WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN BARN WITH SKULL TERRIBLY SMASHED CORONER ORDERS AN INQUEST

Mrs. James C. Jenkins, Wife of a Well-To-Do Farmer, Dies as the Result of an Attack by a Vicious Horse, It Is Alleged---Rumors Afloat Cause the Authorities To Order an Investigation Into the Case.

HUSBAND SEEN BY THE ADVERTISER

Gave His Story of the Affair to a Reporter This Morning—Last He Saw of His Wife She Was Washing Pans—Boy Who Fed the Horse Apparently Failed to Close the Door of the Stall.

Mrs. James C. Jenkins, the wife of Mr. James C. Jenkins, a farmer, living on lot 19, concession 8, London Township, was found dead in the stable yesterday afternoon by her husband, death presumably having resulted from an attack by a horse.

Dr. MacNeill, of St. Johns, was hastily summoned, but the woman was dead when he arrived.

Sensational rumors were afloat, however, and Dr. MacNeill, after making full inquiries, deemed an inquest necessary.

The neighborhood is wrought up over the occurrence, and all sorts of rumors are flying.

The Husband's Story.

Yesterday afternoon, according to the story of Mr. Jenkins, he was working in the field, when he noticed a stallion, which he owned, running loose. He knew that it was extremely unusual for the animal to be out, and immediately went to the stable and drove it in. When he got in the stable he found his wife, he says, lying bleeding, unconscious in the passageway behind the stall.

Dr. MacNeill, as stated, was summoned and informed that the woman was dead. She had been removed to the house.

Woman's Head Smashed.

Upon examination he found the woman's head badly smashed. The left side of the skull was caved in, and the scalp torn off for a space as big as a man's hand. There were wounds on the left eye, and on the top and back of the head.

Death would have followed in a few minutes after the accident happened.

Dr. MacNeill Interviewed.

An alleged foul play story was current last evening and this morning and Dr. MacNeill was interviewed by The Advertiser.

"Yesterday afternoon I was summoned to the home of Mr. Jenkins, and was informed that Mrs. Jenkins had been trampled by a horse," he stated. "I drove as rapidly as I could to the place and on arriving I was told that she was dead.

"I found the skull smashed on the left side and wounds on the right eye, top of the head and base of the skull."

The explanation is that the woman went into the stable, and the stallion attacked her, crushing her scalp with his teeth.

Mrs. Jenkins was about forty years of age. There are several children in the family.

The funeral will be held on Sunday at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be made in St. Johns Cemetery.

Fatal Injuries.

"The injuries were fatal. Ugly rumors were afloat about the relations existing between Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins, and, as coroner, I made the fullest possible investigation.

"On what I was told, and what I saw, I considered it in the interests of justice to order an inquest.

"Wishing to avoid the difficulty that arose in the Kinrade case in which the consulting physician was barred from presiding as coroner as his evidence was material to the case, I consulted High Constable Hughes and Crown Attorney McKillop, and it was decided to call Dr. R. Ferguson, coroner, of London. He will go out and make an investigation at once.

Inquest Ordered.

When the alleged facts of the case were laid before Crown Attorney McKillop he at once ordered an inquest. A warrant for it was given to High Constable Hughes, and the jury will meet this evening at 8 o'clock. They will view the body and adjourn until Tuesday evening, when the post-mortem results will be given, and other witnesses examined.

Crown Attorney Speaks.

"There are certainly some suspicious circumstances in the case," said Crown Attorney McKillop, "and I deem it in the interests of justice to order an inquest. If there has been foul play, we want to know it, and if there has been none, it will clear Mr. Jenkins from the ugly rumors now current. An inquest is the only satisfactory solution of the affair."

Will Not Talk.

High Constable Hughes refused to make a statement. He is making an investigation, and has several of his men at work.

"I have nothing to say," he stated to The Advertiser. "We are gathering what evidence we can, and will present it at the inquest."

ADVERTISER REPORTER VISITS THE SCENE

Husband Gives His Version of the Affair to Representative of This Paper.

[By Our Own Man.]

St. Johns, July 31, 2 p.m.—An Advertiser reporter visited the scene of the accident this morning and had a conversation with Mr. Jenkins.

The latter talked over the tragedy freely, and told the same story he told to Coroner MacNeill.

"I was attending to some stock about 11:45 o'clock, when I noticed the stallion loose," he stated. "I drove him into the barn, and found my wife lying on the stable floor with her head smashed to pieces. I went and called two neighbors, W. McNaughton and Thomas Morrow. They helped me carry my wife into the parlor, and Dr. MacNeill was called.

Never Made Threats.

"Did you ever threaten your wife, as has been stated?" he was asked.

"No; I never did," he answered.

"It is said you and your wife quarrelled quite a bit?" the reporter continued. "Have you had a quarrel lately?"

"No, not lately," he replied.

Jenkins appeared willing to tell all he knew concerning the case.

The Dead Woman.

He showed the reporter into the parlor where the deceased was lying. The injuries to the head are frightful. It is literally smashed to pieces. There were no other marks on her body from the trampling of the horse's hoofs.

Lived in Westminster.

The family moved to London Township six years ago from Westminster Township.

They have six children, four boys and two girls, all quite young. They are: Charles R., Louis, Chester and James, and Anna and Ada.

Fifty-Five Years of Age.

Mr. Jenkins is about 55 years of age, a tall, spare man, with grey hair. The farm is well kept and well tilled. His reputation appears to be good.

Coroner Ferguson, High Constable Hughes and County Constable Corsaut are on the ground, and are making a rigid investigation.

Farmers Are Reticent.

Several of the farmers in the immediate vicinity were interviewed, but they will discuss the tragedy at no great length.

"We will say nothing now, but we will talk at the inquest," said one of them.

The deceased was Mr. Jenkins' second wife.

CZAR AT CHERBOURG

Nicholas Welcomed to France by President Fallieres.

Cherbourg, July 31. — A French naval division, consisting of the armored cruisers Marseillaise, Admiral Aube and Gueydon, and twelve torpedo boat destroyers, under command of Admiral Aubert, met the Russian squadron, accompanying the imperial yacht Standard, which has the Russian imperial family on board, off Cape Grisnez, today, and escorted it here. President Fallieres, on board the cruiser Galilea, met the Russian warships at the entrance to the roadstead, where he went on board the Standard, and extended to the Russian Emperor and Empress the French welcome.

The president, with their majesties, then returned to the Galilea, and the brilliant sea procession steamed into the harbor amid the booming of guns from the ships and forts. Their majesties will dine with President Fallieres on board the French battleship Verite tonight. Afterward they will witness from the deck of the warship a wonderful Venetian fete, consisting of illuminations, in honor of the Franco-Russian entente.

About 50 Socialists attempted to create a demonstration this morning against the visit of Emperor Nicholas, but were suppressed.

NEW LAMP CONCERN.

Hamilton, July 31. — The Canadian Tungsten Lamp Company, Limited, has been incorporated in this city to manufacture the Tungsten metallig filament lamp. The capitalization of the new company is $300,000, and the company is composed entirely of Hamilton men, with the exception of an Austrian, who holds the patent on the lamp. The company will operate the Ontario Lantern and Lamp Company works. W. H. Ginder, president of the latter company, is also president of the new organization.

People's Forum.

The meeting of the People's Forum will be held in St. George's Hall tomorrow afternoon instead of evening as formerly. Subject: "Taxation and How to Remedy It."

MANY INFANTS DIED DURING THE MONTH

Tuberculosis as Usual Exacted a Heavy Toll in July—Pneumonia Also.

INCREASE IN MARRIAGES

Stork Left Quite a Few Youngsters in the Homes of London—City Clerk's Statistics.

According to the vital statistics compiled by City Clerk Baker, the month of July was particularly hard on infants, no less than 14 babies, out of a total of 47 deaths for the month, succumbing.

A number of the them died from cholera infantum and kindred ailments.

The number of deaths for the month shows an increase over July, 1908, when 35 died, as compared with 47 this year.

Tuberculosis Busy.

Tuberculosis got in its deadly work as usual, five deaths from this disease being recorded. Pneumonia also was prevalent, four deaths being the toll exacted.

The percentage of old people dying was quite small. There were nine recorded, whose ages were above the allotted span of three score years and ten.

Stork on the Job.

The stork was comparatively busy, visiting 84 homes during July. This is an increase of but three over July, 1908.

Dan Cupid is getting busier, and 52 marriages were recorded during the month. This is 23 more than in 1908, rather an ominous number, but showing, however, an improvement in conditions.

DRUGGED AND ROBBED ON RAILWAY TRAIN

Chicago Man Lies in a Critical State in a Toronto Hospital

Toronto, July 31.—Unable to speak, and in a serious condition, Ernest Genoa, of 1427 North Holmstead street, Chicago, is in St. Michael's Hospital suffering from a blow on the back of the head. He was given a pad when he arrived at the hospital and wrote on it that he had been drugged and robbed on a train coming from Hamilton about 3 o'clock this morning. He also said he got his injuries in Hamilton, and was attacked by a pugilist. He claims he lost $80. It is feared he may die.

WELL! WELL! WOULD YOU LISTEN TO THIS!

The Weather Man Says July of This Year Was Cooler Than Same Month of1 908.

The monthly weather report issued from the local observatory, shows that July of this year was cooler than in 1908, and that the rainfall was about one-third as heavy.

During the month just ended 1.11 inches of rain fell, while in July of last year there were 3.35 inches—over eter reached the highest point on the eter reached th highest point on the 12th, when 90.5 was recorded, and the lowest on the 5th, the temperature being 42.5 on that day. The highest and lowest readings for the same month a year ago were 935. and 47.5.

A PLUCKY CATCH OF RUNAWAY HORSE

Mr. Ed. Cavanaugh Made a Hit With the Crowd on the Market Today.

A horse attached to a light democrat wagon owned by a farmer named Weir, from Parkhill, and in charge of Mr. Weir's young son, took fright on the market this morning and for a time it was thought that many people in the crowded square would be injured. The boy jumped from the seat as the animal dashed through the weigh scales and was uninjured. A moment later the runaway was thrown, the rig being turned completely over.

Mr. Cavanaugh, who was standing at the side of the scales, secured a hold on the bridle as the horse came by, throwing it to the ground as it turned toward the crowd.

The harness was badly smashed and the wagon damaged.

INGERSOLL BOY CANNOT BE FOUND

Detroit, Mich., July 31.—Richard A. Norman, of Ingersoll, Ont., is seeking information that will lead to the recovery of his boy, Ellis Norman, who disappeared from his home on July 28. The father is convinced the boy has gone on one of the lake boats. A reward of $50 is offered for information regarding to the missing boy.

Small Fire.

The firemen were called this morning to the residence of Mrs. Barratto 7 Cavendish street, west London, where a stove pipe caused a fire which did $50 damage to the kitchen.

The Late Miss Simons.

The funeral of Miss Florence Simons who died at Victoria Hospital Thursday, was held this afternoon from the residence of her parents. Interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Whiting, of the First Methodist Church.

LONDON'S POPULATION WILL NOT LIKELY REACH 50,000 MARK

Assessment Commissioner Grant Says the Returns From Wards 1 and 2 Are Disappointing—A Vote on Sunday Cars in January Next Seems Out of the Question.

The population of the City of London will not reach 50,000 when the census is completed.

That is the opinion of Assessment Commissioner Grant, who has completed the assessment of ward 2.

This ward will show a considerable decrease in population, much more than was anticipated.

The outlying portions of the ward showed an increase, but the downtorn, or business section, shows a great dropping off.

Not 50,000 People.

"We will not have 50,000 population this year," said Mr. Grant. "I expected that we would, but the late returns from Ward 2 do not improve conditions. The boarding-house section shows a great falling off, so great that the ward will show no increase, but rather a considerable decrease. I do not expect that we will have 50,000 population. It will probably be some under that.

Same in Ward 1.

"The same is true of Ward 1. The outlying sections, especially South London, show an increase, but the business section, and the boarding houses will show a decrease.

"The districts adjacent to the city are building up very fast, especially in Chelsea Green and near the Hamilton road.

"They must be fed from the parent stem, and that is causing some fluctuation in our population."

Thus the chances of a vote on Sunday cars are very slim.

BIG POWER STATION CONTRACT WILL BE AWARDED NEXT WEEK

Meeting Will Be Held in Toronto to Consider the Tenders for the Necessary Work—It Is Now Up to London to Say What Shall Be Done Regarding Niagara Power for This City.

[Special to the Advertiser.]

Toronto, July 31—The contracts for the transformer station for London will be let in Toronto on Wednesday next.

The tenders are practically all in at the present time, work will be commenced at once, and will be hurried to completion.

This announcement will have an important bearing on the local power situation and may influence the council on Monday evening when dealing with this question.

Tenders for other stations will also be considered at the same time.

SHOT PRIESTS AT ALTAR STEPS

Incredible Ferocity of Maddened Mobs of Barcelona.

WORSE THAN COMMUNE

Latest Dispatches Say That Order Is Rapidly Being Restored.

London, July 31.—Official dispatches from Barcelona dated today, say the 8,000 troops in Barcelona have improved the conditions in the city. The complete restoration of order is expected when further reinforcements arrive there.

Paris, July 31.—Although all the direct dispatches received from Madrid which pass through the hands of censor, agree that General Brandos, the military commander of Barcelona, ruthlessly has crushed the revolt there, executing many ringleaders, and that the Government now is master of the situation, reports filtering out from the French frontier at Cerebere, none of which, however, were later than noon on July 29, indicate that the mob until then had the upper hand, and that nothing in history with the exception of the Paris Commune approached the ferocious drama being enacted.

Bolt From Blue.

In the tales brought out from Spain much remains obscure, but all the reports agree that the movement was skillfully organized and broke like a bolt from a clear sky. Three facts stand out prominently. First, the troops in the earliest stages refused to fire on the mob, either because they were numerically inferior or because they were in sympathy with the mob; second, the movement was distinctly revolutionary and anti-clerical, and third, the fury of the mob was vented almost entirely against the church and its representatives, private property being generally spared.

Eye witnesses saw the mob everywhere acclaiming the troops, while cursing and fighting the police and the civil guard and the cries were "Down with the government," "Down with the king," "Long live the republic."

Incredible Ferocity.

The stories of the ferocity of the mob toward church property and the priests, monks, and nuns are incredible. The monks who could not escape through the subterranean passages in the monasteries, were beaten and killed. The nuns fleeing from the burning convents were driven, half naked, through the streets, and the priests, it is reported, were shot at the steps of the altar. It is even stated that the mangled remains of the monks were carried on poles through the streets by ten thousand people, and that the captain-general was helpless to interfere.

The many reports agree that the revolutionary committee directed everything. Notwithstanding this anticlerical ferocity, other reports intimate the Carlists, who stand for clerical reaction in Spain, had a hand in the organization of the uprising.

TO RAISE THE BANS.

Ottawa, Ont., July 31. — The Canada Gazette contains notice of the rescinding of the animal contagious diseases act, so far as this applies to the importation of hay, straw or other fodder from the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Michigan, Delaware and Maryland.

Attorney-General of Ontario Is Said To Be After Canadian Underwriters' Association.

STATUS BEING PROBED

It Is Said the Association Is Not an Incorporated Body — A Letter From the Secretary to The Advertiser.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, July 31. — It is reported here that the Ontario Government will investigate the status of the Canadian Underwriters' Association.

It is understood that this association is not an incorporated body, and Attorney-General Foy will make an effort to discover the status of the association.

The matter has been brought to a climax by the demands of the underwriters throughout Ontario, and an attempt will be made to regulate the insurance matters of the Province.

JULY BANK CLEARINGS SHOW BIG INCREASE

The Local Returns Reflect Very Prominently the Return of Good Times.

The bank clearings for July show an increase of $587,937, over the same period of last year, the figures being $5,033,300 for July of last year, and $5,620,237 for the present month.

This is another evidence of the return of prosperity.

A LONDON MISSIONARY IN BURNING OSAKA

Miss Annie Archer Stationed at Oaska, Which Is Being Fire-Swept

The dispatches from Japan this morning telling of the great fire at Osaka, which threatens to destroy the entire city, are of special interest to Londoners, as Miss Annie L. Archer, a native of this city, resides in Osaka, where she represents the Canadian Church Missionary Society. Miss Archer has been stationed there for several years, returning some time ago after a furlough. Miss Archer is widely known throughout Ontario, having addressed many meetings durher last furlough.

BRAND NEW MOVE TO GOVERN CITY

Real Estater Gives a List to The Advertiser of Possible Candidates.

A BOARD OF CONTROL

Is Favored in Order to Expedite Business—Names of Those Whom Some Believe Should Run for Office.

At the present time the Real Estate Owners are looking into the question of government by commission or a board of control. Such a plan has been most successful in Galveston, Texas, and other American cities, and the association is taking the matter up with Galveston people, and after obtaining all the information possible will lay it before the citizens. In Galveston the municipal work is all in the hands of three men, and according to the best authorities the system is one of the most economical ever devised.

"We are going to investigate thoroughly," a member of the R. E. O. A. told the Advertiser today.

"The system of government in this city if carried on much longer as it is will make London a good place to get out of. There are few places in the Dominion where such extravagance is carried on as it is here.

"There are far too many people required to do the work, because under the present system it has to be passed around from one body to another and is not systematized."

The Slate.

A present member of the association gave the following names as a first draft of a possible slate for January next. The gentlemen named would, he said, give the city good government and would represent all classes:

FLAMES RAZING A GREAT CITY OF MIKADO

Osaka, Japan, Is Being Swept by an Immense Conflagration.

FAMOUS TEMPLE IS DOOMED

One of the Imperial Cities With a Population 750,00 May Be Completely Destroyed.

Osaka, Japan, July 31. — A fire which threatens to destroy this city started at 4 o'clock this morning, and in spite of the most energetic efforts to check it, it is still burning. The firemen who have been fighting all day, are completely exhausted, and troops have been called out to assist in fighting the flames and to preserve order in the city. Everything is dry on account of the drought, and the water supply is failing. The fire is being fanned by a strong breeze, and thousands of buildings, including the world-famous Buddhist Temple, already have been destroyed. The total loss will be large. A number have been killed and seriously injured by the fire.

Osaka is one of the three "imperial cities" of Japan, and is one of the most important manufacturing and commercial cities of the empire. It shelters almost three-quarters of a million people.

The Buddhist Temple, for which the city is famous among travellers, covers an enormous area. The chief public building of Osaka is the palace built of stone in 1583.

BUILDING CONTINUES TO BOOM IN LONDON

Permits in July Totalled in Value $71,008—Over Double That of Same Month Last Year.

Building continues to boom in the city.

During the month of July there were 56 permits issued for a total of $71,008. This is over twice the total of July, 1908, when twelve permits were issued by City Engineer Graydon for a total of $34,600.

The permits now number over 500 for the first seven months, and total $628,797. Before the year is out the amount of building is expected to reach nearly $800,000.

The most important building for which permits were taken out during the month was for the Wortley road school.

MARINA CAN HOLD OUT UNTIL HELP ARRIVES

Has Seventeen Thousand Men and Strong Batteries to Defend Melilla,

Paris, July 31.—The Matin correspondent who has just arrived at Melilla, Morocco, telegraphs that General Marina, commander of the Spanish forces on the Riff Coast, says he can easily hold his position until the arrival of reinforcements, when again he will take the offensive.

The correspondent says that the Spanish force is composed of 17,500 men which will be brought up to 23,500 when General Perreros' brigade arrives, and two batteries of sixty millimetro guns and six mountain batteries. He declares it is impossible even to estimate the losses sustained by the Spaniards in the big battle of July 27, as the dead were not identified and were buried in the common trenches on the field. About 800 wounded men were counted as they were being brought into Melilla on stretchers. Many soldiers were reported missing.

Out of one company composed of thirty men only 23 reported after the battle.

The correspondent was struck by the apparent indifference of the people of Melilla.

Gen. Marina did not attend the funeral of Gen. Pintos, whose body was followed to the grave by less than one hundred persons.

A TERRIBLE CRIME

Homesteader Makes a Revolting Attack on Woman and Children.

Craik, Sask., July 31. — One of the most horrible crimes in the history of the west was committed near here Thursday by Alvin Neff, homesteader, who went to the house of a neighbor named Federshill during the absence of the man and after forcing his way into the house knocked the woman insensible and then outraged her. He also terribly abused her two little children. Later he returned to the house and dragged the unfortunate woman out on to the prairie while in a nude condition, and threatened to kill her and her children if she told. His victims are now in a very serious condition. Neff has been arrested and is now feigning insanity, although he is believed to have committed the crime while under the influence of liquor. He is a married man with a family.

COUNTRY AND CITY LIFE

There has been in the past a very prevalent opinion amongst a great many people that life in the cities and towns had many attractions and advantages not to be found in the country. The consequence has been that thousands of people have left comfortable homes and independent occupations to seek in cities and towns employment which in many cases has proven unsteady, uncertain, slavish and dependent. A few years of their new mode of life has convinced many of these people that they made a mistake and that the attractions and advantages which they once fancied they saw in city and town life was visionary and unreal. Many of these, as well as others who understand the real advantages of country life are buying farms of from three to one hundred acres depending on the kind of farming they intend following and the price they are able to pay. We have some splendid farms to sell at reasonable prices.

The following are short descriptions of a few of the farms we have for sale:

No. 6101—100 acres in the Township of Tuckersmith, in the County of Huron; soil rich clay loam, all well drained, 7 acres of orchard, fences mostly woven wire, two-story brick house 36x28, two-story brick kitchen 24x16, cellar full sige of house, house heated by furnace, bank barn, horse stable, cement floor, shed for hay and sheep 50x26, other outbuildings; situated on gravel road, half-mile to school and church, four miles to Brucefield market, five miles to Seaforth and Clinton markets.

No. 6100—45 acres in the Township of Bosanquet, in the County of Lambton; soil clay and sandy loam, level land, drained by tile and natural drains, one-story frame house 18x24, frame barn 32x50, and other outbuildings; on gravel road, half-mile to school, 1½ miles to Thedford, church, market, railroad station and postoffice.

No. 6090—50 acres in the Township of Woodhouse, in the County of Norfolk; soil clay loam, 30 oak trees, drained by natural drains, 1½-story frame house, frame barn 30x80, on stone blocks; situated on gravel road, one mile to school and church, four miles to Jarvis market and railroad station, one mile to Marburg postoffice.

No. 6077—100 acres in the Township of Walpole, in the County of Haldimand; soil clay loam, 85 acres cleared, land level and rolling, watered by one drilled well; 2 acres of orchard, 1½-story frame house 22x36, frame kitchen 22x30, bank barn 40x50; on gravel road, half-mile to Selkirk school, church, market and postoffice, one mile to Lake Erie, twelve miles to Hagersville.

For further list of the properties we have for sale, see today's Free Press, or send for our catalogue of farms for sale in any county north or west of Toronto.

LUXURIES HIGHER NECESSARIES LOWER

The General Trend of Uncle Sam's Amended Tariff Measure.

Washington, July 30.—When Majority Leader Payne, head of the House conferees on the tariff bill which bears his name, rose in the House of Representatives today to present the report of the conference committee of the two Houses on the bill, the measure had been in conference for just three weeks.

Proceeding on the theory that the bill marks a general downward tendency from the present rates of duty, Mr. Payne presented, but did not read, an exhaustive analysis of its provisions. This statement, he said, had been prepared by himself, and he asked to have it printed as an official document. There was objection, however, from the Democratic side, and the printing was prevented for the time. In this statement Mr. Payne undertook to show that there had been a marked decrease in the rates on the necessaries of life, while admitting that there had been an increase on some of the luxuries.

Metals Reduced.

Probably the most marked reductions throughout any schedule of the bill, the result of the action of the two Houses and of the conference committee, are found in the metal schedule. Beginning with a decrease in the rate of iron ore from 40 to 15 cents per ton, there is a general reduction throughout the portion of the bill proceeding, iron going down from $4 to $2 50 per ton and scrap iron from $4 to $1. The reduction on many of the items in this schedule amounts to about 50 per cent, and this reduction includes steel rails. There is an increase on structural steel ready for use and also a slight increase on razors, clippers and on such new metals as tungsten.

Lumber Rates Cut.

Rough lumber goes down from $2 to $1 25 per thousand feet, with a corresponding reduction in the different classes of dressed lumber. The wool schedule underwent no change of consequence, but the entire cotton schedule was reconstructed and the phraseology greatly changed in the hope of preventing reductions through decisions by the courts, such as have characterized the administration of the Dingley law during the latter years. In many instances rates intended to be imposed by the Dingley law were cut by these decisions, the reductions in some instances being from 60 per cent to 8 per cent ad valorem. It is estimated that the rates fixed by the bill are about 3 per cent higher upon an average than collected on cottons last year. The rates on cotton hosiery are generally increased.

Silk and Gloves.

In the much-contested matter of the rates on gloves, the high protection in this fails to score. They sought throughout on increase made by the House to raise the duty materially above the Dingley figures, but were antagonized by the Senate, and the Senate won, the only change made in the entire schedule being one slight reduction.

The silk schedule was reconstructed with a view of imposing specific rather than ad valorem duties, with the result that the average duty will be somewhat higher under the new law than under the present statute.

Oilcloths and linoleums are heavily cut, but otherwise the changes in the flax, hemp and just provision were not material. A slightly increased duty is provided for hemp, both crude and hackled, and also on certain high-grade laces. On yarns and mattings there is a reduction. On sugar and tobacco duties remain substantially as they were under the Dingley law. The free importage of certain quantities of both of these articles from the Philippine Islands is permitted, and a material change was made in the internal revenue law by an amendment making the tax on sales of tobacco in the hand.

There is a uniform increase on spirits, wines and liquors of 15 per cent. On the agricultural schedule hops are increased 12 to 16 cents a pound, and there is also an increase on lemons, figs, almonds and pineapples.

Cotton window mesh, in which the imports are heavy, is given reduction, and where the changes were made in the chemical schedule there was a general increase except upon such articles as fancy soaps, and perfumes, which were increased.

Pulp, Paper and Hides.

The publishers win their fight for lower woodpulp and print paper, the rate on ordinary newspaper print paper being fixed at $3 75 per ton, instead of $6, as under the Dingley law, and under grade of print paper at $3 75, instead of $8. Mechanically ground woodpulp is to come in free of duty instead of paying one-twelfth of a cent on a pound, as under the Dingley law, but provision is made for countervailing duty in case it becomes necessary to protect the United States against Canada's inhibitions upon the exportation of wood to the United States.

Hides of cattle come in free, and there is a corresponding reduction on leather and leather goods. The House rates are practically retained on sole leather, leather for uppers, boots and shoes and harness, but the free hide provision is based on the condition that on and after Oct. 1, 1909, sole leather from the hides that are to be admitted free will pay a duty of 5 per cent. Boots and shoes, the upper leather of which is made from such hides, 10 per cent, and harness and saddlery, 20 per cent. This schedule of rates will result in the reduction of 15 per cent on boots and shoes, 20 per cent on harness and saddlery, 15 per cent on sole leather and 12½ per cent on leather for uppers, if made of hides that are put on the free list by the provision.

THE REPATRIATION OF THE JEW.

For years there has been a movement on foot to settle the wandering tribes of Israel in Palestine. Enthusiastic Zionites have spoken for it, worked for it, organized their efforts for it. Money has been liberally subscribed for it. One bequest alone of a devoted Jew, Baron de Hirsch, provided $45,000,000 for it. But hitherto no satisfactory scheme for carrying into effect the dream and hope of the Zionists has been devised. The last congress of Zionists was divided in opinion whether to accept an offer from Britain to settle in a part of her African possessions, or to unite all their energies for the acquisition of Palestine.

The main difficulty with regard to Palestine has been that under Turkish rule, as exemplified by Abdul Hamid, there was no certainty of protection, much less of self-government. The ex-sultan was quite capable of encouraging the Jews to settle in Palestine, promising them everything they asked for, and then when he got them in his territory, squeezing them dry. But under the administration of the Young Turks, which is certainly very liberal in its professions of tolerance and its promises of liberty, things have a brighter appearance. An invitation has been extended to the Zionists to come over to Mesopotamia and establish a Jewish state, with home rule. This is now under consideration, and the leaders of the movement appear inclined to accept the offer.

Mesopotamia would doubtless be a good field for settlement. At present it is little else than a desert. With over 100,000 square miles it has not ten people to the mile. But it is a level country, with two great rivers — the Tigris and Euphrates. With irrigation it would be as fertile as Egypt. With assured protection, if that could be obtained, and with a good system of irrigation, which the Hirsch bequest could provide, a Jewish state there might prosper. How far self-government would be an unmixed blessing depends on the character of the settlers. With the Jews of civilized Europe and America, its success would be assured. But these are not of the class likely to emigrate. In fact, one of the great objects of the movement is to provide a home for the oppressed Jews of Russia and Southeastern Europe. How far 5,000,000 Jews, more or less, accustomed for centuries to oppression and slavery, could govern themselves if suddenly given freedom, is a question not easily answered. People have to be prepared for self-government; suddenly emancipated, they are unable to realize that liberty without obedience to law is a misnomer; freedom is for them only another name for license.

However, there is enough ability, energy and money among the Jewish people to make almost any experiment a success. But it will demand all these qualifications to gather up a few million people and translate them from Europe to Asia. And even then, they would not be in Palestine. Mesopotamia is not the old land of the tribes of Israel. It is the land of the people with whom they had to fight, and into which they were carried as exiles when defeated. But probably it is near enough to the promised land to satisfy most Zionists.

Many Gentiles take a lively interest in the repatriation of the Jew, believing it to be an event forecast in Scripture prophesy. Of course, some hold that Biblical promises do not apply simply to those who are lineal descendants of the children of Abraham, to whom Palestine was originally given. It is held that the true "seed of Abraham" is spiritual, not physical, and that the true children of promise are those who follow and worship Jesus, and not the descendants of those who crucified him. Without running the risks attendant upon a theological discussion, we will confess an inclination to the belief that the repatriation of the Jews, if it is ever accomplished, will be effected on practical lines, independent of Christian opinions.

What may be the result of this latest development of the Zionistic movement we are not disposed to forecast. In mediaeval days the Jew flourished under Moslem protection when he was persecuted by Christians. There seems no reason to question the possibility of his achieving prosperity under the Crescent once more.

WESTERN FORESTRY WORK.

The forestry branch of the department of the interior is just now conducting an important work in the western provinces. Two members of the staff, Messrs. R. M. Campbell and A. Knechtel, were in Winnipeg a few days ago, and in the course of an interview the first-named gentleman gave some interesting information as to reforesting of the denuded areas on the forest reserve of the West—a work that is proving most satisfactory. In Germany areas which have ceased to be suitable for cultivation owing to their having become mere sand beds have been reclaimed as a result of tree planting, and believing that what has been accomplished in that country is quite possible in this, the forestry branch is devoting much attention to the afforesting of such areas in the Canadian west. In Manitoba, where there have been very few forest reserve fires this year, new areas for forest reserves are being marked out, while similar work is being carried on in the provinces further west.

The work, as the Winnipeg Free Press points out, while one of which the general public have little or no knowledge, is of incalculable value to the future of the whoe country, and in the years to come the people of Canada will fully recognize the wise foresight of the present Dominion Government in creating the forestry branch and providing for the work it is doing.

CANADIANS ALL.

The fact that the tide of Canadian emigration is turning towards our own Northwest was referred to by Hon. Frank Oliver, minister of the interior, in the course of an interview in old London recently. He pointed out that in every centre, little or big, in the West, the lawyer, the doctor, the preacher, the teacher, the merchant, the banker, is almost always an Eastern Canadian, and these are the people who largely direct public opinion. We used to lose our best people to the United States, but now our own west is the attraction. All the governments of the prairie provinces are composed of Eastern Canadians. Of the representation of the provinces in the Dominion House of Commons all but three of the twenty-seven members are Eastern Canadians, two being British and one American-born.

Another point to be remembered is that the Government's first efforts in the way of obtaining immigrants from the United States were directed towards getting back some of our own people. It should also be taken into account that there are many Europeans who go through the same experience as the Canadians who emigrated to the United States. These people have no particular loyalty to the republic. After the country of their birth they would be most loyal to the country that offered them the best opportunities. The American, who is especially enthusiastic about his country, does not, as a rule, leave it. The man who comes to Canada from the States is the immigrant who comes to better his condition. He comes here because of what we offer—good institutions, cheap land, low taxes, liberty, law and order. There is no reason why these people should not be loyal to Canada. Many nationalities are to be found in this Dominion, but the tendency of all is to become good Canadians. The fact that they must speak English in order that each such group may communicate with the other, tends to make them so.

FIRST TO WIN IT.

[Toronto Globe.]

A quarter of a century ago the present Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Hon. J. M. Gibson, won the Prince of Wales prize. It was the first time a Canadian had won any of the big prizes. The shooting then took place on Wimbledon Common.

A CASE OF EXPLANATION.

[Goldwin Smith.]

Our Provincial Premier denies that the Cobalt act was confiscation. The Dominion minister of justice says positively that it is. The Provincial Premier say that he did not close the door of justice. A Provincial judge says that he did. This is surely, to say the least, a case not for bravado, but for explanation. It is evident that Professor Dicey, an English jurist, whatever he may think as to the legal position, fully recognizes the gravity of the case and the fundamental importance of the principles threatened. So would any English jurist, so, it is apprehended, would any American. The English of the United States have remained true to the principles of the Great Charter.

UNCLE SAM'S STUPIDITY.

[New York Sun.]

American sales in Canada may be somewhat affected by the advantage given (under the Franco-Canadian treaty), to French wines, silks and other products, most of which are in the "luxury" class. Alarmed by the advantages soon to be secured by France and by the check given its trade by the imposition of the Canadian surtax a few years ago, Germany is seeking to establish reciprocal trade relations with the Dominion. The United States alone seems indifferent to the ever widening opportunities across the border. It is true that Canada comes to this country for a large share of its requirements and that for various reasons we may reasonably expect a continuance of our business with that country. It is equally true that with preference given to England by Canada and with reciprocal relations between Canada and France and between Canada and Germany, American sales must be more or less seriously affected.

There is much that we should continue to sell to Canada under any conceivable conditions, but there is also much trade that probably will go across the sea as a result of our present short sighted policy. The currents of trade in North America and in fact in the western hemisphere should flow north and south. This is particularly true in the cast of trade between the United States and Canada. The trade current in that case is natural and is restricted only by the utterly indefensible policy of this country. It is not at all to the credit of the people of the "greatest nation in the world" that they should so fear the invasion of their home market by the Canadians or that they should be so blind to the royal advantages of intimate trade relations with them.

We are properly alert on the subject of our trade with China, and we turn our backs stolidly upon Canada. The total imports of the two countries during the last ten years have been practically the same. It is a safe prediction that for the next ten years the imports of Canada will exceed those of China. Our competitors are struggling for a market toward which we, to our own loss, are stupidly indifferent.

SOMETHING DOING OUT WEST.

[Calgary News.]

Passenger service on the G. T. P. from Edmonton to Winnipeg is scheduled for August 15. Isn't it almost enough to make one sit up and rub his eyes to think of three roads running over eight hundred miles west of Winnipeg already, and another bunch coming fast?

THE CONFIRMED CRIMINAL.

[Hamilton Times.]

Is it not time that we cease to deal with the criminal as if by his offence he had earned special consideration at our hands? Why should we blubber over him, coddle him, and feed him on the lollypops of life, while we turn the cold shoulder upon that rugged honesty which toils and endures rather than quit the narrow path? Why should we not make "imprisonment at hard labor" something in keeping with the term? Why should the criminal not be made to leave the prison with such a dread and horror of it—with such a realization of what prison hard labor means—that he would be ready to sacrifice and suffer much rather than to return to ways of crime and a new term behind the bars?

COMING OUR WAY.

[Hamilton Times.]

The Wall Street Journal, in referring to the great inrush of United States capital into Canada, mentions the sometimes overlooked fact that a considerable sum which appears under the head of imports is really to be classed as investments—as so much gain to Canadian wealth. For some years back, settlers have been pouring into Western Canada, bringing with them many millions of dollars in cash and effects. Millions, too, have been transferred to Canada in the shape of manufacturing plants and construction materials. The Wall Street Journal does not regard the excess of Canadian imports as cause for anything but gratification. "The Dominion," it says, "is equipping herself as a manufacturing unit." A contributor to the Monetary Times takes a similar view, and very pertinently remarks: "One well ascertained feature of the abnormally high tariff wall, with which our Republican neighbors have surrounded themselves, is that it hampers United States manufacturers in their efforts to extend their foreign trade. It makes them pretty secure in their home market, but stands seriously in their way when they want to sell goods to the rest of the world. Executive officials of more than one of the big industrial companies which have lately erected plants in Canada, have acknowledged that they are able to compete in the world's markets much more advantageously with their Canadian plants than with their home plants in the United States." Canada is pursuing a wise policy, and one that will not fail to lay securely the basis of a great and permanent prosperity.

TRUE IMPERIAL UNION.

[Quebec Chronicle.]

Many of the advocates of closer imperial union are too prone to act like impatient children, who, not content to sow the seed, and assist its natural growth, must always be digging it up to see how it is getting on. Perhaps it is hard to work on in hope and rest in that faith which is the evidence of things not seen. But there is no other way than this.

Imperial sentiment in the British states was never more robust than it is today. Difficulties and obstacles that appeared insurmountable a quarter of a century ago have disappeared simply because their existence depended on the pursuance of policies now abandoned. What should be done is to develop the spirit of loyal co-operation and to encourage that temper of mind which seeks points of agreement rather than of variance.

IT'S GERMANY'S MOVE.

[Hamilton Herald.]

We are told that a movement has been started in Germany for the cultivation of closer trade relations with Canada. It has gone so far as the organization of a society called the German-Canadian Economic League, and the league proposes to send agents here to find out what's the matter and to suggest ways and means of improving the commercial relations of the two countries.

The movement is quite superfluous. The new league can find out what the matter is without the expense of sending agents to Canada. It began in Berlin. The German Government thought it would be good policy to punish Canada because Canada had granted a trade preference to the mother country. If an example were not made of Canada, the other self-governing colonies in the British empire might do the same thing, and that might be very bad for German trade. So the German Government punished Canada by penalizing Canadian goods with the maximum rate of duty. The Canadian Government didn't take its punishment lying down, but retaliated by putting a stiff extra duty on German goods. Naturally this little tariff war has resulted in the discouragement of trade between the two countries. It is too bad, of course, and it ought to be stopped; but the Government which began it can stop it whenever that Government so wills. Let the German Government cease its foolish and autocratic policy of punishing Canada for discriminating in favor of other British countries, and Canada will respond by removing the super-tax on German goods.

It is obvious that the Canadian Government cannot remove the super-tax until the German Government lifts the ban which it has placed on Canadian products; for if Canada were to move first she would virtually admit that Germany's action was justifiable, and that the Canadian tariff preference in Britain's favor is unjust to Germany. This country cannot afford to make any such admission. The preferential tariff represents a principle which may yet prove of prime importance not only to Canada, but to the whole British Empire.

KOMOKA.

Komoka, July 29.—Mr. and Mrs. Pender, of Wingham, are spending a few days with relatives here.

Mr. Mumnery, of Hamilton, was a visitor here this week.

Rev. Dr. Nixon is on his vacation at present.

Miss Stewart spent Sunday at her home here.

Mrs. McClerg has been on the sick list.

Mrs. Cornell, of Lambeth, has been spending a couple of weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Tunks.

Last week the members and friends of the Methodist League were entertained by the Delaware League in the Methodist Church, Delaware, and a most delightful time was spent. A goood programme was provided, after which lunch was served. This exchange of meetings is decidedly helpful to both societies, and it would be a splendid idea if all young people's societies adopted the motto, "Be Cheerful and Pass It On;" then everything would be in harmony and everyone would be happy.

Mr. Dave McDougall is very ill at his home here.

Mr. Will Mowat, of the George A. Blackwell Company, has left on a trip to the east.

Mr. John Tunks has returned from a visit to Calgary and Edmonton and reports splendid prospects for the crops in the west.

Mr. Cornell and daughter, of Lambeth, visited here recently.

The members of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society were entertained very pleasantly at the home of Mrs. E. Waugh recently.

Mrs. A. H. Hord is slowly improving.

Miss Annie M. Smith is somewhat better this week.

On Tuesday afternoon the residence of Mr. John Tunks was discovered to be on fire, and burned fiercely for a time. But the neighbors gathered quickly, and after working vigorously soon had the fire under control. The injury is mostly to the roof of the house, although the interior was badly damaged by water. Mr. and Mrs. Tunks desire to thank their many friends for the kindness extended to them.

MRS. WRIGHT SANE.

Montreal, July 30.—Mrs. White Wright, the English woman who has made herself very conspicuous in connection with the socialistic propaganda in this city, and who was recently arrested for assault and sent to jail for a few days, pending an investigation into her sanity, appeared again in court today for sentence, the doctors deciding she is not insane. She got off on suspended sentence.

HARRIMAN PLANS A MAMMOTH SYSTEM

Also Will Invade Mexico, and Eventually Get Into South America.

New York, July 30.—One great transcontinental system in the United States is said to be the aim of E. H. Harriman.

At the same time he is launching out in Mexico with a view to spanning that country with a big network of lines. It is believed that from those lines he will extend eventually into South America across the Isthmus of Panama.

Mr. Harriman is touring in the old country while all these plans are being carried out. He laid the foundation and directed how the work should be done before leaving for his European vacation.

Through the Union Pacific Mr. Harriman is increasing his holdings in the New York Central and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads. It is believed in financial realms now that he contemplates making these two gigantic railroads the stems of his systems east of the Mississippi. It is also understood that he will soon strengthen his position by acquiring greater interest in the Wabash properties. The Erie he controls.

Mr. Harriman for some time has been represented in the New York Central. When he entered there various predictions as to change in policy and management were made. The unification of the multitudinous Harriman properties at this time on a scale even beyond the eastern financiers gives rise to reports that various changes may be made in the running of subsidiary as well as principal New York Central lines.

Wall street is rather excited about Mr. Harriman and his operations. It was the understanding that the voyage to the continent was to be devoid of all business, but almost at once after the railway king had set foot on European soil, the cables began to work overtime. The Southern Pacific called in its preferred stock. Then the Union Pacific sold $37,5000,000 of Southern Pacific convertible bonds. Then the same company sold $10,000,000 of Atchison Railroad preferred stock. Since then active buying in B. and O. and New York Central stock has been going on.

The opinion has been expressed that possibly the moves on the checkerboard now are due to a desire of Harriman to rid himself of part ownership in the Atchison, because it has subjected the Harriman management to criticism on the ground of monopoly, which issue is being threshed out in federal courts. The Atchison is a co-defendant in the big merger suit. But, on the other hand, it is pointed out that Mr. Harriman hardly ever anticipates defeat in that way.

The belief prevails that Union Pacific has been doing the buying in both New York Central and B. and O., the plan being to concentrate its outside investment capital on not more than two chief connections with the eastern seaboard.

PEACE CELEBRATION

Proposals of Association Approved by Earl Grey and Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Ottawa, July 31.—R. S. Neville, K. C., acting secretary of the provincial committee of the Centenary Celebration Association, which is now being organized in Toronto to arrange for a national and international celebration of the hundred years of cessation from war between the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race, Thursday submitted the proposals of the committee to Earl Grey and Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The Governor-General and the Premier both approved of the project, and the latter thinks the occasion could be made a striking object lesson to the nations of the old world.

The proposals of the association are still in a tentative shape, and to become effective will have to have the co-operation of the various provincial legislatures, as well as of the national governments concerned. Those moving in the matter at present are the members of the United Empire Loyalists' Association, the Military Institute, Daughters of the Empire, Veterans' Association, Historical Societies and like associations in Toronto.

In addition to organizing the celebration, the new association aims to have an educative influence in teaching patriotism and good citizenship through the distribution of literature, by public celebrations in each province, and by the erection of monuments and great national figures.

Newfoundland will be asked to participate, and the Provincial and Federal Governments will be petitioned for grants.

"GOD HELP POOR FOLKS ASHORE!"

Last year a thousand ships or more were lost; the year before the sea took nearly the same toll. To the tourist his assurance of safety lies in the fact that it is the sailing vessel, with its dependence on the fickle wind, that largely makes up the tremendous loss.

Freighting steamers, voyaging in unfamiliar coasts, nearly complete the disaster roll; but to the great liners, with their familiar routes, their well-known lanes of travel, their guarded and well-lighted harbors and all their appliances for safety, the manifold dangers of the ocean are only the remote possibilities that give a touch of adventure to their passage from land to land. The probabilities of disaster are trifling.

Every morning brings us some story of death or accident on land, while the great passenger ships come and go in monotonous regularity, bringing no reports more stirring than those of high seas that have kept them from making new records. With the present madness for speed and its attendant recklessness, our streets demand constant alertness if you would cross them with safety.

Speed at sea has come through larger and more stoutly constructed ships. So the familiar old story of the sailorman at sea in a storm, who, serene in the consciousness of ample sea-room, piously ejaculated, "God help the poor folks ashore tonight!" is not wholly fantastic.—The Century.

SEVEN YEARS AN INVALID

THEN SHE TOOK "FRUIT-A-TIVES" AND IS NOW WELL.

Arnprior, Ont., Nov. 27, 1908.

I was an invalid for seven years from fearful womb trouble. I had falling womb, with constant pain in the back and front of my body and all down my legs. There was a heavy discharge and this made me weak, sleepless, restless and miserable. Often I was obliged to be in bed for a month at a time. I was treated by several doctors, but their treatment did me no permanent good.

A few months ago I was persuaded to try "Fruit-a-tives." I took several boxes, and from the outset of this treatment I was better, the constipation was cured, and the discharge lessened. I took for the paleness, several bottles of the Iron Mixture as recommended in the "Fruit-a-tives" book, but I feel that it was "Fruit-a-tives" alone that cured me.

(Mrs.) Eliza Levesque.

Take Mrs. Levesque's advice. Take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure yourself. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50; trial box 25c. At dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

A Prince of Sinners

BY PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM.

Author of "A Lost Leader," "The Malefactor," "A Maker of History," Etc.

"I have never seen a squirrel's nest," she said. "Is it far?"

* * * * * * * * *

Lady Caroom put her sketch away as she heard their approaching footsteps, and looked up. Atherstone's happiness was too ridiculously apparent. He came straight over to her.

"You'll give her to me, won't you?" he exclaimed. "'Pon my word, she shall be the happiest woman in England if I can make her so. I'm perfectly certain I'm the happiest man."

Lady Caroom pressed her daughter's hand, and they all turned to descend the hill.

"Of course, I'm charmed," Lady Caroom said. "Sybil makes me feel so elderly. But I don't know what I shall do for a chaperon now."

Atherstone laughed.

"I'm your son-in-law," he said. "I can take you out."

Sybil shook her head.

"No, you won't," she declared. "The only woman I have ever been really jealous of is mother. She has a way of absorbing all the attention from every one when she is around. I'm not going to have her begin with you."

"I feel," Atherstone said, "like the man who married a twin—said he never tried to tell the difference, you know, when a pal asked him how he picked out his own wife."

"If you think," Sybil said, severely, "that you have made any arrangements of that sort I take it all back. You are going to marry me, if you behave yourself."

He sighed.

"Three months is a beastly long time," he said.

Lady Caroom drove back alone. The motor whizzed by her half-way down the hill—Sybil holding her hat with both hands, her hair blowing about, and her cheeks pink with pleasure. She waved her hand gaily as she went by, and then clutched her hat again. Lady Caroom watched them till they were out of sight, then she found herself looking steadfastly across the valley to the dark belt of pine-clad hills beyond. She could see nothing very ceary, and there was a itte choking in her throat. They were both there, father and son Once she fancied that at last he was holding out his arm towards her—she sat up in the carriage with a little cry which was half a sob. When she drove through the hotel gates it was he who stood upon the steps to welcome her.

CHAPTER XI.

Unchanged! Her first eager glance into his face told her that. Waxen white, his lips smiled their courteous greeting upon her, his tone was measured and cold as ever. She set her teeth as she rose from her seat, and gathered her skirts in her hand.

"You, too, a pilgrim?" she exclaimed. "I thought you preferred salt water."

"We had a pleasant fortnight's yachting," he answered. "Then I went with Hennibul to Wiesbaden, and I came on here to see you."

"Have you met Sybil and Atherstone?" she asked him.

"Yes," he answered, gravely.

"Come into my room," she said, "and I will give you some tea. These young people are sure to have it on the terrace. I will join you when I have got rid of some of this dust."

He was alone for ten minutes. At the end of that time she came out through the folding-doors with the old smile upon her lips and the old lithesomeness in her movements. He rose and watched her until she had settled down in her low chair.

"So Sybil is going to marry Atherstone!"

"Yes. He really deserves it, doesn't he? He is a very nice boy."

Arranmore shrugged his shoulders.

"What an everlasting fool Brooks is," he said, in a low tone.

"He keeps his word," she answered. "It is a family trait with you, Arranmore. You are all stubborn, all self-willed, self-centered, selfish!"

"Thank you!"

"You can't deny it."

"I won't try. I suppose it is true. Besides, I want to keep you in a good humor."

"Do tell me why!"

"If Sybil is going to be married you can't live alone."

"I won't admit that, but what about it? Do you know of a nice respectable companion?"

"Myself."

She shook her head.

"You may be nice," she answered, "but you certainly aren't respectable."

"I am what you make me, he answered, in a low tone. "Catherine! A moment ago you accused me of stubbornness. What about yourself?"

"I?"

"Yes, you. You have been the one woman of my life. You are free, you know that there is no other man who could make you happy as I could, yet you will not come to me—for the sake of an idea. If I am heartless and callous, an infidel, an egotist, whatever you choose, at least I love you. You need never fear me. You would always be safe."

She shook her head.

"Arranmore," she said, "this is so painful to me. Do let us cease to discuss it. I have tried so hard to make you understand how I feel. I cannot alter. It is impossible!"

"You tempt me," he cried, "to play the hypocrite."

"No, I do not, Arranmore," she answered, gently, "for there is no acting in this world which would deceive me."

"You do not doubt that I should make you a good husband?"

"I believe you would," she answered, "but I dare not try it."

"And this is the woman," he murmured, sadly, "who calls me stubborn."

Tea was brought in. Afterwards they walked in the gardens together The band was playing, and they were surrounded on all sides by acquaintances. A great personage stopped and talked to them for a while. Lady Caroom admitted the news of Sybil's engagement. After that every one stopped to express pleasure. It was not until the young people appeared themselves, and at once monopolized all attention, that Arranmore was able to draw his companion away into comparative solitude.

"Do you by any chance correspond with Brooks?" he asked her.

She shook her head.

"No!" she answered. "I was thinking of that. I should like him to know from one of us. Can't you write him, Arranmore?"

"I could," he answered, "but it would perhaps come better from you. Have you ever had any conversation with him about Sybil?"

"Once," she answered, "yes!"

"Then you can write—it will be better for you to write. I should like to ask you a question if I may."

"Yes."

"Have you any idea whether the news will be in any way a blow to him?"

"I think perhaps it may," she admitted

Arranmore was silent. She watched him half eagerly, hoping for some look, some expression of sympathy. She was disappointed. His face did not relax. It seemed almost to grow harder.

"He has only himself to blame," he stid, slowly. "But for this ridiculous masquerading his chance was as good as Atherstone's. Quixoticism such as his is an expensive luxury."

She shivered a little.

"That sounds hard-hearted," she said. "He is doing what he thinks right."

Then Lord Arranmore told her what he had told Brooks himself.

"My son is quite a model young man," he said, "but he is a prig. He thinks too much about what is right and wrong, about what is due to himself, and he values his own judgment too highly. However, I have no right to complain, for it is he who suffers, not I. May I dine at your table, tonight? I came over alone."

"Certainly."

They were interrupted a few minutes later by Sybil and Atherstone, and a small host of their friends. But in consequence of Lord Arranmore's visit to Homburg, Brooks a few days later received two letters. The first was from Lord Arranmore.

"Ritter's Hotel.

"Dear Mr. Brooks,

"The news which I believe Lady Caroom is sending you today may perhaps convince you of the folly of this masquerading. I make you, therefore, the following offer. I will leave England for at least five years on condition that you henceforth take up your proper position in society, and consent to such arrangements as Mr. Ascough and I may make. In any case I was proposing to myself a somewhat extensive scheme of travel, and the opportunity seems to me a good one for you to dispense with an incognito which may lead you some day into even worse complications. I trust that for the sake of other people with whom you may be brought into contact you will accept the arrangement which I propose. I remains, yours faithfull,

"ARRANMORE."

The other letter was from Lady Caroom.

Ritter's Hotel.

"My Dear Mr. Brooks,'

"I want to be the first to tell you of Sybil's engagement to the Duke of Atherstone, which took place this afternoon. He has been a very persistent suitor, and he is a great favorite, I think, deservedly, with every one. He will, I am sure, make her very happy.

"I understand that you are still in London. You must find the weather very oppressive. Take my advice and don't overwork yourself. No cause in the world, however good, is worth the sacrifice of one's health.

"I hope that my news will not distress you. You realized, of course, that your decision to remain known, or rather unknown, as 'Kingston Brooks, made it at some time or other inevitable, and I hope to see a good deal of you when we return to town, and that you will always believe that I am your most sincere friend,

"CATHERINE CAROOM."

Brooks laid the two letters down with a curious mixture of sensations. He knew that a very short time ago he might have considered himself broken-hearted, and he knew that as a matter of fact he was nothing of the sort. He answered Lady Caroom's letter first.

"27, Jermyn Street, W.

"Dear Lady Caroom,

"It was very kind of you to write to me, and to send me the news of Sybil's engagement so promptly. I wish her most heartily every happiness. After all, it is the most suitable thing which could have happened.

"You are right in your surmise. After our conversation I realized quite plainly that under my present identity I could not possibly think of Lady Sybil except as a very charming and a very valued friend. I was, therefore, quite prepared for the news which you have sent me.

"I am going for a few days' golf and sea-bathing into Devonshire, so don't waste too much sympathy upon me. My best regards to Lady Sybil. Just now I imagine that she is overwhelmed with good wishes, but if she will add mine to the number, I can assure you and her that I offer them most heartily. Yours most sincerely,

"KINGSTON BROOKS."

"P. S.—Have you heard that your friend the bishop is going to bring a bill before the House of Lords which is to exterminate me altogether?"

Lady Caroom sighed for a moment as she read the letter, but immediately afterwards her face cleared.

"After all, I think it is best," she murmured, "and Atherstone is such a dear."

CHAPTER XII.

The bishop sat down amidst a little murmur of applause. He glanced up and saw that his wife had heard his speech, and he noted with satisfaction the long line of reporters, for whose sake he had spoken with such deliberation and with occasional pauses. He felt that his indictment of this new charitable departure had been scathing and logical. He was not altogether displeased to see Brooks himself in the stranger's gallery. That young man would be better able to understand now the mighty power of the church which he had so wantonly disregarded.

But it was not the bishop's speech which had filled Brooks with dismay, which had made his heart grow suddenly cold within him. For this he had been prepared—but not for the adversary who was now upon his feet prepared to address the House. At least, he said to himself, bitterly, he might have been spared this. It was Lord Arranmore, who, amidst some murmurs of surprise, had risen to address the House—pale, composed, supercilious as ever. And Brooks felt that what he could listen to unmoved from the Bishop of Beeston would be hard indeed to bear from this man.

The intervention of Lord Arranmore so early in the debate was wholly unexpected. Every one was interested, and those who knew him best prepared themselves for a little mild sensation. The bishop smiled to himself with the satisfaction of a man who has secured a welcome but unexpected ally. Lord Arranmore's views as to charity and its dispensation were fairly well known.

To Be Continued.

YOUNG BRITISH GIANT LANDS IN NEW YORK

George Dolling Stands 7 Feet 2 Inches —Wears No. 17 Shoe.

New York, July 31. — When George Dolling, an Englishman, 7 feet 2 inches in height, landed from the Ellis Island ferry at the barge office yesterday his appearance created something of a sensation.

The giant smiled good-naturedly down on the crowd that surrounded him, and after shaking hands with his brother-in-law, Benjamin Corday, a stripling of 6 feet 8 inches, told interviewers how tall he was and said that he weighed 275 pounds. He is 28 years old and wears a No. 17 shoe. He added that he has a brother in England who is just 7 feet in height.

Mr. Dolling—everybody was careful to call him mister—walked across to the food wagon at the edge of Battery Park, and, stooping, poked his head in at the window and asked for a sandwich.

"Hey, you!" called out the restaurant man. "Come down off that wheel and come in and order what you want."

Dolling went around to the door and a much subdued waiter served him the sandwich.

The giant said he had been with a show in England, but was here to visit his sister.

DESPERADO IS COMING

Nerviest Man in All the World With Barnum & Bailey Circus.

The climax of thrilling sensations has been reached by Desperado, a man absolutely without fear. He is one of the star features with the Barnum & Bailey Greatest Show on Earth, which, on Tuesday, Aug. 10, will exhibit in London.

Desperado is one of the world's marvels. His nerve is almost past belief, and the thrills that he causes are followed by a sigh of relief. Fortunately the act is of short duration. It would have to be; people could not stand the strain if it were prolonged beyond a few moments.

A platform is built to the dome of the main tent. At the foot of this tall structure there is a small, narrow skid, that forms the arc of a circle. Desperado mounts the top of the platform. Steadying himself at its topmost part for an instant, he places his hands above his head, and then dives forward, as would a swimmer about to enter the water. The thing looks like sure death. The nervous tension is great. To take one's eyes from the figure flying through space seems impossible. Where will the man land? Desperado hits the chute on his chest. There is a swish, and the next instant the man is standing up and bowing to the people, whose surprise at his nerve and daring has made them spellbound.

The act is one of the most sensational that has ever been performed by any individual. As a thriller it has never been equalled anywhere in the world. Abroad, Desperado's act created a sensation, and it is doing the same thing here.

This wonderful thriller is by no means the only one contained in the big Barnum & Bailey circus. There is Jupiter, a horse ridden by a beautiful young woman, which is taken up in a balloon and descends in a shower of golden fireworks.

The big circus is full of thrills and, in its entirety, it is the most wonderful aggregation of awe-inspiring feats and acts that has ever been gotten together.

CLAIM TO A CASTLE

Duke of Argyll's Case Against Angus John Campbell.

London, July 30.—In the Edinburgh court of session on Tuesday, Lord Johnston closed the record in an action by the Duke of Argyll against Angus John Campbell, of Dunstaffnage, to have it declared that the castle of Dunstaffnage, in Argyllshire, belongs to the plaintiff, and that the defendant has no title to it.

The Duke states that from a very early date the castle was a royal residence and fortress, but was conveyed to him when his family acquired the barony of Lorne from the Stewarts in 1470. In 1502 the defendant's ancestors were entrusted with its safekeeping and maintenance. The defendant and his predecessors have failed to maintain and upkeep the plaintiff's castle of Dunstaffnage, with the result that it has fallen into a ruinous condition. As the defandant maintains rights in the castle this action has become necessary.

The defendant claims that he and his ancestors have been hereditary captains of Dunstaffnage since 1436, a date prior to the acquisition of the barony of Lorne by the plaintiff's ancestors, and that Dunstaffnage castle was occupied for centuries by his ancestors as the manor house of the estate.

A letter is quoted from Major-Gen. John Campbell to Neil Campbell, the twelfth captain of Dunstaffnage, dated August 1, 1746, which says:

"Make my compliments to your lady, and tell her that I am obliged to desire the favor of her for some days to receive a very pretty young rebel. I suppose you have heard of Miss Flora Macdonald."

The castle was destroyed by fire in 1810, and had not since been used as the family residence.

The case was sent for trial.

WILL THE CHEESE FACTORIES DISAPPEAR

Powdered Milk Business Said To Be Driving Them Out of Business.

Toronto, July 30.—The effect of the powdered milk business upon the price of milk in many of the eastern dairy sections is becoming an important factor; for these factories are encroaching upon the territory formerly held by the cheese factories, until the leading dairy authorities are of the opinion that the days of the cheese factories are numbered.

Until the present time the cheese manufacturers have been able to buy their milk at a little less than the prices paid by the butter manufacturers; but since the values of skim milk has been established and it can be preserved in a form that is available at any time for consumption, the price of butter and cheese no longer can control the price of milk.

By a secret process the manufacturers of powdered milk are able to produce four kinds of products, one from whole milk, one from half skimmed, one from skimmed milk, and one from whole cream.

Of these four kinds the one from skimmed milk is thus far the most important, and by reason of having the butter fats removed it may be kept for any reasonable length of time in cans or pails for future use.

The chief uses thus far discovered are for confectioners and bakers, to whom a pure article of food is indispensable, for with a barrel of powdered milk in their cellar, they can keep it regardless of the weather, delayed milk trains of city inspectors, for a little of the white powder mixed with water does the business.

The process of manufacture requires about twelve hours, and every precaution is taken to produce an absolutely pure article, and while it is less than three years since the manufacture of it has been started, the business is fast developing and is destined to become an important factor in the price of all dairy products.

An article of diet with so many nutritive qualities as skim milk is too valuable to be wasted or used as a feed for animals.

It will keep in any climate, but when made of full cream it requires cold storage, as the butter fat will deteriorate if it is warm for any considerable length of time.

In cities and towns where pure milk from a satisfactory source is available powdered milk will not take the place of the natural product, but with the price of milk in the largest cities going up out of reach of the common people, the time may come when Mr. Dealer will wake up and find that he is out of business—a back number.

CROWDED LONDON

Record Influx of Visitors From America and Canada.

London, July 30.—The booking clerk in the reception office of a large West End hotel turned away from the telephone to the party of visitors beyond the counter. "That," he said, "makes the sixth hotel I have called up, and they give me the same answer, 'Quite full up and cannot take anyone in this week.' I really do not know where to advise you to try for rooms."

That scene was typical of many which took place in London this week, for London is amazingly full.

"An absolute record for this period of the season," was how the manager of a great London hotel described the condition of affairs. "It is astonishing the number of people now in town," he added. Colonials, particularly Canadians, figure largely in the visitors' lists at the big hotels.

"There are more Americans in London now than there has been for the past three years," said an hotel manager. "The recent international polo matches between England and America brought many Americans to London earlier than they would have come in ordinary circumstances. There are also hundreds of German visitors. Some of the hotels which specially cater for foreigners are at present almost entirely peopled with Germans."

Where the hotel population comes from is shown by the following table drawn up by a manager: America, 30 per cent; continent, 30 per cent; England, 25 per cent; colonies, 15 per cent.

POISONED BY CATARRH

MANY WHO HAVE BAD BREATH, HEADACHE AND DISORDERED STOMACH, SUFFER WITH CATARRH.

The poisonous secretions from catarrh are dangerous because they affect the stomach and bowels, giving rise to an unhealthy condition of these organs. Catarrh is a source of much ill-health, and was considered incurable until it was demonstrated that by the use of Catarrhozone any case of nasal or throat trouble can be permanently cured. Catarrhozone by its unusual merit has enlisted the support and indorsement of the most prominent medical authorities, who freely state that anyone giving it a trial is sure to be cured. For asthma, bronchitis, throat irritation, chest weakness (all types of catarrh), nothing is so certain to quickly cure as the large dollar outfit of Catarrhozone. Trial size, 50 cents. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ontario.

READY FOR REGATTA.

Port Dalhousie, July 30.—Everything is in readiness for the Canadian Henley regatta of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, which opens here today. The weather is perfect, and the course is in fine shape, the water being perfectly smooth. All the crews were out this morning. Both competitors and spectators are looking forward to a great day. Fourteen events are on the programme for the day, the first event being the first heat of the junior fours. This is timed to start at 2 p.m.

The Best Sugar Makes the Best Preserves

Does all sugar look alike to you? It isn't, you may be sure. One sugar differs from another sugar in sweetness.

Sugar is sugar, but it is not sugar when it is something else. And, alas, for the weakness of money-making mortals, it is sometimes something else.

One sugar differs from another in what it is made of. One sugar made from sugar-cane differs from another made from sugar-beets.

One sugar differs from another in purity and wholesomeness. Sugar can be made clean like any other food product. And, as it is almost the commonest thing we eat, sugar ought to be about the cleanest thing we eat.

And your preserves, which you want to be the very best, require the best of sugar.

St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar meets the exacting requirements of the best preserves.

Dr. Milton L. Hersey, the Government analyst, in a recent careful and impartial analysis, reports St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar to be 99 99-100 to 100 per cent pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

This season promises to be a good one for berries and other fruits—just the season to get them of good quality and cheap to preserve.

Your home-made preserves are by far the best, and you know all about their real goodness, if you select the fruit and the sugar with equal care.

The best fruit and St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar, with your skill in preserving, will stock you finely for the coming winter.

And don't simply order "some sugar" from the grocer, letting him send you some nameless, ordinary sugar.

Get sugar with a name. Get St. Lawrence Granulated Sugar, in 20-lb. cotton bags, with the name on it, to guarantee the brand, the full weight, and the cleanliness of the sugar itself.

When you buy it in bulk, scooped out of a barrel, you can't be sure of all these important points in your sugar.

You save money by this and get better, cleaner sugar. Try it and see! Then you'll be sweet enough to thank us for telling you all about this matter.

If your grocer cannot supply you with these 20-lb. bags, send his name and address to the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Company, Limited, Montreal, and they will tell you where it can be obtained.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

New York, July 30.—With Manning twirling in splendid form and Donovan quite the reverse, New York found no difficulty in defeating the Champions again today, the score being 6 to 0.

As in yesterday's game the Yankees completely outclassed the American League champions both at bat and in the field. Stalling's men had everything their own way from start to finish and Detroit never threatened seriously to score during the entire game.

NAPS PROVE EASY FOR THE ATHLETICS

Davis and Murphy Drive in Five of Team's Seven Runs.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 30. — Long drives by Davis and Murphy with men on bases gave Philadelphia an easy victory over Cleveland today. Davis scored two runners with a triple and Murphy sent two men home ahead of himself with a home run. Philadelphia made a triple play in the fourth inning. With Goode on third and Ball on first, Collins got Stovall's fly back of the pitcher's box while on the full run, and both runners were caught off their bases. Catcher Thomas had his thumb injured by a foul tip, and Larkin, formerly of Holy Cross, made his American League debut. Score:

BLUE RIBBON HARNESS MEET STARS

CECILIAN KING, WINNER OF 2:18 PACE, COX UP.

Detroit, Mich., July 31.—Major Mallow and Cecilian King look to be two of the sweetest things the grand circuit will see this summer. Both performed impressively on the opening day of the blue ribbon meet, winning their races with ease in straight heats. Followers of the light harness horse game will do well to keep an eye upon this pair, for both are almost certain to be marked low before the eastern end of the circuit is reached.

M. Greentree and Mrs. Hannam, Toronto, beat Drew and Miss Hutchison, Montreal, 8-6, 6-5.

FUNERAL OF PULLIAM IN LOUISVILLE MONDAY

Deceased President of National League Who Suicided Will Be Buried in Kentucky.

New York, July 30.—The funeral of Harry C. Pulliam, president of the National League, who shot himself on Wednesday night in his room at the New York Athletic Club, will be held in Louisville, Ky., next Monday. George W. Cain, a brother-in-law, arrived today to take charge of the body. He said Mr. Pulliam had been overtaxed, took his business too seriously and of late had been anxious to get out of the game.

KETCHELL AND LANGFORD FIGHT IN SEPTEMBER

Stanley and Samuel Hook Up For Ten Spasms at New York.

New York, July 30.—Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight champion, and Sam Langford, the negro, have been matched to fight ten rounds at the Fairmount A. C. here during the first week of September, the exact date to be announced later. The men will weigh in at 158 pounds, the middleweight limit, at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the fight. No decision is allowed under the New York law, but both men believe that a knockout will render one unnecessary.

EDDIE WHELAN SELLS COBMOSA AND DONDON

Man Who Trained and Raced Horses on Canadian Circuit Sells Two.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Buffalo, July 31.—Eddie Whelan, who has trained and raced a string of horses over the Canadian circuit for a number of years, yesterday disposed of the horses Cobmosa and Dondon, the latter a promising 2-year-old last year, which proved a disappointment. Whelan yesterday shipped Black Hawk to Saratoga, where he will be raced against the eastern brigade. A man named Zahn bought Cobmosa and Dondon, but the price was not made public.

ROSENFELD CHESS WINNER.

New York, July 30.—By his victory over Daly and the defeat of Frank Marshall at the hands of Jaffe, Herbert Rosenfeld, of the Manhattan Chess Club, won first prize in the masters' tourney of the New York State Chess Association at Bath Beach today. Marshall took second place and Jaffe third.

GREAT W. O. B. A. TOURNEY CLOSES ARMITAGE, OF PARIS, WINNING

Copped Tecumseh Trophy From W. R. Vining and His Great Rink.

NIGHTINGALE WON McNEE TROPHY

Beating Out Skip Fred Allen in the Finals—Presentation to Popular Secretary.

The great Western Ontario Bowling Association tournament is finished for the year, with the exception of a few games in the second match of the Scotch doubles, which will be rolled off today or next week.

The winners of the association trophy is Skip J. S. Armitage, of Paris, with Skip W. R. Vining, runner-up. The consolation finals went to Skip George Nightingale, who defeated Skip Fred N. Allen's good bowlers in the finals. Jimmy Tytler and Fred Beltz won the primary match of the Scotch doubles, from Charlie Farquharson, and R. Killer, the Stratford pair.

A Delightful Tourney.

The bowlers all left last evening for their homes, a tired but well-pleased lot of men. The tourney was extremely pleasant and altogether delightful.

The finals of the association series were played yesterday afternoon and won by Skip J. S. Armitage. Barney Vining, the London skip, whose rink has been one of the real sensations of the tourney, did not show the form of previous games, and were outbowled. The game was a good one, and was followed by quite a gallery, who applauded the clever plays of both quartettes. Paris got a lead of six in the tenth end, and from that time on had the best of the play. Frank Smoke, third on Armitage's rink, bowled most effectively all through the piece.

London Gets McNee Cup.

The finals in the consolation lay between Skip Fred Allen and Skip Geo. Nightingale, and was won by the latter in a desperate finish. The London skip, whose four had been playing consistent bowls in every round, had a comfortable lead on the tenth end, being four up. Nightingale steadied his rink, and by scoring a three and a two in the last two ends, won the match and the trophy. The London Club boys had played very hard games in a row, and the strain was too much when it came to the last, and they weakened visibly. However, the bowling was first-class, all the way, and kept the large crowd who witnessed it enthusiastic all the time.

Evened Matters Up.

Skip Fred Allen had it on Skip Dick Thomson in the semi-finals of the consolation. Thomson put Allen out of the trophy, but Allen put him out of the consolation.

The prizes were presented by Hon. A. G. MacKay, president of the W. O. B. A., to Skip Abbott and his rink, Skip John Lochead and his four, Skip J. S. Armitage and his Parisians, and to Barney Vining and his youngsters.

The president spoke of the enjoyable time visitors always had at the tourney at London.

The President Speaks.

"The hospitality of your people is unbounded, and I know of no place where it is such a pleasure to visit," he said. "Everybody seems to conspire with the other to make it as pleasant as possible.

"This tourney has been most successful, the largest ever held on the continent of America. It is simply wonderful."

He presented the prizes to the winners with a few words of graceful compliment. The successful bowlers made short speeches in reply.

The most popular presentation came when Hon. Mr. MacKay called for Secretary James D. Tytler, and, on behalf of the association, presented him with a purse of gold as a gift from the association.

Presentation to Secretary.

"The gold in this purse does not glitter brightier than the good quantles of the honorary secretary of the W. O. B. A.," declared Mr. MacKay in handing over the money.

Jimmy made a brief reply, in which he thanked the president for his kind words, and expressed the hope that he would be able to serve them for years to come.

Jack Bawden and his partner got fourth money in the Scotch doubles. "I just hung around as long as I could and as a result I will take home a little prize, just to show them I was here," he explained.

P. M. Love continued his fine bowling right up to the last, and established a reputation for being one of the best trundlers in the game.

Skip Willison Wins.

Skip J. S. Willison, of Toronto, and Skip Hughes, of Strathroy, played off a special game to decide who should have fourth place in the Consolation series, and the Toronto man won quite handily.

It was fitting that the rink, formerly skipped by Jack McNee should win the trophy presented by him for the Consolation series.

HAMBURG BELLE LOWERS RECORD

Beat Her Own Time and Covered the Mile at Detroit in 2:02 3-4.

ED. BENYON SET PACE

Got Away After Scoring Twice—Walter Cox Heavily Fined.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Detroit, July 31. — It was after 5 o'clock before Hamburg Belle was brought out for her trial against her record. She was accompanied by a runner driven by Ed Benyon. After scoring twice, Andrews nodded for the word, and she was sent away trotting a two-minute clip. The quarter was reached in 30¼ seconds, and then Andrews took her back a little, reaching the half in 1:01½. The three-quarters was reached in 1:31 3-4, making the third quarter in 30¼ seconds. Through the homestretch Andrews shook her up, and with the runner thundering alongside she flashed under the wire in 2:02 3-4. time which has only been beaten by four under like conditions. Lou Dillon trotted in 2:01 and Major Delmar in 2:01¼ at Memphis and Sweet Marie in 2:02 and Cresceus in 2:02¼ at Columbus several years ago. On behalf of the Detroit Driving Club, Presiding Judge Newton presented Andrews with a beautiul silver loving cup as a reward for the wonderful performance of the bay mare.

At the close of racing it was announced from the stand that Walter Cox had been fined $200 for not trying for the first heat of the 2 24 pace with The Bosun. Summaries:

COVERPOINT JOLTS

The W. O. B. A. tourney has passed into history, and it is not saying too much when it is characterized as the most successful ever held by the association.

* * *

During the tournament, nothing but the best of feeling prevailed and there was nothing unpleasant to mar the success of the affair, except on the last afternoon's play. And be this to the credit of the bowlers, it came about by a visitor to the greens. It occurred during the Thomson-Willison match in the consolation series. A gentleman (?) from Paris made himself decidedly offensive by his "rooting" for the Thomson four, and by jeering, and rowdy conduct towards Mr. Willison. He was promptly called for his meanness, and subsided somewhat. The incident was regrettable, as the Paris bowlers from start to finish are gentlemen, and are as popular as any visitors to the W. O. B. A. The party who was guilty of the misconduct may be a gentleman at home, but he certainly did not bring his manners with him.

* * *

Canadian wigglers did not do very well at Detroit both Darkey Hal and Major Brino being beaten in the free-for-all. Axtara, the Tillsonburg pacer that was expected to do something in the stakes has been somewhat of a disappointment so far. However, he may do.

* * *

The owners of George Gano certainly played the game when they held him for this year's C. of C., which he won easily. Last year he could not beat The Eel or Minor Heir, and he was held over. He paid his way, and then some in 1908, and this year he is in soft spots down the line and should capture a big bunch of money.

The Cleveland Blues, with Lajoie in the game again, are giving a fine exhibition of their annual quittng specialty, and have no more chance than a jack rabbit of winning the pennant. The Athletics are stepping to town and will make the Tigers go a few.

The death of President Pulliam of the National League is most regrettable, especially as it was due to his efforts to keep the game of ball clean. He was too finely strung for the job, and it killed him. What is needed is a rough chap with the skin of a rhinoceros and a knockout punch in either hand to handle that league.

CHRISTIE IS THE SPEEDER

Knocks Something Off Record For Grosse Pointe, and Is Leading Performer.

Detroit, July 31.—Speed, that ever-powerful magnet, attracted a crowd of some 2,500 persons to the Grosse Pointe track yesterday afternoon to witness the "national circuit" automobile races, run under the management of Walter Hempel. Those who love speed found it in plenty, for in nearly every event excellent time was made. The summaries:

Motorcycle race, five miles, for machines up to 30½ cubic inches—Don Clark 1, Archie Lane 2, H. Brown 3. Time, 6:58 3-5.

Time trial, five miles, by Knipper in Chalmers Detroit 30. Time, 6:11.

Time trial, five miles, by Joe Matson in Chalmers Detroit. Time. 5:48 4-5.

Time trial, one mile, by S. K. Crocker, in Peerless. Time, 1:04.

Time trials, one mile, by Walter Christie, in car of his own design. Time, :58 1-5 and :57 flat.

Time trial, one mile, by Barney Oldfield, in National. Time, 1:03.

Time trial, three miles, by Barney Oldfield, in National. Time, 3:04. Best mile, 1:00 1-5.

Five-mile match race—Matson 1, Knipper2. Time, 5:54.

Swepstakes, first heat, three miles—Won by Christie, Crocker 2. Time, 3:21. Second heat—Won by Christie, Oldfield 2.

Twenty-five mile match race—Matson (Chandlers Detroit) 1, Gelnaw (Chalmers Detroit) 2, Knipper (Chalmers Detroit 3. Time, 29:26 2-5.

TURF RESULTS

Empire City.

First—Chief Hayes 2 to 1, Richard Reed 4 to 5, Queen Marguerite 4 to 5.

Second—Etherial 2 to 7, Casque 2 to 5, High Range 6 to 5.

Third—Lyon 7 to 10, Cuthbert even, Shamrock 1 to 2.

Fourth—Tony Bonero 9 to 5, Juggler 2 to 5, Stanley Fay out.

Fifth—Hadeline L. 4 to 1, Matchfield 8 to 5, Lord Clifton out.

Sixth—Shapdale 8 to 1, Hans 4 to 5, Eschau 6 to 5.

RUDOLPH NOT FOR PIRATES.

Toronto, July 30.—President McCaffery, of the Toronto ball club, denied absolutely today the story from Pittsburg that Pitcher Dick Rudolph had been purchased by the Pirates from Toronto for $4,000. "I have had no communcation either directly or indirectly with the Pittsburg club or any agents of the Pittsburg club," said Mr. McCaffery.

FELL A THOUSAND FEET.

Chicago, July 30.—After battling for life in a disabled airship 800 feet above the earth, William Matter, a Chicago aviator, fell with his craft in sight of 1,000 people at Southport avenue and A street early today. He was not seriously hurt.

The accident, which followed failure of the engine in the air craft to work properly, solves the mystery of the "phantom airship" that has puzzled residents of the north side for several nights. While astronomers were trying to explain the appearance of a bright moving light in the sky, Mattery was making preliminary tests of his new air craft, which he predicts will soon prove practicable.

Today he travelled five miles in the air, and he declares he would have been able to return to the starting point, despite the high wind, if his engine had worked properly.

MEN The Way Dr. Rhodes Company Cure Rupture, Blood and Private Diseases

HAVE YOU BEEN TAKING MEDICINE FOR MONTHS AND YEARS BECAUSE YOU HAVE DEALT WITH PHYSICIANS WHO FAILED TO EFFECT A CURE ON ACCOUNT OF TREATING YOU FOR SYMPTOMS INSTEAD OF MAKING AN EXHAUSTIVE DIAGNOSIS AND COMBATING THE MAIN MALADY?

I MAKE A CAREFUL EXAMINATION AND THEREBY OPEN THE WAY FOR SUCCESSFUL TREATMENT.

My examinations are made by finding the origin—the cause—the first starting place and actual seat from which symptoms and complications arise, enabling me to delve into the bottom of the trouble, and giving me the advantage of striking at the seat of the disease, thus forcing the symptom to disappear entirely, thereby removing the final existence of same.

I claim that the majority of the uncured, disappointed, who go from one physician to another, would at least receive benefit from ordinary treatment if their trouble were properly diagnosed and understood in the beginning by the specialist, so that the root of the disease might be gotten at, and not merely try to smother the symptoms for a time, in order to have the patient believe he is being benefited. Some physicians, as is known to the afflicted, do not make a careful examination in starting a patient under treament, and rely on the information they get from asking a few questions. Others are so hasty as to make it impossible for them to ascertain the exact conditions, and the endless "symptom treating" is bound to be all that is done for the patient. It should be plain to any afflicted person that it is as important to know what to do as to know how to do it, and that no conscientious, successful specialist will accept a case for treatment without knowing the most minute details, which cannot be learned except by exercising great care in making an examination.

Finest Institute in America Devoted Exclusively to Curing Diseases of Men

I MAKE NO CHARGE—I GUARANTEE EVERY CASE I ACCEPT. MY VERY LARGE PRACTICE ENABLES ME TO CURE YOU CHEAPER THAN YOU EVER HOPE.

And in doing this I do not depend on medicines alone, but bring to my aid, both in treatment and diagnosis, the very latest and best, light, electrical, chemical and mechanical auxillary known. I have lights whose rays penetrate the tissues, enabling me to distinguish the nature and extent of certain diseases, and other lights whose rays are soothing and healing to the most stubborn skin diseases. I have compressed air apparatus that forces the medicine or its vapors into the tissues. The wonderful Thermic that aids in the elimination of poisons from the system, by opening up the pores of the skin, stimulating peripheral circulation. Massage, electrical and vibratory, that develop muscles and increase circulation of blood. Galvanic, Faradic and Electro-Chemic, Violet Ray, X-Ray and Leucodescent lights, alone or combined with suitable medicines—private formula—result of years of study and practice in my chosen field.

I have had many years of successful practice, and today have as large a practice as any one physician or specialist in the world. Why is this so? Simply because I treat my patients honestly and cure them to stay cured. Practice limited to diseases of men only.

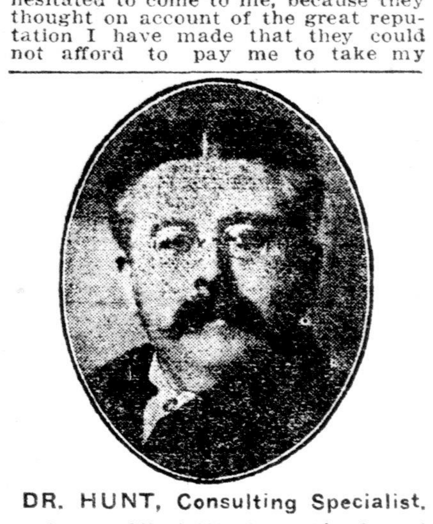
Blood Poison

is the name sometimes given to what is generally known as the BAD DISEASE. It is not confined to dens of vice or the lower classes. The purest and best people are sometimes infected with this awful malady through handling the clothing, drinking from the same vessel, using the same toilet articles, or otherwise coming in contact with persons who have contracted it.

It begins usually with a little blister or sore, then swelling in the groins, a red eruption breaks out on the body, sores and ulcers appear in the mouth, the throat becomes ulcerated, the hair, eyebrows and lashes fall out, and, as the blood becomes more contaminated, copper-colored splotches and pustular eruptions and sores appear upon different parts of the body, and the poison even destroys the bones.

If properly treated this disease is easily curable. My methods never fail in this loathsome disease, and cures it even in the worst forms. It is a perfect antidote for the powerful virus that pollutes the blood and penetrates to all parts of the system. Unless you get this poison out of your blood it will ruin you and bring disgrace and disease upon your children, for it can be transmitted from parent to child.

MY CHARGES—Many patients tell me after I have cured them that they hesitated to come to me, because they thought on account of the great reputation I have made that they could not afford to pay me to take my treatment. I wish to assure every sufferer that my charges are so reasonable that any workingman can come to me and receive a cure. Remember, the BEST will cost you no more than some inferior treatment, and you will have the satisfaction of KNOWING that you will not be disappointed, but will receive the CURE you crave.



DR. HUNT, Consulting Specialist.

I cure Vital Weakness in 4 to 6 weeks.

I cure Rupture in one treatment.

I cure Piles in one treatment.

I cure Varicocele in one treatment.

I cure Hydrocele in one treatment.

I cure Blood Poison in 30 to 90 days.

I cure other diseases of men in the shortest possible time known to medical science.

Call or write for information before taking treatment, as you will find our charges lower and treatment quicker and better than elsewhere.

DR. RHODES CO., Number Sixty-one (61) West Fort street, Detroit, Opposite Fort street entrance to Post-office.

Don't Give Up

I am restoring suffering humanity every day to robust health. Many of them, no doubt, were in much worse condition than you.

You may have been unfortunate in selecting a doctor to treat you, or you may not have given yourself the attention which your disease demands; you know that every day you put the matter off you are getting worse and worse; you are mortified and ashamed of your position among your friends; life does not possess the pleasures for you it did. Would you not give much to possess that robust manhood, health, vim and vigor that were yours before the ravages of disease attacked your system? Then if you do really and truly have this desire to be a MAN in the true sense of the word, to feel the strength that was yours when you were first budding into manhood, call at my offices at once and I will take pleasure in explaining a treatment that has restored hundreds and hundreds, many of whom were perhaps much weaker and in a much worse condition than you are.

In a short time after the treatment is begun, decided improvement is noticed, and the patients feel the return of vitality or health tingling in their veins, and when I dismiss them, go out from under my care with every part, every function of their physical make-up restored to the health Nature intended. This is easy to do, if the specialist only KNOWS what to do and DOES IT.

I say you cannot afford to continue to float down the stream which so surely and certainly will carry you into the much dreaded, awful gulf from which few travellers ever return to robust vigor, health and manhood, when for so small an amount I CAN CURE YOU SOUND AND WELL. Come to my institution and let us talk the matter over. It will cost you nothing for consultation.

MAGEE AND DOOLAN SAVE THE GAME FOR PHILLIES

Made Star Catches of Hits Good for Extra Base—Chicago Cubs Beaten.

Chicago, July 30.—Magee and Doolan were the main factors in defeating Chicago 5 to 2 today by making startling catches of four hits that would have been good for extra bases. Overall was the only local player to hit Moore with any success. Chicago's errors were costly, the visitors following up the misplays by timely hitting. Score:

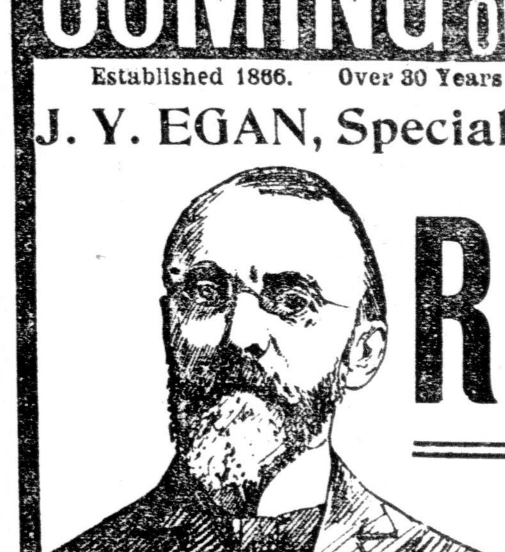
COMING TO OUR TOWN

Established 1866. Over 30 Years of Success in Toronto, Ont.

J. Y. EGAN, Specialist, 331 West King St., P.O. 201, Toronto..



Rupture

THE MOST RELIABLE and Successful Authority—Greatest success in the treatment of Hernia (Rupture) Varicocele (False Rupture) of all known agencies in modern times. He who makes a specialty of one department must certainly be more experienced and capable than those having "many irons in the fire." Don't put off your case, believing it to be simple—Remember neglect often proves fatal. Have your case attended to now, and thus avoid danger. Stop wasting time and money elsewhere but come to one whose life-long study has taught him what to do. Do not despond or be deterred from seeking further advice, or because of repeated failures consider your case incurable. Because others failed in your case you have become discouraged. This is the very time you should consult me as my reputation has been made in curing hopeless (so-called) cases.

LADIES suffering from Navel or any form of Rupture should not hesitate in having their case attended to at once. Everything strictly private and professional.

MOTHERS—Look to your children—Now is the time to have them cured, while young. Don't allow them to grow up handicapped in the race of life, with rupture.

MY CHARGES are within reach of all, the poor man as well as the rich. Terms can be satisfactorily arranged, no reason why you should not consult me at once, during this visit.

VARICOCELE, FALSE RUPTURE

MEN OF ALL AGES SUFFER from this terrible affliction in some way. There is no other affliction to which man is heir that so completely unfits him for the duties or pleasures of life as Varicocele.

The universal tendency of these conditions is to grow worse and more complicated—leading to impotency, nervous debility, wasting, stricture, lumbago, sexual exhaustion, etc. Do you intend to allow this insidious affliction to sap away your vitality? It is doing so now and if not checked will result in the above conditions. No matter how serious your case may be, time afflicted, or the failure you may have experienced in trying to be cured by medicine—free trials, or Electric belts—my Biotene system will cure you; the wormy veins return to their normal condition and hence the sexual organs receive proper nourishment, the parts become vitalized and manly powers return. No temporary benefit, but a PERMANENT one. NO OPERATION necessary. No detention from business. If you have had the usual experience you have no doubt spent large sums of money and still larger quantities of time searching for the remedy that I offer you here.

SPECIALIST WILL VISIT:

STRATFORD, WINDSOR HOTEL, Aug. 2.
ST. THOMAS, GRAND CENTRAL HOTEL, Aug. 3
WOODSTOCK, HOTEL OXFORD, Aug. 4.
LONDON, GRIGG HOUSE, Saturday, Aug. 7.

CITIES WRECKED BY A QUAKE IN MEXICO

An Area of a Thousand Miles Has Been Affected.

CAPITAL CITY WAS SHOCKED

Buildings Reel and Many Collapse—Great Property Damage and Lives Lost.

Mexico City July 30.—With Chilpancingo destroyed and Acapulco partly razed and the loss of life problematical. Central Mexico from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Querato on the north to Oaxaca on the south, an area of more than 1,000 square miles, was shaken at an early hour today by a series of the most severe earth shocks felt in the region for the last quarter of a century.

The quake was severe in Mexico City, but not prolific in destruction.

Reports telling of the loss of life are meager, but the official figures thus far given show 13 killed and more than a score mortally injured.

While word comes from G. Poyros, an American commercial traveller at Chilpancingo Guerrero, that that city was destroyed and the inhabitants are living in the open, suffering from the elements, the loss of life is not definitely known. The shocks continue at Chilpancingo tonight with subterranean rumblings and flashes of lightning, rain and hail.

Shock Tolls Bell.

According to the observatory records the first shock of the series was felt at 4:15 this morning, the rocking oscillation being from the east to the southwest. It was severe, causing the bells of the many cathedrals of Mexico City to toil, breaking crockery and in some instances leveling walls.

The inhabitants of the capital had hardly recovered from the fright occasioned by the quake when a second and more severe shock caused an outpouring of nearly all of the residents to the streets and open plazas.

This movement was of a twisting character, and lasted with marked severity for 90 seconds. The tall buildings of the capital swayed and in some instances cracked, the pavement opened in places and in the poorer quarters a number of houses collapsed.

So far as can be learned from police records, six persons lost their lives in Mexico City and its environs as a result of this second shock. Two were men of the lower class, the others being three women and a child. Four persons are now in hospitals and they cannot recover, it is said.

Out Doors All Night.

The second shock frightened the inhabitants so much that no one ventured indoors again until daybreak.

The large American colony escaped unscathed. There were some slight contusions reported among them from falling plaster, but no serious injuries were reported. They, with the entire native population, remained in the plazas or squares until daylight gave them courage to enter their dwellings.

The peons were terribly frightened. For days these humble folk have been predicting a disaster because the snow on the peak of the volcano Popocatapetl, visible from this city, had been melting. An old Aztec legend declares that when the snows on this volcano disappear, so too will the city at its base.

The property damage in Mexico City is slight. Some of the cathedral walls were cracked and scores of adobe walls were sent to the ground, but the main business part of the capital showed no signs of the severe shaking which it had undergone.

SUICIDE PACT INDICATED

Witness Suggests Girl Had Made an Agreement to End Lives.

Cleveland, July 31. — That a suicide pact preceded the self-destruction on Sunday of 17-year-old Rebecca Bonshek, was indicated in the inquest before Deputy Coroner Droege today. The names of two other girls were brought out in the inquest, Jessie Ellen, 18, a companion of Rebecca, and of Esther Stromberg, was the chief witness in the inquest.

"Rebecca and Esther were such good girls they grieved over the misfortunes of others gradually. They walked the streets weeping, because others could not be happy," she testified. "Neither Rebecca nor Esther could see how they could be happy. Once they asked me to join them in ending our sorrows by suicide. No, I did not intend to end my life. Once I felt I should kill myself, but now I know someone loves me and I am glad I was rescued."

Esther Stromberg failed to corroborate the previous testimony, particularly that of her mother, that she and Rebecca talked of ending their lives. She declared Rebecca was worried by the sufferings of others and probably decided the world was too hard for her.

NO USE TO CANADA.

Montreal, July 30.—Ludicrous in ineffectiveness, so far as Canadian industries are concerned, is the new $1 25 per thousand duty on lumber entering the United States, according to Mr. T. J. Stevenson, of the Riordan Paper Mills Company. The reduction made, Mr. Stevenson declares, is of no practical use to Canadian industries. Free lumber is what is needed, and until Canada gets that she should shut off the export of raw wood. The free market will have to come sooner or later, Mr. Stevenson contends. Canada, he declares, should accept no half-way concessions.

WIZARD WRIGHT'S GREAT FLIGHT

Washington, D. C., July 20.—Orville Wright this evening attained the zenith of hard-earned success. In a ten-mile cross-country flight in the aeroplane built by himself and his brother Wilbur, and accompanied by Lieut. Brown and Lieut. Foulois, an officer of the signal corps, he not only surpassed the speed requirements of his contract with the United States Government, but accomplished the most difficult and daring flight ever planned for a heavier than air flying machines. Incidentally, he broke all speed records over a measured course.

Wright's speed was more than 42 miles an hour. He made the ten-mile flight in 14 minutes and 42 seconds, including more than twenty seconds required for the turn beyond the long Schuyler Hill, the southern end of the course. He attained a height in crossing the valley of Four-Mile Run of nearly 500 feet, and the average attitude of his practically level course was about 200 feet.

BARCELONA, A HELL, WITH CIVIL STRIFE

Condition in City Beyond Description—Rebels Fight Like Madmen.

Barcelona, via Crebere, France, July 30.—Barcelona has been a perfect hell. Half the population is terrorized, and the other half mad with blood. The troops of the garrison, amid shouts of approval from the mob, repeated their refusals to fire on the people, and the work of repression fell upon the police and civilians. They charged the revolutionists, and used their firearms freely everywhere, but numbers were against them. As this dispatch is sent the streets are in possession of the barricaded insurgents. The destruction of property has grown, and Barcelona is completely isolated and running short of food.

Not Confirmed.

Paris, July 30.—There is no confirmation of the report that Queen Victoria of Spain and the Queen-Mother Christina have left San Sebastian for Bayonne, France, but there would be no surprise if such a trip had been taken, as the members of the royal family are constantly making automobile trips from San Sebastian to the near-by points in Spain and France, including Bayonne, Biarritz and Pau.

Edward Not Interfering.

London, July 30.—The Associated Press is officially authorized to state that there is not a word of truth in the rumor that King Edward is asking France and Germany to intervene in Spain, nor in another rumor to the effect that it has been suggested that a mixed force of French, British and German troops should be sent to cooperate with the Spaniards in Morocco.

MICHIGAN REFORMERS TO ATTACK TOBACCO

Will War on the Weed After Prohibition Is Secured.

Detroit, July 31. — From various points about the state has come the word that the W. C. T. U. is planning to follow the anti-liquor crusade with one against public smoking.

At several W. C. T. U. meetings out in the state speakers declared that we would have prohibition in 1911 and that this would be immediately followed by war on the use of tobacco.

Mrs. Annie L. Andrus, prominent in W. C. T. U. work in Detroit, declares that these plans will be followed out. She says:

"We are sure to win not less than 20 counties to prohibition by the local option vote next spring and our battle cry for this year is 'State-wide prohibition in 1911.' In the meantime our work for social purity and against the use of tobacco is going forward steadily, as is witnessed by the action of the Michigan Legislature in its legislation against the sale of cigarettes last winter. Our work for social purity and against tobacco is going forward hand in hand and I am sure that within a very short time, immediately after we have won the state for prohibition, we will have obtained the strength necessary to legislate out of existence the manufacture, use or sale of tobacco."

WARD ON DEFENCE

Hopes Imperial Conference Will Result in Some Elastic System.

London, July 31.—Premier Ward of New Zealand, speaking at a luncheon given in his honor at the House of Commons, recalled the fact that at one time Downing street looked upon the colonies as excrescences and was in the position of stepmother to her stepson, but those old ideas had gone forever.

In regard to the imperial defence conference, Premier Ward believed at the close it would be found that they had achieved something of a definite character if they succeeded in having the system elastic in some respects, by which the overseas dominions could work together.

DIES DICTATING.

Toronto, July 30.—W. N. Dollar, secretary of the Reliance Loan and Savings Company, and auditor of the Excelsior Life Insurance Company, died suddenly in his chair at his home on Nanton avenue. Deceased did not feel very well today and remained at home. Shortly after 3 o'clock he was dictating letters to his stenographer, when he fainted and died immediately. He was 47 years of age, a member of the Masonic order and highly respected in financial and business circles. He leaves a widow, but no family.

REAL ESTATERS ASK RESIGNATION

Say the Water Commissioners Have Lost the Confidence of the People of London.

RESOLUTION IS PASSED

To This Effect — Other Matters Were Dealt With at the Meeting of the Association Last Night.

The Real Estate Owners had so much business on hand last night that they were unable to finish it all, and had to leave the bread question, and the matter of municipal insurance over until the next meeting.

The success of the water bylaw was the occasion of much rejoicing and the members were unanimous in passing the following resolution, calling upon the water commissioners to resign:

Ask For Resignation.

"Whereas the recent indorsation by the people at the polls of Hon. Adam Beck's wells and the defeat of the water commissioners' bylaw, which would give that body authority to spend more money, has again conclusively shown that the men on that board are no longer trusted by the electors;

"And whereas it is a recognized principle under all free government that men intrusted with the expenditure of public money shall have the confidence of the people who contribute the money;

"Therefore this association, for the second time, gives its opinion that it is the duty of the water commissioners to resign."

Standard Regulations.

The question of having the Government set a standard fire regulation and insurance rates, was discussed at some length and a resolution passed as follows:

"Resolved, that we think the time has arrived when it is expedient to have the Provincial Government control:

1. "The inspection of all electrical wiring for lighting or where there is a hazard of life or fire, and thereby act upon a standard basis or set of regulations that will compel the consumer to act in accordance with the law, and the fire insurance companies shall be bound to honor the standard as set by the regulations, and the Government shall be the umpire in case of dispute

2. That a similar enactment should be established by the Government in relation to systems of fire protection, compelling all municipalities to provide a minimum amount of fire protection to protect the properties of its people and the security of the bondholder making loans to village, town or city, that instead of inspection and constant charging of the regulations as now practiced by the fire insurance underwriters, the Government shall set the standard of regulations required for any particular village, town or city, and shall also do the inspecting, the object in both cases being to insure standard methods and stability of purpose."

Candidates Wanted

The association are confident that when the time comes they will have a strong set of candidates to place before the electors for the council of 1910. The candidates need not be members of the association, and with that end in view the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, that the association now courts the names of qualified citizens, who will indorse the association platform and stand as candidates for the elections for the year 1910 as mayor, aldermen, water commissioners, hospital trustees and school board. Names suggested and left with the secretary or any member of the association will be taken in hand by the association, and a determined effort made to place at the next municipal election a set of men who will act along the lines of the R. E. O. A. platform."

Municipal Insurance.

Owing to the lateness of the hour, it was impossible to discuss the bread question, and all that was done in regard to the question of municipal insurance was to pass the following:

"Resolved, that a committee be appointed to inquire into the question of municipal insurance and report at the next meeting."

The R. E. O. A. are hopeful that they will have a full slate when the first of the year comes round and the present village legislators must be re-elected or retire.

THE TARIFF BILL PLEASES MR. TAFT

Washington, July 30.—President Taft expressed himself today as immensely pleased with the tariff bill as it finally was agreed to by the conference last evening. It is known that he was not entirely satisfied with all the bill, and he told several of his callers today that it would be the greatest miracle of the age if a tariff bill could be designed that would please everybody.

The president declared that there were a great many things about the bill that he was delighted to have had a part in, and that he would be equally delighted to sign and defend the measure in its finished state.

ZEPPELIN SAILS AGAIN.

Friedericksha fen, July 31.—The dirigible balloon Zepelin II. started from here at 3:40 o'clock this morning to sail to the Frankfort air navigation exposition, a distance of about 220 miles, according to the route laid out. The moon was shining brightly and the weather was beautiful.

ON THE DECLINE.

Ottawa, July 30.—That immigration from Britain is on the decline is indicated by returns given by the trade agent at Manchester. During last year 386,411 went out, as against 634,949 in the previous year.

NEW CUSTOM RULES AT SARNIA CROSSING

Ladies' Satchels and Handbags To Be Searched—Civic Holiday Programme.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Sarnia, July 30.—The extreme heat of Thursday was very trying in this locality. The Port Huron and Sarnia ferry boats carried record crowds, and the trip to Algonac by steamer Tashmoo was very popular.

New customs regulations have been put into effect at both the local and Port Huron offices whereby all handbags and satchels carried by ladies crossing on the boats in either direction will be thoroughly searched.

The Citizen's Band gave a very interesting open-air concert at Victoria Park on Tuesday evening. The usual large crowd of people listened to the excellent selections.

Rain Raises Block Pavement.

After the recent heavy rains it was found that a section of the new pavement on Front street had raised up to such an extent that it was necessary to take up the blocks and relay them.

The annual picnic of St. John's Sunday school, Strathroy, arrived here on Thursday morning over the G. T. R. The picnickers spent a pleasant day at Lake Huron Park.

A moonlight excursion on the steamer Conger, under the auspices of the local lodge B of R. R. T., was given Tuesday evening and was largely attended. The excursionists went on shore at Courtright, where dancing was indulged in at Stewart's Hall. The Alexandra Orchestra furnished the music.

On Wednesday evening a social tea was given by the ladies of St. John's Church at Lake Huron Beach which proved very enjoyable.

A horse belonging to the Cleveland-Sarnia Sawmills Company was instantly killed on Tuesday afternoon by falling from an overhead tramway at the company's yards.

Civic Holiday.

Monday, Aug. 2, will be Sarnia's Civic Holiday. The Sarnia Street Railway Company have arranged to use their new double tracks on that day in order that there will be no delay in carrying passengers to and from the beaches. A good programme of sports and games will be presented at the park, and many cash prizes will be hung up. A concert will be given on the grounds in the afternoon by the Citizens' Band.

No doubt a large crowd will take the trip to Detroit and return by the steamers Tashmoo and City of Toledo, of the White Star line.

Summer Guests.

Hon. C. S. Hyman, of London, was a Sarnia visitor this week.

Mrs J. Rice and son left on Wednesday for Southern California.

Ald. Alex. Kelly is holidaying in Detroit.

J. E. McCormick, of Owen Sound, is spending a few days in town.

Miss Eyre, of Dayton, Ohio, is the guest of Miss Mann at Wee Beach.

Miss Cameron is spending a vacation near Georgian Bay.

Wm. Woods, of Lindsay, Ont., was a Sarnia visitor on Thursday.

A number from here attended an ice cream social at Clarke's school house, Sarnia Township, on Thursday evening. Sarnia talent also assisted with the programme.

A CRIPPLE CURED AT ST. ANNE'S SHRINE

Quebec, July 30.—A little, weazened, decrepit, old beggar made his way up through the immense crowd which daily surges around the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, in a little wooden box mounted on two rollers, propelled by two short sticks. The crowd gave way before the man and his friends, who were intent on having the crippled man touched with the sacred relics.

In the chapel of St. Anne de Beaupre repose what all true Roman Catholics believe to be parts of the body of St. Anne. Upon being touched with these relics they believe that a cure may be effected.

Tha beggar's weazened face was made radiant by his strong faith in the curative properties of the relics. He pleaded to be taken to the priest at once.

The old man had not set his foot to the ground for 30 years. His shrivelled legs were curled beneath his body. He lives entirely in his cart. He had not walked since an injury to his spine sustained when 12 years old.

After a few hours' wait he was borne up to the priest who stood calm and dignified before him. The beggar mumbled a few prayers and said his rosary. Then the receptacle containing the sacred relics were placed near his shrivelled lips. He kissed the relics and the priest applied the to his shrunken limbs.

The story told by his friends is that he stood up transfigured and limped out of the chapel, dragging after him the now useless cart.

1,000 PERISH IN CHINESE FLOOD

Tokio, July 31.—News has reached here of a terrible flood in the province of Chong Chun, Manchuria. In the city of Kirin, situated at the head of steam navigation on the River Sungari, 225 miles from Mukden, 1,000 people have been drowned and 7,000 houses submerged. The water is still rising.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

WHAT HERPICIDE DOES

Newbro's Herpicide destroys the tiny vegetable growth in the scalp that causes dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair and baldness. Once this microbic enemy of the hair is destroyed, and kept out of the scalp, the hair is bound to grow as nature intended, except in cases of chronic baldness.

WHAT SUNLIGHT DOES

Sunlight is nature's great germ destroyer and prophylactic. The effect of sunlight upon the scalp proves highly benenicial, if a complete plan of scalp cleanliness is carried out. This cannot be done without the use of Herpicide, which prevents reinfection and keeps the scalp pure and wholesome.

More men and women have gotten positive results from the use of Newbro's Herpicide than from all other hair remedies combined.

HOT WEATHER TROUBLES

The perspiration that exudes in increased quantities during the summer months carries out poisonous and refuse matter that would otherwise clog up the pores of the scalp.

Incomplete elimination of this waste produces a hot and feverish condition of the sweat glands known as prickly heat for which Herpicide gives immediate relief. Herpicide stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Col. Thomp. Burton, member of the board of managers of the Ohio Penitentiary, writes as follows of Newbro's Herpicide:

"As to Herpicide I find it an excellent hair dressing as well as being the first and only absolute dandruff cure I have found. Upon my advice a number of my friends are using Herpicide, and the unanimous verdict is, that Herpicide is, in all respects, everything that its manufacturers claim for it."

Send 10c in stamps to THE HERPICIDE COMPANY, Dept. 27, Detroit, Mich., for sample and booklet. One Dollar bottles guaranteed. At drug stores. When you call for Herpicide, do not accept a substitute. Applications at prominent barber shops.

Haileybury Chinamen Fatally Stabbed

Haileybury, Ont., July 30.—In a fight which took place in a Chinese restaurant here tonight, one Celestial is dead and another may die.

The murderer, an unknown Italian, is under arrest.

He was under the influence of liquor when he entered the restaurant and order supper, during the eating of which he was in an ugly mood. After finishing he began to pocket the silverware on the table.

A young Chinese waiter interfered, and in the scuffle which followed was stabbed through the heart with a knife. The proprietor attempted to hold the man, and was stabbed in the hand and the side.

The murderer then fled out of the restaurant and down the street, but was soon caught.

Washington Registers a Great Quake

Washington, July 30.—An earthquake of considerable intensity was recorded this morning by the weather bureau. The records began at 5:58, and lasted for more than an hour. The maximum intensity occurred between 6:13 and 6:20 a.m., with an actual movement of the ground at Washington of over two-tenths of an inch. From these records the centre of the earthquake appears to be about 2,800 miles distant from Washington, possibly in Ecuador or off the western coast of South America, in the Pacific Ocean.

An Indian Tribe Reported Starving

Ottawa, July 30.—Because one of their number became a "Windago," which means a violent lunatic, a tribe of Cree Indians, who make their trading headquarters at Moose Factory, on Hudson Bay, came near starving during the spring just passed.

Word of this condition of affairs has reached Mr. Duncan C. Scott, superintendent of the educational department of Indian affairs, and Constable Giroux, of the Dominion police force, has been dispatched to bring the insane Indian to the asylum at Hamilton.

So superstitious are the Indians regarding an insane person that instead of continuing their usual fishing and hunting occupations, they flocked to Moose Factory. Having very little provisions, their state soon became serious, and the officials of the post at Moose Factory decided to notify the authorities here.

Constable Giroux has left Ottawa for Moose Factory, going via C. P. R. to Mis-sinabie, a point on the north shore of Lake Superior, by rail. From there an arduous canoe trip of ten days on the Moose River to his destination will be necessary, some 300 miles having to be covered in this manner.

PORT STANLEY IS POPULAR WITH CITIZENS

Rolling Mills, Hyman's Tannery and Others at the Lakside

Today will be a busy one at Port Stanley, as picnic parties from all over the district are centering there. It is estimated that several hundred picnickers will go down in special trains.

At 9:45 the employees of Hyman's tannery went down via the Pere Marquette in a special train, and at 1 o'clock this afternoon left for a two-hour excursion on the steamer Lakeside. At the conclusion of the ride a programme of sports was held, and the evening will be given over to dancing.

Nearly 300 people went to the Port via the P. M. from the London Rolling Mills. They also have arranged a fine programme of sports.

The Prudential Life staff are also picnicking at Port and have arranged for a dinner at the Invererie.

A special train from Woodstock, bearing the employees of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review went to Port via St. Thomas. The party will cross to Cleveland and return tomorrow.

A combined picnic held under the auspices of the employees of the McLagan Furniture Company, of Stratford, arrived in the city via the Grand Trunk this morning, and went on down to Port.

In addition to those mentioned above, large individual picnic parties went down to the lakeside in great numbers.

MR. ROBERT WATSON HAS PASSED AWAY

Founder of the Globe Casket Company Died of Heart Failure Friday.

Mr. Robert Watson, founder of the Globe casket works, and one of Ontario's best-known citizens, died at his home, 529 Queen's avenue, yesterday afternoon from heart trouble. Mr. Watson was 73 years old and had not been well for some time.

He came to Canada from Cumberland, England, when a boy of 12, and with his parents settled in Toronto. Later he removed to Bowmanville, where he resided for nine years, and seventeen years ago last March came to London and founded the Globe casket works.

Besides his wife he is survived by one son, Mr. R. T. Watson, of the Globe casket works, and three sisters—Mrs. Coombs and Mrs. McGuire, of Toronto, and Mrs. Woodley, of Chicago. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon to Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Daniel, of Chatham, formerly pastor of the Colborne Street Church, and Rev. Mr. Kennedy.

CONDITION UNCHANGED.

(Special to The Advertiser.)

Port Stanley, July 31.—Mr. Wm. Bowman, of London, who is so seriously ill at his summer residence on Fraser Heights, is reported about the same today. Dr. Arnott sen., of London, and Dr. Mothersill, of Port Stanley, are attending him.

A Secret Convention.

Vienna, July 31. — The Algemeine Zeitung asserts that France and Spain entered into a secret convention in 1904, under which France is bound to assist Spain in holding Melilla.

SENSATIONAL TESTIMONY IN ST. CLAIR MYSTERY

A Protest and Cries of a Woman Preceded Killing of Rosenburg.

Port Huron, Mich., July 30. — "I heard her screams plainly and then I heard a voice say, 'Don't hit him any more.' No, I can't say whether it was a woman or a man who said it. As soon as I heard this remark another voice replied, 'He is dead now.' That's all I remember hearing."

This testimony, given by Charles Fett, caused a big sensation in the police court examination today of Samuel Frisbie, charged with the murder of Louis Rosenberg, of Cleveland, at St. Clair Flats.

Fett is employed as a bartender at the Forester Hotel, on the island near Bedore's, where the crime was committed, and his evidence is the first which has come out positively connecting a woman with the case.

It is now the belief that the officers have let an important clue slip away from them, and also that young Frisbie has not told the entire truth. Previous to today it was not generally known that a woman might have been implicated in the affair, although this has been the firm conviction of some.

The examination of Frisbie was not concluded today, and it will probably take until Monday to hear all of the witnesses.

Arthur Kratz, a musician residing at 298 Monroe avenue, Detroit, swore that he heard cries at the time of the slaying of the Cleveland man and that in addition to the appeals of the one attacked he could hear two others trying to quiet him.

Prosecuting Attorney Brown was careful to bring out the statement that the voices of more than two men could be heard and this action makes it appear that he will endeavor to show that Frisbie was as deeply implicated in the crime as Frank Elebra, who committed suicide at the Bedore Hotel on the day following the murder.

CLACHAN.

Clachan, July 30.—Bert Trestain, of Tillsonburg, is visiting at the residence of his uncle, James H. Trestain.

John Scott spent Saturday and Sunday last in Chatham.

Miss Ethel Adaman from near Ridgetown spent Sunday at the residence of Mr. William Scott.

Mrs. John Hillman spent Wednesday with her mother, Mrs. Henry Mackay.

Alex. Cruickshank is building a new brick house.

The pupils of Oak Grove school presented their teacher, Miss Jean Anderson, with a suitcase, a clock and a book on Tuesday evening at her home.

TOLL ROADS AWARD.

Ottawa, July 31. — Arbitration awards in connection with the toll roads recently taken over by the city were announced by the city today. For the Ottawa and Gloucester road through Ottawa East, the city must pay $24,142; for part of the Richmond road $2,300, and for a section of Merivale road, $6,113. The total is well within the estimate.

CELEBRATE WOLFE'S VICTORY.

London, July 31.—The 150th anniversary of Wolfe's victory at Quebec will be celebrated by a banquet on Sept. 13. A committee, headed by Lord Roberts, has in hand the execution of a bronze statue of Wolfe.

THESE ELOPERS TRY TO POISON HUSBAND

House Painter and Rich Broker's Wife Run Away, But Are Caught.

Reading, Pa., July 30.—Mrs. Alice Berman, whose parents reside here, was arrested here today, and with the arrest comes the confession of a house painter, Francis Jeffries, with whom Alice Berman eloped, and who is now in the Doylestown jail for his part in a serious affair. He declares, it is said, that he and Alice Berman attempted to poison her husband, Edward A. Bermon, a rich New York broker, who has a summer cottage at Atlantic City.

Jeffries, according to his statements, turned the woman against her 55-year-old husband, and got her to elope with him from Atlantic City June 26. Berman has an office at 6 Wall street, New York. His wife was formerly Miss Alice Graul. Seven years ago she met Berman in Philadelphia and not long after they were married and travelled to nearly all parts of the world. Berman told the detectives that have been in pursuit of Mrs. Berman that he allowed his wife to carry as much as $10,000.

Early this spring Berman took a cottage in Atlantic City, where he intended to spend the summer with his wife. He engaged Francis Jeffries, of Philadelphia, to paint the house. Berman was at the cottage at the time, and while Jeffries was working on the house he had frequent chats with his employer's wife, during which he persuaded her to run away with him.

Upon reaching Reading, after they had pawned Mrs. Berman's diamonds, Jeffries said that he would go to Doylestown and get some checks cashed and he left Mrs. Berman here with her mother. When arrested, Mrs. Berman said that she thought that Jeffries loved her and was only doing right by telling her of her husband's habits. She claimed to know nothing of the poisoning, to which Jeffries confessed after being arrested in Doylestown.

Mrs. Berman was entered for her appearance before Magistrate Call, of Philadelphia.

A state warrant from New Jersey will be issued for the couple, and it is likely that requisition papers will be issued to take them back to Atlantic City, where they will be tried on the charge of poisoning.

Just previous to the elopement, according to the reputed confession by Jeffries, Mrs. Berman and he put poison on some fish, which was served to Berman, and he became ill. Physicians saved his life. It was about that time that Jeffries and Mrs. Berman were missed. They went to Philadelphia, where they were finally located, and then fled from there. The warrants were placed in the hands of the Philadelphia police, who notified other cities of the state. From Philadelphia the couple went to Scranton, where they registered at the best hotel of the city as Mr. and Mrs. F. D Deemer. They arrived July 3, and on July 18 Jeffries paid his bill of $47 by giving a worthless check on the Doylestown bank for $74, and received the change. The couple then left, but were reported to have been at other places in the coal region before coming to Reading this week.

FOUND DEAD BODY.

Quebec, July 30.—News has been received by Dr. Jolicoeur, the district coroner, of the picking up of the body of a man in the river at St. Jean, Island of Orleans, yesterday. There was nothing to identify the remains. Dr. Jolicoeur has been notified also of the sudden death of an unknown man at St. Francois, Island of Orleans. He will proceed to the island today.

PALE, LANGUID GIRLS

WEAK BLOOD DURING DEVELOPMENT MAY EASILY CAUSE A LIFE OF SUFFERING.

A Tonic Such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Is Needed to Build Up the Blood and Give New Strength.

At no time in her life does a girl stand in greater need of pure red blood and the strength which it alone can give her, than when she is developing into womanhood. It is then that any inherited tendency to anaemia or consumption needs only the slightest encouragement to rapidly develop. This danger is especially threatening to girls who are confined long hours indoors, in stores, offices and factories—girls depressed by worry and cares. All these conditions quickly impoverish the blood and are among the most common causes of sickness among growing girls and young women. If at any time a girl finds that her strength is failing and she is becoming pale and nervous, has no ambition and is languid, it is a certain sign that her blood is failing to meet the demands upon it, because it is impure and thin.

It is at a time like this that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable to build up the blood, make it rich, red and pure, tone the nerves, and give new health and blood to every part of the body. They have cured so many cases of this kind that they may truly be called a specific for the common diseases of girlhood. Miss Minnie Smith, Creighton street, Halifax, says "I have proved that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are all that is claimed for them in cases similar to mine. About three years ago I suddenly began to run down. I grew so weak that I could hardly attend to my school studies. I suffered from headaches, my heart would palpitate violently at the least exertion, and my appetite was very fickle. I tried doctors' medicine and emulsions, but the treatment did not help me. Then I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking seven or eight boxes I was stronger than ever before. I feel that I owe my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I gratefully recommend them to other ailing girls."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2 50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

A Businessman's Experience in British Columbia and the Far West.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

St. Marys, July 30.—Mr. J. K. Richardson, manager of the J. D. Moore Company, Limited, has returned home from a two-months business trip to the Northwest and British Columbia. He speaks very highly of the crop outlook in the West. Many fields of barley have been cut around Lethbridge. This district would seem to have taken a climatic change. Where there was once great drouth, it now has copious rains and wonderful growth has taken place. Mr. Richardson visited many of the mining sections, and says they are steadily advancing. Fernie is making rapid growth despite the great fire ordeal it passed through. He also visited the fruit valleys in British Columbia, and speaks very highly of them, but considers the price of land, which is held by speculators, too high, ranging about $200 per acre. Vancouver he considered will be the great city of the coast. While in Edmonton he met a large number who were heading for the Peace River settlement, where fine farming lands, timber and minerals, are to be found.

Mrs. (Rev. F. C. O'Meara and two children, Grace Dallas O'Meara and Master Frederick O'Meara, of Carthage, Missouri, and Mrs. T. Allen and Master Jack Foster, of Cleveland, O., arrived Thursday morning on a visit to their mother, Mrs. James Crozier, Queen street, East Ward, and other friends in this section.

The North Midland Electric Railway, which is chartered to run from London to St. Marys and Stratford, is apparently the favorite of all the projected lines between London, St. Marys and Stratford.

The collegiate institute board met on Tuesday evening, and decided to call for tenders to be received up to Monday evening, Aug. 2, for the building of a two-roomed wing with basement to be attached to the present collegiate institute building, at an estimated cost of $6,000.

WHEN PLANTS SLEEP

Some Are Regular Night-Prowlers, Just as in Animal Kingdom.

Quite a number of plants close their flowers at night during rain, windstorms and other atmospheric disturbances, but there are some that close or open during every hour of the day. So regular in their habits are some plants that the flowers open with a snap right on the hour, and a knowledge of this fact has enabled experienced gardeners to construct floral sun dials that are very accurate in normal weather. In many public gardens both in this country and abroad may be found these giant floral sun dials.

For example, the daisy blooms at sunrise—hence its name, "Day's Eye." The dandelion opens its yellow petals at 7 o'clock in the morning, and closes them at 5 in the afternoon; the Arenaria rubia is in bloom from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The white water lily opens at 7 a.m., the common mouse ear from 8 to 3; the scarlet pimpernel blooms from 7 until 2; tragopodon opens at 4 in the morning, and closes just at noon, whence its common name, "John go to bed at noon." Farmers' boys in England regulate their dinner hour by the movements of that queer little blossom.

Shepherd's purse blooms at sunrise and closes at dark. The morning-glory flings out her gay blossoms at dawn, but the evening primrose is in full glory when the sun goes down. The common water lily blooms at sunrise, the petunia revels in the moonlight, the sweet peas droop their heads at noon, the nasturtium delights in the fiercest glow of the midday sun.

Great numbers of flowers persist in blooming with their faces toward the sun, and will not open until the stem has turned in that direction. Some sweet-scented plants, like the heliotrope, smell sweetest during sunny hours, but the majority of fragrant blossoms yield the strongest odors during the night.

As regards sleep, all nature seems to agree that night is the proper time, and the majority of plants, like nearly all animal life, take their repose after the close of garish day. In the plant kingdom, as in our own, there are a few night prowlers. The moonflower, night-blooming cacti and a large number of water lilies, including the giant Victoria, bloom only after sundown.

Darwin says: "Why they are so unlike in their habits no one can wholly explain, but their so-called sleep seems to be an effort of nature to bring the leaf surface into a vertical position, and thus put a check upon transpiration and insure its equal expansion. When the light strikes the plant the leaves turn quickly toward it; when it is removed, or when night comes, the plant serenely goes to sleep."

DIES ALONE IN HOUSE.

Brantford, July 30.—Mr. Thompson, assistant manager of the Bank of Montreal, was found dead in his room this morning from hemorrhage. Mr. Thompson had last evening returned from Port Dover, where he had been spending his holidays. He was alone in the house, the family being still at Port Dover.

PICHE'S CASE.

Toronto, July 30.—The case against John Piche, a half-breed, who was arrested at the instance of the attorney-general on the charge of having accepted a bribe to leave Canada so that he could not give evidence in the suit between the attorney-general and the Temiskaming and Hudson Bay Mining Company, was withdrawn in the police court this morning. It was stated by the crown attorney that the charge is to be laid at Haileybury.

The word "doldrums" is a name given by sailors to that part of the ocean near the equator in which calms and light buffeting winds prevail, with hot, sultry air, local squalls, thunder and rain. HEAD OFFICES AT PRAIRIE CAPITAL

The Grand Trunk Pacific To Be Run From Winnipeg.

Montreal, July 30.—One of the first important things done by Mr. C. M. Hays, of the Grand Trunk, on his return from England this week, was to complete arrangements for the decentralization of authority in connection with the company's western enterprises. To this end, he today issued a circular announcing that the office of Mr. E. J. Chamberlin, the vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, has been permanently transferred from Montreal to Winnipeg, and that all communications to that officer should in future be addressed to him at that point.

This is the most important development that has occurred in connection with the Grand Trunk Pacific since the change of managership, which occurred a few months ago. It places greatly increased power and responsibility on Mr. Chamberlin, for he will now exercise executive power over the whole system from Fort William to Prince Rupert—a position analogous to that which Mr. William Whyte occupies on the C. P. R. system. It will also mean much to Winnipeg, for, of course, the managerial staff will in future be located in that city, together with the numerous clerical staff.

The removal of Mr. Chamberlin to Winnipeg, definitely disassociates him from the prospective management of the eastern end of the Grand Trunk Pacific, from the Great Lakes to Halifax. Progress upon the construction of this section is rapidly proceeding, and within the next two years the whole of this far-stretching piece of line will be handed over by the Government to the Grand Trunk authorities for operation. The question naturally arises as to who will manage this end of the Grand Trunk Pacific, and the name of Mr. F. W. Morse is mentioned in this connection.

CANADIAN APPEALS LOST

Many Privy Council Judgments Were Handed Out Yesterday.

London, July 31.—The privy council handed out judgments as follows yesterday:

C. P. R. vs. Bryce appeal is allowed with costs. The James Bay Railway vs. Armstrong appeal dismissed with costs. The Dominion Natural Gas Company vs. Perkins appeal is dismissed with costs. The Montreal Street Railway vs. the city of Montreal, special leave to appeal is refused The Sprague vs. Booth appeal is dismissed with costs. The Fulford vs. Hardy appeal is dismissed with costs.

History of the Cases.

The C. P. R. vs. Bryce case arose from the collision in 1906 of the tug Chehales and the Princess Victoria. The trial in 1907 of the combined suits of relatives of those drowned resulted in victory for the C. P. R. A court of appeal in April, 1908, reversed that judgment. Damages to the extent of $26,000 were awarded. To the executors of the late Robert Bryce $10,000, and $4,000 as executor of his wife's estate. To Mr. Benwell $4,000, Engineer Dean $1,500, M. Crawford $4,000, Captain House $2,000. The costs of the case will amount to $50,000.

The James Bay Railway vs. Armstrong resulted from proceedings for expropriation of respondent's land. The high court of Ontario increased the amount awarded by the arbitrators.

Dominion Natural Gas vs. Perkins question was as to whether appellants were answerable for death of Perkins by an explosion.

Sprague vs. Booth was an action by the appellant for damages for alleged breach of agreement by respondent to transfer certain shares in the Canada Atlantic Railway and for repayment of his deposit.

Fulford Estate Suit.

Fulford vs. Hardy was an appeal from a judgment of the court of appeal of Ontario of April 21, 1908, affirming a decree of Mr. Justice Riddell. Mr. Hellmuth, K. C., and Mr. Cattanach appeared for the appellant, Mr. Buckmaster, K. C., and Mr. Harcourt for three of the respondents; Mr. H. B. McGiverin for the respondent, Mrs. Martha Shirreff, and Mr. Nesbitt, K. C., and Mr. A. M. Stewart for the respondent, Mrs. Dorothy F. Hardy.

The action concerned the construction of the will of Hon. Senator Fulford, proved at over $4,000,000. The substantial issue between the parties in the suit was whether the surplus income of the estate accumulated for the benefit of the estate, or for the benefit of each child, to be paid him or her on attaining the age of 25. Judgment was reserved on July 8.

SHOOTING PAINS IN SIDE, ARMS, BACK

Prove the Presence of Rheumatic Virus, Which Is Cured Quickest by Nerviline—Rub It In.

Pains in the muscles, in the sides, the back, the neck or the chest—they always carry with them great discomfort. If the inflammation is severe the pain will be intense. If allowed to continue they are dangerous. Nothing so quickly cures local inflammation and drives away pain as Nerviline. Nerviline does this because it penetrates so deeply. Nerviline is not only powerful, but soothing. By relieving congestion it cures pain. It does this always. It cannot fail because it is a true antidote for pain. You can scarcely find anybody that will not tell you wonderful things about the pain-curing power of Nerviline. Remember that there is not an ache or pain that Nerviline will not cure immediately. Nerviline is an anchor of health in every household.

Refuse anything that may be offered you instead of Nerviline, which is guaranteed for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, and all muscular aches and pains.

CUBA'S ARMY DISORGANIZED

Insubordination of Troops Is Condoned by the President.

Havana, July 31.—The process of putting the permanent army under proper discipline has been greatly hampered by the insubordination of the enlisted men, especially the colored troops, and bickerings between white and colored officers, which have resulted in serious charges and counter-charges, involving Gen. Rovas, commander of the infantry brigade, Col. Valiente, commanding the First Infantry, and other high officers, for the trial of whom several courts-martial have been ordered.

President Gomez, desiring to check the threatened disorganization, visited Camp Columbia, where a majority of the troops are quartered, just prior to his departure for Gayo Cristo a few days ago. After listening to the complaints, the president ordered all court-martial proceedings summarily quashed. He then proceeded to the guard house in which many enlisted men were confined on charges of insubordination, and ordered that all the prisoners be paraded before him. He made an address, pardoning all the men, and directed their immediate release and restoration to duty.

The president's action has caused much resentment among officers of all classes, many of whom openly declare that it will have the effect of intensifying the spirit of insubordination already rampant among the rank and file.

NO LACK OF BRICKS

Toronto Manufacturers Say There Is Plenty To Meet Demand.

Toronto, July 31.—If there is any shortage of brick either of the pressed, ordinary or sewer variety at the present time, there are quite a few brick manufacturers in the city who don't know about it.

City Engineer Rust's statement yesterday that work on the trunk sewers was being delayed owing to the shortage of brick came as a surprise to many. There was a genuine shortage during the spring months and right up till the middle of June, and common brick were then selling at $11 a thousand. The plants hit up speed, some of them putting on extra gangs, with the result that the demand was soon overtaken and surpassed.

Within the last couple of months the price has dropped about $1 a thousand, and the output has got back to normal again. One manufacturer said he could supply the city 50,000 sewer brick a day if required. Another brickmaker volunteered an explanation of the city engineer's trouble.

"The manufacturers are not at all anxious to supply the city," he said, "because the engineer's department is too exacting. Inspectors visit the works where brick is being delivered and reject brick which is really first-class. Some of them don't know good brick when they see it," he affirmed.

A complaint has been heard from a certain section to the effect that a very poor class of brick had been foisted upon the public when the demand was strong, and that builders could not be too particular.

HAD NOBLE RIVAL

But Hamilton Man Carried Off Beautiful American Just the Same.

Hamilton, July 30.—The announcement in a Toronto morning paper today of the marriage of "Sir" Henry Neyland, to Miss Jeanne Vermorel, of Paterson, N. J., caused considerable surprise. The marriage took place in London recently, and it was stated that Baron Von Zach, the Austrian counsel to Singapore, was a suitor for her hand. The dispatch further states that "Sir" Henry, fearing to lose his sweetheart, biked post haste across the ocean and induced her to marry him, thereby throwing over her foreign suitor. Miss Vermorel, the bride, is prominent in Paterson society, and her marriage was a great surprise to her friends. The wedding took place in London, England.

The "Sir" Henry referred to is Henry Neyland, formerly principal of the local art school. He was engaged to Miss Vermorel before he came to this city five years ago. She appeared on the local stage here in April, 1908, in a concert given by Mr. Neyland and Victor Hutchinson. She was a talented violinist. The news of Mr. Neyland's wedding was no surprise to his friends, as he stated before he left the city in June that he intended to marry her in the near future. He had never said anything about having a titled foreigner as a rival. J. F. Leishman, the secretary of the art school board, was considerably surprised when he was told of the wedding, as he understood that the principal had broken off the engagement, and that Miss Vermorel had married the Austrian baron.

Throwing shoes at weddings after a newly-married couple on their departure for the honeymoon, originated in the old Jewish custom of handing to the purchaser of land an old shoe as a token of surrender or renunciation. The bride's parents gave a shoe to the husband, or threw it after him, to signify they surrendered to him all authority over their daughter.

BIG SPORTS FOR THE IRISH PICNIC

Chairman George F. O'Neil, Announces Some of the Great Features for Aug. 12.

The sports programme of the I. B. S. picnic will be the best yet given by the society.

Last evening the sports committee met at the Tecumseh House, and revised the programme.

A number of the old events were cut out, and many new features were introduced.

The list of contests is an extensive one, and there will be every sort of competition likely to amuse the throng of visitors.

Among the features will be the pillow-fight, the bun-eating contest, boxing in barrels, and several new things they have under cover.

The Tecumseh stakes, a handicap, weight for age event, for past secretaries of the society, will be run off, and will create more interest than a leap for life.

The past president's race will be a handicap race this year, former winners being given penalty allowance. This should be the event of the afternoon.

Other matters of importance were discussed, and at a subsequent meeting the programme will be put in shape.

Mr. George H. O'Neil, chairman of the committee, presided, and among the members of the committee present were: H. E. Buttrey, B. C. McCann, J. Stevely, Capt. T. J. Murphy, Angus Elliott, Fire Chief Aitken, W. Fulton, J. H. Fowler, Ed J. Ryan (president of the I. B. S.), Clem Garvey, J. McCormick, Roy Nopper, John P. Forristal, and others.

THIRTY-SIX MORE

Hundred and Six Local Option Campaigns Now Planned.

Toronto, July 31.—Among the important municipalities which have decided within the past few days to enter on local option campaigns looking to a vote on a bylaw next New Year's are the following: Towns: Brampton, Clinton, Dresden, Dundas and Uxbridge; villages, Ailsa Craig, Blyth, Bradford, Brussels, Burlington, Dundalk, Elora, Exeter, Fergus, Grand Valley, Port Perry, Shelburne and Teeswater; townships, Delaware, Dumfries South, Dungannon, Eastnor, Grey, Harwich, Hilton, Lobo, London, Nichol, Oxford North, Pilkington, St. Joseph, Stephen, Tossorontio, Turnberry, Westmeath and Westminster.

These 36 places, added to the 2 cities, 20 towns, 5 villages and 43 townships already announced, make a total of 106 municipalities which have entered upon or will enter upon local option campaigns this season.

BIG FIRE AT ST. KITTS

The Ontario Canning Factory Almost Wiped Out.

St. Catharines, July 31.—The Ontario pure food canning factory, belonging to the Amalgamated Canners, Limited, was almost completely wiped out by fire this morning. A large quantity of stock, including $20,000 worth of cans, was also destroyed. The loss will total about $75,000, covered by insurance. A large number of men and girls are thrown out of work by the fire, while farmers, who had contracted to supply the factory with fruit and vegetables, will suffer heavy loss.

TRIBUTE TO MR. DRYDEN

Hon. Mr. Duff Voices His Regret at Predecessor's Death.

Toronto, July 31.—Hon. J. S. Duff, minister of agriculture, expressed his deep regret at the death of Hon. John Dryden, one of his predecessors in office, and offered a tribute to the former minister's abilities, yesterday. He said:

"I can only voice on behalf of the farmers of this province the very general sorrow and sympathy which will be felt from one end of the province to the other this morning on the announcement of the death of the man who for so many years so ably occupied the position which I have now the honor of filling. For six or seven years it was my privilege to sit in the House with Mr. Dryden, and it was my pleasure to enjoy his personal friendship. I had, therefore, an opportunity of knowing and appreciating the splendid personal qualities which distinguished him no less than his ability as an administrator. I always looked upon Mr. Dryden as a very able administrator of this department, and a man whose greatest ambition was to move in the direction of the development of the agricultural resources of the province. I think I may even say that the agriculturists of Canada as a whole will regret the passing of the men who has given so many years of his life to the betterment of their condition."

MILL AFIRE.

Grosse Point, Que., July 31.—The Champoux lumber mill was destroyed, together with the yard mill, in which the fire broke out late yesterday afternoon, but the main yard was saved. The fire is all out now. The total loss is between $50,000 and $75,000.

LIGHT SENTENCE FOR A LOCAL HORSE THIEF

Magistrate Love Desposed To Be Lenient With William Murphy.

William Murphy appeared before Police Magistrate Love this morning, charged with stealing a horse and valuable outfit from Mr. John K. Darch, and was sentenced to seven months in the Central Prison at Toronto.

The magistrate stated that he would not impose a heavier sentence, as Murphy appeared to be a hard-working man when he was sober.

The outfit, which Mr. Darch swore was worth at least $200, was stolen from in front of the owner's store on Talbot street, on July 21. Murphy then drove out of the city, and returned by a circuitous route, attempting to make a sale at the corner of the Hamilton road and Egerton street.

A Cheap Outfit.

He stated that he had just driven into the city, and that as he was in need of funds he would sell the outfit for $60. Later a price of $30 was agreed upon. The police were notified, and his arrest effected. The police had great difficulty in tracing the horse, as Murphy very cleverly drove over a long route through the country before returning to attempt to make the sale.

There was but one other case on the blotter, an aged woman, who was charged with vagrancy, being discharged.

BOY BALL PLAYER KILLED BY FOUL TIP

A Sixteen-Year-Old Lad Instantly Killed at Lansdowne.

Lansdowne, July 1.—While playing baseball in a game between Lansdowne and Wilstead last evening, Blaine Cross, 16 years old, son of ex-Reeve Cross, who was catching for the home team, was accidentally struck on the head by a foul ball, and died within a few moments, before medical aid could be summoned. Cross was a bright student and popular in the town.

SIR WILFRID INVITED

To Visit Seattle and Take Part in the Celebration.

Seattle, July 31.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, premier of Canada, has been invited to act as the principal orator for Seattle Day. It was announced at the meeting of the Seattle Day Association in the Chamber of Commerce rooms today that an invitation had already been forwarded to Canada's most constructive statesman and there was very reason to believe that Seattle Day would be honored by the Premier's presence.

SWINDLERS FOILED

The Spanish Game Once More Worked on An American.

Madrid, July 31.—The Spanish swindling agencies which have fleeced the innocent in all parts of the world for many years with stories of buried treasure, legacies, etc., continue to find victims in the United States. The latest is Morgan N. Jones, of Aberdeen, S. D., who will learn for the first time through the Associated Press dispatch, that the $1,200 he sent in the form of a draft on the Credit Lyonais fortunately did not fall in the hands of the swindlers, but will be returned to him by the Spanish authorities in due course of time.

A decoy letter signed by C. Burrell Lopez informed Jones that a relation had died in a Spanish prison, leaving a daughter in a Spanish convent. A large fortune had been found concealed in his baggage and the man's dying request was that the relative in South Dakota would give his daughter a home and take over the management of his fortune—only there were death charges amounting to $1,200 and unless these were immediately paid the government would confiscate the dead man's money. So Jones, of Aberdeen, got together the cash and mailed the draft.

Fortunately the address, C. Burrell Lopez, was known and the authorities took the letter and will return the money to the sender. Such cases occur frequently though not often with such luck for the victim.

I bought a horse with a supposedly incurable ringbone for $30. Cured him with $1 worth of MINARD'S LINIMENT and sold him for $85. Profit on liniment, $54.

CORRESPONDENCE

Electrical Installations.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

As several articles have appeared in different newspapers in London lately regarding the examination now being made by the inspectors of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association of the interior wiring in buildings in the city, and as these in all cases do not quite correctly represent the situation, I think it well to endeavor to prevent any unjustifiable feeling on the part of the public, to shortly define the position.

It has been proved all over North America that the electrical hazard is severe, both as regards fire and life, and the constantly increasing use of the electric current for light and power is making this hazard always greater. Moreover, competition between contractors is keen, and however good the intention of the individual may be, if the price has to be cut, the work must certainly be poor. With these facts in mind this association has been endeavoring for some time past to organize a system of electrical inspection that would cover all the more important centres. We commenced in Toronto, and after some years' trial of it, were able to say last year that no one fire of importance could be positively traced to defective electric wiring. We extended the system to Ottawa, where the conditions are being rapidly improved, and have now appointed an inspector in London.

In London we have for some time been aware that the wiring conditions are more than usually poor, and the inspection we are making at present is to endeavor, without causing any additional expense in the way of insurance rates, to have these conditions improved. It is not correct to say, as it has been stated, that we have threatened to increase the rates if the necessary changes are not made. We are saying nothing of the kind, but simply notifying individuals of the defects that exist in their wiring and recommending them, in their own interests as well as ours, to have these remedied. What will be the result if these suggestions are finally ignored I cannot say, as this point has not been considered, though it seems evident that some discrimination must eventually be made between the property owner who spends money on putting his electric wiring in good order and the one who neglects it.

As to the matter of expense we were desirous of making out electrical department self-supporting, but this has been found impossible, and although we charge a small fee when we issue a certificate stating that the wiring is installed to our satisfaction, these fees only very partially cover the cost of the department. We, however, as well as everyone else, benefit by the improved conditions, and in this matter, instead of criticism, we think we deserve the co-operation and assistance, both of the press and the public.

JOHN A. ROBERTSON,
Secretary Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association.

WHAT SAVED MEXICO

City Built on the Bed of a Dried Up Lake.

Mexico City, July 31.—Officials at the observatory here declare that the escape of Mexico City with comparatively little damage by the series of earthquakes yesterday and the night before is due to the fact that the city is built on an old lake bed.

The shocks, however, worked greater destruction in the State of Guerrero, a region which is known as the home of earthquakes, but accustomed as the people there are to shocks, they are quite panic-stricken with the series of a score or more with which they have been visited.

It was reported in last night's dispatches that the worst came to the cities of Acapulco and Chilpancingo. Little Acapulco, with its 5,000 inhabitants, has achieved world-wide fame as a city of misfortune.

Twice this year has it been the scene of a catastrophe. On Feb. 19 thirty persons were burned to death when the Flores Theatre was set on fire by a moving picture machine and destroyed at the special performance in honor of Gov. Flores.

Several times the city has been damaged by severe earth shocks.

Nevertheless, Acapulco, beset by tropical currents, and cursed by a hot, unhealthy climate, is one of the most beautiful spots in the world.

DROWNED BY AUTO.

Salinas, Cal., July 31. — Charles Zimmerman, and his wife were pinned persons were rescued from drowning yesterday when the machine overturned and flung its occupants into a small stream.

CUYLER DEAD.

Washington, July 31.—Cornelius C. Cuyler, president of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, of this city, and and prominent in financial and civic affairs, died last night in Biarritz, France, as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident. News of his death was received here today.

TRAMPS HURT.

Quebec, July 31.—A freight train of the I. C. R. ran off the track one mile west of Laurier station about 10 o'clock last night, and four tramps, who were on board one of the wrecked cars, were badly hurt. They were transferred to the Hotel Dieu Hospital at Levis. The Ocean Limited was delayed several hours on account of the accident. The track was cleared about 8 o'clock this morning.

COMPLIMENTARY DINNER TO LT. WOOD LEONARD

Pleasant Event Last Night at the Kennels—The Speeches.

A complimentary dinner was tendered Lieut. Wood Leonard last evening by the Hunt Club at the Kennels.

About twenty members of the club were present to do honor to their fellow-member who distinguished himself at the recent International Horse Show in England.

Mr. Geo. C. Gibbons, K.C., proposed the health of the guest of the evening. He stated that Londoners were delighted with the success of Lieut. Leonard in England, and while they did not win the King's Cup, they acquitted themselves most creditably.

Lieut. Leonard's Reply.

Lieut. Leonard, in response, thanked the members of the hunt for the kind references to himself. He felt them all undeserved, but he had done the very best he could to uphold the honor of the city and country.

He gave an interesting account of the International Horse Show and the various contests. He regretted that the Canadian team had not done better, but in justice it must be stated that they had considerable ill-luck in that the horses were not in good form during the show, owing to lameness and other ailments. The foreigners taking part had the animals in splendid condition, and always had good mounts. They were generally more experienced in that sort of competition. Lieut. Leonard told of the methods employed by the officers of these countries in training their horses. In England it had been voted very cruel, and was tabooed. However, the horses were trained excellently. The course of training covered a considerable length of time, while the Canadians had but a short time to get their horses in readiness. With better-trained mounts, he felt certain they could have done better. Lieut. Leonard paid a compliment to the generosity of Hon. Adam Beck, who had sent two horses to England at his own expense to be used in the competitions for the King's cup, the Government making provision for one horse only for the competitors. He gave a further detailed account of the contests in a most interesting manner.

Hon. Adam Beck.

Hon. Adam Beck made a short speech. He declared that Canada could produce as good horses as any country in the world, a fact verified by the winning of the world's championship in the open hunters' class by a London horse. In all competitions the Canadian horses showed up well. In the competition for hunt clubs, the London Hunt was beaten only by the Stake Hunt, which was recognized in England as a dealer's enterprise rather than a legitimate hunt club. Even in this the local hunt was better in horses' conformation and jumping, which counted 5 per cent. but were beaten in equipment, a non-essential feature of the contest, which, however, counted 25 per cent. In England the London Hunt Club was highly thought of, and wherever its representatives went they were royally received. He hoped that next year, another team would be sent to compete for the prize. Mr. Beck spoke of the advantages of riding, and expressed the hope that more of the young men would avail themselves of the privileges of the hunt club.

Mr. James McNee.

Mr. James McNee, who also attended the horse show, spoke briefly. He referred to the evident popularity of the London Hunt Club in England, evidenced by the hearty reception accorded them on their every appearance in the arena. The riding of the British officers, he declared was a distinct disappointment to him.

The gathering was attended by Mr. Geo. C. Gibbons, K.C., Hon. Adam Beck, Col. A. M. Smith, Dr. H. R. Abbott, H. Campbell Becher, A. H. Marshall Graydon, Jack Smallman, Lieut. Wood Leonard, Major Ibbotson Leonard, Jack Labatt, Hugh Niven, James McNee, Dr. Hogg, Geo. B. Gerrard and others.

WRIGHT'S AEROPLANE AS WAR INSTRUMENT

Military Experts Say It Would Prove of Great Value.

Washington, July 31. — Oryille Wright's flight with Lieut. Foulois yesterday over the ten-mile course from Fort Myer to Alexandria and return at a speed of more than 42 miles an hour has made a deep impression on the army and navy officials. They contend that the accomplishment of the cross-country flight demonstrated the availability of the aeroplane for use in warfare.

"The great advantage of an aeroplane over a balloon for use in warfare is that it can fly low over a rough country," said Wilbur Wright today, "thus having objects on the ground in plain view. Orville demonstrated that yesterday. The speed at which he was travelling with the small exposed surface of the aeroplane would have made him practically safe from the fire of the enemy."

AMERICAN CITY ON MEXICAN SOIL

Old Map Proves That El Paso Is Not in the United States.

Mexico City, July 31.—At the Mexican state department last night it was said that an old map had been discovered showing that the present site of the city of El Paso was on Mexican soil. Senor Beltram y Puga is now in Washington conferring with Anson Mills, a member of the international boundary commission over the subject.

Minister of Foreign Affairs Mariscal says that the Mexican claims are based apparently on fact. The case has been pending for some time and will be settled during the present year. The settlement will be an amicable one, whichever way the decision goes, according to the Mexican department.

SNOW AT OMAHA.

Omaha, Neb., July 31.—The unusual spectacle of snow falling in July in Omaha occurred during an electrical storm last night, which followed an extremely hot day. The flakes fell intermittently for nearly ten minutes.

The storm was accompanied by a violent wind which upset five rowboats on Lake Nakoma, and fifteen persons were rescued from drowning with launches.

Baby's Health

The best way to guard the little tot's health during the coming warm weather is to give him only wholesome food. Infant foods that have been long in any dealer's stock are apt to cause trouble. Such foods are quite sure to have undergone a change that makes them unfit for any baby's delicate stomach. Baby foods must be fresh, and we handle our stock in such a way that only fresh foods can ever be found here.

WEEK-END FESTIVITY AT LAKESIDE COTTAGES

A Fancy Dress Carnival and a Bonfire Party—The Auto Scorchers Watched.

(Special to The Advertiser.)

Port Stanley, July 31.—Mrs. John Macpherson and family of London returned home, after spending the past month at Jubilee Cottage, Erie Rest. They will spend the month of August at Hypoint Farm, Delaware.

Daniel McLean, of Aylmer has accepted a position in John Downie's tonsorial emporium.

Alfred Hall, late of Tillsonburg Packing Company, has been engaged by Clifford & Long to assist in their butcher business.

Miss Marjorie Meek, who has been visiting Miss Verna Graham at Victoria Cottage, Erie Rest, returned to her home in London today.

William F. J. Grimmond, of London has purchased a lot, 40x60, west of Sydenham street from his father, Geo. M. Grimmond, for $200.

Fancy Dress Carnival.

The occupants of Mablehurst and Valley View Cottages Erie Rest held a fancy dress carnival last night. It was a great success and many unique and comical costumes were exhibited.

Mr. James Adkins, of London, spent the week-end with his family at Mabelhurst Cottage Erie Rest.

The tug Verda Belle has returned from Cleveland, where she has been in drydock undergoing repairs.

Arthur Mortimer, of London, spent the week-end with Jack Dillon, East Orchard Beach.

Y. W. C. A. Concert.

The Y. W. C. A., of London, are making great preparations for their "Olde Tyme Concert," to be held in the town hall here next Wednesday evening. The proceeds go to the support of the society's resort "Summerholm" on Orchard Beach.

A Bonfire Party.

Miss Gladys Manning, of Beverly Place, Erie Rest, entertained a number of her friends to a most enjoyable bonfire party last evening, in honor of her guests, the Misses Winnifred Lancelcy and Willa Winnett. The St. Thomas Bugle Band furnished a delightful musical programme and the usual beach-fire refreshments were were served.

Miss Willena Thornton, of London, is visiting at Jubilee Cottage Erie Rest.

CANADA'S AIR-NAVY AT PETAWAWA CAMP

A Description of the Aeroplane With Which Government Is Experimenting.

Petawawa Military Camp, July 29.—"We'll get a speed of forty miles an hour out of her with this engine," said J. D. McCurdy, as with Casey" Baldwin he busied himself yesterday getting the "Silver Dart" into shape for a trial flight, which will be made in the course of ten days.

The aviators imparted some valuable information, showing the distinctions between the various kinds of airships.

There seems to be a general confusion as to the nomenclature of the new science of aviation. The aerodrome and aeroplane are general terms denoting one and the same thing—airship. Aerodrome is the term adopted by Prof. Graham Bell, who is somewhat of an etymologist. He contends that "aeroplane" means simply a plane surface, and hence does not include the body of the machine. Moreover, it is a misnomer in that the airship wings are curved, not flat. However, European and American aviators adhere to the term aeroplane.

No Small Bi-Planes.

The aerodrome or aeroplane is divided into two sub-classes, the monoplane and the bi-plane. The wings of the monoplane have but one surface, while those of the bi-plane have a double supporting area, one directly above the other. The monoplane sustains more weight in proportion to its supporting area than the bi-plane, but nothing can be said as to their relative dimensions. The monoplane may be large or small.

The bi-plane aviators maintain that the small bi-plane is also practicable, but hitherto it has not been put to a test.

The machines of Bleriot and Latham are monoplanes. The Wright aeroplanes, the Glen Curtiss machine, and all Prof. Graham Bell's aerodromes belong to the bi-plane class. But he is in error who thinks that all these flying contrivances differ materially from one another, and that the inventors are now engaged in a mighty battle of generalship, conscious that the success or failure will be governed by the survival of the fittest. If one machine endures, all will endure.

Principle Is the Same.

The principle of operation is exactly the same in all cases quite necessarily, so, because only one such principle has yet been discovered by man.

"All these machines differ from one another just as one make of automobile differs from another make," explained Mr. McCurdy to a reporter yesterday.

"What is the principle which enables a great weight to fit through the air at an express train speed? It is the principle of nature's animate aerodrome—the bird. When Prof. Graham Bell was in Ottawa last winter he said: "I saw that nature did not err in other things, and so I thought that she had made no mistake in the matter of flying. So we try to imitate nature. We try to fly like a bird."

"Silver Dart" a Bird.

And the "Silver Dart" does not belie his word. A great bird—that is the "Silver Dart"—supported by mighty wings, one on either side, propelled by a large wooden propeller, driven by a 40-horsepower motor, and steered by two rudders, one at the rear and one at the prow.

The framework is made of spruce, which combines light weight with strength. It is shaped like the head of an enormous Indian arrow, if imagination permits of an arrowhead some 35 feet long and some 10 feet high at the base. This huge arrow stands upon one of its edge sides; its width of three and a half feet is uniform throughout; the point of the arrowlike structure is very sharp, the purpose being, of course, to reduce to a minimum the resistance of the air. As the framework tapers to the point, the spruce bars give way to steel tubing. The six-cylinder 40-horsepower motor, with its weight of 300 pounds, is securely bolted to the larger bars of the framework, almost at the rear, near its centre of gravity. Immediately in front of it sits the aviator, astride of a narrow seat, a host of levers on the right and on the left, and a horizontal steering gear, very similar to that of an automobile before him. So much for the framework, the body of the machine proper.

The motor is an ordinary one, such as is used in autos and gasoline launches and engines. The gasoline tank, a torpedo-shaped receptacle of the Curtiss make, is suspended by wires from the top of the framework, three feet from the motor. The flywheel revolves at the front of the engine, only a foot or two from the aviator's back. The shaft runs out to the rear, and its end is clear of the whole machine.

The propeller, which bears a close resemblance to a marine propeller, has four wooden flanges, each almost three feet in length. Each flange is of uniform width, about four inches. The blades are so arranged that they drive the air backwards, exactly like the steamship screw.

Seventeen Revolutions a Second.

The motor drives it at the rate of 1,000 revolutions per minute, or 17 per second. It is scarcely creditable that the air possesses buoyancy second only to that of water. However, the truth of this premise, on which the whole science of aviation is based, is brought home when one reflects that the "Silver Dart" provides her only "flying start" simply by the rotation of the propeller in the air.

Wings 49 Feet Wide.

Here, then, there is a great weight, approximately half a ton, which has to do the flying act. What is going to support it? Now there comes the analogy of the bird, and from tip to tip of the two wings the length is 89 feet, while the total supporting surface, including a canopy which shelters the motor and the aviator is 420 square feet.

Each wing consists of two oblong shells of rubberized silk, one directly above the other. Each sheet is in three sections, and the whole thing is held together by a light and loosely connected wooden framework, loosely connected in order that the wing may be pliant and bend upward to the shape of an arc of a circle with the pressure of the air. The ends of the wings are attached to the body of the machine by guy wires. The rubberized silk of which the wings are made is of very fine texture, and almost as thin as tissue paper.

At the rear is a rudder to turn the aerodrome to the right or left. It is of fine canvas, and operates precisely like a marine rudder.

At the sharp "beak" of this gigantic bird and at right angles to it is another rudder very closely resembling a large Chinese kite. Its purpose is to steer the airship upward or downward. The aviator does this by tilting it by means of one part of this complicated steering gear.

Mounted on Tires.

The whole ship is mounted on three small pneumatic tired wheels, two at the stern and one at the prow. They are part and parcel of the machine, and go up with it. When the flight is made. As previously stated, the airship provides its own "flying start."

RESORT HOTEL BURNED

A $100,000 Fire on the Coast of Georgia.

Savannah, Ga. July 31.—Hotel Tybee on Tybee Island, a seaside resort, was burned shortly before daylight this morning, a hundred guests fleeing from the building in their night clothes. So far as known no one was killed or injured. The flames had a clean sweep from the Tybee depot to the sea's edge through the big hotel, bath houses, pavilions, etc. The loss is practically complete. It is thought $100,000 will cover the loss.

Many of the guests after the first fright returned to their rooms only to escape again from beneath falling walls with a few of their most valued belongings.

THE CANADIAN HENLEY.

Canadian Henley, Port Dalhousie, Ont., July 31.—The second day of the Royal Canadian Henley opened with ideal weather. The water is in perfect condition and a slight breeze tempers the atmosphere, making the intense heat more bearable than yesterday. The course is line dwith visiting and local launches and canoes in the expectance of a grand day, and they will not be disappointed. The card for this afternoon is an excellent one and the contestants are evenly matched, insuring the best of sport.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

BUTTER ADVANCED ONE CENT POUND

Dressed Pork Sold at $10.75—Other Quotations on the London Market.

There was an advance in butter of 1c per lb, a decline in the prices of oats and berries on the local market this morning, but aside from that the large market was quiet.

The demand was somewhat brisk and the square was crowded. Although there is usually a change in hides prices at the end of the month, the present schedule will remain in use for some time.

Live hogs will be worth $8 per cwt on Monday, and as the market office will be closed up for the holiday, shippers will weigh on the Grand Trunk scales.

Dressed pork was worth $10 75 per cwt this morning, and the supply was fair.

Two loads of hay which were sold a couple of days ago, were brought in, quotations being unchanged.

Oats slumped to $1 62 to $1 69, $1 65 being the ruling figure, while wheat brought $1 05 per bu.

Cauliflowers sold at 50c to $1 50 a dozen, according to the quality, and cucumbers were quoted at 30c to 40c a dozen.

Red and black raspberries opened at two boxes for 25c, but were selling at 10½c and 11c a box before noon; there was a very good supply. New apples are worth 75c to $1 per bu, and potatoes $1 to $1 05 for this season's product.

A small quantity of washed wool sold at 22c per lb.

Ducks are now selling at 90c to $1 10 a pair, and chickens at 60c to 90c a pair.

Honey was quoted at $1 50 to $1 75 per dozen sections.

WALL STREET NOTES.

[Special from Harris, Winthrop & Co., to H. C. Becher.]

Rioting continues in Spain.

Destructive earthquake in Mexico.

Tariff bill goes to House and is expected to be signed by the President about Aug. 7.

Threatened general strike in Scotland averted by concession to the miners.

Cuban loan of $6,500,000 allotted to Speyer & Co., at 88½.

Receiver of C. H. and D. says reorganization is held up by reluctance of note holders.

July new financing smallest of any month this year.

Nebraska is marketing largest wheat crop in history.

Inter-Boro earned to 13 per cent in last fiscal year.

Twelve industrials advanced .86.

Twenty active roads advanced .60.

New high records for both this year.

By private wire to H. C. Becher, London, from Harris, Winthrop & Co.

New York, July 31.—Wall street, Noon—Today's first prices in the absence of London were about last night's level to a shade higher. Reading was the leader. A slight sagging movement developed in the general list caused by the usual Saturday profit-taking. The metal stocks sprang into prominence today, led by U. S. Steel. It is reasonable to expect this strength in metal and other stocks will extend next week.

PATHETIC STORY OF MRS. DUNK'S DEATH

Husband Worked All Day and Did Not Know of It Till Neighbors Told Him.

A pathetic story is told of the death of Mrs. Fred Dunk, of Smith street, yesterday. Mr. Dunk worked all day and was not aware of the death of his wife in the hospital. As he was on his way home he met several people with whom he chatted, and one of them sympathized with him in his loss.

Mr. Dunk could scarcely believe the news, but was told by a neighbor that he had read of Mrs. Dunk's death in The Advertiser.

This was the husband's first intimation of the demise of his life partner.

The funeral will be held on Monday at 2 o'clock to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

OFF ON A VISIT.

Mrs. F. G. Kemp and daughter Phyllis, of 1079 Francis street, and Miss Bessie M. Short, of 884 Queen's avenue, this city, leave tonight for an extended visit in Brantford, Hamilton and Toronto.

REDDICK—MAXWELL.

A very pretty wedding took place Windsor last Tuesday, when Miss Susie E. Maxwell, youngest daughter of Harry Maxwell, of 789 Dundas street, London, was united in marriage to Mr. George Reddick, of London. The happy couple will make their future home in Detroit.

EAST END NOTES.

Mrs. J. Drake and daughter Lou, of Inkerman street, leave today for Cleveland, Ohio, where they will visit Mrs. Drake's son.

Mrs. R. W. Drake and daughter, of Hyatt avenue, leave this evening for New York.

Mrs. Jack Walsh and family, of Hyatt avenue, leave in two weeks for Scriber, where they intend residing in the future.

Miss Anorna Walch is visiting in Petrolea, before leaving for Scriber.

Miss May and Master Wilfred Miller, of Simcoe street, are visiting their grandparents in the country.

Mrs. Thomas Boyd, of McPherson avenue, Toronto, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Graber, 381 Ontario street.

Miss Stella M. Lemmon, professional nurse, of Toronto, is at present in London, at Mrs. A. J. Graber's, 381 Ontoria street, who has been seriously ill.

Rev. T. W. Charlesworth, of Clinton, preaches in Adelaide Street Baptist Church tomorrow.

Personal Mention

Mrs. Bert Hookway and son Harry, of Waterloo street, are holidaying in Toronto, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Evans.

Miss Mabel Duggan is visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles Conroy, of Windsor.

Mrs. Hugh Clare and children have returned home, having spent a pleasant visit with Dr. and Mrs. Isaac, of Lorain, Ohio.

Sarnia Observer: Miss Pashley and Miss Annette Pashley, of London, left yesterday for a three weeks' trip to Montreal and Quebec. On their return Miss Annette Pashley will spend two weeks in Sarnia before returning to London.

Miss Tredgold, of London, is the guest of Miss Nellie Hall, Wallaceburg.

Mr. John J. Curran and Miss Margaret G. Curran, of Rockaway Beach, New York, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. Christopher, Adelaide street.

Master Harold R. Christopher, of Adelaide street, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. (Dr.) C. B. Curran, Rockaway Beach, New York.

Misses Ada and Mae Parsons and Miss Ethel Luney are spending a few weeks' vacation at Port Stanley.

Mr. Bert Parsons, assistant superintendent of the Prudential, is holidaying at Port Stanley.

Local Items

—Mr. W. M. Bowen, of Ottawa, was in the city today on business. Mr. Bowen has invented and patented a new air-moistening device for furnaces and hot water coils.

—Mr. Edward Morkin and family wish to thank their numerous friends for their kindness and sympathy during their recent bereavement in the death of their son, Edward.

Banks Open Monday Morning.

Although Monday is Civic Holiday, the banks of the city will be open until noon for the payment of bills.

No Quorum.

Alderman Beattie was the only member of No. 1 committee who showed up at the city hall yesterday afternoon. After waiting half an hour for the other members to come he got tired and went home.

Card of Thanks.

The family of the late S. H. Woods desire to express their sincerest thanks to their many friends for their kindness to them during their recent bereavement.

C. P. R. Office Open.

The C. P. R. ticket office, southwest corner of Dundas and Richmond streets, will be open tonight for the sale of holiday tickets.

A Race Special.

A special train carrying about 300 people from Hamilton and Toronto, to Windsor, where the running race meet opens this afternoon, passed through the city on the Grand Trunk at 12:25. The train was held here while dinner was served.

Council Meeting.

The city council will meet on Tuesday night, owing to the fact that Monday is Civic Holiday. There is much business coming up, the most important matter being the question of the calling of tenders for the Niagara power distribution plant.

The Fire Record.

Chief Aitken reports 26 alarms during July. Twenty-four were for fires, one was a chimney blaze and one a false alarm. Seven came in by box, sixteen by phone, and three were verbal. The most serious fire of the month was at Langford's hardware on the Hamilton road.

Special Evangelistic Mission.

Rev. Jonathan Goforth, missionary of the Presbyterian Church in Honan, China, will hold a special evangelistic mission in connection with the Presbyterian churches of London, Sept. 19 to 26. It will be interesting to hear Mr. Goforth's account of the extraordinary spiritual and moral awakening in China, from the midst of which he has just come.

REVENGE IS SWEET.

Hamilton, Ont., July 31.—At Beamsville this morning A. B. Tufford, village constable of Beamsville, was fined $2 and $12 costs for being drunk and disorderly on Thursday night last. The officer was having a jubilant time. The prosecution was laid by James O. Karr, who a few days previously had been fined on a similar charge laid by the constable. When Karr saw the officer disporting himself he could not resist the temptation to have his revenge.

BATHING FATALITY.

Carleton Place, Ont., July 31. — Eva McDougall, about 15 years of age, daughter of Daniel McDougall, was drowned in the river opposite the family residence, two miles east of here, yesterday evening. She and two of her sisters were in the river bathing, and got beyond their depth. Two of them saved themselves with great difficulty, but Eva was too far gone for resuscitation when taken out of the water.

A chance seedling that grew up on a farm near Lowell, Mass., about 1740, became the first Baldwin apple tree, but it was not until 1784 that Colonel Baldwin became interested in the apple, developed it, and gave it his named.

False teeth of ivory, on a plate of the same material, and held in place by gold wire, were in comparatively common use as early as 1000 B. C.

A GLASGOW TRAGEDY

Widow Kills Her Two Girls and Herself.

The dead bodies of a widow named Mary Ann Anderson and her two little girls, aged 9 and 4, were found with their throats cut in a house in Centre street, Glasgow. Neighbors who heard screams coming from the house on the previous morning paid no attention, as it was thought that the woman was chastising the children. The woman apparently murdered the little ones in a frenzy and then committed suicide. She was crazed by the death of her husband.

A large fleet of steam drifters, ready to leave for the herring fishery, were shut up in Buckle harbor for several hours through the closing of the entrance by two vessels, the Monarch and the Golden Hope, coming into collision at three o'clock in the morning. Pumping operations were carried on and the vessels were floated off by eleven o'clock, the way being thus cleared for the fleet to get out.

A man named David White, 72 years of age, who resided at 102 London street, called at the public baths in Osborne stret, Glasgow, and on paying the necessary fee was shown into a private bathroom. As he did not leave within a reasonable time two of the attendants entered and found the man lying dead in the bath. Death, in the opinion of the doctor who afterwards examined the body, is believed to have been due to natural causes.

The secretary for Scotland, Lord Pentland (who retired from the army as a captain after serving in the Soudan with the Fifth Lancers) has entered his 50th year. He is of ancient Scottish house, being grandson of Sir John Sinclair, sixth baronet of Dunbeath, in remote Caithness. His marriage, as Mr. Sinclair, to Lady Marjorie, the clever daughter of Lord and Lady Aberdeen, was the culmination of a long friendship. When his future bride was but six years old he was aide-de-camp to her father in Dublin, and he served on the staff again in Canada in 1895, having during the interval represented Dumbartonshire for three years in the House of Commons. Before his recent elevation to the peerage he sat for Forfarshire, one of the most united Liberal counties of all Scotland.

LESSONS FROM HISTORY.

Those whom recent dramatic developments have caused to take an interest in aeronautics for the first time may not appreciate why it is that the French are so enthuslastic concerning aerial locomotion. A few facts from history may be helpful. During the siege of Paris no fewer than 62 balloons were sent out for postal service; between them they carried 2,500,000 letters, of the total weight of ten tons; 200 men were carried out of the capital by those balloons in 1870; 8 were drowned, 15 taken prisoners and 20 wounded on landing. All the balloons were made during the siege the Orleans Railway station being converted into one factory and the Gare du Nord into another. The aerostats were made of calico, varnished in linseed oil and oxide of lead, the network being of flax. Coal gas was used, the usual size of the envelopes being 70,000 cubic feet, so that they were big balloons, for according to the competition rules employed today a 50,000 cubic feet balloon is required to carry four persons and ballast. The postal charge of 20 centimes for every 4 grammes of weight paid the entire cost of the balloon service.—Exchange

FINED FOR SNEEZING.

At a recent official inquiry into factory conditions in England, the evidence showed some queer instances of petty tyranny upon the part of employers.

In a cotton mill, should a weaver do the most trifling injury to a piece of cloth he has to pay for the whole piece. This may swallow his entire week's wages; but there is this to be said: He gets the cloth and at wholesale price, and may cut it up and sell it to his neighbors.

It is piece workers, especially those employed in the hosiery and tailoring trades, who suffer most severely from the fine system. Workers are in many cases forced to purchase all work which does not exactly comply with the directions given.

One girl in a Bristol factory who was given a dozen pairs of trousers to make put the pockets in at a wrong angle. She was forced to buy them all at a price which swallowed her wages for more than a whole month.

A collarmaker made a slight error in the stitching of twelve dozen collars. The unfortunate woman was forced to buy them all at a cost of over $5.

The question of the living rooms of shop assistants was also gone into, and here again was disclosed a system of fines of the most cruel description. In a large number of cases the food and accommodations are poor, the wages low, and the code of rules and fines most strict and exacting.

To give a few examples of shop law. No pictures are allowed on the walls; all bedrooms must be cleared by 8 a. m.; no flowers may be put in water glasses; all lights must be out by 11 o'clock; no matches or candles are allowed. For not turning out the gas in a bedroom, the fine is 25 cents.

In one drapery house a mistake in a bill entails a fine of 12 cents; talking to a girl in another department is punished by a similar fine.

In one factory, it was said, girls are actually fined for sneezing.—Exchange

LICK'S FIRST LOVE AFFAIR.

There are many stories of the lighter side of finance in which love affairs find a place. Perhaps none of these is more peculiar than the story of James Lick, a name famous all over the world through a monument to his memory, the great Lick observatory in California. In the financial world the great city of San Francisco is a monument to Lick's luck — he foresaw the possibility of the great city of the Pacific slope, bought the land on which it now stands, and became a millionaire. Before that time the name of Lick was great in the musical world. Lick's pianos—out of which he made the money which he invested in land—were manufactured by him. But on the poetic side of life—a world apart from such things as piano making and mud flats—the great Lick mill stands as a monument to Lick's love.

In early life James Lick sought the hand of a miller's daughter, but was repelled by the father on the ground that the young suitor did not possess a mill. Many years afterward, when he had become one of the richest men in the states, he erected a large mill and adorned it like a palace. It was built of mahogany and costly woods and erected solely as a memorial of his youthful attachment. His only pleasure was to contemplate this palatial mill and to gloat over the man who had spurned him for his poverty. —Strand.

AERIAL TORPEDO IS A SUCCESS

With Such an Apparatus the Steamer Berlin Might Have Been Saved.

The British steamer Berlin not long ago went down within 250 yards of the Dutch coast, and many lives were lost because no rocket apparatus was able to throw a rope to the wreck, the distance was too great. A new apparatus was tried at Messrs. Armstrong-Whitworth's gun range at Silloth, Cumberland, recently, which succeeded in carrying a rope a distance of 380 yards, 130 yards further than would have sufficed to reach the Berlin. And the apparatus not only carried lines this distance on each of four successive "shots," but carried them in one course, without any deviation due to wind, laying them as neatly side by side across the sands as though some surveyor's chainman had placed them there. It is an achievement in life-line carrying that should put the old-fashioned rockets of our lifeboat men quite into the shade.

The Working Principle.

The apparatus, which is the invention of a Swedish military man, Colonel Unge, was carried to the firing butts in two plain boxes, each no bigger than a Fleetwood fishbox and not nearly so heavy. In the one box, neatly coiled, was the rope to be carried through the air, in the other the apparatus for carrying it. The principle of the apparatus is briefly this: A "torpedo" launched into the air drags after itself the rope in whatever direction it is launched. This aerial torpedo is very nearly the shape of an ordinary gun-shell—cylindrical with a conical nose. But it is not a projectile (using the word in its stricter sense of a thing thrown) as a gunshot is. It is not thrown at all; it propels itself. How, will be explained later.

The torpedo is launched from a slide, which is merely a metal groove some three feet long, open at one end, blocked at the other. The nearest likeness to it of a homely sort is the hollow groove for pens on an inkstand. Imagine one of these three feet long made of metal, with one end free, the other not. This groove, set at an incline (to give altitude in directing a torpedo), is placed with its higher end pointing in the direction wanted. In the lower end of the groove is placed the torpedo, nozzle first. An electric spark is conveyed to the torpedo. It immediately generates motion and rushes up the groove. At the higher end of the groove is a collar, very like a dog collar, to which is attached the life-line on a swivel. This collar slips over the sharp nose of the torpedo, but is caught by a rim projecting from the back end. The collar is caught, and away go torpedo, collar, and rope through the air together.

The Propelling Force.

Now as to how the torpedo generates its own motion. It is filled with a patent combustible powder, compressed till it is very hard. When the electric spark reaches this powder its combustion is not sudden, as is the powder of a gun charge or a Chinese cracker; it consumes gradually, as does the powder in a squib. In combusion it generates gas in immense quantities. This rushes out with great force through vents at the base of the torpedo (at the part where the percussion cap would be in an ordinary cartridge), and the resistance of the atmosphere propels the torpedo forward. As the torpedo generates its own propelling force there is no recoil on the back of the launching tube. Without some guiding force the torpedo, of course, would not go straight through the air. It would turn over and over lengthways, as a stick does if thrown up, and the force in its tail created by the escaping gas would drive it first forward then back, now upwards, now downwards, as it turned over. To obviate this there is an ingenious little contrivance. It is a turbine within the torpedo. The gas before reaching its outlets at the back must pass over the blades of this turbine, and the result is that the whole torpedo is given a rotary motion. In the case of a shot fired from a gun the rifling in the barrel gives this rotary motion with the torpedo it is the internal turbine that imparts it. By this motion the torpedo is kept true on its course, whatever that course may have been at the launching. Colonel Unge told me (says our representative), that many people who had heard of his torpedo, were under the impression that the turbine propelled it on the airship principle. This, he said, was quite wrong. The turbine did no more than impart the rotary motion necessary to keep the torpedo to its true course and prevent its turning over. The torpedo, by the way, rotates within the collar, to which the rope is attached. The collar is loose-fitting and is smeared with grease. The rope therefore does not rotate, as it would do if the collar were tight. Were the rope to rotate to any extent it would, of course, unwrap and probably snap very soon. As a safeguard against damage through any slight rotation there may be, a plaited rope is used instead of the ordinary twisted rope.

"Firing" the Torpedo.

The torpedoes can be made any size. They could be made large enough, Colonel Unge told me, to carry a line 500 yards or more against a wind, but as the distance stipulated by the board of trade life-lines committee is only 300 yards, he has attempted no more than meeting their requirements. Yesterday's torpedoes, which carried ropes a distance of 380 yards, were 19 inches long by 4 inches in diameter, tapering to a point from about 4 inches from the end. Each weighed, when fully charged, 22 pounds. The ignition, it may be added, takes place at the nozzle and may be affected either by means of a portable electric battery (as was done yesterday) or by an ordinary fuse. The torpedoes can be used and recharged over again. The four found yesterday embedded in the sand after use were seemingly intact, though very hot. The "firing" was rather a thrilling affair. The torpedoes rushed from the slide with a great roar, belching forth great clouds of smoke and fire in their wake. It would be a good sight at night. The roaring and the fire, however, lasted for only about one-third of the journey, and for the other two-thirds each torpedo could be seen black against the sky with the rope trailing behind. In their flight of 380 yards they rose to a height of 150 yards as near as one could guess. In spite of a fairly stiff breeze blowing obliquely across their course, the torpedoes went perfectly straight, landing in the sands within a few yards of one another. The ropes, however, blew slightly to one side, and at the finish lay in parallel arcs on the sand.

At a luncheon afterwards Captain Thoms, chairman of the merchant service guild, spoke highly of the invention, and said the board of trade ought to take it up. Unlike the present rocket it could be used either from shore to ship, or from ship to shore, and, unlike the rocket again, it could be aimed with accuracy notwithstanding wind. He hoped to see it part of the equipment of every ship.

"CONSTIPATION FOR THREE YEARS"

DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS CURED QUICKLY.

Those who doubt if constipation and chronic stomach trouble can be cured, need only read the striking testimony of Mrs. B. C. Curran, of Westport, to know that even if all else had failed, certain cure attends the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"For three years I have suffered the torture of biliousness, constipation and stomach disorders. I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away, and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The active pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set me wild. Some times attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned. I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system-cleaning remedy, I would still be sick, but each day brought me better health and spirits. I was cured and made as strong, ruddy and healthy-looking as one could wish, and will always use and remommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Thousands who are in an ailing, low state of health need nothing else but Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They cure blood disorders, pimples, rashes, bad color, biliousness, liver, stomach and kidney troubles. Mild, certain and safe. Beware of imitations and substitutes, 25 cents per box or five boxes for $1.00. At all dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

THE DEATH AVENUE OF NEW YORK CITY

525 Killed in It Last Year and Many Hundreds Maimed.

In the city of New York, the metropolis of western civilization, with more than four million inhabitants, a steam railroad is operated for miles through crowded streets and on the street level.

For miles, from St. John's Park (freight station) on the lower west side of New York through one crowded street after another, crossing at grade important busy thoroughfares like Canal, Christopher, Fourteenth, Twenty-third and Forty-second streets through the densely populated region of the upper west side to the head of Manhattan Island, runs this private public highway owned by the same New York Central Railway Company of watered stock and shady financiol history.

In popular speech the street it thus traverses has earned another and more fearful name. It is called Death avenue.

Most of the street crossings are wholly unguarded; a few are watched by infirm or superannuated flagmen.

One of these trains has killed more people than any other train in the world. Kindly note that it is a passenger train not operated to carry passengers. It is operated to hold one of the franchises that produce melons and enable the watered stocks to reap dividends.

Since 1897 the validity of that franchise has been more than doubtful, but no public officer has moved to test the question.

So terrible have been the Death avenue casualties, especially among children, that many parents in that neighborhood have refused to allow their children to go to school because to go to school the children hust cross these tracks, and up and down these tracks all day in the heart of the metropolis thunder the flying trains—franchise savers and freight trains.

To Oct. 24, 1908, the number of persons recorded as having been killed by the New York Central Railroad Company in Death avenue was 325. This is not a complete total. Also, the maimed numbered hundreds; nobody knows how many.

Against this frightful slaughter-house the people of the region traversed have carried on for 25 years a pathetically fruitless agitation. How they have been defeated you can readily understand if you know anything about the vast and sinister control that the railroad companies exercise over legislative bodies.—From an article in Hampton's Magazine.

The length of the island of Manhattan—from the Battery to the Harlem River—varies from eight miles on the east to twelve miles on the west. The average width is one mile. Fifth avenue is the central dividing line between the eastern and western sections.

LISTENING TO A CLASSIC WALTZ

The Romance of the Air That Is the Most Famous of Its Kind.

It was a gay scene—in the drives, the smart carriages with their high-actioned horses; the motors and the bicycles; the brilliant costumes of the ladies; the pomp and circumstance of the military personages. The music of the white-robed women's bands in the restaurant houses had died away. Suddenly, above the rustling of the leaves and the diapason of distant conversation, the faint tremolo of a military band came to our ears. It was the ethereal introduction of "An der Schoenen Blauen Donau." With a flash I came out of my dreamy enjoyment to a recollection of the supreme fact that I was in Vienna, and that the Blue Danube was rolling by not half a mile away.

We had gone to see the great Danube that morning, and found it neither beautiful nor blue. It was in flood, the melting snows of a late spring having swollen it to huge dimensions, and it rolled away in a red stream, the velocity of which seemed to make the landscape roll with it. We had stood on a plunging Servian corn boat, which tugged at its moorings as the moving plain of water swirled by it. Not beautiful nor blue was the Danube at Vienna that day. No; it was mighty and magnificent; and the memory of its impressive greatness comes back whenever I hear the waltz. From that Servian corn boat, as the angry red waters swept past, we saw, in imagination, the panorama of the great river's life, from ts humble beginning "in a gentleman's garden,"—as the story books used to tell us—near the Black Forest, to its shattered exit into the Black Sea. We saw the increasing momentum and velocity of the great river, taking tribute from many mountains and many nations, bursting in anger through the Iron Gates, passing the great rock at Budapest, vainly striving against man's bridges as a wild bush horse resents the saddle; then making history by dividing states and peoples, and delimiting nationalities before its plunge into the great salt inland sea.

The Famous Waltz.

With that memory of the river in its angry and tumultuous mood, I tried to reconcile the introduction of the Strauss waltz, as we sat in the Prater. The band now was describing the mystery of the sparkling footsteps of the water fairies, pixies and gnomes who guard the source of the great river. The introduction, like a sweet message from faery, passed on to the short, rapid movement in three-four time, which, in its turn, died down to a few staccato notes played pianissimo. Then a pause, and then, with all the clangor of a fine military orchestra, came the first movement of the glorious waltz. And then—a smile of sweet contentment spread over the faces of that well-dressed, pleasure-loving crowd.

Fat citizens wagged their heads to the tune, young ladies drummed with their small feet, as if they felt a tigling in their toes and longed to be whirling in their daughters now experiencing the maybe, of the glorious days and nights when they and the waltz were young, and looked with fond, motherly solicitude at their daughters now experiencing the emotions of delight which the magic waltz had once stirred in their own breasts. Ah! these Strausses! They are responsible for much romance, the father, son, the two Johanns, who gave the world so many beautiful waltzes, who made the waltz classical and respected.

At the waving of the wand-like baton of Strauss, the waltz magician, life is changed. Since the day when first the strains of "An der Schoenen Blauen Donau" struck the delighted ears of the privileged Viennese, millions of beating hearts of all the nations have throbbed to the music, have swelled to the delight. How many of those Viennese, silver-haired and sombre-hearted, who danced that dance when first played, are alive now? To generation after generation it has brought the old throb. It is ever new; it is as fresh today as it was when the magician of the waltz first raised his baton one night in Vienna, to describe in delirious melody the great river which flows past the gayest of European cities.

It was played, this waltz, at courts where blue-blooded beauties and bedizened kings and princelets have felt its influence. Statesmen and diplomatists have danced to it while revolving schemes and intrigues which have upset thrones and altered maps. Bismarck, perhaps, has beaten in time to it the ponderous foot which kicked the French Empire to pieces. That good, if eccentric, Empress of Austria, whose fate at the assassin's hand made her historic, has danced to it at her gay court in Vienna, while Strauss conducted, long years before the sombre tragedies fell on the unhappy house of Austria.—From an article in the Lone Hand.

MRS. MORSE AS ANGEL OF TOMBS

Wife of the Indicted Ice King Gave Up All To Help Him and Others.

Life in the Tombs, New York City's widely-known and usually crowded jail, has been brighter of late for its many inmates because of the sympathetic influence of a handsome, cheery-faced woman, who for some months had been visiting the prison.

She was cheery of face for a purpose; she was heavy of heart for a reason. Within those walls her husband paced his narrow cell, as the other prisoners did, pronounced a criminal by a jury of his peers, but still fighting against the impending legal fate. The present was dark, the future in doubt.

Daily Mrs. Charles W. Morse visited her husband in jail, bringing cheer and the comforts of life not found within prison walls. Her sympathetic nature was touched by the plight of other prisoners without influential or wealthy friends.

In every way possible Mrs. Morse strove to make their unhappy lot as bearable as possible. She secured a number of additional privileges for them; she brought flowers and books, dainties for the sick and substantials for the well; she visited the lonely ones and cheered the despondent. In time she became known as "The Good Angel of the Tombs."

So far as known, Mrs. Morse is the only woman who came from a millionaire's mansion to the volunteer duties of a Tomb's "angel."

Since her husband's release on bail last month, pending his appeal to a higher court, Mrs. Morse has devoted herself to his comfort and welfare, but the good influence of her former daily visits to the prison continues.

She secured, it is said, extra privileges for the prisoners in the way of more opportunities for outdoor exercise, and this in itself is sufficient to cause the cell-weary men to rise up and call her blessed during the long summer months.

Nothing is more irksome to the normal man than close confinement. Coupled with a realization of disgrace and the ever-present dread of the future, it is a severe punishment to be cooped up in a narrow cell with one's thoughts and fears. Every additional minute permitted for exercise in the yard of the prison is doubly welcome.

It is said, too, that Mrs. Morse suggested, and succeeded in having adopted, several other methods of ameliorating the condition of the prison inmates. Perhaps this suggestion is one that may not have been much in itself, but every little helps, and every kind suggestion indicated the sympathy and warm-hearted, helpful nature of the visiting woman.

Devoted and Courageous.

A woman of devotion, courage and energy is Mrs. Morse. Last November her husband, the former ice king and one time controlling spirit of sixteen banks, wonder of the financial world and many times millionaire, was convicted of misapplying the funds of the National Bank of North America, New York, and sentenced to a fifteen-year term in the federal prison at Atlanta, Georgia.

Since then Mrs. Morse's life has been devoted to two purposes—helping her husband secure a new trial, and getting him released from the Tombs on bail. Only last month did she succeed in securing his release on bail pending the appeal in his case.

This was when Judge Lacomb, sitting in the United States circuit court of appeals, ordered the release of the former banker on the immense bail bond of $125,000, to be signed by the twenty-five men who had signed a petition asking that he be admitted to bail.

As it was Mrs. Morse who had prevailed upon them to sign the petition, so it fell upon her to get their signatures to the bail bond. There was no busier woman in New York than she until this was done.

During all his recent troubles Mrs. Morse has never faltered in the great faith she had in her husband nor in her devotion to him.

When he became entangled in the financial troubles of 1907 and his great fortune, which he estimated at $32,000,000, began to melt, she was his staunchest ally and comforter.

After his arrest and imprisonment in the Tombs she began a remarkable series of personal sacrifices, virtually dismantling her magnificent Fifth avenue mansion and disposing of her own personal belongings to satisfy his creditors and help raise money to defray trial expenses.

All her splendid jewelry, her furs and even her fine clothes went under the pressing demand for money. It is said that her personal belongings thus secrificed amounted in value to $250,000. Her collections of jewels was one of the finest in New York, and was disposed of at heavy loss.

In one instance, it is said, Mrs. Morse sold for $1,500 a pin that had cost $4,000. This was to meet the bill of a stenographer, amounting to more than $2,000. She had promised him that part of it should be paid on a certain day, and made the sacrifice in order to keep her word.

Besides dismantling her home by selling its splendid collections of plate, paintings, furniture and other household articles, she dismissed her large retinue of servats for economy's sake and kept only one.

This is the woman who during the past few weeks has been so rejoiced over her husband's release from prison—the woman who went from a splendid mansion to gain the title of "Good Angel of the Tombs."

"ASSASSIN."

How did the word assassin—full of sinister significance today—come into being? One likes to credit the story of its origin given by Nizam ul Mulk, friend of Omar Khayyam and of the ill-fated Hassan Ben Sabbah. Nizam, after relating the circumstances of the solemn vow which the trio took—to share with each other whatever wordly prosperity might befall them—records how, after many mishaps and wanderings, Hassan became the head of the Persian sect of the Ismaillians—a party of fanatics "who had long murmured in obscurity, but rose to an evil eminence under the guidance of his strong and evil will."

In 1090 Hassan seized the Castle of Alamout among the mountains south of the Caspian Sea, and it was from this mountainous home he obtained the evil celebrity among the Crusaders as the Old Man of the Mountains. According to Fitz-Gerald's introduction to Omar, it is yet disputed whether the word assassin, which they have left in the languages of modern Europe as their dark memorial, is derived from the hashish, or opiate of hemp leaves (the Indian bhang), with which they maddened themselves to the sullen pitch of Orientdl desperation, or from the name of the founder of the dynasty whom we have seen in his quiet collegiate days at Naishapur. One of the countless victims of the assassin's dagger was Nizam ul Mulk himself, the old schoolboy friend.—London Chronicle.

LAND OF LOVE IN SOUTH SEAS

The Polynesian Woman Gives Her Life for Love.

From the hour of their discovery the tropical islands of the Pacific have given the world little else than romance, but of that a-plenty. The women of Tahiti, New Zealand, Samoa, Tonga and Hawaii are sisters These women of the south seas are fair to look upon and speak a common language. In Honolulu their word of welcome is still "aloha," love to you, as it is "talofa," in Apia, Samoa, which has exactly the same sound and meaning.

The Polynesian woman gives her life to love. Her hair is long, straight, and flowing, ever garlanded with flowers of the brightest hue. This is so today, even in over-civilized Hawaii and in French Tahiti.

Many have met these gentle, loving children of the tropics, and have become theirs; many will yet meet them and yield to their charms, never again to return to the land of their nativity.

The Hawaiian woman has never looked upon the white race as her superior. She calls her white friends, with whom she has grown up at the public school, by their Christian names, whether they be bankers or paupers, and they are ever respectful to her. Like all the Polynesian women, she makes a good wife. Should her husband weary of her, if she truly loves him, she is apt even in this prosaic day to go to a native witch doctor, and seek to conjure back the love of the man she adores. Failing in this she is quite willing to die, in which event the natives declare she has been "kahunad."

One young Hawaiian girl loved a "haoli" (white) lad, but, as his parents would not listen to such a thing as a mixed marriage, the girl went away to another island.

From there she sent word to her lover that she would die on a certain date, and to the day and hour kept her word. Her parents and family, grieving, surrounded her in perfect knowledge that she was actually dying of love.

The men, too, of Hawaii, sometimes die for love. They seem to have the power of setting an hour for their death and meeting the engagement promptly, merely breathing a peaceful "aloha," loving farewell, to all.

The last of the really royal princesses was said to have died of love for Hawaii. Brought up to believe that she would be queen and reign over her people, the Princess Kaiolani went abroad to prepare herself to become a wise and accomplished queen. On her return to Hawaii came the revolution, the time when Liliakalani was hurled from the throne, and a white man's republic was instituted. Kaiolani died of a broken heart and was buried with royal honors, for one and all, white and dark, loved the beautiful young princess, whose father was a "haoli" of distinction.—From an article in the New Idea Woman's Magazine.

ORIENTAL WISDOM

Witty and Wise Sayings of the Natives of India.

Indian conversation abounds in striking similes, phrases, and proverbial sayings, both witty and wise. Some of these are peculiar to the country, whilst others are sarcastic hits at different classes of society. The native shopkeeper, or Buniya, who is usually a money-lender and very extortionate in the matter of interest, is treated with great severity. One proverb says, "A Buniya's heart is as small as a coriander-seed." Another affirms that "A Buniya cheats his friends, but a swindler cheats strangers"; while in one part of the Punjab they say, "Crow, money-lender, and dog are never to be trusted, though asleep." Another class who come in for some very pungent sarcasm are the Mahomedan priests, or mullahs, who are noted for their avaricious nature.

Peasants and Proverbs.

Other sayings well illustrate the varied characteristics of the different castes and professions. Of the "Juts," who are the ordinary cultivators of the soil, they say, "A Jut's baby has a plough-handle for a plaything"; while of another class of agriculturists, the Gujar, who is generally looked upon as a lazy fellow, they say, "A desert is better than a Gujar," and "The dog, the monkey, and the Gujar change their minds at every step." Another class which is sarcastically treated in proverbial lore is that of the Dhobi, or washerman. Washing in the east, as elsewhere, entails a considerable amount of rough treatment, which is, sooner or later, destructive to one's linen. Hence the saying, "The Dhobi cries for his wages, the master for his clothes." There are also a great many proverbs and allusions. For example: "A caskful too late won't make up for the loss of one drop," which reminds one of our saying, "A stitch in time," etc. Again, "Bitten by a snake fears a cord," which is an expressive way of saying that "The burnt child dreads the fire." Attempting the impossible is defined as "putting the ocean into a tumbler," or "pounding up water with a pestle and mortar." Hypocrisy is satirized in the saying, "To run for water after setting fire to the house."

A Jar of Treacle.

Some of these Indian proverbs are connected with very amusing stories. For instance, there is a saying, "Everything sweet is not treacle," which recalls our "All is not gold that glitters." The story goes that a shopkeeper, noticing that his treacle-jar became empty very quickly, and suspecting a certain boy whom he employed to be the thief, he filled the jar with resin. The boy, as usual, unsuspectingly plunged in his hand and crammed his mouth with the supposed treacle. His teeth stuck in the resin, with results that can be better imagined than described! Another story relates that four robbers met a party of fourty-four Buniyas travelling along the road together; but so poor-spirited were the latter that they actually permitted the thieves to deliberately plunder them one by one, without making any resistance.

Suffering Women!

Send for my Guide to Better Health

10 Days' Free Treatment

MY FREE BOOK: "Woman's Own Medical Adviser" has lighted the way to new life, hope, health and happiness for thousands of once hopeless women. It illustrates how and explains why we women suffer. It enables any woman suffering from the weaknesses of our sex to cure herself at home, with privacy, safeness and sureness, without trouble, loss of work, without doctors' expense. Besides this great book, I give you individual advice, and send you 10 days' supply of my famous medicine, all free of charge. I am a woman—not a man, and I understand and treat women's ills as no doctor could. I have suffered the terrible agonies of woman's weaknesses myself. That's how I discovered my wonderful cure. All the Doctors, Specialists and Patent Medicines won't permanently cure you—it requires knowledge man does not possess. If you are suffering, sister, or if you know of any other suffering woman, you owe it to humanity to write—it's a worthy act of kindness and may mean renewed health and happiness. Remember, it costs you nothing. Write now, before all is hopeless.

The Scottish gold championship was won by Tom Fernie, the nineteen-year-old son of the famous professional, Willie Fernie.

SIDELIGHTS ON NOTABLE PEOPLE

BY THE MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Lady Warwick's appearance at court, after many years, for the first time during the present reign, will remain on record as one of the features of the London season of 1909. She received the necessary card from the lord chamberlain, authorizing her to attend the fourth and last court the other day, for the purpose of presenting her new daughter-in-law, the bride of Earl Brooke. But it cannot be said that she received when she passed before the throne that gracious and peculiarly winning smile and nod which the King and Queen reserve for their old friends.

At one time Lady Warwick was on terms of warm friendship with Edward VII. But she incurred the marked displeasure, first of the then Princess of Wales, and then of the latter's consort, some years before the death of Queen Victoria. A variety of reasons were given for the fall from favor of Lady Warwick; but there is no doubt that her independence of the conventionalities of life, and above all her freedom, not to say indiscretion of speech, contributed in no small decree to her disappearance from court. Society is always very much disposed to follow the cue of royalty, and for some years Lady Warwick was subjected to something very much akin to a boycott, by the great world of England. It was thereupon that she espoused the cause of labor and of socialism, travelling about the country delivering public speeches against the caste to which she herself belonged.

A couple of years ago considerable perturbation was caused by the report that she was putting the finishing touches on a couple of fat volumes of "Reminiscences." It was asserted that they dealt in a most unvarnished fashion with her friends and foes, with the conditions of court and society, and contained numerous letters which had been written to her at one time or another by distinguished personages. So great was the alarm that the law officers of the crown were actually consulted as to the means of stopping the publication of the work in question. But it was found that the courts were powerless to act, unless the book contained libels, and whether or not there were libels in its pages could not be ascertained until after the work had made its appearance in print. It is even alleged that the unsuccessful attempt of Baron Loreburn to amend the official secrets law of 1889 in such a fashion as to cover indiscretions concerning royal personages and the court, was dictated by the hope of being able to nip in the bud Lady Warwick's literary efforts.

It was after that, and probably in consequence of this inability to deal with the countess in any other way, that a compromise was effected with her, and one of its results has been the reappearance of Lady Warwick at court. Exquisitely dressed as ever, retaining her perfection of figure and carriage, she is still beautiful, despite the fact that her abundant hair has become snow white. Indeed there are many who are of the opinion that her white hair accentuates and refines the comeliness of her features, and the astonishing youthfulness and freshness of her complexion.

Lady Warwick visited America a couple of years ago, and spent several weeks in New York; but was virtually ignored by society, although in former days she would have been welcomed with open arms. The belief that she was in disfavor at the Court of St. James was, however, sufficient to prejudice the fashionable world of New York against her. For the distance between the two countries has become small, and is diminishing every day; so much so, that whereas formerly the Court of St. James was indifferent to what took place in America, now the circumstances that any man or woman has incurred the ill-will of the best American society, is known at once in London, and proves sufficient to not only bar the offender from court, but even from Mayfair.

With regard to a recent dispatch from Madrid, mentioning the capture of the Portuguese Duke of Albuquerque, at the instance of the Portuguese Government, the arrest being ascribed to his complicity in the assassination of King Carlos, and of the crown prince, 16 months ago in Lisbon, it is only right to mention that the man in question is an impostor and an adventurer, the historic Portuguese title of Duke of Albuquerque having become extinct with the death, a number of years ago, of the last duke, who was also Count Mesquitella.

The man arrested in Madrid came into prominence a year ago as the author of a singularly disgraceful novel, in which the bereaved Queen Marie Amelie and the Count de Ribeira, the grand master of her household, played the principal parts, it was a novel of the most scurrilous nature.

It is doubtful whether the novel would have attracted much attention, even in Paris, had not a member of the French royalist party, and of the French ducal house of Harcourt, taken upon himself to foolishly challenge the man to a duel, on account of his slanders of a French princess, without taking the trouble to ascertain beforehand whether the fellow was a gentleman. In fact, this silly duel of Baron de Harcourt, which resulted bloodlessly, gave the pseudo Duke d'Albuquerque an advertisement and a standing which he would not otherwise have enjoyed.

It is doubtful if his arrest is due to any complicity in the killing of King Carlos. It is far more likely to be in connection with his book.

Prince Plessis' sale of his handsome palace in Berlin in the Wilhelmstrasse, has given considerable offense at court. The prince's father was a warm and close friend and admirer of the Kaiser, who bestowed on him for his life the title of duke, and invested him with all sorts of high dignities and offices at court. In those days the favor of the Kaiser extended to the old duke's eldest son and heir. For he officiated as godfather to the prince's eldest son, the other sponsor being King Edward.

Some years ago the Kaiser sent the prince to America, as his personal representative at the inauguration of the new building of the New York Chamber of Commerce, and it was generally supposed at the time that the prince would subsequently return as ambassador. Indeed, he made no secret of his wish for an ambassadorial appointment. But the prince and his English wife, who is a sister of the Duchess of Westminster, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornwallis West, are no longer in as high favor at the court of the Kaiser as formerly. The father's dukedom has not been continued to the son, and the latter, who has been disappointed in his diplomatic aspirations, and who has moreover received none of the great court offices, to which his birth and great wealth entitles him in a measure to look for, has now given public manifestation of his discontent, by selling his palace.

Alan Stepney Gulston, of Derwydd (which means "The Druids' Home"), Llandebis, Caermarthenshire, has announced his assumption of the baronetcy of the late Sir Emile Cowell-Stepney, who was found dead the other day in a village railroad station in Arizona. While it is perfectly true that Alan Stepney Gulston is a descendant of the seventh holder of the Stepney baronetcy, he can only claim this descent in the female line, and the descent of baronetcies is restricted exclusively to the male line direct. Under present conditions there is no law to prevent Alan Stepney Gulston from assuming the baronetcy, and he cannot be penalized for the usurpation, unless he should happen to become insolvent, and it could be shown that he had obtained credit on the strength of his alleged baronetcy, in which event he would lay himself open to criminal prosecution in England for obtaining goods under false pretences.

The original Stepney baronetcy was created by James I., in 1621, but became extinct with the death of Thomas Stepney, the ninth baronet, in 1825. He had two sisters, and it was to the younger of these, Justina, that he left his property. She married Gen. Andrew Cowell, and the son of the union, who by the terms of his uncle's and mother's will assumed the name and the arms of Stepney, in addition to his father's name of Cowell, was created a baronet in 1871 for military services. The late Sir Emile, who died the other day, was his son.

The ninth and last baronet of the original creation had an elder sister of the name of Elizabeth, who married Joseph Gulston, a member of Parliament. She was estranged from her brother. It is her grandson, Alan Gulston, who is now claiming his grand-uncle's baronetcy, which became extinct in 1825.

Sir Emile leaves a daughter, Catherine Cowell-Stepney, who has inherited all his property. The latter includes about 10,000 acres in Wales. He likewise owned at one time some 15,000 acres of land in California. What disposition will be made of the latter remains to be seen, as there is likely to be litigation. It has been reported that Sir Emile had, on the strength of a decree of divorce which he had obtained in Idaho, contracted another marriage. This divorce was, however, never recognized by the English tribunals, and was declared by them to be invalid when it came up for discussion during the proceedings which Mrs. Cowell-Stepney instituted some years ago against her husband in the English courts, which granted her, not a divorce, but a mere judicial separation on the ground of desertion.

Catherine Cowell-Stepney, who is about 33, lives with her mother, Mrs. Cowell-Stepney, a daughter of the late Earl De Tabley ,and in this way is connected with the Wadsworths, of Genesee, N. Y., and Mrs. Arthur Post, of New York. Mrs. Cowell-Stepney's elder sister is the mother of that Bryan Leighton, who volunteered for service under the American flag during the war with Spain, and went through the entire campaign.

Sir Emile was undoubtedly half insane. Indeed, it was on the strength of affidavits of the late William E. Gladstone, of Viscount Currie, of Sir Robert Mead, under secretary of state for the colonial department, and of Sir Percy Anderson regarding his delusions, that the English court of chancery made an order in 1891, granting the custody of his daughter to her mother. Afterwards Sir Emile was under the treatment of the late Sir William Gull, of Dr. Bordesley, and of other eminent physicians and specialists for mental ailments, besides being in the custody of an alienist for more than a year. Had this been known, it is doubtful whether Sir Emile would have succeeded in obtaining his papers of naturalization as a citizen of the United States. He was proud of his American citizenship, and in writing to his fellow-members of clubs in London, to which he belonged up to the time of his death, always begged that they should address him as "Mr. E. Stepney," since on becoming an American citizen he had "dropped the baronetcy for good and all."

With the death of Prince Anthony Sulkowski, the Prussian branch of this one-time important princely and ducal family becomes extinct. The prince was predeceased by his only son, Alexander, who died four years ago, leaving a widow, while Prince Anthony's second alliance, with an elderly woman, Josephine Schmidt, who survives him, was childless. This is on the whole fortunate; since of the formerly vast possessions of these Prussian Sulkowskis, virtually nothing remains, their great estates near Lisse (in the Province of Posen) being mortgaged up to the very hilt, and all their art treasures long since dispersed.

Their connection with the Austrian Sulkowskis is remote. In fact, it is necessary to go back to the middle of the eighteenth century to establish any relationship. The chief of the Austrian Sulkowskis is Prince Joseph, who is likewise Duke of Bielitz; a most eccentric creature, who cannot set foot in Austria, or visit his estates there, owing to the fact that he is a fugitive from an Austrian lunatic asylum, to which he was committed as insane. He has some property, however, in Germany, and the German courts have pronounced him to be possessed of his reason, and perfectly capable of managing his own affairs. Up to the time of his commitment he disposed of enormous wealth, never travelled anywhere but by special train, always insisted on hiring an entire hotel to himself, and used to carry about with him all over Europe a private circus, with a menagerie of wild animals, for his own private amusement.

His first wife was his sister's governess, whom he married with the avowed intention of exasperating his father. He succeeded in this filial project; for the old gentleman had a fit, to which he succumbed within a few hours. Immediately after his father's death he discarded the ex-governess, and when she obtained a divorce from him, he married one of the bareback riders of his private circus, Ida Jaeger, who was clever enough to get him judicially declared insane in Austria, before he had time to get rid of her.

By his second wife he has a daughter, already herself a divorcee, and who will inherit a considerable portion of his wealth. He also has a number of half-brothers and half-sisters. Some of these were born in America, where the name of Sulkowski was at one time quite familiar.

Considerable curiosity has often been expresed as to how it came that the Sulkowskis, despite their great wealth and their high rank (they are all princes and princesses) should have consented to bury themselves for a number of years in the small town of Bremen, Ohio. The departure of the late Prince Louis Sulkowski, Duke of Bielitz, from Austria, for the United States, between 1850 and 1860, was immediately following a shocking tragedy—one of the darkest that has ever sullied the annals of an illustrious family. It was nothing more nor less than the killing under the most atrocious circumstances, of the mother of Prince Louis. She was assassinated one March night in 1848, at the Furstenhof, now the leading hotel of the town of Myslowitz, in Northeastern Austria, but formerly the ancestral chateau of the Sulkowskis. While the actual deed was done by peasants, who were able to effect their escape to America, all the evidence went to show, in the most conclusive fashion, that one of the unfortunate woman's younger sons, Maximilian Sulkowski, was responsible for the crime, and morally guilty of matricide.

Britain's Indian Empire
Land of Strange Scenes

Go where you will, the world over, in any community there will be found men, however benighted, however remote from civilization, who pride themselves on doing whatever they turn their attention to just a little better than someone else would.

Benares is far from savagery. The people of this interesting land were enjoying a civilization second to none hundreds of years before America was even dreamed of. There are traces of decadence now in many quarters. But it is not in evidence among those who hover about the burning ghats of the quaint city on the Ganges, seeking an engagement at their chosen profession of wood piling for a funeral pyre, exhibiting a pride in their workmanship which would be gruesome were it not in such strict conformity with the matter-of-fact manner in which the entire ceremony is conducted.

We witnessed four cremations while in Benares. Whether we were fortunate or not depends upon how you view such affairs. At all events they were interesting, albeit a trifle prosaic even to one unaccustomed to such a sight. The body, strapped to a litter, was brought down to the edge of the ghat, or landing place, and thrust into the river to purify it. The Ganges is so muddy you could almost cut it, and the water shines in a manner suggestive of anything but purity, but that doesn't matter to the mourners, who adhere strictly to custom.

A Matter of Business.

After the purification has been completed, the body lies in the hot sun on the steps while the friends bargain for wood sufficient for the purpose. You have to haggle over the price of everything in India, even the fuel with which to make a funeral pyre; and nothing would be further from the thoughts of mourners than to pay the first figure asked for a bundle of fagots.

Once a price has been agreed upon, the pyre is built. This is no ordinary task; and the man who piles the wood so scientifically that there can be no hitch in the proceedings takes as much interest in making a thorough job as would an artist in putting the finishing touches to a canvas, or a potter in turning out a particularly fine specimen of his art. Then one of the friends applies the torch, and the body goes up in smoke. There are varying degrees of cremation, according to the means or inclinations of the mourners. A cheap one means the use of green wood, which does not ignite readily, and causes much smoke. For the most part, however, the pyres, each about three feet high, make quite a fire.

It is a weird sight to pass one of these burning ghats in the evening, and see the dull gleam of a fire, all that is left of some poor chap, deserted even by the mourners, who long since took their departure.

We were fortunate in being in Benares, at the "Boorhla Munga," or feast of boats, which takes place each year and lasts a week. I say fortunate, for aside from its ghats and its monkey temple, the latter about as uninviting a place on a hot day as could be imagined, Benares has little to offer in the way of attractions.

We went down on the river one evening during the festival, and having our own boat were rowed back and forth for a time. There were four thousand boats of all sorts and descriptions, with scarcely less variety in the matter of decorations. Some of the more affluent participants would lash two or three barges together, on which a platform would be built and Nautch girls and comedians and jugglers perform for the delectation of those who saw fit to hire them. Some of the boats were beautifully decorated, representing a heavy outlay. Others were old tubs whose unseaworthiness was evident at a glance, but which were pressed into service for the occasion. Hundreds of thousands of persons lined the banks of the river and the ghats fairly swarmed with natives who fought for places from which to witness the spectacle All in all, it was well worth witnessing, but the noise and the smell rendered conditions almost unbearable. There is noise and dust and smell wherever you go in India, but at no other place did we find these elements quite so plentiful as in Benares.

Somewhat Queer.

These festivals are queer affairs, particularly when they possess a religious significance, as is almost invariably the case. We were in Madura during the feast of Vishnu, when many thousands of natives crowded the streets and bowed before the gilt cars which conveyed the "god" from place to place. They were nothing more than crude carts, covered with the cheapest of tinsel, but they made a profound hit with the throngs. The Vishnites mark themselves on the forehead with a sacred ash in the form of a V, while the Sivas, not to be outdone, paint on three stripes. It certainly does not improve their appearance, giving a disgusting look.

Of festivals and temples there is no end. Indeed, when the number of these places of worship is taken into consideration you marvel that the people ever found time to build anything else. For a time they are interesting. Like every other good thing, however, imposing structures can be overdone—with one exception, a notable one, too. That is the Taj Mahal, at Agra, the most magnificent building in the world bar none. Words fail when it comes to describing this shrine of a devoted ruler to the companion who had gone before. Anyway, the whole world is familiar with its history and beauty, so anything at this time would be merely supplementary.

Draw Well.

If these religious festivals pall on the stranger, they never lose their drawing power among the devout natives. At Tanjore we encountered the festival of Kinnbbkamm, and the crowds here were really interesting, as they were at every other point, in fact. They poured into town in perfect droves, packing themselves like cattle into cars built to transport bullocks. It cost them a "pie," equivalent to one-sixth of a cent, a mile for the privilege of standing in these trains, and they came for hundreds of miles, the festival only occurring once in twelve years. During its progress probably 200,000 devout Hindus bathe in the tank of sacred Ganges water, which is supposed to reach there by some miraculous means. Judging by appearances, it does not reach this spot very often. When we saw the tank, the "water" looked like green paint of a pretty good consistency, it was so thick with slime and grease. were fully one hundred persons bathing and drinking it then.

Can't Escape 'Em.

Which again brings to mind the fact that smells are ever present in India. Everyone at all familiar with India knows of the Nautch girls, the native dancers. If you ever visit India and wish to watch them, select a more propitious time than we did. It was on a blistering hot evening that we were escorted to this "treat." The woman was resplendent in tinsel and gilt, and every move of her body sounded like a set of chimes being played simultaneously. She wasn't a bad sort of a dancer, "muscling" a love story for our benefit. Hot? There was a dozen of us, besides the dancer, musicians and a dozen native onlookers in a room less than twenty feet square, and under such conditions the exhibition was far from impressive or enjoyable. However, this may have been due to lack of appreciation on our part, for the native portion of the audience gave vent to its enthusiasm in no uncertain manner.

India is not lacking in spots of interest. The best city of all, according to my way of thinking, is Bombay, where there is much to see, and where excellent accommodations can be obtained. Of course, the chief attraction to a lover of beautiful workmanship is the extensive bazaars that abound, where one can buy the most magnificent specimens of gold and silver work after haggling with the dealer until half exhausted. Everybody else haggles, though, which helps to relieve the strain somewhat. You shop amid strange conditions in these Indian cities. In Jeypore we visited a shop in an alley scarcely five feet wide, in getting there having to pass through a stable in which a couple of bullocks were contentedly browsing, up four flights of stairs, and to a room on the roof. It was worth the exertion, however, for we were shown a collection of jewelry worth at least a couple of hundred thousand dollars—that is, actual value. They ask you several pieces for every article, and if you offer one-third their figure you are pretty certain to become its possessor, after a lengthy argument in which the dealer protests that he is virtually making you a present of the article.

India is a land of contradictions, of extremes, and because of this very fact it is well worth a visit. Here can be seen the bright and dark sides of life, splendor and squalor, wealth and poverty, continually rubbing elbows in spite of the caste which permits a man to carry luggage for his master but necessitates his employing a man lower down to handle his own belongings. And, having seen them, you are more contented with your lot.

LARGE SUBSIDIES NO STARS THERE

Norwegian Theatres Run on Lines Unfamiliar to Americans.

[By Madame Sofie Bernhoft-Jebe.]

In Norway the theatre is operated on an entirely different system from that which prevails in the United States. In this country travelling companies are the rule, while in Norway the players are found only in the two principal cities—Christiania and Bergen. Other cities have theatres, but the players who appear in them are either visitors from the stationary theatres mentioned or they are in companies who come from neighboring countries, usually from Denmark or Sweden.

In Christiania, the capital, which is our largest Norwegian city, and has a population of about 200,000 inhabitants, there are several playhouses, the most prominent of which is the National Theatre. The actors and actresses belonging to it are engaged by the year, and during the period of their contract they play in that particular theatre and in no other, except by permission of the management. It happens occasionally that an actor or an actress from the National Theatre is allowed to appear as a guest in another city or country, such as Norway, Sweden, Denmark, or Germany; but these are the only instances in which the player leaves the theatre while he is attached to it. The institution of the stationary theatre is similar to the American stock company, and yet I would not call it exactly the same. For we do not know the names "star," "leading man," nor "leading woman."

The members of the company act under their own names, and there is no more difference between their professional and private lives than there is in the case of painters, sculptors, and other artists. Occasionally changes take place, but many of the members of the National Theatre remain there during their entire lives. We have had several 50-year jubilees.

This is an excellent system, for it enables the players to have their own homes, and to live with just as much regularity as if they were not in any way connected with the theatre. If a woman of the family happens to be attached to the theatre, she is brought home after the performance by a servant who waits for her at the stage-door.

An American not long ago asked me if we had any Johnnies in Norway, and I said:

"What is a Johnnie? I have never heard of him."

The National Theatre is not subsidized by the Government, as might be supposed by the name, though the institution is greatly aided by outside contributions. Wealthy citizens and business houses often give to it, and the city officials aid in one way and another. For instance, the tax on brandy is devoted to the public benefit, and a portion of this is given to the National Theatre. The banks, too, contribute generously.

The new National Theatre of Christiania was built in 1899, and the style of the architecture is French of the Empire period. The charge for admission is about the same as that asked for in the best American theatres. Norwegians are enthusiastic admirers of the drama, and will pay almost any price to see a great artist.

Visiting players occasionally come to the National Theatre from all parts of the world, and when Madame Sara Bernhardt was there, the price of seats went as high as $13 and $14, American money. This price was paid by two or three hundred people. Duse has also acted at the National Theatre, though the price of seats at the time of her visit did not exceed $5. The king pays for the royal box.

The National Theatre carries the largest company of actors in Christiania, though the Fahlstrom company has about 50 members who play from the 1st of September until the Middle of May or June. The salaries of the players vary, but they average about a thousand dollars a year, American money. During the summer the employees of the theatre are expected to rest, in order that they may be in the best possible condition for the work of the next season. Occasionally some of them work during vacation, for the purpose of making extra money, but it is against the wishes of the management for them so to do. The national theatres of Christiania and Bergen provide for their old players, who are entitled to a pension after 25 years of service. Very few, however, leave the stage at that age.—From an article in the Green Book Album.

WILD STRAWBERRY

The medicine with a record of cures extending over 65 years. Yon don't experiment when you buy it.

MRS. JOSEPH MATCHETT, Huntsville, Ont., writes: "It gives me much pleasure to write you of the wonderful benefit I have found in your medicine. Last summer it saved the lives of my three little ones. They all took the summer complaint and were very sick with it. The baby would take fits, and after trying many remedies, which were of no use, I suggested we should try Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. After giving them one bottle I found a great change, and now my little ones are as well as ever. We have never been without it since, and I have recommended it to my friends."

MRS. S. A. HARRISON, Napanee, Ont., writes: "I take great pleasure to send you this testimonial of what Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has done in our family. My daughter's little girl, three years old, took summer complaint and was nearly dead. After all other remedies failed I thought of your remedy. The first dose gave relief and the third cured her. My son had diarrhœa, and a few doses stopped it right away. I advise all mothers to have a bottle of 'Dr. Fowler's' on hand all the time. It is a grand medicine for young and old, and I cannot recommend it too highly in all trouble where the bowels become too loose. A few doses will check the trouble at once."

BLOOD DISEASES
Guaranteed Cured or No Pay.

If you ever had any contracted or hereditary blood disease, you are never safe until the virus or poison has been removed from the system. You may have had some disease years ago, but now and then some symptom alarms you. Some poison still lurks in your system. Can you afford to run the risk of more serious symptoms appearing as the poison multiplies? Beware of mercury or mineral drugs used indiscriminately—they may ruin the system. Twenty years experience in the treatment of these diseases enables us to prescribe specific remedies that will positively cure all blood diseases of the worst character, leaving no bad effects on the system. Our New Method Treatment will purify and enrich the blood, heal up all ulcers, clear the skin, remove bone pains, fallen out hair will grow in, and swollen glands will return to a normal condition, and the patient will feel and look like a different person. All cases we accept for treatment are guaranteed a complete cure if instructions are followed.

Reader if in doubt as to your condition, you can consult us FREE OF CHARGE. Beware of incompetent doctors who have no reputation or reliability. Drs. K. & K. have been established over 20 years.

WE CURE Nervous Debility, Varicocele, Stricture, Blood and Secret Diseases, Kidney and Bladder Complaints. Consultation Free. If unable to call write for a Question List for Home Treatment.

ONE OF THE NOBLEST OF WOMEN.

May 12, the 89th birthday of Miss Florence Nightingale, recalled anew the heorism and devotion of one of the noblest of women who ever shed lustre on the world's annals. The grim struggle in the Crimea has passed into the realm of history; few are left today of the brave soldiers who lined the trenches at Savastopol, or the daring horsemen who swept down Balaclava Valley "while all the world wondered." But the tender memory of Florence Nightingale's self sacrifice is more lasting than the stirring record of a thousand battles. Who can forget what the nation owes to the noble Englishwomen who was a ministering angel to the sick and wounded on the bleak shore of the Black Sea And who, remebering it all, can wonder that as Florence Nightingale passed through the hospital wards on her mission of succor, the wounded soldiers, blessing her name, kissed the shadow which the slim girlish figure cast upon the walls? —Scottish American.

MILITARY GOSSIP

Everyone is waiting most anxiously to get a look at the new clothing regulations for the permanent force and for the militia, which were approved in May last. The anxiety arises from the fact that everyone wants to know if anything has been done to do away with some of the absurd and unserviceable articles of uniform which have been in use for so many years. We would advise all concerned not to build their hopes too high.

After winning all the cups and prizes which they did, it wouldn't have been fair for the Canadian Bisley team to have taken the King's prize also.

If that armor-plate story from Great Britain proves true, Lesser London will have made a remarkable contribution towards imperial defence.

One of the most peculiar cases in the annals of the American war department, or in those of any war office, for that matter, is that of Col. W. F. Stewart, of the American Coast Artillery. Col. Stewart had committed no offence against civil or military law which justified his retirement, yet last summer he was notified by the war department that President Roosevelt had issued an order assigning him to Fort Grant, an abandoned and desolate army post in the Arizona desert, without command. Before this order was enforced he was to be given an opportunity to apply for immediate retirement. This he refused to do unless given the rank of brigadier-general, which was refused. The order for his assignment to Fort Grant was then carried out immediately. His friends took up his case, and a short time ago succeeded in getting him transferred to an abandoned barracks in St. Augustine, Fla., where he is still without command, and will so remain for the two or more years which he expects to serve on the active list, unless he sees fit to apply for retirement at any time. In each place the only other occupants are the caretaker and the cook.

The only reason ever given him for such action on the part of the President is that as an officer he is "temperamentally impossible."

O for a Teddy Roosevelt, a big stick and a sturdy swing or two among the temperamental impossibilities of the Canadian permanent staff and force!

The green apple season is with us again and this fact brings to mind a most remarkable case of military discipline which occurred in the American army last year. Private B. Leiser, Twenty-third Field Artillery, U. S. A., was charged with having eaten green apples after having been ordered by a sergeant to throw them away. He was tried by court martial, found guilty and sentenced to be dishonorably discharged from the service, and to forfeit all pay and allowances due him, in addition to six months' confinement at hard labor. Can you beat it?

The flagship Connecticut of the United States navy is now equipped with the most powerful searchlight in the world. It has a strength of 180,000,000 candle power, which, for the sake of comparison, is 179,998,000 candle power more powerful than the ordinary street arc lamp. The great mirror is five feet in diameter, and was made for the United States Government in Germany. The searchlight will throw such an immense beam of light that it will be able to detect a submarine or torpedo boat at a distance of ten miles.

The following account is given of a large national guard camp in California: "From the 7th to 14th of the month, a series of notable events, consisting of polo, tug-of-war, field athletics, feats of horsemanship by the soldiers, broncho breaking and lassoing by expert vaqueros, camp fire bivouacs and fine selections of music by six military bands; the 8th of the month, 'Governor's Day,' a grand review; from the 9th to 13th, grand competitive band concerts, concluding with a ball each night; specially reduced rates on all the railways."

After all, Canadian camps are not half bad.

The percentage of recruits for the conscript armies of Europe, who can neither read nor write, is said to be smaller in Germany than in any other continental power. In Bulgaria the percentage of illiteracy among recruits is 52, in Servia and Russia 62, in Portugal and Spain 70, and in Roumania 75.

The Duke of Connaught has resigned the inspector-generalship of the Mediterranean command, on the ground of the ineffective nature of the work and the useless expenses to the nation involved therein. If some of the officers in the Canadian permanent staff and force, whose work is ineffective and who involve the public in useless expense, would follow this example, there would then be enough money left to properly train the militia.

The Dreadnought craze is now a thing of the past. Super-Dreadnoughts now occupy the spot light.

There is nothing the matter with the West Nissouri Rifle Association of Thorndale. On two occasions this year they have met the sergeants of the London garrison, and on two occasions have taken their measure.

Rifle associations are a valuable asset to this country. They train thousand of Canadians every year in the use of the rifle. Their annual membership equals the total strength of the active militia and permanent force, and every member is bound to serve in the militia in case of emergency. They form a great reserve of riflemen, who need nothing but a few weeks' drill and discipline to develop them into first-class soldiers. And, best of all, they cost the country very little compared with the militia, the average annual cost for each member of an association being about $2 only.

Great as is the value of rifle associations, it could be increased threefold by proper organization and administration. In this district, there are some 50 associations with a membership of about 3,000. Every year seven or eight new associations are formed, but as many old ones are disbanded through lack of proper administration. Were they properly administered, there would be a hundred or more associations instead of fifty. New ones would be added each year, and the old ones kept in an efficient state instead of being allowed to die for want of a little assistance from those responsible for maintaining them in an efficient state. When a new association is formed, possibly in some very remote country district, a supply of rifles and service ammunition is sent to it. Possibly none of its members have had any experience with a military rifle, in fact, have never handled one before or fired a round of ammunition. There is no one to instruct them in the care and use of the rifle, in the construction of their range or in the manner of keeping their records to comply with the regulations. They are left entirely to their own resources. They may make a success of it. Often they do and very often they do not. If they have careless officials, their records are not properly kept and the regulations not complied with. Next year they cannot get a new supply of ammunition. There is no one to put them on the right track, so they die a natural death.

What is badly needed is an enthusiastic, efficient office in each district whose sole duty should be the organization, encouragement, instruction and administration of rifle associations. When the department makes such an appointment, the rifle association movement will become what it should be.

That something should be done by the militia council to enable each city regiment to go into camp at local headquarters or some other suitable place for a part of its annual training seems to be proven by the case of the Third Regiment, "Victoria Rifles of Canada," of Montreal. This regiment applied to the militia council some time ago to be permitted to go into camp at the public expense. The reply was that the only assistance that could be given them would be the free use of camp equipment. In spite of this, 250 officers and men of this regiment decided in favor of an eight-day camp, and each one of them agreed to go down into his own pocket to the tune of $5. They are now in camp near Montreal.

It is a fact that a considerable part of the syllabus for city corps cannot be done in drill halls or on the city streets. They must go into camp to carry it out properly. Is it fair, then, that they should give up their time in the public service, and, in addition, pay for their training out of their own pockets?

K Company, R. C. R., is going at its musketry training this year in a most sensible manner. One-half of the company has been in camp at the Cove ranges for the past two weeks, and have completed the practices required by the musketry regulations. They have now returned to their quarters in the barracks, and the other half of the company is now in camp undergoing a similar course.

This is certainly more sensible than wasting the fine weather of the summer and early fall, and then rushing through the course about the time the snow begins to fly, or possibly, doing only half of it.

Last week was given the first part of the inspector-general's report upon the cavalry of the active militia, dealing principally with its efficiency. We now give the balance of his report, dealing with the equipment of the mounted corps, which is as follows:

One reason which can, with some justice, be advanced for failure, in so many cases, to attain greater efficiency is the defective nature of our present cavalry equipment. No satisfactory equipment for carrying the rifle mounted has yet been issued to the cavalry. As a result, the trooper has in practice to devote one hand entirely to managing his rifle. To ride and manage properly an untrained horse with only one hand is a task for even a practiced rider, and very few of the men in the ranks can claim to be good horsemen, or are in the habit of riding at other times. The result is that three-quarters of the man's attention is given to remaining on his horse, instead of to his drill.

If a satisfactory equipment were issued, much improvement might be looked for. The present long rifle should be replaced for mounted men by a good short rifle. The difference between the shooting powers of such an arm and of the present long rifle would be inappreciable, and the mobility and training of our mounted men would be enormously improved.

The clothing of the cavalry is, on the whole, of good material and in very fair condition. But, except in the best regiments, the officers seemed unable to get the men to keep their clothing properly clean in camp—in some corps the men do not keep even themselves tidy, but turn out unshaven and dirty for inspection. The issue of jean suits has, however, greatly conduced toward the cleanliness of uniforms.

It is for consideration whether it might not be a good thing to abolish the present light-colored stripes on the breeches, and give some color which does not show the dirt.

The regulation white helmet is not, in my opinion, a good headdress for militia cavalry. It might, with advantage, be replaced by the "naval pattern" cap.

The saddlery was generally in fair condition; in some cases it was very well cared for, but they were the exception. All portions of a corps ought to be equipped alike. In many corps some squadrone had "universal pattern" saddlery, while others had "colonial pattern." The rifle bucket which fits one of these does not fit the other. Different patterns of bit were often in use in the same corps. The "portmouth" pattern appears to be the best. It is for consideration whether the use of a single bridle rein should not be generally adopted, as is now the case with most of the eastern cavalry. A second rein is not really often necessary, and is apt to embarrass an untrained rider.

The armament of all squadrons in a corps is not always identical. This should be remedied as soon as possible."

Major-General Lake has evidently witnessed that most amusing spectacle of a cavalryman coming into his first camp, mounted on a spirited and untrained horse, juggling a "pill-box" on his right ear, dangling a dirty helmet from his left shoulder strap, carrying his rifle in his right hand, hanging onto his reins with his left, and looking for another hand to pat his horse's neck. The man and MILITARY THREE ado the horse are as good as any in the world, but the outfit put onto them—well, you know what it is like.

I cannot agree with the inspector-general when he recommends doing away with the white stripes on the pantaloons. The Hussar uniform is an attractive one, and it would be too bad to alter it. What should be done is to issue each man with a blue uniform, consisting of frock, trousers and N. P. cap, for walking out, and a khaki duck uniform for drill purposes, which could be washed and pressed after each camp and put away for next year.

The order substituting pantaloons and leggins for trousers for all ranks is also most unsatisfactory. Give every man long trousers for walking out, church parades and social functions during the year, and let them be kept for this purpose only, using the khaki duck uniform for all drills and camp duties.

HON. WM. FIELDING AND WILLIAM PITT

Their Records of Statesmanship Compared in Article in London World.

"Hon. William Stevens Fielding, Chancellor of the Exchequer of the Dominion of Canada," is the subject of the leading article in a series of "Celebrities at Home," in a recent issue of the London (Eng.) World. Among a good many other complimentary things the World has the following to say of the Hon. Mr. Fielding:

"The Hon. William Stevens Fielding, who is now in London, has held the portfolio of minister of finance in the Dominion Cabinet ever since his party came into office, in 1896. By introducing twelve consecutive budgets he has achieved a record in the history of the empire unequalled, even at Westminster, since the time of William Pitt, who combined the office of chancellor of the exchequer with the premiership from 1783 to 1801. Indeed, Mr. Fielding has been for more than twenty-five years continuously a minister of the crown, which is a still more remarkable record in parliamentary history. His career as minister of finance must excite the envy of Mr. Lloyd-George, for, without imposing taxation which has called forth political passion and party cleavages, he has seen the revenue of Canada grow from $37,829,000 to over $96,000,000 during his administration. And in the same period the net public debt per capita has fallen from $50 82 in 1896 to $45 72 in 1909. Moreover, during the last twelve years, though $212,500,000 has been spent upon capital account, chiefly in the construction of great public works of benefit to the entire community, such as railways, canals, and the general improvement of transportation facilities, the increase to the net debt has only been $65,500,000, showing that $147,000,000, or 65 per cent of this capital expenditure, has been met out of the ordinary revenue of the country.

A Statesman by Worth.

"Like the right hon. member for Birmingham, Mr. Fielding comes of no long line of hereditary statesmen. A Nova Scotian by birth, of modest English parentage, he went straight from the public schools in the province into newspaper work when in his sixteenth year. He gained experience in the business office of the Halifax Morning Chronicle, before allying himself with the editorial department of that journal, to which Joseph Howe and other distinguished Nova Scotians were contributors in the stirring times which preceded the federation of the Dominion, in 1867. His political career also commenced in his native province, the young journalist evincing such shrewdness and exceptional powers of organization that he was speedily recognized as a powerful personality, and two years after his election to the provincial legislature was, in 1884, called to the premiership of Nova Scotia, a distinction which was, indeed, offered him two years earlier, but declined in favor of the more modest position of minister without portfolio. Thus ever since 1882 Mr. Fielding has been a minister of the crown, for he remained premier continuously until the victory of the Liberals in the Federal contest of 1896, when, in response to the call of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he entered the wider field of Dominion politics.

Next Premier?

"The general opinion among our visitors from Canada, of whatever party complexion, is that in the event of the early retirement of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Fielding will be offered the premiership of the Dominion with the almost unanimous approval of his party. It seems unfortunate that to the great body of the British public, and especially to those who in ever-increasing numbers are taking a serious interest in the political conditions of Greater Britain, the personality of the statesmen who are fast making history overseass is so little known. Our leading financiers have many opportunities of appreciating their shrewdness and breadth of outlook, and in certain select circles they are ever-welcome guests.

"In connection with the recent discussions at the Imperial Press Conference upon cable communications within the empire, it may be remarked that Mr. Fielding was the pioneer in promoting a better press service between Canada and England by subsidizing a body known as the Canadian Associated Press. The original payment was $15,000 per annum, and the sum is now equivalent to dollar for dollar for what the newspaper proprietors spend upon cables of public interest, as to the exact nature of which, however, the Government takes no responsibility and no initiative. It is no secret that as a former newspaper man, Mr. Fielding is very hopeful that a considerable improvement in the cable news service within the empire will be brought about by the co-operation of the governments concerned."

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

THE SULTAN'S SUBJECTS AND SOME OF THEIR CUSTOMS

Relation of the Navy to Imperial Defense Discussed by Sir Edward Grey and Mr. McKenna.

This excellent volume has given me what I have long wanted to have — a picture, namely, of the average stay-at-home Turk — of the Turkish man in the street, to employ a phrase of our own. We have read miles of newspaper and magazine articles about the more prominent figures of Turkish life during the last few months — of the Sultan, of his court and courtiers, of viziers and of generals, of reactionaries and of those daring young spirits who have produced one of the most contrary revolutions of any epoch; but what I have all the time wanted to hear about was that other and more momentous figure than any one of these notabilities, one hitherto unrecorded—that simple, poor, every-day Turk who tilled the fields, or worked in the shop, or carried your portmanteau through the streets of Constantinople—the average man, in a word, who makes up the millions of Turkey as of every other land, him I find in this book. My readers will not be surprised to discover that he is very human, and quite different in many respects from their preconceived notions. Sanguinary, fanatical, even savagely cruel, when he is under the influence of religious or political ferment, this average Turk, in normal conditions, is very much like the toiler in every land—hard-working, modest in demands on life, devoted to his family, and usually the possessor of a harem, not with many wives, but just of the single helpmate, who rules his household as she does that of the workingman of Christian lands. And on the whole the reader will also find satisfaction that the normal Turk, in normal conditions, is really an excellent creature, with many virtues and few vices.

I.

And, of course, one must anticipate finding all kinds of contradictions in the Turkish character, and especially contradictions between their theory and their practice. Take, as the very first instance of this, the traditional attitude of the Turkish mind to animals, and especially to dogs, and what the Turk does in practice. Dogs are unclean things, and therefore can never be with the Turk, as with us, the chief household pet. The dog is the unofficial scavenger of Constantinople, and is accordingly left to roam the streets. But, records our authoress:

Kindness to animals, I may here remark, is a leading trait in Turkish character; and one may often see in the streets, under a housewall, rude little temporary shelters constructed of boards and carpeted with straw, for the accommodation of a canine mother and her brood of woolly pups, who speedily become the pets and proteges of the whole mahalla.

II.

Here is another and more important contradiction. There is no human being with a greater pride of race and creed than the true Turk. Though by origin he may belong to the same race as the Christian in Bothnia and Herzegovina, for instance, numbers of the three creeds are Servians, and all speak the Servian tongue. Yet those who abandoned Christianity and became Moslems centuries ago look down with supreme contempt on the Servians who are Christians. And even in cosmopolitan Constantinople, though Greek and Armenian and Moslem meet daily in free intercourse to do business together during the day, they retire at sunset to worlds totally different and divided from each other by impassable barriers of language, religion, and tradition, national aspiration, and social custom; the life and thought of a mere fraction of each section of the native races being at all influenced by those of the foreigners with whom they come into daily contact. . . Notwithstanding the heterogeneous character of its inhabitants generally, one can never here lose sight of the fact that the Turks are the ruling race, and that Constantinople is the capital of the Moslem world. . . Pride of race is. . . excessive in the Turks, and the habit of domination has been developed by their position as a ruling people, surrounded by subject nationalities.

And if you want an amusing, and at the same time painful, reminder of this haughty superiority on the part of the Turk, and lowly acceptance of that position by the other races, reflect on this little thumbnail sketch. It is a description of the governor holding his court and administering justice:

Upstairs in a large, scantily-furnished room, the governor holds his court, seated cross-legged in an angle of the divan, which furnishes three sides of the apartment. Accommodated on either side of him—their rank being easily ascertained by their proximity to the great man and the degree of ease in the posture they assume—are a number of individuals, some in turbans and flowing robes, others in semi-European garb, members of the municipal council, magnates, officials, and others. The Jewish doctor, for instance, sits at a distance on the extreme edge of the divan, with his hands on his stomach, speaks only when spoken to, and with a deferential salaam; the Greek dragoman occupies an uncomfortable corner on his rush-seated chair near the door, from which he rises and salaams obsequiously every time the Vali Pasha addresses him; and these subordinates are served by the bare-footed attendants with coffee only, through cigarettes or tchibouks will be handed to the judge and to the other magnates on the great man's right and left.

III.

Here, then, you have the pride and ascendency of race revealed in most manifest form. And yet the fact remains that these distinctions are diminished, and sometimes even obliterated, by circumstances. And the first of these exceptions to the rule is produced by the feeling of absolute equality among the Moslems themselves, as is instanced in the following interesting passage in the work before me:

The social organization of the Osmanlis themselves is, on the other hand, distinctly opposed to the principles of aristocracy and hereditary rank. A sultan's daughters marry subjects; the connections even of the imperial family do not form a noble or privileged class, and such imperial descent is, in a few generations, practically lost sight of. The division of estates between all children of one father, female as well as male, and the Oriental propensity of the Government to confiscate any considerable accumulation of riches, have also constituted effectual barriers to the transmission to descendants of family, position and affluence. In Asia Minor, however, there may still be found a certain number of families, constituting a kind of landed gentry, whose ancestors—for the most part converted Moslems of non-Turkish origin—were at the conquest allowed to retain their lands, holding them as military fiefs. And previous to the introduction in 1867 of the present centralizing administration the country districts in certain provinces were ruled either by such Turkish feudatories, or, as in Albania and Kurdistan, by tribal chieftains, whose loyalty to the Porte was most easily secured by allowing them entire freedom in dealing with their own vassals. With the exception of these provincial families, in which the title of Bey is hereditary, the Ottomans have never had an aristocracy properly so-called, all the Moslem subjects of the Sultan, whether born freemen or emancipated slaves, being virtually on a level beneath him. There is accordingly nothing in the social system of Turkey to prevent the poorest Osmanli from attaining the highest dignity, that of Grand Vizier. On the other hand, a deposed minister may descend to an inferior employment without losing caste, forfeiting any of his civil rights, or becoming less eligible for office when Fortune's wheel may again have revolved in his favor, and to the Oriental mind there is consequently nothing extraordinary in Joseph's having risen from the position of a slave to that of Grand Vizier of the King of Egypt, nor is the marriage of a handsome and adventurous "widow's son," or other hero of fairy tale, with a King's daughter; and the Oriental possessor of wit and audacity may indeed say with Pistol, "The world's mine oyster!"

IV.

An even more levelling influence is the poverty and hard lot of the common people. In Turkey, as elsewhere, it is not their business or concern that there is class distinction or class hatred. And this brings me to the pages which describe the street life of Constantinople—one of the most interesting portraits of the soul of a town I have read. It will be seen how, among other characteristics of this life of the streets, you find that democratization which comes from common wants and common toil:

Nowhere perhaps in the world is itinerant commerce carried on to such an extent as in the streets of the Turkish capital, where almost every edible and potable is hawked or exposed for sale in the public thoroughfares, the courtyards of the very mosques not being sacred from the intrusion of detachments of the "thousands of people who gain a living by selling all sorts of things"—to use the words of a Turkish chronicler of the seventeen century—drinks, sweets, sherbets, cakes, pistachio nuts, and what not; where stalls with their projecting white umbrellas encumber uninterfered with, the precincts of many djami. And to this faculty for carrying on petty commerce may no doubt be attributed, in some degree, the notable absence of the acute and squalid poverty of the western cities; for any man with a shilling of capital seems able to turn a sufficiency of honest pennies daily to provide himself and his family with the necessaries of life. The stock-in-trade, for instance, of a kahvedji consists but of half a dozen rush-bottomed stools and brass ibriks, in which coffee is both boiled and served, together with a few cups and glasses; and quite a number of coffee vendors may apparently, without any unfriendly rivalry, eke out a living on some favorite lounging-place in a frequented spot, under spreading plane or sheltering wall. And of this a little incident that occurred during my last visit to Constantinople afforded a practical illustration. After visiting the stately mosque of Sultan Bayazid in Stamboul, my friends and I seated ourselves on some stools standing outside its courtyard gate, and called for coffee to a Turk a few yards away, whose cotton handkerchief, tucked apronwise into his girdle, denoted his calling. He, however, courteously informed us that his domain did not extend to the steps of the mosque. A second kahvedji, who then came up, likewise smilingly explained that only the stools on the opposite side of the doorway belonged to him, and after dispatching a boy in hot haste to summon his absent fellow-tradesman, he begged us not to change our places, as his neighbor would instantly return and supply our wants—affording a noble example of the prevailing courtesy of manners above referred to.

V.

This is a pleasant picture of fraternity among the poorer Turks. An equally pleasant view is given of them when they are enrolled in guilds or trade unions. Again it will be seen how the barriers of creed and race break down in Turkey, as elsewhere, under the stern Juggernaut of lowly conditions, hard work, and small wage:

A conspicuous figure among this itinerant population is the saka. Pure water being highly prized by the abstemious Osmanlis, its distribution to the thirsty is accounted one of the most meritorious among the "good works" prescribed by the religion of Islam, and the saka is employed by charitable persons to carry water into much frequented thoroughfares for the benefit of the public. . . All sakas, Christian as well as Moslem, enjoy a high degree of consideration, their persons being regarded as in a manner, sacred, any offence offered to a member of this fraternity being deemed an insult to the whole quarter in which he pursues his avocation. The sakas form one of the Esnafs, or Guilds, in which members of the various trades, crafts, and callings are severaly enrolled, irrespective of race and religion, for their mutual protection and support. These guilds, though now diminished in number owing to the disappearance of many once flourishing industries, still constitute an important feature of urban industrial life, especially at Constantinople, where representatives of all the various crafts and callings practiced in the empire are to be found. Each Esnaf has here one or more Lonjas—lodges or clubs—In every quarter of the city and suburbs, presided over by several officers called respectively, according to their rank, Sheikhs, Naibs, Oustas, and Klayas, or Priors, Sub-Priors, Superintendents, and Inspectors, who are annually elected by the members from among its own master-craftsmen, these officers being formally recognized by the Government, which holds them responsible for the good behavior of their fellow-guidesmen. Some Esnafs possess considerable revenues, and a few enjoy peculiar privileges granted by royal charter in bygone centuries in return for services rendered at some important crisis. Among these are the shoemakers, who, it is said, have special officers empowered to judge and punish all offenders belonging to their fraternity without the interposition of the legal authorities, this extraordinary privilege having been conferred upon them in the sixteenth century by Suleyman "the Magnificent." Some Esnafs are composed entirely of Moslems, certain callings being exclusively in the hands of the ruling race, others entirely of Christians. Many, however, include adherents of both creeds, and, as members of the same. Esnaf, Christians and Moslems, allied by an esprit de corps, and also, of course, by trade interests, pull together much better and evince mutually a greatly liberality of feeling than is displayed generally in the social relations of Moslems and Christians.

VI.

Again, when you enter the places where either silk or tobacco is manufactured, you find the two races levelled and in harmony. In tobacco factories especially you see:

Moslems and Christians of both sexes. . . squatting side by side. . For poverty is a more potent factor than even racial and religious prejudices, and the harvesting of any important product—tobacco, grapes, olives, etc.—brings together a heterogeneous crowd of laborers having nothing in common but dire necessity.

VII.

I pass to the consideration of the Turkish man especially as a soldier. Here, again, the picture given is decidedly agreeable. One of the things which Mohammedanism remembered and Christianity forgot was the prohibition of the drinking of wine, with very remarkable results on the morality of the professors of the two creeds. Take this passage as an example of the effect of the prohibition of the prophet upon his followers:

A noteworthy characteristic of Turkish town life is its extreme sobriety and consequent orderliness. Notwithstanding the mixture of races and the scarcity of policemen, street brawls or disturbances of any kind are of rare occurrence, and native Christians or foreign sailors are usually found to be responsible for them; foot passengers make way for each other in the narrow and crowded streets and bazaars with extreme good nature and mutual compliments; the heavily laden hamal and the driver of cart or carriage utters continually his warning cry of "Var da," and there is little of the coarseness and vulgar brutality common in western cities.

But, on the other hand, the authoress has to acknowledge the insecurity of life in certain cities of the empire, and especially the insecurity of women from insult in those provincial towns where the wild tribes are occasional visitors.

VIII.

The Turk is also a very clean creature; indeed, cleanliness is a part of his religion. This is one of the reasons of his comparatively great healthiness. For the authoress notes "the comparative freedom of the Turks from many of the ailments which afflict their Christian and Jewish neighbors." These sober habits among the Turks help to make them the excellent soldiers they are, according to universal testimony. All officers, as well as privates, are paid small salaries, and, what is worse, even the salaries were paid irregularly under the old regime. The smallness of the pay apparently is not regarded as a grievance, for the officers "are not as a rule addicted to expensive habits, being accustomed to a simple life; and even for those who are married, and have to provide houses for their families, living in Turkey is cheap, especially in the provinces. Few complaints are therefore heard on the score of pay."

DIPLOMATIC WAR IN THE NEAR EAST

How England Blocked Germany's Scheme to Build Trans-Asiatic Railway.

To build a railway line from Haidar Pasha, a terminal port on the Asiatic side of the Bosphorus, across from Constantinople, through the heart of Anatolia, over the Taurus Mountains, to Adana and Aleppo; thence, passing through Southern Kurdistan, to Nineveh on the headwaters of the Tigris, thence paralleling the river to Bagdad, where, crossing over to the Euphrates, the line is to continue southward, via Babylon, Kerbela and Basra to its proposed terminus at Koweit, on the Persian Gulf—such was the concession won by German diplomacy from the Sultan of Turkey. It looks simple enough on the face of it, does it not?

But when the European chancelleries came to examine its provisions, they stood aghast, for they soon found that it constituted one of the most gigantic commercial concessions in all history.

Is it any wonder that the frock-coated gentlemen in the foreign offices of London and Paris and St. Petersburg, reading the terms of the grant, threw up their hands in horror

The British diplomacy is not of the kind that gives itself up to vain regrets. No sooner had the terms of this great concession become known in Downing street than the danger to India was appreciated; for there, too, it was clear that a railway which can throw German goods across the Indian frontier can throw helmeted Infantrymen and Krupp field guns as well.

So every resource of the British foreign office was put forth to frustrate it.

Now, owing to the physical configuration of the shores of the Persian Gulf, and to certain existing political conditions, the only port at which it would be at all possible for a railway to end is Koweit, an insignificant cluster of Arab huts, situated in a strategic position at the head of the gulf, and the capital of a small and semi-independent territory of the same name.

The British waited until the railway was so far completed and the investment so enormous that it was impossible for Germany to back out.

Berlin Astounded.

Then, one day, a British gunboat dropped anchor off the low-lying sand dunes of Koweit, a gentleman immaculate in white linen and a white helmet was rowed ashore in the ship's gig, and made his way to the mud-walled residence of the sheik, and after him came sailors bearing various bulky packages. Suffice it to say that an obscure Arab chieftain, as the ruler of a spot determined upon for the terminus of an epoch-making railway system, and a secret agent of the Indian intelligence department, as the representative of his Britannic majesty, then and there concluded a treaty—a trifle informal, it is true—but a treaty, just the same—whereby the sheik of Koweit disavowed his allegiance to the sultan and accepted the protection of Great Britain as represented by one small gunboat in the harbor.

Twenty-four hours later the officials of the foreign office in Berlin were astounded to receive a note from Downing street informing them that the completion of the Bagdad railway to Koweit could not be countenanced by his majesty's Government unless the line was internationalized, and a half-share handed over to England, for, as the secretary of state for foreign affairs explained in his very polite note, Koweit was now British soil. So the workmen were laid off, and the international wrangling as to terms began.

And there, for the moment, the matter rests. The Kaiser, in his great white palace at Berlin, gnaws his nails and swings his arm nervously whenever the subject is mentioned to him. There is no reason to believe, as has recently been asserted, that he would ever consent to construct the line to Bagdad only, intrusting to British enterprise the completion of the route to the gulf.

The question now is—what nation or group of nations is destined to carry on the Bagdad railway to completion and restore the ancient land of Shinar to its former glory? The most desirable and the most natural combination for this service—speaking from an unbiased standpoint—would be Germany, France and England. But just at present the association of England does not seem very likely. The Germans value their concession so highly, as well they may, that they will never, unless I am greatly in error, offer the conditions of equality which are the only terms that would be accepted by England, who, to drop into an expressive vulgarism, is going to be the "whole hog or none." And yet, in truth, it is only by internationalization that the greatest results from the scheme can be realized—the linking of east and west. That co-operation would give an importance to the project which it cannot possess if it is merely a railroad for the development of Asiatic Turkey.

And it is no secret—the fervor with which William II. has plunged into this railway scheme, and I very much mistake the grasp of his imperial mind if he is not able to realize how much greater would be the glory of contributing to establish a highway of nations than that of making a German railroad penetrating Asiatic Turkey, even if it did threaten the Indian possessions of his hated neighbor.—From an article in Everybody's Magazine.

Sorrow must come some time to everybody, and those who scarcely taste it in their youth often have a more brimming and bitter cup to drain in after-life; whereas those who exhaust the dregs early, who drink the lees before the wine may reasonably hope for more palatable draughts to succeed.

Travel into the Yosemite Valley this year has broken all previous records. This is probably due to the fact that there are no tedious delays on the route. Tourists may leave San Francisco in the evening and reach the valley the following morning after a short stage ride.

IRATE DOG OWNER.

Hamilton, July 30.—There was a very indignant citizen in the police court this morning. He was W. F. Miller, and he answered a charge of allowing his dog to run at large. He declared that the dog law was the most inhuman law ever passed in a civilized community, and referred to the aldermen as "puritanical old fossils." He also stated that the city council was weak and passed the bylaw to catch votes. After listening to this flow of eloquency the magistrate didn't have the heart to impose a fine on the irate gentleman.

CANNOM—THOMAS

Wedding of a Popular Couple in East End on Wednesday.

A very pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Poad, The Gore, on Wednesday, July 28, at 8 o'clock, when their niece, Miss Maud Thomas, became the bride of Mr. John Ernest Cannom, of London. While Lohengrin's wedding march was being played by Miss Olive Poad, cousin of the bride, the latter entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her uncle, Mr. G. Poad. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Hilda Thomas, and the sister of the groom, Miss Ruth Cannom. Mr. H. Pace, of Toronto, assisted the groom. Pearl Poad, cousin of the bride, made a pretty little flower girl, carrying a basket of sweet peas and ferns. The bride was tastefully attired in a princess gown of white point d'esprit over white silk, and wearing a bridal veil. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. At the signing of the register the "Wedding Bells" was played, after which the happy couple and guests adjourned to the dining-room where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Cannom left, amid showers of rice, for their new home east of the city, where they will reside in future. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Baird in the presence of a number of friends of the contracting parties. The presents were both beautiful and costly.

PRIZE LISTS FOR THE DOG AND CAT SHOW

Are Now Ready and Several Hundred Will Be Mailed at Once.

The prize list for the dog show in connection with the Western Fair has just been issued and several hundred will be mailed at once. The prize list for the cat show is in the printer's hands and will soon be ready. This is the third year the dog show has been held by the association during the exhibition; each time it has been very successful, and it is fully expected from present indications that this year will eclipse them all. This will be the first cat show held by the Western Fair, and a great amount of interest is being taken in it. Cat fanciers from all over Canada, and a large number of Americans have signified their intention of being present as exhibitors and visitors. A fine list of special prizes for both dog and cat show have been secured, and the success of both these departments is already assured. Prize lists, entry forms and all information regarding any or all departments of the exhibition will be promptly given on application to the secretary at the general offices, Richmond street.

UNEXPECTED DEATH OF A LONDON LADY

Mrs. M. Graham Passed Away While on Visit to Her Father in Montreal.

The death occurred very unexpectedly in Montreal yesterday of Mrs. Maud Graham, wife of Mr. Ernest E. Graham, of 386 Burwell street.

Mrs. Graham had not been well for some time and had been on a visit to her father Mr. Samuel King master car builder, in the Grand Trunk shops in Montreal.

Last Thanksgiving Day Mrs. Graham was out driving with some ladies, when a boy threw a stone at the horse. The animal turned quickly, and the occupants of the buggy were thrown out.

Mrs. Graham had her hip broken and was so badly shaken up that she had never been the same since. She was a member of Dundas Centre Methodist Church and was always keenly interested in the Sunday school, in which she taught a class. Mr. Graham was only advised on Thursday that his wife was seriously ill and hurried at once to Montreal.

The remains will be brought to the city this evening and the funeral takes place on Sunday afternoon to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

A CHATHAM GIRL SHOCKINGLY BURNED

Tried to Start Fire With Coal-Oil—Storm Starts Mill Whistle.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Chatham, July 30.—Mayor Westman has received a letter from the chairman of the Detroit motor-boat cruise committee, expressing the pleasure felt by all the members of the club at the cordial reception tendered them by Chatham citizens

An amusing, if slightly disturbing, effect was produced by the recent electrical storm, when one of the wires connected with Drader's mills got mixed up with itself and threw open the throttle. As this resulted in a two-hours' incessant hoot from the hooter in the very early hours of the morning, the slumbers of everybody in the neighborhood were broken.

Dr. Kingsley Holmes and a party have left on a trip by motor-boat to Georgian Bay.

Miss Agnes O'Reilly and Miss Carrie Guttridge, of the Austin store, are holiday-making at present.

Mrs. Rice and Miss Rice, of Lorne avenue, are visiting Mrs. J. B. Montgomery, of Amherstburg, at present.

Music and Dancing.

Chatham experienced a little cooler weather today with much relief. In the evening the regimental band gave a concert on the park and a large number of people turned out to hear the capital music and enjoy the delightful breeze.

A successful band concert and dance was given at the Eau last night by the Kent Mills Band. A large number of people went out from Chatham despite the threatening weather, and a pleasant time was spent.

Girl Badly Burned.

Annie Macklin, of Wallaceburg, was severely burned there this morning through a coaloil explosion. She had attempted to start the stove with oil. Her injuries are shocking, the flesh simply sloughing off her hands. In the event of the girl's recovery, she will likely be permanently disfigured. Damage to the extent of $100 is reported to the kitchen, and a big fire was only averted through the promptitude of the neighbors.

Lost Nine Days' Labor.

George Jackson, who agreed to work for a farmer for a month, and quit after nine days, failed in the police court today to compel payment for the nine days' labor. The magistrate held that Jackson had not fulfilled his part of the contract.

The Chatham cricket team journeyed to Windsor in vain yesterday, for no eager opponents awaited them to engage in "cricket's manly toil," as Byron puts it. The Windsor Club wired that the ground was unfit, but the message did not arrive in time to hold up the Chatham cricketers.

LONDON'S BUSINESS IS SATISFACTORY

London reports say the general condition of business is very satisfactory. Crops are looking well and prices for country products are holding firm. Wholesalers report excellent orders for fall and local factories are busy. Boot and shoe men are preparing for a big business, but cigarmakers report the demand still a little light.

NOT CUTTING RATES.

London, July 1.—At a meeting of the Anglo-American Cable Company, the chairman stated that although the Eastern Telegraph Company had reduced the rates on press cables, the Atlantic companies had no such intention.

If you only knew the delightful sensation after using Adonis Hed-Rub you would have it applied regularly by your barber. Only 10c extra.

The Grand Trunk City Ticket Office, "Clock Corner," will be open on Saturday evening for the sale of Civic Holiday excursion and other tickets. 32u.
