The Way to Keep Down the Cost of Living:

Buy Your Groceries, Teas & Coffees From WENTZELL'S Limited.

From one end of the Province to the other WENTZELL'S LIMITED is known as the "Big Store." It is known as a store having a big stock, a big variety, and giving big value—the only part that is small is the price.

WENTZELL'S LIMITED buy in the very largest quantities direct from sources of supply. Having ample capital, they pay cash, thus securing everything at the very lowest market price.

The policy of the "Big Store" is "large sales and small profits." This has built up a tremendous business, nothing like it east of Montreal. That's the reason why the "Big Store" prices are always so reasonable, and why you can keep down the cost of living if you trade here.

The Farm Boys Cavaliers.

A letter has been received from the Minnesota University Farm at St. Paul, Minn., regarding the organization of farm boys, which is reproduced below but with the suggestion that a junior auxiliary of the body may well be formed with younger boys as members, boys of the age when a Shetland pony is suitable mount, to give them the mental education in the saddle which cannot be given at too early an age.

Good Rich Blood Means Good Health.

JUST A LITTLE MORE RICH, RED BLOOD CURES MOST AILMENTS.

The lack of sufficient rich, red blood does not end merely in a pale complexion. It is much more serious. Bloodless people are tired, run-down folk who do not enjoy life. Food does not nourish; there is indigestion, heart palpitation, headache and nearly always nervousness. If this bloodlessness is neglected too long, a decline is sure to follow. Just a little more rich, red blood cures all these troubles. Then you have new health, new vitality and pleasure in life. To get more rich, red blood the remedy is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. No other medicine increases or enriches the blood so quickly and so surely. This is not a mere claim. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done this over and over again throughout why thousands of people always have a good word to say for this medicine. Miss Gertrude Hafner, Kingston, Ont., says:—"About two years ago I was suffering greatly with anemia, so much that I had to give up my situation. I became so weak that I could scarcely walk without help. I had no ambition, no color, no appetite and was constantly troubled with headache and dizzy spells. I was taking medicine from the doctor but it did not do me a particle of good. One day a friend asked me if I had tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Though as the result of my condition I was greatly discouraged, I began the use of the Pills, and thanks to the doctor's advice after using a few boxes I began to feel much better. Under the continued use of the Pills I gained weight, my color came back and I grew gradually stronger. I looked so much better that people would ask me what I was taking and I had no hesitation in giving the credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I am so grateful for what this medicine has done for me that I will do all I can to extend its use."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Memorial to Britain's Bravest Boy.

The passage in Rear Admiral Bight's despatch on the North Sea fight, which appeals to commentators and stirs all England is that in which the Admiral pays a tribute to the heroism of a boy, John Travers Corwall, of H. M. S. Chester, who was mortally wounded early in action. The Admiral says: "He nevertheless remained standing alone at a most exposed post during the action with the gun crew dead and wounded all around him."

Corwall joined the navy in August 1915 and went into the training school. He had been at sea only a few weeks when he was killed. The captain of the Chester, in a letter to the boy's mother, says: "He remained steady at his most exposed post at the gun waiting for orders. His gun would not bear on the enemy. All but two of the gun crew were killed and he was the only one who was in such an exposed position, but he felt he might be needed and indeed he might have been; so he stood there standing and waiting until a heavy fire with just his own brave heart and God's help to support him. I cannot express to you my admiration of the son you have lost from this world. I hope to place in the boy's mess a plate with his name and the date and the words: 'faithful unto death.'"

Shape Didn't Matter

Butcher—Will you have a round steak, please?
Mrs. Youngbride—I don't care what shape it is so it's tender.—Boston Transcript.

Just a Vacation for the Mother.

When they picked the old lady up they found several broken bones and a body sadly bruised. She attempted to cross the street, became confused and stepped in the path of a great machine which came to a jarred stop ten feet from where it had brushed her aside. They carried her into her own home a few days away. The doctor looked at her and said nothing. The neighbors frightened and excited, crowded into the room, stepped on each other's toes and spilled water over the floor. The old lady couldn't possibly live, they thought. She was old and weak and the shock alone was enough to kill her. The doctor ordered her taken to the hospital, and they said she would never come back alive.

They missed her greatly from her home, where she was always sweeping, or scrubbing, or engaged in other of the numerous duties that fell to the working hand of a large household. She was a Trojan for work, they said, accordingly popular in a neighborhood where hard work had not fallen into disrepute.

At the hospital they gave her three hours to live. She lived the three hours, then three days, and was able to get up at the end of three weeks. The neighbors came to offer their condolences and to help her while away the long hospital hours. They expected to find her broken in spirit as well as bruised in body. Instead she was very cheerful, as if nearly gay as her staid and quiet spirit permitted. She was lying in a ward because the sterility of her resources forbade the use of a private room, and every day or so came depressing ill. A woman who occupied a nearby cot during the night. A lady about her were suffering and sorrow. The little group of loyal neighbors who made regular visits marveled at her cheerfulness and wondered how she could possibly grow better in the sombre atmosphere of the hospital.

She improved rapidly. The nurse, thinking to gladden her, told her one day that she could go home at the end of the week. She appeared depressed and said little during the rest of the day. When the nurse, surprised, asked her if she wasn't glad to be able to leave the hospital, she gave an evasive answer. That night she told the doctor she felt worse and asked if she couldn't stay just one week longer after the day for her departure. He said she was so much improved that there was really no reason why she should not leave immediately. She pleaded to be allowed to stay, and he pressed her for a reason. She told him in her quiet broken English: "Almost fifty years have I been married. I have five grown boys, I have no girls. Always it is work, always I must wait on them. I make the breakfast in the morning, fix the luncheon, make the dinner, make the supper in the evening. I sew on buttons, pick up the clothes they throw down, find the things they are all the time losing. Always it is wait on them, always here it is die out, they wait on me. The men bring me my dinner, everything I eat on nobody. It is fine. It is my vacation. I would like to stay one more week. Then I go back home."

The doctor muttered something about the thoughtfulness of male kind and let her stay.

No Alum

Tired and Discouraged.

Mrs. Warren Randles, Rethby, Kings County, N. B., writes, "I have three small children and have to stay in the house all winter. So when spring came I was all run down doing all my work and looking after the children. I felt all tired out, and looked on the gloomy side all the time. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the result was most satisfactory. I feel like a new woman, and recommend the Nerve Food to others."

Jimmy Up to Date.

(From the Boston Traveller.)
Jimmy, an office boy in a downtown office, approached his boss one morning last week.

"If you please, sir."
"Well, Jimmy?"
"My grandmother, sir."
"Aha, your grandmother; go on, Jimmy."
"My grandmother and my mother—"
"What? And your mother, too? Both very ill, eh?"
"No, sir. My grandmother and my mother are gone to the hospital and this afternoon each want me to stay home and mind my little kid brother."
Jimmy got the afternoon off.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The preponderant wealth of Eastern America is clearly indicated in returns published by the United States government of federal income tax payments. Of the $124,867,420 income tax collected during the fiscal year which ended June 30, one-third came from the State of New York and one-fourth from three Eastern States, New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. New York paid $42,230,679, Pennsylvania $13,102,434, and Massachusetts $6,762,017. From these three States and Illinois, which contributed $10,745,841, came the greatest percentage of increase, which raised this year's collections from $81,000,000 to more than $124,000,000.

How to Live Long.

Many ailments find their beginning in a torpid sluggish condition of liver, kidneys and bowels. As a matter of fact you can add years to the length of your life as well as comfort and happiness by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to keep these organs regular and active.

"Who was that chap who just said 'Hello' to you?"

Nerves Were So Upset Could Not Endure Noise

Neuralgic Headaches and Extreme Nervousness Caused Keenest Suffering—Lasting Cure by Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Once the nervous system gets run down everything seems to tend to make it worse. You worry over your condition, are unable to get the required rest and sleep, noises excite and irritate you and the future is most threatening.

The nervous system does not get the proper nourishment from the food you eat, so you must have something else to lift you out of the run-down condition. You may find that your experience coincides with the writer of this letter and be encouraged to get Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to the test.

You will make no mistake in employing this food cure, for, acting as it does hand in hand with Nature, it is bound to do you good.

Mrs. J. M. Jensen, Oryenne, Alta., writes: "About ten years ago I was troubled with severe attacks of neuralgia and nervousness, and was for several months so bad that I could not get a night's rest. I used several medicines recommended by the druggist. My doctor also prescribed, but nothing he gave me brought any relief. Instead I got worse and worse until I could scarcely do anything or bear the least bit of noise. My nerves were all upset.

"My husband read about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and got me some. Although I had no faith in it, I began to use it, and after a few doses began to sleep well and the neuralgia left me entirely. I used six more boxes and have never had any trouble from neuralgia or the nerves since.

"This is to certify that I know Mrs. Jensen and believe this statement to be true and correct. Fred Freeman, J.P."

WOMAN HAD NERVOUS TROUBLE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

West Danby, N. Y.—"I have had nervous trouble all my life until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and for female troubles and it straightened me out in good shape. I work nearly all the time, as we live on a farm and I have four girls. I do all my sewing and other work with their help, so it shows that I stand it real well. I took the Compound when my ten-year-old daughter came and it helped me a lot. I have also had my oldest girl take it and it did her lots of good. I keep it in the house all the time and recommend it."—Mrs. DEWITT SINCENBAUGH, West Danby, N. Y.

A firm of distillers in Dayton, O., made a special offer of 'private stock' whiskey at a special 'introductory' price to Dr. A. T. Abernethy, and failing to hear from him with the order expected they sent a 'follow-up' letter, expressing surprise that he had not accepted 'the greatest offer ever presented to the men of America.' They further said: "Thousands of men jumped at the opportunity to try this superior whiskey, and we cannot understand why we did not hear from you—man to man—can't you use a quart of rich, pure whiskey in your home?" Then Dr. Abernethy made answer—"You say that you cannot understand why you did not hear from me. Yes, and I, too, am surprised that you have not heard from me. I have used your rye whiskey in the past, and I have tried rye whiskey of other distillers of your kind, and I am surprised that they have not all heard from me."

You should have heard from me when I drew a fortune of $30,000 out of the banks and wasted it in riotous living, reveling with other unfortunates under the demonic alchemy and spell of your devilish deception. You should have heard from me when I threw away a reputation equal to that of any young man in America for the privilege of making an out-cast and wreck of myself drinking your vile whiskey.

I will admit I have been remiss in not letting you hear from me long before this time. I should have written you with a pen made from the plumage plucked from the bird of paradise that I drew from my contented and happy home; I should have penned you in my heart's blood on the occasion of the burial of my grey-haired mother, whose heart I broke by my conduct while under the devilish influence of your damnable stuff; I should have kept you informed, I should have reported progress. When I woke to this sad realization that, from a man carrying degrees and titles of honor from the greatest universities, and started well up the ladder of recognition as the author of more than sixteen historical works I had fallen into mental, moral, physical and financial bankruptcy I should have called on you. I should have wended my way into your richly decorated private office in Dayton, the walls of which are crimson with the blood of thousands of

The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Watson
A political office in a small United States town was vacant. The office paid $250 a year and there was keen competition for it. The Democratic candidate, Ezekiel Blinks, was a shrewd old fellow, and a substantial campaign fund was got together for him. To the astonishment of all, however, he was defeated.
"I can't account for it," said one of the Democratic leaders gloomily. "With that money we should have won. How did you lay it out Ezekiel?"
"Well," said Ezekiel, slowly, scratching his head, "I've seen that office only pays $250 a year salary. I didn't see no sense in payin' $500 out to get the office so I just bought me a little farm instead."

A certain officer of the Royal Horse Artillery having his batteries divided into half batteries which were garrisoned more than forty miles apart, by road, applied that he might have an allowance granted him for an extra charger, it being his duty frequently to visit both portions.
The War Office ruled that this allowance was inadmissible saving, "Measured by the ordinance map as the crow flies the distance is found to be only thirty-three miles and a half."
For a time the officer was nonplussed, but an idea struck him and he seized his pen and wrote, "There would appear to be some misunderstanding regarding my application. I am making an application for an additional charger, not an additional crow. I do not ride a crow. I ride a horse."
He got it.

human needs, and these demands of you that you give me the reward of my faithful vassalage to your devilish, demoralizing, disease-making, mind-ruining business.
But if I have been remiss in letting you hear from me, remember that you will hear from me in the future. I am now a preacher of the Gospel, and am making it my business to let not only you but every other man in Canada know that I am being heard from. You make your appeal to me as man to man—and it is because you are not a man, and because your infernal business unman me that I am fighting it to the bitter end with all the reconsecrated powers left in the form-man that your demoralizing dope could not destroy.
You speak of talking as man to man. Why, you would not dare stand before a man and insult his manliness with the proposition to unsteady his nerves, destroy his digestion, disturb his heart action, muddle his mind, demoralize his demeanor, abuse his activity and cloud his conscience with the use of your material. You urge me to stop and consider; and it is because I have stopped and considered that I am eternally and everlastingly the sworn enemy to your infernal business so long as I shall hereafter be permitted to live.

Everlasting Leap-Year.
So far as proposals of marriage are concerned, in New Guinea it is always leap-year, for in that island the men consider it beneath their dignity to notice women, much less to make overtures of marriage. Consequently, the proposing is left to the woman to do.
When the ebony belle falls in love with a man she sends a piece of string to his sister, or if he has no sister, to his mother, or another of his lady relatives.
Then the lady who receives the string tells the dusky masher that the particular damsel is in love with him. No courting follows, however, for it is considered beneath a New Guinea gentleman's dignity to waste time in such a pursuit.
If the man thinks he would like to wed the lady, he meets her alone, and they decide straight away whether to marry or drop the idea.
In the former case the betrothal is announced. The man is then branded on the back with charcoal, while a mark is cut into the woman's skin.
No breach-of-promise actions are possible in New Guinea, though if the lady is jilted her friends may hunt her lover up and "go" for him. On the other hand, if the dars damsel proves faithless, she is liable to be beaten by her betrothed if he catches her.

I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S OINTMENT and in six days I was out at work again. I think it the best Liniment made.

THE FLUME AT BROOKS.
(1) Where C.P.R. Crosses the Brooks Aqueduct.
(2) The Aqueduct.
(3) The Interior of the Aqueduct.
THE Bassano Dam is the most important engineering work in the Eastern section of the Canadian Pacific Irrigation Block, but it is not the only important feature by any means. Next to it in importance comes the Brooks Aqueduct. The main irrigation canal, which is fed from the lake created by the Bassano Dam, runs in an easterly direction for about five miles and then divides into two branches, one going north and the other east. The east branch, after having filled several smaller branches, discharges the bulk of its water into the Lake Nowell reservoir which has been artificially formed in a depression in the hills, is nine miles long by four wide, has a storage capacity of over 100,000,000 gallons, and is designed to be filled during the non-irrigating season. Just east of the Lake Nowell reservoir is a deep valley about 2 miles wide and it is for the purpose of crossing it that the Brooks Aqueduct was constructed, consisting of a reinforced concrete trestle 10,450 feet long with a curved cross section some 23 feet wide at the top and nearly 9 feet deep from full-flow water level at the top to the centre of the curve at bottom. It has a discharge capacity of 900 cubic feet per second, the water being 4.85 feet lower than the water on its crest, and carries a grade for the water flow, and it carries a grade for the irrigation of 125,000 acres situated in the Hantry Hills. The flume, the walls of which are five inches thick, is suspended between horizontal girders, the whole supported by a reinforced concrete trestle made up of numerous columns with a maximum height of 60 feet, but lower in places according to the contour of the valley. About three feet east of the trestle, the line of the aqueduct is crossed by the Canadian Pacific Ry., and the track being at such an elevation that it was impossible to carry the flume overhead, it was necessary to build a siphon under the track. At the west side of the track the curved form of the flume is continued round until it is completely circular, pipe is made, which dips at an angle of about 15 degrees and enters the ground, passing under the rails at a slight depth for a distance of about 15 feet when it rises again to the original level and reverts to its original form. The siphon is 2 feet 9 inches in diameter at the smallest, and 15 feet, 5 1/2 inches at the largest point. This is said to be the first aqueduct in which the peculiar form adopted has been used and the engineering problems presented considerable difficulty. That they were happily solved is proved by the fact that when the water was turned on the siphon remained perfectly water-tight under all pressures.

FIGHTING FOREST FIRES

Five Dollars a Head is Cost For Forest Fires in Ontario

The forest fires in Ontario during 1915 cost every family a five-dollar bill. This statement is mathematical, exact for the reason that Ontario loses over three million dollars' worth of her forest wealth between April and November of that year.
Practically all of this destruction was due to the fires which could have been prevented. Nearly eighty per cent. of what Ontario burned was due to carelessness on the part of settlers, prospectors and others brought into contact with the standing timber. Between Peabroke and North Bay this average of destruction was proved by actual records of the fire rangers.
Annual forest losses in Quebec and British Columbia are due to practically the same cause, although these provinces unlike Ontario have overcome much of the evil by excellent legislation in the form of Permit Laws. Before a Quebec or British Columbia settler is allowed to burn his brush or his clearing stumps, he must first obtain a permit from the forest ranger or other official. In stead of this requirement working hardship, it acts in a manner exactly the contrary. One careless settler in a district is not allowed to burn the wood lots and standing timber of nearby limits without penalty befitting the act. The innocent and ill-fortuned neighbor is not involved in the blame with the guilty man, and responsibility is placed where it belongs. Every settler is obliged to observe a ranger's advice as to the correct way of using fire in timbered areas. For instance, the settler is encouraged to stack his brush in the open and not on the edge of growing timber; he is advised to choose a day when the wind will blow down and wash carefully for stray sparks which are simple instructions which any one might be expected to take. Unfortunately through ignorance of the danger involved by carelessness, many settlers require legal restrictions. This assures equal treatment for all.
Evidence in the hands of the Canadian Forestry Association, proves conclusively that the settlers themselves in British Columbia have been an enthusiastic supporter of the Permit Law, recognizing it as quite as sensible as any other law designed to prevent incendiarism in towns or cities. Indications are that a duplicate of the British Columbia Permit Law will be introduced in Ontario, and a welcome reception in Ontario, and that the settlers would soon realize that such a measure can be worked without any bothersome "red tape."

GROWTH
After we are born our rate of growth decreases steadily, until we are full grown.
You can see how regularly growth decreases after birth by watching the increase in a baby's weight.
In six months quadruples its weight in thirty-six months.
You grow in a series of spurts which follow a regular order. There is a grand maximum of growth during the first few weeks of life, then it rapidly decreases up to three years, decreasing still more up to nine or eleven years in boys and from the ninth to the tenth year in girls.
There is a short period when growth almost ceases.
A man's height rarely increases after he is twenty-five years old, but woman may add as much as an inch to her height up to the age of thirty or even beyond.

NEW BRUNSWICK RIVER
Great Size of Restigouche, the Salmon Stream
The Restigouche of New Brunswick (Five Finger River) has received its name from its five principal branches—the Matapedia, Uppalutich, Pate, Kedgewich and main river. All Matapedia is the terminus of the railroad which runs through the Gaspeian Peninsula, skirting the Gulf, Bay and river. At Matapedia, at its junction with the main river, the scenery is very grand. Occasionally in the spring, when an ice-jam occurs, the river flows over the top of the banks and at Matapedia, the houses have been flooded—the inmates being compelled to flee, leaving the furniture floating around. Hannay, made is a high mountain, known as the "White Mountain," rising in three natural terraces on a point of land between the Restigouche and Uppalutich, which enters the main river from the south. This tributary is wide—fully one hundred and fifty yards—at the mouth. Above, for a great part of its course the main river is two hundred yards wide; then Matapedia, thirty miles beyond is reached, which in addition to the main river above Kedgewich, and the Kedgewich, have been reserved by the Government for salmon breeding purposes.

Good Excuse For Smoking
In spite of his diatribes against the "sin of society," Father Vaughan is by no means an ascetic, and he has a great contempt for the person who goes about denying himself every pleasure that life can give. And "thereby hangs a tale."
On one occasion Father Vaughan ordered a good cigar to a very poor-looking, hunched type of minister who belonged to another persuasion than himself. The pious one rejected the offer.
"It was not sent into the world to smoke," he said, holding up his hands in protest.
"Ah," replied Father Vaughan, "I belong to a church that prefers to get its smoking done in this world. I hope you won't mind me lighting up!"

Tea-growing in India
Scattered all over India we find the British-owned and managed tea gardens. From insignificant beginnings has grown up a huge industry, till we now have 500,000 acres growing tea, and employing 700,000 persons, both sexes. Producing 250,000,000 pounds of tea, India sends her teas all over the civilized world. India is now the greatest tea-exporting country in the world. Australia, New Zealand, Canada—all the British dominions beyond the seas—have shared in this expansion of the tea trade.

LIQUID OXYGEN
It has long been known that liquid oxygen mixed with substances like cotton wool forms a powerful explosive, but serious difficulties were encountered in its practical use. A new method has now been discovered for handling this oxygen that makes it practical for commercial, industrial and domestic use.
Bags are filled with a special form of lampblack which are soaked in the liquid oxygen for a few minutes just before they are required for use.
If the bag is now lighted with a match it will burn quietly and very slowly, but if detonated it explodes with the force of dynamite, and the cost is much less.
Much less carbon monoxide is given off than by most other explosives, and there is no danger from a misfire as the oxygen will evaporate in a short time.

MERCURY BICHLORIDE
How to Prevent Accident by Mistaking For Other Medicines
Various methods designed to prevent the mistaking of bichloride of mercury for medicine, or some other harmless substance, have been proposed with the idea of making it possible to use this deadly poison as an antiseptic without incurring any danger. Two of the latest of these are extremely simple but evidently effective. One method consists in stringing the tablets together and then bottling them in the usual manner. A tablet can only be detached by cutting the string, and this apparently does away with all possibility of mistake. The other method is to incase the tablets in metal guards having sharp prongs, so that it is impossible to swallow them. The tablet can be dissolved with the guard in place or can easily be removed from the guard.

A Canadian in Native Costume
This gallantly dressed and happy looking individual with the long-stemmed pipe in a typical Sobriety—one of the thousands that fought so well against the Teutonic hordes. Holiday clothes such as these will be unknown for many years probably, most of the men of the country having worn nothing but military uniforms for so long, and there being no occasion for holiday raiment in Berlin nowadays.

LIQUID OXYGEN
It has long been known that liquid oxygen mixed with substances like cotton wool forms a powerful explosive, but serious difficulties were encountered in its practical use. A new method has now been discovered for handling this oxygen that makes it practical for commercial, industrial and domestic use.
Bags are filled with a special form of lampblack which are soaked in the liquid oxygen for a few minutes just before they are required for use.
If the bag is now lighted with a match it will burn quietly and very slowly, but if detonated it explodes with the force of dynamite, and the cost is much less.
Much less carbon monoxide is given off than by most other explosives, and there is no danger from a misfire as the oxygen will evaporate in a short time.

MERCURY BICHLORIDE
How to Prevent Accident by Mistaking For Other Medicines
Various methods designed to prevent the mistaking of bichloride of mercury for medicine, or some other harmless substance, have been proposed with the idea of making it possible to use this deadly poison as an antiseptic without incurring any danger. Two of the latest of these are extremely simple but evidently effective. One method consists in stringing the tablets together and then bottling them in the usual manner. A tablet can only be detached by cutting the string, and this apparently does away with all possibility of mistake. The other method is to incase the tablets in metal guards having sharp prongs, so that it is impossible to swallow them. The tablet can be dissolved with the guard in place or can easily be removed from the guard.
