strongly, and attested his prowess in rowing, sculling and running by winning numerous trophies. His love for outdoor sports still continues to the extent of bicycle riding, an amusement which the Countess of Minto shares with him very often. Lord Minto has had a varied military experience, and has seen hard service in several campaigns. Upon finishing his education he joined the Scots Guards in 1867, and served three years in that body. This was his preliminary training for a long and honorable career. He followed the Carlist army in Navarre and Biscay in the north of Spain in 1874 as a correspondent for a London newspaper, and in 1877 was sent to Turkey by the intelligence department as an assistant attache under Colonel Lennex, detailed to follow the Turkish army in the Russo-Turkish campaign. He was present at the bombardment of Nikopolis by the Russians, and witnessed the crossing of the Danube by the victors. He was laid up in a hospital with fever several weeks, during which the Russians pushed steadily toward the Balkans, and upon getting out again he was fortunate in being first to notify England by telegraph of the fact that the Russians had crossed the mountains. The hardships of this campaign compelled Lord Minto to return home before the war was finished.

In 1878 his lordship went to India, and going to the front in Afghanistan, joined Lord Roberts. He was with Lord Roberts all through the campaign in the Kurram valley. When Lord Roberts succeeded to the vacancy created by the death of General Colley in 1881, he invited Lord Minto to join his staff and become his private secretary. Peace was arranged. lowever, before any active service began. and the next year Lord Minto went to Egypt as a captain in the mounted infantry. Lord Minto received his first baptism of blood very soon afterward, being severely wounded in the first engagement. As soon as able he rejoined the mounted infantry, remaining with his picked organization until it was disbanded at Cairo. Most of its officers were either killed, wounded or invalided. Lord Minto came to Canada in 1883 as nilitary secretary to the Marquis of Lansdowne, the Governor General. One of his first acts in a military capacity was the organization of 800 Canadian boatmen for service in Egypt. In 1835, when the rebellion broke out in the Northwest under Riel. Lord Minto accompanied General Middleton's Canadian volunteers to the scene of the outbreak in the capacity of chief of staff. The conclusion of this campaign closed Lord Minto's active service, but he has taken a hearty interest n military affairs ever since. Upon his return to Scotland in 1887 he took a rominent part in organizing the Border Mounted Rifles, and when the Scottish Border Brigade was formed the next year his lordship was appointed brigadier. reperal. This brigade holds manoeuvers every second year at Minto, and has won umerous prizes in competition against the regulars. Lord Minto is not a military man only. He takes a deep interest in other affairs, nd especially in agriculture and stockaising. He is one of the strongest suporters of the border agricultural societies, nd has contributed many valuable prizes ward bettering the conditions of the rming community.

Lord Minto married Mary Caroline Grey in 1883, just before coming to Can-da. She is the daughter of General Charles Grey, who was private secretary the Queen. OLD STEAM ENGINES.

One Built by the Original Watt Just Put Out of Active Service - The Newcomen Engine.

Probably one of the best examples of historical engines, writes Bryan Donkin of London, Eng., is the Earlston, an old Newcomen pumping engine, still occasionally worked at the Caprington Colliery, two miles from Kilmarnock, near Glasgow. The history of this engine is ment-His Interest in Agriculture uneventful. It was set up at Caprington and Stock Raising-The Charming in 1806, and has been used almost continuously ever since, at the same place. practically without any renewals or alterations. The grandfather of Mr. Hugh Dunn, the present manager of the colliery, was in charge of the works in 1806, and the engine has, therefore, been, so to speak, uninterruptedly in the hands of one family. Some time ago it was proposed to remove it, but, as it was found still serviceable, giving little trouble, and capable of useful work on an emergency. it was left in position. On one occasion, when the workings in the mine were flooded to a depth of 80 feet, it was set to work, night and day, and pumped out the water in six weeks.

The engine, with the boiler beneath it, stands in an isolated house, with half of the beam projecting, as shown in the cut. It is single-acting, single cylinder, and the piston descends by the vacuum formed below it. The diameter of the cylinder is 30 inches; stroke. 5 feet 3 inches; diameter of the pump, 9 inches; stroke, 5 feet 3 inches, or the same as that of the motor piston, as the beam is of equal length on either side of the main bearings. The lift of the main pump is 170 feet, and both engine and pump work at 13 strokes per minute. The steam pressure in the boiler is about onehalf pound above atmosphere, vacuum in the cylinder from diagrams recently taken, 8½ pounds. The engine indicates 9.65 horse-power, and the pump, 8.32 of Aylesford, Queensbery or other notorhorse-power. Mean unbalanced pressure under the piston, 7-16 pound, due to the vacuum from the condensation of the

The only structural change made in the engine since it was first set up was the substitution, about 50 years ago, of a cast-iron beam, with radius bar and parallel motion, for the original old wooden beam with "cradles" at either end. The engine has, however, worn out several boilers since first started. The top of the cylinder is open, and to prevent the passing of air below the piston a jet of water from the pump plays constantly above the piston. If too much water accumulates, it is led off through the hot well.

For the photograph of the second engine I am indebted to Messrs. Avery, who, it will be remembered, acquired the celebrated Soho Works of Messrs. Boulton & Watt a few years ago, and carry on the business under the title of Messrs. James Watt & Co. It is said that this is the oldest Watt engine in the world. It is in the possession of the Birmingham Canal Navigations, and was constructed by Messrs. Boulton & Watt in the year 1777, the order being entered in the firm's books in that year as a single-acting beam engine, with chains at each end of a wood beam, and having the steam cylinder 32 inches in diameter, with a stroke of 8 feet, and erected at a canal company's pumping station at Smethwick.

During the present year-1898-this remarkable old engine, which has been regularly at work from the time of its erection to the current year, a period of, say, 120 years, was removed to the canal company's station, at Ocker Hill, Tipton. there to be re-erected and preserved as a relic of what can be done by good management when dealing with machinery of undoubted quality. It is worthy of note that the Birmingham Canal Navigations tavored Mossrs. Boulton & Watt in 1777 with the order for this engine, and in 1898, or 120 years afterward, the company has intrusted the same firm, Messrs. James Watt & Co., Soho, Smethwick, with the manufacture Duke of Westminster, Greatest of Landed Proprietors.

He Is the Favorite Example Cited by Henry George and His Disciples to Prove the Justice of Single or Land Tax-A Democratic Peer Who Is Popular.

One of the strongest advocates of an alliance between Great Britain and the United States is the Duke of Westminster. The Duke is the richest man in Great Britain, and there are those who say he is the richest man in the world. His wealth is estimated at $200,000,000. and the only men who is said to be more wealthy is Li Hung Chang, who is rated in the popular estimation as possessing $300,000,000. Moreover his fortune is tangible and certain to constantly inorease. It is, most of it, in real estate that increases in value from year to year. The income of the Duke from his enormous real estate holdings is nearly $5,000,000 a year.

As the largest proprietor of real estate -not in area but in value-the Duke of Westminster has been a favorite example cited by Henry George and his disciples to prove the justice of the single tax. There is no man in the world whe has benefitted more by what Mr. George calls "unearned increment" than has the Duke. The origin of the great fortune is this: In the sixteenth century one of his ancestors bought an immense farm for an insignificant price. No one dreamed in those years that London would some day have nearly 6,000,000 people, but during the last 150 years the city has grown up all around this farm. The family has retained most of this ground. With the increase of population it has become enormously valuable and is covered with buildings. All of his ancestors have been thrifty. None of them have squandered their moneey in riotous living, and not a marriage has been made in the entire line that has not added to the family wealth.

Yet, in spite of his wealth, the Duke is popular. There are few men in England who enjoy greater favor with the masses. He is a truly democratic peer, making the distinction between democracy and the vulgarity and viciousness

DUKE OF WESTMINSTER. lous aristocrats, dead and alive. His tenantry love him, and people of all classes have the highest admiration for him. His popularity was not gained in politics or diplomacy, but from association. His hospitality is unbounded, and his many ancestral seats are always filled with guests. The fire is alight all the year around. It is in the hunting field that the Duke finds the greatest joy. He is a true sportsman and does not care whether his companions in the chase are princes or farmers. It is the game he seeks, not society. He is the best judge of horseflesh in the United Kingdom, and is not wholly theoretical in his information. He can fit a racing shoe to a horse's foot with the skill of a master smith. His horses are the pride of his life, and he has a magnificent stud farm on the estate on which his principal country seat, Eaton Hall, is situated. This is in Chester, near Hawarden, famous as the home of Gladstone. The lords of the studs are the great Bend d'Or and Ormonde. The Grosvenor stables-Grosvenor is the Duke's family name-have a celebrity that has existed for a century. The colors were carried by a Derby winner in 1790, Touchstone winning the great prize. He was thirty years in the stud and the result has been a long line of prize winners. Three other Derby winners from the Grosvenor stables were Rhadamanthus. Bend d'Or and Shotover. The Oaks stakes, the second in importance of English racing events, have been won by the Grosvenor colors no less than nine times. The Duke has taken kindly to trotting, and has favored the introduc tion of trotting meets in England. He is breeding trotters, some of which are quite fast.

Yet in spite of the prowess of his stable it is said that he takes his racing honors coolly. He supports racing because it is the national English sport, and he believes it the duty of a duke to encourage it. When one of his horses wins he takes the victory quite calmly, while the rest of the vast audience are shouting themselves hoarse with excitement.

This sense of duty is one of the Duke's strong characteristics. Indeed it might almost be said to be a ruling passion with him. In a limited degree he considers that he holds his property in trus; for the nation—though of course he is the sole trustee. In consequence the great Rubens room at Grosvenor House has become identified with meetings of many kinds-chiefly of an ecclesiastical, humanitarian, charitable or public improvement character, at which the Duke presides. Whenever a deserving association desires to spend an improving and interesting day the Duke throws open his splendid collection of pictures, statuary and old china at Grosvenor House for inspection. And they are well worthy of inspection. The great Rubens room is a huge square apartment, the walls of which are adorned with four colossal paintings of patriarchs and apostles, which stretch almost from floor to ceiling and from corner to corner. The piotures were painted by Rubens in Spain in 1629. They were formerly in a convent near Madrid and were purchased by the Duke's ancestor, Earl Grosvenor. The Earl had a great reputation as an art his rival. collector, and his collection is valuable. This modern millionaire is the first to hold the title of Duke of Westminster. He began life as the second sen of the Hood's Sarsaparilla.

His mother was a daughter of the first Duke of Sutherland, who had married a Scotch lady of the highest birth, who was Countess of Sutherland in her own right. The Grosvenors trace their descent from Gilbert le Grosvenor, who was one of the companions of William the Conqueror and the descendant of a family which is stated to have flourished in Normandy for a century and a half before the conquest of England, and obtained its surname from having held the great and powerful office of grand huntsman (gros veneur). Hugh Lupus Grosvenor, for that is his name, was born at Eaton Hall, the family seat in Cheshire, in 1825.

THE ELECTRIC GROOM.

Horse Thoroughly Brushed in Two and a Half Minutes-Imparts a Silk-Like Sheen.

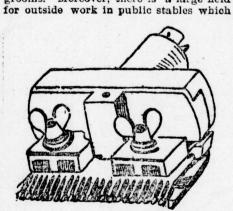

That the list of automatic machinery for performing duties that were originally required to be done by hand is a very large and growing one is an undisputed characteristic of the age. Of this number perhaps the major portion has for its motive power electricity or magnetism in one form or another, and

BRUSHING A HORSE BY ELECTRICITY. so varied and unique are the machines of this order that it does not seem improbable that the most ordinary manual labor will be supplanted by machinery in the not very distant future. As an illustration of this assertion take the "electric groom," which has recently been brought out by a large manufacturing company. One would imagine that in the case of so menial a task as the grooming of a horse it would not pay to have it done by machinery. Extended experiments on practical lines in large stalls have, however, demonstrated the efficiency and economy of the apparatus. The list of horsemen who appreciate the value of the mechanical grooming apparatus is growing as rapidly as the 2.30 list. The machines consist of an electric motor of one half horse power, with the necessary resistances and connections for driving the brushes. They can be operated off any style of circuit, alternating or continuous, and are supplied to meet the requirements of various voltages. The apparatus is attached to the ceiling of the stable, and a long flexible cable carries at its extremity a round brush, as shown, which is revolved at a high speed much in the same man ner as the drill of the dentist's engine. This brush can be reversed in direction of rotation. The arm carrying it is balanced, so that there is greater ease in manipulation. By means of a single machine operated by one man a horse can be thoroughly cleaned in two minutes and left with a fine, sleek coat. By the simple substitution of a pair of horse clippers for the brush attachment the apparatus can be employed for clipping horses, and this constitutes one of ts most meritorious features for use in large stables, where the annual tax for clipping the horses twice a year, as is almost necessary, is quite a serious one. As the horses can be brushed down nicely in a few minutes after clipping the use of the apparatus for clipping horses is rapidly growing, and is quite popular with large stables, as it insures the best of care of the horses with a minimum of labor, as one man and one of these machines can do the work of five or six grooms. Moreover, there is a large field

Peeping Toms of Korea. In an interview in the Young Woman, Mrs. Bishop, the traveler, says: "In Korea you never see girls out of doors classes going to the wells, and they are milk stage. Strychnine, aromatic spirits tied up so that no one can see them. Women only go out in the capital of Korea when a great bell sounds in the evening. When this is heard all men must retire to their houses. The only men who may go out are those who are blind, and those who are going to a druggist's with a prescription. And as men are deceivers the world over, it is not surprising that a great many men are may be summed up in four questions: 'blind," and that many have to go to the "druggist's" when evening comes. Indeed, the number of hypocrites who go about tapping with a stick is rather

A Weird Marital Complication. Says the Bombay Advocate of India: A pretty little marital complication recently happened at Benares. A married entleman named Nathu had deserted his family for several months, when some men personally acquainted with the truant saw him bathing in the Ganges. They lost no time in conveying the news to his unhappy spouse, who in company with his mother at once hurried to the spot to reclaim the vagabond. Surrounded on all sides, he had to succumb to the logic of events, with as good grace as he could. A few days later, however, the genuine Nathu appeared on the scene and flercely denounced the other gentleman as a rank imposter. But the wife insisted that she had got hold of the right man and refused to have anything to do with Whiskey, Beer, or Any Beverage Containing Alcohol.

Prof. George E. Partridge of Clark UL1versity, Worcester, Mass., Is Analyz ing Man's Craving for Strong Drink -His Experiments Show Surprising Effects of Alcohol on Man's Complex Powers,

Why does a man drink whiskey? This is the question which George E. Partridge, a senor Fellow of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., has set out to solve. He is still in the midst of his experiments, and it will be years before he completes them.

Mr. Partridge has, however, already established the fact that alcohol diminishes a man's canacity for physical work. It increases his power for the first half an hour, and then decreases it. He has also found that it weakens a man's intellectual powers and confuses

He is studying the relation of drink to crime by visiting criminals in prison. He is observing the stimulating and nutritive powers of other liquids besides whiskey. Among these are beer, tea, coffee, beef tea, milk and wine. Mr. Partridge's experimental work has been very interesting. He has brought willing subjects under certain scientific fixed conditions into a state of intoxication, and subjected them to a variety of psychological tests. One of the most interesting of these is the test of association of ideas. For instance, he would take the subject when perfectly sober and suggest some word, asking that the subject reply with some other word associated in his mind with the idea expressed. Should Mr. Partridge say "man" the subject might reply "woman," or if he said "white" the subject might say "black," and so on. Mr. Partridge has a list of four hundred of these words, and it is his custom to propound them to the same subject in various stages of intoxication and note carefully the result. In proportion to the degree of intoxication he has found his subject unable to give a reply associated with the thing suggested.

Mr. Partridge has been engaged on definite work with himself as a subject, to ascertain the effect of alcohol upon the muscular power, in other words, to solve the problem whether alcohol increases or diminishes a person's capacity for work. The investigator pursued his experiments with whiskey and with pure alcohol of full strength. This he

MEASURING PULLING POWER. took in doses of twenty drams of 83 1-8 per cent. solution in water about one day in four. He took the dose at 7.55 a.m., and at 8 o'clock began his muscular work. This consisted in pulling for one hour on a Ready Reference Guide of Lonhand dynamometer, or grip machine, the strength exerted in each pull being registered by means of a tape that was slowly pushed along, so that, when the hour was up, the total was shown on the tape. He timed each pull by a ticking machine and made a total of six hundred pulls an hour. A maximum pull with the right hand was about 150 pounds. During a part of the experiment, which lasted over two months, records of the pulls were taken on a revolving drum. Each day's work was about 90,000 pounds, or forty-five tons. As a result of this series of experiments, when figured and aver- J. P. HUNT, 344 Dundas street. aged. Mr. Partridge found that alcohol increased his power to pull on the dynamometer about 5 per cent. in the first half hour, and that in the second half hour the amount of work he was able to do fell off just about the same amount, so that the hour averages up the same as the normal hour.

Experiments in the second hour, however, indicate that the power continues to fall off from the normal, so that in the end the drink of alcohol proves a detriment in diminishing the capacity of the subject for muscular work. Mr. Partridge regards these experiments as very satis. factory and conclusive, especially as before entering upon them he had never taken alcohol as a beverage or as a medicine. With the volunteer assistance of a friend, Mr. Partridge is testing the effects of the liquids on the physical powers, the tests consisting of taking liquids and pulling on the dynamometer. These experiments are but just begun. in the daytime, except some of the lower and have not progressed beyond the hot of ammonia and whiskey will be tried

He has taken hot milk as a standard by which to compare the other liquids. In turn he will ascertain the effect of tea, coffee, beer, wine and other liquids Mr. Partridge says that so far his investigation of the drinking habit has been conducted along four lines, which "What does alcohol do to a man?"

"Ought a man to drink intoxicants?" "What shall be done to prevent the abuse of intoxicants?" "What is the effect of the drink habit upon the welfare of society?"

Mr. Partridge has undertaken to find the relation of the impulse for taking stimulants to the impulses of the normal mind. Medical men have studied the impulse to drink from a pathological point of view-looking for symptoms of disease. Mr. Partridge is studying it from the standpoint of psychology-seeking its origin in the normal mind. He has reached no definite conclusion as yet, and his further experiments will be watched with interest

Strange Series of Weddings.

This is from the Sydney Daily Telegraph: A unique series of weddings took place in the Catholic Church at Adelong on Saturday last, when the Misses Hoffman (three) were married to three brothers who were married were twins, and also two of the sisters. One other troubled with sores, humors, pimples, brother of the Quinn family is already married to a sister of the Hoffmans.

FRIENDS PREVAILED

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time-She Makes a Statement. TORONTO, ONT .- "I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and procared one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness,

Report of the Committee on Transfer of Membership

Was Not Adopted - Judiciary Decisions Generally Sustained - Strong Position of the Relief Association.

Galt, Ont., Aug. 13 .- The session of grand lodge, I. O. O. F., resumed on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, Grand Master Young presiding, with an attendance of 383 members. The first business was the reception of the report of the committee on elections, presented by Representative Harley, Brantford, which was that no election had resulted in the subordinate lodges for the office of grand warden. Election was then held for that office, thirteen names being in nomination, and on the first ballot all retired but five. On the third ballot Bro. O. L. Lewis, of Chatham, was elected. The other of-Clurg. Woodstock, deputy grand master; J. B. King, Toronto, grand secretary; W. J. McCormick, Toronto, grand treasurer: Harry White, P. G. M., 3year director for the Oddfellows' Home; Charles Packert, auditor.

The recommendations of all the committees making reports were adopted, among which was an item submitted to the committee on finance, asking grand lodge to assume the expense incurred by Dominion and Forest City Lodges, London, in defending the suits brought against these lodges by Bros. Parkhouse and Baker. Grand lodge decided to grant each lodge $100 for the purpose asked.

On Wednesday evening Ivy Lodge (Rebekah) conferred the degree upon 44 candidates in the town hall. The work was exceedingly well performed, and elicited applause from the large audience, and speeches of congratulation from Grand Master Young and Past Grand Master White.

The appeal of John T. Johns against Ottawa Lodge, No. 224, was not sustained. W. P. Shaw, against Lily Lodge, No.

211, no action, on account of incomplete evidence. Minto Lodge, No. 98, against Har riston district, appeal sustained.
The appeal of James J. Johns. Ottawa Lodge, 224, against D. D. G. M. Abbott was not entertained.

Thursday evening the secret work of the order was exemplified, and several committee reports were received. The brethren were photographed at the close of the afternoon session. Galt, Ont., Aug. 13.—The finance committee of grand lodge, in its report, referred to Galt as the most suitable point they could have obtained, on account of its central position, which had effected a saving to the grand body of over $900. The total cost to grand lodge has been slightly over $4,000. In addition to granting Dominion and Forest City lodges $100 each in the cases of Parkhouse and Baker, grand lodge pays counsel fees. Nith lodge, No. 96 (New Hamburg), was granted $89 39 -half costs in a law suit. The report of the committee on transfer of membership was defeated.

Grand Master Young, assisted by Past Grand Master Woodyatt. exemplified the unwritten work of the order to the satisfaction and edification of all present.

The judiciary committee presented an exhaustive report on the decisions given by the grand master during the year, sustaining most of them. Some of the more intricate questions were corrected, and are now law for all sub-ordinate lodges, chief among which is the power of the lodges to dispose of their funds in certain ways.

The advisory committee of the Odd-fellows' Relief Association, of Kingston, was presented by Representative Given. Its most notable point lies in the fact that the Daughters of Rebekah have been admitted to the privileges of the association, but are limited to an insurance of $1,000. Some $35,000 had been added to the reserve fund, which now amounts to $150,000. and this in spite of greatly increased expenses.

FRIDAY'S SESSION. At yesterday's session the grand master was empowered to appoint an instructor to assist him in visiting weak lodges, with the object of increasing their interest and practically resurrecting the lodge, but not for the purpose of organizing.

The report of the Oddfellows' home board was presented by Past Grand Sire Cl. T. Campbell, and proved very interesting and satisfactory. The officers of the board are: Cl. T. Campbell. P. G. S., chairman; J. E. Farewell, G. M., vice-chairman; J. B. King, secretary; W. J. McCormack, treasurer. The report stated that an offer of 30 acres of land had been made to the board as soon as they are ready to commence work, and that other offers had been It was impressed upon the representatives to urge upon their lodge the necessity of granting sums of money for this laudable object, and also of soliciting other subscriptions and offers of sites. Grand lodge placed $1,000 to the credit of the board. medicine for common to was selected as the next in the market.

meeting place of the grand lodge. Kingston and Cobourg also sought the honor. Grand lodge adjourned after receiving nominations for the next grand officers, Bro. R. K. Cowan being again placed in nomination for the chair of grand warden.

The representatives who are guests at the Iroquois Hotel were yesterday morning marshaled by Bro. J. M. Logan (London) into the dining room, where purses were presented to the waitresses and bell-boys, and an address read to the proprietor.

Successful L. C. I. Candidates at the July Examinations.

Results of the Examinations in Forms 1 and 2-Values of the Certificates Under the New Regulations-Creditable Showing.

The results of the high school and matriculation examinations held in July were made public today, and below are given the names of the successful candidates at London, so far as concern the examinations of Forms I. and II. It is expected that the results of the examinations of Forms III. and iV. and for commercial specialists, commercial diplomas and domestic science will be published in two or

Regarding the value of the certificates, it will be understood that & Form I. certificate has the same qual ifying value for a teacher's certificate, as a public school leaving certificate, which, together with a Form II. certificate, gives prin.ary standing and en ables the candidate, if eighteen years of age before the end of the year, to enter a county model school. Regarding the certificates awarded for the examinations of Form II. subjects candidates should observe the following: II. implies that a Form II. certificate has been awarded, the canu' date having obtained the requisite 50 per cent on the total as well as passing in each subject. II. (4) implies that a Form II., Part L, certificate, covering grammar, arithmetic. history and physics, has been awarded, the candidate having obtained the requisite 50 per cent on the total, as well as passing in each of the four subjects. This certificate, in addition to its value as provided by the regulations, also entitles the holder to junior matriculation standing in these four subjects. II. (3) implies that a Form II Part

I., certificate, covering grammar, arithmetic and history, has been awarded, the candidate having obtained the re quisite 50 per cent on the total, as well as passing in each of the three subjects. This certificate, in addition to its qualifying value in the case of candidates writing for junior or senior ficers elected were: J. E. Farewell, candidates writing for junior or senior Whitby, grand master; James Mc-leaving standing under the provisions of the former regulations, also entitles the holder to matriculation standing in these three subjects. Matriculation (4) implies that a Part

I. junior matriculation certificate, covering grammar, arithmetic, history and physics has been awarded. This certificate has no qualifying value for a acher's non-professional certificate, as the necessary 50 per cent on the total was not obtained. Matriculation (3) implies that a Part

I. junior matriculation certificate, covering grammar, arithmetic and history been awarded. This certificate has no qualifying value for a teacher's non-professional certificate. FORM I.-PASS AND HONORS.

EXCELLENT PAPERS

Presented at the Regular Meeting of the Sunday School and Lay Workers of Middlesex.

The regular meeting of the Anglican till Aug. 22. Sunday school and lay workers of Middlesex was held in Hosannah

The clergymen present were Rev. Messrs. Canon Richardson, J. H. Moorhouse, G. B. Sage, G. M. Cox, W. F. Brownlee, H. A. Thomas, J. A. Ball, A. H. Rhodes and Canon Smith. There was also a large attendance of

laymen. Canon Smith presided, and occupied the chair, accompanied by C. H. Anmitage, vice-president. Rev. G. B. Sage and R. S. Hannah read the minutes. The final paper was by W. J. Doherty "The True Aim of the Sunday School

Rev. G. B. Sage followed with a paper on "Why is the First Day of the Week Observed." Some discussion followed both papers.

A resolution was then passed recording the conviction of the association that Christians are bound by example to do all in their power to maintain the reverend observance of the Sabbath, and entering a protest against the abuse of the bicycle as a growing cause of Sabbath desecration, and also against needless Sunday visiting. A resolution was passed expressing sympathy with Rev. W. T. Hill in his

The question drawer was an interesting feature.

At the conclusion of the afternoon session an adjournment was made to the residence of Mrs. McLaughlin, where a dainty spread was in waiting by the ladies of the church. EVENING SESSION.

The evening session was opened with devotional exercises, conducted by the

A brief address was given by ex-President Harrison in behalf of the Lay Workers' Association. An admirable paper was also contributed by Mr. A. H. K. Pope, on "Systematic Giving." Rev. H. A. Thomas, of Lucan, read a paper on "Some Encouragement to Sunday School Teachers." Both papers were well received.

A resolution was then passed, thanking those who had taken part, and those who had provided hospitality.

the street railway company will put on a rapid service to accommodate the crowds who will doubtless take advantage of the occasion to spend a quiet and enjoyable evening. Seated on the numerous benches, 'neath the trees, the music sounds delightfully softened and very sweet. The programmes now being given have become very popular with visitors to the River Park, and the enterprise of the street railway is commended on all sides. Those who take in the trip and concert tonight will be well repaid for so doing. **

WHEEL.

THE CIVIC HOLIDAY MEET. All arrangements have been completed for the bicycle meet of the season, to be held on Monday afternoon at Tecumseh Park. The entry list is a large one, and the programme is of sufficient interest to attract one of the largest crowds that has ever visited the park. The races begin sharp at 3 o'clock, and will be run off in one hour, following which will be a league championship ball game—Hamilton vs. London—all for the one price of admission.

For the convenience of those who wish to avoid the crush around the ticket offices, tickets have been placed on sale at T. Gillean's jewelry store, Richmond street. The following riders will compete: R. E. Axton, Brantford; F. A. Moore, Toronto; A. McIvor, Goderich; A. C. Dun-bar, Stratford; A. M. Learn, Aylmer; D. L. Watt, Guelph; E. E. Wilson, Springfield; H. D. Stratton, Strafford-ville; W. J. Andrews, Tilsonburg; Chas. McLean, Parkhill; Albert Ross, Woodstock; Thos. Higby and Geo. Higby, Blyth: Walter Andrews, Ingersoll: and the following Londoners: F. Deeley, J. Crouch, A. E. Brock, C. McGuffin and E. Crouch.

BALD BEAT COOPER.

Indianapolis, Aug. 13.—The first races of the National L. W. A. meet were held at Newby Oval last night. Eddie Bald won the Natch with Cooper in straight heats. The sprints at the finish were magnificent, Bald's head work winning for him the long-looked for event. Cooper claimed a foul in the second heat, because, after Bald forced him to take the lead, and he had stopped at a post in the amphi-theater, Bald touched him and held him to the post. Referee Mott refused to allow the claim and awarded Bald the race. Had not Referee Mott forced them by threats of suspension, the men might have made the race an allnight affair. Cooper was beaten by Bald, the latter winning on his merits, when they did race. The crowd hissed both riders. Summaries:

Wheat-Cutting in Progress-Reports as to the Yield Most Encouraging.

Winnipeg, Aug. 13.-Reports from provincial points are that wheat harvesting has generally commenced, although at some points wheat will not be touched before Aug. 20. Cutting has been in progress at Stockton for eight days, and it is now general throughout the Souris branch of the C. P. R, where travelers state, that in places, as far as the eye can reach, nothing but broad stretches of stooks are to be seen. The fact that the grain is in stook is saying little more than that it is cut, for it is the universal practice to stook the wheat on the same day it is cut. Reports from Qu'Appelle are very gratifying, the erop being good throughout the district, with an increase in acreage of 50 per cent. In the Davin settlement the crops are as fine as ever they were. Late rains caused the grain to fill out wonderfully. The acreage around Balgonie is 25 per cent more than last year and there is 35 per cent more

WOMEN MISSIONARIES KILLED

AT YOKOHAMA Yokohama advices say that Misses Simmons and Allen, missionaries of the American board, were killed in the harbor after bidding good bye to some friends who were about to sail on a steamer. They were going ashore in a launch when a junk collided with it. The junk's bowsprit struck Miss Simmons, killing her instantly. Miss Allen also died the same day.

FRENCH POLICY IN AFRICA. London, Aug. 13 .- The Brussels correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: "Prince Aronberg, president of the French African committee, has issued a circular letter inviting subscriptions for the equipment of two missions to Lake Tchad, Central Africa, in place of the ill-fated Camajou expedition. The circular refers to the English endeavor to seize all unappropriated territory in West Africa, and to the success similar expeditions have had in forestalling these attempts. An appeal is made to French support for work of a similar character in Central Africa, enjoining speed and secrecy, so as not to arouse the suspicions of our foreign rivals. The Brussels correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, who also refers to rumors of another expedition to Central Africa and to measures to strengthen the Marhamad mis-sion, says: "The present French government is strongly in favor of a forward policy in Africa, which it is pre-pared to carry out to the bitter end."

Thousands of Citizens Will Spend It at the River Park-Two Fine Concerts To Be Given.

Monday will certainly be a gala day in the history of Springbank. The weather promises to be fine, and the fierce rays of Old Sol will no doubt be tem-pered by the refreshing breeze at this delightfuly place of pleasure and recreation. The trip down is enjoyed by everyone. Boating can now be had, opposite the pavilion, which adds greatly to the attractions of the River Park. Ewings are plentiful and delight the little folks. Two fine concerts have been arranged for by the street railway company, to be given by the Musical Society Band. The excellent music dispensed by the above band is too well known to need mentioning. No doubt many thousands of citizens will visit Springbank on Monday.

Saved From Paralysis and Peath by Paine's Celery Compound.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO Dear Sirs:-I have much pleasure in recommending Paine's Celery Compound for nervousness and weakness, with which I was sorely afflicted for a number of years, and for which my doctor could give no relief. I became very weak, and had a stroke of paralysis. I was confined to my bed, and the doctor requested me to take a course of your medicine as the last thing that could be done. I did as recommended, and before I had finished the first bottle I experienced a change. I am glad to say that I am oured through the use of Paine's Celery Compound. I have been recommended it to others and they have been benefited by it; it has worked miracles for me. Yours truly. MRS. C. LUMLEY, Cobourg, Ont.

Join the happy and contented crowd on Monday, and spend your holiday at London's popular summer resort— RPANDON Springbank. The charms of the River BRANDON, Park are too numerous to mention. PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE One has to see the beautiful scenery, and feel the refreshing breeze, before they can get a correct idea of the ideal place of recreation Springbank affords to the visitor. But the street railway are not content with nature's charms, but must have many others. Two excellent concerts will be given by the Musical Society's Band—afternoon and evening; and there is boating, dancing and numerous other attractions for the older folks, while the little ones have the swings to pass the time pleasantly with. One of the largest crowds of the season is expected on Monday, and the Street Railway Com-Monday, and the Street Railway Company have made ample provision for this with a rapid service. In Re Licenses. To the Editor of The Advertiser: The London Plebiscite Association, having been informed by the friends of temperance in West London, that a petition for one or more licenses in that locality is being circulated, would draw the attention of the public to the fact that the names on these petitions will be published. Believing that no valid excuse can be offered for the existence of bars in this district, as hotel accommodation is not required, and believing that the sentiment of the community is opposed to them, the association is of the opinion that persons who are willing to incur the responsibility of securing licenses for places, ought not to object to their names being made public. Yours truly,

F. W. DALY, Corresponding secretary. London, Aug. 12, 1898.

Will Vote For Frohibition. To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Will you please allow space for a reason why I shall vote for prohibition, even if it closes up every distion, even if it closes up every distion, with this wide Dominion? John Confectioners. - Corner King and Ridout. Dally is a Cuba friend I knew in 1881. He, at 18 years, left St. Louis, to put up a distillery in the city of Matanzas. He was a success. He became owner of a large distillery in the same city, which was a pride to him to show. He had succeeded in laying in large stores of molasses, and after taking out a common sugar; was able to take out rum of good quality, and yet the residue was utilized. He had a large family, and he was able to see them well cared for and provided for. At his death he was said to be a suc cess. Was he? I saw his eldest son when in Cuba in 1888, and asked after the distillery.

After his father's death his mother ran the distillery, and had a partner They had enlarged the concern, and he stated the following as near as memory will aid me: He said one bottle of rum will make one man drunk, and perhaps make two men drunk They have a capacity of 25,000 bottles in 24 hours, and so have the power to make 25,000 persons drunk every 24 hours. This was plain, and nearly word for word. His mind was set on what had been accomplished. John Dally's frightful success is a life-long admonition to me to vote for prohibition now or any time. Vested rights have no show where evils of such magnitude exist. Yours, JOHN LAW.

It was that of a woman, tall, but, from the graceful contour, evidently young. She was closely veiled, and attired in dark, plain garments, and stood in the midst of the pushing crowd, apparently bewildered, frightened by the ceaseless noise.

Her evident timidity and loneliness instar ly aroused Lord Mortmain's compression and chivalrous instincts. He took a step forward, then stopped. How was he to address her? Might not his doing so be miscon-strued-perhaps regarded as a rude-

While he hesitated, for the moment forgetful of the Buckingham train and the dying parent, to whose bed a telegram had summoned him, the object of his interest vet stood looking to the right and left, occasionally extending her hand nervously to a hurrying porter, but withdrawing it as if

Hence—though it cannot be denied that when, as at present, the object was certainly young and graceful, the inducement was greater-conscious of his own purity of intent, casting aside further hesitation, he resolved to offer the female his services.

Just, however, as he had arrived at this determination a shrill whistle gave warning of a departing train; the bell rang; the crowd, dividing the two, rushed wildly to and fro.

For a second the female stood motionless, then, raising her veil, threw a bewildered, terrified glance around. The raising of that small portion of black lace was to Lord Mortmain as the sudden breaking of dawn upon a lovely landscape. Starting back, an exclamation of admiring wonder burst from his lips.

"How beautiful?" he ejaculated. "What a superb face!" Then he sprang forward to hasten to Then he sprang forward to hasten to her side, but too late.

The girl, for she was little more, had dropped her veil, turned, and, before he could reach her, darted heedlessly, it seemed, across the carriage-

Late that night, under the gnarled, leafless boughs, the carriage sent to meet him at the station brought Lord As the young man, looking forth, beheld the dark oaks flitting by the oaks he had loved from childhood—a weight was on his heart. The shadow of death rested over an. He recalled how his father, Earl of Lethrington, known then as handsome Artie, had carried him down that avenue on his shoulder, and told him, with pride, that those oaks were acorns when the Lethringtons were

How, too, he had filled his childish, eager ears with recitals of the family's noble deeds in battle and tourney. Also how he had impressed upon his young mind the full significance of the motto of their race, "Our Honor is Our Life."

With difficulty he suppressed his tears, and bitterly blamed himself that at times that fair, bewildered countenance at the railway station would yet intrude itself upon him. On finding the carriage, he had interrogated the attendants respecting his father's state. The old footman.

For they were mostly old retainers at Lethrington, had replied, with a tremor in his voice:
"He's mortal bad, my lord; but he fights bravely with death. The doctor says it's all with the hope of seeing

"I pray heaven he may not!" ex-claimed Lord Mortmain. "I need not ask you, Travers, to drive fast." There was no need. The old coach-man put the splendid horses to their fastest speed, and in an incredibly short space they were reigned up at the hall door, which was already thrown wide to admit the young master, soon now destined to rule there as Earl of Lethrington.
"How is my father, Markham?" he inquired of the grey-haired butler.

"To me, my lord, he seems better; but Dr. Craddock says it's only the fever and excitement caused by expecting you. Each moment he asks if you have arrived.' "Praise heaven I have! Let me go to him at once."

"Yes, my lord; only be prepared.
He is much changed. In silence they mounted the broad. dark, old staircase in the principal corridor. Proceeding a little way down, the butler on the day down, the butler on the day a door, and entered a large, handsome apartment, faintly illuminated by a shaded lamp. On one side was the bed, on which lay the dving man. He was lying back on the pillows, breathing heavily. His features, which had once procured him the title of "Handsome Artie," were pallid, thin, and hollow. He was motionless; only the eyes, brilliant with fever, moved

On hearing the light step of the butler, with a power excitement alone in his state could produce, he arose on "Well, Markham?" he exclaimed, interrogatively.
"He has come, my lord."

"At last! Gerard, my son!"
"Father!" And once again, after a year's sepa-ration, parent and child were clasped in each other's arms.

C. P. R. Harnings - Traffic Through the St. Clair Tunnel.

Great Cost of Constructing the B. and W. R. Through Holmedale.

Fifty men were yesterday shipped west on the C. P. R. to work on the Ontario and Rainy River Railway. The Grand Trunk passenger department is engaged in making special arrangements to facilitate the comfort and convenience of the visitors to the Toronto Exhibition.

The Massey-Harris Company employes are arranging for a large ex-cursion to Niagara Falls via the C.P. R., on Aug. 20. It is expected that 2,people will so from Toronto, requiring four special trains. Two additional special trains will run from Receipts from traffic on the C. P. R. for the week ending Aug. 7, $468,000; for the same week last year, $487,000; decrease, $19,000. The records show the following figures for traffic through the tunnel during July: East bound cars, 8,060; west bound, 8,950. The month was one of very light business. There is considerable talk of extending the C. P. R. to Goderich and already Guelph and Stratford are clamoring for the read to be built through their cities. At the Stratford city council the other evening the matter was discussed, it being stated it quite possible the C. P. R. line would be extended from Drumbo via Stratford and thus to the lake ter-

The Railway and Engineering Review says: It has been decided by the Canadian Pacific Railway company to build the long contemplated line between Brantford and Woodstock before the setting in of winter, thus completing their line through from the Niagara river to Detroit. Hitherto the C. P. R. has been under a leasing arrangement with the Grand Trunk for the carriage of traffic which the new link will accommodate. The finishing of the road will give London a through connection by the Canadian Pacific with New York as directly as it is now given to Montreal and the Canadian seaboard and will make London the headquarters of the western division of the C. P. R. system, as indicated by the return there of Superintendent Williams and his official staff.

Chief Engineer Middleton, of the B. and W. Railroad, is in Woodstock interviewing a number of the leading business men. It is stated that the great cost of constructing the line through Holmedale may deter the comfrom adopting that route, and send them over the T. H. and B. into the city. Mr. Middleton informed the Brantford Expositor that the section from the T. H. and B. to the Grand River would cost a cool $80,000. Of this $30,000 went in a lump to bridge the river, and the balance to construct piling and fill in the road alongside the river. If it goes through Holmedale, Mr. Middleton states that the Now the parent he so revered and road will be a most intricate engin-oved lay a-dying. triumph. "For this reason and for the notoriety which contractors would gain through performing the work, we are constantly receiving communications from the big contracting firms in Canada and the United States," said Mr. Middleton, "but if the work goes through we will do it ourselves, with the exception of the pile driving. We have 5,000 oak piles 30 feet long at Ottawa, and these would be driven fifteen feet into the ground or to bed rock. The fifteen feet projecting has to be filled wih earth and gravel. If the city would give us the islands in the river we would use the surface until it is two feet below water mark." The unusual nature of the task can be gathered from the above remarks.

MRS. GREENLESS

Buffalo, Aug. 13.-Mrs. Geo. Greenless, wife of the man who murdered Mrs. Alice Misner and Walter Flewell, has made a statement to Assistant District Attorney Haller of her troubles with her husband.

Mrs. Greenless said they were married in Canada about fourteen years ago. Greenless came from Brantford Two months after the marriage Greenbegan to drink and abuse her. For twelve years her life with him was one of misery. He thrashed her without provocation, kicked her and called her vile names. She stated that on one occasion, about a year ago, he threatened to murder her and her parents, and one time when she was away from home he came to the house with a knife for the purpose of killing her. She left him a year ago in March, and was afraid to go near

Mr. Haller said the statement was one continuous tale of brutality. It will be submitted to the grand jury to show the character of Greenless.

DANGEROUS DYSENTERY

Have It Checked and the Inflammation Allayed by Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

It is appalling how many people in the course of a year are hurried into untimely graves by an attack of dysentery.

It comes on so suddenly, its course is so rapid its action on the system so weakening, its termination so quick-ly fatal, that any treatment must be administered promptly and the disease checked effectively at the outset. The only remedy that anyone would think of relying on in such an emergency as that, is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. For a generation and a half it has been curing all forms of bowel complaints of children and adults, and during that time has saved thousands of lives and many doctors' bills. Never be without it in your house. Its cost is trifling, only 35 cents, but the pain and weakness, yes, even death, it may save you from some day, or some of your family, is worth more to you than ten thousand worth more to you than ten thousand times its price.

Mrs. Richard Gilbank, Coldwater, Ont., says: "I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and found it a reliable remedy for Summer Complaint, Diarrhea, Dysentery and Cholera Morbus. I know it to be a grand remedy in the case of children, and heartily recommend it."

68 BELOW ZERO

Experience of St. Catharines Prospe tors in the Klondike Country.

Three members of the Dawson Klondike party which left St. Catharines, about a year ago, have returned, namely, Mr. George Dawson, his son, John Dawson, and nephew, John Dawson. They lived in tents all winter six or seven miles from a reg-ular camp, and say it is a tough place to winter. The air seems to be very light, in fact, so light that one can hardly get enough to breath. The thermometer dropped to 68 degrees below zero, but they worked all through it. They report Dawson City as a dirty place, in fact a regular bog hole. It is mostly tents, but still not so tough a place as reported. They have been fairly successful, have only been prospecting, and expect to go back in the spring. They brought back samples of gold, and each member of the party has two claims each. They say there are really only two great claims which are panning out big, Bonanaz and Eldorado, and these are turning out an average of $1,000 a day. They were offered $100 for 50 pounds of flour. Candles sell for $1 each and meat $1 50 per pound. The party left on July 12 last, coming down the Yukon via St. Michaels and Dutch Harbor. It was a very rough trip. There is a general exodus. About 300 miners came down with them. They are getting out as fast as they can. Three of the party which St. Catharines. Messrs. Poirier, McNeil and Burford, remained at Dawson City

A SISTER'S HELP

Brought Renewed Health to a Despondent Brother.

His Health Had Failed and Medicines Seemed to Do Him No Good-Where Others Had Failed, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Met With Great Success.

Dr. Williams' Medicine Co:

Gentlemen,-A few years ago my system became thoroughly run down. My blood was in a frightful condition; medical treatment did no good. I surfeited myself with advertised medicines, but with equally poor results. I was finally incapactiated from work. became thoroughly despondent, and gave up hope of living much longer. While in this condition I visited my father's home near Tara. A sister, then and now living in Toronto, was also visiting at the parental home. Her husband had been made healthy through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and she urged me to try them. Tired of trying med ines, I laughed at the proposition. However, later on she provided me with some of the pills and begged me to take them. I did so, and before I had used two boxes I was on the road to restored health. I am commending their good qualities almost every day I live, because I feel so grateful for my restoration, and I have concluded to write you this letter wholly in the interests of suffering humanity. I am carrying on business in Owen Sound as a carriage maker. This town has been my home for 28 years, and any one inclosing a reply three-cent stamp can receive personal indorsation of the foregoing. This much to satisfy those who cannot be blamed for doubting after taking so many other preparations without being benefited. You may do just as you like with this letter. I am satisfied that but for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I would not be able to attend to my business today. Perhaps I would not have been alive.

Ablest Physicians Signally Failed. Was Absolutely Disheartened. Had Lost All Hope.

Gave Cuticura A Trial, Which Resulted in Absolute and Perfect Cure. For ten years I suffered untold agonies from that dread disease Eczema, my lower limbs most of the time being so swollen and broken out that I could hardly go about. I had to wear slippers so that I could move about at all. My brother, a physician of thirty years' practice and extensive experience, had tried in vain to effect a cure and signally failed. I tried other physicians of splendid ability with like results, and had reached that point where I became absolutely disheartened, and in fact had lost all hope, when a friend induced me to give CUTICURA REMEDIES a trial. I used two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP and two boxes of CUTICURA (ointment), and it resulted in an absolute and permanent cure. I am now perfectly cured, sound as a dollar, and to Cu-TICURA REMEDIES I attribute my almost miraculous cure. I refer all interested to the Postmaster of this place, any of the ministers, Postmaster of this place, any of the initisters, the prominent business men, and all of the citizens of our vicinity indiscriminately, and especially to my friend, John A. Thos. A. Browne, SHORETARY.

PLAYING WITH FIREARMS. Two boys were playing with a twopenny revolver yesterday morning at the rear of 428 Park avenue when, by accident, a shot was fired. The ball went through a window in the office of Mr. W. H. Edmunds and entered the ceiling. Mr. Edmunds and another person were in the room at the time and were greatly startled by the accident. The boys skedaddled, and their absence led to a nonsensical rumor that the shooting was with deadly in-

BRILLIANT RECORDS. Three of the London Collegiate Institute students have passed the junior matriculation scholarship examinations at the University of Toronto. They are William C. Bray, Miss Annie May and S. McGibbon, and the achievements of the clever trio are most creditable to themselves and the local institute. No Accident to a Londoner While Riding other school has more than two prize winners. W. C. Bray ranks for six scholarships, the total value of which would be over $1,000, but as only one scholarship is awarded to a student, he is obliged to forego all but that in mathematics and modern languages. He stood second in the list for general proficiency, and ranked first for the Edward Blake scholarship in science, and second for the Edward Blake scholarships in mathematics. He was sixth on the list in history, and won second-class honors in modern languages and English. Miss May was awarded the Mary Mulock scholarship in classics, for which she stood second. She also stood third in history, eighth in mathematics and took second-class honors in English. S. McGibbon won the second Edward Blake scholarship in science, for which he stood third. He took first-class honors in chemistry and physics, and second-class honors in bi-CORBETT-COOK. A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, when Miss Sadie Cook was united in marriage to Mr. Alf. Corbett, of the Singer Manufacturing Company, this city. Rev. W. J. Ford tied the nuptial knot in the presence of a large number of guests. The bride looked charming in a traveling dress, and carried a beautiful bunch of bridal roses. Miss Minnie Cook, sister of the bride, assisted as bridesmaid, while Mr. Corbett was supported by Mr. Crews. The newly-wedded couple received many choice presents, among which were two handsome chairs from the employes of the Parisian Steam Laundry, where Miss Cook was employed for nine years. After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Corbett left on a trip to eastern points. They will reside on Wellington street. SUCCESSFUL CANADIAN INVENT-

PORT STANLEY

Down Fraser Hill,

Port Stanley, Aug. 12.-Percy Honsinger, of Wellington street, London. met with a very painful accident yesterday about 8 p. m. Percy tried to ride down the Fraser hill, but, on account of its deceiving steepness, he lost control of his wheel and fell, receiving several gashes on the forehead. Dr. Mothersill, who was immediately summoned, dressed the wounds and pronounced Percy's condition not seri-This is the third (and it is to be hoped the last) accident here this year,
