THE CANADIAN GUNS.

Controllers

OPEN out—open out! Double through the dark—
Ho, you Canadian boys, d'ye hear the bullets sing?— Ready with the bayonet, and steady on the mark, We're up against no simple sort of thing!

Ho, it's Hell let loose and kicking, and it's Paradise for mine. But they charged us in the darkness, and they nearly broke the line And we haven't time to worry - if we fall, by God, we fall !-

Charge again, the Maple Leaf, charge 'em with a cheer. For the guns — our guns — they are waiting in the rear.

Ho, hustle with the bayonet! We mean to do 'em proud— There's a big kick coming from the Canada crowd!

Open out - open out! Some one's fallen out -Ho, you Canadian boys, he mustn't die alone! Give 'em steel and give 'em butt, charge and right about – Show 'em that they cannot hold their own.

Ho, their bullets sweep about us like the hail that rends the heavens, But we take a heap of stopping — they have got our four-point seve And our fighting blood is boiling — they can never hold their groun When the tolk at heap a 2 state sing, from Ontario to the Sound. Charge again, the Maple Leaf, charge 'em with a will,

For the guns — our guns !— they are somewhere on the hill.

Ho, hustle with the bayonet! We mean to do 'em proud'—
There's a big kick coming from the Canada crowd. Back again - back again ! We have got the guns -Ho, you German boys, you got it strong and hot. Won them from the enemy, wrung them from the Huns, Euchred Willy's army on the spot!

Ho, we got the squareheads running, and you bet the sport was fine,
But — they're saying in the trenches that we saved the British line. Though we think no shucks about it, we are glad of that, by Heck!

For the folk at home were watching, from Vancouver to Quebec.

Cease attack, the Maple Leaf! We have won the plain, And the guns — our guns! — they are safe with us again.
We hustled with the bayonet — by God, we did 'em proud When the big kick came from the Canada crowd!

It is estimated that a wife on her own account requires Thirty Dollars Per Month for her maintenance. The Canadian Government provides Twenty Dollars per month of this amount and the Patriotic Fund the remaining Ten Dollars. If required Children between ten and fifteen years of age are allowed twenty-five cents per day; from five to ten years of age, fifteen cents per day; and under five years of age, ten cents per day. Thus a wife and three children of the ages of three, seven and twelve, may receive a total monthly allowance of Forty-five Dollars, of which Twenty Dollars is payable by the Canadian Government and Twenty-five by the Patriotic Fund. This is of course in addition to the Thirty-three Dollars per month paid to the soldier, and which may be assigned by him to his family.

Besides the above, provision is made for a compassionate allowance for temporary extraordianry need, such as accident, sickness, etc. In short, the whole purpose of the Patriotic Fund is to supplement the Government Allowance as to provide all reasonable comforts for the families of men on service. Such provision, in each individual case, is subject to the report of local committees, who shall consider all the circumstances of families affected, with respect to the earnings of members of such families, amounts received from former employer of the soldiers, and other sources of income.

Every reasonable provision is thus made for dependent relatives, and volunteers need have no anxiety regarding the welfare of those left behind.

A number of maple and elm trees hav recently been planted on the west side of Golf Club House. THE INVENTOR OF THE ELECTRIC

Francis Ronalds (1823) as the inventor of the electric telegraph. It is strange that a claim dating from nearly a hundred years earlier-a claim made and recognized by very good authorities-should It is beyond dispute that the electric telegraph was "invented" by Stephen Gray as early as the year 1729. Stephen Gray is, of course, recognized as one of the true pioneers of electric science, the man to whom is due the division of all materials into electric and non-electric, conducting and non-conducting. In the year 1718 Gray, like many another devotee of research, was so lacking in this world's in the year of the safe in the Bank of Nova Scotia, locked by one of the clerks with a wrong compared to this place on this place on the safe in the safe have been overlooked in this controversy. search, was so lacking in this world's goods that George, Prince of Wales, a Governor of Charterhouse, on April 7th of Governor of Charterhouse, on April 7th of that year nominated him as a Brother of Charterhouse, and on June 24th, 1719, as our books record, he was duly sworn in on admission "for ye Prince." It was in his chambers at Charterhouse and in its courts that Stephen Gray conducted his long series of experiments in the transmission of the electric current along a length of conducting material so as to produce movement, and thereby communication. He tried wire, cord, and silk in various shawes, and he is said to have at various shawes, and he is said to have at last established a communication with the rooms of another Brother in a distant part of the court or courts till he had finally satisfied himself. In the Morning Post of Friday, January 23rd, 1874, will be found the body to the Rural cemetery. The satisfied himself. In the Morning Post of Friday, January 23rd, 1874, will be found the report of a lecture delivered the night before in the Great Hall of Charterhouse by Dr., Benjamin Ward Richardson on "Electricity." The lecturer stated that on June 14th, 1729, at the house of Mr. Granville Wheeler, Stephen Gray laid what might be called the first electricity along eight hundred and seventy feet of wire insulated in silk thread stretched across a series of double poles. In 1731 the results of Gray's experiments were laid before the Royal Society, and in 1732 he was elected a Fellow, and shortly afterwards received the Fothergillian Gold Medal. He died February 15th, 1735.

Here we have not a mere general forecast of an electric possibility—of the kind that has often flitted through the brain of the man of science in other branchesbut an actual realization of results, and a translation into practical effects of the principles which he had discovered. When but an actual realization of results, and a translation into practical effects of the principles which he had discovered. When Gray sent his first current along his conductor in the courts of Charterhouse he had made the first electric telegraph. The fact that his invention was to lie asleep for over a hundred years before it was Miss Kate N. Carter has accepted a bottom brack for the first electric telegraph. The fact that his invention was to lie asleep for over a hundred years before it was to be taken up by practical commerce in no way weakens his claim. He was old when his invention at last took shape. He died at eighty-three. He was without capital. He was of and the many of "of particular disposition and not amiable"; so absorbed, it is said, in his researches as to be difficult of approach, though generous and open as to all his discoveries; a man, therefore, with no great store of friends and backers. His invention, too, fell in an age of little commercial enterprise. But it was complete and ready to hand when, a hundred years later, the development of steam had kindled the spirit of enterprise and made it ready to apply the discovery of the forgotten Brother of Charterhouse to great practical ends. The lecturer in 1874 claimed that there was no name of equal distinction connected with Charterhouse. It may be much to claim, out certainly, if distinction may be reckoned by the results to mankind, it would be hard to find a name, save perhaps that of Watt, which has a becellent catches.
