FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES
Hard and Red, Feathered and Itched Badly. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble began with a roughening of the skin and itching scalp. Later hard, red pimples broke out on my face and completely covered it. Some of the pimples feathered and itched badly at times. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after a few days my face felt better. I continued using them and in three weeks was completely healed, after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment." LADY IRIS' MISTAKE;
 or the
Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XXVIII.

To the wonder and consternation of the whole household, Lady Iris did not appear at dinner; nor did she leave her room during the day. The house, with all its brightness and luxury, was dull without her, and the rooms seemed cold and gloomy. She had a terrible headache, she told her maid. It was so bad that she could neither look up nor listen, and she must be in a darkened room with no one to disturb her. The earl had been in to see her, and was startled by her pallid cheeks and lips; he hardly recognized in the pale trembling girl before him his beautiful daughter.

"My darling," he said gently, "you look very ill."
 "Yes," she answered, "I do feel ill."
 "Let me send for a doctor for you, Iris."
 "A doctor would do me no good," she replied in a hopeless tone. "I want rest, papa. I have a violent headache, and it makes my eyes burn, while every sound tortures me. My head will be better to-morrow. You must manage to do without me until then."
 The earl looked disconsolately at her.
 "That will be difficult, my darling. I could do better without anything else than without my Iris. Make haste and get well, dear. Can I send anything to you?"
 "No, papa; only keep everybody away, and let me be quite alone. With rest and quiet I shall soon be better."
 What she said was true—the sound of a voice or the sight of a face was torture to her; she must be alone. The blow to her love had been so terrible to her that it would be some time before she could recover from it. She loved Allan with all her heart, with deepest, truest affection; and she could not imagine any existence apart from him; but it almost broke her heart as she owed this to herself. She could not marry him; the very motto of her race, "Held with Honor," forbade it. Would she hold her name in honor if she gave it to the son of a

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest sore is conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma, or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a essential and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded.

tradesman? Would she be a worthy descendant of her race if she married beneath her, forgetting all that was due to her long line of ancestors? There had been no such thing as this in their history for generations back; they had allied themselves with the highest and noblest in the land. Could she marry a tradesman's son, even though he were by nature a gentleman? No, it could never be—not if her heart broke. It would not have mattered if he had been just one grade higher in the social scale, she said to herself; but the stigma of trade, the son of a tradesman to be master of Chandos, to take the honored name of Fayne! No; it would never do. She shuddered as she remembered how she had called the love of John Bardou an insult, and compared it to sacrifice. What would this be?

Yet every moment her respect for Allan increased. How nobly he had behaved! He had not shown any false shame when he told her that he was a tradesman's son. She never loved him better than when she lay in her darkened room recalling his words and his looks. She admired his innate nobility, as for her marrying a tradesman's son, it was impossible.

"Held with honor," she repeated the words with passionate tears, and said to herself that she would go to her grave unmarried, she would never give the name of Fayne to one who by birth was not fitted to bear it.

Life was all over for her, she thought, with a sigh; but better death than life shadowed by an action which she felt would be unworthy of a Fayne. With her pride was stronger than love. Not even for the sake of her love, and no other man should ever woo her. She looked upon Allan as one of the noblest of men; for he was could never marry him, for he was a tradesman's son.

She wept sorely; she felt that there would be no more happiness for her in this world; but not for one moment did she feel inclined to yield. She looked her position boldly in the face; she knew that all her friends and acquaintances would hear of her broken engagement; but no one should ever know from her why that engagement was broken.

She could bear anything but her lover's pain; and the thoughts of that tormented her. He was so noble, so true, and so tender. Ah, why was she compelled to break his heart as well as her own. She tried to persuade herself that in the years to come he would perhaps love some one else and marry; but she knew it would not be so; she knew that he would never love any other woman. It was strange that no possibility of doing anything else but renounce him occurred to her; she only knew that a barrier had arisen between them which parted them, one which she could not break down.

"I hope," she cried wildly, "that I may die soon! I cannot bear my life since I have lost my love."
 She railed at fate, refusing to believe that her sufferings were due to herself and the result of her own pride. As she lay tormented with her bitter pain, she thought of the lines—

"Where, when the gods would be cruel,
 Do they go for a torture—where
 Plant thorns, set pain like a jewel?
 Ah, not in the flesh—not there!"

"The racks of earth and the rods
 Are weak as foam on the sands;
 For the heart is the prey of the gods,
 Who crucify hearts and not hands.
 Dead when life dies in the brain;
 In the infinite spirit is room
 For the pulse of an infinite pain."
 And this infinite pain pursued her; yet that pride should give place to love never once occurred to Lady Iris.

"I, who have been so proud all my life," she cried—"how I am humbled, how low my pride is brought! How people will laugh when they hear that I promised to marry a draper's son! But, oh, how I love him! A loveless life will be my lot; but better that than life held in dishonor." Yet her whole soul rose in rebellion at the thought of there being any dishonor in marrying Allan.

Just once she asked herself whether the whole social code might not be wrong. Allan had every quality that could adorn a man; and yet the son of a duke or an earl, with a weak mind in a weak body, would be considered superior to him! Who made those laws by which the mere accident of birth gave one man such superiority over another? She wondered how she would have felt if it had fallen to her lot to be a tradesman's daughter.

"I should have known nothing bet-

Headaches
 Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft, and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus relieves it.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a laxative—so cannot grip. Try it today.

ter; therefore I should have been content with my station," she said to herself.

On the following day she still remained in her room. She sent word to the earl that she was better, but should not join the dinner-party that day, she must have another day's rest. To Allan she wrote a little note which said—

"Dear Allan,—I have not ceased thinking of you since you left me yesterday. I should like to see you alone, and tell you my decision. Meet me in the afternoon by the river, in the same spot where we sat yesterday.
 "Your ever-loving
 "Iris."

Allan took the note from the hands of the maid, and read it.

"Shall I hope or despair?" he said to himself. "She gives me no clew as to her decision; but she calls herself my 'ever-loving Iris.' Heaven bless her, whatever she may say to me! It is like being summoned to the bar of justice," he continued. "I can understand now how a prisoner faces his judge, how a soldier before a court-martial waits to hear his doom. I must bear my fate like a man."

Yet, until the afternoon came, he was in a fever of unrest. He could not read, and he did not feel inclined to talk; so he left the gay party of visitors and went for a stroll through the woods of King's Forest. The household and guests were brightened by the intelligence that Lady Iris was better, and would be amongst them again on the morrow.

In the afternoon Allan went to the river-side to wait for Lady Iris. When he saw her coming toward him, his heart beat fast, his lips quivered, and his hands trembled.

"Now I am to know my fate," he said; and the words brought back his courage. "My sentence will come from the sweetest of lips, and I must meet it bravely. Surely she will not send me away, for she loves me; she has put her arms round my neck and kissed me; she will not for a mere caprice send me from her."

She drew nearer; he could see the floating blue draperies that suited her so well, and the broad-brimmed white hat with its wreath of blue corn-flowers; but he could not see her face, for that was bent low and shaded by the hat.

"I await my doom," he said to himself, "and may Heaven help me to bear it!"

Mother Why Not Try The Newer Form Of Iron

Dr. Strong and Well and Have Nice New Checks Intended of Being Nervous and Irritable all the Time and Looking So Haggard and Old?
The doctor gave some to Susie Smith's mother and she was worse off than before and now she looks just fine. There can be no healthy, beautiful, rosy-cheeked women without iron. Good physicians have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe iron for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking patients. When the iron goes from the blood of women strength and vitality from their bodies. The newer form of iron, like the iron in your blood and like the iron in certain cereals, which is highly recommended by strength, power and endurance. It is necessary to enable your blood to circulate more freely. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food cannot be assimilated. You cannot do your best. You don't exert the amount of energy you are capable of. You are pale, and your complexion is growing in your face. You can get this iron from your doctor or under an order from your pharmacist.
The blood of the woman with plenty of iron in it is beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked and full of vim and vitality. You can get this iron from your doctor or under an order from your pharmacist. It will do the same for you.

Silvia Parted Hawser.

SHIP HAD TO HAUL OFF IN STREAM.
Due to high wind and heavy under-tow the Red Cross Liner Silvia moored at Harvey & Co.'s premises snapped her bow hawser last evening and Capt. Mitchell was obliged to haul his ship in the stream to avoid damage to the pier. The Silvia remained at anchor all night, and hauled to the pier again this morning to finish loading.

"The Power of The Sword."

At last we have brought the genius of the Advocate to write a sensible editorial article, but though we are sincere enough to compliment him upon his departure from the usual channels of literary prostitution, we cannot help from observing that the burden of his daily plaint is of the "Help me Cassius or I sink" quality. Moreover there is another hand to the pen, but that does not count. When Esculapian comes to the assistance of Callopio, there is something more than a conspiracy in the union, and though neither the one nor the other could cap Marc Antony with the asseveration of Brutus—not having Julius Caesar at hand—yet we think we can prove that conspiracy wears its native guise within the tiled doors of Union Councils. The fomentor of trouble possibly forgets certain episodes in his career, when by advice and action he sought to have followers commit breaches of the peace. But these apparently have been forgotten, because it is not convenient to remember them. However we shall do our best to refresh the memories of all parties concerned. The days when Coaker bestrode the narrow world of the North, "like a Colossus" and all the petty men "walked under his huge legs" have come to an end, because these same men have discovered that they "are masters of their fate" and are no longer content to be underlings. Conjure with these then, Mr. Advocate, and go back to the 16th day of November, in the year of grace one thousand nine hundred and fourteen, when in solemn convention assembled at Catalina, Mr. Coaker made his annual address to the delegates of the Fishermen's Protective Union incorporating therein the following advice, which we have been at some pains to procure from the columns of the Advocate of succeeding date, wherein Mr. Coaker advises his followers to invoke the "power of the sword" in the attainment of their aims. We forbear from comment at the moment, but may have something to say about this incitement to rebellion on any Tuesday, Thursday or Saturday that suits, regardless of the Advocate's wish that we should reply to any of the expressions of that paper instantly. In reprinting this advice of Mr. Coaker in black type, we do so only to emphasize the desire of the man that violence should be called into play, when it would be of advantage to him, and any deluded adherents of his order. When his own skin is pricked he loudly appeals to the very authority, which he on occasion disowns, to protect him from the just wrath of the populace. Here are his own words, verbatim—

"You will recall that last year this Council passed a Resolution in reference to appointing defeated candidates to the Executive Council and to high positions of emolument. You further requested that the vacant departmental positions be also filled by new appointees who were to appeal to the electorate for endorsement of their acceptance of office. You also pointed out, in resolutions presented to the Governor that failure to do so would be regarded as a violation of sound constitutional principle and public

Right. Yet no sooner was the House closed than the Governor appointed Sydney Blandford and E. A. Squires to seats in the Upper House and then to seats in the Executive Council and to positions as Ministers of the Crown. Both of these men had been defeated at the polls four months previously, one by a majority of 1800 votes and the other by 1000. It is now your duty to

(1) Conserve the Governor for allowing the Premier to outrage the constitution in direct violation of every principle of constitutional self government and of the public right to approve of appointments to positions of emolument and to decide who were or were not to administer the affairs of public departments, and to further petition for the recall of the Governor because of his action in this matter.

(2) To demand the dismissal of the two men from their seats in the Executive Council which belong to the elected representation of the people, and which have always been assigned to the elected representatives of the various sections of the colony.

(3) To demand from the Governor the dismissal of those two men from the positions of emolument which they occupy as Heads of the Departments of Agriculture and Justice and two positions to be filled by appointing men who will appeal to the electorate to endorse their appointments.

(4) To insist upon the strict observance by the Governor of the principles of sound constitutional practice which denies the right of any to be advisers to the Governor who were defeated at the polls by popular vote. Further Mr. Coaker says: If Sir Edward Morris can place two defeated candidates in the Executive and make them Ministers of the Crown in opposition to the plain expressed wish of the electorate he can make a half dozen appointments and thus treat with contempt the principles of representative government. Therefore your plain duty is to oppose such action not only by petition and persuasion, but, if necessary by the POWER OF THE SWORD, for hundreds of years ago our forefathers freely died in defence of such principles."

Those Inspired Assaults.

The Northern Fishermen will not fail to notice how fiercely and unrelentingly the Advocate attacks Mr. Morine, in relation to their movement to increase the price of fish and decrease taxation. The false assertion is continuously made that their struggle for bread in his struggle for power, that they are but his tools, and that their professions are fraudulent. The offence Mr. Morine has committed, in the Advocate's eyes, is that he dares to work for the fishermen, to help them in their struggle for existence. Why else is he singled out for the vulgar abuse which is aimed at him day after day. To say that the Advocate does this cowardly thing is equivalent to saying that Coaker does it, for the Advocate is his supple tool, directed from his skulking place in Fort Union. Absent from the post of duty, deserting the very men whose votes placed him in the office, whose salary he takes, but whose duty he neglects, he sees a better and abler man doing the work he should be doing, and his wrath consumes him. He directs his hirelings to abuse the man who by his work for them is supplanting him in the hearts of the fishermen. It was not long ago, when Coaker claimed, and perhaps deserved, to some extent, the name of "the Fishermen's Friend," but he has turned his coat, and deserted the cause. The fishermen should show their resentment in no uncertain way. Why should their friends be assailed for doing their work?

The first two days of BISHOP'S Dress Sale have proved convincingly that the right type of Dresses at the lowest prices in Newfoundland are at BISHOP'S for this sale.

Special Services at the Kirk.

A special series of Sunday Evening Services has been arranged by Rev. R. T. Power, bearing particularly on the home life of the people, commencing tomorrow evening with the subject, "The Modern Examples of Home." Poppy Day.

ANNUAL EVENT ON NOV. 11th.

This day week, Nov. 11th, Poppy Day will be featured in a more extensive manner than heretofore in Nfld. In all, about forty thousand Poppies have been imported from England. Of this number some 25,000 are being forwarded to the principal outposts. In St. John's the distribution is being looked after by Mrs. W. H. Fraser, who has as assistants an energetic band of young ladies. As the outposts are entering wholeheartedly into the scheme this year and the city's contribution is assured, a substantial sum should be realized. The funds will be used for the benefit of disabled soldiers and sailors. During next week various stores are giving displays on behalf of the movement, while pamphlets, etc., will be distributed at the different moving picture houses.

Mrs. Walter Parsons will receive on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, 8th and 9th inst., from 3 to 6 o'clock, at her residence, 15 LeMarchant Road. nov3,31

Opera "Erminie."

IN HANDS OF ALL STAR CASTE.

As will be seen by the ad. in today's paper, Mr. Chas. Hutton's production of the Opera "Erminie" will take place in the Casino on Nov. 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th. He is of the opinion that it will be his best production and that it is saying a great deal. The music, which is delightful, and the dialogue very funny and witty, is in the hands of all star caste, while the orchestra will be an outstanding feature. The costumes, which were imported specially from New York are very handsome and picturesque, and will be made still more so by the magnificent lighting effects. It is so rare to have anything of this kind in St. John's, we are sure that Mr. Hutton's efforts will be rewarded by bumper houses.

NOTICE—By permission of Lt.-Col Goodridge, the C. L. B. Band, assisted by the leading artists of the city, will hold a Grand Concert, Methodist Church Hall, Friday, November 10th. Reserved seats, 50c.; on sale at Gray & Goodland's. General admission 30c.—nov3,31

McInnes was appointed Secretary, the other Executive officers appointments having been held over until next week. The meeting was enthusiastic throughout, and judging by the signs manifested an interesting series of games can be looked forward to. It was decided to set the ball rolling on next Wednesday night, a silver cup having been very kindly presented for competition by Mr. Alex. Marshall, Manager of the West End branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. The schedule was drawn up and resulted as follows:—

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, Nov. 4. Eye trouble is more or less prevalent at all seasons, but perhaps it is more common in Autumn, the season when cold winds and dust come together, than at other times of the year. At any rate, at the moment, inflammation of the eye is often seen, and while not in itself a serious thing, may, if neglected, lead to serious results. For simple cases of ophthalmia, it is usually sufficient to bathe the eyes well with a solution of boracic acid in hot water, especially at night, and to apply a little McMurdo's Gold-En Eye Ointment afterwards. Marked improvement is usually a speedy result. Price 30c. a box.

RESIDENTS COMPLAIN. Residents of the Southside are complaining about the filthy condition of the street leading from Water Street over the Lone Bridge to the Southside Road. They need this vicinity its ankle deep in places, and the many citizens who have to travel on foot and from this neighbourhood hope that the Council will attend to the matter. Probably a good suggestion would be to continue the proposed plank walk from the Southside along this thoroughfare.

SO DECLARES MR. ALBERT SOPER WHO IS ISLAND DELEGATE TO CONFERENCE.

The scope of the General Conference of Canadian Methodism is vividly illustrated by the fact, that, while my interview of the other day was with a distinguished Vancouverite, I was privileged yesterday to have a brief colloquy with another delegate, this time from remote Newfoundland and from the city of St. John's, there, of which Mr. Albert Soper, the gentleman in question, is an eminent business man and prominent citizen.

Asking Mr. Soper for a brief, and not too modest definition of himself, he said: "I'm a Newfoundland, a business man, a Methodist, and a local preacher. This is the third time I've been sent to general conference."

"Is Methodism strong in Newfoundland?" I enquired. "Or is any church strong down there?"

"Let me tell you," he responded with characteristic loyalty, "what is a fact—that Newfoundlanders are the greatest church-going people in the empire. The strongest church is the Roman Catholic; next to that, the Anglican, then the Methodist; then the Presbyterian."

"Where do the Baptists come in?"

"We haven't any Baptist church there."

"How is the church union sentiment in your island?"

"The Methodists, people and officials voted against it. The Presbyterians were fifty-fifty—but our people will accept it when it comes."

"How about your educational facilities?"

"Excellent. We have no university, of course. But, although a severe reign of retrenchment is on, our government has just voted a quarter of a million for a new normal school. Our whole population, you must remember, is less than half that of the city of Toronto."

"Much unemployment there?" "Not acute. And the government is just launching a great enterprise—pulp and fertilizer—that will employ thousands. A $25,000,000 scheme."

"Fishing, of course, are your great industry there, are they not, Mr. Soper?"

"Either fisheries or lumbering ranks first; then agriculture, then mining, principally iron."

"Mr. Soper, what is the temperance situation in Newfoundland?"

"Same as here. Prohibition by plebiscite. But the doctors practically have all the dispensing in their hands, and they abuse the privilege deplorably. But it is better, even at that, than the old state of affairs, and that we will never return.—The Toronto Daily Star."

CHAIRMAN PEEPLES TELLS WHY THE FIRST CONTEST WAS CALLED OFF.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 29. —George H. Peeples, Chairman of the International Sailing Committee in the recent International fishing races off this port, in a statement tonight defended the committee's action in refusing to allow the race between the Henry Ford and the Blue nose on Saturday, Oct. 21, to stand as official. He said that when the two boats disregarded the committee's orders to return to the starting line, "the committee came to an unanimous understanding that the start would not constitute a race."

"Explaining why the Committee on its official boat followed the schooners, he said:

"The decision up to the committee was whether it was to have an open brawl with the racers and to break up the race by force. The committee decided it would be inadvisable to get into a wordy contest with the masters of the two racing vessels and that if they disregarded our signals and our message, they could of their own responsibility, continue on their course."

It was decided that if the vessels were determined to continue, the course should be patrolled in order to safeguard their vessels from any possibility of a collision with the many craft which were attempting to close down on them in order to gain a better view.

"The committee boat then acted as a patrol and was kept busy clearing the course of other vessels. No official times were taken at any of the turning marks and when the course had been practically covered by the two schooners the committee returned to their anchorage inside the harbor."

He said that Capt. Walters of the Blue nose made the statement that he considered it was a race, although he was the racer, but that Capt. Walters had no voice in the matter.

"If the United States members of the sailing committee had decided it was a race after Henry Ford had won" he continued, "it would have been a dishonorable act on their part, as by so doing they would have broken their word with the Canadian representatives of their own committee."

REPORT OF THE CHIEF AGENT FOR WEEK ENDING NOV. 4.

Attended to the landing of seventy head of cattle from the Sable I. Some of which were very wild and required great care in landing; one jumped overboard and created quite a lot of confusion, but it was safely landed on shore, the animal had to be tied down and taken away on a cart. Another broke loose and was captured in the east end; this one was also taken away on a cart. At the request of the owner one of the animals was put to death with the humane killer. To my mind there should be a pound to turn those cattle into instead of trying them up by the head, as these animals being prairie cattle are not used to being tied by the head, and should be driven into a pound and taken away in lots. This would avoid quite an amount of confusion. It is also necessary to have a conveyance to take away injured cattle as carting them through the streets on a sledge or long cart is hardly right. I also attended to the landing of two carloads of cattle at the Railway Station and two sales of cattle at Neal's wharf. I was called to shoot a dog owned by Mr. Carnell, Pleasant Street; another old dog which had been roaming around the city for some time was found lying on a doorstep on LeMarchant Road. I reported the matter to the Secretary of the Municipal Council, who told me to use my own judgment; I humanely destroyed the animal in a field off LeMarchant Road and the Sanitary men removed it. Sent in a horse with a sore back. Received complaints of others being lame; examined them and found some were lame from corns and some from spavins. Horses were in very good condition and I warned the owners not to overdrive or overfeed them. They promised to do the best possible. I also looked after some horses which came in from the country by train, which were destined for Bell Island via Portugal Cove.

How Harbor Grace

Rose From its Ashes in 1832 ---
 Great Public Spirit Displayed by Citizens.

(H. F. SHORTIS).

About two months ago, I gave an extended account of the great fire in Harbor Grace in 1832, which swept the town from where Archibald's Boot & Shoe Factory now stands down below Ridley Hall, on both sides of the street. Also I gave the names of many of the fire-sufferers. At that time we had few Insurance Companies in our island, and in most cases the result was total loss. But at that time did the people of Harbor Grace give up in despair, or, in figurative language—rest on their oars? Not a bit of it. They were made of sterner stuff, and the very next day, after the great conflagration had exhausted itself, they called a public meeting to formulate a plan to cope with the deplorable condition of affairs. The fire occurred on the 18th August, and three days after a public meeting was called and steps were taken to provide homes for the sufferers. At the meeting of the inhabitants held at the Court House for the purpose of receiving the reports of the committee respecting the proposed plans for the street on that part of the town which had been destroyed by fire, and for the despatch of other business, the Rev. J. Burt (Episcopalian) was in the chair. The following resolutions were agreed to. Proposed by Mr. J. L. Prendergast, seconded by Mr. R. Anderson:—

That the petition to His Most Gracious Majesty, a draft of which has been favored by W. Sterling, Esq., be adopted by the meeting, and generally signed.

That the main street of Harbor Grace, in that part of the town recently destroyed by fire, shall hereafter be fifty feet wide, and that the meeting has come to this determination after the most mature deliberation.

Proposed by J. Parkin, Esq., seconded by J. Blakie, Esq.

That a committee of three or more persons be appointed to trace a plan for the future erection of the town, certain instructions being given to such commissioners as to the basis of the proceedings. And that the land-holders and lease-holders shall sanction and consider binding such determination of such commissioners. That one part of the instructions to such commission be, that taking two-thirds from water-side, and one-third from the north side of the present street be the medium line in forming the new one.

Proposed by Jas. Blakie, Esq., that Mr. Keough—by Mr. Jno. Richards that Mr. Anderson—by Mr. D. Candier that Mr. Ridley—by Mr. John Pitts, that Mr. Geo. Lilly—and by Geo. Bailly Esq., that R. Pack, Esq., be appointed the commissioners for the said purpose, and that three of the said number form a quorum; which general proposition was seconded by W. Sterling, Esq.,—except the last clause respecting which I. F. Cawley, Esq., seconded Geo. Bailly, Esq.

CHRISTIAN CHARITY THE STIMULUS.

In reply—The Rev. chairman, addressing himself to the gentlemen of the deputation, adverted to the interest which must necessarily be associated, at any time, and on any occasion, by the honour of a deputation from the enlightened and benevolent inhabitants of the metropolis of the Island (St. John's); but on an occasion like the present, when Christian charity has been the stimulus; and within a period so definitely marked with seal and promptitude; the mental effect was increased to its utmost intensity. The paternal sympathy and munificent assistance which had been apparent, called forth the warmest and most sincere acknowledgements. Indeed the extensive liberality which the Committee are every day becoming acquainted with has kept their minds in an increasing state of grateful excitement. They have to name, not only the prompt and kindly aid of their neighbors at Carbonar, in the supply of labor and provisions—the timely grant of coats, blankets, and camp equipments under the direction of his Honor the President—the immediate disposal of ready made clothing, principally emanating from the St. John's Dorcas Society, but they also have heard that, this morning, trunks have been received from St. John's, containing garments of superior material for distribution in a private channel—acts alike honourable and beneficial. The success of such bounties, illustrative of sentiments so genuine and so diffuse, while they delight, almost overpower the mind, and forbid the utterance of that lucid recital it was the desire of the Committee to render. The Rev. Chairman, therefore, begged the gentlemen of the deputation to accept in few words an assurance on the part of the Committee, of the weight of obligation under which the inhabitants of Harbor Grace were placed, and the real pleasure it would afford the Committee to co-operate with them, and receive any suggestions from their friends in St. John's; connected with the disposal of the truth committed to them—earnestly trusting that a superintending Providence would be manifest in furthering their mutual endeavours, and that a single eye to the genuine object in view, may be their constant aim. The Rev. Chairman, in the name of the Committee, on the part, and in behalf of the sufferers by the late fire, begged to tender to the gentlemen of the deputation from St. John's their most cordial and heartfelt welcome, accompanied with their best wishes, that those who are thus the means of conveying blessings to others may in their own experience be amply blessed.

The deputation were then made acquainted with the issues which had already been made, the further supply of the truth committed to them, as already shipped, together with other information connected with the object of their mission.

ADDITIONAL RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions were then put, and unanimously carried:—
 Proposed by Rev. J. Burt, seconded by J. Stark, Esq.

That this Committee impressed with the deepest gratitude for the true benevolence displayed by the inhabitants of St. John's, in so promptly and humanely subscribing largely towards the relief of the sufferers by the late calamitous fire at Harbor Grace beg leave in the name of the sufferers, and in their capacity as a Committee, to tender to the inhabitants of St. John's at large, their most sincere and heartfelt thanks for the praiseworthy and charitable disposition so splendidly evinced by them on the present occasion.

Proposed by N. Stabb, Esq., seconded by J. Parkin, Esq.

That the special thanks of the meeting are due and hereby given to Newman W. Hoyle, Esq., Chairman, and the general Committee of relief appointed by the inhabitants of St. John's, for not only accepting the arduous duties necessarily attaching to, and devolving upon them, but for the handsome terms in which their Chairman has communicated their views through the deputation of condolence, from the inhabitants of St. John's.

Proposed by J. Stark, Esq., seconded by Mr. J. Hipplesley.

That the most particular thanks of this Committee are due and hereby given to Mr. Robert Job, Mr. Patrick Keough and Mr. John Shea, being the deputation appointed by the inhabitants of St. John's; and the Committee request that the gentlemen forming the deputation, will believe the assurance hereby given by this Committee, of the high estimation in which their visitation is held by the public at large, but more particularly by the numerous sufferers by the fire; and who will long remember with gratitude and esteem the soothing influence of that visitation to this scene of distress and present misery; not doubting but that when the public mind is somewhat tranquilized, and the condition of the sufferers in a degree ameliorated by the issue of the relief so bounteously afforded them, that the sufferers themselves will come forward and give the most convincing and substantial proof of the sincerity of their professions.

After passing a few other resolutions relative to the private business of the Committee, the meeting separated.

RELIEF COMMITTEE MEET.

The Committee of Relief met at the Court House at 10 o'clock on Friday morning, agreeable to notice previously issued, for the purpose of receiving a deputation of gentlemen from the Committee formed at St. John's, in aid of the sufferers by the calamitous fire. Present—Rev. J. Burt, Chairman; Rev. Fr. Macklin, Rev. Fr. Nowlan, Rev. Fr. Bernay, Rev. T. Tomkins, T. Dawson, Esq., C. R. J. F. Cawley, W. Sterling, J. Parkin, Esquires, Justices of the Peace; J. Stark, Clerk and Registrar, Northern District; N. Stabb, Esq., Deputy Sheriff; Messrs. J. Hipplesley, J. L. Prendergast and John Fitzgerald. ### BLESSED BE SYMPATHY.

"Next to love, sympathy is the divinest passion of the human heart."—Burke.

This isn't such a bad old world after all, is it? Sometimes in moments of depression it seems as if everyone in the world were selfish, and as if selfish motives were behind almost every act and thought, as if love itself were wholly selfish, and people only cared for others because they administered in some way or another to their own happiness and comfort.

And then again one is surprised and uplifted by catching a glimpse of the breadth and depth and selflessness of human sympathy.

Such an experience came to me the other day.

She Really Cared.

The postman was late. Twice the little maid who works in my kitchen came to me to ask if the postman had come yet. Thinking she expected some important letter I inquired if anything were wrong with any of her relatives.

"Oh no," she said, "it's the morning paper I do be waiting for. It's the President's wife I'm wondering is she better or worse this mornin'." (It was just at the time when Mrs. Harling's life hung in the balance.) The postman came and we tore the paper open together. "She's better, Mary," I said.

"Thank God," breathed Mary. I wish you might have heard her exclamation. It was so genuine, so sincere, such unmistakable thanksgiving for another's happiness.

And Mary never saw the President or his wife and, in all probability, never will!

But You Can't Account For Mary. I suppose you have heard that very fashionable phrase "maximization of the ego." It refers to the human instinct to make oneself stand out in some way. It is supposed to explain why men strive to excel in business, why women want to dress strikingly, why boys fight. It is even used to explain unselfishness and lives of sacrifice, "just another form of maximization of the ego." I have come to hate that phrase because it seems to discount all virtues.

But I can't see how it can be made to apply to Mary and her unaffected joy over the recovery of the President's wife.

And Thank God For It.

No, I think that was a just spontaneous welling of the selfless human sympathy and kindness, that, say what the cynic will, does dwell in the hearts of common folks, and that helps as much to make life beautiful as flowers and trees and sunsets and October mornings.

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freese's" on an aching corn. Instantly that corn stops hurting. Then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

EVER A BABY.

Above the ceaseless clamor and the cry. The strife for fortune and the loftier place. Ambition and the urge to scramble high. Most of us hold a little baby's face. Here is a fairer dream than fame or gold. A richer treasure than the stuff we seek. What wondrous secrets may the cradle hold. What joyous words those little lips shall speak.

Servants of Mammon! Such we seem to be. Sordid the tasks which face us every day. Yet ever smiling at us, we can see The babe that soon shall follow down the way.

Here is the purpose of the wrongs we bear. Here is the urge that sends us after gain. Gives us the courage to stand up to care. And sets our teeth to bitterness and pain. Seemingly seeking gold we spend our days. Seemingly selfish, mad the pace we make. Yet most of us are pledged to sordid ways. Nor for ourselves but for a baby's sake.

Leaving Wine in Wills.

A bequest to a friend of a sum of money to be expended in the purchase of a dozen bottles of vintage port wine, with which to drink to his memory when he was gone, was included in the will of a London solicitor who died recently.

Such bequests are not so very uncommon, and they are perfectly legal in this form. But a few years ago, when a member of the Savage Club bequeathed £250, the interest on which was to provide free drinks for members of the club for ever, the law decided that the bequest was not valid.

In days gone by many similar bequests have been allowed to stand. There are, for instance, at least twenty English towns and villages where free beer is distributed on certain anniversaries in accordance with the will of certain testators.

And only a few years back a Kentish gentleman left a hundred pounds apiece to eleven boon companions, "to be expended in port wine or any other good drink."

A curious instance of a convivial will was that left by John Redman, a friend of Fox, the famous statesman. He enjoined his executors to keep open his house in London, for at least a year after his death, and to visit it frequently, taking friends with them, "to help drink up the good wines contained in the cellars."

On the other hand, teetotalism by will is not altogether unknown. A famous case in point occurred in 1915, on the death of a wealthy South Wales colliery owner. He left over half a million pounds in legacies to a number of people, on condition that they should refrain for the rest of their lives from intoxicating drink.

An Obliging Afridi.

OFFERED TO KILL THE INSPECTING OFFICER.

All inspecting officers find fault. They love it. If, when inspecting a regiment, they fail to find at least one man with a dull button, it quite worries them.

No one ever minds being "told off" in this way. Certainly no Tommy ever bears malice. But on one occasion this fault-finding was taken very much to heart by a Afridi member of the famous "Guides" Regiment.

The Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab was inspecting them one day, and, as usual, found a fault here and there.

Khan," goes on to relate how that evening Col. Lumsden (who commanded the regiment, and was killed by his men) was sitting in a chair in his garden, smoking a pipe before he went to bed. Out of the corner of his eye he saw standing silent, awaiting his notice, one of the men of the regiment, an Afridi.

Turning round, he said, "Hullo, Yakub Khan, what do you want?"

"Sahib, at the inspection to-day, I and others of my comrades noticed that the Lord Sahib spoke words that were displeasing to your Honour, and that your Honour's face became black. Now the Lord Sahib travels by road to-morrow to Peshawar; but there is no reason whatever why he should arrive there!"

He often told this story afterwards to Viceroy and was lords who came to inspect the regiment—generally to their huge delight!

You can buy yourself cigars, and can play your billiard game, while my worn-out bonnet jars every fibre in my frame." Filled with pastry, Uncle Jay, heaves a wide, forgiving smile: "Go and buy that hat to-day—I would see my wife in style."

New York territory couldn't help being "milk land"

It had to be the "milk land" of the Union. Iowa could raise corn. Main had her potatoes. Georgia says "cotton," and Texas spells "cattle." But New York's soil, rainfall, seasons, and climate generally made it the "Dairy State."

There are approximately 70,000 picked farmers in the New York State territory who belong to the Dairy Men's League Co-operative Association, Inc., farmers who have clean, regularly inspected barns and clean, healthy cows. They are the Dairy Men's League. Instead of 70,000 ideas regarding the production and distribution of milk and dairy products, they decided to have a single standard of purity and quality—the highest that human endeavor could make. When they put their collective name on anything, it is good.

So you can buy Dairy Men's League Evaporated or Condensed Milk knowing that it is rich, "creamy milk," that it is pure and good and comes from the "dairy territory."

It is good to-day. It will be good to-morrow and next year, for the life-work of these 70,000 farmers is to see that the dairy products of the Dairy Men's League are kept up to the standard that has been set.

TWEEN BENCH AND BAR.
 The Scottish Law Courts, Edinburgh have been long and justly celebrated as an arena of wit and humour of the richest sort. But the factious Council and the witty and eccentric Judge, like the humorous and quaint divine, no longer prevail; and the current collector of the native legal facetiae who would present brilliant specimens and illustrations must riddle the records of past generations to find them, or else adopt the simpler method, which has been most frequently followed, or riddling the records of those who have successfully riddled the records before them. Deploring neither of the courses indicated, I shall partially here peruse both; and first of all, will turn to the Memorials of the late Lord Henry Cockburn, the most extraordinary passages of which perhaps are the writer's memories of the law lords. Of Lords Braxfield, Eskgrove, Eldon, Hermand and Meadowbank, and others, most of whom he knew personally. Cockburn tells some "uncoloured" stories. And, surely, if we may express regret that the wit and humour of some of those are not inherited by the present occupiers of the Judicial bench, we may be thankful that the brutal severity which was practised by the first named is no longer possible. Braxfield's maxim seems to have been, "Hang a thief when he's young and he'll not steal when he's old." It may be doubted, says Cockburn, if he was ever so much in his element as when tauntingly repelling the last despairing claim of a wretched culprit, and sending him to Botany Bay or the gallows with an insulting jest, over which he would chuckle the more from observing that correct people were shocked. To an eloquent culprit at the bar he once said: "Ye're a very clever chield, my man, but ye wad hane the waur o' a hanging," and perhaps he got it. "Let them bring me prisoners and I'll find them law," used to be openly stated as his suggestion when an intended political prosecution was marred by anticipated difficulties. And Mr. Horner, the father of Francis, who was one of the juniors in one Mat's case, told that when him, "dismissing the bench to get into the box," Lord Braxfield, who knew him, whispered, "Come awa," Mr. Hermer, come awa, and help us to hang an o' these damned dirty tongued political scoundrels," "they are a curse and damnation to any country and not satisfied with himself's unless ruining the reputation of decent men." In another political case it was pleaded in defence that "Christianity was an innovation, and that all great men had been reformers, even our Saviour himself." "Muckie he made o' that," chuckled Braxfield, in an under voice. "He was hangt, and hangt is the guid for most of political scoundrels."

Lord Eskgrove succeeded Braxfield as the head of the Criminal Court, and a more ludicrous personage surely never existed. "His face," says Cockburn, "varied according to circumstances, from a scurvy red to a scurvy blue; the nose was prodigious; the underlip enormous, and supported by a huge, clumsy chin which moved like the jaw of an exaggerated Dutch toy."

When addressing a jury, if a name could be pronounced in more ways than one he gave them all. Syllable he invariably called syllable, and wherever a word ended with the letter "s" the letter was pronounced and strongly so. And he was very fond of meaningless successions of adjectives. The article "a" was generally made into "one" and a good man he would describe as "one excellent, and worthy, and amiable, and agreeable, and very good man"; but if it suited his purpose and personal spite or political party he would be a d—scoundrel or a purse proof fool—and at the same time, winking now long a man of this kind could live without brains. It was Lord Eskgrove, condemning a tailor to death for murdering a soldier by stabbing him, he addressed him thus:—"And not only did you murder him where-by he was bereaved of his life, but you did thrust, or push, or pierce or project, or propel, the le-thal weapon through the belly-band of his regimental breeches, which were his Ma-jes-ty's."

In the trial of Glangary, for the murder of Sir Alexander Boswell in a duel, a lady of great beauty was called as a witness. She came into court veiled. But before administering the oath, Eskgrove gave her this exposition of her duty in the situation: "Young woman, you will now consider yourself as in the presence of Almighty God, and of this High Court. Lift up your veil, throw off all modesty and look me in the face." Having to condemn two or three persons to death who had broken into a house at Lass, and assaulted Sir James Colquhoun and others and robbed them of a large sum of money, he first, as was his almost constant practice, explained the nature of the various crimes—assault, robbery, and hame-sucken—of which last he gave them the etymology. He then reminded them that they had attacked the house and the persons within it, and robbed them, and then came to this climax: "All this you did, and God preserve us, foost when they were settan doon to their dinner!" A common arrangement of his logic, when addressing juries was: "And so, gentlemen, having shown you that the panell's argument is utterly impossible, I shall now proceed to show you that it is extremely improbable."

Brougham delighted to torment him. Retaliating, Eskgrove sneered at Brougham's eloquence by calling it, or him, the Harangue. In his summing up he would say: "Well, gentlemen, and what did the Harangue say next? Why it said this—" Candidly, however, he had to declare that "that man Broom, or Brougham, was the torment of his life." Lord Eskgrove, of course, was an unconscious humorist. So also in great measure was Lord Hermand. When Guy Manservant was first published, Hermand was so much delighted with the picture of the old Scottish lawyers in the novel that he could talk of nothing else but Pleydell and Dandle Diamond and High Jinks for many weeks. He usually carried a volume of the work about with him, and one morning on the bench his love for it so completely got the better of him that he "lugged" in the subject—head and shoulders—in the midst of a speech about a dry point of law. Getting warmer every moment he spoke of it, he at last plucked the volume from his pocket and in spite of the remonstrances of his brethren, insisted upon reading aloud the whole passage for their edification. He went through the task with his wonted vivacity, gave great effect to every speech and most appropriate expression to every joke; and when it was done, the court had no difficulty in confession that they had very seldom seen so well entertained. During the whole scene, Mr. Walter Scott, (now Sir Walker) was present in his official capacity as clerk of the Court of Session, and was seated close under the Judge.

Before Lord Hermand was elevated to the bench, and was known among men as Mr. George Ferguson, his addresses were delivered with such animation and intense earnestness that when it was known he was to speak the court was sure to be filled. His eagerness made froth and splutter, and there is a story to the effect that when he was pleading in the House of Lords, the Duke of Gloucester, who was about fifty feet from the bar, and always attended when "Mr. George Ferguson, the Scotch Council," was to speak, rose and said, with pretended gravity: "I shall be much obliged to the learned gentleman if he will be so good as to refrain from spitting in my face." Hermand was very intimate at one time with Sir John Scott, afterwards Lord Eldon. They were council together, says Cockburn, in Eldon's first important Scotch entail case in the House of Lords. Eldon was so much alarmed that he wrote his intended speech, and begged Hermand to dine with him at a tavern, where he read the paper and asked him if it would do. "Do, Sir?" It is delightful, absolutely delightful. I could listen to it for ever. It is so beautifully written and beautifully read. But, Sir, it is the greatest nonsense. It may do very well for an English Chancellor, but it would disgrace a clerk with us." Judging in the old days had a hard time with the public, and came in for a good deal of severe criticism if his judgments did not receive public approval.

A Perthshire tradesman, who was not generally weak-minded but whose intellect had been partially ruined by dissipation, was confined for several months, a number of years ago, to Murtle Asylum. On his liberation, he received, in accordance with the custom of such institutions, the written assurance of two doctors that he was a person perfectly sane, and safe to be at large. Some time subsequently, when he was engaged on a job along with a number of his fellow craftsmen at a country farm, a wordy war arose which waxed so hot and furious that one of the combatants turned savagely on our hero, and told him he was "daft." The result of the battle ended in court, and was tried before one of the Lords of the Scottish Bench. "Judge," what is the charge against the prisoner?" Prisoner—"I am charged with banging that man's nose for cousing me 'daft,' echoed he, plunging his hands into the outer pocket of his jacket. "Daft," blase ye. Look here." Judge—"And awe as ye are, I hae mare sense than yer'sel, I can show you twa certificates that I'm wise, and there's not another man on the job that can produce ane, not even yer'sel." Judge—"He was right." Bacon's advice to judges is to "draw your law out of your books, not out of your brains." Hermand generally did neither. He occasionally showed great contempt for Statute law, and would exclaim, "A Statute! What's a Statute! Words—mere words. And am I to be tied down by words? No, my Laards, I go by the law of right reason; my Laards, I feel my law—here—my Laards," striking his breast. Drinking in this old fellow's estimation, was a virtue rather than a vice, and when speaking to a case where one Glasgow man was charged with stabbing another to the death in the course of a night's carousal. "They had been carousing the whole night," exclaimed Hermand, "and yet he stabbed him! After drinking a whole bottle of rum with him, Good God, my Laards, if he will do this when he's drunk, what will he not do when he's sober?"

William Macconchie (Lord Meadowbank) was an able but curious man. Before he spoke, Cockburn said, it would often have been a fair wager whether what he said would be reasonable or extravagant. All that was certain was, that even his extravagance would be vigorous and original, and he had more pleasure in inventing ingenious reasons for being wrong than in being quietly right. Sir Harry Moncrieff, who was present at his marriage, told that the knot was tied about seven in the evening, and that at a later hour the bridegroom disappeared, and on being sought for, was found absorbed in the composition of a metaphysical essay on 'pains and penalties,' (or the science and matrimonial end of a Jude.)

The Cutty Sark.

Bought by former Liverpool Master Mariner. The Cutty Sark, the most famous of racing China tea clippers, has been purchased by Captain Downman, of Trevisson, near Falmouth, for £3,750, in order that she may not be lost to the nation. The Cutty Sark was built at Dumbarton in 1869, and was the fastest of the tea clippers plying between China and England, and later between China and Australia, making record passages. In 1895 the Cutty Sark was sold to Messrs. Ferreira & Co., of Lisbon, and was renamed. She will be moored in Falmouth Harbor, and will be open for inspection, and in the words of Capt. Downman, will be allowed to die a graceful death. Of late years the Cutty Sark has been engaged between Rio de Janeiro, New Orleans, and Lisbon with a general cargo. Capt. Downman is a retired mercantile marine captain of the Dale Line, Liverpool. He saw 27 years' service and was an apprentice on the sailing boat Hawkevale when she attempted to race to Cutty Sark on the Sydney to London voyage, in 1894. The purchase was effected after some difficulty at Santander, Spain, whither the Cutty Sark came on her last voyage, with a scrap iron cargo. The Falmouth tug Triton has gone to Santander for the ship, which will arrive at Falmouth next week, flying her old house flag of John Willis & Co., at her masthead. On being berthed she will be re-rigged, restored as far as possible, and repainted in her original colours of black and gold.

The Rid-Jid stands firmly on its own foundation, and is so constructed that a full-length skirt may be slipped on over the end. In spite of its marvelous rigidity, the Rid-Jid is lighter than any other folding board made. It closes as compactly as a pocket-knife. We would be glad to have you stop in and see it.
