IN presenting to the people of Newfoundland a Directory of ST. JOHN'S, HARBOR GRACE, and CARBONEAR, the Compiler wishes to state that he has used his best efforts to render the publication complete and trustworthy.

In a work of the kind it is almost impossible to prevent some errors from creeping in, but he trusts these will be found few and unimportant. He will be grateful to any who will point out such mistakes, in order that in a future edition they may be rectified. The Compiler wishes to acknowledge his obligation to all who have assisted him, by giving the desired information, specially to George LeMessurier, Esq., acting Postmaster General; the members of the Colonial Government; and to the Rev. M. Harvey for the introduction descriptive of the Capital, so readily furnished gratuitously; to the Magistrates of Harbor Grace and Carbonear; and to the General Public, for the uniform courtesy with which they responded to all inquiries, and last, but by no means least, to those who, by their subscriptions and advertisements, have supported him in his enterprise.

ST. JOHN'S.

T. JOHN'S, the Capital of Newfoundland, is situated on the eastern shore of the peninsula of Avalon, 60 miles north of Cape Race, in latitude $47^{\circ} 33' 33''$ N., and $52^{\circ} 44' 10''$ of west longitude. It is $10^{\circ} 52'$ east of Halifax, and stands on the most eastern portion of the American land, Cape Spear, five miles south of St. John's, alone projecting a little further towards the Old World. It is 1000 miles nearer England than New York, and but 1640 miles from the coast of Ireland.

It is admitted by all travellers that the approach to the harbour of St. John's presents one of the most striking and picturesque views along the entire coast of America. In a lofty, iron-bound coast, a narrow opening presents itself, guarded by two great rocky portals. One of these is Signal Hill, 520 feet above the level of the sea, on the summit of which stands the "Block House," for signalling vessels as they approach the harbour. The other is the "South Side Hill," rising 100 feet higher, picturesque, rugged, and broken. From its base a rocky promontory juts out, forming the entrance of the Narrows, on one side, on the summit of which is Fort Amherst Lighthouse, where is heard the hoarse roar of the restless Atlantic, as the waves break on the rocks beneath. As the vessel glides between these rocky guardians, the voyager looks up, not without a feeling of awe, arising from the sublimity of the scene, at the great cliffs of dark-red sandstone, piled in broken masses on a foundation of gray slate rock. The entrance of the Narrows between these hills is about 1400 feet in width, and at the narrowest point, between Pancake and Chain Rock, the channel is not more than 600 feet. The Narrows are half a mile in length, and at their termination the harbour trends suddenly to the west, thus completely shutting out the swell from the ocean. In ten minutes after leaving the broad Atlantic, a steamer is moored at the wharf of a perfectly land-locked harbour. Vessels of the largest tonnage can enter at all periods of the tide, the rise of which does not exceed four feet. The harbour is a mile in length, and nearly half a mile in breadth. It is from five to ten fathoms in depth, and in the centre 90 feet deep. At its head is a Dry Dock, recently completed, 600 feet in length, 83 in breadth, and 26 in depth, capable of admitting the largest steamer afloat, with the exception of the Great Eastern.

The greater part of the city is built on sloping ground, on the northern side of the harbour, from the waters of which it presents a striking appearance, being crowned by the Roman Catholic Cathedral on the summit. The site could hardly be surpassed. On the southern side of the harbour the hills spring so abruptly from the water that there is only room for a range of warehouses and oil factories and a few dwelling houses. Three streets run parallel with the harbour and with one another, the whole length of the city, and these are intersected by a number of cross streets. The main streets are winding and very irregular, following the sinuosities of the harbour. Water Street, the principal business street, presents a substantial though not handsome appearance, the houses being of stone or brick. Shops, stores, and mercantile counting houses occupy the ground floors, while many of the merchants and shop-keepers live in the upper storeys. Fish stores, warehouses, and wharves project from behind, on the side next the harbour. Many of the shops present a very handsome appearance. Three-fourths of the city consist of wooden houses. Of late years an improved taste has shown itself in the erection of a superior description of dwelling houses, and the city is extending rapidly in various directions. There is an abundant supply of excellent water, which is brought from Windsor Lake, five miles distant and 500 feet above the sea-level. St. John's is rarely visited by epidemics, and is one of the healthiest cities on the American side of the Atlantic.

Among the public buildings the most important are Government House, a substantial and spacious building, erected in 1828, by the Imperial Government, at a cost of £30,000 sterling; the Colonial Building, erected in 1847, at a cost of 100,000 dols. It contains the Chambers of the Legislature, and most of the Government Offices. The Athenæum, completed in 1877, at a cost of 58,000 dols., containing a public hall, reading-room and public library, savings' bank, Surveyor General's office, museum, &c; St. Patrick's Hall, a building of noble proportions and handsome appearance, on the ground floor of which are the fine school-rooms of the Christian Brothers. A new Post Office is in course of erection, and will be a handsome and substantial structure. The new Atlantic Hotel was opened in May, 1885, and cost about 70,000 dols. It is a handsome erection, the apartments are airy and cheerful and handsomely furnished, capable of accommodating 70 guests. All modern improvements have been introduced, and careful provision is made for the comfortable accommodation of visitors. It contains dining hall, gentlemen's and ladies' parlours, five private parlours with rooms attached, billiard and smoking rooms—all fitted up in the most approved fashion. It surpasses any other hotel in the Lower Provinces, and is a credit to the city of St. John's.

The Churches in the city are the Church of England and Roman Catholic Cathedrals, St. Thomas' and St. Mary's (Church of England), St. Patrick's Church, River Head, three Methodist Churches, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and the Congregational Church.

The manufacture of seal and cod oil is carried on chiefly on the south side of the harbour. There are three iron foundries, two large machine shops, two boot and shoe factories, one nail factory, three furniture factories, two tobacco factories, three biscuit factories, and an extensive factory for the manufacture of cables, ropes, nets, twines, seines, &c.

In 1780, St. John's had a population of 1,605; in 1801, of 3,420; in 1812, of 7,075; in 1835, of 15,000; in 1874, of 23,890. The census taken in 1884 gave the total population of the city proper as 28,610. In regard to religious denominations the population stood as follows in 1884:—

Church of England, - - - - -	5,741
Church of Rome, - - - - -	17,693
Methodists, - - - - -	3,715
Presbyterians, - - - - -	973
Congregationalists, - - - - -	465
Other denominations, - - - - -	23

There are two Banks—the Union and Commercial—both fine ornamental buildings. The Public Hospital and the Penitentiary are outside the city, near Quidi-Vidi Lake; and the Lunatic Asylum, a handsome building of brick and stone, occupies a beautiful site four miles from St. John's.

From St. John's as a centre, visitors can make pleasant excursions in various directions, and enjoy the fine scenery which is met with everywhere. The drive to Portugal Cove, on the shore of Conception Bay, nine miles from St. John's, is very delightful in a fine summer day, and the scenery at the village and around the shore is wildly romantic and in some places beautiful. Virginia Water, a beautiful lake, fringed with dark dense woods, is three miles from St. John's, and a little beyond it is Logie Bay, a small cove between projecting cliffs, with bold and striking shore scenery. On the same shore are Outer Cove, Middle Cove, and Torbay, all accessible by a fine road from the capital, and but a few miles distant. The drive to these places presents some of the grandest specimens of the architecture of the sea, in majestic surf-beaten cliffs sculptured into the most fantastic and picturesque forms by the blows of the Atlantic billows throughout the long centuries of the past. Another favourite drive is to Petty Harbour, a fishing village nine miles south of St. John's, situated at the mouth of a narrow glen, at the foot of bare frowning ridges. The views at various points are very picturesque. The same road leads to the Bay of Bulls, 18 miles from St. John's, and Ferryland, 44 miles. The coast scenery, which constitutes the glory of the island, with its complexity of fiords, bays, coves, creeks, islands, headlands, and towering precipices, often hollowed out into vast caverns, can be seen to perfection in excursions to these localities.

Of course, all visitors will make a trip to Harbour Grace by railway, a distance of 86 miles. At the distance of 12 miles from St. John's, Topsail is reached, and the noble scenery of Conception Bay, which is rarely surpassed, at once opens to view. The railway runs close by the shore to Holyrood at the head of the bay, a most picturesque spot, and then strikes inland through dense woods and reaches Harbour Grace, the second town in the island. From this point, the excursion can be continued to Carbonear and Heart's Content. The latter is now world-famous as the spot where the Atlantic Cables emerge from the ocean, and whence messages are transmitted by the staff of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company. Here a fine view is obtained of Trinity Bay.

From Holyrood, a station on the railway, a good road leads to Salmonier, an arm of St. Mary's Bay, and to Placentia, on the shore of the bay of the same name, distant from St. John's 80 miles. No more charming excursion than the drive to these places could be imagined, the scenery being of the most beautiful, varied, and picturesque description.

Tourists who desire longer excursions, and enjoy sea-travel, can take the local steamers, which connect St. John's with the principal outports north and south. By the northern steamer they can visit Trinity, Bonavista, Twillingate, Notre Dame Bay, and go on to Battle Harbour, on Labrador, where, by another steamer, the whole coast of Labrador, with its magnificent scenery, as far north as Nain, may be seen, and the tourist can return by the same route, the time required by the entire trip being about three weeks. In the other direction, the coastal steamer visits all the principal southern and western harbours as far as Bonne Bay. Some of the finest scenery in the island is to be met with at Bay of Islands, Bonne Bay, and Bay of St. George.

Governor, Commander-in-Chief, and Vice-Admiral.
HIS EXCELLENCY SIR JOHN HAWLEY GLOVER, G.C.M.G.

Private Secretary and A.D.C.
Captain ST. JOHN ST. GEORGE ORD, R.A.

THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND.

ATLANTIC HOTEL,

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND.

THIS magnificent Building, which has just been opened, is prominently situated—commanding a view of the entrance to the harbour and city of St. John's, is in the immediate vicinity of the Custom House, Telegraph and Post Office, Railway Depot, Steamship Companies, Docks, and business portion of the city. It is heated by steam, and fitted with all modern improvements—such as Passenger Elevator, Pneumatic Bells, Speaking Tubes, Baths, with hot and cold water, and is lighted throughout with Gas; Post and Telephone Office, and Hair-Dressing Saloon, and in the Hotel there is a first-class Steam Laundry attached, where washing can be done at short notice. The building is elegantly furnished throughout, and visitors will find it to compare favorably with first-class Hotels in England or America.
