

THE LAST POSITION

Only 150 Serbians With Rifles Held Back Oncoming Germans.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Paris, Nov. 5.—"There Monsieur, with that you can go and see how Serbia is going to die," exclaimed Jovanovitch, minister of the interior, handing a letter of recommendation to the general staff of Albert Londres, special correspondent of The Petit Journal.

Armed with this letter, M. Londres made his way far beyond Palanka, through retreating ox wagons and endless herds of sheep plodding through the mud of the Morava valley without panic, escaping from the Teutons, whose voices were heard in the distance.

"At a cross road," writes M. Londres, "a Serbian captain, who was waiting for me said: 'I was asked by Col. Terzitch, commanding our division to take you to our last position. We walked side by side in silence and then came on a plateau. That is our last position, monsieur,' said the Serbian officer. 'We are on Ossietz plateau. The two others you see are a hundred yards away over there are the plateaus Vaboratz and Michavolatz, which were just taken from us.' 'I saw no soldiers and asked: 'Where is your line,' replied the officer. 'There it comes,' replied the officer.

"I saw debouching from a little wood one by one, with dignity that brought tears to my eyes the 150 men who, on this great plateau, Serbia had opposed to embattled Germany. 'On retreating from Vaboratz an hour ago,' said the captain, 'those 150 hid in the wood. Now they are coming out to face the enemy.' The lieutenant in command took a few steps into a corn field and shouted a command to his men. They lay down on the edge of a field without a word or a sidelong glance and deliberately raised their rifles.

"Look now, Monsieur," exclaimed the captain, "these are the mountains of Hungary. Behind that pass is the village of Verscatte before which is Von Mackensgen. Do you see that blue line a little further on? That is the Danube. 'For sixteen days with their three, five, six and ten inches and the rest, the Germans had been blazing away on this front. They never found on this line a larger number of men than those 150 brave fellows before our eyes, but they had not yet succeeded in preventing the Serbians from seeing the blue line of their Danube when they raised their heads. 'Two days ago it was quite different, my guide told me. 'So many shells have fallen upon it that its form is completely changed. Do you see the movement below Vaboratz? Those are the advancing Germans. There are about two hundred of them. That is not many, but it is the van guard of invasion.' 'I watched those 150 Serbians who had not moved for half an hour, but who were gazing steadily at the iron curtain creeping up to them, with nothing to pierce it but their rifles. No, I am wrong. They had also a proud consciousness of their heroism. They despise these Germans who fight only from behind ramparts.'"

BRYAN OPPOSED TO DEFENCE POLICY

By Special Wire to the Courier. Washington, Nov. 5.—Former Secretary Bryan came out squarely against President Wilson's national defence in a formal statement in which he took issue with the President's views as expressed last night before the Manhattan club of New York. "A departure from our traditions, a reversal of our national policy, a menace to our peace and safety, and a challenge to our spirit of Christianity,

WOULD BE AT SOFIA

If Greece Had Taken the Field Early Bulgarians Would Have Lost.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Athens, Nov. 4, vit London, Nov. 5.—One of the statements of M. Venizelos, which attracted especial attention was that Great Britain's offer to cede the Island of Cyprus to Greece was independent of the result of the war while other promises of concessions were conditional on the success of the allies, Greece, he said, was to acquire part of the Vilayet of Brusa and Bulgarian Thrace, while Bulgaria was to be shorn of the territory she gained as a result of the Balkan war. All this, he declared, would be obtained by Greece at a small cost since the proposals of the entente powers required only the assistance of smaller units of the Greece fleet.

Referring to the allegation that Serbia had failed to send against the Bulgarians 150,000 men in accordance with the provisions of the treaty of alliance, Venizelos said she actually had 300,000 troops opposed to the Bulgars. If Greece had taken the field the former premier asserted, her army would have been within a short distance of Sofia and Serbia would have devoted her energies to hold back the Austro-Germans whose numbers were less than had been reported.

EXPERT'S OPINION.

Paris, Nov. 5.—While agreeing that the Greek crisis is serious, opinion here is divided as to the probable consequences. Jean Herbet, whose judgment on international politics usually is sound, points out that the 147 deputies who turned out the government and thus voted for intervention represent a majority of the Greek people, for among those who supported the cabinet there was more than one deputy of uncertain nationality from newly acquired provinces. "That majority knows," says M. Herbet, "that if Greece does not intend suicide she must attack Bulgaria as soon as possible. We must consider that there can be only an interventionist government or a constitutional one in Greece. Evidently our obligations towards Greece will differ according to whether the government is chosen to respect the cause of right or to violate it."

The Journal takes a gloomy view of the situation. The event yesterday, it says, presages the dissolution of parliament with the accentuation of neutralist tendencies and perhaps even a combination, which will make still more delicate the present difficult position of the allies at Saloniki. "It is impossible," says the paper, "not to remark the coincidence between the crisis and the arrival at Athens of the German mission headed by Colonel Von Falkenhaym. Our adversaries never fail to strike while the iron is hot."

NEW CREDITS FOR BRITAIN IN AMERICA

Negotiations on This Matter Between London and New York Bankers

By Special Wire to the Courier. New York, Nov. 5.—It was reported in financial circles to-day that negotiations between bankers in London and New York for the establishment of new commercial credits in the United States, practically have been closed. Announcement of the formation of a group of bankers to handle the matter in this country, according to reports, is expected shortly. It is understood that Sir Edward Holden, chairman of the London City and Midland Bank, had obtained from bankers in London acquiescence in the terms proposed by American bankers.

On a large New York institution yesterday advanced $200,000 on three months bills, to a large English bank. Other English banks, it is understood, are obtaining funds in this country in a similar manner. The form of the new credits has not been definitely settled, according to reports, but indications were that they would be arranged partly through straight bank loans and partly through acceptances on London banks.

Hugo Benheim, New York jeweler, got a year in jail for concealing $40,000 worth of diamonds to defraud creditors.

ENEMY BOMBARDING NISH; TEUTONIC ADVANCE IS PROCEEDING VERY SLOWLY

Montenegrins Check Enemy — Ten Thousand Shells Rained on Malakresna — City of Monastir Still Held by Serbs.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Paris, Nov. 5.—Bulgarian artillery violently bombarded advanced forts of Nish on the Nishava River on Wednesday, says a Saloniki despatch to The Matin filed yesterday. They captured Nish-Kavola, a small town, two hours march northeast of Nish.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT. Paris, Nov. 5.—An official statement issued November 2 by the Montenegrin general staff and made public by the consular general here follows: "Fighting continued actively around Visegrad, where the Montenegrins continued on the Drina on the Cogul-Vouschido front. The Montenegrins checked the enemy at the frontier in spite of violent attacks."

PROCEEDING SLOWLY. Saloniki, Nov. 2, via Paris 5 (developed in transmission)—French headquarters admits that Austro-German cavalry has effected a junction with the Bulgars in the Delijovan region near Negotin, but asserts that difficult it is doubtful whether the union of forces will serve any practical end. Negotin is on the Danube at a point where only the river separates Roumanian territory from the frontiers of Bulgaria and Serbia.

An officer of the Serbian general staff discussing the situation to-day—

"The main Austro-German effort to get in touch with the Bulgars is proceeding very slowly and with exceedingly heavy losses up the Morava valley through which the Turks invaded Hungary. General Terzitch's division, composed of natives of the Morava valley, is offering a desperate resistance. Four attacks were required to take Semendria, which had to be stormed with street fighting. Every house became a fortress. Zabrecke cost three successive charges which ended in hand-to-hand struggles. 'After thirteen days the Austro-Germans arrived before Malakresna on which they rained ten thousand shells and stormed only after joining Serbian masked batteries which covered it. Seeking to retire, the invaders were charged by cavalry and fled four miles before they could reorganize their shattered ranks to resume the attack on Malakresna. 'On the 10th the Austro-German advance up the Morava valley had reached only the Lubejo bridge on the Poschavavata line. The next day the line extended as far as Azania. Palanka fell on the 12th. The total advance in this section in four weeks was fifteen miles, scarcely a third of the distance to Paracin, where a junction with the Bulgarians must be effected by way of the Urna Valley. Meanwhile the Bulgarians in this section advanced only as far as the line of the Zajecar-Negotin railway. The Serbian situation is serious, but we have no other intention than to fight until the last.'"

MONASTIR SAFE. Paris, Nov. 5.—Reports from the Serbian front indicate that determined resistance is still being offered to the Bulgarian forces which invaded the southern part of the country. The Havas correspondent at Saloniki telegraphing under yesterday's date, says the Serbians are holding out firmly in the Babuna Pass, and that the Bulgarians are suffering serious losses in the fighting there. The Serbian city of Monastir in the southwest corner of the country near the Greek border, is said by the correspondent to be safe for the present, as it lies 25 miles northeast of Monastir.

The Bulgarians bombarded the French positions at Krivolak on Wednesday, but without tangible results. Telegraphic communication is still being maintained for the exchange of official messages between Saloniki and Monastir and Saloniki and Nish.

OTTAWA M. P.'S. OFFERING UNITS TO COUNTRY

Will Constantine Sell His Birthright for a Mess of Sauerkraut?

By Special Wire to the Courier. New York, Nov. 5.—A cable to The Herald from London this morning says: "The fall of the Zaimis ministry is hailed with delight here, though there is an undercurrent of belief that King Constantine, in fear of the Kaiser, will, as The Daily Express bluntly puts it, continue his effort to sell his birthright of Greece for a mess of sauerkraut. 'It is known that Mr. Venizelos will only accept office on condition that the king, honoring the treaty with Serbia, agrees to an immediate declaration of war on Bulgaria. 'If the king refuses and dissolves parliament thus denying for the third time the rights of the people to constitutional government, it is not impossible that the great Cretan, who raised and successfully maintained the standard of revolt against the present king's father, may be forced by Constantine's treachery to lead an army of the people against monarchy and the generals who have dishonored the nation through fear of the Hun and as a result of bribery with German gold. 'Commenting on the new crisis, The Daily News says: 'Greece has under arms an army which she dare not demobilize and which will run her to maintain longer in idleness. For finance and munitions she is dependent on the allies. Their help will be conditional on her support of Serbia. The military situation dictates intervention rather than neutrality. Already Bulgarian troops are operating on her frontier, and it is abundantly clear that the result of a German victory would be the joint hegemony in the Balkans of two inveterate enemies of Greece, Bulgaria and Turkey. 'The effect of Greek intervention, reacting as it inevitably would on Roumania, needs no demonstration in the Balkans. It could not fail to decide the issue and defeat in the Balkans would be the beginning of a rapid end for Germany.'"

The Daily Chronicle says: "For Greece's sake, as well as for our own, we should welcome the return of Mr. Venizelos to office, but the allied powers, having been tricked twice by the tergiversation which King Constantine has imposed on Greek policy, cannot again give it a front place in their calculations. No sensible person leans very hard on a rod which he has twice found broken. We have to rely now in the Balkans on our own armed strength and on nothing else, excepting indeed the magnificent resistance of the sorely tried Serbians, to the last man and the last cartridge."

GERMAN PEACE PROPOSALS ARE FALLING FLAT

King George Recovering

By Special Wire to the Courier. Amsterdam, Nov. 5.—Germany's secret negotiations for peace have fallen flat in Holland, even the most pro-German Dutchman considering the terms preposterous. It is believed that the man behind the plot is Dr. Solf, German Colonial Secretary. Dr. Solf recently visited Holland, preserving great secrecy about his identity, but his presence in the country became known to the Dutch newspapers. It was officially announced in Germany that he was merely travelling to Brussels and had stopped in Holland to visit the picture galleries. Dr. Solf stayed three days at The Hague and paid visits to the Dutch Foreign Secretary and Dutch politicians who are known to be friendly to Germany. Other Germans of note were in Holland at the same time, including, it is said, Count von Radowitz, of the German Foreign Office. Before Dr. Solf left Berlin he had interviews with the Kaiser and Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg. Those who saw him at The Hague gathered the impression that even in official circles the Germans are war sick and in a hurry to finish the conflict before Christmas.

ALLEGED DEFEAT. Berlin, Nov. 5, by wireless to Sayville.—It is officially reported that the Bulgarians have completely defeated the French forces which were landed at Saloniki. Part of the French contingent was routed and others were made prisoners. The first of the French prisoners have arrived at Kustendil. Luther Huff, many times convicted of larceny and in jail at Sapulpa, Okla, has become heir to $31,000.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—Via London, noon.—The press of Berlin makes no attempt to minimize the victory of former Premier Venizelos, Greece, over Zaimis ministry, and asserts it brings a sharp crisis in the affairs of Greece. An exception is the Vossische Zeitung, which declares the Grecian cabinet crisis "is of insignificance in connection with the foreign policy."

CHURCH CHOIR
GAVE CONCERT
AT O. S. B.

Varied Program Provided
by Wellington Street
Choir Last Night.

A very interesting event took place last evening at the Ontario School for the blind when about thirty-five of the members of Wellington St.
Church Choir journeyed there and delighted the members of that institution with a most pretentious and varied musical entertainment.

A few well chosen words of welcome by Mr. H. F. Gardner, principal of the O.S.B., the program was offered, consisting of choruses, patriotic songs, Antems, vocal solos, piano solos, and although the majority of the audience's face the program of eight choirs of appreciation of good music were very keen as was shown by the hearty applause given.
All of the interesting numbers, of which there were sixteen, were furnished by the choir with the exception of a very enjoyable reading and an encore given by Miss Anne Thomson of Cainsville, whose entertaining elocutionary abilities are well known throughout the city.

At the conclusion of the program
Mr. Gardner thanked Mr. Thomas Darwen, the director and organist of the choir and the other members for the excellent evening's entertainment furnished and invited them into one of the parlors, where a dainty lunchon was served by the officials and an enjoyable social hour spent. Mr.
Strickland president of the choir, gave a short address, thanking the officers for the courtesy and hospitality shown them, after which the party returned to their respective homes.

Great credit is due Mr. Thomas Darwen, the organist, under whose supervision the entertainment was given, he having spared neither time nor energy in making it the success it was, and for the noble motive shown, that of gladdening the hearts of these poor afflicted people, whose life must be tedious at its best.

Brigadier-General F. S. MEIGHEN C.P.R. New Director

It was the most fitting thing for the greatest transportation corporation in the world to reach out and pick Frank Stephen Meighen of the financial and political scope. When the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, at its recent annual meeting, held in Montreal, voted "yes" to the addition of this "coming" young Canadian to its Directorate, the business world over nodded its approval. It was the man that fit the square post for the square hole. The right man, branded and labelled "C. P. R."

Back from the trenches of France and Flanders, the smell of the powder still on him, has endrums still quivering with the shock of the bursting shrapnel, Brigadier-General Meighen enters for his title—makes a picturesque entry into the larger field. Well has he served his bleeding country. The best evidence of this could probably be obtained from the few surviving Germans who engaged the then Colonel Meighen's Fourteenth Battalion at St. Julien. Called home to lend his experienced advice to the militia authorities of Canada, the honors of war gained only by duty well done have overtaken the young regimental commander.

The Situation.

The Serbians continue to fight desperately, but they are not able to withstand the advance of either the Bulgarian or the German forces. The former are now within a few miles of the Capital, and its evacuation would seem to be certain.

What Greece and Roumania will do is still involved in absolute uncertainty. Their help on the side of the Allies would of course speedily check what is at present a distinctly quieting situation.

The Russians still continue to come back in a most reassuring manner, and von Hindenburg, who has been reaping most of the glory in connection with their pressing back, suddenly finds that he is up against a very large contract, which he is not at all likely to be able to negotiate.

The story will not down that the Kaiserites are anxious to indirectly open up some sort of negotiations, calculated to lead to at least an armistice. Berlin denies this, but various incidents tend to confirm the impression. Whether such is the case, or otherwise, there is no reason to believe that the Allies will refrain from, or modify, their pledged determination to bring Prussianism to its knees.

The Greek Crisis.

M. Venizelos is the strongest man in Greece, and for that matter, one of the strongest and most far-seeing in Europe. A well known writer in a recent sketch of his said: "M. Venizelos is the greatest statesman in Europe to-day. That is a large claim, but history will ratify it."

He is one of the most remarkable personalities in the political history of Europe. He has been compared to Cavour, to Gambetta, to Bismarck. The fact is significant of the impression he creates. You look for his parallel only in the ranks of the great. But the comparison with Bismarck, while true in regard to his relation to Greece, is monstrous in relation to the man. Brutal force was the dominant note of Bismarck. There is force in Venizelos too, a high courage that led him out into the mountains of Crete at the head of his rebels, when Prince George of Greece, the High Commissioner, dared to play the autocrat in that little island. But it is force governed by a spiritual motive and a humane wisdom that suggest Lincoln.

So much for the individuality which to-day overwhelmingly represents the true spirit of Greece instead of the King, whose wife is a sister of the Kaiser.

M. Venizelos has more than once clashed with the monarch. Not long ago, after the second Balkan war, he had a plan worked out to rebuild the Balkan League and bring them with a united front to the support of the Allies. He stated that he had the approval of the King in this regard to give Kavala to Bulgaria. His enemies declared that he had no such authorization. Venizelos appealed to Constantine to clear him from this charge and the latter replied that his Prime Minister had misunderstood him. Then Venizelos resigned.

A short time later as the result of a general election his supporters were again in a big majority and he was recalled to office. He once more urged co-operation with the Allies, but the King turned a deaf ear and once more he resigned, he and his supporters still remaining in the house in their former numerical strength. The King called upon M. Zaimis to become Premier and how he has been defeated on a straight vote of want of confidence. What will happen next is a matter of conjecture. Constantine may attempt a patched up ministry or there may be a dissolution with no possible election for two months. Whatever results the fact is self evident that M. Venizelos and his adherents are strong for the Allies and are backed by a large portion of public opinion.

Half a dozen men climbed into the auto of the Mayor of New Jersey, thinking it a juncy, and told him to hurry on.

Pupils in the Sunday schools of the United States have already sent 340,000 New Testaments to soldiers in the war.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The troops of the Czar continue to advance; that's the kind of Czardines they are.

It looks as if the British would soon bag Bagdad. And later on not only that, but also the German Royal dad, the Crown Prince, and the rest of the outfit.

Yuan Shi-Kai, President of China, yesterday had his thirty-first child presented to him. Shi isn't shy of olive branches at any rate.

It is too bad that at the W. H. A. rummage sale Brantford's City Hall was not included. Probably too delapidated.

About the only thing which seems to be certain regarding the 84th Battalion is that it is heading this way.

TORONTO HAS

recruiting effort of the Citizens Recruiting League next Tuesday, and there will be in line upwards of 7,000 men, while each battalion will be accompanied by its band. While details have yet to be arranged, the parade is expected to start from the Exhibition about 2 o'clock and it is probable that much the same route as was taken on the previous parade will be followed. It is estimated that it will take at least an hour for the entire body of men to pass a given point. The battalions to take part will be the 37th, 38th, 74th, 75th, 83rd and 92nd, and the two senior batteries, the 30th and 31st will take their guns with them in parade. The 81st battalion which is to be a unit of the Toronto garrison this winter, will not have returned from Niagara by Tuesday, so cannot accompany the march, and Lieut.-Col. Barker's unit, the 95th, will hardly be sufficiently organized to take part.

To The Editor

CHURCH UNION.

Dear Sir,—Reports have been received that some congregations in the heart of Western Canada are voting against Church Union three to one, and that mission fields of one entire presbytery which in 1911 were unanimous for church union, are now evenly divided. The sentiment seems to be that Church Union as proposed involves an unnecessary sacrifice of principle. Another middle west presbytery having a considerable number of mission fields reports that all their mission fields except one have given a majority against union, the mamajorities running two to one, four to one, and even as high as six to one against. A similar trend in the voting is indicated in reports from mission fields in the extreme east. Yours very truly, A. Brandon.

WORLD PRESS ON THE WAR

DANGEROUS CENSORSHIP London Daily Mail.—We can state in a very few words the opinion to which we have been forced by fifteen months' experience of the Censorship. Nothing has done more to lower our reputation abroad for honesty and good sense, and nothing has done more to delude our people at home, to hide from them the realities of the war, and to dull the edge of their interest in its progress.

EVERYTHING.

London Daily Express.—We must all place the thing we love the most on the altar of country for one object alone, and that is to put down forever the hellish aspirations of a people who have forgotten God. The man who has no money must be ready to give himself to the State; the man who has money must be ready to give what is wanted and, if necessary, his last penny. With that spirit before us we shall wipe out the foul thing called German militarism. Without this spirit in us the Kaiser will contemptuously cast his shoe over the England of Shakespeare and Nelson. END OF KAISERISM IN U. S. New York Herald.—The American citizen of Teutonic blood, while a hard-headed and positive person, is notably kind at heart, possesses high ideals and reveres womanhood. Mr. Ridder, whose whole attitude with reference to Kaiserism has been wrong, was shocked at the killing of Miss Cavell and said so, and he probably more nearly voices the sentiments of the Americans of German descent than do the German Herald and the New Yorker Herald. The stain which has been put on the German military machine will never be wiped out, but Miss Cavell will not have died in vain if her shocking fate causes the scales to drop from the eyes of those who have been duped by the hypenated shadders of ink in the cause of blood and iron and brings an end to Kaiserism in the United States.

"COME OUT AND FIGHT." New York World.—They need something to hearten them up a bit and excite their risibles in London, and so we respectfully suggest that the despatch from The World's Berlin correspondent describing a visit to the German fleet be widely distributed in England.

"Do you think the British fleet will ever come out?" is the question that everybody on board asked of the correspondent. Why does not Great Britain throw the glove in the naval arena for Germany to pick up?" The ships on which this delightful segment of German public opinion was found are as snug as bugs in a rug under the guns of Wilhelmshaven. They are as secure against come-outers as a cave-dweller, and designedly so.

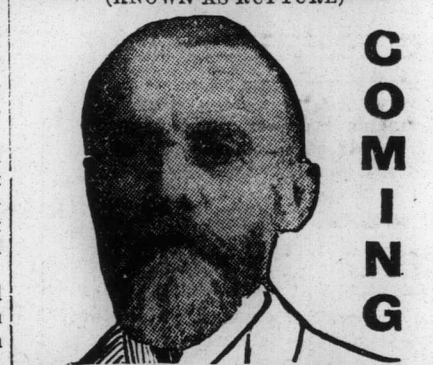

The British fleet has come out sufficiently to control the seven seas. Aside from a few submarines, there is not a German ship afloat anywhere except in neutral harbors and in heavily protected German waters. Merchant-war and merchantmen alike have disappeared, while British flags, commercial and naval, are seen as frequently as in peace in every ocean. With nearly all its colonies in the hands of the enemy and its great high sea fleet held helplessly a prisoner in its own harbors, Germany may fairly realize what kind of comic opera challenge it is awaiting.

NEW HEAD AND MEMBERS OF FRANCE'S REORGANIZED CABINET

Mr. René Viviani resigned as Premier of France and with him his whole Cabinet surrendered their portfolios. Mr. Aristide Briand is forming a new Ministry. Many of the present Ministers, including Mr. Viviani himself, it is said, will have posts in the new Cabinet. General Gallieni, who replaces Mr. Hillemard as Minister of War, is one of the most distinguished officers in the French army. Though he had reached the age limit when the war began he was named Military Governor of Paris and saved the capital by massing a new army on the flank of General von Kluck's forces. The advantage of having a practical military man at the head of the War Office, rather than a lawyer, however distinguished, is considered obvious at the French capital.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

W. P. L'S PHONE NO. People wishing to donate edibles to the Women's Patriotic League, Y.M.C.A., should phone Mrs. Taylor at 512, and not 153, as stated yesterday.

GOOD WORK. The sum of $128.03 was raised for the British Red Cross by the teachers and scholars at the Collegiate Institute. The teachers and scholars of the Public Schools raised over $300 for the same purpose.

PAYING THE WINNER. Miss Maud Standing, who won a scholarship at the Entrance Examination this summer will be presented with a cheque for $70 by the Board of Education and the compliments of the Board on her success.

NEW BY LAWS. The new by-laws governing the Board of Education are now complete and will probably be sent to the printers without delay. Mr. W. Norman Andrews has been appointed by the board to go over them finally with Mr. Bunnell before they appear in print.

PURCHASED PAPER. Messrs. Herbert W. and Norman E. Farrow, two well known young Brantford printers have purchased the Smiths Falls News and took control this week. They are practical all-around printers, and their many friends look for them to make a success of the enterprise. The paper is a bright clean newsy sheet.

WHERE TO SEND THEM. Accounts against the Board of Education should be forwarded always to the secretary of the board, Mr. A. K. Bunnell. Sometimes they are given to chairmen of committees and ordinary members of committees. If sent direct to the secretary they will always come before the board at its next ensuing meeting.

NO SENIOR O.H.A. HERE. Nothing has been promised or said about Brantford entering a team in the Senior O.H.A. It is what hockey moguls here say concerning a report from Toronto that a local seven would be entered in the senior series. There is not enough material here for a senior team and Brantford will stick to the intermediate series for the next year at least.

ANNUAL MEETING. The Horticultural Society hold their annual meeting in the City Hall to-night when there will be election of officers, etc.

RECEIVED LISTS. Copies of the voters' lists, 113 in number, have been received by the city clerk, H. F. Leonard, and will be distributed to the parties entitled thereto immediately.

POLICE COURT. Three cases were disposed of by Magistrate Livingston at the police court to-day. The case of Roger McKinnon, a billed man, charged with being drunk, was remanded until tomorrow.

INDOOR BASEBALL. The Kolts won from the Beavers, who were last year's city champions, in an exciting game of indoor baseball at the Y. M. C. A. last night by a score of 3 to 2. The game was won in the last inning by a grand batting rally on the part of the Kolts.

ADDRESS UNKNOWN. A letter was received at the armories about the first of the week addressed to Pte. Thomas Jones of the 4th Battalion. The whereabouts of Jones at the present time being unknown to the officials, any information regarding his address would be gladly received so that the letter may be forwarded without delay.

TO REPAIR SLUCEWAYS. The Board of Works met last evening to put affairs in final shape for Monday's council meeting. Routine matters were cleared up. The board will recommend that the sluiceways at the dam be repaired immediately, as the engineer reports another year's wear will render them useless. That will be the chief matter for the board to bring before the Council. It will likely report progress on the poles question.

NEW RECRUITING OFFICE. No new men were signed up yesterday at the local recruiting office; two offered their services but did not qualify and were turned down. The recruiting office for active service men is being moved from the armories to the old post office building. The office will be on the ground floor, entrance on George St., and starting noon to-day all wishing to join or consult the officers in charge, will have to go to that building.

ANNUAL CONFERENCE. Representatives from all the local Sunday schools are being chosen today to attend the tenth annual Boys' Work Conferences being held at London, Ont., from Nov. 12 to 14. Two boys from each Sunday school are supposed to be chosen and it is expected that Brantford will be represented by about thirty. Brantford boys have always given a good account of themselves in the past and will no doubt acquit themselves with equal credit at the present conference.

Former Mayor Garretson, accused of closing Newport on Sunday, was twice burned in effigy there. Life insurance is not only the best, but the cheapest and only adequate way to protect dependants. Nothing can or does take its place because there is no other form of contract which gives the same payment of death whether the insured dies tomorrow or at end of fifty years. Get a Policy in the Manufacturers Life Company, J. Burbank, Gen. Agent, Heyd Block.

BE ON TIME. The advance sale of seats for "It Pays to Advertise," the laughable farce to be presented in the Opera House to-night assures the fact that there will be a large house. Curtain rises at 8.15 sharp and the management request that patrons be on time for this and all other productions as those coming in late disturb not only players, but also the audience.

HOCKEY PROSPECTS. A report was in the Toronto papers this morning that Brantford might play senior O.H.A. hockey along with Berlin and adjoining cities. Some time ago Berlin wrote here suggesting the proposition, and the answer was that it would be considered seriously. Nothing further has been done yet, but the locals have an exceptionally strong intermediate team and might go into the senior series if the other teams go also. Brantford also has a first-class junior team and the prospects are good for a great season. The boys are beginning to practice already in the Y. M. C. A.

84th Here Monday

Will be Entertained in Hamilton Over Sunday is Latest Word.

The arrival of the 84th Battalion in Brantford belongs to the notable order of things. First of all, they were to get here Saturday evening, then Sunday afternoon, and now Monday is the date, according to the following despatch from Hamilton: "The 84th Battalion, C.E.F., Col. Stewart commanding, will spend Sunday in this city. At the suggestion of the Canadian Club Company of the great Regiment, of which Capt. F. H. Rutherford is in command, the citizens will entertain the men of the battalion, 1,100 in number, at dinner at noon on Sunday. On Saturday afternoon the men will be the guests of the Tiger Football Club at the game at the H.A.A.A. grounds." This afternoon Ald. Ryerson, Ald. Dowling and others motored to Hamilton in order to get in absolute touch with the situation.

SOLDIERS' LUNCHEON. The Women's Patriotic have issued the following: "As the soldiers will not arrive until Monday, it has been thought best to serve lunch for them at 12 o'clock. The lunch will consist of sandwiches, pie, tea and coffee, and as it will be necessary to provide 3,500 sandwiches and 250 pies, all those desiring to assist are asked to send their names to Mrs. Taylor, Y. M. C. A. Bldg. Phone 512 before noon on Saturday. As a great deal of milk and cream will be required, it is hoped that the local milk men will contribute this. It is the wish of the ladies in charge that the sandwiches be made of meat, and of substantial size. Donations to be delivered Monday at the building formerly occupied by the J. S. Hamilton Co., Dalhousie street."

PARKS BOARD IN SESSION LAST NIGHT

Matters of Difficulty Between It and L. E. and N. Thoroughly Discussed.

The Parks Board met last night in regular session. The report was presented. Mr. Gould (chairman) Messrs. Cockshutt, Grobb, Glover and J. J. Hawkins. A letter was received from Mr. Elliott, who has been in charge of Mohawk Park until recently. His claim against the board was discussed, and it was decided to pay $50, the amount he asked for. Mr. Wilbee had a small claim which has been outstanding since the purchase of Mohawk Park. He was allowed the sum of $5.60. A letter to the secretary from the Public Works Department, Ottawa was received containing draft for $250, being the annual amount allowed for the care of the parade ground and boulevards around the armories by the Dominion Government. Accounts and claims amounting to $57,505 were authorized to be paid. The outstanding claims of the board against the Lake Erie and Northern Railway Co. (now the C.P.R.) were thoroughly discussed. The award of the arbitrators at the beginning of the dispute about the right of way along Jubilee Terrace, and the heat house, was shown to have remained totally in abeyance, owing to the unreadiness or unwillingness of the railway to come to a settlement. They attacked their own contentions in the hearing before the Dominion Railway Commissioners at the second sitting in Hamilton on the question of the location and completion of the heat house and the subway, by which it is ordered to be approached. Also the fixing up of the piece of land adjoining Church St., which was awarded to the board in part satisfaction for the land the railway took in Jubilee Terrace. Nothing has been done at all since it has been turned over to the C. P. R. to deal with these questions, but it is understood that Mr. Todd met certain members of the board—the chairman, Mr. Gould, and the Secretary, J. J. Hawkins. He stated that all these matters could be discussed at a day to be named by the railway company, of which they would give notice to the Parks Board. Further the taking down and removal of the board walk which had been built only a few months previously at a cost of $3000, and the roadway opened by the city council and the parks board, each paying one-half of the price for the land at a cost to each of $2,150, was also taken up with Mr. Todd. The board will prepare its case and present it as soon as this meeting is held. It is hoped that amicable settlements of all these claims can be arrived at.

They will be at St. Thomas on Tuesday; Simcoe, Wednesday; Cayuga on Thursday, and Brantford on Friday. The commission is making its survey of licensed conditions a thorough one. Yesterday the members returned from a tour of Wellington that took them into every hotel or shop in the county, dividing forces at some points in order to cover the ground.

SUFFRAGETTES TO BREAK THE TRUCE

Or at Any Rate the Group Controlled by Mrs. Pankhurst Are Talking of This.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
New York, Nov. 5.—A cable to the Tribune from London says: Suffragettes—anyhow the group controlled by Mrs. Pankhurst—have decided to break the truce which has lasted since the beginning of the war, and again attack the government, instead of supporting it.
At its meeting in London pavilion, Mrs. Pankhurst said that they came to this decision last week, and then only account for the general ineptitude of the cabinet, especially regarding Serbia, which they pledged themselves to aid. Miss Annie Kenney, was even more emphatic. Although the meeting was billed as "patriotic," she remarked:

"We must rid the foreign office of Asquith, Grey and Haldane. If we don't they'll betray not only Serbia but London."
After most violent indictment of the government generally and Lord Haldane especially, Miss Kenny continued:
"How are they going to answer the American note. We know we are full of compromise, fear and timidity. We have got to fight for our heritage—our complete command of the seas—which they would barter away."
Miss Kenny finished by describing the majority in the cabinet as "traitors"—a suggestion which caused in-

In any event, several weeks would elapse before a new election."

Executive Order Issued.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
Washington, Nov. 5.—An executive order was issued to-day suspending the operation of the safety at sea provision of the new seaman's laws so far as they would affect foreign built ships admitted to registry under the foreign registry act of 1914. The foreign registry act authorized the president to suspend all the inspection features of the navigation laws as affecting foreign built ships applying for American registry.
An executive order issued in September 1914, suspended such laws for two years and it was supposed that it would automatically suspend the amendments to the inspect on laws contained in the seaman's law. Attorney-General Gregory, however, held that a new executive order would be necessary to cover amendments to the laws suspended.

NEW SCHEDULE

Is Adopted in Germany Regarding Prices of Hogs and Pork.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
Berlin, Nov. 5.—via London.—A new schedule of prices for swine and pork in Berlin has been adopted by the federal council, in connection with the measures now being taken to regulate prices and distribution of food supplies throughout the country. Maximum prices as designated for live hogs were divided into certain classes, according to weight. Quotations are adjusted in such a manner as to encourage the raising of heavy hogs instead of making it profitable to slaughter them before they mature. For this purpose the rates are increased on a sliding scale for hogs which weigh more than 220 pounds. The maximum wholesale price for fat pork is placed at 140 pennigs per kilogram (about 16 cents a pound). For hog fat (unrendered lard), the maximum wholesale price is 135 pennigs (about 15.2 cents a pound).

FOOD FROM BULGARIA.

Clever Ruse.

Quebec, Nov. 5.—The trial for highway robbery and horse theft of Pierre Durette of Rimouski, closed with the man being sent to penitentiary for two years. Durette's arrest was something of a wild-west affair. He had prepared for a regular siege, intending to keep the police at bay with a seven-inch German carbine which was found loaded in a back room. His wife also admitted that she had also prepared to receive the police with an iron poker, but the police wisely refused hostilities. Strangers were sent first to the house under the pretense that they were agents for farm implements, and thus gained access.

Board of Education Had Quiet Session

Decided to Rent Room in Y.W.C.A. for Domestic Science Purposes for $500 Per Annum--Committee Reports Mostly on Routine Matters--Unknown Mr. Smith Renders Account for Brooms.

The Board of Education met in regular session last night and as expected, nothing of paramount interest came up for discussion. Trustee Bentham, as chairman of the Finance Committee again emphasized the need for economy, but no expenditures other than those necessary were authorized. The chief item of business was the decision to rent a room for Domestic Science purposes at $50 a month from the Y. W. C. A. and the confirmation of the engagement of Miss Mary E. Longstreet, the new domestic science teacher, at $600 a year.

Reading the communications Mr. Bunnell mentioned a request from Mr. Burt for two new dictionaries and 12 swinging clubs for use in Calisthenic exercises by the Collegiate girls. Mr. Bentham objected to the clubs, as he understood they were to be purchased for special exhibition purposes in training. Mr. Andrews explained the new clubs were needed anyway, so it was thought advisable to get this particular kind of hollow club, though the cost was a little extra.

Both Trustees Lane and Armstrong agreed with Mr. Bentham, that expenses should be kept down and luxuries would have to be dispensed with. The peculiar thing is that this discussion ended without anything being done and the matter was not brought up again, so it is still uncertain whether the clubs will be bought. Another feature of the evening was the mysterious Mr. Smith. Among the accounts was a bill, or rather a memo, of an account phoned to Mr. Bentham, for brooms bought from Mr. Smith. Nobody seemed to have ordered them, and moreover brooms are always bought from another party whose name is not Smith. The matter will be looked into.

Mr. Brewster introduced a deputation of two, consisting of Mrs. Brewster and Mrs. Sutherland, to explain why the Y. W. C. A. wanted $50 a month rent for the room to be leased to the Board for Domestic Science purposes. The offer was $33.33 per month.

Mrs. Brewster showed figures of the cost of keeping up the room, and convinced the Board that $50 was a reasonable rent. It was therefore decided to lease the room for one year at $50 per annum, with the right at the end of the year to lease again, with a month's notice, for another year.

Capt. Cutcliffe asked permission to have use of Collegiate gymnasium and class room to complete instruction in sergeant's class, as the coming of the 8th closes the armories to them. This will be granted also, and the buildings grounds committee will make the arrangements.

A resolution received from the Trades and Labor Council approving of the work of the technical advisory committee was filed.

A representative was present of a firm selling pencil sharpeners, the idea being to place one in each room of the schools. A few are in now on approval. The matter was postponed until next meeting.

The board adjourned at 10.20.

This option holds good for three years. The Y. W. supply and pay for gas, light, heat and the janitor, while the Board buys the equipment for $350.

The petition of Terrace Hill residents for some change in allocating pupils of the Hill to the city schools was turned down. In other words, it was filed.

A number of accounts were passed including an old one of $19 from Duncan and Co. for school desks, supplied in 1912. As some changes had to be made in these it was decided to settle for $15.

The technical advisory committee and commercial advisory committee reported. The Department of Education has decided that the technical and the commercial departments be separated. As a result, Mr. Shultis was appointed principal of the commercial section of the night school at a salary of $4 per night.

Some opposition to this raise in the middle of the term came from Trustee Lane, while Mr. Armstrong figured he would make about $26 a day, and in a gentle satirical way suggested it was very poor pay. It went through however.

VENIZELOS HAS NO FAITH IN FOREIGN POLICY

States That King Can Have No Responsibility Under Constitution.

By Special Wire to the Courier.

Paris, Nov. 5.—Portions of the address of former Premier Venizelos of Greece to the chamber of deputies, just before the defeat of the Zaimis ministry, are given as follows by the Havas correspondent at Athens.

"The foreign policy of the government does not have our confidence; moreover, we consider it fatal for the country. In recent days we have felt more profoundly still the pain of seeing our country menaced by our eternal enemy, which will turn on us after having crushed Serbia."

"We are saddened by the thought that to-morrow we shall be alone without friends or allies, in the face of a formidable enemy."

At this point M. Venizelos was interrupted by a deputy who asked whether he thought King Constantine desired the ruin of the country.

"I would have preferred to omit the name of the King in this discussion," M. Venizelos responded, "but since you ask this question I shall answer it as I should. Under the constitutional regime the King can have no responsibility."

Ex-Premier Venizelos, said, however, that he did not mean to throw upon the King responsibility for the present situation in Greece. He blamed those who had failed to advise his majesty as they ought, and said the crown could not refuse to recognize the vote of confidence accorded by the chamber of deputies to the preceding cabinet.

M. Gounaris, minister of the interior, interrupting, said he thought the policy of M. Venizelos would lead the country to ruin and to take a position against the central powers which would be disastrous for Greece and Serbia.

When M. Gounaris had concluded M. Theotodis, minister of communications, addressed the house. He examined the foreign policy of M. Venizelos and asserted that the latter last February would have led the Greek fleet and army to complete ruin.

The developments which had followed justified the opinion, the minister contended, that armed neutrality had saved Greece from catastrophe and that if the country had not maintained neutrality, it would have been lost without saving Serbia.

Resuming his speech, M. Venizelos explained his policy of last February and discussed the benefits which Greece might have realized if her neutrality had not been maintained. Continuing, he said: "Your policy has rendered our national ideals impossible, and in serving involuntarily a German political group we are exposed to the danger of aiding Bulgarian aspirations and the growth of Turkish power. Why not take part to-day in a war which to-morrow will be inevitable."

M. Venizelos terminated his address in urging the government not to let pass an occasion which is presented to the people only once in a thousand years. His speech was frequently applauded.

Paris, Nov. 5.—The French War Office this afternoon gave out the following statement, regarding the operations in the Balkans—

"The day of November 2 passed quietly along the front of the French sector in Serbia. The Bulgarians in front of Krivolak entrenched themselves 600 yards from our advanced posts and are directing artillery fire against our positions there."

"During the day of November 3, fighting took place to the north of Rebrove and still continued. Our troops gained possession of the bridges over the River Cerna, to the northwest of Krivolak."

Paris, Nov. 5.—Between the River Aisne and the Oise, German troops yesterday after having attempted to surprise the forces in the French trenches, directed a very violent but futile bombardment against our positions.

In the Champagne district, French forces have checked two fresh German attacks against the French trenches at La Courtine.

This information was contained in the announcement given out this afternoon by the French war office. The text of the communication follows:

"Between the Aisne and the Oise, in the sectors of Puisialoise and Queenneviers, the enemy, after having attempted to surprise the men in our trenches by a spirited fusillade, directed against our positions a very violent, but at the same time a futile bombardment."

"In the Champagne district we have completely checked two fresh German attacks against our trenches in the position known as 'La Courtine'."

"These attacks were conducted with hand grenades and supported by the throwing of inflammable liquid."

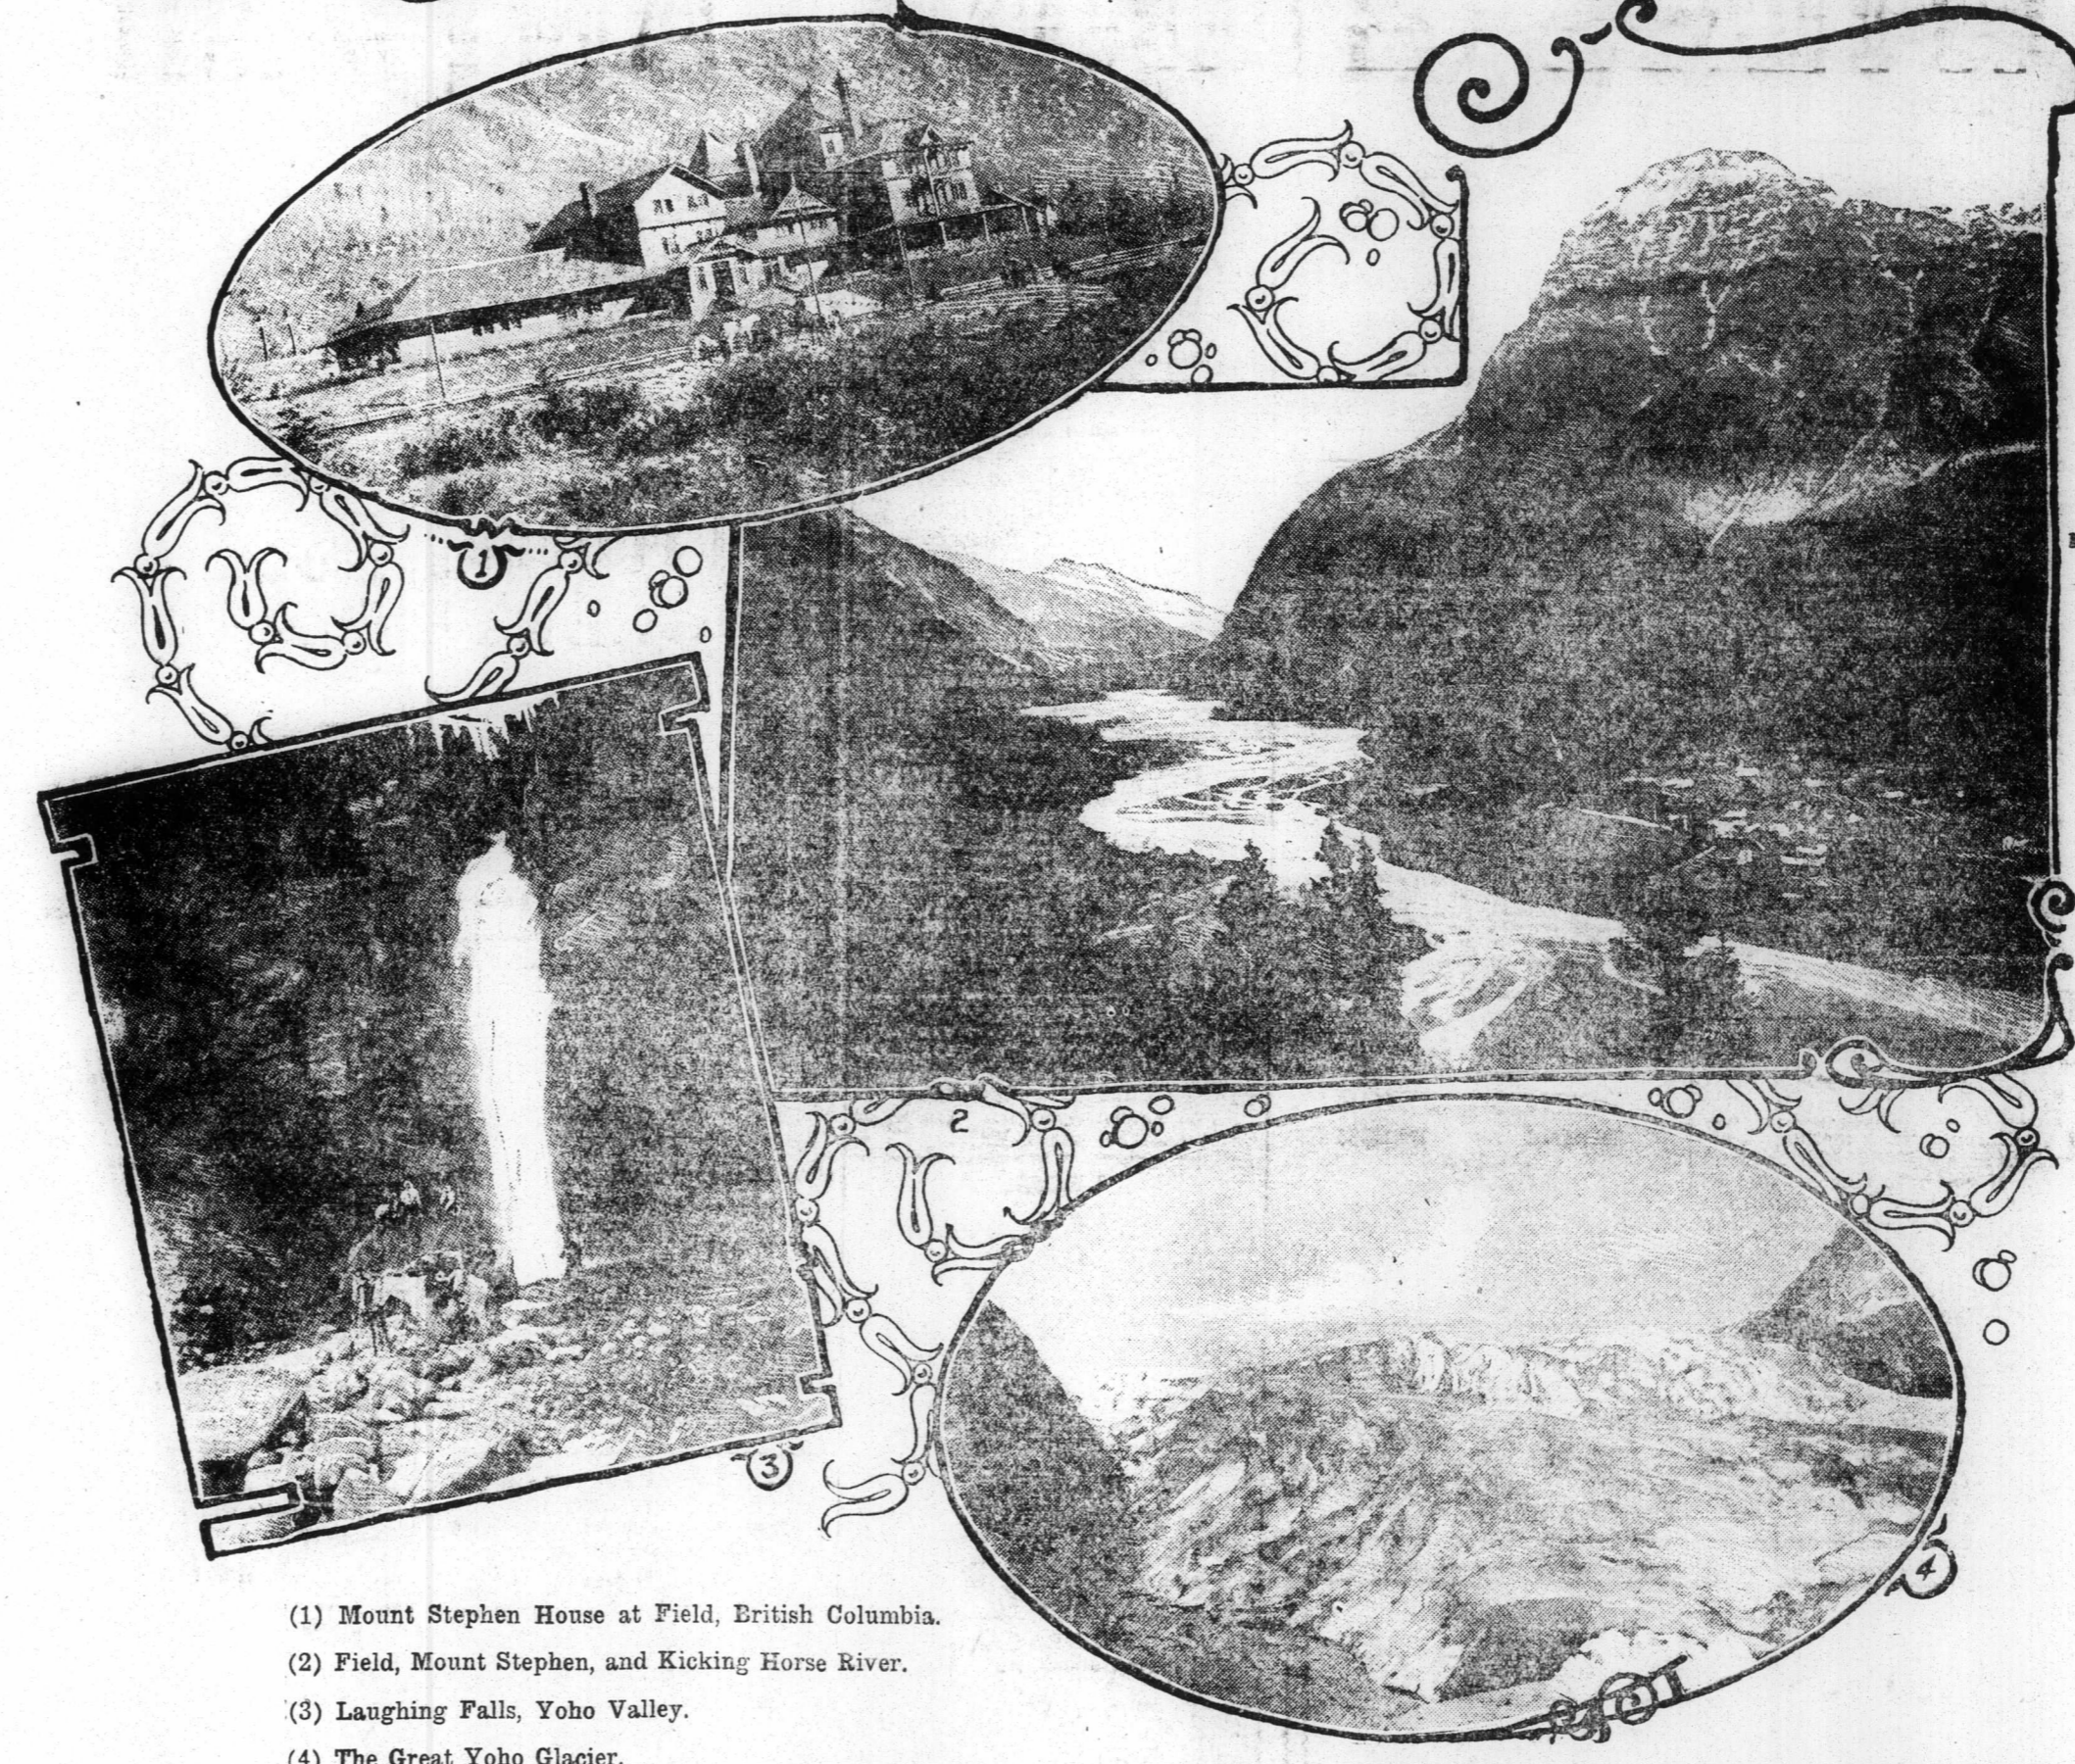

"There is nothing to report from the remainder of this front."

"In Alsace a French aviation squadron has flown over Dornach, and bombed certain buildings used by the Germans for the manufacture of suffocating gases."

Of the fifty-three persons killed in New York City streets in October, 43 lost their lives by autos.

THE GATE to the YOHO VALLEY

- (1) Mount Stephen House at Field, British Columbia.
- (2) Field, Mount Stephen, and Kicking Horse River.
- (3) Laughing Falls, Yoho Valley.
- (4) The Great Yoho Glacier.

FIELD, nestling at the foot of glorious mountains in the heart of the Kicking Horse Valley, is an important stopping place for tourists through the Canadian Rockies. Here, at the foot of the gigantic Mount Stephen, is the delightful Chalet of the Canadian Pacific, called after the great mountain. From this point there are beautiful drives and pony rides. Along the Ottertail road to the valley of that name is where a magnificent view of the triple-headed Mt. Goodair is to be had. Then, again, the drive along the Yoho road is one of the longest and finest in the Rockies. It crosses the Kicking Horse River and, following the stream, reaches the Yoho Valley; then swinging round the shoulder of Mt. Field, and continuing up the valley, precipitous cliffs are met. The road ends a short distance past the Takakkaw Falls, a splendid cascade falling over a thousand feet. Near this point every year is a camp which the tourist may make the base for exploring the upper reaches of the Yoho Valley. Those who have more time to spend in the Yoho Valley drive from Field to Emerald Lake where there is another delightful chalet. Another especially fine trip from Mt. Stephen is that over the Dennis and Duchesneau passes. On arrival at the latter pass the descent is made into a beautiful valley under the precipitous crags of Mt. O'Hara trail is reached. The climbers should not fail to visit the lake, one of the most beautiful in the Rocky Mountains. The return journey is made by way of an excellent trail to Hector Station.

HERE AND THERE

In Vilna temporarily in the possession of Germany, lives Peter Lapteff, one of Europe's "old men," born in the year 1789. When Napoleon invaded Russia and got as far as Dvinsk he needed a guide. But the inhabitants had fled. Lapteff's family hiding in a forest. He was captured and taken before the Emperor, who ordered him to guide the army. This he did for thirty-five hours and then escaped. He fought against the French at Borodino; against the English in the Crimea. Tired of making history, he took to making bricks, but now lives in retirement with his son and grandson.

It is curious to recall that just seventy years ago Herbert Spencer was hoping to take out a patent for a "flying machine." Only, he had given up as hopeless the problem since solved by the aeroplane, regarding it as impossible to carry the motor engine and motor power required for a long flight. His idea was suggested by the principle of the kite, and involved the drawing through the air of an inclined plane by iron wire cords attached to an endless wire rope moved by stationary engines.

In the German wireless communication, as wired from Holland, there is a reference to the British use of "intoxicating" gases. There is reason to believe that any gases that may have been used were weeping or lachrymatory gases, which are not poison gases and have no ultimate effect on the system, producing only violent weeping, which makes the soldier unable to see. This passes off after a certain time, leaving weakness, but no ill-effects.

The United States navy has dropped the term "helm" and will in the future use the unmistakable word "rudder." Instead of the old-fashioned command, "Starboard your helm," the new direction will be "Right rudder." The old phrase sounds more nautical, but quickness of comprehension and action are nowadays essential, and picturesque terminology must suffer.

A novel suggestion for raising revenue following the war from alien enemies has been made in London. It is suggested that a poll tax should be levied in the case of every German, Austrian and Turk wishing to reside within the length and breadth of the British Empire, a sum of at least $125 a year being charged for the privilege accorded.

Riga itself, which is the capital of Livonia, one of the three Baltic provinces of Russia, is the third seaport of Russia. It lies on the River Dvina, which at that point is crossed by a bridge of boats and a railway bridge. The town is 350 miles from Petrograd, and still retains many mediaeval houses and stores, for Riga was founded as far back as 1201 by a Livonian bishop. It has been Russian for the last two centuries, and was blockaded by Britain in 1854. Nearly one-half the population are Germans, with German-speaking Jews, one-fourth being Russians, and one-fourth Letts.

The report that the seaport town of Focha, in Asia Minor, on the Gulf of Smyrna, has been burned and that the Turks are retiring into the interior is of interest. Its founders, the Athenians, forsook the town, which was known as Phocaea, rather than fall under the domination of the Persians, as the Turks now fear the Athenians are forced. Secondly the event is of interest because the Phocaeans who fled in former days, after many adventures, found their way into France, and there founded Marseilles.

The body of Richard Andrews, mining prospector, sixty years of age, was found in a boom of logs in the river near Dryden.

CHARACTERISTICS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES

The characteristics of high explosives, says a writer in the Daily Mail, is the extreme violence and suddenness of their detonation. Water is an explosive when it is heated and when it becomes steam, but the expansion is so slow that explosive results do not usually follow unless there is gross negligence.

Gunpowder, the old type expands more rapidly than water and produces a large volume of gas, but again it acts with comparative gentleness. High explosives on the other hand, pass instantly from a solid or liquid form to gas and act with terrific energy, tearing to pieces any vessel which contains them. To make them act in this manner they usually require a detonator, which applies a violent shock to them and starts the explosion. It is a curious fact that most of the high explosives, when lighted with a match burn quite quietly. The experiment is not to be recommended, as accidents will happen, but in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred there is no danger.

Almost without exception high explosives are composed of some organic substance, which means some form of carbon, treated with nitric acid. Without nitrogen, which is the chief ingredient of nitric acid, there might be said that there can be no explosives. Yet by a paradox nitrogen is one of the most inert gases known, and the chief ingredient in the air we breathe. Possibly its explosive value arises from this inertness; it combines so exceedingly reluctantly that on small provocation the compound breaks up into gas, giving the enormous expansion needed for explosive effect.

The most famous modern high explosive and one of the most powerful is lyddite, which is very similar to the French melinite and the Japanese shimose. Lyddite is simply picric acid melted with a little vaseline. Picric acid is a yellow, crystalline substance largely used as a yellow dye and also very serviceable in medicine for the treatment of burns. It is intensely poisonous and a powerful explosive.

Attention to its value as an explosive was first drawn in England by the destruction of a Lancashire factory where it was being manufactured. About the same date it was independently studied in France, and early in the nineties of last century it was adopted there for use in shells. Picric acid is prepared from coal tar—the residue of gas manufacture. When the heavy oil of coal tar is boiled and chemically treated phenol or carbolic acid, separates from it. The carbolic acid is taken, boiled in strong nitric acid, and into the evil smelling liquid strong nitric acid is carefully poured. The resultant is picric acid. It has great virtues as an explosive, but also some vices. Its virtue is that it is not easily exploded when pure and dry, and that it does not act violently when lighted. To make it explode it usually contains a fulminate of mercury and tetryl. Its chief fault is that it is intensely acid, and when moisture is present attacks lead and other other substances, forming exceedingly explosive compounds which go off quite unexpectedly.

An explosive similar to lyddite, but differing from it in chemical composition is trinitrotoluol, or "T.N.T.," which is largely used in the German army and navy. It is less powerful than lyddite in the proportion of 1 to 1.35, but it has certain important advantages over lyddite. It is much more stable and it is not acid, so that it does not form dangerous compounds. It is not affected by water or by the air. While a rifle bullet will detonate gun cotton or lyddite if fired through a charge of either of these explosives, it does not explode trinitrotoluol. Thus "T.N.T." is the safest of modern high explosives.

"T.N.T." is a yellow, crystalline powder, not unlike picric acid. Its picric acid is a coal tar product, manufactured from toluene or toluol, which is very closely related to benzene and is one of the same group of hydrocarbons. Experiments made in 1889 at Karlsruhe showed that about seven pints or rather less than a gallon of toluene could be obtained from a ton of coal. The modern process of low-temperature distillation of coal has, however, greatly raised the quantity that can be obtained from each ton, and toluene is now being produced on a much larger scale.

Benzol, which is used extensively as a motor fuel, in ordinary circumstances may contain quite a fair percentage of toluene, but during the war all the toluene is being carefully extracted from it for use as an explosive. This toluene is an aromatic, colorless liquid resembling benzene. It is converted into "T.N.T." by means of nitric acid, and the same process being employed as is used to convert carbolic acid into picric acid and lyddite. Under suitable conditions strong nitric acid turns toluene into trinitrotoluol. To give a good explosion, "T.N.T." has with lyddite a powerful detonator, is required. Tetryl, a coal tar product, which contains even more nitrogen than "T.N.T." or lyddite, is usually employed as a detonator, but is less sensitive and safer than mercury fulminate, the material generally used in detonators.

Ammonia, a high explosive largely used by the Austrian army, is simply a mixture of picric acid, "T.N.T.," aluminum in fine powder and nitrate of ammonium. It is safe and powerful, but has the disadvantage of being hygroscopic, or attracting moisture and for that reason shells containing it do not always explode.

Gun cotton, the oldest and best known of high explosives, is little used for filling shells, though it was commonly employed in our navy for charging the heads of torpedoes until the present war. In power it is slightly inferior to "T.N.T.," and considerably inferior to lyddite, while having this further disadvantage that it is liable to be set on fire by a shot. It is prepared by steeping the very finest cotton in a mixture of nitric and sulphuric acid, using great care and taking pains to prevent the temperature rising. The process of steeping occupies from one hour up to a whole day, and strong acid fumes are given off while the work is in progress. After steeping, the cotton is washed, kept until it is slightly damp, when it is compressed into cakes, and blocks, in which form it is ready for use.

The recorder of Belfast when hearing civil bill cases the other Saturday was informed that a number of cases were brought by Jews, who, owing to a religious festival that day, were unable to attend court. His Honor said he was very willing to consider Jews, but he must also consider Christians. If the Christians came there to meet the Jews, and the Jews did not come to meet the Christians, and if in consequence the Christians had to come back a second day, the Jews must pay them for doing so.

A curious situation has arisen in Ireland in relation to horses which have become unfit for war service, but not unfit for civil service of some kind. These animals are not capable of sustaining the severe strains imposed upon them in war service, but are by no means useless to horse users in civil life. In some cases the animals merely need attention and treatment which the army authorities cannot spare time to give them. In respect of mares returned to England from France, there appears to be ground for strong complaint, for though they are badly wanted for breeding purposes, the Irish Department of Agriculture will not allow a single mare to be imported from France to Ireland. The Department justify their prohibition on the ground that they desire to prevent the importation of horse disease to Ireland, and point out that disease was introduced among horses of the country by military horses brought to Ireland on the conclusion of the South African war.

"THE GODDESS"

UNIQUE SERIAL STORY

BY GOUVERNEUR MORRIS

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

After the tragic death of John Ambrose, his prostrated wife, one of America's greatest beauties, dies. At her death, Prof. Stilliter, an agent of the interests, kidnaps the beautiful three-year old baby girl and brings her up in a paradise where she sees no man, but thinks she is taught by angels, who instruct her for her mission to reform the world. Tommy Barclay was her childhood chum.

Just then his head fell forward on his breast, and he dreamed that he smelt boiling cauliflower. It was a smell to which he was particularly sensitive, and which he particularly hated. He waked with an angry start, and the smell persisted. He climbed to the top of the hill. Field glasses in hand he began to search the whole landscape far and near for traces of human beings. But the woods were so dense that it was like looking for a needle in a haystack. What he hoped to see, and what he did presently see, was smoke, a pale amethystine column of it rising near the base of one of the mountains. He took its bearings very carefully. It was directly between him and the smallest of three barren cliffs which formed the first up-thrust of the mountain, and as he judged about half a mile this side of the cliff. At the base of that cliff was a rattlesake den, and Tommy was in the habit of giving it a pretty wide berth, for the snakes sometimes wandered long distances from their favorite ledges in search of food and water, and a good woodsman like Tommy preferred that they should do their husting in peace.

He focussed his glasses on the base of the cliff and amused himself for some time in trying to discern a snake. But either the distance was too great or there was none in evidence, and he was about to give up when suddenly a man walked casually into the field of his vision—and out of it.

"Well, I'm jiggered," said Tommy. "I haven't found a snake, but I've found the next best thing. Now what is Prof. Stilliter doing in this part of the world?"

Again he lifted the glasses and again saw the professor. He appeared to be polishing something on the sleeves of his Norfolk jacket. Now and then the something flashed brightly in the sunlight. It might have been a pocket mirror, or a watch diamond. Whatever it was, Professor Stilliter presently dropped it into his pocket, forced his way into a dense clump of bushes at the very base of the cliff, and disappeared.

But Tommy was not to investigate those bushes at the foot of the cliff. He was within a quarter of a mile of them, walking swiftly and quietly along an old lumber trail, when suddenly his quick eye caught a sound of footsteps, and at the same moment his quick eyes caught a glimpse of something white that moved. He stepped quickly into a thicket of alders, crouched low, and to all intents and purposes was blotted out of existence.

Along the trail, his heavy baby face streaming with sweat, came Professor Stilliter leading by the hand a slim and lovely girl who carried her head like a princess. She was dressed in a white garment that fell in unbroken folds from her shoulders to her feet like a Roman toga. On her bare feet she wore thin sandals, on her bare head a circlet of gold in which jewels flashed. Her mouth had an expression of celestial gentleness and smoothness, but her eyes half shielded by their lids and lashes, were without expression. She seemed to Tommy like a girl not of this earth, walking in her sleep. He had never seen a face so beautiful, so sweet or so touchingly innocent.

Having passed Tommy's hiding place, Professor Stilliter turned from the trail and led the heavenly vision to a sort of natural seat that overlooked a quiet pool from which Tommy had often taken trout.

She sat reflected in the pool, and looking straight ahead of her, and not seeing—if you know what I mean, Professor Stilliter had let go her hand and was tiptoeing off, abandoning her apparently, but when he had gone a little way he turned and made curious passes in the air with his hand and was tiptoeing off, abandoning the command, the one word, "Wake!"

Expression and light came into the great eyes and she looked about her with a kind of startled delight. Tommy for some reason or other was trembling from head to foot.

A stick cracked. She turned her

WHERE TO SEE THE PICTURES THIS WEEK

Old World Notes

Third-Class Pullmans on the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway began running from Victoria to Brighton and Eastbourne a few days ago, and scored an instant success. The cars were crowded both on the outward and homeward journeys.

Modern improvements have done away with Wapping old stairs at the station of the East London Railway. They have been replaced by the swift and convenient lifts just installed there.

The male Gypsies working in the Kentish hop gardens have had their names taken by the police, as it is believed that many of these have hitherto escaped registration.

Accidental Death was the verdict returned at the inquest on the body of a man, who died from septic pneumonia caused by his boot rubbing the skin off a toe. A witness stated that deceased whom he had known for four years, never went to sleep, and he never took his clothes off.

A clergyman's wife was fined at Bristol the other day for refusing to fill up her registration form. The defendant stated that Englishwomen were classed with criminals, "idiots, aliens and paupers for voting purposes, and none of these were required to fill up the form.

The "Suffragette" will shortly change its name to "Britannia." Miss Pankhurst says—"The name Britannia stands for political liberty, of which the freedom and independence of our country are the guarantee. The Britannia stands for the welfare, the highest traditions and the ideals of the national community to which we belong."

An interesting feature of the Christmas fruit season in London will be the shipments next month of "British dates" from the port of Turkish Arabia now in British occupation. A few dates are received from Egypt, but the bulk of the world's supply comes from the Tigris and Euphrates valley, and the success of British arms in the Garden of Eden means that large shipments will be made to Great Britain.

To raise money for soldiers and sailors who have become blind or totally disabled in the war, Miss Ellaline Terriss has opened a badge fund. An exceptionally neat badge has been designed for the front of which are the words, "I Promise," with the following inscription on the back—"In memory of those who have died for me, never to trade with Germany, or a German, as long as I live." The badges are sold for a shilling each.

The darkening of London streets, has greatly increased the number of traffic accidents, but there is no apparent increase of crime, though the obscurity and the general installation of blinds are circumstances that seem to lend themselves to robbery and violence. Shops with their valuables guarded by gaslight have had to conform to the general regulations, but crib-crackers have not unduly taken advantage of their defencelessness.

The wasp pest has been so bad in some parts of England this season that fruit-growers in a large way have had to wage a ceaseless war against them. The bee expert of a well-known firm of jam manufacturers has broken all records by destroying no fewer than three hundred and seven nests. This means that, including the wasps, grubs and eggs, he has killed more than four and a half million wasps. One nest, a record for size, was over 4 feet in circumference.

A famous fair may shortly be abolished the Brentford District Council having decided to seek powers to abolish the market and fair held in its market place. The charter for both was granted by Edward I., and is now held by the Middlesex County Council, and the reason for the proposed abolition is that it is alleged that they have fallen into disrepute and have become a nuisance. Their fair was in past years one of the most famous in the West of London, and Butler, in "Hudibras," records many incidents connected with it.

Pieces of a bomb are being offered for sale to visitors at some places in the eastern counties visited recently by Zeppelins. "Show you where it fell, sir," says a would-be guide. He knows the marks on the wall by heart and shambles from one to another telling his stories of hair-breadth escapes. Finally, he takes from a heavy sacking pocket some broken scraps of metal. These have a price varying as their size. They are "pieces of the bomb"—relics of which, all told, there must be some tons in this vagrant market.

TWO of England's country notes. A great hoax was played on a Kentish village by a bogus naval lieutenant, who was charged with unlawfully wearing a uniform authorized by the Admiralty. He arrived at Littlebourne representing that he was from one of the Admiralty's aerodromes, and was arranging for the landing of two hydroplanes. The village felt highly honored at this mark of favor, lodgings were provided for the lieutenant, a meadow was placed in his disposal, and a landing place was chalked out and carefully guarded. Prominent ladies and gentlemen from the surrounding districts and practically every villager awaited patiently for the hydroplanes to arrive, but when evening came a police superintendent arrived instead and arrested the bogus lieutenant.

The National Union of Women Workers of Great Britain and Ireland held their annual conference in London recently. A resolution was adopted to the effect that the work of women patrols had conclusively shown both the desirability and feasibility of the permanent appointment of women to carry out police duties in relation to women and children, and urging the government to take such steps as might be necessary to promote the appointment of women constables should be with powers, salaries and pensions equal to those of men constables.

Oxford and Cambridge men are bearing their share of their country's fight. In his valedictory address the Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge University said that the university had shrunk to less than one-third of its former numbers. Ten thousand Cambridge men are serving with the forces; some seven hundred had been wounded and over three hundred had won distinctions on the field. Four hundred and seventy have fallen— one hundred and fifty of them of the undergraduate status. Over twenty thousand past and present members of Oxford University are now fighting either in the Army or Navy.

A free gift sale was held a few days ago at Inverness for the purpose of raising funds for comforts for the Gordon Highlanders. Some rare and valuable articles were sent in by the nobility and gentry of the Highlands. The articles for sale included a letter written and signed by Robert Burns at Mossgiel, in 1876. It was presented by the widow of the late Col. Leslie Fraser, and was purchased for $120. The collection also includes a letter written and signed by Sir Walter Scott and addressed to his friend, Willie Laiglaw. This letter only brought $15.

A distressing accident occurred at Inverkeithing the other Sunday afternoon, resulting in the death of a young lad. Along with some other boys he had been playing at soldiers on a waste piece of ground, where they had dug a deep trench. Part of the trench had been covered over with an old bedstead, pieces of wood and a large quantity of earth. The boy happened to be in the trench when the roof collapsed, burying him in the debris. Assistance was immediately obtained and but a few minutes elapsed before he was dug out. Artificial respiration was resorted to for half an hour but without avail.

The record of the British hospitals in this war is as follows: The wounded returned practically at once to the front, 54.5 per cent; sent away for convalescence, 24.5 per cent; under more or less prolonged treatment in hospital, 17.4 per cent; dismissed from the army as incapable for further service, 1.46 per cent; dead, 3.48 per cent.

"One condition of her mind," said Tommy, "appears to be fear of you." Stilliter turned from him impatiently. "Come, Celestia," he said, "we'll go away now."

She shrunk from his proffered hand. "Celestia," said Tommy, "don't you want to go with him?"

"No," she said.

"Don't be afraid, then," said Tommy, "you shan't."

"Tommy Barclay," said Stilliter, "you keep out of this or you'll get into trouble. Come, Celestia."

She did not stir.

In a flash Stilliter had drawn a polished crystal from his pocket and was forcing the girl to look at it. As he did so he said in a commanding tone: "Sleep, Celestia, sleep."

Tommy simply stepped forward and knocked the crystal from Stilliter's hand, and Stilliter turned upon him with a howl of rage and attacked him with a shower of windmill blows. Tommy was no longer a small boy, but an athlete, in the early twenties.

He retreated slowly, guarding himself, and then, when he thought he had drawn Stilliter far enough from Celestia, he quietly reached in under the rain of blows and disarmed him.

In other words, he removed those great black rimmed spectacles, without which the great psychologist was blind and helpless.

"Perhaps I'm doing wrong," said Tommy, "but that girl's afraid of you and I'll take a chance."

He darted to the girl's side. "Are you afraid of me?"

"No."

"Then come."

He led her back to the trail and along it.

Stilliter stood as if in the midst of black night, groping with his hands lest he dash his face against a tree, listening and cursing inaudible curses through his set teeth.

"Why," he thought, "did I take the trouble to bring an extra pair and then leave them in the tent?"

Then fear overcame him, and he began to shout for help.

It was Tommy who answered the appeal.

"Listen," called Tommy, "and don't make such a noise. If you can find the place where Celestia was sitting you'll find your glasses. If not, I'll come back in a day or two and find them for you. You won't starve—not at your size."

Tommy laughed like a schoolboy, and turned to Celestia.

"Now, let's beat it," he said, and he hurried her along the trail. "We'll just make a safe dining and then we'll decide how and where to go next. You're not exactly dressed for roughing it. That white thing wouldn't keep a fire warm. Hope you're warmly dressed underneath."

"Underneath," said Celestia, panting and without grammar, "there is only me."

GERMANS ARRESTED IN WEEHAWKEN BOMB PLOT

Robert Fay, a sergeant in the German army, who fought in the battle of the Marne, and Walter Scholz, a German, who is said to have been a sergeant in the Kaiser's household, were arrested in Weehawken, N. J., by a squad of detectives and government secret service men.

VERDUN IS A FORTRESS UNDERGROUND

Subterranean Chambers Can Accommodate 50,000 People With Supplies.

Verdun the most important fortress in North Eastern France—that is until Metz shall have been re-captured from its German captors in 1870—has been the object of the German Crown Prince's military plans for many months.

Here it is that two great German armies hope to converge on the day when they completed the city's defenses and overthrew its outer defenses.

According to a press correspondent the chances are that the generally unfortunate Crown Prince will meet with yet another reverse before he gets through with Verdun.

Describing the defenses of Verdun the correspondent says: "We went down winding stairs—down, down, down until I was dizzy—into the bowels of the earth under the forts; we ventured into the deep—of the dungeons, where miles and miles of corridors are lined with miles and miles of foodstuffs ammunition, and the like in broad, tall rows; we saw the general staff at work in some of these corridors now rigged up as offices; we saw the whole staff at work; we were admitted to the underground retreat of the general.

"You may say," he said, "that we are prepared to defend this city until the last round of ammunition is gone and the last man dead."

The subterranean chambers of the citadel of Verdun, can accommodate at least 50,000 people with the supplies necessary to their comparative comfort. In June the Germans shelled Verdun with 380 millimeter long-range guns, twenty-six shells falling on the town. Not much damage was done, but profiting by the experience of Dunkirk, which was several times bombarded from a position twenty miles away, the authorities at once set about making Verdun "safe."

TIME FOR DISAPPEARING. This was done by using the corridors and chambers under the citadel as a place to lodge the troops of the garrison, and, if need be, the civil population as well. These underground spaces date back for the most part about thirty years and are from 100 to 200 feet below the surface. They are cut almost entirely in rock, but have false walls and ceilings of brick, with space between the bricks and rock for ventilation, chimneys ascending to the surface at intervals, creating a natural draft.

Subway voyagers in New York would find these underground passages delightful. One finds innumerable beds or bunks in two tiers. There is a hospital with a spotless operating room. An independent waterworks system, with two power stations (in case one goes wrong) has a capacity sufficient for the needs of 50,000 people. There is an immense store of grain, in air-tight metal casks, and a large grist mill to turn the grain into flour. A bakery with sufficient ovens to furnish all soldiers and civilians in the fortress with bread. Besides the grain there is flour, much meat from America in sealed metal boxes; there are also canned meats in enormous quantities.

Although there are stores of lard, canned milk, and many other necessities, none of these things are being drawn upon at present. They will be used only in case Verdun is invested.

UNDERGROUND RAILWAY. Narrow-gauge rails run through the corridors to haul food supplies, ammunition, etc. Five electric light plants guarantee the place against darkness, and there are two more being built as an extra precaution.

Officers' quarters have been prepared in one of the subterranean passages, these being simply small rooms built of thin boarding to provide a moderate amount of privacy. On the door of one little room the upright planks of which are perhaps a foot higher than the others are the words, "Military Governor."

The Germans, led by the Crown Prince at the north, and Bavarians considerably to the south, commanded by Prince Ruprecht at considerable distance from a three-quarter circle about Verdun. It is reported that the Crown Prince is particularly eager to take the citadel, since it was here he met his first great failure last September. But now that Verdun is safe from long-range shelling, and with her five or six rings of trenches and American barbed wire about her outer girdles, it would appear a very difficult job.

PAIN IN THE BACK Usually Comes From Muscular Rheumatism.

Do not worry about a pain in the back. The worry will do you more harm than the pains. The cause of most backaches is muscular rheumatism, which is painful enough, but not fatal.

Lumbago is a form of muscular rheumatism, so is a stiff neck. Sufferers from any form of rheumatism should keep their general health up to the highest standard by the use of a blood building tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills while taking good, nourishing food, without too much meat. Proper nutrition and pure blood are the best means of fighting rheumatism.

Rheumatism comes from acid in the blood, build it up, strengthen the system, and drive out the poisonous acid that causes rheumatism. In this way sufferers have found complete recovery as is shown by the following case: Mrs. Samuel Childerhouse, Orillia, Ont., says: "About three years ago I was greatly afflicted with a severe pain in the back, which I thought at first was due to kidney trouble. I tried a number of remedies but they did not help me any, in fact the pain was growing worse, and got so bad that I was quite unable to do my housework, I could not even sweep a floor. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I am glad I acted upon the advice, for before I had been taking the Pills long the pain began to subside, and under the continued use disappeared entirely, and I have not since been bothered with it in any way. My husband was also cured of a severe attack of indigestion by this same medicine so that we both have much reason to be grateful for it."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A fair similar to the exhibition held at Leipsic and other Continental cities may be held in Glasgow early next year, if the recommendation of a special committee of the Glasgow corporation is carried out. The object is to enable manufacturers to show and buyers to inspect, what goods can be or are being made in Scotland which have hitherto been supplied by foreign countries. The proposal is that the fair should be held in one of the city halls, so that no specially constructed buildings would be required for the purposes of the exhibition.

Canada At War

SIR SAM HUGHES AND HIS WORK IN MILITIA DEPARTMENT THE MAN AND HIS JOB

He Has Accomplished Wonders and Is Still At It Sir Sam Has Abolished the Wet Canteen

When General Sam Hughes was knighted by the King a few weeks ago, and became General Sir Sam Hughes, K.C.B., he only got what was coming to him, for there is nothing to wonder at about it, it is that he wasn't given his golden spurs before.

When Sir Sam Hughes addressed the Canadian Club of Ottawa a week or so ago, he gave them a sketch of the work done by the Militia Department of Canada in the war, and by the Canadian troops at the front. He gave much credit to others and took little for himself. But everybody knew whose work it was, just as King George did when he said "Arise Sir Sam" or words to that effect.

Still Looks Ahead Everybody knows it. Even the enemies of the Minister of Militia—and he has them—admit that to his tireless energy, his unremitting labor and his extraordinary foresight, the remarkable military achievement of Canada is largely due. He has worked night and day; he has made other people work night and day. He is charged with having made mistakes, which charge is proof of his industry, because the only man who never makes mistakes is the man who never does anything at all. But the mistakes, if mistakes they were, have little weight when measured against the tremendous stress which has crowned his work in the main object for which he has striven. Not that he has finished, either. He is still working day and night, still planning, organizing and arranging still looking ahead and preparing for what is yet to come.

A Peculiar Fitness It is of course perfectly true that the thousands of Canadians who have enlisted for overseas service, have done so of their own free will, and of their own accord, and that it is not fight for the safety of the Empire against the onrush of the Hun, but it is equally true that they got their opportunity from Sir Sam Hughes.

The Prime Minister's offer of a Canadian force, and the readiness of Canadians to enrol themselves in that force, could not have been given effective expression without the practical ability of the Minister of Militia to get things in motion and keep them going. Another man in the office of Minister of Militia would have done his best, but not all, nor nearly all. Sam Hughes had advantages which fitted him peculiarly for the quick performance of the task entrusted to him. He is a born soldier. He is familiar with the book. He has seen active service. He has travelled over most of the ground in northern France and Belgium, where the western fighting has been done. He knew the sort of a country it was, what sort of soldiers the Germans were, and what sort of soldiers the French were. He knew the British Tommy and the British general, knew the members of the British Government, or most of them, and the manner of men they were. He knew his own country like a book and he knew his own countrymen from one ocean to the other. In other words he knew the players and about the game. Could there have been a better man to do what the Germans said could not be done, to "improvise an army?"

How We got Shell Orders General Sir Sam talked to the Ottawa Canadian Club on "The War and Our Duty." He said that Canada had done well in the commercial and in her military duty. He said that Canadian manufacturers had risen nobly to the occasion in the manufacture of munitions. Soon after the war began, the British Government asked him if he could secure 200,000 shells in the United States, and although the order was somewhat small he had thought that Canadian establishments could carry out the work, not only to keep the factories going, but to do something in the way of providing work for Canadian men at home. The manufacturers of the country were induced to take on the shell-making industry, and they received the heavy endorsement of the British Government. Today they were producing in Canada tens of thousands of tons of steel. Open heartily steel was being used and this possesses all the essential qualities of crucible steel. Canada was producing her own zinc, and for the first time in Canada trinitrotoluene was being made. Gun cotton was being manufactured, and in fact the entire shell, including the fuses, were being made in Canada today.

Recited About Himself Sir Sam did not tell his audience at the club that he had done it, but he did point out the difficulties which were faced by the manufacturer himself. These difficulties were by no means small. No one knew how the work was to be done, nor what the requirements in munitions would be. It was not till within the last few months that they had come to realize how necessary was the production of war munitions, and the manufacturers of Canada were ready to turn out whatever quantity the British Government asked them to produce. The Minister pointed out that shell orders were not issued by the Shell Committee on their own responsibility, but under direction of the War Office.

Sir Sam briefly outlined the work of the first Canadian division. On the outbreak of war Canada had about 60,000 cadets in the country, and that number 20,000 had done duty for King and country. He recalled the early days of the conflict, and the days at Valcartier. War was declared on August 4th. On the morning of the 8th Valcartier was ready for occupation. Some thought that discipline would not be secured. Discipline, said the Hon. Minister of Militia, according to his views, did not mean, nor ever would mean, repression. By discipline he meant culture, polish and self-control, and no finer example of this sort of discipline had been afforded than the behavior of the rough and ready soldiers of Canada in the historic battle of St. Julien. They had held themselves against the most disciplined soldiers in the world.

The Battle of St. Julien The Minister gave the Club a detailed explanation of the Canadian position at St. Julien, a description which is well worth repeating. The Turks were on the Canadians' left. It was the first time in civilized warfare, in any kind of warfare, that an enemy had resorted to gas, and the Turks, totally unaccustomed to gas, as indeed were the Canadians, but lacking the Canadian resourcefulness, fell back. This left a gap of 7,000 or 8,000 yards in the line. The Canadians' left was standing out in the air. For five days and five nights, the Canadians, ably assisted by their British comrades later, held the front against five and ten times their numbers who had the best long range artillery in the world. Yet with all that the Germans only succeeded in retreating the Canadian line one mile and an eighth.

Sir Sam announced that whenever the call came for larger forces, steps would be taken to provide for forces up to whatever number was required. Canada, he believed, would not fall in her duty when the time came for the overruns of every man and every woman (God bless them) in Canada when I say that if it takes two, the number already at the front, four or forty divisions, Canada demands the war shall be fought to a finish and until the German ruler is humiliated and the German fleet no longer a menace to Great Britain.

On the same day that he addressed the Canadian Club, Sir Sam spoke to the convention of the Ontario W.C.T.U., when he said that "we will never allow liquor in any of our camps. I have absolutely no use for the man either in uniform or out of uniform who is a drinker. We are carrying out practical temperance ideas, and one of the reasons why I am determined to maintain the dry canteen in our military camps is because it has been demonstrated to my satisfaction that the man who does not drink is, as far as endurance is concerned, far better than the man who indulges in intoxicants."

He Banished Liquor Sir Sam, as everybody knows, is a champion of the dry canteen. He banished the wet canteen from the military camps in Canada, but he made the regulation applicable to all ranks. The highest military officer has no more license than has the private. Sir Sam is himself a water drinker. Recent restrictions on the sale of liquor, applicable to civilians as well as to soldiers, are the growth of this dry canteen regime. In other words, General Sir Sam Hughes is a practical temperance reformer, without being intemperate about it.

CHAPTER VI.
Wanted For Murder.
THE flush of hope came back to the ashen face of Blair Stanley. "I remember now," he said; "we tramped upon his guitar in the doctor's garden in our struggles. He will be accused of causing the doctor's death. And who will believe him if he in turn blames me? I will keep hidden, as you say, mother. The fact that he has the diamond and the doctor had it in his keeping up to his death will damn him. Thinking me dead, he may fly—who knows?"

His mother nodded, and then, seeing the dawn was breaking by the growing light outside, she crossed the room to the old fashioned fireplace and pressed a hidden spring. With wondering eyes Blair saw the whole fireplace from hearthstone to ceiling turn as one center pivot and swing half out into the room and half back into a great recess in the wall.

"A hiding place built by your Tory great-grandfather," said his mother. "Fairfax was all for the American arms during the revolution, all except your great-grandfather. Washington accused him of hiding and harboring spies for King George; but, though they searched here, they never found them," she added grimly.

In the niche behind the chimney Blair noted a small bench, or pallet, a reading lamp of old design, and sundry other crude comforts.

"You will find it comfortable enough," remarked his mother. "For one of the few times Blair could remember his proud, cold mother softened. She gave her attention again to the slight wound above the temple, bound it gently with her handkerchief, kissed him, and sighed.

The unhappy Blair sobbed and impulsively embraced his mother. For one brief moment he faltered, and then his mother pointed in silence to the hiding place and he stepped within, the great chimneypiece swung into place, and he was in semidarkness, hidden and secure.

The old procedures of the "crown's quest" still held strong in Fairfax county, Virginia.

At the doctor's cottage the first expression of authority by the sheriff was that nothing should be touched in the study where the doctor lay dead on the table "till the coroner came." The broken guitar had been handed the sheriff. It could not be denied that when Arthur had been with the young people on the doctor's porch earlier in the night he had not had the guitar.

It was known he and the doctor had had high words earlier in the day over the fact that Arthur, who had squandered his means, had added to his other extravagances by ordering from abroad a costly French racing automobile.

But the return of Hagar, conscience stricken also, after eighteen long years,

THE TWELVE TRIBES OF SPIRITUAL ISRAEL

As the Elect of God Will Constitute the Christ Body.

These are the Spiritual Israelites who are not of the priestly family. As in Natural Israel the Levites were far more numerous than the priests, so in Spiritual Israel the elect are far more numerous than the hypocrites.

How These Are of the Tribes of Israel. St. John the Revelator tells about this 144,000—12,000 from each tribe of Israel.

Lesson VI.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 7, 1915.

Text of the Lesson, II Kings xii, 4-15. Memory Verse, 9—Golden Text, II Cor. ix, 7—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Among the many things I do not yet know there is this—why we should know the names of some mothers and not know the name of David's mother and some others.

Joash did right in the sight of the Lord as long as he had Jehoiada for counselor, but the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in high places.
