WHY HE LEFT.

Isaac J. Baxter, Former Police

Officer, Writes to the Star.

And Gives Some Reasons Why He

Left the Force—He Complains of Sergt. Campbell.

Isaac Baxter, who, until Monday last, was a member of the St. John police force, writes to the Star as follows:

I have resigned from the police force after serving for almost two years. My reasons for leaving are partly that I have got a fairly good knowledge in the west, but chiefly because of the way things are done in the police department. Some of the members are all right, but others are all wrong, and there were too many things done which I did not like.

Most of the trouble I found was with Sergt. Campbell, and I must say that he has done some pretty dirty tricks. The sergeant was supposed to visit the different beats and learn from the men whether things are all right, but there have been times when Campbell never spoke to me for a week. Over and over again I have caught him spying on me, sneaking around corners, and covering his badge with his hand.

One night I found a door open on Charlotte street, near Princess. It was a side door in a barber shop and when I was fastening it I heard someone in the street. I did not know what might be going on, so I ran out and saw Campbell making for King street as fast as he could travel. I doubled around Princess and Germain and met him near the corner of King. This is only one time, as an example, and he acts like this always, spying round instead of coming out like a man to meet us.

One of the very coldest nights last winter, as it was coming on towards morning, we saw him watching us for a long time in case we should step into a doorway to get warm. He was holding his dog in his arms for fear we should see the dog and know the sergeant was around. There are lots of things like this that made me tired of the job, for no matter how a man may try to do his work, every one on the force gives chances for the sergeants to report them.

Then, I don't like the way he arrests people. I have been with him often when we would see a man ahead of us who had perhaps a little too much, but who was getting along all right, and who would reach his home safe enough. Sergt. Campbell would follow that man, and if he staggered against a building or didn't walk just right he was nabbed, and charged with being drunk. And lots of these men no other officer on the force would touch, unless it was to help them along to their homes.

When we had the lock-ups on our beats full of men, I take things easy for the rest of the night, but if there were no prisoners in we had to hustle and find someone if there were any to be found.

Sergt. Campbell did not know how to speak to a man who was under the influence. He would not listen to anything, and arrested the poor fellows for next to nothing at all. Then he often asked me to go up and prove the cases when I could not swear the men were drunk. I have seen him on Water street accost a man and request him to go and speak to another who had been watching, to see if the latter would beg money, saying, "I would like to give that fellow six months." The man did as requested and came back and said that he had not been asked for money. Then Campbell wanted him to go again, but this plan was spoiled by a Carleton fisherman morning prisoner of mine let go yet, and I can go on the streets now in plain clothes without anyone ever saying I arrested him wrongly.

The first orders I got from Sergt. Campbell were to work the wood carts back against. After that Sergt. Campbell did not speak to me until Saturday, though he was expected to meet me three times a day for reports.

I could tell lots of other things, but they would only make trouble for other men on the job. I don't believe the heads of the department know what is going on, for on Monday I told Capt. Jenkins some things, and he was very much surprised. He said, "Do you really mean to tell me this is true?" And I said if the officers told all they knew some of the people around here would have their eyes opened.

I am going to leave today, and will return on Monday night, to go west on Wednesday. If any of the officers wish further information I am ready to give it.

ISAAC BAXTER.

STREET RAILWAY WORK.

The Street Railway Co. are now prepared for the changes to be made this summer in their power system. A gang of men are at work on the wires throughout the city, removing the old converters and doing other work necessary to suit the change from the direct to the alternating system. Almost a complete new plant has been ordered for the power house, and this will be extended to take in the old Colwell Candy Co. building. A new power machine for the street railway will be installed in the latter building, while most of the new lighting plant will go in the present power house.

When completed the company will give an all day and all night lighting service, and meters will be used altogether.

The Douglas Avenue work is being rushed for all it is worth, and is now, at the end of a week, almost half done. Ninety men are on the job today and whenever the job is finished these will be put on the extensions to the city line.

Of the six new cars recently purchased, four are now running and the other two are in the sheds undergoing some slight repairs. In the winter these cars will be heated by electricity, small heaters being placed under each chair. It is probable that all the old cars will be heated in the future in the same way.

MOOSEPATH PARK.

Moosepath Park has been in the hands of workmen for the past three weeks, and the improvements being made on it are now almost completed. The St. John Driving Co. have had a force of men at work and the track itself has been practically made over. Over $600 has been expended toward it, and it is now in better condition than ever before. 2,250 loads of earth, taken from the centre, have been put on the far end of the track, and the rest of the mile has received proper attention. All the old stands, with the exception of the grand stand, have been torn down and five new stalls for horses have been built at a cost of $300. A number of horses are now occupying the stalls, and others will be put out in the near future.

The grand stand may be remodelled at some future date, but for the present is only being painted. The track is now used every day by quite a number of horsemen.

Mrs. Rosanna McDonald of Brussels street, has returned from Boston where she was attending the funeral of her daughter, Mrs. Menhan.

Let us all enter enthusiastically into this popular movement. We do not believe that we lost one cent by closing our store at noon last Saturday. At all events the sales for the first five days of this month are considerable in excess of the first five days sales of this month a year ago. ILLEGAL SHAD FISHING.

Fish Warden Fred Belyea laid a complaint yesterday against eight Carleton fishermen for the illegal catching of shad. The matter will come up before Judge Ritchie in a day or two. This action on the part of the fish wardens was hastened yesterday morning when a Carleton fisherman landed a large number of shad at the end of South Market wharf. Particulars of this were given in yesterday's Star.

The fishermen who were reported yesterday for the illegal catching of shad were out again last night and made a fair catch. They contend that they are in no way violating the law, and have engaged a lawyer to fight the case, which promises to be a lively one before it is finished. The fish warden is determined to carry out the law and has intimated his intention of pushing the matter as far as he can.

When the case comes up before Magistrate Ritchie some evidence will be presented as to Sunday fishing, etc.

TO THE NORTHWEST.

The last of the series of home seekers' excursions to the Northwest passed through St. John last evening. There were three carloads of excursionists, chiefly young men. Forty-one of these were from Prince Edward Island, the others from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The majority of these people will remain in the west, but some are simply taking advantage of the excursion rates for a trip. It is not probable that there will be any harvesters' excursions this year, as so many immigrants have, during the season, gone to the west that it is expected that they will be able to handle the crops without assistance from the east.

IMPROVING THEIR STORE.

D. Macree's Sons, King street, are having a new front put in the second floor of their establishment. The windows are being enlarged and the flat will be used as a show room. A new passenger elevator is also being put in the building. James Myles is the contractor.
