CHAPTER X.
A PAIR OF SCOUNDRELS.

"Look here, Ashley, it stands to reason that you must be in this game, or you would have kicked hard before now. Under the circumstances, I must say that I have a sort of right to know."

"My dear Redman," replied the Honorable Arthur Ashley, "to put matters quite plainly, you have no right whatever to interfere in a purely family matter such as this is."

"Oh, haven't I?" replied Mr. Walter Redman, leaning back in his chair and looking up at the ceiling of his dining room in Russell Mansions. "Surely you haven't forgotten—"

"No, my dear chap, I've not forgotten; one doesn't forget the kind of thing that you were going to allude to; but I've learned something since I was fool enough to—well, manufacture that policy of underwriting, which, of all the idiotic contrivances, was about the most unspeakably ridiculous that a really good business man like yourself ever became mad enough to think about."

"You may be right or wrong," said Mr. Redman, bringing his teeth together with a snap, "but you mustn't forget that piece of paper, and certain others, are still in existence."

"There isn't the slightest necessity to remind me of that, my dear fellow," replied Ashley, thrusting his hands into his trousers pockets and spreading his legs wide apart. "I know that they exist, and that a fortnight or so ago they did give you a certain amount of hold over me."

"A hold that is still strong enough, metaphorically speaking, to take you by the neck, my dear Ashley, and run you into the nearest police station, on a charge, or rather two or three charges, of forgery, which would be quite enough to get you a sentence of seven of the best years which you'll ever see."

"Bosh!"

"Don't you know—you, one of the most successful private detectives in London, and, therefore, the most unscrupulous—that the offense of compounding a felony is considered by English law to be about as bad as committing the felony itself?"

"I'm afraid I don't quite take your meaning."

"Rubbish, my dear Redman. You can't bluff me like that; you ought to know me better. Let me put the thing into plain terms, and show you exactly where we stand."

"As you seem to have an idea that we don't stand exactly where we did," replied the other angrily, "perhaps it would be well if you explained matters a little more clearly. Personally, I don't like connardums in business, and for the last two or three minutes, you've practically been asking me, 'When is a forgery not a forgery?'"

"I can answer that at once," laughed Ashley. "It's when the other fellow doesn't prosecute you for it. See?"

"Not at present," said Mr. Redman, taking a fresh cigar out of his case, "and, therefore, it may be as well if you'll be good enough to shed the light of your superior intelligence upon my own mental darkness."

He spoke with a slowness and deliberation which constituted a somewhat bad mistake for such a clever man as he was, because Ashley knew at once that he was afraid of something, that he recognised him now, not as a man who was at his mercy, but as one who might possibly be an enemy, and that was the last thing that he ought to have done with such an unprincipled scoundrel as he knew that the Honorable Arthur Ashley to be.

"My dear Redman, I'm surprised that you, with all your undoubted ability and proved experience, should not have seen how completely the position has changed during the last fortnight. In the first place, this fellow Markham has bowled us clean out; and you know as well as I do that there isn't a member of the firm who dare produce that policy of underwriting in open court; if we did, he would have us by the hair in a moment."

"I must confess that I don't at all see how that affects me," said Mr. Redman, after a few moments' contemplation of the end of his cigar.

"Just you let me get the secondly, as the parsons say, before you interrupt, my dear chap," laughed Ashley, with a carelessness which was not at all pleasant to the senior partner of Redman & Co. "As I was going to say, the publication of that unsigned will has knocked the ground from under our feet. After all, there are in this country such things as justice and equity, as well as law; and what is perhaps more to the point is the fact that your respected colleagues in this business are not above taking their price."

"What the devil do you mean? And, for goodness sake, drop that nonsense, and come to the point, whatever it is."

"Just arriving at it," replied Ashley, with exasperating slowness, "only you will keep interrupting a fellow so. You see, that Kenneth Markham, with his infernal honesty, or, as I suppose you'd call it, unbusinesslike methods, has sacrificed the whole of his father's private fortune to liquidate the debts of these companies which you and others knew a good deal more about than the late lamented Markham, senior, did; whereas, the document which you, in the presence of witnesses, asked me to manufacture, is as useless to us collectively as it is to you individually—I mean as a personal menace against myself."

"We can very soon see about that," replied Redman, with a snarl.

"You shall see about it at once, my dear fellow," laughed Ashley. "You have asked me to enlighten your darkness, and I will. You know, of

Nature's Greatest Washers

The sea washes the world—Pears' Soap washes its inhabitants!

For over a century, Pears' has been making its way round the world. Ask for it in your local store; it is there! From the Cape to Cairo, in the bazaars of India, throughout Australia, Canada, the U.S., and South America Pears' has made its way with civilization,—on merits!

Pears' Soap is transparent because it is pure; it is the most economical soap because it wears but does not waste. It cleanses and purifies the skin and freshens up body and mind.

"Pears"

is not heavily scented. Its delicate perfume comes from pure natural ingredients; the difference is important,—it means again that Pears' soap is pure.

course, that my respected, if somewhat debilitated, cousin, Sir Arthur Eversley, has placed himself in the care of the fair Lillas and her aunt, and that he's going through a sort of alcoholic cure in that house up at Hampstead, which they took so suddenly under the advice of Doctor Edward Mathews; but what you don't know is that, last night, he signed a will, leaving everything that he possesses to the fair Lillas, in case he dies unmarried. If he doesn't, he will marry Lillas, which will come to about the same thing."

"Good heavens, man! You don't mean that?"

"I do; and, what is more, I want to tell you that I shall benefit to such an extent under the arrangement—you know there's forty thousand a year, and about half a million's worth of real estate, houses, furniture, pictures, family jewels, and so on—that I could buy your respected partners over your head. That's the situation. Now, perhaps you will begin to see how ridiculous you would look if you prosecuted me for forgery, and had to appear in the dock beside me, charged with compounding a felony, and convicted, as you would be, on the evidence of your own partners and managing clerk. They would have no scruples about turning king's evidence against you, for an adequate consideration, and accuse you of conspiring to defraud the shareholders in the Markham companies, by means of a forged document. How does that strike you, my dear Redman?"

"If you're telling the truth, Ashley, it strikes pretty hard," replied Mr. Redman, after a couple of turns up and down the room; "but the weak link in your chain of argument, if you'll excuse me putting it so, is the fair Lillas herself. How does she propose to render herself eligible for matrimony?"

"You may take it from me that she won't trouble to do that," replied Ashley, stretching his arms up over his head. "A judiciously arranged funeral would be very much less trouble than a wedding which might lead to awkward complications later on."

"Exactly. I quite see the situation now. But I don't quite see where its particular interest to myself lies."

"When that will is proved, and I give you a check for five thousand pounds in exchange for those slips of paper—"

"Oh, yes, of course, if you like to put it that way, my dear fellow—"

"That is the way I propose to put it. Do you agree?"

"Yes, certainly; granted always that the fair Lillas gets the will proved."

CHAPTER XI. HELD BY THE ENEMY.

The house at Hampstead, to which Sir Arthur Eversley had transferred himself, on the advice of Doctor Edward Mathews, and in which, to the utter but helpless disgust of his heirs at law, he was being nursed by Mrs. Lillas Ashley, under the supervision of her aunt, was quite an ideal sort of private sanitarium. It was a wide-fronted house, of three stories, and the whole of the first floor had been arranged for the use and comfort of the distinguished patient.

Doctor Mathews, the owner of the house, was one of those members of the medical profession who have discovered the fact that it pays a great deal better to take charge of a few special patients, who pay their fees promptly and certainly, than to engage in a general practice, in which a man working hard day and night thinks himself lucky if he gets seventy-five pounds-cash out of every hundred that he has earned.

Doctor Mathews made a speciality of diseases resulting from overindulgence in alcohol and drugs, and in Sir Arthur Eversley he had found a patient who was satisfactory from every point of view.

Some specialist might have objected to the nursing arrangements which Mrs. Ashley proposed, but he was tactful enough to find no fault with them. Her beauty, her charm of manner, and the arguments which she was able to make use of, proved entirely convincing to him, so much so, indeed, that he was quite content to accept the nominal position of medical adviser, who, in the event of anything serious happening, could sign a death certificate, and leave the management of the case to Mrs. Ashley and her aunt.

ASQUITH AND THE HOME RULE BILL.

LONDON, March 30. Herbert Asquith, in the House of Commons to-day described the Irish Home Rule Bill as "a cumbersome duplication and multiplication of institutions and offices," adding that "from the viewpoint of efficiency there is nothing to be said for it." Mr. Asquith recalled that in 1914 he gave a pledge that Ireland should have one Parliament, and declared that he adhered to that view now. He disagreed, he said, with those who believed there could be no constitutional changes until order had been restored, and asserted that the root of the trouble could not be gotten until there was a wide reform in the Government system. Lloyd George has decided not to reply until to-morrow to Mr. Asquith's attack upon the bill. Andrew Bonar Law, Government leader, followed Mr. Asquith in to-day's debate, declaring that if the Liberal leader proposed to amend the existing law, as he had indicated, his proposal would be condemned as unanimously by representatives of southern Ireland as is the present bill. The Government leader said that the new bill was not the result of a choice on the Government's part. It recognized that when the last of the peace treaties was signed, the existing law for Irish Home Rule would become effective. This would have meant that Ulster would be forced to join the Dublin Parliament against its will, something which the Government would not attempt to carry through. There were four alternatives, said Mr. Bonar Law. The first was to repeal the Home Rule Act, the second to establish Dominion home rule, the third to give self-determination to the Irish people which would mean an Irish republic;

and the fourth to give Ireland the largest measure of Home Rule compatible with national security and pledges that had been given. The last, Mr. Bonar Law said, was what it was intended to give through the present bill.

BUT AMERICA WON'T ACCEPT A MANDATE.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 30. A vigorous expression of President Wilson's opinion that the "often expressed intention of the Allies that the anomaly of the Turks in Europe should cease," should be carried out in framing the Turkish Treaty, characterized the American rejoinder to the recent Allied note transmitting information as to the status of the treaty negotiations. While the strength of the arguments for the retention of the Turks in Constantinople was recognized, the note said the American Government believes the "arguments against it are stronger and contain certain imperative elements which it would not seem possible to ignore."

THE VICIOUS CIRCLE.

NEW YORK, March 30. The action of President Wilson's coal commission in granting the bituminous mine workers a scale increase of 27 per cent, means the price of coal at the mines will advance from 65 cents to $1.25 a ton, the bituminous coal operators announced here to-day.

ALLIES ACCEPT HOLLAND'S NOTE.

LONDON, Mar. 30. The Allied Powers have accepted Holland's last note regarding the former German Emperor, according to an Amsterdam despatch to the Daily Mail.

SPANISH RAILWAY STRIKE OVER.

MADRID, Mar. 30. Telegrams received by the Government from all provinces report that every railroad man has resumed work and that the service is rapidly becoming normal.

GERMAN GOVERNMENT GETS VOTE OF CONFIDENCE.

BERLIN, Mar. 30. The National Assembly to-day rejected a vote of lack of confidence in the Government, and then adopted, over the votes of German Nationalists and Independent Socialists a motion approving the Government's statement.

THE COST OF NATIONALIZATION.

OTTAWA, Mar. 30. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways, submitted in the House this afternoon the first annual budget of the Canadian National railways. He said there was an operating loss during the year of $14,600,000. During the year operating expenses increased from $4 to practically $180 millions. These advances were largely due to increases in wages under the McAdoo award. Out of every dollar earned by the Government roads, 78 cents went in wages to employees.

RUSSIA AND POLAND.

LONDON, Mar. 30. George Tchitcherin, Russian Soviet Foreign Minister, has notified Poland of his willingness to open peace negotiations on April 10th as Poland had suggested, according to a wireless message from Moscow to-day. Tchitcherin suggests that the meeting be held somewhere in Esthonia.

SOCIALISTS ARE DISQUALIFIED.

ALBANY, Mar. 30. The charges preferred against the five Socialist members of New York State Assembly have been sustained in the opinion of a majority of the thirteen members of the Judiciary committee which investigated the qualifications of the suspended members. In a report submitted to the Assembly to-day the majority of the committee state that the Socialists are disqualified from holding their positions in the Legislature and that the seats to which they had been elected should be declared vacant.

REACTIONARIES WILL BE TRIED.

BERLIN, Mar. 30. Proceedings against the supporters of the movement led by Dr. Kapp in the reactionary revolt of March 14th have been begun by the Government.

DEATH TOLL 158.

CHICAGO, Mar. 30. The death toll of Sunday's tornado, which ripped paths of destruction throughout sections of 8 States, at noon to-day stood at 158, with fears expressed that reports from isolated regions and deaths among the injured might increase the total. The stricken communities were emerging to-day from the wreckage wrought by the storm, and relief measures for thousands of injured and homeless are well underway.

Items of Interest.

Even the war could not exhaust the capacity of the German militarists for mischief.

In the long line of income tax payers in New York were a waiter and a barber. "They certainly got me on tips," said the waiter. "I had to report $1,300 this year." "Me, too," said the barber. "I had $500 in tips to account for besides my salary."

John A. Martens is a travelling representative of a Chicago biscuit company. He took his wife on one trip. She heard the Pullman porter say to him: "You've picked a good one this time." Mrs. Martens was astonished. She began an investigation and uncovered among the "picks" a manicurist. Judge McGoorty granted her a divorce.

A tom-cat stepped on a high voltage wire at Hamilton, Ont., one night recently and caused a short-circuit which left part of the city in darkness. Later a high wind added to the trouble started by the cat, and the greater part of Hamilton was without electric light. The tom-cat in question will cause no more trouble. When he short-circuited the wire he short-circuited his life.

"Tommy" Fuller, automobile salesman in San Francisco, sick abed at the Press Club, was told by the doctor that he must eat only soft food, easily digested; according to a menu which the doctor put down thus: 1, clear soup; 2, celery root salad; 3, oyster stew; 4, green tea; 5, rice pudding. Half an hour later the Chinese boy, grinning from ear to ear, struggled up the stairs and lugged into Fuller's room five rice puddings, four pots of green tea, three oyster stews, two celery root salads and one lone cup of clear soup. The bill was something awful.

Twenty commodities manufactured from near-silk, made from the pulp of fir, spruce and hemlock are now being exhibited by the West Coast Lumbermen's Association in Portland, Ore. The exhibit was prepared in the United States Forest Products Laboratory of the University of Wisconsin, and is being sent to all parts of the country for inspection. The commodities include silk cloth, silk stockings gunpowder, paper absorbent, (a substitute for absorbent cotton), paper bagging, rope and twine, linoleum, shingles, reed fibre for furniture and matting, paper lath, rug yarn, paper webbing, and phonograph records.

After having halted at sea for an hour and a half recently to allow the performing of an operation for appendicitis one of the crew, the Stockholm, of the Swedish-American line, arrived at New York Wednesday. Gunner Anderson was the man stricken, and the ship surgeon, Nils Stenstrom, decided that an operation was necessary to save his life. So Captain A. E. Kakansson stopped the ship, and with the assistance of a steward and the hospital steward and purser, I. Englund, the operation was performed and the man is out of danger.

There can be no real social rest without feminine contentment, and in England, where women form the bulk of the population, the effect of their preponderance seems to be wholly injurious. This was the subject of a lecture before the Institute of Hygiene, London, delivered by Dr. E. Murray-Leslie. He declared the female excess was greater in Great Britain than elsewhere, and the war had aggravated this disturbing factor, because the men who had fallen all belonged to the age-group, which represented either potential or actual husbands and fathers. There is now a surplus of a million women eligible for marriage.

What Address.

Jenkins was sitting down to breakfast one morning, when he was astounded to see in the paper an announcement of his own death. He rang up friend Smith at once. "Hello, Smith!" he said. "Have you seen the announcement of my death in the paper?" "Yes," replied Smith. "Where are you speaking from?"

Was She Satisfied?

Edith Wharton, the writer, told this war story: "The American wounded were being brought in from the Marne battle," she said, "and a fussy American woman in a khaki uniform and Sam Browne belt knelt over a stretcher and said, 'Is this case an officer or only a man?' The brave corporal who stood beside the stretcher gave her a grim laugh and said: 'Well, lady, he ain't no officer, but he's been hit twice in the innards, both legs busted, he's got two bullets in both arms, and we dropped him three times without his lettin' out a squeak, so I guess ye can call him a man.'"

How to Make Hens Prolific Egg Layers.

Positive proof of prolific laying in poultry is only possible where trapping contrivances are in use (says a correspondent of the "Times.") Such appliances make demands upon time and labour that cannot be afforded by the average farmer or the ordinary poultry keeper. In buying stock dependance must therefore be placed upon the pedigree and records of performance of reliable breeders, and upon personal observation and experience in reared strain. The mere name of a breed, or its classification as a so-called "laying breed," is no proof of the capacity of the individual hen to attain to a high level of fecundity. A good annual yield, or the production of a large proportion of eggs during the winter months, is a matter of strain or family, and results from careful selection and mating for the one purpose over a period of years. It does not necessarily follow, however, that every bird with a good pedigree--sprung from a line of good layers--is capable of doing up to the traditions of its family. Poultry-keepers must know how to choose the one that possesses most of the points that experience has taught us are generally suggestive of the power to lay well. Its size relative to the standard of its breed, is a matter of some importance, as also is the behaviour of the bird. Unduly large birds tend to be too lethargic to put up a good laying record, whilst those that are small for their kind may prove to be highly productive, but will probably lay rather smaller eggs than are desirable. The size of the egg must always be taken into account, and an approximation to an average of two ox. should be the aim.

A. F. Goodridge died at St. John's, Newfoundland, recently at the age of eighty-one years. The remains were laid to rest in the cemetery by the placid waters of the Quidi Vidi Lake. For over half a century the late Mr. Goodridge was prominent in the commercial and political life of Newfoundland. A little over a quarter of a century ago he was premier of the island, and in 1913 he was appointed to the Legislative Council, holding his seat until his death.

example they are leaving to the future members of the Sodality, is an evidence of the fruit that will be gathered by and from the seeds that are now sown by this first and faithful little band.

Finally, and what you appreciate most, is the abiding presence of Our Lord in the most Holy Sacrament of the altar, which privilege is yours to enjoy, now, in your own little Church, and which blessing I hope you will never lose. This favour, my dear people, was the right of your good Archbishops to grant, and this he readily did on my representation. Pray then that he may be spared to rule long over this diocese.

I must only conclude by asking this same God within the Tabernacle to bless you and give you happiness and prosperity, and in your visits there, it will comfort me to know that there are fervent souls in the parish I am leaving, who will remember me in their prayers before that same altar, and who will beg for me the necessary strength to do my duty in my new parish.

Your generous gift I shall remember with gratitude, and whatever the future has in store for me, the people of this parish shall always hold a first place in my estimation and affection. May God bless you all!

Mainly About People.

It was nearly 39 years ago that General A. W. Greely conducted a polar expedition and for three years battled with the terrible hardships of the North. He now resides in Cambridge, Mass., and his interest in the far North is as keen as ever. No one knows, to course, what will result from all this costly exploring and yet 60 years ago Alaska was a joke that has since netted Uncle Sam $800,000,000 of wealth, and the country is merely scratched. Canada has a far greater acreage of good land in the north.

Financiers have a canny way of reaching conclusions that very often end as facts. They know the peace treaty will soon be adopted. Why? Because Henry P. Davison, the most active member of the Morgan banking house, has sailed for the other side. On Wall street that means more international financing, and that would be poor business unless war was officially declared over.

Gabriele d'Annunzio, whose activities at Fiume have brought him forward so prominently, is the opposite of the old-fashioned conception of a poet. He does not withdraw himself from the world, dream, and grow long locks—he is as a matter of fact, nearly bald, but is full of energy, and throws himself heartily into the world's activities. He was the first poet to ascend in an aeroplane, and the occasion produced a trite comment from one of our foremost playwrights. "Poets are known for their flights of fancy," he said, "but d'Annunzio is the first to win fame through a flight of reality."

Two men whose names the history of the war will ever preserve dined together the other day far from home in the upper Valley of the Nile. One was Georges Clemenceau, until recently Prime Minister of France, who was visiting Egypt, and the other was Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, the defender of Egypt and the smasher of the Turks. Towards the winning of the war each man in his own way made contributions. With his hand on the helm of state Clemenceau guided France through the darkest days of the war and brought her into the haven of victory. He defeated the defeatists who would have surrendered to the Germans, and he "carried out" until the Germans were defeated. Viscount Allenby changed the whole war in the East, and his campaign that in the end brought decisive victory in Palestine, will ever stand out as one of the most daringly conceived and most brilliantly executed military exploits of the whole war. He is now High Commissioner in Egypt and Soudan, and it was while returning north from Soudan that, there in the private car of the High Commissioner, the two war-leaders dined together.

Hot Blast of Volcanoes.

Writing in the Monthly Weather Review, George N. Cole sets forth detailed arguments to prove that the hot blast which swept over the city of St. Pierre during the eruption of Mont Pelee, as well as similar blasts in connection with the eruption of Vesuvius that destroyed Pompeii and Herculaneum, the eruption of Taal, Sakurajima, etc., derived its heat from the sudden compression of the air surrounding the volcano, and not from conditions in the volcano itself. In other words, it was not, according to this hypothesis, an outpouring of hot crater gases that caused the destruction, but the dynamic heating of the air attending the propagation of the explosion wave. Mr. Cole cites a number of interesting observations at St. Pierre after the Martinique disaster that seem to support this idea.—Scientific American.

A FORM OF INJUSTICE.

RUTH CAMERON

An acquaintance of mine appeared one day recently with a new silver watch on her wrist. It was a birthday gift from her brother, she explained with evident pride and pleasure. When she passed out of hearing the woman who knows everything broke into speech. "I should think that with all his money he could give his only sister a gold wrist watch at least." "Is he so well off?"

"Why, he must be. He has been living on his investments for years and he lives in that big house and he sent all his sons and daughters to college and gave that land for a park to the city."

"Oh," said the other woman, apparently quite convinced. I wondered if she really were.

Incidentally She May Have Preferred Silver.

Or, whether like me, she wondered if all these facts did necessarily prove that a man had money enough to give his only sister a gold watch instead of a silver one (incidentally, strange as it seems, there are people who do actually prefer silver).

Might these facts not be reasons for his not being well off instead of the opposite.

It costs money to send sons and daughters to college. And when one spends money, one does not have it. And as for living on investments in these days when the dollars buy about half what they did—when one saved and invested them—well, I suppose I don't need to say that such a feat is a form of financial tightrope walking that takes real skill to accomplish.

Funny How Much They Know. Funny, isn't it, how some people are always so sure that they know their neighbor's exact financial condition.

"Of course he could afford it if he wanted to." "I don't see what makes her so mean about some things." "It's all nonsense for them to talk poverty when everyone knows his business has been booming this last year."—How often one hears such expressions as these used about people's financial condition by those who claim to know more about it than the people themselves. And how absurd it is!

Some Things to Remember. Even if one knew a person's income. (Instead of guessing at it) one would not know the demands upon it. Some people have family obligations which they do not see fit to publish. I know of a certain couple who were considered ultra-thrifty by the crowd they travelled with because they did not spend as freely as others who had (presumably about the same income.) The truth of the matter was that his family were almost entirely dependent upon him. Again, in a similar case, the man knew that a serious eye trouble threatened him and felt obliged to save much more than the average person on that account.

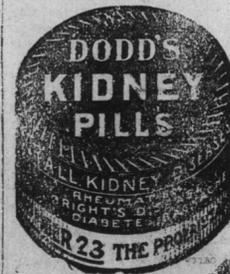

I think a great deal of mental energy is wasted in this sort of criticism and a great deal of injustice done.

Pulling an Elephant's Tooth.

It does not require much imagination to realize that pulling an elephant's tooth is something of an engineering as well as a dental job.

An example of this was when Albert, one of the biggest elephants in the Ringling herd at Madison Square Gardens, New York, had refused to eat, and the circus veterinary found a great tooth cavity which was beyond remedy by filling.

The tooth that was giving Albert so much discomfort was a large as a man's fist. After a liberal dose of cocaine had been injected, forceps as big as ice tongs were clamped to the tooth, a rope attached to the forceps, and a squad of trainers made ready to supply the pulling power.

AUTHORS' ART.

A lot of authors kill our laughs, and bore all gentle readers, by finishing their paragraphs with foolish strings of leaders small. It's spotted a lot of books for me, this silly affectation, and when a "leadered" page I see I'm filled with indignation. They say the Walpole books are great, they boost his "Secret City," but me they chafe and irritate, inspiring this punk ditty:—

His sentences all disappear in leaders running tandem; and if I had some stale eggs near, to Walpole I would hand em. O'er books I never am enthused, however apt their phrases, if in them fly-speck lines are used, when words are cheap as blazes. I do not think the writer fine (I grieve to make confession) who has to use a dotted line to help out an impression. The stratagems of writing hicks off make me shrink and shiver; no author need resort to tricks, who can the goods deliver.

Blouses are elaborate with lace, especially with filet lace. Many belts end in smart little pump-bows at the back. Little neckpieces of swan's-down are worn in the evening.

Just Folks

THE CALL OF THE FLAG.

When the war broke out, the Old Flag said, "Come along with me where the fields are red." And the young men turned at the first alarm. From the city desk and the rural farm, And offered their lives at the battle call, For they held their country first of all.

It was war back then, it was cannon fire, And the rattle of guns and the tangled wire, And the new-made graves. But the young hearts knew That the Flag would live if they were true, And they pledged their lives that it should not fall, For they held their country first of all.

Now the world's at peace, and the Old Flag flies To the breeze once more under happy skies, And it calls to us all: "There is work to do, I need you now to be strong and true, In the tasks ahead there's no battle thrill, But I need the strength of my people still."

"You need not suffer nor bleed nor die, In the days of peace, to hold me high; Just keep the faith, though on land or sea, And heed no voice that would slander me; And teach this thing to your children small. They must love their country first of all."

What the Bride Got.

An M.P., while visiting in a rural district, dropped in on a boyhood friend, now a justice of the peace. While chatting over old times a couple came in to get married. The justice married the pair, and, after accepting a moderate fee, handed the bride an umbrella. The M.P. observed the proceedings in solemn silence, but after the couple had gone he asked:—

"Do you always do that, Arthur?"

"Marry them? Oh, yes, if they have the license."

"No; I mean give the bride a present?"

"A present? Why, wasn't that her umbrella?"

"No," said the M.P., peevishly, "it was mine."

Not a Present.

In the House of Commons, Westminster, recently, the Premier, Mr. Lloyd George, was asked whether, in drafting the final peace terms, the Supreme Council would take steps to prevent "the further misuse" as a mosque of the Church of St. Sophia at Constantinople and restore it to the use for which it was built as one of the great shrines of Christendom. Mr. Lloyd George replied that the Allies, as at present advised, do not contemplate any change in this matter.

NEW HOME RULE BILL.

At the present moment universal interest is centred in the debate on the Fourth Irish Home Rule Bill, now the topic of discussion in the Imperial House of Commons, and despatches from all the London press associations make this almost the principal subject of their contents, so much so that it is almost impossible for the average reader to arrive at any comprehensive ideas of the issues involved, and the various matters to be adjusted in order that the Irish people may have an autonomous form of Government agreeable to themselves and satisfactory to their position within the Empire. Much criticism has been directed at the new bill, which has been assailed without fear, favor or affection by the Irish parliamentary party, the Labor Party and members of the Unionist wing of the Lloyd George administration. Much bitter invective has been hurled at the measure, which is said to satisfy neither of the Irish political sections, but a late message from London received and dated yesterday, shows that there is a possibility—with considerable modifications being made—of its adoption being assured.

Without following the devils courses of the daily messages, or wading through the mass of detail which so often obscures the main issues of any question, be it of national, political or commercial importance, we here endeavour to present to our readers, as succinctly and concisely as possible under the circumstances, a resume of the Bill providing a new constitution for Ireland. In brief the Act now being debated in the Imperial Parliament, provides for two Houses of Parliament for Ireland, the one to be called the Parliament of the North, the other that of the South. The Northern Parliament is to include within its representation the counties of Antrim, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry and Tyrone, and the boroughs of Londonderry and Belfast cities. All these are included in the Province of Ulster. The Southern Parliament, will be composed of all the rest of Ireland, the provinces of Munster, Connaught and Leinster. Between these two Parliaments, as a link of connection there will be a Common Council, with a President appointed by the Crown and forty members, twenty of which are to be appointed by each of the two divisional parliaments, of which the appointees must be members. Such appointments shall be the very first duty of the two Parliaments on their meeting. Both Parliaments may however, when they deem it expedient for the better government of the country, pass concurrent legislation by which the Common Council may become a complete Parliament for all Ireland, taking over the duties of the two divisional parliaments. Whenever the single Parliament is established both the Northern and Southern Parliaments shall, ipso facto cease to exist.

"The two Parliaments, established," says a well informed contemporary on the Irish situation, "shall not be able to make laws touching the Crown, the Succession or the properties of the Crown, peace or war, the army, the navy and other matters, trade, foreign or domestic; foreign treaties, dignities or titles, submarine cables or wireless telegraphy. Religious equality is absolute. The Imperial Parliament will hold the sovereignty. The Executive shall still be in the hands of the Viceroy. Other things held from the jurisdiction of the Irish Parliaments are the Royal Irish Constabulary and the minting of coins, the postal service, the Post Office Savings' Banks, stamps and the Record Office. The handling of the Land Purchase Fund shall remain with the Imperial Government for the present at any rate. The Parliaments shall meet at least once a year and may be summoned, prorogued and dissolved by the Lord-Lieutenant. The nation shall contribute $90,000,000 for the upkeep of the Empire. The Bill is really quite comprehensive in its scope, and still more so in its hoped for outlook of a United Ireland."

The Dog That Saved the Passengers.

Mrs. Gosling, writing in this morning's News, as one seeking information, states that she has so far not seen anything in the Newfoundland papers having reference to the saving of the passengers and crew of the ill-fated Ethie, when that ship was lost at Martin's Point, St. Barbe district last December, by the action of a Newfoundland dog which animal brought a line to the shore, thereby enabling the rigging of a breeches buoy, by which means all the ship's company were transferred from the wreck to the shore.

In the Western Star's descriptive article of the loss of the Ethie, published in the Evening Telegram of January 8th, a tribute is paid to this noble and sagacious animal:

"A rope was fastened to a life buoy and put overboard. The sea was so rough, however, that those on the beach could not reach it. Time and again they tried but failed. Presently, however, a well-trained water-dog dashed out into the boiling waves, seized the buoy in its teeth and after many struggles eventually succeeded in bringing it to shore. This wonderfully sagacious animal is owned by Reuben Decker, of Martin's Point, near which the Ethie now lies."

The Telegram of March 12 further contains an article under the caption: "Canine Hero of Ethie Disaster" and is decorated. Citizens of Philadelphia will send valuable collar to Newfoundland Dog at Martin's Point, West Coast. Reuben Decker's Big Newfoundland saved lives of ship's company."

We have taken the trouble to hunt through back files for this information to enable us to show that "such an instance of courage and sagacity" did not go unrecorded, nor yet unwarded.

Many Bequests Made.

Under the Will of the Late Hon. John Harvey.

The Will of the late Hon. John Harvey, recently probated in the Supreme Court, shows the estate of the deceased to be valued at $505,826, made up as follows: Lands, $12,520; house and furniture, $6,826; book debts and promissory notes, $250,470.95; bank and other stock shares in Company, etc., $128,863. The Will is in the handwriting of deceased and dated December 20th, 1918. Among the many bequests are $15,000 for practical education, the legacy to be given to the three denominations if there is an inter-denominational system, but power is given the executors to alter the terms laid down if they deem fit. Other bequests are $2,500 to the Clergy Sustentation Fund, $500 to the C. of E. Orphanage, $250 each to the Methodist Orphanage and Mount Cashel, $200 to the Church Lads' Brigade, $250 to the G.W.V.A., $300 to the Headmaster of Bishop Field College to be spent on the institution as he thinks fit, and sums ranging from $500 downwards to all the old employees of Harvey & Co.

NEW BANNER BLESSED.—At Sunday's meeting of the Holy Name Society, the Rev. Dr. Greene blessed the new banner which was presented to the Society by Hon. D. A. Ryan, not Hon. J. D. Ryan, as stated in Monday's issue of the Daily Star.

President Reid Interviewed.

Gives Particulars of Planned Developments.

Telegram patrons will remember reading in yesterday's issue about the projected hotel which is proposed for the city of St. John's. President H. D. Reid, of the Reid Newfoundland Co., last evening at his home told a Telegram reporter of the idea, showing the plans and specifications which he had had prepared while in Montreal at a personal cost of $500.

"If there is one thing needed by St. John's—in fact, all Newfoundland," he said, "it is a good hotel. The first question asked by a foreigner who contemplates coming here is 'What kind of hotel accommodation have you got?' All other attractions fall to be attractions if that is not satisfactory. For that reason, therefore, Newfoundland has lost a big stream of tourist traffic which should have come here."

Like others, Mr. Reid often thought of this, and waited to see what was going to be done. "As no one made a move," he explained, "I suppose it was up to me. Therefore while I was in Montreal I had a well-known architect there draw up plans of a good hotel. In conversation with Sir Vincent Meredith, Manager of the Bank of Montreal, he said 'what St. John's needs is a good, up-to-date hotel.'"

The cost of the projected hotel, at Halifax prices, would be $550,000. "However," said President Reid, "I have the engineering staff now engaged at estimating the cost, to see if that price cannot be reduced some. The Reid Newfoundland Co. does not wish to make money out of the hotel. It is, on the other hand, prepared to do everything it can to help on the scheme. If it should be desired, the company would even construct the hotel at cost."

The land on which it is suggested to build the hotel (i.e. Fort William, near the Prince's Rink) is at present leased from the Imperial Government by the Reid Newfoundland Co. The company, said Mr. Reid, was prepared to sub-lease it at a reasonable figure. The debris of the hotel which was once begun there will be removed and the new one built directly on the site.

"The idea," went on the President of the Railway Company, "is to host a company here, and in a short while a meeting of men interested will be called. If the idea takes—and I think it will—a Secretary and Treasurer will be appointed, and bonds will be at once floated and construction begun. All the city banks think well of the scheme and are prepared to go into it."

An architect from Montreal is coming here shortly and the hotel will be built under his direction. Construction will likely begin this summer, and the hotel should be open by next spring.

The hotel itself will be a thoroughly up-to-date one. Built of concrete, ornamented, it will consist of four stories, and will contain 100 rooms, 75 of which will each have its own bath-room. Everything in it will be comfortable and serviceable. The ground-floor will consist of a lobby, registration office, manager's office, ladies' and gentlemen's reception room, smoking rooms, etc., and a dining room which will comfortably seat 200. This big dining room, which will have a hard-wood floor, may be speedily converted into a ball-room by dropping the tables and chairs downstairs by means of a lift in one corner.

An enclosed verandah will run the full length. The building will be oblong, with a wing at either end, projecting both front and back, making it form the letter "H".

Without doubt, the erection of such a hotel will be the means of giving St. John's and Newfoundland such a boost as it has not received since the inception of the railway. Everybody will profit by it—cabmen, shop-keepers, steamship owners, and all. President H. D. Reid is to be congratulated upon the interest he shows himself to have in Newfoundland and his progress.

THE COLD STORAGE PLANT.

Mr. Reid also told that the cold storage plant had been reorganized with some English interests taken in. An expert from England is coming here and should arrive very shortly. Under his direction houses will be built in different parts of the town for smoking fish, flnan-haddie, kip-pers, etc. Boxes will be made and assembled here and the fish shipped in them. On the South Side a factory will be built. In it will be manufactured fish meal.

MINERAL AND TIMBER EXPERT COMING.

By the next Kyle Mr. H. B. Thompson, lately become associated with the Reid Newfoundland Co., is coming to begin work here. His duties will be to ascertain the presence, extent and value of Newfoundland's resources, whether owned by the Company or not, and to get in touch with monied interests abroad with a view to interesting them to take hold of our resources for their development.

"Mr. Thompson is a very valuable man for this kind of work," explained Mr. Reid. "He worked at mining, water powers, timber, etc., in British Columbia for 25 years, prior to becoming Chairman of the Canadian Food Control Board. He is an Irishman." It was when Mr. Thompson was here in 1918 in connection with food matters, that Mr. Reid became acquainted with him.

Promise of Fair Sealing Voyage.

Yesterday's Late Reports Encouraging --- Seal Obligated to Abandon Trip.

The sealing messages received last night are such as justify optimism. That the ships have at last struck the main patch is almost certain, as the Terra Nova and Eagle are about 30 miles apart and both are in the seals.

It is regrettable that the Seal, just at the moment when otherwise she might kill a load, should have to return on account of breaking three blades of her propeller.

Capt. A. Kean's action in wireless-ing all ships that he had struck the whitecoats is unique and will be read with great interest. All messages follow:

BOWRING BROS.

S. S. Eagle—Took 5,000 whitecoats to-day; medium size; three ships in sight: Terra Nova, Diana and Neptune. Prospects fair; all well. Position 70 to 80 miles N. E. of Funks.

S. S. Terra Nova—Passed through 100,000 breeding seals to-day. Struck whitecoats at 5 o'clock; took 1200; have advised all other steamers. If this is the main patch, all the ships will load; weather very thick; good news to-morrow.

S. S. Viking—Steaming for patch. S. S. Ranger—(At 4 p.m.)—Forty miles E. by N. of Funks, in company with Sable I. and Seal.

JOB BROS.

S. S. Theta—Took 1,000 whitecoats to-day; ice conditions very bad; hard to work seals.

S. S. Neptune—Took 2,500 whitecoats to-day; Eagle, Terra Nova and Diana alongside. If ice only moves together, will probably get a fair trip.

BAINES, JOHNSTON & CO.

S. S. Seal—Three blades of propeller gone; unable to make headway.

THE CATCH REPORTED.

Tewkesbury's Crew Leaves.

CAPTAIN GRATEFUL FOR HOSPITALITY.

Captain Pridoux and crew of the ill-fated Tewkesbury, which was lost on the morning of March 16th, near Peter's River, left for New York by the Rosalind, last evening. Captain Pridoux, before leaving, asked the newspapers to thank on his behalf the people of St. Vincent's, Middle Gut and Peter's River for their hospitality and kindness shown himself and crew and two lady passengers after their landing at these places. Captain Pridoux would have liked to thank the people individually, but owing to the demands on his time was unable to do so.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir,—As a soldier and one interested, I have been watching for a reply to Mrs. Brownings letter in connection with the actual number of tubercular patients in hospital. The medical Officer states that there are a large number of men with T. B. while according to Mrs. Brownings records there are only a small number in hospital. Someone must be wrong, and judging by the silence of the Medical Officer, I take it—Mrs. Brownings' statement of correct.

Yours truly,
SOLDIER.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wakeham wish to thank Major J. J. O'Grady and Capt. Clare for the guard of honor from the C.C.C. which attended the funeral of their dear son Patrick; also Mr. Robert Grouchy for letter of sympathy; the T. A. Band, Mrs. Rellis and family, Mrs. Bella Rellis for wreaths, and all who came and offered their sympathy in their hour of sorrow.—adv.

Quite a goodly gathering was present at the service last evening. Rev. Gordon Dickie of the Presbyterian Church gave the address, and dealt with the sympathy of Jesus with all classes. He showed that our Lord exhibited strong social tendencies and drew the lesson that Christians today should give sympathy and assistance, and show a fellow feeling with all their brothers irrespective of class or other distinctions. The Speaker tonight will be Rev. T. B. Darby, M.A. The Services are held in the Church commencing sharp at a quarter to 8, and lasting for one hour only. The Choir are requested to be again present at this evening's Service.

West Coast Bank Fishery.

To date the banking voyage with the South West Coast fleet is a failure. Owing to ice conditions operations could not be carried on as usual, and to date only 1,000 qtls. of fish have been taken by the whole fleet. At this date last year the vessels averaged from 700 to 1,100 qtls. each, and most of them had returned home with their fares. The number of bankers engaged this season is not as great as last year. When the ice moves off all the vessels will sail for the grounds.

To-day's Messages.

SEATTLE TRIMMED OTTAWA.

TORONTO, March 30.

Seattle defeated Ottawa here tonight by 5 to 2, and are now tied with the Senators in the Stanley cup series. The deciding game under N. H.
L. rules will be played here on Thursday night, and judging by to-night's exhibition the result is a toss-up.

HOOVER ACCEPTS.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.

Herbert H. Hoover to-day telegraphed the Hoover Republican Club
of California that he would accept the Republican nomination for President.

NEW LORD MAYOR OF CORK.

CORK, March 30.

At a special meeting of the Cork
corporation to-night, Alderman Torrence MacSwaney was elected Lord Mayor. He is a Sinn Féin leader and several times has been deported
or imprisoned.

FOUND MURDERED.

LONDON, March 30.

Gen. Sir Neville MacReady, the new Military Commander in Ireland, had a long conference with Premier Lloyd George to-day, preparatory to going to Ireland for his new duties. Another murder is recorded in Ireland, a young farmer having been found dead
on the roadside, near New Blisse, County of Monaghan, with his head
battered in.

ANGRY DANES.

COPENHAGEN, Mar. 30.

There were lively scenes in the streets last night when cries were raised of "Revolution." "Down with the King" and "Long live the Danish Republic." These were intermingled with counter cries for the King. The late appearance of two squadrons of Hussars had a calming effect and strong guards were posted outside the Palace. The King took his customary ride, unattended, this morning. A crowd estimated to number 200,000,
attended a meeting to-night, organized by the Socialists in a protest against the action of King Christian in dissolving Zahi's Cabinet.

STRIKE IN GERMANY.

ESSEN, Mar. 30.

The general strike called at midnight, Monday, in the Ruhr district was virtually complete in Essen today. It is not known how far outside this city it extends. However, Disseldorf accepted the terms of the Government's ultimatum. Essen is quiet and orderly, but the situation is tense.
The streets are being strictly patrolled and persons and houses are being searched for arms. All business places are closed.

THE HOME RULE BILL.

LONDON, Mar. 30.

The Government spokesman, Hon. A.
Bonar Law, challenged the Labor Party to say whether it was ready to grant an Irish Republic. "It was a childish mistake," he said, to assume that because Ireland is separated by a sheet of water, she is any degree less essential than if she were part of the British Isles. Those advocating self-determination ought clearly to see where they were going. If Southern Ireland were composed of people
satisfied with nothing but a Republic,
"no settlement was possible." The debate was continued by less prominent members. Joseph Devlin, Belfast, provoked laughter by expressing an opinion that the Bill was conceived in bedlam and drafted by Baron Berkenhead. He declared that the Nationalists had been willing to sacrifice almost everything to get Ulster into an Irish Parliament, but that they were victims of their own magnanimity. Joseph Chamberlain would have given them a far better Bill thirty years ago. Major General J. B. Sealey, former War Secretary, said that if the Govt. could consent to such amendment of clause three, as would endow

a united Parliament with far wider powers in the event of the North and South joining, not only would many Liberals support the Bill, but it would go far to reconcile opinion in the Dominions and the United States, and he hoped, in Ireland itself. The hope that Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader would speak was not fulfilled. The holiday spirit seemed to prevail in the House, which gradually emptied and the debate was adjourned at 11 o'clock to-night. Sir Donald McLean will resume the debate tomorrow, with Premier Lloyd George
and William Adamson, Labor leader, as chief speakers. There may be a division to enable adjournment for Easter.

BOOT AND CLOTHING INVESTIGATION.

BOSTON, Mar. 31.

Agents of the Department of Justice,
in the city, have begun an investigation into the production, distribution and costs in shoes and clothing, in an effort to determine whether present retail prices are justified. Books of manufacturers and retailers will be examined.

THE FRENCH AND TURKS.

LONDON, Mar. 31.

The French Government which was unable to get troops to Hadjin in Asia Minor in time to forestall the threatened attack on that city by the Turks,
has informed the Turkish Government that it will be held responsible for any untoward incidents, according to information received by the British Government. Cecil Harmsworth,
Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs,
said in the House of Commons yesterday, that the Government was unable to confirm the report that the French had advised the women and children to evacuate the town of Hadjin, or that fresh massacres were occurring nearby.

PLEASANT PROSPECT.

ESSEN, Mar. 31.

The Red leaders are grimly facing the task before them, and assert that they are prepared to stake their lives
for the success of the social revolution. Some of them, especially members of the committee of action, expect to be shot if the Government gets hold of them.

B. C. WANTS IT.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Mar. 31.

The British Columbia Prohibition Party Executive has decided to ask the Provincial Government for a "bone
dry" referendum.

WELCOMES PRINCE.

PANAMA, March 31.

Princely members of the British colony here, presented an address to the Prince of Wales aboard H.M.S.
Bonowah, and the rest of the day was spent in sightseeing. This evening the Panama Government will give a State Banquet in honor of the royal visitor, which will be followed by a reception and formal ball. The Renown will sail Thursday for San Diego, after taking aboard three thousand barrels of oil at Balboa. From San Diego, where the United States
State Department will send a representative to again welcome the Prince of Wales to the country, the Renown
will proceed to Honolulu, where she will arrive April 16, and thence to the Fiji Islands, New Zealand and Australia.

HELPING THE PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.

Print paper, costing not more than eight cents per pound, would be admitted tax free, under a Bill amending the Revenue Act, passed unanimously by the House yesterday, and sent to the Senate. The present law fixed five cents as the limit, but members said none at that price was obtainable for import. Representative Kitch said the Bill was an emergency measure, needed to save hundreds of small papers from ruin.

REALIZING THE SITUATION.

PARIS, Mar. 31.

The second day's meeting of the General Federation of Labor, yesterday, was free from revolutionary talk.
Leon Jouhaux, Vice-President of the International Trades Union Federation, delivered a long address, dwelling on the critical economic situation of Europe, which, he said, was manifested
with starvation, if a total reorganization of production was not brought about.

SOLICITUDE FOR HUNGARY.

LONDON, Mar. 31.

The treaty with Hungary was severely criticized in the House of Lords
yesterday by Baron Newton and Viscount Bryce. The former asked whether Hungary's request for a revision of the harsh provision had been definitely refused, and why millions of populations, severed from Hungary,
were not allowed to decide their fate
by a plebiscite. Lord Bryce said, "We have already had a solemn warning of the effect of peace received in a spirit of revenge." The Earl of Crawford, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster,
replied for the Govt. that it was impossible to make any statement apart from the Allies, but he denied that the Peace Conference had refused to hear the Hungarian case.

MINISTRY STUBBORN.

COPENHAGEN, Mar. 31.

Offers by responsible Trade Unionists of a compromise by which a general strike might be averted if Rigsgad is called together immediately, have not been accepted by King Christian and the new Danish Ministry, and thus a general strike throughout Denmark seems inevitable this morning. All classes of the population are hoarding
food, petroleum, candles and water.
No serious trouble has developed as yet, as the police have been able to disperse hostile street crowds.

TROOPS IN READINESS.

BERLIN, Mar. 31.

Govt. troops in Ruhr region have been pushed forward, the time limit,
in the ultimatum to the workers there,
having been reached, says the despatch
to the Abendblatt.

BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.

A Review of Home and European Affairs.

HORSEA, March 31.

The debate on the second reading of the Irish Home Rule Bill began in the House of Commons last night. The chief points in the bill are the establishment of two parliaments, one in the South of twenty-eight members, and the other in the North of six counties and fifty-two members. The establishment of a council of forty members
for all Ireland to link the two Parliaments. Proportional representation in election of both parliaments. British Imperial Parliament to reserve administration of Postal and Police Services, Health, Insurance, and Savings Banks not reserved. Ireland's imperial contribution for the first two years is fixed at 18,000,000 pounds, the last to be fixed on the basis of her relative taxable capacity. Complete autonomy of Irish Parliaments. Separate judiciary for North and South, each with its own Lord Chief Justice. No religious disability for appointment to office of Lord Lieutenant. Chief Secretary's Office to be discontinued—Irish representation in Imperial Parliament to number forty-four members. Both Macpherson, Chief Secretary for Ireland, and Austin Chamberlain, whose father was a great opponent of Home Rule thirty years ago, supported the measures on behalf of the Government. They strongly supported the principal of Irish Self Government, and appealed that all party rancour
should be treated on its merits and subjected only to constructive criticism. Much opposition had been expressed to what was called the division of Ireland by the creation of two parliaments. Macpherson desired this as an absolute necessity under present circumstances, which was as distasteful to the Government as it was to the people of Ireland, but the Government was convinced that an undivided Ireland for legislation of this kind was impossible. It all hoped that the division would be but temporary only, and the provisos had framed the bill so that it might lead to union between the two parties in Ireland. Council would generally be an advisory body, except that it would have departmental powers to deal with transport and consideration of private bills. With these powers in their possession the Council might by stages become the eventual parliament for all Ireland. They would be automatically enlarged if Ireland only united, and showed herself fit for further extension of these powers, and showed that such powers could be enjoyed by her, not detrimental to the empire, but to its strength. Chamber-

Edmund Donaldson Arrives.

PROVED SPLENDID SEA BOAT.

S. S. Edmund Donaldson arrived in port at 6 o'clock this morning after a good run from Halifax. The steamer left the latter port on Saturday, meeting fine weather until Sunday night,
when a succession of gales, lasting until Monday, were met. Although the ship was awash from stem to stern,
she proved a splendid sea boat. The average speed made on the passage was 7 knots. The ship is brand new, being built at Stag Bay, Halifax County,
Nova Scotia, by Burgess and Kelleher.
She is 531 tons net and 847 gross and carries 10,000 barrels of cargo below and 200 on deck. She is commanded by Capt. Ernest Wells, a native of Hr. Grace, who has had 17 years' experience as a master. He was last in command of the S. S. Stella Maris.
Mr. Jas. P. Cook, son of Hon. Tasker
Cook, is chief engineer. Matthew Ivany, a native of Trinity, is chief mate. The ship will ply between here and Nova Scotia and probably will make calls at United States ports.

The principals in the purchase of the ship, Mr. Geo. Marshall and Mr.
John Guy Stone, are expected by the Kyle.

Current Events Club.

After a most successful season the programme at the Ladies' Reading Room has almost drawn to a close,
having only two more Saturdays to run.

Besides the very attractive papers
given by new members, there were most interesting addresses by friends
outside the Club.

Of these the last was of special note, having been written by one of the finest classical scholars of Newfoundland, J. C. Cousens, graduate of Columbia University, New York, and later Professor of Languages at Harvard, Boston, now retired and living in New York.

Mr. Cousens occasionally visits his old home in Brigus, and at Mrs. David Baird's request, wrote a paper entitled "Women and the Reconstruction of the World," to be read at the Ladies' Reading Room.

The address contained delightful
reminiscences and excellent suggestions, worthy of a wider hearing, and the members of the Club showed their sincere appreciation by responding heartily to the vote of thanks which was proposed and seconded.

As usual, afternoon tea brought the meeting to a close.

C. C. C. Notes.

This being Holy Week, the parades of the Battalion are suspended until further notice. The Corps regrets to announce the death of Bugler F.
Wakeham, a most attentive and interested Cadet. His funeral took place on the 28th inst., and was largely attended. The "Last Post" was feelingly rendered at the graveside by Bugler
G. Squires.

The Officers' Mess met on Sunday morning, the 6th inst., and questions
of finance were discussed, and arrangements made for the coming season.

The senior privates entertained at tea on the afternoon of the 6th inst.,
in the gymnasium; quite a pleasant time was spent. Privates Johnson, Furn and Russell looked after the arrangements which were successfully carried out. Major L. Murphy, Capt.
C. McGrath, and Lieut. T. Christopher were present as guests of the organizers.

Good news comes from "C" (Waba-
na) Co., which has held several parades lately, and on St. Patrick's Day
the drum and bugle band took a conspicuous part in the Parade of the St.
Joseph's and Star of the Sea Associations. Capt. J. M. Greene has already commenced his programme for this year's amusements, and has the support of an energetic N.C.O.'s committee.

The Sinking of the Steam Tug Dauntless.

To-morrow, April 1st, the sixty-second anniversary of the event, an article on the sinking of the steam tug, Dauntless in the Narrows, with the story of the subsequent raising of the vessel, contributed by Mr. H. F.
Shortis, will be given readers of the Telegram. Mr. Shortis vividly describes the accident and the plans adopted by Mr. Michael Kenney, the well known shipbuilder, successfully carried out, to refloat the sunken tug is a bit of local history of most entertaining quality not generally known by the present generation.

How the North Sees It.

(From the Twillingate Sun.)

That seal fat will only fetch between seven and nine dollars this spring seems most inexplicable to us. Surely there must be something wrong somewhere. One would think that the skins alone, based on present prices of leather-wear, would be worth that alone; and there is still a shortage in the world supply of fats and oils.

What is our seal oil used for? Various theories have been advanced,
ranging from soap to margarine, and some of the soaps we get certainly have a smell that is particularly reminiscent of blubber.

If seal oil is used for soap—well the price of soap is high enough in all conscience; and if for margarine—we are all aware of the wings that has taken to itself.

Why does the price of our produce go down, while the price of all we buy continues to go up?

The people of this country are frankly puzzled. They believe some one is "doing" them. They expected a change of government would improve matters, but have so far found little change.

Everyone asks why, why, and no
one returns a satisfactory answer.

Gower Street A. B. C. Annual Meeting.

The Annual Meeting of Gower Street
Adult Bible Class was held at 630
last evening at Gower St. Methodist Church, tea being served, after which business was proceeded with.

Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President—O. Sellars.

Vice-Pres.—W. S. Moore.

Teacher—Rev. E. W. Forbes.

Assoc. Teacher—Dr. Duncan (re-elected.)

Secretary—A. K. Snelgrove (re-elected.)

Treas.—H. Joyce.

Chairman Outlook Committee—H.
Moore.

Chairman Programme Committee—
W. J. Grouchy.

Chairman Social Committee—C.
Bowden.

The report of the treasurer
showed the Class to be in a splendid financial condition.
Divisional scheme will be continued
for a while, it having been the means of securing a goodly number of new members to the class. The meeting throughout was an enthusiastic one,
those present, 40 in all, showing much interest in the working of the class.
Incoming officers asked for the hearty co-operation of the members, which will doubtless be accorded them. Class meets on Sunday afternoon in Parlor of Gower St. Church. Visitors always welcome.

Man Meets Accident.

Mr. Geo. Purchase, of Angel
Place, while working at the Reid
Co.'s machine shop yesterday, met with a rather severe accident. A large fly-wheel, which he was moving,
fell on his foot badly crushing the member. He was removed to hospital where an X-ray examination was held. Only last week Mr. Purchase buried his son, a young man of eighteen years.

Personal Mention.

Mr. K. M. Blair left by Rosalind last evening on a visit to Canadian and American markets. He expects to be absent about a month.

UNPOPULAR CHAMPS.

Number of boxing champions passing through the little ring increased greatly during the years or so. There was an unpopular champion was of. No man could hold a less he was the best man of s, and a winner always is punch boxing fans.

Johnson was the first unpopular weight champion. Sullivan, Fitzsimmons and Jeffries all ing idols, and their passing eply regretted by those who ntimentally inclined and hated a good man beaten. Johnson popular, not because he could e like a champion, but because euce threatened the existence port. Johnson's actions out ring were such that the re- were furnished with plenty nition for their campaigns, the fans heard many a sigh when his disturbing presence oved.

Willard was the first no de- champion of the heavyweight e big follow was unpopular he obviously detested the game and because it was o lure him into the ring. Wil- ked color and altogether was out of place as the world's heavy- weight champion. Stanley Ketchel was the last high- ly popular middleweight champion. He was the last of those who did most of their fighting in real battles to a decision. Papke was the first of the no decision middleweight champions. Before his time there never had been a title holder who did not enjoy the full respect of boxing followers. Papke, Klaus, Chip and McCoy all lacked something. None was able to acquire a strong following and each in turn passed on without causing more than a ripple on the fistie puddle.

All the old time welterweight champions were highly popular with the fans until the no-decision champ- ions. After he departed from the scene the title lapsed and under no decision conditions it was not revived until a few years ago, when Ted Lewis and Jack Britton began claiming the honors. Neither has been a ring idol.

One Unpopular Lightweight. In the long history of the light- weight class there has been only one unpopular champion. McAuliffe, Le- vigne, Erne, Gans, Nelson, Wolgast and Ritchie were ring idols. Then came Freddie Welsh with his no- decision methods, and for the first time the fans lost respect for the man who wore the lightweight crown. Benny Leonard is a no decision champion, but Leonard does not need a referee to pass on his performances. He is a real fighter.

The featherweight champions were all great fighting men and each was decidedly popular until the advent of Johnny Kilbane. Kilbane, like Fred- die Welsh, lost the respect of ring fans after he had been beaten a few times by second raters. In the old days a champion could lose but once and that was his finish. Under present con- ditions a champion can be defeated by every second rater who comes along and he still retains his title, provided he is not knocked out. But he cannot retain the respect of ring followers once it has been shown that he is not invincible.

JACKSON BEAT DUNDEE IN FAST BOUT.

New York, March 12.—Willie Jack- son outslugged Johnny Dundee in eight rounds at the Arena in Jersey City last night. Dundee fought back, punch for punch, but in the main his blows lacked the steam that was behind Jackson's right-handers.

Dundee, though he found it hard at times, came back after every rally with an amazing show of stamina. East when it seemed that he must go down before the fury of Jackson's on- slaught, he would step-jump in at Jackson and drive him to cover.

Jackson tried desperately to repeat his feat of being the only man to stop Dundee, and it was all because of the latter's ability to take punishment and outgeneral Jackson when he was be- fuddled that he got by with a clean slate.

It was a remarkable fight because of the very viciousness of it. Jackson lost no time in getting down to busi- ness and with the first bell set about for a knockout. He kept inviting Dun- dee to come at him, which invitations were accepted—and then Jackson had a method of stopping Dundee in his rushes.

When Johnny would come tearing in, Jackson would shoot a right-hand uppercut to the body, and when the bout terminated Dundee's left side was as red as a lobster from the continual pounding to which it was subjected.

The sixth round was a bad one for Johnny. It looked like the finish for him for a while as Jackson started afresh for a kayo, but Johnny weather- ed the tempest and stayed up.

Jackson was the first to make his show. He was followed immediately by Dundee, who stalked across the ring and peered cautiously into the mysteries of the tape covering on Jackson's dangerous right. The knockout member must have been O. K., for Dundee dropped it with a smile. The weights announced were: Jackson, 133 pounds; Dundee, 130 1/2 pounds.

Every country home should have a few bushes of currants in its garden. A good white sauce with chopped hard-boiled eggs added is excellent for fish.

Why the Flatfish is Brown on One Side.

According to the Egyptians, there is an excellent reason why the flat- fish is brown on one side and white on the other.

Moses, they say, was one day cook- ing a flatfish. At that time these fishes were white on both sides. When the lawgiver had patiently broiled his specimen on one side, his fire, or else his oil, gave out, and sage though he is supposed to have been, he quick- ly lost his temper and angrily tossed the fish back into the sea.

In spite of the fact that it was half cooked, the flatfish became very lively on finding itself once more in its na- tive element, and soon turned its at- tention to the business of life, which, for a fish, is to eat heartily, to avoid its enemies, and to reproduce its species.

The flatfish succeeded so well in all these enterprises that it eventually came to have many descendants, and these, it is noticed, retain to this very day the appearance of their half broiled ancestor, being brown or black on one side, and white on the other.

Land Settlement Scheme for Soldiers.

As the result of the recent interviews between the Hon. Dr. Campbell, Minister of Agriculture and Mines, and Hon. J. M. Kent, and the Vocational Officer, Dr. Blackall, the Government is now prepared to consider the question of affording to returned soldiers and sailors an opportunity of settling on the land. Certain conditions, however, are laid down, and training will be required of the applicants along the following lines: Work on a farm under an approved farmer for the summer and early fall; take an agricultural course in some approved Agricultural College or similar institution for 1920 to 1921; work on a farm under an approved farmer for the summer of 1921, following which the Government would furnish the man with suitable loans on easy terms of repayment for the purchase of land, building, equipment and stock. During the training outlined, the men's wages will be supplemented sufficiently to enable them to live in reasonable comfort and, and maintenance allowance granted for the support of wives and children in the case of men who have married before demobilization. The announcement does not mean that a land government scheme has been finalized. The action that the Government will take depends on the number and nature of the applicants; but all men who have any propositions to offer are requested to communicate with the Vocational Officer, Militia Building, when their cases will be laid before the Advisory Committee for general consideration.

Butterfly on the Wheel.

AT CASINO NEXT MONDAY NIGHT. True to life in every way the society of fashionable London, is shown in this great sensational society drama to be produced by the Young-Adams Co. at the Casino next Monday night. With the scenes laid in a fashionable hotel in Paris, and the home of Hon. Geo. Adamston, Miss Marjole Adams as Peggy Adamston, has the most trying role of her extensive repertoire to play. An unjustly accused wife, circumstances placing her in a compromising position, forced to defend her name and honor in a Court of law, make the audience fire for the heroine in this wonderful play. The part is a hard and trying one, calling for great emotional acting, and in this role Miss Adams has ample opportunity to display her versatility, ably supported by the serious and intense acting of her supporting company. The "Butterfly on the Wheel" is conceded to be one of the best dramas on the stage to-day.
