RUSSIANS SCORED VICTORY

Battle of Niemen River Proved a Heavy Affair.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Oct. 3.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Post, speaking of the operations on the Niemen in Russian Poland, says: "Later intelligence shows that the operations on the Niemen were on a greater scale than was supposed and the losses were more severe..."

Unveiling of grand monument on Phillips Square, Montreal, erected by public subscription in loving memory of King Edward VII., the Peacemaker, by his royal brother, the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada. This monument cost $40,000.

"The Germans continue to retire under the sustained pressure of the Russian attack. Their front presents a broken appearance with its salient angle towards the Russians and offering two faces for flank attacks which are greatly facilitated by the quality of the ground and the lay of the roads."

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, sends a despatch containing a description taken from a newspaper of the operations when General Rennenkampf retired from East Prussia in order to envelop his left. The account says: "The Germans made obstinate efforts to gain possession of the village of Birkenfeld, where the Russians had strongly entrenched themselves, and thus make a breach in the center of the Russian army."

"The scene was indescribably terrible as the Russian guns literally mowed down whole regiments and all German attacks were repulsed. In the next village of Darkehmen, the fight assumed a form which it is difficult for the imagination to grasp. Here the Russians had not merely to deal with the German troops, but the entire German population of the village, even the women and children shot from windows, roofs, barns and cellars. The inhabitants had been armed with rifles and mausers, pistols, and the Russian troops in this place were compelled to defend themselves on two fronts."

REPULSE IS GIVEN

Official Announcement is Made in Paris To-day.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] PARIS (Oct. 3.—The official announcement issued this afternoon declares that the violent attack of the Germans at Doye has been repulsed by the allies.

PANIC IN VIENNA VENICE, Oct. 3.—Latest rumors from Vienna show that the population is seriously alarmed over the possibility of a Russian invasion. Official notices in all the papers have announced the closing of many of the favorite Sunday excursions from Vienna into the surrounding forest because the highest points are fortified.

Violent Attack Was Made but French and British Hold Fast—Cheerful View of Situation is Taken in Paris.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] PARIS, Oct. 3.—After having tried in vain recently, in the north of France, to break at Tracy-Le-Mont and then at Roye, the strong line of the allies, the Germans have renewed their fierce attacks between the latter city and the region of Arras. Their latest efforts in which they have been hurling their forces against the French and English trying to gain a decisive victory, have had no better results.

The French, in an official statement, frankly admits a slight falling back at the left of one of their detachments. On the other hand, the allies have not only successfully opposed the terrific onslaughts of the enemy at other points, but have made gains as well. The allies continue to pour in their troops at points where they are needed to replace those worn out by fighting, or in falling gaps in the ranks. It is assumed that Great Britain's native troops, whose arrival at Marseilles last week has only been announced, are either at the front or in its vicinity. They have greatly strengthened the French line, which, it is roughly estimated, now numbers 750,000 men.

Lieut.-Col. Rousset, military critic of the Petit Parisien, in reviewing the situation, says: "It is now on our left that the battle takes on the most imposing proportions. When one considers that after hardly a month of fighting the enemy was nearly at the gates of Paris, it can be seen instantly how much territory we have gained on the Germans who counted on crushing us."

The enemy hopes to break our offensive. It is making every effort on our two wings, and at the same time guarding on the rest of the front in an expectant attitude. This is the old tactics of flanking, which reappears, unfortunately, for it has a merit of secrecy that that of surprise. We know it too well now to have it still imposed on us. The troops in the trenches are suffering severely in the chilly nights, and consequently a number of British supply officers have visited Paris and have purchased all of the available supply of warm clothing, furs and sweaters. Each man in the field has been supplied with a blanket, a waterproof sheet and an overcoat, but the districts where the fighting is proceeding are subjected to thick mists, making long sojourn in the open air unendurable.

ANTWERP FIGHT

German Heavy Artillery Fire Proved Ineffective Against Forts.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Describing the fighting of Friday in the environs of Antwerp, The Times says: "During the early hours of Friday there was a heavy bombardment of the whole line of the Antwerp defences. It was especially severe at the fort of Wavre-St. Catherine. Toward the midday the firing of the Germans became desultory and perfunctory. The Belgian artillery continued active, but the German reply was intermittent and chiefly directed on the bridge in the village of Waelhem. During the morning the Germans penetrated to the fort of Wavre-St. Catherine, but were driven back. A despatch from Antwerp to the Reuter Telegram Company tells of the fighting around Antwerp. It says:

BUILDING SUBMARINES

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The German dockyards are working with feverish energy, says a Copenhagen despatch to the Daily Mail. Fifty submarines are being built, it is reported, the submarine successes having made the German public clamorous for more ships of this kind. The lack of petrol and rubber are seriously affecting the German transport in the field, according to the despatch, as all secret petrol depots established before the war are exhausted.

AERO MADE RAID

TOKIO, Oct. 3.—A German aeroplane from Tsing-Tau has made two attempts to attack Japanese warships; neither was successful. Japanese aeroplanes went in pursuit of the German air craft and were subjected to bomb fire. A captive balloon which has been seen above Tsing-Tau has been hauled down. It is believed to have been damaged, but to what extent is not known. Louis Rose, 937 Logan avenue, Toronto, drank carbolic acid and died.

THEY HAVE TRIED TO BREAK THROUGH BUT ALL IN VAIN

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Oct. 3.—Commenting on the status of the battle in northern France, the correspondent of The Times at Paris says: "The violence of the battle seems to be concentrated for the moment on the left wing, which has penetrated itself to a point within thirty or forty miles of the Belgian border, south of Arras. Through this line the Germans have attempted to break with the object of isolating the forces of the allies in the north."

The campaign in this region have been extremely violent, but the allies hold the enemy well in spite of partial successes by the Germans. "All along the front of this immense battle line—to the right, the left and the center—the enemy has tried to break through, but in vain. Nowhere have the French yielded. On the contrary, they have steadily and methodically progressed, especially on the wing. No progress has been made also in the Argonne region."

PRUSSIAN GUARDS WERE ANNIHILATED IN A HEROIC STAND

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Oct. 3.—Details are just available of the heroic engagement of Prussian Guards at Suppes (in the French department of Marne), a fortnight ago, says the Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail. "It arose out of the German attempt to cut the railway connecting Rheims and Verdun. This attempt failed as the Germans were in danger of being caught between the French infantry and cavalry. It was at this moment, while the greater part of the German troops were retreating in the direction of Rheims, that the Guard threw itself desperately on the lines of the French cavalry. "Not once but five times did the devoted regiment hurl itself against the solid French front. After the fifth charge there were only a hundred men left surrounding the flag. With the signs of reluctance they gave the signal of surrender and it was then found that nearly all of the hundred were wounded. "In the course of this engagement the Guards lost 3,000 men, it is stated."

A letter from a German prisoner recites how the enemy interrupted their needed rest after the Germans had reached a certain village, and how when the Germans attempted to advance on Sept. 16, the enemy, firing from bushes and from houses, swept their trenches. This letter continues: "On my right and left, wounded comrades are complaining bitterly that the enemy were shooting from houses. They found too easy a mark in us. If we assumed an upright position we were immediately fired on. The enemy's bullets soon began to get us from the right, and after an hour, during which time our company lost 25

Lighter Incidents of Fighting in France Given Out Officially

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Oct. 3.—The official information bureau to-day issued a brief account of some of the lighter incidents of the fighting in France, to which it appends certain letters taken from German prisoners. This recital, which is from an eye witness, but which bears no date, is in part as follows: "In the presentation of striking contrasts, this war is no exception to the rule. Within sight of the spot where these words are being written, the chauffeur of a being written, the chauffeur of a motor car attached to the general staff, is making his toilet in the open. After washing his face and hands in a saucupan, minus its handle, which he has balanced on an empty gasoline can, he carefully brushes his hair with an old nail brush, using the window of the car in which he has slept as a looking glass. From the backward sweep he gives his somewhat lank locks, and judging by his well-made and clean shoes, it is clear that he had once been a dandy. In spite of his khaki service jacket and trousers. He is, in fact, a former public school boy, who has enlisted for the war 'to do his bit' for his country, and a right useful part he is playing. BRITISH PEOPLE ARE RECONCILED THAT THE WAR WILL BE LONG

Never Since Outbreak of War Has the Opinion Been More Strongly Held—Terrible is Description of What is to Come.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Oct. 3.—Though the German right is less than fifty miles from the Belgian frontier, never since the outbreak of the war apparently have the people of Great Britain been more reconciled to the idea that the struggle yet to come will be long and terrible. "The British critics seem unable to agree as to whether the recent revival of German activity in Belgium means a serious attempt to take Antwerp and other points, or whether the operations are merely intended to harass the Belgians and prevent them from tampering with the German lines of communication. Vienna it is said, according to round-about despatches purporting to emanate from the Austrian capital, is preparing for a siege, and there is even talk of removing the seat of government. However, though these reports came from various sources, none of them is confirmed. The decision of the Admiralty to mine a certain area of the North Sea has given England an added feeling of security. While no alarm has been manifested, the latest announcements asserted that the remainder of the vast line was quiet, with the exception of the region around St. Mihiel from which the Germans were driven from their southern-most front. Despatches from Petrograd still claim Russian successes on the frontier, but from a Balkan where the Russian and combined German and Austrian forces are at death grips before Cracow, has come nothing to indicate which side has taken first honors in the preliminary skirmishes. A belated despatch reaching London from Copenhagen asserts that Emperor William was recently in Berlin. The British critics seem unable to agree as to whether the recent revival of German activity in Belgium means a serious attempt to take Antwerp and other points, or whether the operations are merely intended to harass the Belgians and prevent them from tampering with the German lines of communication. BRITISH FORCE IS GIVING GREAT ACCOUNT OF ITSELF IN FRANCE

Official Bureau Tells of Operations in the Field—Days Have Passed When There Has Been but Little Fighting in Progress.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The official bureau issued a statement last night from the headquarters of the British expeditionary force, under date of September 29, concerning the movements of the British force and the French armies in immediate touch with it. The statement follows: "The general situation as viewed on the 29th remains practically the same as that described in the last letter, and the task of the army has not changed. It is to maintain itself until there is a general resumption of the offensive. "No ground has been lost. Some has been gained, and every counter-attack has been repulsed—in certain instances with very severe losses to the enemy. "Nevertheless, the question of position is only a part of the battle, and there has been considerable improvement in the situation in another important respect. Recent offensive efforts of the enemy have been made without cohesion or co-operation with those on either side. Some of them indeed, evince clear signs of inferior leadership, this bearing out the statements made by prisoners as to the great losses in officers suffered by the enemy. "Further, the hostile artillery fire has decreased in volume and deteriorated both in control and direction. The first is probably due to the transfer of metal to other quarters, but the two latter facts may be the direct result of the activity of our aircraft and their interference with the enemy's air reconnaissance and observation of his fire. "The Germans recently have been relying to some extent on observations from captive balloons sent up at some distance in the rear of their first line, which method, whatever its cause, is a poor substitute for the direct overhead reconnaissance obtainable from aeroplanes.

"As a consequence the damage being done to us is wholly disproportionate to the amount of ammunition expended by the enemy. For the last few days it has amounted to pitting certain areas with large craters and in rendering some villages unhealthy as the soldiers put it. A concrete example of what was on one occasion achieved against our infantry trenches is given later. "Of recent events an actual narrative will be carried on from the 25th to the 29th inclusive. During the whole of this period the weather has remained fine, though it has not been so bright as it was. On Friday, the 25th, comparative quiet reigned in our sphere of action. The only incident worthy of special mention was the passage of a German aeroplane over the interior of our lines. It was flying high but drew a general fusillade from below, with the result that the pilot was killed outright and the observer was wounded. The latter however, was able to continue the flight for some miles, but was then compelled to descend, his petrol tank having been struck. He was captured by the French. "That night a general attack was made against the greater part of the allies' position, and it was renewed in the early morning of the 26th. The Germans were everywhere repulsed with loss. Indeed, opposite one portion of our lines, where they were caught in mass by our machine guns and howitzers firing at different ranges, it is estimated that they left 1,000 dead or wounded. "The mental attitude of our troops may be gauged from the fact that the official report next morning from one corps, of which one division had borne the brunt of the fighting, ran thus, laconically: 'The night was quiet except for a certain amount of

is ever gaining preference. In large cities it is becoming compulsory to pasteurize all milk offered for sale. This is not because of any whim, but because it is the only ECONOMIC and SAFE way to handle it.
Pasteurization of milk removes all danger of transmitting DISEASE (enhances its keeping quality), and preserves that natural milk flavor.
It makes our milk far the most ECONOMIC for use. WISDOM will direct you to buy our milk. Ask your physician.

Camp Scotia S. O. S., had a large and most successful meeting on Thursday evening. About the usual amount of business was transacted, and a much appreciated feature was an impromptu programme of songs, speeches, etc. contributed by Bros. present. During the past months many new members have been added to the Camp and the first meetings of the fall season have been marked by a large attendance and earnest interest in the welfare of the Camp. The open meeting arranged for next meeting night will inaugurate a series of social evenings during the winter season.

PHOTOGRAPHERS BARRED
Generals do Not Wish to Have Important Secrets Made Public
Emperor William issued orders that any man caught by his troops in the field with a camera in his possession is to be summarily shot. Similar orders were issued from French headquarters. Still, tactical persistence has worked wonders, and it may do so again in the present instance.
So far as moving pictures are concerned no concern has proposed a partnership arrangement with the Kaiser in a series of war movies. The best genuine moving pictures of real war were taken by Capt. Saul, a retired British army officer in the Balkan conflict. Capt. Saul was with the Turks. He got some fine pictures of the Turkish rout at Lulo Buzas and also of the fighting around KIRK KILISE. He also got some splendid pictures of burning villages, camp scenes, and other details of war.
Since the days of Napoleon, war correspondents, a term later enlarged to include photographers, have been regarded not merely as a burden on the general staff, which has quite enough on its hands without them, but also as a source of the gravest danger to the army. However carefully his despatches may be censored the correspondent is certain to get in something that betrays the strategy of his side to the enemy.

THE SITUATION.

The lines of the Allies have reached almost to the Belgian border, but practically nothing of a definite nature has yet resulted. The British official report is that no ground has been lost, which is in itself a satisfactory, if not very conclusive, statement.

The Russians seem to be making excellent progress, and the Japanese are making good headway with reference to their end of the task.

The Daily Mail printed an account the other day, from absolutely reliable sources, setting forth that an English Red Cross nurse arriving in England had had her hands hacked off by German soldiery. That fact was recorded under the significant heading, "The Prussian Animal."

A writer in the New York Herald furnishes a companion piece to that given in the columns of the Mail. An English major wounded and in the hospital—dying when the account was penned—also had his hands hacked off and his eyes put out. He was so found on the battlefield. These horrible and incredible maimings were done by the German soldiery to absolutely prevent him from making a further fight in his prostrate condition. In both these cruel instances the names of those furnishing the information is a guarantee of the truth of the accounts.

In the New York Sun of Monday, Mr. Sewall, a citizen of Maine, publishes a letter from London in which particulars of the most fiendish character are set forth by the correspondent. Howard Copeland, a graduate of Yale, linguist, traveller, cosmopolitan, with residence in Switzerland, in this case furnishes the information. He entered France from Switzerland under circumstances which gave him access to the French wounded being brought from the front to the Paris hospitals. At first he was skeptical of the tales. He proceeds:

"But, by heavens, neither you nor anybody else would have talked with them long without realizing that all that we have been reading in the papers about these inhuman barbarities does not even give a faint idea of the actual horrible truth. One soldier after another I questioned, always asking for exactly what he had seen with his own eyes, and not picked up by mere hearsay. It is the very enormity of the acts that defeats their gaining credence."

IN SOUTH AFRICA.

In South Africa the merging of the offices of Commander of the Forces and Prime Minister of the Union by Louis Botha's acceptance of the position vacated by General Beyers is a guarantee that the people of that dominion, regardless of their origin, are, with inconsiderable exceptions, united in their support of Great Britain in this war. Louis Botha was, of course, the most distinguished of the Boer generals; the next best known Boer leader, Christian de Wet, has declared his readiness to raise a troop for service in Europe. Mr. Botha's speech in the South African Parliament, as reported in the London Times, included these passages:

"Great confidence had been reposed in the people of South Africa. They had received a constitution under which they could create a great nationality. Great Britain had given them this constitution and ever since had regarded them as a free people and as a sister State. As an example of how the Imperial Government treated them, General Botha said that last July the Union Government wanted to raise a loan of £4,000,000. They had raised only two millions. As things were it would be fatal to go into the money market just now, so the Imperial Government had now come to the assistance of the Union Government and had lent the Union £7,000,000. (Loud cheers.) That was the spirit of co-operation and brotherhood which invariably animated the Imperial towards the Union Government. Notwithstanding its own difficulties, the Imperial Government had come forward and helped the Union Government out of its embarrassment. (Cheers.)"

"General Botha laid stress on the fact that it would be disastrous if a feeling of racialism were again revived in South Africa. It largely depended on the decision of the House on the present occasion as to whether they were to have racial division or racial harmony. In his judgment it was the duty of the House to see that every effort was put forth to bring the country successfully and honorably out of this war, and that South Africa issued from it, not as a divided, but as a united people. (Cheers.)"

"In conclusion, the Premier said he felt it was the duty of South Africa to assist in relieving the sufferings and privations inflicted by the war. The Government therefore proposed to offer South African products like mealies and tobacco for the soldiers, and brandy for medicinal purposes. The farmers had already come forward with offers of products, and the Government would undertake their despatch. General Botha indicated that the matter would be dealt with more fully later, and closed his speech with an eloquent expression of his belief that South Africa would acquit herself honorably in the eyes of the world."

The rallying of South Africa as a "united people" in support of the British cause ought to give the German professors and publicists something to think about; but reports from Berlin indicate that they still live in their illusion that Great Britain is a grasping, domineering seeker of world dominion for selfish ends. They do not know and cannot appreciate the spirit that animates the British Empire at this crisis in its history, and they are lost for a reasonable explanation of the presence in the armies opposed to Kaiserism of volunteers from every land over which the British flag flies.

TURPENITE.

The reports of the use by the French artillery of a terrible explosive called turpentine, which emits gases that paralyze and kill all persons within a radius of 400 yards of a bursting bomb, have not been authenticated. The reports persist, like those wonderful tales of the shipment of vast numbers of Russian soldiers to France and Belgium by way of Archangel and the Arctic Ocean and the rumors of an enormous and practically indestructible fleet of armored Zeppelins which are soon to fly over the British Isles. But they are not believable. There are many Russian soldiers, more than any other nation ever mustered since history began; there are Zeppelins and they drop bombs, and there are new explosives. Romance writers have imagined wars fought almost wholly with airships and bombs filled with poisonous gases. H. G. Wells, many years ago, imagined a conquest of the world by creatures from Mars who possessed the power to overcome human beings by poisoning the air they breathed.

The present war has, in a small way, realized some of the imaginings of the romancers of the previous generation; the achievements of the aeroplane scouts, for instance, have assuredly been amazing; but thus far the infantry with bayonets and rifles, the machine guns, and the charging cavalry have borne the brunt of the fighting, have won the victories, and are still the chief dependence of the contestants in Bosnia and Galicia, in East Prussia and in France. The monstrous guns of the Krupp cannot daunt the spirits of the towns, the huge projectiles seem to destroy fewer lives than the bayonets and bullets. The war may develop, to a high state of efficiency, new media for destruction, and if such are found effective it is not likely that either side will bother much about the rulings at The Hague. Such matters will be considered after the war is over. Meanwhile, as to turpentine, we do not believe there is any such thing.

THE AMAZING GERMAN ARMY

U. S. Newspaper Correspondents Write of It—Secrets of Efficiency.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Six American newspapermen, representing various newspapers and news associations—Irving S. Cobb, Roger Lewis, John T. McCutcheon, James O. Bennett, Harry Hanson and Arnold Dosch—got themselves arrested intentionally by the Germans in Brussels in order to get within the German lines. They have been permitted to follow the German army provided they keep twenty miles away from the firing line.

They are having the time of their lives. They are extremely well treated by the German officers. One of the letters smuggled out contains the following interesting details of the thoroughness of the German army organization.

"Before the present war began no one outside of a few in the army knew the color of the uniforms that were to be worn. Four million new uniforms, made of the peculiar dust colored grey that blends so completely with a landscape, awaited the men who were to wear them.

Double Buttons.

"An item in the making of these uniforms illustrates the German ingenuity and thoroughness of attention to minute details. Suspender buttons were sewn doubly upon trousers instead of singly, so that in case of the bursting of a button under the strain of moving artillery, a soldier simply moves the suspender along to the twin button.

"In four million lockers in barracks throughout the empire were these uniforms, each locker marked with the name of the man who was to use the contents. In each locker was a complete uniform, underclothing, socks, boots, helmet, rifle already loaded and oiled ready for instant use and a canteen already filled with fresh water. Each day this water has been replaced by fresh water.

"In each locker was a stout paper bag with a string attached, and on the bag was written the address to where it should be sent. When the order to mobilize came every man subject to the first call to army duty consulted his badge and found that he was to go at once to a certain locker in a certain place, and in that locker he would find his complete equipment.

Amazing Detail.

"Arriving at the locker, he was to put on his uniform, and in a few minutes he was a soldier, complete, from the soles of his heavy boots to his cap. Almost instantly he was ready for the field.

"He was then to wrap his citizen clothes in the paper bag, already addressed, from where it would be collected and sent to his home.

"By means of such a thorough system, the German army was mobilized so quickly and systematically that the world was amazed. Complete regiments, officers, horses, men, even the band, were ready for service at the end of the first twenty-four hours.

"Even the German reservist in distant countries knows that his uniform is waiting for him in a locker for which he carries the key.

"The secret of German military efficiency, said a German officer, was a good infantry, good cannon and good cooking. Every morning soldiers are given a hot breakfast. They march or fight until noon, when they are given a hot lunch; then they march or fight some more, have a hot supper, and then sing for a couple of hours.

Emergency Rations.

"Often in the evening I have heard soldiers singing, even after a long, gruelling day on the field or on the march. In the windows of their quarters they may be seen gathered about in groups of singers, while through other windows may be seen the officers poring over maps.

"These rations," said one of our officers, "are placed in little tins, where they remain good for years. He looked at the date on a box of lard and said it was packed in 1911. 'It will be good until 1931,' he remarked.

"It was like vintage soup. 'From one little tin an excellent soup is made, sufficient for two men at a single meal.

"With three hot meals a day it is not to be wondered that the German soldier is so sturdy and efficient. A look at a column of marching men shows them to be hard in muscle, with the strong, lean faces of men in splendid training.

"The German army supplies fine field glasses to its commissioned and non-commissioned officers, but in many cases the officers like to provide their own glasses.

Carries No Tent.

"The German army carries no tents. Its officers and soldiers are quartered in the houses of the towns and villages through which the army passes. Every house must furnish temporary quarters according to its capacity.

"The German officers during these stirring days never undress. One told us he had not had his clothes off for three weeks. Not even their boots or leggings are removed, so that, asleep or awake, the officer is instantly ready for duty.

"Among the many evidences of kindly thoughtfulness that we encountered, this little act is one that we have often spoken of. It was of a type that was often repeated, and when we hear stories of alleged German atrocities we cannot help but think how improbable they must be."

German List is Growing at a Tremendous Pace.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] BERLIN, Oct. 3.—(Via London)—Major General Freiherr Von Der Horst, the commander of the 20th infantry brigade, was killed while leading his troops on September 28, according to an official announcement made to-night. He had previously received the Iron Cross for his work in the field.

The Associated Press correspondent learned at Metz from the adjutant of Prince Oscar, the fifth son of the emperor, that the prince, on September 28, led his regiment at Verdun in a most desperate battle. The French, including the Turcos sharpshooters in trees, picked-off the officers, of whom so many so many were lost that the companies were led by sergeants during the hottest part of the fighting. Prince Oscar headed the column and got so excited that he collapsed with partly by several days' exertion prior to this fighting. The physicians ordered him to Metz where he is now rapidly recovering.

The garrison commanders everywhere are taking measures for the suppression of stories to the effect that the Catholic clergy participated in cruelties against German soldiers in Belgium, which it is officially asserted, are untrue. The higher Catholic officials protested against the assertion, which came in letters from the front. Persons repeating the stories will be severely punished.

THE VICTORIA ART LEAGUE

Since the formation of the Art League in Victoria school, March, 1912, there have been many evidences of the need of such an organization in connection with a public school, to strengthen the love and sympathy which should always exist between teacher and pupil.

The energetic president, Mrs. Marquis, with her executive, had invited all the parents of the children, and a splendid attendance was the response. The Rev. Llewellyn Brown, the keynote of whose address seemed to be that the school is the training ground for life, spoke many words of appreciation of Miss Colter's work at Victoria school, and his address was an inspiration to teachers and parents alike.

The Misses Oldham and Hart, former pupils of the school, delighted all with appropriate remarks after the serving of refreshments, parents and teachers were given an opportunity to become acquainted. One of the numerous functions of this organization will be to ascertain through the teachers the names of children who may be in need of necessary comforts at this particular time, thus forming an auxiliary to work in conjunction with the league.

KNIGHTS OF MALTA

Spent a Most Enjoyable Time in City on Thursday Evening.

A very pleasant surprise awaited St. Elmo Chapter, on Thursday evening, when the veterans and M.E. P.G.M.'s Sir R. E. A. Land and Sir John A. Cowan from Toronto, with their able guard of honor, paid St. Elmo an unexpected visit, on their way to Detroit, Mich.

They further delighted the brethren by putting on in an exemplary manner the degree of the order, by conferring and raising candidates present to receive the same.

Their visit was made reciprocal by electing the P.G. Priors of America Sir R. E. A. Land and Sir John A. Cowan, (the historical Sir John) life honorary members of St. Elmo. The V.E.C. Sir Vernon R. Cowtan and officers of St. Elmo were complimented on their work so ably performed.

REVENUE DECREASE

Figures Are Given at Customs and Inland Revenue Offices.

Customs and Inland Revenue returns for the last month have shown a steady decrease in spite of increased revenue taxes. The volume of business of the month of August to a great extent eclipsed that of September and this fact makes the decrease seem more real than it actually is. The clearance has, however, been by no means large. Receipts dropped nearly $5,000 from $20,130.59 to $24,310.98. This was to some extent accountable for the limited, while there is a general business slump. The actual figures of the return are as follows: Spirits, $3,957.96; Malt, 45.90; Raw leaf tobacco, 843.08; Cigars, 227.70; Vinegar, 533.20; Meth. spirits, 468.90; Other receipts, 50.24. Total, 1914, 6,126.08; Total, 1913, 7,970.38. Decrease, 1914, 1833.00.

A POLICE VILLAGE

Bellview Ratepayers See Where They Can Save Money Annually.

A representative meeting of the electors of Bellview and Parkdale was held this week in the school for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee on the proposed creation of this district into a police village. Mr. F. Billo was elected chairman and Mr. H. Atwell secretary. The committee submitted their report which appeared to be very encouraging. A good deal of valuable information was obtained in Burford, which place has been conducting its own affairs for 18 years and has had ample time to test the advantages of this form of local government. Authentic figures as to the rates in force were obtained from the secretary at Burford and on comparison with those of Burford Township showed that the village people were ahead to the extent of almost three mills and in addition had been able to provide a nice little sum for local government. It was also shown that Bellview could enjoy similar privileges at a reduced tax, but the question of area was somewhat in doubt. The committee were asked to obtain legal advice on this point and are expected to report back shortly. A unanimous vote approving of the creating of this district into a police village to be known as Tutela, was passed, the committee being complimented on the very comprehensive report submitted. They were also instructed to prepare the necessary petitions for signature.

RETREAT WAS ROUT

Russian Official Report of the Operations Against Germans.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] general staff headquarters last night issued the following official statement: "The battle on the front in Eastern Prussia continues on the line of Miriamopol, but no decisive result has yet been obtained. We have at last occupied the German positions at Preskasno, west of Symno. Under a night of attack by the Prussians the enemy retired from Leipony in the direction of Suwalki. "On the road from Seyny, forward to Suwalki, the movement of the Germans, pursued by the Russian cavalry under protection of artillery was practically a rout. "Augustowa was being bombarded with heavy artillery from the northwest side of the town up to the afternoon of October 1, when the Russian infantry took the offensive resolutely and drove the enemy from that region. "The enemy also was forced to evacuate Stutshen and Grajevo, where the Russian troops invaded German territory. The Russians have captured some automobile trucks from a German column operating against Ossowetz."

McMaster University opened its fall term.

THE PROBS

[By Special Wire to the Courier] TORONTO, Oct. 3.—Pressure remains high over the Great Lakes and middle states, but a disturbance now developing over the Western states will probably be nearing the lakes by Monday. The weather has turned cooler and showery in the western provinces and continues fine from Ontario eastward.

Lakes and Georgian Bay—Moderate south easterly winds, fine and moderately warm. Sunday, moderate easterly winds, fair.

SANITARY RESOLUTION.

The City Clerk this morning received the resolution of the Board of Works passed at its last meeting that sanitary sewers be constructed upon Wilkes, Tecumseh and Drummond Streets in the city.

COST OF ILLUMINATION.

The street lighting account for the city during the month of September amounted to $374.33, which is somewhat in excess of the former cost, when the Western Sunlight Power was used. The lighting however, is vastly improved.

TRANSFERS SLACK.

The general slump in business conditions is further demonstrated by the returns of the transfers during the past month. The property transfers number 38, which is less than half of the number registered last year, when 72 was the total of changed ownerships.

ANOTHER METHOD.

Writing from Saskatoon, a young lady describes a method by which a large sum of money was raised for patriotic purposes. She is employed in a big departmental store, and the firm announced that upon a certain day 10 per cent. of all business transactions would be given to the fund, and each girl would be credited with the amount of her sales under these conditions. Competition among the girls was keen and a considerable sum was thus raised to the fund.

A FLAG-Raising ceremony was held at the recently-opened Queen Mary Public School in Belleville, and the new Centre Public School in Sault Ste. Marie was formally opened.

Lighter Incidents

"On the 18th, at 4.30 in the morning we reached a village where we thought we would be able to rest, and we collected some straw. Before half an hour had passed, however, the shrapnel had again found us out. We spent the afternoon in this village which was continually under shell fire in spite of the fact that our guns were shelling the enemy's artillery. We heard one colonel say that our guns could not get at those of the enemy satisfactorily because the latter were so well concealed."

"Our condition was now really awful, for we have to sleep out in all weather. We are looking forward to a speedy end. We are very badly off as regards food."

Another letter written during the retreat in front of the French from Montmirail contains the following: "I had a thirty six hour march we had a rest, and arrived just in time for the fight. For three days we did not have a hot meal because our field kitchens were lost, and we ate a hot meal yesterday evening. Although we are all just ready to drop, we must march on."

Here is another abstract from the same letter: "We found great quantities of food, but fearing poison we did not take possession of it until we had gotten hold of the proprietor of the house and compelled him to taste it first. We are near Rheims, after having gone through hard, bloody, and most horrible days. Thank God I am still alive. Of our regiment of 3,000 men there are now only 1,600 left. Let us hope that this terrible battle, which ought to be one of the greatest in history, will leave the victor and well and give us peace. I am absolutely done, but we must not despair."

With the City Police

Ernest Holder was last night walking with his girl along Alfred street, and he noticed a man was following him. He became rather scared, and in an endeavor to shake the man off he took out a revolver and fired into the air upon the heads of the men. He thus rendered himself liable to a term of imprisonment, and was this morning charged with shooting with intent to kill. He gave his story and was fined $25, with costs. Of our list of fugitives, Andrew Williams was given the fine of $50 and costs or the alternative of three months in jail for having stolen a rubber from the store of J. Molden. He alleges he had bought it from a fellow named Holt, but in the box Holt denied this when faced by Williams and flatly contradicted his story. The magistrate decided that the evidence warranted a conviction and he made the imposition.

ANOTHER BOAT SUNK.

VENICE, Oct. 3.—A report has reached here of the sinking of another Italian torpedo boat. The crew of eighteen, at a point near Trieste as a result of coming in contact with a floating mine.

FOUR MARSHALS

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The French government will create four marshals of France, according to the Paris correspondent of the United States. The men selected he said, are Generals Joseph Joffre, the commander in chief of the French army; S. Gallieni, the military governor of Paris; General Ed. D. Pau and D. P. Castelnau, who are fighting on the line.

"Scraps of Paper."

(New York World) That "scrap of paper" was the treaty guaranteeing the neutrality of Belgium. The whole history of human liberty is written on just such scraps of paper.

The Magna Charta was a "scrap of paper." The Bill of Rights was a "scrap of paper." The Declaration of Independence was a "scrap of paper."

The Constitution of the United States is a "scrap of paper."

For a hundred years a "scrap of paper" has maintained an unbroken peace between the United States and the British possessions of Canada along an unfortified frontier of 3,000 miles.

Respect for these scraps of paper measure a nation's honor, no less than its freedom.

Late Wires

The street railway receipts for the month of September fell off considerably in comparison with the month of August.

Hon. J. S. Hendrie, the new Lieutenant-Governor, and Hon. W. H. Hearst the new Premier, were sworn in.

John Cousins, a four-year-old lad, was killed by an automobile at the intersection of the automobile and Hamilton street, Toronto.

Dr. George Mitchell, ex-Warden of Kent county, died at Wallaceburg at the age of 78 years.

Ethel Davis, five years old, daughter of E. Davis, Niagara Falls, Ont., was fatally burned while playing with matches.

The Methodist General Conference appointed a committee of six to continue negotiations with the Presbyterians and Congregationalists for Church union.

Vigorous attacks on the forts surrounding Antwerp were reported by the Belgians, who have launched counter-attacks.

Heavy fighting is reported from Russian Poland, and it is said that the Austrian fleet may be moved from Vienna to Prague.

WORLD SERIES WILL PROVE A HAMMER

Much Speculation as to the Outcome Between the Boston Braves and the Philadelphia Athletics in the Premier Event of the Year.

[By Special Wire to The Courier]

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—Before the close of the next week the pennant winning clubs of the American and National leagues will meet in the opening games of the World's championship struggle of 1914. While this will be the twenty-third series for premier baseball honors, thirty years have elapsed since the initial battle for the World's championship of the baseball diamond was won by the Providence, R.I., "Gruys," champions of the National League in 1884, when they took three straight games from the Metropolitans, the standard bearers of the old American Association of that year. To date 22 championships have been decided, unavoidable lapses have occurred in eight of the intervening seasons, the years in which there were no competitions for the title being 1891, 1893, 1898 to 1902, inclusive and 1904.

From 1884 to 1890 the contests were between the winning teams of the National League and American Association and from 1894 to 1897 the Temple Cup series kept the annual contest confined to clubs in the National League. Then there came a lapse of five years until 1903, the post season battle was revived when the Boston American pennant winners met and defeated the Pittsburgh champions of the National League. The championship of 1904 went by default to the Boston Americans as the New York National League club refused to allow its pennant winners to play the American League champions.

During the winter of 1904 the two Major Leagues came to an understanding and the National Commission assumed control of the championship series making it compulsory for the pennant winning clubs to have their teams meet annually in a seven game series, the winners of four of these games to receive the championship pennant and each member of the winning team to be presented with a suitably inscribed gold button. Rules governing the disbursement of gate receipts between the players, club owners and the National Commission were adopted and everything to the most minute detail being arranged satisfactorily, the championship series was established on a solid basis, and since 190, the post season struggles for the flag have been played regularly attracting increased interest each succeeding year.

vidence team, the World's championship emblem is worn from flag-poles on playing grounds in eleven states. New York has had the custody of the coveted pennant four times, through the efforts of the National League Club's players, and Chicago held the honor for a similar number of years, but the credit for winning it was divided between the National and American League teams, the former having captured it three times and the "White Sox" once. Three times has it floated over Boston parks its first visit there being credited to the National league club in 1892, while in 1903 and 1912 the American league acted as custodian. The Philadelphia Athletics who now have possession of the pennant for a third term, hope to keep it for at least another year.

How Teams Compare.

When the Philadelphia Athletics and the Boston Braves go into action in the 23rd series for the world's championship baseball honors the diamond campaign will be fought out by teams which represent the old and new national sport. Although the average age of the leading players of the two combinations is not widely separated the Athletic's machine is so famous for its success so striking that it appears old by comparison with the squad that George Stallings whipped in shape in midsummer and thus won a pennant for Boston. Talking over the subject with the players of the Athletics it will be found that the average age of the Athletics is 26 1-2 years and the Braves 24 3-4 years.

While less than two years in average age separates the teams the extremes are more marked in the Athletics than the Braves. Plank, Bender, Coombs, Aldring, Lapp and Thomas, are all past thirty but the majority of those who will figure in the daily line-up are several years under this age. The three youngest players in the squad are the pitchers, Bush, Pennock and Wyckoff. The American League representatives have the advantage in years of base ball experience for the Philadelphia Club players average fully a year more in time spent upon the professional field than the Boston players. The Braves average is approximately five years with Johnny Evers heading the list with twelve years of experience. In point of professional service Plank leads the Athletics with thirteen years of baseball play and experience at his back. Bender is but one year behind and several others just short of a dozen figures in the diamond career. As a result the Athletics average is six years notwithstanding the fact that a number of comparative youngsters are marshalled under the Philadelphia flag.

The team which will act as standard bearers of the National League, is an interesting combination of the youth and age of the diamond. In some cases extremely young players come to the front of the stirring race in the National League. Johnny Evers, veteran of nearly 2,000 games, a figure prominent in the recent history of sport, has worked in effective collaboration about second base with "Rabbit" Maranville, barely more than a boy, playing his second season with a major league club. The same combination of old and young is found in the records of the men of the outfield and of the pitching staff. These figures show the oldest member of the team to be Otto Hess, with 35 years behind him, and a young Paul Strand at 19 years, is the baby of the team.

SERVIANS ADVANCING.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The Nish, Servia, correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company, has forwarded the Servian official communication: "The Servian and Montenegrin troops which are marching on Sarajevo, Bosnia, have left the line between Srebrenitz, Jahorina and Homany and after several attacks on the Igrichta and Karlieva positions have gained a brilliant victory and occupied Varesnizza. "The enemy has bombarded Shabats (Servia); it is estimated that they fired 10,000 shells but the town was little damaged."

THE STORY OF Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN.

Copyright, 1913 by Kate Douglas Wiggin.

"I caught hold of the chair to keep myself from falling and cried, 'I do not believe it!' Believe it or not, she answered scornfully, 'it makes no difference to me, but I can give you twenty proofs in as many seconds. We met at a Cochrane meeting, and he chose me from all the others as his true wife. For two years we traveled together, but long before they came to an end there was no happiness for either of us. He had a conscience—not much of a one, but just enough to keep him miserable. At last I felt he was not believing the doctrines he preached, and I caught him trying to get news of you and your boy just because you were out of reach, and neglecting my boy and me, who had given up everything to wander with him and live on whatever the brethren and sisters chose to give us."

"So there was a child, a boy? I gasped. 'Did—did he live?' 'He is in the next room,' she answered, 'and it's him I brought you here for. Aaron Boynton has served us both the same. He left you for me and me for heaven knows who. If I could live I wouldn't ask any favors of you least of all, but I haven't a penny in the world, though I shan't need one very long. My friend that's nursing me hasn't a roof to her head, and she wouldn't share it with the boy if she had—she's a bigoted orthodox."

"But what do you expect me to do? I asked angrily, for she was stabbing me with every word. 'The boy is your husband's child, and he always represented you as a saint upon earth. I expect you to take him home and provide for him. He doesn't mean very much to me—just enough so that I don't relish his going to the poorhouse, that's all.' 'I'll go to something very like that if he comes to mine,' I said. 'Don't worry me with talk, for I can't stand it,' she wailed, clutching at her nightgown and flinging back her hair. 'Either you take the child or I send somebody to Edgewood with him, somebody to tell the whole story."

"My poor, poor Rod!"

Some of the Cochrans can support him if you want, or, at the worst, Aaron Boynton's town can take care of his son. The doctor has given me two days to live. If it's a minute longer I've warned him and I warn you that I'll end it myself, and if you don't take the boy I'll do the same for him. He's a good sight better off dead than knocking about the world alone. He's innocent, and there's no sense in his being punished for the sins of other folks."

"I see it all. Why did I never think of it before, my poor, poor Rod!" said Ivory, clinching his hands and burying his head in them. "Don't grieve, Ivory. It has all turned out so much better than we could have hoped. Just listen to the end. She was frightful to hear of and to look at, the girl was though all the time I could feel that she must have had a gipsy beauty and vigor that answered to something in your father. The doctor never gives me half enough medicine, and for the hour before he comes I fairly die for lack of it though little he cares. Go upstairs and have your sleep, and tomorrow you can make up your mind."

"You don't leave me much freedom to do that," I tried to answer, but she interrupted me, rocking her body to and fro. "Neither of us will ever see Aaron Boynton again—you more than I. He is in the west, and a man with two families and no means of providing for them doesn't come back where he's known. Come and take her away, Eliza! Take her away, quick!" she called.

"I stumbled out of the room, and the woman waved me upstairs. 'You must not mind, Hetty,' she apologized. 'She never had a good disposition at the best, but she's frantic with the pain now, and good reason, too. It's about over, and I'll be thankful when it is. You'd better swallow the shame and take the child. I can't and won't have him, and it'll be easy enough for you to say he belongs to some of your own folks."

"By this time I was mentally bewildered. When the iron first entered my soul, when I first heard the truth about your father, at that moment my mind gave way—I know it now."

"Poor, poor mother! My poor, gentle little mother!" murmured Ivory brokenly as he stroked her hand.

"Don't cry, my son; it is all past—the sorrow and the bitterness and the struggle. I will just finish the story, and then we'll close the book forever. The woman gave me some bread and tea, and I flung myself on the bed without undressing. I don't know how long afterward it was, but the door opened and a little boy stole in, a sad, strange, dark-eyed little boy who said: 'Can I sleep up here? Mother's screaming and I'm afraid.' He climbed up to the couch, I covered him with a blanket, and I soon heard his deep breathing. But later in the night, when I must have fallen asleep myself, I suddenly awoke and felt him lying beside me. He had dragged the blanket along and crept up on the bed to get close to my side for the warmth I could give him, or the comfort of my nearness. The touch of him almost broke my heart. I could not push the little creature away when he was lying there so near and warm and confiding—he, all unconscious of the agony his mere existence was to me. I must have slept again, and when the day broke I was alone. I thought the presence of the child in the night was a dream, and I could not remember where I was or why I was there."

"Mother, dear mother, don't tell me any more tonight. I fear for your strength," urged Ivory, his eyes full of tears at the remembrance of her sufferings.

"There is only a little more and the weight will be off my heart and on yours, my poor son. Would that I need not tell you! The house was still, and I thought at first that no one was awake, but when I opened the sitting room door the child ran toward me and took my hand as the woman came in from the sickroom. 'Go into the kitchen, Rodman,' she said, 'and lace up your boots. You're going right out with this lady. Hetty died in the night,' she continued impassively. 'The doctor was here about 10 o'clock, and I've never seen her so bad. He gave her a big dose of sleeping powder and put another in the table drawer for her to mix for her toward morning. She was helpless to move, we thought, but all the same she must have got out of bed when my back was turned and taken the powder dry on her tongue, for it was gone when I looked for it. It didn't hasten things much, and I don't blame her. If ever there was a wild, reckless creature it was Hetty Rodman. But I, who am just the opposite, would have done the same if I'd been her."

"She hurriedly gave me a cup of coffee and, putting a coat and a cap on the boy, literally pushed me out of the house. 'I've got to report things to the doctor,' she said, 'and you're better out of the way. Go down that side street to the station, and mind you say the boy belonged to your sister, who died and left him to you. You're a Cochrane, ain't you? So was Hetty, and they're all sisters, so you'll be telling no lies. Good-by, Rodman.' Be a good boy and don't be any trouble to the lady."

"How I found the station I do not know, nor how I made the journey, nor where I took the stagecoach. The snow began to fall, and by noon there was a drifting storm. I could not remember where I was going nor who the boy was, for just as the snow was whirling outside so it was whirling in my brain."

"Mother, I can hardly bear to hear any more. It is too terrible!" cried Ivory, rising from his chair and pacing the floor.

"I can recall nothing of any account till I awoke in my own bed weeks afterward. The strange little boy was there, but Mrs. Day and Dr. Perry told me what I must have told them—but he was the child of my dead sister. Those were the last words uttered by the woman in Brentville. I carried them straight through my illness and brought them out on the other side more firmly entrenched than ever."

"If only the truth had come back to you sooner!" sighed Ivory, coming back to her bedside. "I could have helped you to bear it all these years. Sorrow is so much lighter when you can share it with some one else. And the girl who died was called Hetty Rodman, then, and she simply gave the child her last name?"

"Yes, poor, suffering creature. I feel no anger against her now—it has burned itself all away—nor do I feel any bitterness against your father. I forgot all this miserable story for so long a time, that it is as if it did not belong to my own life, but had to do with some unhappy stranger. Can you forgive, too, Ivory?"

"I can try," he answered. "God knows I ought to be able to do it if you can!"

TO DEFEND CRACOW.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The Exchange Telegraph Company has given out a despatch from its Vienna correspondent, sent by way of Rome, saying that General Von Hindenburg, the German commander, who has been active against the Russians on the East Prussian frontier, has been appointed to take command of the defence of Cracow.

Convalescence after pneumonia, typhoid fever and the grip, is sometimes nearly apparent, but real. To make it real and rapid, there is no other tonic so highly recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla. Thousands so testify. Take Hood's.

Doctors Recommend Good Ice Cream

There's nothing better for children or grown-ups than rich milk or cream. But so many people do not care for it, that doctors recommend it in the form of ice cream. The best and purest is none too good, and that's why you should eat —made in a model plant, from the purest thick pasteurized cream supplied by regularly and carefully inspected dairy herds. Therefore there is no danger of getting cream from tuberculous cows.

Brant Ice Cream

Brant Ice Cream is delicious by itself, and combined with fruits, preserves, nuts, etc., it forms many dainty and refreshing desserts.

When you serve Brant Ice Cream—in any form—you are sure of pleasing your guests, your family and yourself.

Sold in bulk or in bricks.

Order some from your Dealer to-day (a pint is enough to try) and you'll always use it.

N.B.—Brant Ice Cream bricks are carefully packed in improved sanitary cartons.

A Budget of News For Those Interested in Labor

By G. A. M.

Gleaned From the Exchanges and Other Sources

LABOR CONDITIONS DURING SEPTEMBER IN BRANTFORD

General Summary

Industrial and labour conditions during August were adversely affected by the war in Europe. During the first weeks of the month closing of the stock exchanges, the tightening up of the money markets of the world, the practical cessation of ocean transportation and consequent cutting off not only of sources of supply for raw materials but markets for both agricultural and manufactured products, and the general uncertainty and alarm, occasioned an outbreak of hostilities in Europe, coming at a time when the country was already suffering from the effects of the general business and industrial depression, had a depressing effect on industry. Hundreds of men were thrown out of employment by the stoppage or curtailment of work in all lines. Government municipal undertakings were affected owing to the difficulty in securing a hold out of public funds for the carrying on of public works.

Under the table showing the state of employment of the different trades in Brantford during the month of August, the bakers and confectioners, butchers and retail clerks, cotton and woollen textile workers, are classified as "Active", while hotel and restaurant employees and laundry workers are given as "Fair". Tailors, garment workers, boot and shoe workers, and unskilled laborers is quoted as "quiet". Building, outside and inside, electrical workers, printing and allied trades, woodworkers and upholsterers also are placed under the last named class.

The Trades

Building.—There was continued inactivity in the building trades, the war in Europe having the effect of either stopping completely or curbing building operations all over the country. Many men employed in the building trades were out of work. Printing and allied trades also felt the effects of the general depression. The printing of war extras, however, in the cities occasioned increased activity in some branches. Textiles.—There was a marked increase in activity among textile workers, due not only to Government orders for military purposes, but also to the cutting off of imports from other countries. Woodworking.—Conditions amongst woodworkers continued very dull, the number of woodworking establishments closing down or running with reduced staffs being added to. Food and tobacco preparation.—Bakers, confectioners and butchers continued fairly active. There was a marked falling off in employment of cigar-makers and tobacco workers. A number of cigar factories closed down. Unskilled.—The cessation or curtailment in many localities of municipal undertakings caused for the most part through the difficulty of securing funds increased very largely the number of unemployed.

Domestic Trade.—Wholesale and retail trade was only fair. During the first weeks of the month, trade in foodstuffs was active owing to many householders hastening to lay in large quantities of supplies on account of nervousness in regard to the outcome of prolongation of the war. This tendency, however, was not so marked.

Canadian Trade and Revenue

Foreign and imperial trade.—During July, 1914, there was a decrease in the total value of imports entered for consumption into the Dominion of Canada as compared with the corresponding month of 1913, the amounts being $43,198,066 and $39,087,299 respectively. For the four months ended July 31, 1914, the value of imports shows a decrease of $55,635,460 over the corresponding month of the previous year. The total value of domestic exports during July, 1914, amounted to $41,807,648, an increase of $8,146,922 compared with the same month of 1913. The value of domestic exports during the four months ended July 31, 1914, was $177,566,654, as compared with $117,180,992 for the corresponding period of the previous year.

Canadian Revenue.—Canadian revenue for the month of July, 1914, amounted to $12,521,824.27, as compared with $15,811,014.26 for the month of July, 1913. For the four months ending July 31, 1914, the total amount was $46,182,014.38, as compared with $37,080,804.82 during the corresponding period of 1913. The expenditure on capital account for July, 1914, was $4,862,921.93, as compared with $5,284,543.72 during July, 1913. The total expenditure for the four months ending July 31, 1914, was $9,023,876.79, as compared with $12,014,270.56 during the corresponding period of the previous year. The expenditure on capital account for the four months ended July 31, 1914, was $4,844,472.76 on public works, including railways and canals and other public utilities.

Prices Advanced Over Two Points

WHOLESALE PRICES.
Index number: August, 1914, 137.7; July, 1914, 135.5; August, 1913, 134.1. The labor department's index number advanced over two points during August, there having been steep advances in grains, hog products, miscellaneous foods, textiles, drugs and chemicals, liquor and tobacco. An upward movement also appeared in fish, dairy products, metals, leather, paper and rubber. Price levels were slightly lower in fuel and lighting, building materials and raw furs.

The chief increases as compared with the same month last year appeared in the groups: Grains and Fodder, Animals and Meats, Fish, Cigar, Animals and Meats, Fish, Fodder, Textiles, Drugs and Chemicals. Lower levels, however, appeared in Metals, Fuel and Lighting and Furs.

Miscellaneous groceries.—In flour successive advances of 30c, 40c and 45c per bbl. was made during the month, following the steep advances in the wheat market.

Textiles.—Ontario wool advanced 11c per lb. for the best grades. Woollen underwear made from imported material rose 50c per dozen garments, and other lines made from imported wool were firmer, according to the possibility of obtaining supplies.

Miscellaneous building materials.—Many lines of paint, supplies of which are obtained from Europe, rose. White lead advanced in sympathy with the metal market, shellac, varnish was up 10c a gallon, and dry colors were higher. Benzine declined 1c, but kerosene oil was firmer. Iron pipe declined nearly 5 per cent, sack weights were down 10c, and copper wire was down 5c.

House Furnishings.—Table cutlery from England was advanced to per cent, and silver-plated cutlery was reported upward. Materials such as glass and zinc parts for washboards were also advancing.

Drugs and Chemicals.—Many lines advanced steeply, as supplies come chiefly from Europe. Carbolic acid, borax, caustic soda, opium, guanine, and menthol were higher and supplies in some lines were reported low in some centres and very difficult to replace.

RETAIL PRICES.

The chief features of the month in retail prices as given in the Gazette as regards Brantford, were the advances in flour and sugar, as a result of the effects of the war on the world's markets for wheat and raw sugar.

Notes on Retail Prices.
Beef, veal, mutton, pork and bacon, eggs, butter, flour, rolled oats, rice, beans, sugar, tea, coffee, potatoes are all quoted as having gone up to a considerable extent in this city.

Labor Notes Worth Noting

A Matter of Regret.
It is a matter of regret that in appointing the new Workmen's Compensation Board, the Government should have seen fit, while appointing a direct representative of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, to entirely ignore the claims of Organized Labor and the workers of the Province for similar consideration.

The new board will feel impelled to administer the Workmen's Compensation Act fairly and liberally, if for no higher reason than that Organized Labor does not propose to stand for anything else, and the day has gone by forever when it is safe to offer them anything else.

Labor Party Does Well
The latest returns regarding the recent federal elections in Australia show the victory of the labor party to be of a far more sweeping nature than was acknowledged by the earlier telegraphic despatches announcing the results. It is now known that the party of the government or fusion party was simply overwhelming. Instead of a majority of four in the House of Representatives, the Laborites have increased their lead to eight, while three seats credited to the fusionists will in all probability be finally counted in the same column. At present the Labor party is credited with having won 4 seats in the Lower Chamber, and the fusionists 33, so that the new administration has a substantial majority.

The Senate the Labor party has practically made a clean sweep, having won 32 out of 36 seats. This is eminently satisfactory to the Labor forces, as it ensures that the new government will be able to exercise a free hand and carry out progressive measures in the interests of the people at large.

Trades and Labor Congress
About 175 accredited delegates from all sections of the Dominion were present when the annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada was called to order by President James Watters in St. John N.B. last Monday morning. It is looked upon as a most satisfactory showing. Business of much importance to the laboring class was transacted at this session of the Congress.

The New Age

When navies are forgotten
And fleets are useless things,
When the victor's sword is broken
Beneath the eagle's wings,
When memory of battles
Increases their lead to eight, while
When nations have one banner
And creeds have found one fold,
When the hand that sprinkles midnight
With its powdered drift of suns
Has hushed this tiny tumult
Of swords and guns,
Then Hate's last note of discord
In all God's world shall cease,
In the conquest which is victory,
In the victory which is peace!

NEW RUSSIAN GUN SURPRISES THE ENEMY

Appeared for the First Time in Battle of the Niemen—Invasion a Disaster.
(By Percival Gibbon, Correspondent London Chronicle.)
PETROGRAD, Oct. 2.—The great German guns which now are making their difficult way back over marshes to the north and south of Suwalki have met their match. During the fighting on the River Niemen, there appeared for the first time a new pattern Russian gun of large calibre and considerable mobility. Naturally no details are issued concerning its construction and its principal features, but it is the product of the famous Putiloff works. Artillery experts who watched its performance are satisfied it is equal in power and effect to anything the Germans have yet shown on the Russian frontier.

Reports of Local Correspondent

The report of the local correspondent of the Labor Gazette for the month of August, the last published, is as follows:—
"Labor conditions were more unfavorable this month than last, and worse than they have been for a considerable time. The outbreak of the war caused a cessation of work in several instances, which has aggravated an already depressed condition.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM BACKACHE?

When your kidneys are weak and torpid they do not properly perform their functions; your back aches and you do not feel like doing much of anything. You are likely to be dependent and to borrow trouble, just as if you hadn't enough already. Don't be a victim any longer.

The old reliable medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, gives strength and tone to the kidneys and builds up the whole system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar combination of roots, barks and herbs. No other medicine acts like it, because no other medicine has the same formula or ingredients. Accept no substitute, but insist on having Hood's, and get it today.

The Massey-Harris Company has closed down, and have retained only a very few of its staff. The men on the construction of the Lake Erie & Northern Railway have been informed that work will be discontinued. Factories were generally working short time, and with reduced staffs. The textile trade is better placed this month than last, a government order affecting the woolen mills. The Watson Manufacturing Company started work during the month after a slack time of several months.

But few building permits have been issued. Work was being carried forward by the new brick and new silk factory, and at the glue works, bricklayers being busy on these jobs. At the Ontario School for the Blind and the new post office inside work was being done. The Gas Company has commenced erecting the new offices. One large store and a few small ones were being remodelled. The Lorne bridge was being raised and the necessary cement work being done.

The canning factory at Burford was busy, with about 40 people employed. The supply of labor was far in excess of the demand.

Agriculturalists have finished harvesting, and threshing and ploughing were in progress. The farmers have no trouble in securing help. Crops have been fairly good. A large supply of vegetables was coming forward.

Railroad construction was practically at a standstill. All other industries were quiet, with but a poor industrial outlook.

The Y.M.C.A. Exerting Tremendous Influence For Good In Brantford

Almost a year ago, a young man, weary in spirit, entered this beautiful city of ours. But the beauty offered him no cheer and the air of prosperity was to him a mockery, for his was a sorry plight. He had wandered from a neighboring city unable to find employment and was tired, weary and worn. He had no money and knew not where he might sleep, and his next meal was a thing of chance. No wonder then, his face was sad. A few brief months ago his mother had been called from earth, and his father reeked little what became of his only son. So the youth had left all that was dear to him and after buffeting against the hard rocks of life, had showed the young fellow around the building. He simply said, "We will talk over this upstairs," and there and then he took his new found friend to the dining-room, where a substantial meal was ordered. That meal afterwards was recollected as the one of that young man's life. It began a new era. He did not mince matters, but did ample justice to the bounteous viands proffered and the Secretary with a kindly eye looked on. Later in the evening, considerably cheered, he lay down upon a little dormitory bed, the first time for many a day.

His noticed things next morning. Everything was neat, trim and clean and he looked with amazement at room. Then there was the gymnasium, which he found to be splendidly equipped in an up-to-date manner. Here his lost vitality was regained. The swimming tank, too, claimed his attention for he had been a water polist at one time for his old school. These were but a few of the advantages he found in his new home and yet there were other activities, into which he, with a capacity for useful work, entered. There was a series of bible classes and the dormitory men's class for religious study was soon one of his favorite hours.

And so this young man progressed from the lowest rung to the higher rungs of the social ladder. He noted the moral atmosphere which life in the Y. M. C. A. imparted. He knew that the life was a live wire, one and was informed that 400 men had, during the existence of the Y. M. C. A.'s new building, been taken care of in the Dormitories.

Being deeply interested in Y. M. C. A. work he will take an active part in the work of the winter and the Secretary of the 'Y' has now in him one of his most earnest supporters. Among the various classes, mapped out, are twelve Bible Study groups, and a men's regular class. A much needed class will be held for young Sunday School teachers, who are desirous of being well informed upon Biblical topics.

An interesting transgression from the beaten track is the plan of factory talks, which are formulated. It is proposed to give dinner time to factory workers upon the important questions of life and such things as health, sanitation and hygiene will be dealt with. Citizens' talks will also form part of the programme in which citizens, rights, duties and privileges will be clearly given to those who do not fully comprehend the responsibilities of citizenship.

Another branch of work is that of teaching the foreigner the English language, and one Armenian class is already formed.

The plan of winter activities has been mapped out on a stupendous scale and there is every hope of a most successful winter's work being done. Specially re-inforced, the office staff are now busily engaged in keeping up to the trend of modern times, and with the help of such men as our friend already mentioned, there is little doubt that they are ready for the greatest effort they have yet made.

It is your duty to be a member of this vast organization, for even though it is glorious in its aims upon the unit, without whose strength in numbers cannot be attained.

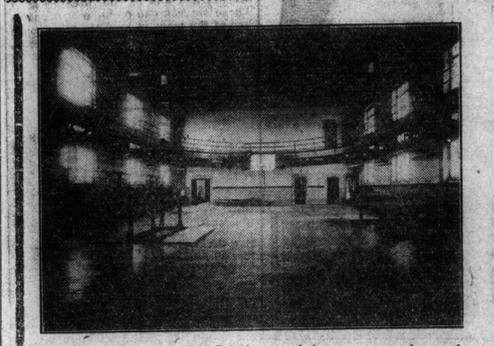

A Dormitory Room.

The above is a typical room of the Y.M.C.A. dormitory, where comfort and health abound.

found himself, without a cent, destitute in a pleasing city, and without friends. In a moody frame of mind, he looked around and decided to once again seek for work. His battered appearance was against him and he replied to a chery "Good morning" as he met the secretary pouring over the morning's letters. Under the supervision of the Y. M. C. A. he smartened up and his clothes were brushed into a fair semblance of respectability. Soon, with the co-operation of "Y" workers, a place was found for the new comer, among the toilers of the huge glass door. There was an air of hospitality and the warmth of the hall at once approached the office. The head of the Y. M. C. A. was there. On outstretched hand, a hearty grip and a look with a word sealed the friendship.

Slowly, with the kindly sympathy of the Secretary he told his story, and that word knew that here was a case for him. He did not stop to city, and he began to take his place among the activities of the institution.

Once again there was the old sparkle in his eye and he looked out upon the sea of life with hope. He had found the Y. M. C. A. an open door to a brighter future.

Friends were made to replace those of the past. The Fellowship Hall was always a social centre wherein he could spend a pleasant evening when he was not engaged in the reading

SAGE TEA PUTS LIFE AND COLOR IN HAIR

Don't Stay Gray!—It Darkens so Naturally That Nobody Can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally, and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly, and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all hair falls out, itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray haired unattractive folks aren't wanted around so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

SAY GOOD-BYE.
MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—Some of the Canadian soldiers on their way to the front are taking an interest in the way of bidding good-bye to friends. Seven members of the Fifth Royal Highlanders threw off their ship a bottle in which was a farewell message to a local newspaper. The bottle was picked up on the shore of the Isle of Orleans and forwarded to the office of the paper here.

A SAD DEATH.
ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 2.—Mrs. Henrietta Bennett, mother of R. N. Bennett, M. P., Calgary, died yesterday at her home at Hopewell Hill, N. B. Another son, George, is with the Canadian contingent on its way to the war.

Kaiser, Like Napoleon, Will Soon be Fighting for Very Existence

The American military officer writing a daily review of the war for the New York Herald says in Tuesday's paper.

The German situation at this writing betrays a marked resemblance to the position of Napoleon following the great battle of Leipzig. In that memorable action the French were defeated and Europe rose in a coalition against the French. From that time on the armies of Napoleon were compelled to fight for Napoleon were compelled to fight, not for further conquest, but to serve their own lines of retreat to the Rhine. In the following spring, 1814, Napoleon was battling for his very existence on the ground where the Germans and allies are now locked in battle.

The German invasion of France which commenced August 4, when Belgium was entered, has resolved itself into a fierce struggle by the invaders to hold open the railways to the northeast and an equal determination on the part of the French to cut those communications, surround General Kluck's army if possible, and, failing in this, to drive the invaders steadily back over the route whence they came.

To prevent the complete destruction of the right wing, the German forces under the Crown Prince have made desperate attacks on the east and centre, hoping to break through the French line, crush it and, in turn, seize the railway connections leading east to Nancy and Arras. These attacks by the forces of the Crown Prince have carried the German line forward several miles, and have resulted in the taking of at least two forts to the southwest of Verdun, but they have not succeeded in breaking the line of the allies. The British-French front has been sent back but it has not been broken.

To judge from the last news available the allies in front of St. Quentin are for the moment contenting themselves with holding Von Kluck's men down, while from every indication which is patent a movement of importance is under way to the northward.

The Germans seem perfectly able to prevent the Antwerp garrison from making any important move, and if damage results to the German lines in the vicinity of Mons that damage must come from forces not heretofore accounted for. The Germans already know and have doubt-

HOW 'GAY GORDONS' FOUGHT

Four Battles in Five Days—Only 170 of Regiment Left to Answer Roll Call.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—From a letter written by one of England's wounded heroes in Alexandra Hospital, Cosham, Hants, a lucid idea is obtained of the spirit of intense patriotism which actuates every officer and man of Great Britain's forces in the field. The letter was written by Samuel Smiley, one of the pitifully meagre remnants of what was one of the nation's crack regiments of the line, the Gordon Highlanders, known throughout the service as "the gay and gallant Gordons." It appears that more than seventy-five per cent. of the command either perished or were wounded in the first fierce fighting on Belgian soil. Some extracts follow:

Hurricane of Shell.

"At Mons I got a crack on the knee with a shrapnel splinter. I knew nothing of it until my officer pointed it out to me. I dug it out with a pen knife and now I assure you I feel no ill effects. Of course there is a wound, but I'll be surprised if it is not healed within a week."

"I'll tell you about the fighting at Mons, but I have absolutely no coherent recollection of Cambrai. The hurricane of shell there has left me benumbed, and I do not yet realize that I am home. We marched out of our billets at four o'clock in the morning and took up a position on the main Paris road. Mons itself was somewhat what left on our rear."

"We then dug our trenches, and much labor and love we put into the work. The ball opened at half-past eleven with a terrible artillery duel, the German shells bursting over our trenches. Our company, D, with company B, on our left, held the right side of the road. Company C was in advance and the Middlesex regiment and the Royal Irish held the crossroads to our left flank in the direction of Mons. The artillery fire was continued for several hours, until a movement of infantry was observed which was evidently intended for the Gordons."

Simply Blasted Away.

"They occupied the wood to our left front. We opened on them with a terrific maxim fire. Poor devils, they advanced in companies of quite 150 men in files five deep. As our rifle has a flat trajectory up to 600 yards, you can see the result. We could steady our rifles on the trenches and take deliberate aim. The first company of them was simply blasted away to heaven by a volley at 700 yards, and in their insane formation every bullet was sure to find two billets."

"The other companies kept advancing very slowly, with their dead comrades as cover, but they had absolutely no chance, and at about five o'clock their infantry retired. We were still being subjected to a terrible artillery fire—God, how their artillery do fire!—but we had time to observe what was happening on our left flank. The Royal Irish regiment had been surprised and fearfully cut up, and so, too, had the Middlesex. Beggars Description.

"Then follow a scene which beggars description, by me. We crept from our trenches and crossed to the other side of the road, where we had the benefit of a ditch for cover. We made excellent progress until one hundred and fifty yards from the crossroads. There was a small white house flush with the road standing in a clearing. Our young subaltern was leading, and safely crossed the front of the house. He immediately the Germans opened a hellish storm of shrapnel at the house. They could not see us, but I guess they knew why troops should pass there. However our orders were to relieve the Royal Irish, and astounding as it may seem, we passed that house, and I was the only one to be hit. Even yet I am amazed at our luck."

"By this time the dusk had set in. Four villages were on fire and the Germans were still shelling the plucky Royal Irish. The dead and wounded were all around us. We repulsed a very faint-hearted Uhlan attack, and about 9 p.m. came our orders to retire. What a pitiful handful we were against the German host, and yet we held the flower of their army at bay all day."

Their Busy Days.

"At four o'clock on Monday morning they attacked so again, so we left the milk (303) on the doorstep and retired again. Two fights and fifteen miles in thirty-six hours. On Tuesday at 2.30 p.m. the Gordons were sent to out some German infantry from a position on our left front. We had to cross a long turnip field, and I twisted my bad ankle. It was a damned fine state of affairs, and my company officer got me a seat on the limber of the 128th battery. Royal Field Artillery. I had not been ten minutes before they galloped into action with me. I was beginning to feel the reverse of cheerful when, after they fired a few rounds we got our order to make our getaway."

"We got. By this time the Gordons had disappeared, so I went on to Cambrai. It was when we got in, and I was told, my regiment was some four miles off. I then decided to join some other lot and try to get to the 'jocks' in the morning."

Made the Best of It.

"Accordingly I attached myself to the Royal Fusiliers, B. Company. At 6.30 on Wednesday morning as they were going into action, I thought I might as well make the best of it, so I went into action with them. I fought all that day and marched all night and when 8 o'clock Thursday morning came I saw all that was left of the gallant and gay Gordons—170 men answered their names. God knows how many more were alive. I joined up there and carried on retiring until we arrived at Noyon. Four engagements and fifty miles in five days. "I was compelled to go sick there. The pain in my leg was unbearable, and the doctor dangled me on a Red Cross train and sent me to Rouen. I was there an hour when came the command, 'Hurry up, hurry up, we've got to quit,' so we were chivvied up to Havre, and well, there you are."
