With Recommendation for Permanent Commission on Waterways.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—The International Vaterways Commission have reported adversely upon an application to divert water from the basin of Rainy Lake basin. The Minnesota Canal and Power Co. of Duluth had desired to divert for the purpose of developing 30,000 horse-power of electricity, water from Birch Lake, which is naturally tributary to the Rainy River, Lake of the Woods, Winnipeg River and so on, finally to Hudson Bay.

River and so on, finally to Hudson Bay.

The Commission, however, believe that the Canadian Government should be consulted and recommended that the use to which international waters may be put by either country without adjustment he declared to be (1) for domestic and sanitary purposes; (2) for the service of locks; (3) for navigation. Lastly, they think the permanent diversion of any international water should be prohibited except upon the adjustment of the rights of all parties by a permanent Commission.

The man with a good opinion of himself is always willing to share it with the rest of the world.

Revision in Form, but Not in Substance of Old National Policy-Hon. Geo. E. Foster Denounces

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—The new tariff is a revision in form rather than in substance. There are some slight increases and some slight decreases, but the result will work no change in the total amount of duties collected.

The British preference remains, and if anything, is a trifle more pronounced. An effort is made to promote trade with Great British py admitting from British possessions free of duty some articles upon which there is a small duty as against foreign countries.

duty some articles upon which there is a small duty as against foreign countries.

Raw sugar suffers a slight increase amounting under the preference, to 71-2 cents per 100 pounds. As substantially all our raw sugar comes from the British West Indies this change spells an increase in revenue amounting to about $300,000 per annum.

The duties upon rice, oranges and lemons are reduced, causing a deficiency of about the same amount.

Iron and steel receive bounties for four years more upon a sliding scale, as hereafter shown. Tin plate receives no protection, but there is no substantial relief to the farmers upon agricultural implements.

Slight Increase.

The general trend of the change is slightly upwards. The new feature of the tariff, apart from classification, is found in the so-called "intermediate tariff." This is a rate about 10 per cent. less than the general tariff, which may by an order-in-council, become effective in favor of any nation which desires reciprocity.

Mr. Fielding, however, admitted that it was problematical whether it would ever come into effect. It can hardly do so, unless acted upon by a number of countries, as the favored nation clause in imperial treaties would make it apply to many other nations if for any other reason it was extended to any particular country. It is difficult to understand why any revision was made as to all intents and purposes it re-enacts the present revision was made as to all intents tariff. As a rule, the changes are slight and offset one another so as; to produce no change in the revenues of the country.

Canada's Prospects.

Canada's Prospects.

Mr. Fielding in opening, of course, referred to the great prospects of Canada, alluding with regret to the trouble between the Dominion Coal and the Dominion Steel Co. He said significantly that both companies owed a great deal to the Parlaiment and the people of Canada. He touched upon the strikes and other labor difficulties in Ontario and the West, but was of the opinion that these difficulties were a tribute on the progress and prosperity of the country. It expressed a demand on the part of the laboring men to a greater share of the wealth that they were creating. The usual figures were gone into.

The estimated revenue of the last fiscal year had been $79,000,000. The actual revenue was $80,139,000. On the other hand, more money was spent actual revenue was $80,139,000. On the other hand, more money was spent than anticipated by $740,000. There remained an apparent surplus of $12,-898,000. As a matter of fact, however, the expenditure upon capital account had wiped out this apparent surplus and the net debt of Canada had increased during the past year by $818,-

Increase was shown in all departments. From customs the increase had been $41,300,000 to $46,000,000. In had been $41,300,000 to $46,000,000. In excise collections were from $12,586,000 to $14,000,000. In the postal department from $5,125,000 to $5,933,000. Even the Intercolonial had shown a surplus of $61,915, offsetting a deficit on the Prince Edward Island Railway of $36,982. The anticipated surplus in the postoffice department had leaped from less than one-half million in 1905, to more than $1,000,000 in 1906.

Estimated Surplus $13,000,000.

The receipts of the Government for the period between July 1 last and the present date were so large as to justify an estimate that for the nine months ending March 31, 1908, they would amount to $65,000,000. The estimated expenditure for the same period of $52,000,000, thus leaving a surplus of $13,000,000. The Finance Minister hopes by March 31 to have paid all capital expenditures on capital account out of the current revenus for the nine months, and to decrease the national debt by one and one-half million dollars. Debts owed by the Canadian Government have been paid off from time to time out of money, paidby the C.P.R. to the Dominion Government. During the past few years $15,000,000 was paid from the sale of lands. This $15,000,000 is represented by debentures falling due in 1938, but in the meantime the Laurier Government has been using it to pay other debts.

In announcing the new tariff, the Minister declared that the Government especially wanted tariff stability. There would be no radical changes from the tariff of 1897. The act aimed at a more scientific arrangement of duties rather than changing the duties themselves. Both parties were committed to moderate protection. The Government desired all manufacturing industries to succeed, and was willing to help them if it did not cost too much.

There were some people. Mr. Fielding declared, who insisted that everything used by the people of Canada Estimated Surplus $13,000,000.

must be made in Canada. He could must be made in Canada. He could not subscribe to this doctrine. The consumers had some rights. Many things could not be made economically in this country.

No Duty on Tin Plate.

For example, there was the tin plate industry. A firm that had built a factory at Morrisburg wished the Government to put a duty on tin plate. The request had been refused. Tin plate could be made in Canada, but an increase in the cost of tin would be felt by every housewife; it would cast a burden upon a growing industry, and would add to the cost of all canned goods, such as fruit, fish, meat, and so forth. There would, therefore, be no duty placed upon tin plate.

Among other changes in the new act is the arrangement of the free list. Heretofore the articles admitted free of duty have been assembled at the end of the act. Every item in the new act appeared in the appropriate schedule, and if admitted free that fact is stated. The schedules also are arranged upon a more scientific basis. The whole form of the tariff is so changed that it is difficult to compare the old act with the new. But the changes are mainly changes in the changes are mainly changes in pare the old act with the new. But the changes are mainly changes in form.

After a brief reference to the surtax and the French treaty, the Minister announced that in addition to the general tariff and the British preference, there would be an intermediate tariff, which, however, would not become effective at present, and which, as a matter of fact, never may go into effect, unless reciprocity is negotiated with the United States.

Preference a Good Thing.

Discussing the British preference, Mr. Fielding pronounced it a good thing. It had given Canada prominence in the eyes of the empire, and in the rest of the world. It had brought to her commercial advantages, which, though based on sentiment, were none the less valuable. There were some who clamored for a mutual preference, and desired the Government to move in that direction. The Government would not interfere in the party politics of Britain. At the present time the people of Britain were unmistakably opposed to anything of that kind. It would be idle to press them unduly. The only way to get this preference was to do as we are doing now, namely, to continue the preference, and to hope that in time England would reciprocate. We should say to the English people: "We grant you this preference for our own advantage. When you think it is to your advantage to grant us a preference, we will be glad to receive it. If you never see fit to do so, we have no complaint to make."

Mr. Fielding went on to explain that this preference extended to Ceylon, Cape of Good Hope, the Barbados, Windward Islands, South Rhodesia, the Straits Settlements, British Guinea, and would apply to any British country upon an order-in-council.

Generally speaking, there is little change in the matter of British preference.

On the whole, whatever change there may be is in favor of the preference.

on the whole, whatever change there On the whole, whatever change there may be is in favor of the preference. Some articles are placed on the free list when coming from Great Britain, which are subject to a small duty when coming form foreign countries. There is an effort to direct Canadian trade to Great Britain. The preferences hereafter will not be the exact one-third. For example, if the general duty is 25 per cent., the preferential duty may be 17 1-2 or 15 per cent. There will be no awkward fraction like 16 2-3. All goods, to have advantage of the preference, must represent at least 25 per cent. British labor.

For Favored Nations.

The intermediate tariff is a tariff

The intermediate tariff is a tariff between the general tariff and the British preference, and may become effective at any time in favor of any nation upon an order-in-council. Mr. nation upon an order-in-council. Mr. Fielding explained, however, that the favored nation clause in imperial treaties would make it almost impossible to extend the benefits of this tariff to any one country. It could only become effective if say five or six countries would reciprocate. The Government had no idea at present of using it.

countries would reciprocate. The Government had no idea at present of using it.

Another change in the new act is a drawback clause. Some articles like German silk, if intended for manufacture of neckties, are now admitted at a lower rate. Hereafter it pays the full duty, but upon proof that the silk has been used for this purpose, a rebate will be permitted. Another change takes goods intended for the Government off the free list. Goods imported for the Government will pay duty, whether imported by individuals for the Government or imported by the Government itself. An exception to this is wood alcohol, or ordinary alcohol, intended to be denatured.

The anti-combine clause is strengthened by providing that upon any conviction under the Criminal Code, the Government may at once take off the duty, if satisfied that the tariff has facilitated the formation of such conspiracy.

Dumping Clause Extended

Dumping Clause Extended.

The dumping clause remains essentially as enacted two years ago, with the addition that it now also applies to articles on the free list, if the same are dumped in Canada. If sold here at a cut price, a duty of 15 per cent. will be imposed. The phrase itself, "dumping clause," now finds a place in the Customs Act.

Iron and steel should not be made too expensive to the consumer. We, therefore, in 1897, adopted a system of bounties of $3 a ton for steel, three dollars a ton for iron made from foreign ore. These bounties, however, were averaged ones adding scale.

and at present the bolifices are but 35 per cent, of the original amount and without further legislation would soon cease to exist. A new sliding scale, therefore, becomes effective Jan. 1, 1907, and remains in force for four years.

Taking up particular items the Minister stated that the duty on lead and lead pipes were reduced. The rolled iron and steel sheets, tin sheets, metalic sheets coated with zinc, the general duty is increased from 5 to 7 1-2 per cent., but they come in duty free from Great Britain. On pig iron the preferential rate is reduced from $1.65 to $1.50. The general rate remains unchanged. hanged. Reapers, mowers, binders and har-

Reapers, mowers, binders and harvesters are reduced from 20 to 17 1-2 per cent. Rakes, pronged forks, hay rakes and similar articles are reduced from 25 to 22 1-2 per cent. On many agricultural implements the rate remains unchanged, but whatever changes there may be are mainly towards a slight increase.

The duty on rice is reduced, and also upon oranges and lemons, causing an estimated deficiency in the revenues of $300,000. It is anticipated that this will be made up by an increase on the duties on raw sugar of 7 1-2 cents per hundred pounds under the British preference, and a corresponding increase under the general tariff.

Generally speaking the revenue will be otherwise footstood or the standard of the content of the standard of the content of the standard of the st responding increase under the general tariff.

Generally speaking the revenue will not be otherwise affected as on the gross amount. There are slight increases, and slight decreases, but the general result is not affected.

Denatured Alcohol.

Yood made of denatured alcohol received discussion. Mr. Fielding stated that there was no excise duty on it, and therefore in this respect Canada was in advance, instead of behind the United States. He stated that denatured alcohol was being manufactured by the Government at Ottawa, but its manufacture is quite expensive. The Minister of Inland Reveune buys ordinary alcohol from the distilleries and denatures it with wood alcohol, and then sells it, but he is unable to sell it for less than 80 cents a gallon, so that very little is consumed. a gallon, so that very little is con-

Mr. Foster's Reply.

Mr. Foster's Reply.

Hon. George E. Foster presented a scathing arrangement of the reckless extravagance of the Laurier Government. The Conservatives had expended $11,000,000 on what might be called productive works for capital account. The Liberals had spent in the same way $52,000,000. The total expenditures of the Conservatives during eighteen years amounted to $597,000,000. The Liberals in ten years the present $498,000,000. In ten years the present Government has taken $430,000,000 in taxes from the people. In present Government has taken $430,-000,000 in taxes from the people. In this way they have to some extent avoided an increase in debt.

He denounced the tariff as admitting hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of goods which could be made and should be made in Canada. At this moment when the powerful nation to the south of us is making an aggressive campaign for a foreign market, our Government is doing nothing to resist it, although even now the balance of trade is against us to the extent of one hundred million dollars. He favored a high protective duty against the United States.

Iron and Steel Bounties.

Mr. Fielding's resolution on iron and steel bounties is as follows:

THE TARIFF CHANGES.

In another column of to day's issue will be found the Tariff Reform as ly remunerative" in come commodibrought down in the House by Finance Minister Fielding. The changes in the London Free Press, to the wrought in the present tariff will be a great disappointment to those who confidently looked forward to furnished the soldiers as "emergency and who rightly expected a much subject. The Mail and Empire yes- but there are others. terday published a clear cut editorial on this latest move of the Financ Minister. It said:

"It will take time to comprehend the purport of the tariff changes announced to Parliament yesterday. At first blush these amendments do not appear to alter the situation materially. There is a slight lift here and little cut there, with the result that the situation is apparently not much changed. But it sometimes happens that a moderate alteration in a tariff affects bu iness and industry to a very considerable extent. For this reason the scheme will have to be tested by experience.

The principle upon which the tariff is based, it is to be feared, is somewhat complex. To day we have practically four tariffs, namely, the general tariff, the British preference, the German su-tax, and the French treaty tariff. The new scheme adds another tariff to the list. This is called the intermediate tariff, and is to come into force at will of the Government in response to tariff reductions made in our behalf by other countries. We shall therefore have in future five tariffs. First, there will be the gen eral tariff, applicable to all countries with which we have no terms. Then there will be the intermediate tariff, prescribing lower rates for countrries agreeing to give us something in return for being placed upon this schedule. Next we shall have the British preferential rates, which will be a shade lower than the intermediate tariff. Again, there will be the tariff against Germany, which is higher twing to the surfax, than the general tariff; and in addition we shall have the tariff for France which is governed by treaty. new feature of the complicated system Is the intermediate schedule, which is supposed to figure as an offer to other countries to enter into reciprocal relations with us. As the thing does not come into operation until agreements have been reached on both sides, it effects no change in the situation. We have always been free to enter into trade arrangements with other countries, although our ed in advance in our tariff. The naming of such terms simply exposes our hand and leaves the other parties free to dictate their own conditions should negotiations be determined superfluous and it is not probable that it will ever be operated. It is designed, no doubt, as a first step INTELLIGENT WOMEN PREPARE towards closer relations with the United States; but it is not likely to have the effect intended. In the British preference an alternation of some interest is made. ### Whose Say-so is Best?

Whose Say-so is Best?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives. Dr. Pierce's medicines, however, form a single and therefore striking exception to this rule. Their claims to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their makers' say-so or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-knewn medicines. Amongst these writers we find such medical lights as Prof. Finiey Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennet Medical College, Chicago: Prof. Hale, of the same city: Prof. John M. INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSON FOR TO-MORROW. Jesus Before Pilate.—Luke 23, 13-25, Read Matt. 27, 3.30; John 19,

Golden Text-"I find no fault

Let the teachers bring to their lasses, if possible, the picture, Christ Before Pilate." Here is an amazing scene to the universe, Hea-ven, Earth, and Hell, God disguised as a man, in the Holy One, Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead, the supreme Judge of all man-kind, their maker and preserver, standing as a malefactor to receive His sentence, before the bar of a heathen, idolations judge, whose ver-dict is, "I find no fault in Him."

Our classes will recollect that the crime for which the Jewish Council condemned Jesus to death was blasphemy, He tiking the outh administered by Cataphas the High Priest, that He was a large to the country of the co that He was the divinely begotten Son of God, making Himself equal with God. Before Pilate, the Roman ruler, who despised their religion, these blind leaders of the blind accuse our Lord of three political crimes against Roman rule— 1. Arcusing sedition. 2. CATARRH of the respiratory organs is a common allment in Canada for at least two-thirds of the year.

This condition is no doubt caused by the long, severe winters experienced in this part of the continent.

Therefore, when Peruna was discovered by Canadian people to be a re-liable remedy for these catarrhal dis-eases, it at once became a popular med-cine, not only among individuals and in families, but in the great hospitals, where it was used as a preventative and relief in hundreds of cases,

These institutions do not hesitate to give their endorsement of the remedy which has been so helpful in the treatment of their poor and sick.

Among these institutions is that of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, who gave the following endorrement:

every internal organ of the body—is an absolute necessity. Peruna is just such a remedy. It searches out the cause of the disease, healing and strengthening the mucous membranes, and thus giving Nature an opportunity to perform her part of the restorative process.

One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna of value in treating old and obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write, as catarrhal diseases in the chro

Ontario Railway And Municipal Board Issue An Order

THE WRITS FOR DAMAGES

Hamilton, Dec. 1.—Starting this norning the street cars, radial and Hamilton and Dundas lines, will be operated by the union men who have been out on strike for nearly four weeks, and the strike-breakers will be taken to pastures new. That at least was the arrangement entered into yesterday afternoon by the company and the union before the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

The board met at 11 o'clock and proceeded at once to the arbitration of the street railway troubles. The first thing the board did was to issue first thing the board did was to issue an order instructing all the strikers to go back to work. The order read: "The board, in order to serve the comfort and convenience of all classes of the community, hereby declares the strike off and orders and directs all the men now out on strike to return to their respective employments; and also orders and directs the companies to receive the men back, and the companies are to further put a complete service in operation." appearance on the stage, and she had no difficulty in holding their attention throughout the evening. A whole evening of Miss Walker would indeed be enjoyable and the only complaint of the audience was that she did not appear oftener. She has a queenly appearance, an admirable voice and an excellent temperament, and is in fact one of the perament, and is in fact one of the brightest entertainers seen in Chatham for some time.

Miss Lottie Baier, soprano, of Detroit, scored a distinct success. She was especially good in "A Gypsy Maiden I," and her rendition of "Angus McDonald," left an impression which will not soon be forgottell She has a mezzo-soprano voice of remarkable range and wonderful sweetness of quality, and The chairman read the order, and then said he supposed the next question would be about wages. Col. Gibson made strenuous objections to the order. He thought the company should have some say as to whom it should employ. It was willing to put back a majority, even nineteen-twentieths of them, but it should not be compelled to keep men who were dishonest. He asked for an adjournment for two hours, so that the company might consider the matter. Col. Gibson Agrees.

At the atternoon session Mr. Gibson agreed to obey the order, and take the men back as fast as cars were available. Many of the cars were so damaged that the company could not put them on the streets.

GRASP THE IMMEDIATE IMPORTANCE OF THIS, THEN ACT AT ONCE. .

Of course, no one can blume you, if you have been thinking that INVESTMENT IN STOCKS of Cobalt mining properties, actually producing, is the whole or the only phase of the matter. You didn't know that there is a NEWER, SAFER AND BETTER PAYING plan. That's where we can put you right!

Look at it this way: Practically only parts of TWO townships of the vast mining lands in Cobalt and New Ontario have been explored for the remarkable results you hear of every day. And you know the stock markets are wild over the price of shares in the already discovered mines and prospects.

What is bound to happen, then—if an Incorporated Company of experienced mining engineers, developers and prospectors combine their money and methods for Dortmund, Germany, Nov. 30.—So far as could be ascertained yesterday morning, 24 persons were killed, 96 morning, 24 persons were kined, 96 were dangerously wounded, and several hundreds were slightly injured as a result of the explosion Wednesday night of the Roburite factory near Annen, where the Krupp Works are leasted.

At the time of the explosion 600 boxes, each containing 80 pounds of roburite, were stored in the factory. The great force of the explosion was felt as far as Dortmund, ten miles from the scene of the disaster, where a large number of windows were brok-

A second explosion occurred at six o'clock yesterday morning.

Experts declare that, considering the great precautions with which the explosives were stored, the disaster can only have resulted from some outrage. Emperor William has directed Gen. Von School to visit Annen and Witten, and has subscribed $6,250 for the relief of the sufferers.

What Roburite Is.

Roburite is an explosive of high power, composed of saltpetre, ammonia, sulphur and other ingredients. It is not easily exploded by a blow and it can be burned with safety in the open air. Its power is second to that of dynamite.

Head Crushed by Log.

Tillsonburg, Nov. 30.—Whilst loading logs for shipment at the M.C.R. station, Tillsonburg, yesterday afternoon, Joseph Cornfoot was unfortunate enough to get caught by logs rolling back, which crushed his head, killing him instantly. He was only 18 years of age. His parents live at Mount Elgin.

The Jacksonville train stopped on the top of a very heavy grade a mile north of Lawyer's Depot, to repair a slight breakdown, and before, it is said, a flagman could get back to protect the train, the Atlanta train dashed into it. The cause of the wreck has not been definitely learned, but it is understood that the operator in charge of the block office at Rangoon, four miles north of the scene, allowed the Atlantic train to enter the block before he had been given a clear track from the next block station at Lawyer Depot, we miles below.

ROBERT GILLESPIE REID The Uncrowned Czar of Newfoundla

The largest landowner in the world, a short time ago, was Robert G. Reid, the Caar of Newfoundland, who owned one-sixth of the island which is nearly as large as England, and held the welfare of the colony with its two hundred thousand people, in the hollow of his hand. A most remarkable and romantic story is the history of this man of Monte Cristo dreams. Unparalleled concessions and monopolies earne to him from a people who practiculy mortgaged their island for his ready money and help in hours of need, and in recognition of his saving the country in its emergency they made him an uncrowned autocrat.

Born in Coupar, Angus, Scotland, sixty-three years ago, he went as a young man to Australia in the gold-lever days, and while there built some public works and acquired the foundation of his knowledge of constructing and contracting and acquired the foundation of his knowledge over the Nigara niver. Then hit in engineering work with his splendid bridge over the Nigara niver. Then he bridged the Ric Grand, and won a national resourceful, he performed impossible work with a certainty and ease that were appalling. He went into railroad work with a certainty and acset that were appalling. He went into railroad work with a certainty and acset that were appalling. He went into railroad work with a certainty and touched blossomed into success. One of the most difficult sections of the Canadian Perfeit Railway was entrusted to him, and the obstacles that Nature had put in his way were brushed aside as if they were cobwebs.

In 1800 came the dawn of his greatest success. Newfoundland was nearly bankrupt. This colony with ambition was struggling with political corruption complicated with chaotic chicanery and mismanagement. The governance of the most arised step and the world wilderness. They had little money but they had a silver platter which they implored Reid to accept. In later emergencies he a silver platter which they implored Reid to accept. ### THANKSGIVING SERMON

CAUSES WHICH OUGHT TO IN-SPIRE A NATION'S GRATITUDE.

FOUR HISTORIC MOVEMENTS

Rev. Dr. Talmage Recalls to the Memories of His Hearers Those Upon Which the Life of the United States Hung Upon the Slenderest Thread -Reached Happy Solution With Reference to the Republic's Own Life.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Can-ada, in the year 1906, by Frederick Diver, To-ronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 25.—In this Thanksgiving sermon the preacher reviews the many causes which ought to inspire a nation's gratitude and arouse its patriotism. The text is Deuteronomy viii, 10, "Thou shalt bless the Lord my viii, 10, "Thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which he hath given thee."

In former Thanksgiving sermons I have spoken of the corn and the wheat and the rye and the apples and the pears and the oranges and the sheep and cows and horses and the machines and the stores and the railroads and the stores and the railroads and the shops and the public buildings and the stores and the railroads and the ships and the public buildings which have been produced during the year, but to-day I would dwell on the four great geographical developments which took place in our American history that have given us this good broad land for which we give thanks. I would dwell especially on the heroid men to whom, under the providence of God, we owe those vast regions of land rich in fruits and minerals. We heard of those men in our schoolboy heard of those men in our schoolboy days, but as we reach middle life their names become unfamiliar, and we for-get their splendid achievements. This ought not so to be. Our gratitude as a nation is due, and we owe it to them that in our national thanksgivings their names are remembered.

that in our national thanksgiving-their names are remembered.

I want to recall to your memorics four momentous historic movements, because their happy solution, happy in because their happy solution, happy in reference to our own national life, hung, as it were, upon the slenderest thread. The balances in every case trembled this way and that, as though undecided whether to go up or to go down. In at least three cases the sudden death of one man who was pivotal in international transactions would have changed the trend of all American history and would have made this continent a collection of many armed governments, and we should have seen the European monarchies jostle and push each other here as they do elsewhere in a mad struggle to live.

Let us first study the causes which led up to the famous treaty of Paris of 1783. In order to do this we must turn back the dial of Ahaz to the beginning of the Revolutionary war. And as we enter the town meetings of New England and afterward attend the sessions of the Continental congress we do not hear one word uttered or find one public document indicating that the thirteen colonies set any value in the land of the northwest or even on that land lying just beyond the Ohio one public document indicating that the thirteen colonies set any value method that land lying just beyond the Ohio river out of which the great states of Ohio and Indiana and Illinois and Michigan and Wisconsin have been carved. The thirteen colonies took no more interest in this region than Americans do to-day in Manchuria or Timbuktu. This region was to them the impenetrable wilderness which would never be inhabited. Thomas Jefferson himself once declared that we did not want any territory except that east of the Alleghany mountains. This region, he said, was capable of supporting a population of 300,000,000 people, and that was enough people for any government to control. The thirteen colonies not only did not care for this region, but they did not realize the danger of that region being in the hands of an alien and possibly an unfriendly government.

Their awakening was the work of the danger of that region being in the hands of an alien and possibly an unfriendly government.

Their awakening was the work of one man. Out of the wilderness a man came who knew its value. He was a hunter and a dreamer, a man who had lived with the huge mountains and great rivers, who had rested under trees hundreds of years old, an athlete who used thousands upon thousands of square miles of land for a playground. George Rogers Clark is his name. He is one of the most influential factors in American history. He was one of the great pivots upon which the Paris treaty of 1783 turned. He first came east in 1778 as a delegate from the modern state of Kentucky to the colonial assembly of Virginia, "with a petition that Kentucky should be incorporated into the colony of Virginia as a new county." I am now quoting the exact words of the historian Fletcher Johnson in reference to this petition.

for the treaty of Paris in 1783, which gave to us the middle west? Cannot you thank God for the dreamer George Rogers Clark and for the clever diplomat John Jay, who dared to defy the instructions of his home government and compelled France to be just to her American allies?

The exact words of the historian Fletcher Johnson in reference to this petition.

After his mission was ended he returned home. While east he heagd the story of the uprising against British rule. Then he commenced to brood as only a world's dreamer can brood. He saw in imagination not only the thirteen colonies winning their independence, but he also saw that vast territory extending from the Ohio to the Mississippi joined to the government about to be formed. Then in the darkest days of the Revolutionary uprising, in the winter of Valley Forge's horror, George Rogers Clark retraced his steps to Williamsburg, Va., and knocked stathed office door of Governor Patrick Henry. "What do you want?" he asked the strange western pedestrian. "I want," answered George Rogers Clark, "an army to go and capture the great northwest from the British." "Absurd!" said Governor Henry. "We have no soldiers and no money." "Then," answered Clark, "it you have no soldiers or money I want letters of authority to organize the hunters of that region into an army, and I alone will do the rest." Governor Patrick Henry gave to this visionary schemer the letters he requested. To make a long story short, George Rogers Clark gathered together '50 men. They were a Gideon's band of intrepid heroes. With this little handful of followers he plunged into the forest and attacked the British at Kaslaskis. He then marched on, gathering up his army as he went, until at the patricular of the proper of t last he wrested Detroit from the grasp of the British Commander Henry Hamilton. Such is the history of the conquest of the great northwest. It was all due to the foresight of one brilliand dreamer, George Rogers Clark. I wish I had time to go more into detail. However, before we leave the forest tracks of this valiant American patriot I would say be careful and do not confuse the name of George Rogers Clark with that of a William Clark of the Clark and Lewis expedition to Oregon. They were two different men and of no relation, although they bore the same family name.

The scene changes. The war for American independence has practically come to an end. We are now in the most beautiful capital of the world. This is Paris. We are now in the presence of the four American commissioners who had charge of the signing the treaty which would finally close the seven years war. John Jay and Henry Laurens are all there. Thomas Jefferson was also appointed a commissioner, but he never served on this commission, What are your instructions, ye American representatives? "Why, says John Jay, the most important personality on that commission, "congress has confused these instructions. It has sent us over here to perfect terms of peace. Then it has tied us hand and foot with these instructions upon all subjects to the ministers of our generous ally, the king of France; to undertake nothing in the negotiations for peace or treaty without their knowledge and concurrence and ultimacily to govern yourself by their advice and confidential communications upon all subjects to the ministers of our generous ally, the king of France; to undertake nothing in the negotiations for peace or treaty without their knowledge and concurrence and ultimacily to govern yourself by their advice and confidential communications upon all subjects to the ministers of our generous ally, the king of France is not only opposed to our interest, but she was a non-sensical instructions? Is not France our friend? Does ahe not wish to help us in 1783 the product o "Surrender to me all of California, all of New Mexico for a paltry $15,000,000, or I will blow your brains out and gobble up your whole country." Of course I am telling this transaction in a coarse way, but I am truthfully though bluntly telling you what the United States Government did. I am recounting bare historical facts. Not as a just sister nation did the United States act toward Mexico. With one stroke of the sword of war our Government split the Mexican republic in half and stole the best part of the reads. She took this land as a conquerer. She took it because her armies were stronger than Mexico's, and she took this land in no other way. This land steal was done both by the north and by the south.

In praising the climatic conditions of the great southwest, and especially of Southern California, we may use the strongest superlatives. We must combine in that description of California's climate the invigoration of the temperate zone and the balminess of the tropics. We must describe a the means of America's expansion of the Louisiana purchase of 1803. Do not from now on tell me that the negro of the south or of the north has no of the south or of the north has no claim to America's citizenship. Toussaint l'Ouverture has forever won for the negro that token of the gratitude of our nation.

In the first place, to understand the chief cause of this geographical expansion you must enter the United States Senate at Washington and stand for a little while there amid the slavery agitations of the antebellum time of the early ferties. The north was arraying its congressional forces was arraying its congressional forces on the one hand, and the south was arraying its congressional forces on the other hand. The great centre of this forensic struggle was in the Uni-ted States Senate. "We must have this forensic struggle was in the United States Senate. "We must have more men to represent us in the Senate!" cried the north. Then, as speedily as possible, they rushed the settlers west to fill up the prairies beyond the Mississippi and carve out new states to send their Senators to the national capital to help them in the slavery fight. "We must have more men in the United States Senate to help us in the struggle to perpetuate slavery!" cried the south. But where were they to get the new states from which to select the new Senators?

There was no unsettled land and uppossible new states south of the Mason and Dixon line. So the south turaed its eyes toward Texas, a part of the Mexican republic. It practically said, "If the Mexican republic will not sell Texas we will send the settlers of the United States into it, and we will get up a revolution there, and then we will appear Texas to the Waited States and United States into it, and we will get up a revolution there, and then we will annex Texas to the writed States, and out of Texas can be carved ten new states." In other words, the south overran Texas with its people, as the north rushed its settlers into Kansas territory a little later in order to make it an abolition state. Then, after Texas was admitted into the Union, the United States Government, figurativaly speaking, as a highwayman put the pistol to Mexico's forehead and said, "Surrender to me all of California, all "Surrender to me all of California, all of Nevada, all of Arizona and most of combine in that description of California's climate the invigoration of the temperate zone and the balminess of the tropics. We must describe a climate beneficial to the well man and to the sick. In this Edenic climatis condition we find all the atmospheric blessings of the arctics cuddling up and nestling against all the atmospheric blessings of the tropics, whils it is free from the destructive blizzards of the north, which, like an Alpine avalanche of snow, threaten to destroy the Norwegians and the Russians and the Greenlanders—free, too, from the pestiferous miasmas of the equator, which, like the fatal coils of the Brazilian anaconda, threaten to crush out the life of the inhabitants. Here, truly, the crocus and the heliotrope can grow all the year around. As loving maidens, they lift up their lips to be wooed and kissed by the same gentle sun. There the Januarys and Februarys are not any more wonderful than the Julys and Augusts. There the inhabitants must sleep under heavy blankets all the year round. Marvelous, wonderful, indescribable are the atmospheric conditions of the great southwest of our republic.

And what a health resort we havel great southwest of our republic.

And what a health resort we have!
Our leading men of the west have for the most part been the great leaders of the east. From overwork in their eastern homes they have broken down physically and have had to seek a warmer climate or they have gone to Southern California or the great southwest because there is sickness in their family. Rather than be separated from their loved ones they have gone to the southwest to renew their life's struggles near to the Pacific coast. The result is that some of the ablest ministers and lawyers and physicians and enigineers and educators and financiers and men of all departments of life have settled in the great southwest. The successful man of New York will not change his home to become the successful man of Chicago, nor will the successful man of Chicago, nor will the successful man of Chicago move to St. Louis to start life over again. Why? Like the banyan tree, he has become anchored with a thousand roots. The human tree cannot without much ripping and tearing and breaking be torn away from its home bed, but when consumption taps a man's lungs or asthma chokes his breathing or his beloved wife or son or daughter is afficted and the call comes to the invalid, "Come to California, come to New Mexico, come to Arizona or Texas," the physician will lock his office, and the minister leave his eastern pulpit, and the merchant close up his ledger and start out to find a new home in the great southwest. And it is through this means that some of the ablest men of our republic have gone south and west to build up our American industries there. My brother, cannot you thank God for the development of our great southwest, which came to us in the remarkable way it did?

Thus, my friends, in this historical retrospect on this Sabbath preceding our national Thanksgiving day we find that no man has ever been able to accomplish much good for his native land, with its territories stretching from sea to sea? Will you not be willing to fight for its rights and t ment and compelled France to be just to her American allies?

We must hurry in the discussion of this interesting Thanksgiving theme. The next great geographical expansion to which I would call your attention is the Louisiana purchase. The indirect cause of this purchase is almost unknown to the majority of American citizens. And in order to give the historical setting to this transaction I shall first introduce to you as strange and as weird a personality as George Rogers Clark. This man is not a white man, but a full blooded negro. He is not living in France or Spain or in the United States, but in the island 'f Santo Domingo. And yet this negro, this ex-slave, named Toussaint l'Ouverture, whom Napoleon betrayed by false promises and brutally starved to death in the French dungeon of St. Jour, had as much to do with the Louisians purchase as Robert Livingston or Thomas Jefferson, the president.

Fresh air is drawn from the outside through small vents into the oven while the odors and cooking fumes are forced by the fresh air out through small vents into the smoke flues, and up the chimney.

Roasts cooked in a Pandora oven retain their sweet, natural flavor, entirely free from cooking odors, absolutely unmixed with any foreign flavor. Puddings, cakes, bread, meats, etc., are always light, fresh and free from mixed odors or flavors.

Some of the skeletons reproduced on the screen had been uncerthed in Great Britain.

Prof. Ray Lankester was particularly interesting on the subject of the elephant's trunk. A picture of a long-jawed mastedons skeleton from central France was shown, and a soft, long upper lip resting on the long lower jaw was pointed out as corresponding to the trunk of the modern elephant.

A picture of a tapir, with its long proboscis resting on and drooping over the end of its lower jaw, was shown as an example of what was probably one stage of the elephant's trunk, and, remarking upon this, the professor said: "The tendency in modern times has been the general bull-dogging' of the elephant's head. Thus its lower jaw has receded, and its upper lip has grown and drooped into he familiar trunk."

The class of evidence which will be discussed at this pri-vate conference is intensely interest-ing to the British public. It is repre-sented by this typical statement from the pen of Dr. Brachet, professor of physiology at the Ecole de Medicine, Paris:

Paris:

"I inspired a dog with the greatest aversion for me," he says, "by plaguing or inflicting some pain or other upon it as often as I saw it. When this feeling was carried to its height, so that the animal became furious as soon as it saw or heard me, I put out its eyes. I could then appear before it without its manifesting any aversion. I spoke, and immediately its barkings and furious movements proved the passion which animated it.

How to Make Friends.

"I therefore destroyed the drum of its ears and disorganized the internal ear as much as I could, and when an intense inflammation which was excited had rendered it deaf I filled up its ears with molten wax. It could no longer hear at all. Then I went to its side, spoke aloud, and even caressed it, without its falling into a rage; it seemed even sensible of my caresses."

Dr. Brachet repeated the same experiment on another dog, and states that the result was always the same.

An incident which sickened the heart even of a prominent vivisectionist is told by Dr. Latour, who was present at the time a dog was being mutilated by Dr. Majendie in order to demonstrate a certain theory.

"The dog, mutilated and bleeding, says Dr. Latour, "twice escaped from under the implacable knife, and threw its front paws around Majendie's neck, licking, as if to soften its murderer and ask for mercy. I confess, says Dr. Latour, "I was unable to bear that heart-rending spectacle."

Candor and Cruelty.

Candor and Cruelty.

A writer in the Revue Nationale himself relates how he laid several large dogs on a table and beat them with a heavy wooden mallet, striking the animals thirty-two times on one side, and again thirty-two times on the other, after which he dislocated both shoulders and fastened the limbs behind the animals' backs. He adds that he did this without anesthetics, so that he might know how much pain was inflicted from the creature's cries, and also because, he adds, we know the generous nature he adds, we know the generous nature of the dog, who will at night lick the hand that in the morning had been employed in striking him with a heavy wooden mallet.

Dr. Allix, a well-known French veterinary surgeon, adds a grim touch to this catalogue of horrors.

"I have known," he says, "dogs die of sheer terror in anticipation of their doom before the vivisector had time to commence his operations."

These are the kind of facts which the Royal Commission is now discussing behind closed doors.
