Chicago will perhaps vote on local option at the April election. Near seventy-five thousand voters have pe-titioned the election commissioners to submit the question to a vote.

Superstition dies, hard. The old de-lusion that comets creat disasters is again revived in connect on with the recent floods; and the other supersti-tion of special judgment for sins finds its supporters. The Tower of Siloam with some good people will never fall for the last time.

Asked as to the cause of the great in-crease a man well informed on the conditions prevailing among the poor answered in one word. That word was alcohol.

Dr. A. H. Strong, of Rochester Theo-logical Seminary, asks: "What are the churches for but to make missionar-ies? What is education for but to train then? What is commerce for but to carry them? What is money for but to send them? What is life itself for but to fulfil the purpose of missions, the enthroning of Jesus Christ in the hearts of men."

It is not generally known that in Newark, N.J., there are two churches for Ruthenlans, one a Protestant and the other Catholic. The former con-gregation is soon to put up a new edi-fice. The Protestant church is the first Presbyterian church among the Ruthenlans in the United States. It was started as a mission by the Board of Home Missions about three years ago. The church, having six elders and as many trustees, was organized July 4, 1909.

THE JEWISH MISSION, TORONTO.

Nearly two years ago a committee of gentlemen appointed by our General Assembly started a mission to the Jews in Canada, by renting a shall and rooms at 156 Terauley street, Toronto, and securing as superintendent, the Rev. S B. Rohold, who was at that time ir charge of the Bonar Memorial Mission, Glasgow. Three ladles were appointed as missionaries, one of whom had been laboring for a num-ber of years as a Bible woman amongst the Jewish women and children, later a trained nurse was added to the staff. then two male assistants.

a trained nurse was added to the staff. then two male assistants. At the very beginning a prayer union was started, which meets on the third Thursday in each month in the mission hall. This winter the interest of these meetings has been consider-ably enhanced by a series of short addressees by our superintendent on "What is Judaism?" They have helped us to understand the mental make-up of those whom we are striv-ing to win. For fully a year the work ers have recognized the fact that a great awakening has been going on amongst the Jewish people in various parts of the world; but in Toronto only the men seemed to be touched, adifference when we spoke to the wo-pressing. But a change has word de-pressing. But a change has word de-pressing. But a change has word de-menting of our union this month offered thanksgiving to God for the work of the spirit amongst the vo-men, six having confessed Christ dur-ing the last three months.

Other departments of our work are-reading rooms for men and women, the former familiarly known as "The Cave of Adullam," attracting not only men who wish to read but all who are in superintendent and have their difficul-ties relieved; the latter is not so well patronized as the mothers have their home duties and don't care for read-ing, and the business women are too tired in the evenings, and only a few are interested in educational matters. But Saturday and Sabbath evenings this room is filled with the children and bigger girls clamorous for books and mazazines. magazines.

We have doctors, a nurse, a chemist and a free dipensary for men and women four afternoons in the week, when we have a song service and an address in Yiddish pointing the pa-tients to the physician of souls.

Wednesday afternoon the mission fairly hums with activity. In a room on the ground floor the mothers meet for their sewing class. Garments have been previously cut out which they are shown how to put together and when finished are given to them. Two of the lady missionaries who are in charge talk to them, sympathize with and teach them how to sew. After an hour and a half of work, a short ser-vice is held, their little ones who have enen in the nursery upstairs are brought down, when a cup of tea and cake are served to all, and the mo-thers go home with the comfortable feeling that in the missionaries they have true friends. true friends. have

In the nursery upstairs two ladies with big mother hearts and unbound-ed patience, not only care for and amuse from twenty to thirty little ones under five years of are, but develop their characters. A child who come-for the first time and throws himself down screaming in a fit of ill temper because the mother has left him, very quickly learns by being ignored and neglected that such conduct is very naughty, and as no child can bear to be "left out in the cold," In the midst of a roomful, it will not repeat the offence; or the child who at first cries to take home the doll or toy it has been playing with and is firmly re-fused, on the very next week, with a smiling face, will give it to the teach-er when the hour for closing has come-une the adjoining two small rooms two students from the Ewart Home wrestle with the problem how to util-ize in such cramped quarters, the sur-phus energy of from 12 to 18 boys, sald energy flowing not in a peaceful

In the hall by far the most numer-ous company assembles, between 50 and 60 school girls are arranged in and 60 school girls are arranged in classes with a self-sacrificing lady over each class, who teaches them plain sew-ing. All are under the superintend-ence of two of our most enthusiastic volunteer workers. The one provides, prepares and directs the sewing and brings a treat of some home-made cake each week, the other takes charge of the service and being endow-ed with a wonderful talent for the use of chalk, she generally gives the ad-dress herself, making some Old Testa-ment story just live on the blackboard. Several times during the year a mem-perance, and on more than one occa-sion students from the Ewart Home have given most interesting addres-ses. The Boys are present during this service and all the children led by one motion songs, or 'Oh Beulah Land.' or other beautiful gospel hymns. The number attending our Sabbath School has greatly increased this win-ter and for the first time we have a class of boys over 13 years of age. The largest class in the school is composed of the infants and is taught by our nurse, a real lover of the little ones. The next largest is the glris' Bible class, where glris ranging in age from word by one of our most consecrated missionaries. The secretary of the school is also the planist and has had splendid success in drilling the children in singing gospel hymns. Divinity stu-dents as well as lady volunteers are doing good service, not only in their classes but in taking the weekly black-hoard review. board review.

While the Sabbath School is meetwhile the Sabbath School is meet-ing in the hall, the Bible class for men assembles in the reading room and are studying Isaiah from Hebrew Bibles. studying Isalah from Hebrew Bibles. It is a wonderful class because of ne personnel. A few are baptized Chris-tians, others are secret beflevers, are a public confession would mean the breaking up of their homes and they are waiting until their wives are will-ing; others are anxiously inquiring whether these things are so. At their biblicities would be and the second second second second sector with the second second second second second sector would be a second se whether these things are so. At their Christian social some thirteen minis-ters assembled on the platform while over 200 men were in the benches and the look of intense interest in their faces as they listened to the ad-dresses showed how vital a matter Christianity is to them. It was a grand sight. Visiting in the homes of these men we have found many inter-esting circumstances. In one the wife-had been a secret believer for 4 years. her husband was bitteriy opposed to Christianity but is now attending the meetings and she hopes soon that they both will be baptized. In another the bushand is a believer but will not be baptized because his wife would leave him. He offered to hire a woman to take care of their baby, and bring his wife to the mission if we would teach her English. He has been talking to her for some time of Jesus and her prejudies are giving way. In still another home the husband has been an earnest believer for over a year-but his wife has many relatives in the city, orthodox Jews, and she would not listen, lately however, she has given for no mumber of points and consent-ed to have the missionaries visit her. The hospital visition has also been greatly blessed. We have only space for one flustration. So the work goes on. The Master is culling out His Church from the world, from Jews and Gentiles and H-has chosen to use the prayers of His followers as a prime instrument in the work. Therefore we appeal to all riends of Israel to uphold the hands of the missionaries by their prayers, thus he that goeth to the battlefield and he inat besizes the throne of grace may rejoice together over many souls won for the Master. for the Master.

THE R.C. CHURCH AND THE SABBATH.

One of the most serious evils of our day is the descration of the Sabbath, with which many other forms of wrongday is the desceration of the should, with which many other forms of wrong-doing are closely allied. For its rapid increase in later years the influence of the Roman Church is largely re-sponsible, and in an address delivered in Brooklyn, N.Y., last month, the Rev. John F. Nash, priest of the church of the Sacred Heart, spoke of the position of Rome in this matter. As reported in the New York Herald, December 7, 1990, he denounced the Puritans. whom he characterized as "a band of lunatics" for enacting so-called fana-tical laws to govern Sundays; he as-serted his belief that baseball, cards, and other amusements are perfectly permissible and that regulated liquor demned. He also said: "Football, boxing, rowing, swimming. selling on Sundays is not to be con-demmed. He also said: "Football, baseball, boxing, rowing, swimming, chess, checkers, dominoes and cards are all recreations and all justified.—The Converted Catholic Magazine.

What our contemporary says may be true of the United States; but in many parts of Canada, especially in the diocese of Montreal, the Roman Catholic church is outspoken in its condemnation of Sabbath desecration, as it is of intemperance and the "bar" traffic. In a marked degree this is true of the attitude of Archbishop Bruchesi to both questions .- Ed. Dominion Presbyterian.

THE BYSTANDERS

(By A. W. Lewis, B.D.)

(By A. W. Lewis, B.D.) Dvorak has composed a great ora-toric, which he calls The Symphony of the New World. He gathered up frag-ments of music native to the New World such as negro melodies; and he beantified these, and wove them into one grand, master-piece of harm-onles. In every man their are chords capable of development and snatches at least of native music. Christ takes these melodies and exaits them into a divine ornotroio, and so transforms the innate capacities, that chords which were broken will vibrate once more. Thus He can make human life one grand symphony of the New Affec-tion. This is the resurrection of man's viewpoint that we should regard the bystander.

Jesus came back into Judeau at the call of the sorrowing sisters in Bethany, whom He loved. Thus He pitt Himself into the hands of the bit-ter foes who plotted Hig death. The disciples realized the peri aud Thomas said, "Let us also go that we may die with Him." Martha and Mary were well known and well beloved. Their brother Lazarus had now been deat four days; and his body was lying in the tomb. Many had come to the darkened home to comfort the bereaved family. Jesus and His disciples visit-ed the tomb and awaited the coming of the sisters. Martha first and then Mare beard the W the sisters. Martha first and then Mary heard that He was there; and they went out to meet Him. The mourners followed, not knowing where mourners followed, not knowing where they were going. In a few minutes a large company of Jews assembled at the place of the dead, with Jesus in their midst. He wept in sympathy with the weeping ones; for He "lov-ed Martha and her sister and Lazar-us." He spoke words of comfort and then, "groaning in Himself," He eame to the grave, and ordered the stone to be taken away. In the midst of per-sonal danger overwhelmed with the tide of sorrow, face to face with earth's groatest secret, announcing His mis-sion to perishing humanity, and about son to perishing humanity, and about to assert the power of life centreing in Himself, He did not forget the bystandrimsen, He did not forget the bystand-ers. "And Jesus lifted up His eyes and said, Father, I thank Thee that Thou hearest Me always; but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that Thou has sent me."

has sent me." Many to-day in their zeal to be abreast of the most advanced think-ers say that miracles do not prove the source of Christianity. It is interest-ing to see what Jesus thought, what use He made of the raising of Lazarus. He was not satisfied to let the act speak for itself. Being the author of the "sign," He felt He had a right to interpret its deeper meaning, for those that had ears to hear. 'Because of the multitude that stand around I said it, that they may believe that Thou didet send Me." said it, that they may believe that Thou didst send Me."

Jesus' treatment of the bystanders is an expression of how God treats you and me, how He treats the human race, which stands around His works and ways. 'It is not God's will that anyone should perish, but that all should come to Him and live.'' He makes His presence felt by evry hu-man being. Wherever the missionar-ies have gone in all the world even makes His presence felt by every hu-man being. Wherever the missionar-ies have gone in all the world, even among the most degraded savages, they have found men groping after God, as-sured that He is not far from any one of us. This is the universal source of religion. It is the capacity for God in man responding to God's attitude towards the bystanders. As Jesus laid His hand in blessing upon the head of little children, as He took the hand of the dead and restored them to Hfe; so He now by His Spirit pours forth the life-giving efficacy of His love into the hearts of the bystanders, at the polnt of contact. Not even the worst prodigal can say that God does not care for him. The Father thinks of him, as he stands outside the realm of good; and he yearns after him.

When a man comes to himself he realizes the Heavenly Father's love; and he says within his heart: "I will arise and go to the Father."

As God reaches out to t standers, He used your har mine, by which to touch them. the hand and hem. If we mine, by which to touch them. If we are to have the spirit of Christ to-wards the bysiander, and if we have not the spirit of Christ we are none of His; then we must see eye to eye with Him. We must see eye to eye with Him. We must be able to see beneath the exterior of man, which may repel us; and ponder the greatness of the human soul and the possibilities of life even in this world. Then we will continually reach out beyond our-selves, to be the hand of God to others, "for the sake of the multitude that stand around that they may kelling" "for the sake of the multitude that stand around, that they may believe in Jesus Christ.

It is much to be true and helpful to our own family, and to those that are friendly with us; but even pagans will do as much. It is characteristic of Christ and His followers to have regard for the outsider, the bystander, the one that sees us at a distance. It is Christikke to try to help those in our own "set" and in our own church; but the spirit of Christ in us enables us to see the eternal possibilities for us in the bystander. It is better to win one soul from selfishness and an-imalism and sin than to gain possession win one soul from selfishness and an-imalism and sin than to gain possession of millions of dollars of bank stock and railways and gold mines. In our cagerness to gain treasures we often make woful miscalculations, so that we look right over the heads of our bystanders. The priest and the Levite avoided the bystander; but the good Samaritan saw his opportunity and made the most of it. That Samaritan is to-day the richest of the three.

Livingstone had regard for the sider, when he went to Africa. While there he saw a poor, diseased, repui-sive woman by the roadside. His comsive woman by the roadside. His com-pranions wondered how he could touch her and why he wished to help her; but he saw a fragment of God's work and a soul with a capacity for God's spirit. Here was one for whom Christ would have had pity, and for whom He died. Even the natives appreciated his faith in humanity; and when he died two of them lovingly bore his embalmed body hundreds of miles to the coast and went with it to Westmin-ster Abbey. Livingstone had the ster Abbey. Livingstone had the Spirit of Christ, such as Christians ster have everywhere.

Jesus had faith in the bystanders, even though they were Pharisees, who hated him. For their sakes He lived openly His faith in the Father Alopenly His failth in the Father Al-nighty. As Christians we all site to lead others to Christ, as Andrew brought his brother Simon. We should to lead others to Christ, as Ahdrew brought his brother Simon. We should always keep the bystander in mind, and have faith in-his capacity for good, and for God. The pessimist, the cynic, the defamer, soes only the outward mistakes and sins. He is tempted to rail against the worst in the bystander, and thus drive him away in bitterness of soul. We should show the spirit of Christ in treating the worst of men as if they were all that they might be. We then try to win them by living the winsomeness of Jesus. Our faith and our sympathy win their confidence and their love, thus opening their heart to the love of God in Jesus Christ. This is the only way to the higher life in man, to enew the image of God in Lies soul. only way to the higher life in man, to renew the image of God in his soul. Our sacrifice of self for them enables them to understand and believe in the love and sacrifice of Christ for them. They are constrained to love Him when they are convinced that He loves them first.

them first. When we live for the bystander, we not only help him, giving him a vision of life and a greater power to realize it; but it is the greatest possible ad-vantage to ourselves. The only one that truly lives is the one that lives for others. To live for self only is to be dead while we live. The vir-tues and the graces divine wither and deif.seeking, as the flowers perish around the western lake of alkali. The rich man did not abuse the beggar

Lazarus, who sat at his gate. He even allowed his dogs to minister to him and his servants to give him crumbs from hir table. He simply ignored his presence, like many to-heip. At the end of his mortal life the rich man found that he had noth-ing but mortal things, and these must perish on earth while he wen; into the great beyond, the great unknown. The cultured of Greece neglected the by-stander; and its glory went/out hnto darkness. The powerful of Rom ig-hored the rights of the weat'; by-tander; and its world-wide c.npire was swamped in a sea of corruption. The salvation of our own great eltes must be found in our regard for the good of the bystanders, who are coming in like a flood from every nation un-der the sun. der the sun.

Our fortune is increased by the good of the bystander, whom we help. The church must "make good" and must increase by the winning of the by-stander. To injure those that stand stander. To injure those that y are by is to injure ourselves. Many are tempted to make large gains by tramp-ling upon the rights of others, by sharp voung doctor confessed ling upon the rights of others, by sharp practice. A young doctor confessed that he might easily have won a high position and wealth if he had been willing to depart just a little from the Golden Rule; but he said he could not do it: for he must take account of con-science; for conscience outraged will reckon with us, and it will have a long time to unbraid us for short-sighted folly and inconsiderate selfshnenss. He lives best who lives most like Jesus; and He was true to God publicly, "be-cause of the multitude that stood around, that they might believe."

A young man went out to Africa as a missionary. In one year he lay dying. Sad? A misfortune? No. And he realized that it was best to have regard for the bystander even if have regard for the bystander even if we die in helping him. He spoke to his friend at his side. "Yes. You will go to Manchester, to my old Sunday school; and you will tell the girl I was going to make my wife that my last words were, Let a thousand die, but never give up Africa." It was worth while living in Africa even for one year, when he lived for the great mul-titude that stood around the lone dis-ciples of Jesus. James Russell Lowell have expressed this truth in writing of ciples of Jesus. James Russell Lowell has expressed this truth in writing of the United States of America after the slaves were emandpated.

"For it was felt from pole to pole,

Without a need of proclamation;

Earth's biggest country's got her soul

And risen up earth's greatest nation." . . .

Shortly before he died, Shelley had a dream. In it his disembodied spirit seemed to come to him and ask him, "Art thou satisfied?" A great truth we all believe, but which we are so prone to forget is that we are hasten-ing to the world of spirits, and the spirit life is the essential life. If we think only of the life of the mortal body then we are tempted to forget the bystander, and live only for self. Its pleasures and its gains will be our life; and all will be burled in the grave with the body corruptible. It is not wonderful that to the selfish worlding Its pieasures and its gains will be our life; and all will be buried in the grave with the body corruptible. It is not wonderful that to the selfish worlding death is full of terrors. But if we forget our own pleasure and worldly gains in striving to help the bystand-er, we lose the lower life to gain the higher life. We sow a kindly act and reap a worthy habit. We sow this habit and reap a Christianlike character. Blessed indeed are those that continually feel the presence of the spirit world, the presence of the spirit of God. Who is the Father of our spirit; for then it is neasy, then it is joyous, then it is the passion of life houses or brethren, or sisters, or fath-er, or mother, or children, or lands, for MN Name's sake shall receive a hundredfold and shall inherit eternal life." #### THREE MIRACLES AND THEIR MEANING.

By Professor James Stalker, D.D.

By Professor James Stalker, D.D. After giving the Sermon on the Mount as a specimen of the teaching of Jesus, the Evangelist proceeds to narrate a number of miracles as speci-mens of his healing activity, in ful-filment of the programme laid down in the last three verses of the fourth chapter. These are of great varlety, as we perceive from the three of which to-day's lesson consist; for, while the first illustrates his fidelity to the Mo-saic Law, as taught in the fifth chap-ter at the seventeenth verse, the sec-ond, on the contrary, supplies a wide ter at the seventeenth verse, the sec-ond, on the contrary, supplies a wide outlook on his relations to other peo-ples besides Israel, and the third re-calls attention from this distant sur-vey to the domesticity of a scene in the house of a disciple.

the house of a disciple. The Cure of a Leper.—This may have been the first case af leprosy dealt with by Jesus; yet the victim did not doubt his ability to make him clean, but his willingness. It is always more difficult to be persuaded of the love than of the power of the Saviour; we believe in general in his power to save believe in general in his power to save all, but we are afraid to apply the principle to our own case. If Jesus had not before this cured other lepers, it would not have been surprising if this sufferer had even doubted his abilthis sufferer had even doubted his abil-ity; for leprosy was and is—for unhap-pily it still exists in all the four conity; for leprosy was and is-for unhap-ply it still exists in all the four con-tinents-a very desperate disease, with which medical skill can do little to cope. In the minds of the ancients it was closely associated with sin. of which it was supposed to be a retribu-tion; and we must still recognize, in its horrible symptoms and progress, a vivid image of sin. If it is not conta-glous-a point about which there seems to be difference of opinion-then ain is in this respect far worse than it; for sin is contagious-in the highest de-gree. But, the more it is an image of sin, the more is the cure of it by Jesus a prophecy of his power to cleanse from sin also. The laying of the hand of Jesus on one whom all others were afraid to touch was an act of rare consideration; but id it not involve him who did it in ceremonial unclean-ness? No, because the impurity fied before his touch, and the body he touched was already clean. The mo-tive for restraining the cured man's testimony may have been lest the au-thorities should refuse to attest the cure if they knew how it had been wrought; but there are other cases also which prove that, while the Sa-viour demands witness bearing from wrought; but there are other cases also which prove that, while the Sa-viour demands witness bearing from all, he sometimes, for wise reasons, limits it or gives it a particular direc-tion

The Cure of the Centurion's Servant. The Cure of the Centurion's Servant. -Or was it his son? The word may signify either servant or son; and some prefer the one and some the other signification. If it was his ser-vant, our respect for the centurion is enhanced; for it is much rarer to dis-play such anxiety and take such pains for a servant than for a son; and he may teach Christians a lesson about then, stationed at Capernaum, prob-abut laid hold of, as we learn from the ampler and more picturesque narrative of the third Evangelist, by the religion of the Jews, and now by the ministry of Christ. There are in the New Tes-tament four centurions menioned, and of Christ. There are in the New Tes-tament four centurions mentioned, and they are all remarkable, being both fine specimens of the natural man, and responsive to the appeal of the High-est when it came to them. I once asked a soldier why it was that, when soldiers are Christians at all, they are such splendid ones; and he said it was because in the army you are not al-lowed to be a haif-and-haif Christian:

the thing is laughed out of you unless you are out-and-out. Perhaps the an-swer given to this centurion, in verse 7. ought to be a question—"A. I to come and heal him?" This is, "I, a Jew, into the house of a Gentile?" If so, it was Jesus who tempted this man's faith, as on other occasions he did that of others, to a loftier flight. And it responded, not only rising to the belief that the Healer could cure at a distance, but putting this belief into a telling and gracious form by borrowing an image from his own pro-fession: as he was a man under aufession: as he was a man under au-thority to those above him, yet at the same time with authority over those thority to those above him, yet at the same time with authority over those beneath him, so, he acknowledged, Christ was acting under God's author-ity, yet with authority over the powers, or perhaps the angels, of good and evil, who would go and come at his bidding. With this answer Jesus was delighted, as he always was with any manifestation of faith, or with the wit and wisdom generated by faith. Never, and wisdom generated by faith. Never, he exclaimed, had he met with such faith in Israel as had been shown by he exclaimed, had he met with such faith in Israel as had been shown by this heathen. And then there rose be-fore his mind's eye a vision of hea-thens streaming from the East and the West into the kingdom, to sit down in the brilliant banquet-hall, while the natural guests were, through their own fault, thrust forth into the darkness outside. As gracefully as the centuri-on had acknowledged his power to cure, so did Jesus now give him what he had asked, as the reward of faith. The Cure of Peter's Wife's Mother, —When the Saviour has attracted any-one to himself, he binds him not by one tie, but a hundred. He was thus casting the bands of a man over Peter when he made a pulpit of his boat and when he caused his nets to enclose a mighty draught of fishes. And now he mighty draught of fishes. And now he similarly casts cords of love round him through his domestic affections. He through his domestic anections. He must have won the love of many in the same way-of those, for example, who, that evening when the Sabbath was past, brought their distressed distress was past, brought their distressed relatives round the house where he was being entertained, and experienced from him such sympathy and tender-ness as recalled the words in the fity-third of Isaiah.-Sunday School Times. Aberdeen, Scotland.

A PRAYER.

O Lord, help us by that Spirit of grace and supplication that our pray-or may be in the Spirit and our de-O Lord, neip us by that Spirit of grace and supplication that our pray-er may be in the Spirit and our de-sires inhreathed by Thyself, and so be sure to be answered. We would not bring Thee our own foolish wishes. We would pray much rather for that chief-est good, that our wills n-ay be brought into perfect conformity with Thy will, so that whatsoever Thou dost command we may delight to do it, and what-soever Thou dost appoint we may be patient and cheerful to bear. We have often enough striven against Thy pro-vidences and Thy higher purposes and commandments, and we have found that it has been vain for us to kick against the pricks, and that we have only wounded ourselves thereby. We ave found the ourselves thereby. We ave found that more action to a the wear on yoft submission, that we may desire nothing of which we are not sure that Thou desirest it too. Amen.

If you were going to run a race you would first put down all the parcels you might have been carrying. And if you had a heavy little parcel in your pocket, you would take that out and lay it down, too, because it would hinder you in running. You would know better than to say, "I will put down the parcels which I have in my hands, but nobody can see the one in my pocket, so that one won't matter!" You would "lay aside every weight."-

THE SECRET OF POWER.

The Secher or rowen. The Christian who negleots his Bible to feed on dreams and visions musi expect to lament, "Oh, my leannessi" But he who shows himsoff in sym-pathetic accord with the Master's Sachtigt them by Thy Word," becomes partaker of the Divine nature and grows more and more unto the stature of the fullness of Christ. The Holy Ghost is called the Spirit of Pow-er. His influence is the great moral stature of the fullness of Christ. The Holy Ghost is called the Spirit of Pow-er. His influence is the great moral dynamic. The Lord said to His dis-ciples on His departure, "Tarry ye at Jorusalem until ye be endued with power." They walted ten days, with one accord, in prayer, until it came. It came from heaven with a sound as of a rushing, mighty wind, and there ap-peared unto them cloven tongues, like as fire, and they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, Acts ii: 2-4. This was their qualification for the work of the kingdom. It seems to me we have only slightly apprehended as yet the of the tongues of fire. The kingdom is to come through the propagation of truth, and this will never be accomp-lished until the Gospel of fame. The time will come when men chall speak the Gospel of fame. The time will come when men shall speak the Gospel, "The Spirit gives them uterance," In like manner: when the eloquence of truth shall be heard to the burning point; when they shall utter, as Milton said, "thoughts that breathe in words that burn."

LOVING WITH OUR MINDS.

Let the churches everywhere cease praying for a "coming revival" and devote themselves to the daily care of souls, to the ceaseless inculcation of truth and righteousness and to the constant rebuke of social wrongs and vices, and they will speedily be con-scious of a present revival, which will increase in wholesome intensity in pro-portion as their faithfulness endures.— George C. Lorimer.

THE GLORY OF GOD.

THE GLORY OF GOD. The shekinah did not always dweli in the temple. Only rarely did that light appear that s owed the presence of God In his sanct.ary. But long be-fore the glory of God filed the taber-nacie, Moses had seen it in the burn-ing bush; and long after it had ceased to appear in the temple, it descended upon the apostes. It shone out upon Paul as he journeyed to Damascus, and it shone into his heart to give him the knowledge of the glory of God. The shekinah has never left the earth. It was a bold prayer that Moses pray-ed when he sald. "Oh Lord, I besech have a right to pray it, for Christ hal see God. The soul that is cleansed for pride, from selfishness, from all alliance with evil is permitted to pass the wheel for darkness into the light. There is an ark over which the glory

In which God dwells. There is an ark over which the glory always dwells. It contains God's cov-enant, written by the finger of God. He that receives it is not merely pas-sive. He must obey the voice that calls him to the holy mount. The way is rugged, but he must not turn back. The path leads through thick clouds and darkness, but he must press on. The finger of God writes word after word, engraving upon the very heart. But every word must be received, and strict and ready obelience must make it a part of the life. Then God writes the last word, the perfection of the law, the sum of the gospel, the seal of the covenant-LOVE. Eternity is too short to learn it perfectly. "God only the overant-LOVE. Eternity is too short to learn it perfectly. "God only knows the love of God." In its fullness it is the light that no man can ap-proach unto, the glory that even the saints cannot look upon. God leads his children gently into that light.

salits cannot look upon. God leads his children gently into that light. It is the soul that sees. If there is no light within, it is in vain that all without is radiant with God's light. The heavens still declare the glory of God. Every star shines with a light that is as truly divine as that which shone between the cherubin above the mercy seat. Every night surrounds us with the darkness in which God dwells as truly as he dwelt in the thick cloud that rested upon Sinal. Every sorrow and every joy of life comes with some word of God's covenant if wa would only accept and learn and head the writing. But it is in vain that God lets down about us the cur-tans of His sanctuary if we prefer the tents of wickedness; and it is in vain that the sun rises, bringing to the world about us the glory of God, if the Sun of Righteousness has not first risen in our hearts. The kingdom of God must be planted within before we can be in touch with the great king-dom that fils earth and heaven.

dom that fills earth and heaven. God's light may reveal strange things, but its greatest blessing is the power it gives to see the common things as they are. Prophets have heard voices that others cannot hear. Paul heard a voice speaking distinctly when his companions only saw a light. But the voice of God speaks usually within. It is a response from the or-acle that God has established in the heart. It tells of little things, of small duties, of the day's journey. The story of the pillar of cloud and of fire is the strangest of all Bible stories. Did God send the angel of the covenant to manstrangest of all Bible stories. Did God send the angel of the covenant to man-ifest himself in such a visible form, and all to guide a few wandering tribes in their journey to a suitable tamping ground and to keep watch over them in their nightly encamp-ments? Why not? It is for just such a journey that we need God's guid-ance. It is enough for us that prophets and apostles have seen the distant goal. We need the divine light, but only to show us the way through the little lives we must lead.—Christian Advocate (Nashville).

The Christian most particular about the way to heaven is usually the one who hasn't started.

The Christian who refuses to make a profession of his faith is like a man who has the ability to speak and yet prefers to remain dumb.

you And the blurring mists are thick, Think of the Elder Brother Who has borne a heavier ioad, And faint not under your burdens; He walked the self-same road.

This is the message spoken By the Man of Galilee; "Ye that are heavy-laden And burdened come unto Me, For I Who am Son of My Father, Of His fulness all possessed, I, Who am able to save you, Lo, I will give you rest."

Oh, brothers and sisters, weary And perplexed at what to do, With one day just like another, Till the last long day is through; Lift up your eyes to the Master, And step with firmer tread; He brought you life immortal, And He wrought for His daily bread.

CHRIST, THE GIVER OF TRUE LIBERTY.

LIBERTY, It is written in the Holy Scriptures, "Righteousness exaiteth a nation"; and our Lord Jesus Christ declares, "If ye continue in my word, then are yo my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you free." How much so ever men may deceive themselves, the words of the Savlour must still bear witness against all who do evil; "Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of Sin." The Lord Jesus Christ is man's Great Deliverer. He alone gives the true

The Lord Jesus Christ is man's Great Deliverer. He alone gives the true Preedom. He offered up His precious life upon the Cross as the ransom of our lost souls. He is the propitiation for our sins. He is our only Mediator; our Advocate with the Father; our High Priest over the House of God; who is alone able to save unto the ut-termost all that come unto God by Him, seeing He ever liveth to make intercession for us. These things are written concerning Him in the Holy Scriptures. Dear, reader, search these Scriptures for thyself, that thou mayst written concerning Scriptures. Dear, reader, search these Scriptures for thyself, that thou mayst know them to be so. The Holy Spirit of God bears witness in the same precious know in our hearts to the same precious in our hearts to the same precious Truth. He it is who convinces of sin; humbling the under the sense of thy transgression, in order that thou mayst transgression, in order that thou maysis feel the preciousness of thy Saviour's love. Listen to His admonitions. In yielding to true contrition, thy spirit-ual eye will be opened to look in hum-ble faith upon Him who was plerced for thee. Thou wilt know a change in thy desires and thy affections. A new heart will be given thee; in which the love of self and of sin shall give place to love to Christ. In accepting Him as thy Redeemer, and in obey-ing Him as thy Soversign Lord, thou Him as thy Redeemer, and in obey-ing Him as thy Sovereign Lord, thou wilt find His yoke to be easy, and His service rest to thy soul. Here, and here alone, is the true liberty to be found; a service which is perfect free-dom, not in meats or drinks, or the bondage of outward ordinances, but "righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."

Character is a better test of man-hood than is color.

CHRIST OUR GUIDE.*

(By Robert E. Speer.)

(By Robert E. Speer.) The purpose of Christ is to lead us but the will of God. He himself is the revelation of the will of God for human character. What he was is what God would like to be. He is our leader, therefore, in the sense that he is before us to show us our road. The more and the more closely we follow him the nearcy we come to being our The before us to show us our road. The more and the more closely we follow him, the nearer we come to being our own true selves, as God would have us be, as indeed God already sees us if we have Chelet for our action. If we have Christ for our guide. For following him we are behind him, and as God looks our way he sees our guide as God looks our way he sees our guide with his own behind him and hidden by him by him. Christ guides us in many ways. One way, and by no means the least, is by the spirit of thankful trust which he gives us toward God. He came to give us such a spirit, "In all things give thanks," says Paul, "for this is the us such a spirit. "In all things give thanks," says Paul, "for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus to you-ward," and this spirit of thankfulness is essential to guidance. Those who have it are in the way of being led. They are where God in Christ can guide them. "For," says one of the Psalms, "whose offerent the sacrifice of thanksgiving glorifieth me; and pre-pareth a way that I may manifest myself unto him." To see the guid-ance of our Guide requires eyes of thankful trust. ance of our ( thankful trust.

thankful trust. The guidance of Christ comes to us normally in natural and quiet ways, the same way in which God answers our prayers. Often we are confused here. As Tennyson wrote to his friend Hallam: "With respect to pray-er you ask how I am to distinguish the operations of God in me from mo-tions in my own heart. Why should the operations of God in me from mo-tions in my own heart. Why should you distinguish them or how do you know there is any distinction? Is God less God becaure he acts by gen-eral laws when he deals with the com-mon elements of nature?" It is so in guidance. The best of all guidance is guidance through our faculties, not guidance over them or in spite of them. guida them.

guidance over them or in spite of them. "Go and sav: the Lord hath need of him." Was that not a word of guid-ance? Yet it came to the owner of the ass in the most human and natural way. "The Master is come and call-eth for thee," So Martha said to Mary. And Marv arose and came. In the ordinary ways of Christ the wish of Christ is constantly being made known to us through others. When our hearts are attuned they know the voice when they hear it. Christ will never guide us in ways where be would not walk himself. There is a great enlightenment in this principle. We have the story of our Saviour's life in the Gospels, and his clear principles of action embodhed in his teaching, and we can judge pretty well under the moulding of his spirit whether he would do what we need not perplex ourselves over the question "What would Jesus do?" we shall find our minds guided by reflect-ing unon his principles of action as shall find our minds guided by reflect-ing upon his principles of action as to what he would have us do in our

to what he would have us do in our place and duty. But he will choose his own way of guidance. All that we need to do is to use all our own ways of finding our duty and then go forward in it rejole-ing in the blessed certainty of the act of which we sing:

"He leadeth me, O blessed thought, O words with Heavenly comfo 0

O words with Heaveniy confort fraught, Whate'er I do, where'er I be, Still 'tis God's hand that leadeth me."

OTTAWA, WEDNESDAY, MAR. 2, 1910

Hon. Clifford Sifton speaking at the Forestry convention at Fredericton, N.B., made a plea for the establishment of forest reserves on the slopes of the "~eky Mounta'ns.

Rev. S. B. Rohold, superintendent of our mission to the Jews in Toronto, during his visit to Ottawa in the interest of the work has had a strenuous time preaching and addressing various meetings. On Sunday he spoke in St. Andrew's in the morning, Bethany church in the afternoon, and in St. Paul's in the evening. He also addressed the Ottawa Presbytery, and a large gathering of ladies interested in Foreign Missions. It is safe to say that Ottawa Presbyterians know more about, and will take a deeper interest in, the very interesting work among the Jews, the progress of which is so well told by our Toronto correspondent in other columns of this paper, since seeing and hearing Mr. Rohold.

At the last provincial convention of the Ontario Horticultural society, Rev. A. H. Scott, M.A., of Perth, read an able paper on "The Work of Horticultural Societies Justifies an Increased Grant," which concluded as follows: "In so far as it has been my privilege to examine conditions in my own and other lands I have for a long time been under the spell of the conviction that all in all, we live, in the province of Ontario, in a signally blessed land. Both the frost and the sunshine are conducive to manhood. The flowers preach Divinity under our skies as charmingly as under skies in the farther East or the remoter West. The lover of the soil right here goes hand, in hand with nature in some of her most engaging processes. Here and now we are profiting from the furnishings both of sense and of science coming through many generations. We are yet without some things that have been a blight upon other peoples, and if we but keep sacred the thought of home and of lofty ideal we shall cherish refinement for ourselves, and point the way of true advancement to others.

A TOO COMMON COMPLAINT.

Mormur, murmur; grumble, grumble; complain, complain; that appears to be the occupation of some people. No one in their estimation is right; nothing is as it should be; the world is all out of joint and everything is going to the bad. If such persons would consider the matter carefully they would find that the trouble to a very great extent is in themselves. They have indulged in a fault-finding spirit so long that their dispositions have become soured, their views have become perverted, and instead of approving what is good, and in a gentle spirit trying to correct what is wrong, like a dog barking at the moon, they stand off and snarl, and growl, and make themselves and every one about them uncomfortable.

It is true, there are a great many bad things in the world that are calculated to make us sad, but, at the same time, there is much that is good, grand and beautiful, and well calculated to fill us with admiration, incite us to gratitude, and inspire us with hope. There is hope of the world. It shall yet be disenthralled and re-Instead of spending our deemed. time in complaining, murmuring and fretting at what is wrong, let us go to work, in the spirit of faith and love and endeavor to hasten the coming glory of the reign of righteousness.

BELIEVING AND LIVING.

The telling sneer of the man of the world is directed against the want of consistency on the part of Christfans. The question he asks is not so much. Who will show us any good?" 98 "Who is any better than we?" He demands that the professor of religion show a better life, and prove by the way of his living that he is moved by something different from mankind in general. Unless he assumes that his own life is what it ought to be, the flimsiness of his assumption and the inconsistency of his reasoning are easy to show. But, at the same time. are it is well that his question receive due consideration, his demand due recognition. It is well, we say; it is, indeed, essential to the efficient influence of our Christian profession, that we have constantly in mind the fact that have constantly in mind the fact that we are in every particular of our lives to be different from the world. The Christian's watchword should be. "Christin me;" his motto, "Whose I am and whom I serve." "We believe and therefore speak," said Paul. What did he believe, and what did he speak? How can Christ be shown as living m us, save as we live like Christ? If we are the Lord's, are we not bound to do only that which will please Him? How do we serve Him, save as we do what are the Lord's, are we not bound to do only that which will please Him? How do we serve Him, save as we do what He has commanded us? What is the object of our true faith, save what He has told us? What do we speak for Him but the truth He has taught us, and taught us? the has taught us, and taught us to feel in our hearts? And how do we speak? If any lang-uage so clear, or loud, or eloquent, as that of our daily endeavor to do what we call duties but should delight in as privileges? privileges?

Let our works be those of a heart given to God, of hands exercised because of a desire to honour God; and the gainsayer's questions, the unbeliver's sneers, will be silenced. To live as in view of the day of judgment. is knowing the fullment of God's promise of the light of His countenance, as trusting only to the blood of Christ, and yet as though, by our holy living alone, we were to win heaven. is to show our faith by our works, to "walk not after the flesh but after the Spirtt."

PRINCIPLE VS. POLICY.

There are two general and diametrically opposed laws in this world of ours whereby human conduct is governed. These two laws are principle, and what, for want of a better word, we term-policy. Some are governed by the one, some by the other. One class ask themselves the question. What is right? The other, Which course will it be to my interest to pursue? Every question of duty is settled by the one by an appeal to principle by the other, by a consideration of what the world may think and say. The one have faith in God and in right doing; the other leave God out and attempt to build character and shape destiny for themselves.

We believe that, in a very important sense, every man is the artificer of his own fortune. In another sense we believe he has nothing to do with it. We believe most thoroughly that duties are ours; and that consequences are God's. We are to whape our actions aright, and give ourselves no anxiety as to results. We are, simply, faithfully to perform every duty that comes to us in every station in life, and leave the matter of consequences just where it belongs-with God.

And right here is where many make the fatal mistake of their lives. They are continually spending their time and wasting their strength in vain attempts to solve the question. What will the world think or say if I pursue this or that course of conduct? It infests our churches and our pulpits betimes, greatly abridging the power of each.

It is true we are to have respect to the opinion of others. The fear of criticism is a good thing. It leads to the exercise of care in selecting our ground, and in mapping out our course of conduct. It has a tendency to check and restrain recklessness in life and in morals. But when we squarely face the question of right, we have nothing to do with the opinions of others. "Be sure you are right, then go ahead," is a grand motto for every man. "Stand by right, though the heavens fall," is the principle that should govern and control every Mfe. Right is eternal and immutable as God. It triumphs over wrong, and stands when all opposing powers shall fall.

For right is right, since God is God, And right shall win the day."

The world's history abounds in illustrations of the fact that the man who makes right his law succeeds in the end. For a time the seas may be rough and the heavens overcast with clouds; but, sooner or later, the waves and billows will be quieted, the clouds will all be swept from the sky, and the sun of prosperity will ascend the heavens. Stand ever firmly by right and consequences will take care of themselves. Let us interest ourselves simply and only in our part of the work; the Lord will take care of His own, according to His promise.

The death is announced at Pictou N.S., of Rev. George Roddlek, who over thirty years ago removed to Manif ba, being the first settler in the Brandon Hills district, where he resided for a quarter of a century. During the early years of his residence in the west, Mr. Roddlck was a Presbyterian missionary. He was 79 years of age.

"SEVEN SONS IN THE MINISTRY."

The Rev. John MacMillan, M.A., Convenor of the Temperance Committee of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Ireland recently delivered "An Appreciation" of the late Rev. Dr. Corkey, in the Second Presbyterian Church, Glendemott, which at the request of our esteemed contributor, Ulster Pat., we cheerfully reproduce in the Dominion Presbyterian. In part it is as follows :- "In this place he lived and grew in wisdom and in influence, consecrating his at-tainments and his energies to your service. In this parish he spent half a century putting his conscience and his strength into every work which came to his hand, never dreaming that a rural sphere did not give ample room and verge enough for the exercise of his powers, and never feeling a trace of jealousy towards others, with probably lower qualifications than he himself possessed, called to wider or more conspicuous fields.

His home was an ideal home both as regards its natural situation and its moral atmosphere, embosomed amid the trees which his own hands planted, commanding a view of a lovely valley bounded by the blue hills under a sky azure by day and by night fretted with golden fire, and hard by the river which he loved. In that home there was room for the family altar-indeed. the family altar was the first piece of furniture provided, and all other appointments were made to adjust themselves to its presence, and all life was arranged according to its requirements. There was time for singing the songs of Zion, for the reading of the Word, for supplication earnest, simple, personal, and for intercession comprehensive and world-wide. There was time at the tea-table for sane and salutary conversation on themes of the day, on events in the newspapers, on articles in magazines, religious and philanthropic, temperance and missionary. The law of God was written in the hearts of the children and on the door of the home, and the children in turn have adone something to write that law on the gate of college and university and hospital, on the minds of school chil-dren and electorates, and they are writing it on the minds if their generation

Sometimes it is said that the child-ren of public men, of ministers as well as others, fail to walk in their fathers' footsteps. Whatever truth there is in the saying may be accounted for by the fact that there are public men who do not make time to exert an adequate influence for good in their own homes. The wife of compute homes with homes. The wife of one such man pathetically addressed him on the occasion of his setting forth to fill the sixth evening appointment of the week—"I had hop-ed to be able to introduce the children to you to-night." As a result of the ed to be able to introduce the children to you to-night." As a result of the atmosphere of Dr. Corkey's home seven sons are in-the ministry to-day, and the eighth is on his way to the pulpit. One of his daughters has a position of responsibility in the Mis-sion Hospital at Asslout, another is passing through the university, and the remaining daughter, in her own way is doing as good work as any of way is doing as good work as any of them-for is it not written that "every them-for is it not written that every pot in Jerusalem shall be holiness to the Lord; and the pots in the Lord's house shall be holy as the bowls before the altar?" The consecrated housekeeper may be doing as good a as the consecrated priest. work in time of sorrow and in time of joy They knew the encouragements of the ministerial office, and they knew its trials and disappointments. They knew the res augustae domi of the average mane, and, the avenues of affluence beckoning young men of brains, and yet each of them resolved to live his father's life, and give himself to the direct service of Christ in the minis-try of his father's Church. And it is a matter of common knowledge that by their mental endowments and pow-or of application and energy some of er of application and energy some of them have gained the highest academ-ic distinctions, and all of them are al-ready fast moving into the front rank of the ministry. And here let me say that the father was nobly seconded and sustained by the godly and gifted mother, whose memory is as dear to the children as that of him whose de-parture here, we mount does mother, whose memory is as de the children as that of him whose parture hence you mourn to-day.

The Second Medical Missionary Con-ference was held at the Battle Creek (Mich.) Sanitarium on February 15, 16, 17. The meeting is reported to have been a decided success in every par-ticular. Considerably over one hun-dred missionaries were in attendance, the most of whom were medical mis-sionaries. These represented fifteen denominations, and nearly every coun-try on the globe. The meetings were presided over by Ressau, M. D., D.D., of Philadelphia, who has spent fifty years in Western Africa. He was assisted by Bishop J. M. This means the greatest phil-anthropy in the world. It means the highest education and culture. It means the promotion of all that is good. If the people of the world will yield their hearts and lives to Jesus Christ, there will come the destruc-tion of everything that hurts and destroys, and the inaugura-tion of everything that is good and true and beautiful.

THE LATE KING LEOPOLD II. OF BELGIUM

The performances at the funeral of the late King Leopold of Belgium, should have been powerful enough to send Satan into Glory. The following came through one of the news agencies :- "The imperial nave of the Cathedral was draped with long tapestries of black, bordered with white and forming a sombre background for the famous statues of the Apostles. The majestic catafague, surmounted by the crown and imbedded in a mass of glowing tapers rested in the centre of the transept. On either side were streamers of mourning suspended from the mammoth dome above. The massive main altar was ablaze with candles. In the body of the church were grouped foreign princes, diplomats, delegations, and Government officials. The cortege entered the transept portal headed by officials of the army and civic guard in full uniform, foland ever guara in tuit uniform, tog-fowed by the judges in their scarlet robes, the ministers, members of par-liament and many priests. The priests intonation of the de profundis filled the great edifice as the huge cross appear. ed followed by the rich robed Cardinal Mercier, the Archbishop of Melones, whose tall figure and ascetic face gave added solemnity to the occasion. Behind the velvet covered casket walk-ed Prince Albert, who wore the uni-form of a general.

"A solemn requiem mass was cele-brated by the Cardinal. The famous collegiate choir of Brussels rendered magnificently and without organ ac-companiment 'Dies Irac.' The mass was followed by the rites of absolution performed over the body by five bish-ops and the papal nuncio. But no greater proof of the absolute control exercised by the Vatican au-thorities over American prelates could be afforded than the attempt of Archbishop Ireland in the United States to whitewash Leopold's memory by publicly declaring that there never had been any atrocities in the Congo State. only a few days after the new King of the Beigians had accepted the resignation of every official connected resignation of every official connected with its administration. But all the world knows that for years Leopold had been living in concubinage with a divorced woman, the Baroness Vaughan, who bore him two children. #### WILLIAM AND MARY.

By David Lyall.

William and Robert were the twin children of Robert Greig, who kept the post-office and the grocery store in the village of Little Dumwhan. Robert was in a small way a col-lector of coins, and having in his possession a copper penny of the time of William and Mary, with the double heads thereon, had the happy inspiration to give the names to the twins. twins.

And, contrary to the way of the inconsolable widower, he never sought to put another in her place. her place

William and Mary, by reason of their colossal demands on his patience and devotion, converted Robert Greig from devotion, converted robert Greig from a moderately selfish and sightly dom-ineering man into a slave. He would have sconed the title, and sometimes raised the danders of the Dumwhan mothers and matrons by lading out advice to them regarding the rearing of inforts but there was no enineav. advice to them regarding the training of Infants, but there was no gain-say-ing the fact that William and Mary were master and mistr-ss of the situa-tion, and had their father in com-plete subjugation. It was a pretty sight to see the bare-foot, bareheaded pair running hand-in-hand together, their plandores fill-ed with flowers or anything else they could plek up, but always filled with something. William and Mary had not one, but many homes, for every door in Dumwhan was opened to them and they ran fearless over the most aus-tere threshold. And they grew up if not exactly bonnie, at least sweet and well favored and extraordinarily clever. Then their devotion to one another often brought a tear to an un-accustomed eye. They never quarrel-hed, party, it must be admitted, be-cause Mary was of the gentlest dis-position, and never presumed to con-tradiet her brother. tradict her brother.

Robert Greig prospercd, and it was his ambition to rebuild the old shop and give it an imposing front, and print in gold letters on a blue ground above it the magic legend, R. Greig and Son, General Merchants. Then above it and Son, General Merchants. Then young William would marry, and live above the shop, as his father and mother had done, while the old man and Mary would retire to a little house on the summit of the brae which Rob-ert had had in his mind's eve for a here the

and that had in his mind's eye to a long time. Many a fond parent has built such castles in the air, and very many of them have toppled to the ground. Long before the time for the renovations was ripe, William betrayed signs of restlessness, and of a roving disposition, as well as other faults, which coccasioned his now grey-headed father deep anxiety. To Mary, William confided all his secret dreams, and it is not ico much to say that but for her, he would have broken loose the did. But it confided all his secret dreams, and it is not ico much to say that but for her, he would have broken loose the traces long before he did. But it came at last. He tied his goods and chattels in the familiar red handker-chief one night, after a stiff tussle with his father over some small remission from the stern pathway of duty, as realized by the elder Greig, and shook the dust of Dumwhan from his feet for ever. When Rohert Greig came down ever. When Robert Greig came down to breakfast he found Mary red-eyed and rather tremulous, late with the meal for the first time in his recollection

There was something pathetic in the old man's acquiescence in his daugh-ter's verdict, but the days immediately ensuing were hard upon him, for in a small place tongues are not always kindly, but have a probing and sting ing quality sometimes hard to en ccunter. And being in "the public wey," as Dumwhan expressed it, Rob always public Robwey," as Dumwhan expressed it, Rob-ert Greig had to run the gauntlet, and it must be added that the matrons whom he had presumed to instruct in their particular domain were specially hard on him. They missed William in the quiet little home beyond all telling, and no-body knew how many secret tears were shed by Mary, who felt as if the half of her life had been town away. But she preserved her invincible faith in the future achievement and glory of her twin, and, unlike much of the faith which props the world, and keeps human hearts from despair, hers was justified. Nothing can ever ex-plain or justify, however, the silence of William, who left his father and his sister absolutely without news of, him for seven long years. When he did come back, he said he did not want to write until he had something worth while to tell them, which is a young man's mistaken idea of dignity and pride. pride.

In the sixth year after William had gone away, the South African wa broke out, and then Mary said quit quietly to her father one day: William

The war dragged its unspeakable length away: Magersfontein, Spion Kop, and the rest, with their ghastly records, made inglorious history, but in all the study of the lists, no such name as William Greig was found. Mary remained tranquil, however, and convinced. "The time hasna come, faither, but

"The time hasna come, faither, but

"The time hasna come, faither, but it is comin". Wait an' see." It was near the end of the war when the record was filumined by occasion-al spurts of heroism and individual ex-amples of splendid courage and re-source that William Greig of the ranks and nowhere else in particular, sud-denly leaped into giory. Before the war a weekly paper had been consid-ered sufficient for the needs of the lit-tle household, but afterwards the Scotsman was ordered dally, and eag-erly devoured. It was brought by the Scotsman was ordered dally, and eag-erly devoured. It was brought by the bus from the train, and one morning, so convinced was Mary that the day had come for news of William, that she left the shop and wandered over the brace to meet it. The busman gave her the paper without asking any questions, though he might have won-dered a good deal. She waited till the dered a good deal. She waited till the

Her face was a little pale, but her hand was perfectly steady. It did not even trem-ble when she came to these words: "The disaster of the day was avert-ed by the incredible courage, smart-ness, and resource of one of these humble units who are indispensable to the sum total of events, and who so of-ten redeem the situation. But for this man's gallant ec-tion, it is beyond all doubt that a whole regiment would have been wip-ed out. Fortunately, we know how to reward such conspicuous gallantry, and more will be heard of Sergeant William Greig." Mary very quictly wiped a tear from her eye, folded up the paper, and went home. That was a great day in Dum-whan, only eclipsed by a greater, when, covered with wounds and glory. William came home. He was not car-ing, as he bluntly said, for the bols-sured welcome of the village folks: all he wanted or needed was the abuve the shop, where he was forgiven and taken once more to their hearts. Once more, did I say? Nay, because he had never been ousted from their hearts. And when the neighbors saw Wilhearts.

LOOKING HAPPY

LUCKING HAPPY. "Don't worry about your clothes," wrote an older sister to a younger who was planning for a visit home after some years' interval; "you're sure to look happy, and that's the main thing." The reunion of old school and college friends which it he summer months bring, emphasize the fact, if the woman of slender purse has ever been tempted to doubt it, that looking pappy is the main thing. Watch the expressions and gestures in any such gathering, notice how the interest of a group centres in a bright-faced woman gathering, notice how the interest of a group centres in a bright-faced woman whose gown may be more than one season out of date, see how ilitle at-tention is attracted by the most cor-rect costume worn with an air of fm-difference or discontent, and you will be resinforced in your belief that it is the real things-not easy light-heart-edness merely, but steadfast courage and cheer and serenity-that count. Women sometimes greak of dressing to do their husbands credit, and no doubt sensitive souls do suffer from a mis-giving that thoughtless acquaintances may hifer niggardiness or incompet-ency from shabby clothes. Often on seeing a tempting morsel under the water they suddenly dive for it. They meet to raise their young on the rocks or sand at the mouths of rivers or bays. These beautiful, graceful birds do not venture far out from shore. Another bird is the stormy petrel, which lives far out on the ocean. A very small bird it is, the smallest of all web-footed birds. It is no larger than a swallow, but quite brave, fly-ing with ease over the rough waters, rising and sinking with the waves, as if in sympathy with them. They are sometimes called "Mother Carey's over the vessel from day to day. The largest bird that swins is the powerful albatross. Jamie very respectfully answered, "she gives me a clean handkerchief," whereupon he produced the prescribed "remedy."

The annual meeting of the Prescott church was from all points of view the most successful in the history of the church. The church was completely out of debt and was beginning the new year with a balance on hand. The use of the duplex envelope system of contributions had been most success-ful. It was moved that the brass tab-let recently purchased by the young ladies of the church, in memory of their beloved pastor, the late Rev. James Stuart, who served so faitful-ly and well in the Presbyterian church for 28 years and who departed this life about two years ago, should be placed on one side of the pulpil, and it was further moved that a somewhat simi-lar table be placed on the other side of the pulpit in memory of the late Dr. Boyd, who served the church for forty-two years. Messrs. Norton Miller and C. Macpherson were re-elected as the two new managers. Messrs. J. H. Mc-Donald and F. Lambie were appointed auditors for the ensuing year. The Rev. Dr. Robert Johnstone was in Halifax last week, where he lectured before the Alumnae of the Ladies College.

Rev. M. S. Oxley, M.A., of Montreal, gave his interesting Scotch lecture to an appreciative audience at Dunvegaen last week. The proceedings were enlivened by excellent music furnished by local pipers, violinists and Gaelle singers and concluded by a happy speech and vote of thanks to the lecturer by Mr. D. J. McPhee.

Graham was compelled to resign the pastorate of the MacVicar Memorial Church, and on the eve of his departure for the west the congregation presented him with a purse contain $370, while a deputation of the congregation proceeded to Mr. Graham's residence and presented Mirs-Graham, who was indisposed, with a beautiful bouquet of flowers. beautiful bouquet of flowers. Rev. Dr. Barclay, minister of St. Paul's, who some time ago tendered his resignation of the charge, has been strongly urged to reconsider the matter. In his reply he said: "It is not without deep pain that I now announce my adherence to the decision I intimated to the annual meeting of the congregation. I came to that decision after months of careful and anxious deliberation. The great kindness of the people constrained me to review it, but I am still fully persuaded that I am still fully persuaded that I am taking the right step at the right time. It is now expected that Dr. Barclay will take formal meaures to separate his connection with the congregation in October next.

his connection with the congregation in October next. The first social gathering of the united congregaton of the First Presbyterian Church was held in the lecture hall of the old Chaimers Church building last evening, and was very successful. The Rev. W. R. Cruikshank presided. The Rev. Dr. Campbell, former pastor of St. Gabriel Church, and the Rev. Malcolim Campbell, present pastor of the united congregation, were also present and spoke. Short addresses also were given by Mr. John Socit, of the church session; Mr. A. E. Taylor, chairman of the board of managers; and Messrs. Darling and Douglas, members of session. The speeches were interspersed with music, completing a very enjoyable programme. Refreshments were served by the ladles of the church at the close of the exercises.

Taylor Church was filled with a large congregation when the Rev. W. D. Reid preached his last sermon before departing for the west. This took the form of a review of the work accomplished in the church since he took up the pastorate, eleven years ago. At that time the church had a membership of 268 and during the eleven years, in which he had charge of it, 1. 791 people were received into the membership. The membership now stood at 1,262, the difference in the figures being accounted for by the fact that the congregation was a migratory one. A large number of the Presbyterian missions in the vicinity of Montreal were filled and manned by Taylor Church people. Eleven years ago there was $15,000 of a debt on the church, but that had all been wiped off, and many improvements taken plaz. During the eleven years, $10, 98 bad been raised in the church, as well as $15,522 for missionary and benevolent institutions. The number of baptisme was 673, murber of famlies visited last year, was $75. Mr. Reid said that during his ministry, his preaching had not been of a litenary type, but had been simple, evangelica and earnest. It was gurely positive; any things which he doubted had no enearcest. It was a purely positive; any things which he doubted had no eleavored to make clear the fact of His divinity and atonement. The farewell disprive was a spontaneous expression of the esteem and affection of the arge congregation for their late pastor. Among the gifts was a bacuilful suit case from the Sunday school children.

The congregations in Stratford Presbytery will be asked to consider a scheme for defraying the expenses of Presbytery meetings. Mrs. Alexander Eunting, of Montreal, offers one thousand dollars towards the erection of the new hall to be built for the Valleyfield congregation. The Presbyterians in Valleyfield possess a handsome church and a magnificent memorial organ. Next summer will witness the addition of a large hall with all conveniences necessary for carrying on the work of the church and school.

church and school. For a long time the Presbyterian Evangelical Institute at Pointe aux Trembles had felt the want of a properly equipped reading-room until Mr. William Anderson, a well-known and highly respected English resident of Pointe aux Trembles generously gave an order to a Montreal firm to furnish the room in his best style. The reading-room was recently opened to the pupils, and now contains two handsome slanting oak reading desks and twelve chairs of the same quality. The pupils greatly appreciate the interest and kindness which Mr. Andreson has always shown them, and of which the gift is but a further proof.

Last Sunday, Rev. C. H. Cooke, B.A., of Orillia, conducted the service in the Presbyterian churches at Washago, Ardtrea, and Hampshire Mills, and thereafter until the minister recently called is inducted or declines the call.

Exchanges of pulpits last week appear to have been frequent. Rev. W. R. McIntosh, Elora, exchanged with Rev. D. W. Snider of the Methodist: and in Ayr Rev. D. I. Ellisor exchanged with Rev. D. H. Taylor, of the Methodist church.

At Chalmers Church, London, Rev. Walter Moffat preached an illustrated sermon, entitled "The Rich Man and Lazarus," and pointed out that the rich man is a type of the man who is to all appearances perfectly respectable, but yet is extremely selfish, and uses his wealth only to satisfy his own selfish delights and neglects entirely to hear the needy.

The congregations of Hillside, Craighurst and Fergusonvale have extended an unanimous and very hearty call to Rev. Frank C. Harper, B.D. A salary of $1,000, manse and glebe, and a month's holidays are offered. Mr. Harper has been preaching in this field for several Sundays with great acceptance. The matter will be dealt with at the regular meeting of the Barrie Presbytery on March 24.

Presbytery on March 24. Rev. Dr. Ross, of St. Andrew's Church, London, was heard with much acceptance in Knox Church, Gait, when preaching there for Rev. R. E. Knowles, who was conducting anniversary services in the Forest City. While in London, besides preaching twice on Sunday school gathering in the afternoon, and then on Monday evening deilivered an interesting lecture on 'Rambles Through Europe,'' giving his large audience vivid and informing impressions of affairs as he found them in the different countries visited. Mr. Knowlee before closing, ståted that he wished it understood that it was not really his lecture the audience had heard. The materials gathered for it and then inspiration therefore were due entirely to a travelling companion-a relative by marriage-who made this her peculiar care.

The Presbytery of Qu'Appelle is corresponding with the Assembly's committee with a view to arranging a simultaneous evangelistic campaign in that presbytery at a sultable date next winter.

On the invitation of Qu'Appelle Presbytery, Mr. Kovacsi's services as minister at Bekovar were discont'hued, and it was unanimously agreed that he be not recommended for work in any field in the future.

Qu'Appelle Presbytery appointed Messrs. Henderson, Leishman, Oliver and McKenzie, Ministers, and Messrs. Judge Farrel, J. A. Hill, McLean and G. P. Campbell commissioners to the General Assembly.

Can Be Had Through the Rich, Red Blood Made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

There comes a time in the life of almost every girl when sickness at-tacks her. The strain upon her blood supply is too great, and there comes headaches and backaches, loss of appetite, attacks of dizziness and heart palpitation, and a general ten-dency to a decline. The only thing that can promptly and speedily cure these troubles is Dr. Williams' Plnk Pills. This is the only medicine that actually makes new, rich, red blood is the one thing needed to maintain the health of growing girls and women of mature years. The truth of this statement is proved in the case of Miss Esther E. Sproule, Truemanville, N.S., who says, "At the age of sixteen years 1 left my country home to attend high school. The close confinement and long hours of study nearly broke me down. My blood supply seemed to be deficient and I grew pale and depressed. I was dizzy nearly all the time, and pim-ples broke out on my face. I was altogether in a miserable condition, and it seemed impossible for me to continue my studies unless I found a speedy cure. I tried several tonics prescribed by the doctor, but they proved useless. My mother urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pilik, and I finally consented to do so. I had hardly finished the second box before a change for the better took place, and the use of a few boxes more fully restored my health, and I have since been well and strong.' Rivers, who was writing an article on the cost of living, found himself temporarily at a loss. "Brooks," he said, "I want to use that scriptural phrase, "from Dan to -to'-what's the rest of it?" "Beelzebub?" suggested Brooks. "Thanks." said Rivers, resuming his writing. "I had it at my tongue's end, but I couldn't quite think of it.

sabbath School Teacher-Now, Dan-ny, what do you understand by "right-eous indignation?" Danny-Gettin' mad without sayin' any cuss words.

The misprinting of a single letter oc casionally lands a newspaper into an alarming statement. Witness the ac-count of a public meeting addressed by Disraeli, when, according to a London journal, "the crowd rent the air with their snouts."

"Isn't your hat rather curious in shape?" asked the uniformed man. "Certainly," answered the wife. "It has to be. Any hat that wasn't curi-ous in shape would look queer."

"We can't eat this steak; it's not good!" complained a young man who was spending his honeymoon in a Scottish village.

"Ye're surely jokin', sir," said the landlord of the inn. "It maun indeed be guid. It's a bit o' the minister's auid coo!"

"Seventy-five dollars cash-not a cent less!" thundered the farmer. "Seventy-five dollars?" repeated the automobilist. "Do you think it was a cow I ran over?" "'No, it wasn't a cow," said the far-mer firmly; "it was a hen, and a layin' hen at that." I ran over?

The Minister-Mackintosh, why don't you come to church now? Mackintosh -For three reasons, sir. Firstly, I dinna like yer theology; secondly, I dinna like yer singir, and, thirdly, it was in your kirk I first met my wife.

A WINTER SONG

All snug and warm, Safe from the storm, The kine in sheltered stalls are lowing;

And here we find Their keeper kind, A wealth of care and feed bestowing.

- No angry word Nor shout is heard; His kick or cuff is here a stranger.
- Their knee-deep beds Of straw he spreads; measure fills each trough and Fair manger.

- He pets them all, From stall to stall; And while he sings and whistles gayly, With stool and pails, He never fails To reap a goodly harvest daily.

Though snow and sleet May swirl and beat, While whirty winds are rudely blowing, Warmth, care and feed Meet every need, And fill the pail to overflowing.

ARNPRIOR DRUGGIST ENDORSES D. D. D.

Canadian druggists are becoming en-thusiastic about D.D.D. as they find it really cures their customers of ecze-ma and other torturing skin diseases.

This is what Druggist Chambers, of Arnprior, Ont., wrote us on Nov. 10, last:

"I have handled D.D.D. ever since you commenced advertising in Canada, as I know it to be good, having sold it for several years in Belt, Montana, where I found it gave superior satis-faction."

(Signed) J. CHAMBERS.

For years doctors tried to cure ecze-ma through the blood. As it is caused by germs in the skin itself, they were naturally not very successful.

Then came D.D.D. Prescription —a mild, soothing, yet penetrating com-pound of oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., that kills the germs in the inner skin, relieves the awful itch, and curse the inner and cures.

For free trial bottle of D.D.D. Pres-cription write to the D.D.D. Labora-tories, Department O.D., 23 Jordan St., Toronto.

For sale by all druggists.
