EIGHT HUNDRED WIVES WANTED. A Country Editor's Big Scheme—He Proposes to Create an Exodus of Ontario Girls to Manitoba.

EIGHT HUNDRED WIVES WANTED. In order to accommodate the eight hundred bachelors who are said to be under the care of a single Presbyterian superintendent of missions in Manitoba and the Northwest, the editor of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review proposes, with all the seriousness of a provincial scribe, to get up a huge excursion of marriageable girls from Ontario to proceed early next spring to the prairie provinces.

EIGHT HUNDRED WIVES WANTED. The editor goes on to say that there should not be much difficulty in securing the requisite number of volunteers for a really patriotic expedition of this kind.

EIGHT HUNDRED WIVES WANTED. The writing of the above gives the editor an opportunity of uttering the female population of Ontario (the county in which the editor's paper circulates). He is not sure that their country will be able to supply its full quota.

EIGHT HUNDRED WIVES WANTED. The editor explains: "But the trouble with Woodstock—and the same is true of nearly the whole of Ontario—is that many of the bachelors of really good taste and education in Toronto, Hamilton, and other better localities, have been accustomed to draw upon us for their pretty, clever and accomplished wives. The result is that the surplus stock of marriageable girls here and throughout the county is not large. Nevertheless, it is just possible that a few are left, and, if so, patriotism will point to them the way of duty in the present crisis."

APPOINTMENTS THIS EVENING.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE—Only a Farmer's Daughter, Lillian Clavin. GRAND OPERA HOUSE—Maiden and Evening—John A. Stevens.

SATURDAY MORNING, OCT. 29, 1881.

THE CREDIT VALLEY has opened up a new country for Toronto. The merchants of St. Thomas, Ingersoll and Woodstock, as well as the other thriving towns on the line, are now coming to this city as naturally as if they had been doing business here all their lives.

THE RECENT SCENE in the Montreal city council has given occasion for editors to comment on the vulgarity of boards of aldermen in general. No board in Ontario, however, is cited as equalling in blackguardism the Montreal city council, though a London paper says their council has its prototype in Montreal, an assertion not very flattering to London aldermen.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD that several appointments were made yesterday by the Ontario government. Among others that of Mr. Deacon, of the treasury department, to the headship of the Ontario agricultural college; Capt. Burden to the burarship of the provincial reformatory, vice Band, transferred to the treasury department, and Mr. T. M. Simons to a position in the insurance department, vice Humphrey, transferred to the queen's printer's office.

TWO WEATHER prophets have been looking at the moon as it appeared recently in New York state, and November is predicted by one of them as a terrible month, bringing probable damage from great winds, storms and snows. The other prophet is called a dry moon, and that there may be an occasional fog on a light shower, but no long-continued rain. It is a pity Dr. Wild's prophetic vein doesn't run more on the weather question and less on the destiny of nations and the policies of Bismarck and Gen. Grant.

MR. BLAISE played the part of a good diplomat at the Yorkville celebration. Knowing the value of the German vote in his country, the secretary of state took good care to honor above all the flag of Germany, and to heartily welcome the Steubens, sending his son to escort them through the west. This he did to the apparent displeasure of the French delegates, who represented the French government, while the Germans who were at the celebration only represented a family. The French, no doubt, look at the innocent conduct of the secretary of state through the light of a certain historical event that transpired a decade ago.

THE PEOPLE of London are also beginning to repudiate the holding of the Provincial exhibition in their city. The complaint is that if anything is made by the exhibition the proceeds go to the provincial association, whereas the profit should remain with the locality in which the fair is held. The Free Press says:

"Supposing that the provincial were to devote their attention a little more closely to the eastern section of Ontario, which needs so much of its fostering care, would not all parties be better satisfied? Or if they prefer to feed upon the richer pastures of the west, how would it be if they were to check up one-half of the profits, and thus recoup the municipality for its manifold and heavy outlays? People here begin to think that they would like 'fair trade' in this matter."

It will be observed that this paragraph deals with a pertinent question, while it at the same time reveals the mental crudeness of a London editor, whose "loud" expressions and free-and-easy style can only be excused because of his living in a town that is alleged by its inhabitants to be very far west.

COMBINED CITY CHARITY.

The efforts of a number of ladies and gentlemen have been directed towards the city towards establishing a conference for comparing information and exposing impostures have been resented this week. Mr. Goldwin Smith was the chairman of the conference last winter but owing to his absence in England, Mr. Mayor Morrison has taken the project in hand with a view of having it established on a permanent basis. His worship issued invitations to all connected with the scheme for a meeting at the city hall yesterday afternoon. The meeting was accordingly held, among those present being Mrs. Charlotte Morrison, Mrs. Dr. Richardson, Mrs. Clapp, Mrs. W. N. Miller, Mayor McMurrich, James Beatty, M.P., J. G. Worsley, E. E. Peil, W. J. Macdonnell, John Ball, Dr. Canniff, John Gillespie, J. J. Alworth, S. Nairn, John Mallon, —Rush, Alex. Macdonnell, F. A. Ball, W. J. North, James notes and a few other charitable workers. Rev. A. J. Broughall and Rev. D. J. Macdonnell regretted in letters to the mayor that they were unable to be present.

Mr. McMurrich presided, and in opening the proceedings said there were three objects to be attained: 1. of the introduction of a system of relief tickets which would do away with pauperism; 2. of more systematic and united working between the houses of industry and the ladies' relief committees; and 3. of the relief of the poor by the aid of the combined city charities, saying that it would tend to prevent duplicated charity and to secure more efficient institutions. It had been discovered that numbers of families were in receipt of relief from two, three and even four different institutions and societies. A conference was proposed to stop this position and to be beneficial in other respects. He moved that the operations of the combined city charities be continued, and that steps be taken to bring about a more regular and complete conference between the ladies committee and the house of industry.

Mr. Graham seconded the motion, but Mr. Alworth before it was put wanted to know if they had means at their disposal to carry out the proposed scheme. He was answered by Mr. Beatty, who said the conference would not distribute charity but send applicants for relief to the proper institution or society, and prevent them receiving from more than one, such as many had done in the past instance of which he gave. Mr. Gillespie then asked for the practical details. Mr. Beatty replied that ward committees would be appointed and compare notes and report from institution to institution. It was not intended, he said, to interfere with any charity, but merely to collect and afford information which would prevent imposition. As for the expenses of the conference, they would not be great and would have to be provided for by collection.

Mr. Worsley then addressed the meeting at considerable length. He said if they organized in a practical manner, much economy would be effected. He strongly approved of a shelter for tramps. "I can find a tramp on St. James street at all winter and we'll make them work for what they do get." The first motion was then carried and another proposed by Dr. Canniff, to the effect that the conference, which previously had been re-established, take advantage of Mr. Goldwin Smith's offer and petition the council for $500, and such other relief as would enable them to start a place where the labor test would be a pre-requisite for relief. This was also adopted. Dr. Canniff offered his services to the conference when required, and Mr. Peil announced himself as being willing to do the work he had done last year. Both offers were thankfully accepted.

POLICE PARAGRAPHS.

Stephen McMenay was at No. 3 last night charged with committing an aggravated assault on his wife. The case was heard at the court of the city and he was committed to the workhouse for three months. William Smith, who stole a lady's jacket from Mrs. Laverty's house on Teraulay street, was yesterday sent down to gaol for six days. He was charged with stealing a coat and a hat from the house of Mrs. Venn, Yonge street, stole from his employer during the last year between two and three hundred dollars worth of goods. The boy, who is about 18 years of age, appeared in the police court yesterday and pleaded guilty. He wept bitterly and appeared utterly broken down. "I'm being my first offence," he said, "and I'm in the central prison for three months." Isaac Laidley, lately a retail druggist merchant on King street, appeared in the police court yesterday to answer a charge of obtaining goods by false pretences from Hughes Brothers. Mr. Jarvis and Mr. Hill appeared for the defence, and Dr. Seelling and Mr. Mulock for the prosecution. When the case was called Mr. Fenlon read a letter from Mr. Mulock saying that Mr. Hughes did not intend prosecuting the prisoner any further. Laidley was immediately discharged.

George Murray and Michael Fallon, expelled pupils from the Phoebe street school, have been making themselves an intolerable nuisance there, cursing, swearing, chasing the pupils and throwing bricks and stones into the yard and school. They were yesterday fined $2 without costs or three days. Another boy named Leith is charged with throwing bricks into the Brock street school, one of them striking a teacher, Miss Langton, on the arm. Summons are out against other boys for similar offences.

PUBLIC OPINION.

Milton Champion. The senate should be remodelled so as to be more in accordance with the popular opinion of the day. Port Hope Guide. The senate should be removed from party influence. It should be the seat of learning, of literature, of commercial enterprise and of patriotism, and not the shell where each party deposits its well worn hacks. Guelph Herald. If it be found that the directors either cannot or will not discharge fully the obligations resting upon them, the government must either provide a substitute or abolish the banks, and substitute a national system of commercial accommodation. Berlin Telegraph. The true and only solution of the problem which the conduct of monopolists and combinations create is forcing on the public will be found eventually in the government assuming the ownership of all telegraph lines and operating them. Berlin Telegraph. That Owen Sound will have connection with the Grand Trunk railway is certain and the town has the greatest possible interest in that connection being made, so as to afford them railway facilities by means of a company strong enough to remove all claims of the shareholders with which the district seems threatened.

MRS. MULL'S NEURALGIA.

What the London Truth serves up to its readers.—The Not-Byrd Curate—How the Match Was Arranged. In the London Truth, the society journal edited by Labouchere, of Thursday, October 13, an article appeared which is doubtless meant as a piece of clever writing. It has been copied into the American papers, and some Canadian journals have asserted that it is an attack on persons very high in authority in Canada. The article is as follows:—

Miss Carry Lee was the prettiest among the daughters of the widowed landlady who kept the Crown and Sceptre hotel, Windsor, but she gave her good mother much cause for concern by falling in love with a curate named Ducky, who was not the landlady object to curates in a general way. She rather liked them in their proper places—priests and as such—and she admitted that Ducky had a kind, pleasant voice, and dangerously soft eyes. But Ducky was not rich in this world's goods. Carry Lee rebelled, and after bestirring his hands was compatible with the wearing of fine linen, and as to sumptuous fare, why he looked, said the landlady, as if he had kept down his head and neck and thank the stars if you asked him to step in and eat a slice of the Sunday joint. Of course, such a trifling matter as the long hair of the reverend gentleman once Mrs. Lee perceived that her daughter was so happy in his company. Ducky was kept at a distance by the landlady, but he did not renounce against his banishment, but sighed plaintively.

AND OTHER MRS. CARRY. A young Ducky, as we saw her in church, all of which Miss Carry's blood boiled with sympathy, for two pious would have done as much for Ducky and his wife in private. So far from finding any body disposed to offer her two pinn for such a purpose, she was much harassed by the supervision of her mother, brother, and married sisters, who would scarcely allow her to walk out of their sight. So at length Carry Lee rebelled, and after bestirring his hands about the rights of damsels in a free country. She threatened to retire into a convent, and the landlady, who was a Protestant establishment; none but orthodox liguers was sold there. If her daughter turned out to be a good girl, she would be likely to say that the Jesuits paid her to poison her beer; on the other hand, she so strongly objected to her pretty daughter marry a poor curate, that she would have hardened her to the more against Mr. Ducky. Under these perplexing circumstances, she consulted her man of business, Mr. Bill, and he suggested a long-headed scoundrel named Mr. Mull, who supplied her with some whisky. Now Bill and Mull were cronies; and Mull had a son called Johnnie, who was a well-favored young traveller in the whisky trade. Mull had heard that Carry Lee had a few hundred pounds of her own, and would inherit a trifle more at her mother's death. Such money was a good thing, and Mull declared that he would make a nice little capital for a pushing young man. Besides, like Johnnie Mull, he thought that his son might do worse than marry Carry Lee, and he communicated his idea to Mr. Bill, who agreed. Mr. Mull, who was a well-to-do man, had a good deal of money, and he thought that the arrangement was the nicest one imaginable. She had often seen Johnnie Mull, and thought him a comely, respectable fellow, and she thought that she would like to have a son like him. He was a man of a pious turn, and he had composed some psalm tunes to play on the bagpipes—very suitable tunes for performance on large merrymen, where there was nobody within earshot.

OF COURSE, Carry Lee guessed why Johnnie Mull was so anxious to marry her. He was next visit to the Crown and Sceptre. Her mother wanted her to marry this acute and good lad, and she disliked him at first sight. But for all that, she would not refuse him. Carry's vocation for a clerical life was much less strong than she had imagined; celibacy, indeed, when she had a young man like Johnnie Mull, she would be glad to have a son like him. Carry was also displeased at the pusillanimity of Mr. Ducky. If that ecclesiastic had rapped her up in the window at the end of night, and had proposed that she should descend a ladder, and lie with him by the 2 a. m. train.

Carry's vocation for a clerical life was much less strong than she had imagined; celibacy, indeed, when she had a young man like Johnnie Mull, she would be glad to have a son like him. Carry was also displeased at the pusillanimity of Mr. Ducky. If that ecclesiastic had rapped her up in the window at the end of night, and had proposed that she should descend a ladder, and lie with him by the 2 a. m. train.

HE HAD COMPOSED SOME PSALM TUNES to play on the bagpipes—very suitable tunes for performance on large merrymen, where there was nobody within earshot. OF COURSE, Carry Lee guessed why Johnnie Mull was so anxious to marry her. He was next visit to the Crown and Sceptre. Her mother wanted her to marry this acute and good lad, and she disliked him at first sight. But for all that, she would not refuse him. Table with columns: COMPANIES, INSURANCE IN FORCE, TOTAL ASSETS, ASSETS PER POLICY. Includes ETNA LIFE, Canada Life, Confederation, Sun, Ontario Mutual, Mutual Life, Citizens.

Average last 6 Co's. . . . 6,774,128 198,094 12.16

The final column, above, is not found in the Official Report, but its accuracy can easily be ascertained by dividing the first column, minus the two right hand figures, into the second column.

A table of this kind shows at a glance how thoroughly the ETNA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY has been making provision for all who hold its promises to pay. If a business man holds a large amount of a Bank's promises to pay, he likes to feel assured, not merely that the Bank has good hopes of earning, in future, enough to meet its notes as they are likely to be presented, but that it actually has the money on hand, or most of it, to meet all claims, even if an unusually sudden call should be made.

Such sudden calls has happened to many banks, at various times, and the weak ones have gone under; such sudden calls happened to American Fire Companies at the Chicago and Boston conflagrations; to Canadian Fire Companies at the St. John and Quebec fires; and many companies unprepared to honour their cheap promises. An unusual call may fall at any time, upon the Life Insurance Companies of this continent, such as has, at different times visited portions of Europe. So long an influence as the epidemic, which visited Canada and the Northern States in 1872, ran the mortality of several life companies up 25 per cent. for one or two years, and caused many to drop their policies. Three large companies paid nearly a million dollars in that one year, in excess of the average of previous and subsequent years.

When the next unexpected call does come to life companies, the wisdom of those insurers who hold policies in the BEST STRONG STRONG COMPANIES will need no approval, but will then get abundance of it.

It is a good thing to be wise in time, and to act, if at all, on the SAFE side, by committing one's money to a good house, an immediate and safe provision for dependent ones, or your own old age, by one of those popular ETNA LIFE ENDOWMENT BONDS.

—The causes of colds are getting overhauled in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, or cooling too rapidly after exercise, muffled up warm and changing to lighter wearing, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause, Hayward's Peppermint Cure is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

—No action is so short as that unbounded popularity in so short a time as Bardsoll's Blood Balm, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine gives its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.
