A True Diamond

CHAPTER V.

A WILD COLT.

Toney jumped up and was all life again, and walking softly she made advances to a young thoroughbred; who was, like Toney herself, feeling that life is after all a very pleasant possession. There are a few brings born with a strange power over animals, which power, like other gifts, is not to be acquired, and has never been satisfactorily explained. Toney could not lean her notes, but she could ride any horse, and what she made up for that silly tea-party that I have to attend."

In a few minutes Toney was having a glorious gallop on the bare-backed colt round the outskirts of the park, keeping, from motives of prudence, well out of sight of the house. Suddenly she came to a low fence, and the temptation was too great to resist. "Now, Beauty, over, and don't jerk me off, or I shall never forgive you."

In another moment Toney and the colt, without having parted company, landed on a smooth grass road, leading apparently to another park. At that moment, from another side path, a young man on an old hunter stopped her progress.

"By Jove!" was his exclamation, and Toney, red with her exertion, looked up, somewhat displeased, to see before her a young man, good-looking man, whose sun burnt countenance spoke plainly of foreign climes.

Beauty was too much excited to wish to pause in his novel occupation, so without another word Toney turned his head and repeated the jump over the fence. This done with the agility of a wild animal, she swung herself down and Beauty continued his gallop alone.

"By Jove!" repeated the young man, walking his horse up to the fence. "Do you know that you were trespassing by jumping over this fence?"

"No, how should I know it?" said Toney, sitting on the top of the post, and immediately beginning to stroke the hunter's nose. "I'm just a stranger here, giving myself a little shake up in this dull park."

"Dull park! A stranger?" ("A very extraordinary specimen" he muttered under his breath.)

"I imagine you are a stranger too or you would have heard about Lady Dove's kindness."

"Well, I am and I'm not a stranger. This is my property, and my name is Lewis Waycott."

MEDICINE Versus NATURE

Why turn yourself into a medicine-chest, filling it with every new concoction that comes along? Nature does the curing, not medicine. Ask your Doctor if SUNSHINE AND Scott's Emulsion is not the treatment for Coughs and Colds, Grippe, and many other ills. ALL DRUGGISTS 11-42 property is not big enough for you, pray come into mine, only the Waycotts and the Doves are not bosom friends."

"Family feud?"

"Well, not exactly; but my father and Lady Dove had words, and Toney laughed aloud.

"I've had words with her too; but I only came yesterday, and that she thinks I'm not much of a young lady."

"Not an ordinary young lady, perhaps," suggested Mr. Waycott, hiding a smile.

"Have you got any poor relations, Mr. Waycott?" Toney's abrupt changes of conversation were often rather puzzling.

Lewis Waycott tried to think if he had or had not.

"Well, I don't know, I'm sure. Most people have. My Aunt Della, who is going to live with me, is not rich."

"That doesn't seem quite the same thing. Well, you see, Mr. Waycott, I'm a poor relation, and I've been trying hard to think what I could do to earn a living. But in this dull park they don't want anything that I can do."

Toney spoke quite earnestly. "I should fancy Sir Evas has enough money for many relations," he said.

"Pups said that, and somehow I ought to have had some too. I for get why we didn't; but Pups thought I had better come here till I was old."

However, Aunt Dove thinks an education is not quite up to the mark."

"It is beyond it as to riding."

"Yes, and if Aunt Dove wanted to learn to ride, I could earn my board and keep, couldn't I, by teaching her?"

"I think you could! Forgive me laughing! I was thinking Lady Dove would not trust herself on that colt."

"Not half a bad name," said Toney, beginning to pant less audibly; "but it wasn't polite of you to stop me. I thought I had found a way out of this hole."

"Hole! Why Sir Evas Dove's park is the largest in the county," and the young man laughed. "Mine is not half the size, but I'm really sorry I stopped such an amazon. You had to saddle, I see!" and Lewis Waycott fairly laughed.

"Toney, was however, not going to be laughed at.

"I suppose a horse wasn't born with a saddle on as you English people seem to believe. Still, I didn't know this was anybody's property. I'm sorry I went on." Her face was again all smiles, and Lewis Waycott thought he had never seen any one so original before. He longed to ask her name.

"Please don't mention it. If this

THE PATIENT BRAIN

A tireless worker so long as supplied with rich, red blood. The brain is one of the most patient and industrious organs of the body. It can be induced, by good treatment, to perform prodigies of work. But it is sensitive and will not brook abuse. It responds to the lash as first, but if the lash is laid on too hard it balks. Nervous trouble is generally brain trouble, and no suffering is to be compared to mental suffering, with the accompanying dread, suspicion and melancholy. One-fifth of the blood in the human body is consumed by the brain, so make the blood rich and red by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and you will overcome disease of the nerves. Headaches will disappear, irritability will go, digestion will improve, and weakness and despondency will give place to new hope and courage, new vigor and energy. Dr. A. W. fell asleep so often over it, and he thought any further trial would bring on catalepsy."

Before Lewis Waycott could answer, Toney had jumped off the post and was running across the park with the swift easy motion of a trained runner, which very few girls acquire. After watching her for a little while Lewis laughed again.

"Well! Lady Dove must have found her match. A poor relation, indeed! What a good joke!"

CHAPTER VI. TEA AT HOME.

Lady Dove was always "at home" to her friends on Friday at tea time. Some of the boldest called it a "Friday penance," for she was, except on special occasions, by no means a pleasant hostess, being able to say very disagreeable things; at the same time easily taking offence if the neighbourhood neglected her. Sir Evas, on the contrary, was a general favorite, and for his sake and also for many social and political reasons, a good many guests drove over on Friday afternoon to drink tea with Lady Dove at Aldersfield House. If there was one thing more than another which poor Miss Crump disliked, it was this same Friday reception. The poor companion was in this assembly neither fish, flesh, nor fowl, to use an expressive simile. Few people said more than "thank you" to her if she handed them some tea; and as she was never introduced, some of them barely knew her name, and half thought she was a lady-like-looking housekeeper. Others, who knew said, "That poor, dull-looking companion," and that was the end of their meditations about her.

It so happened that this special Friday was the first of April, and so lovely a spring day as it is possible to conceive. The birds were joyous; the trees were tinged with green and red, and the spring flowers a delight to those who had eyes to see them. The visitors made up their minds that though Lady Dove's drawing-room was not the most amusing place to be found, still the drive was a lovely one. It was really a treat to drive through the park, and they might meet many of their friends there. Little did they guess that there would be to-day a novel element in the dull house.

Lady Dove did not expect the Vicarage party to come unasked, now and then they received a formal invitation, and though Mr. Hales was far too good and great a man to notice little insults, his sister did not take it so quietly. The little note had come to-day, and the young Vicar asked if his mother and his sister would accompany him.

"Ah, poor Evas!" said Mrs. Hales smiling; the smile which made her son happy. "let me come with you very often it is not as bad as one imagines."

"There is no one quite good enough or worthy to receive you, mother!"

"What nonsense you talk, Cecil. We shall have a lovely walk; besides, I am rather curious to see our mad Australian again, and it makes Silvia miserably shy to sit under Lady Dove's satire."

At Aldersfield Hall there was another person anxious to see more of the new-comer.

"Aunt Della!" exclaimed Lewis, addressing a widow lady when he came into lunch, "are you going to call at Aldersfield House to-day?"

The cousins, about whom Lady Dove had spoken, were two pretty ladylike girls, both very musical and addicted to much violin playing. Aunt Honoria, the maiden aunt, who directed the household, and who was Lewis' right hand, heard the question.

"Pray, Della, don't spoil your visit here by going to Lady Dove's 'at home,'" said Miss Honoria Waycott. "She is a very disagreeable woman, and none of her people like her. For my part, I give her my mind whenever I see her; but it upsets me for the day."

Lewis laughed. He was a young man who enjoyed the society of women whether they were old or young. He was chivalrous by nature, and even the spilling life which had been his had not spoiled him. He had been left an orphan when a boy of fifteen through the result of a railway accident in which both parents had been killed. His Aunt Honoria had tried to bring him up as well as she could. She was a clever, original woman, and her nephew was devoted to her; but he usually managed to get his own way with her. His Aunt Della, who had lately lost her home and her money, was gentle in manner; but she, too, had a firm will of her own, and it was the signs of this will which Lady Dove disliked. She hated Lewis' father, a man of determined will and of opposite politics, and she was quite willing to pass on her dislike to the son.

It was only now that the Waycotts had at last been able to make up their minds to return to the family place. Lewis had never really forgotten that accident and its results. Bright and cheerful though he was outwardly, he was subject to sudden fits of depression when he recalled the terrible scene. He had, by mere chance, come late for the train, and had jumped into another carriage, meaning to join his parents at the first stopping place. As it was, he never saw them alive again. His aunt had done all she could to replace his parents; but the lad of fifteen had adored his bright, pretty mother, whose idol he was, and no one had ever really taken her place in his heart.

Now it was from a strong sense of duty, and also owing partly to a letter written to him by Mr. Hales, that he had made up his mind to return. The village was owned by the Waycotts and Doves, and the two squires had never been able to live at unity together. Mr. Hales represented the young man that his agent was neglecting his interests, that the poor were suffering, and that it was his duty to look into his own affairs.

"What business is it of Mr. Hales?" Aunt Honoria said sharply. "You do all you can, Lewis, and it would be very painful to live in the old place again."

"Hales says I ought."

"I don't wonder Lady Dove can't get on with such a man."

Economy.

BY H. L. RANN.

Economy is one of the lost arts which has not been practiced in this country since the panic of 1893. It is, in fact, a man's duty to invite in, but never catches up with. Economy is a sort of mental reverse english which slows up people who are thinking of mortgaging their home for an automobile, but it is not popular. In fact, the average man would rather be accused of breaking into the baby's safe than be charged with practicing economy. It used to be considered a virtue to lay up something for a rainy day, but now the brittle wage earner carries endowment life insurance and hurries through his next month's salary before he gets to it. Very few people economize hard enough nowadays to raise any blisters. The worst thing that can happen to a man is to earn a reputation for economy by sleeping in the chair car or carrying off the hotel stationary. The average community is never able to distinguish between the father of a large family whose best suit shines like a cheval mirror, and the ingrained tightwad who would hunt a nickel through a board walk until his eyes ran together in one red burial bint. The neatest form of economy practiced in this country is that used by congress just prior to a presidential election, when several millions of dollars are saved until the next session. Economy has a very baleful effect, when used to excess. Many a close-fisted Mayor has been retired by the unanimous vote of a conscientious electorate who instead of paying every highway in the city but the one upon which they abut. The worst enemy of the republic is the statesman who objects to planting a $225,000 post office building in a city of 345 souls, including the night watch. Economy would be a good thing if a man could get away with it without being detected by the neighbours and tagged in a conspicuous and unpleasant manner whenever he sidled into a 5-cent barber shop.

College Cricket.

A large number of spectators witnessed the third inter-collegiate cricket match for the season on St. George's Field, Saturday afternoon between the St. Bon's and Felldians in which the former won by eight wickets.

In the first innings the B. F. C. boys made 37 of which Sheppard contributed 14, being the only double figure, while the St. Bon's notched up 50, Keegan making the highest score of 11 for his team.

On going to bat the second time the Felldians were disposed of for 23 runs and this was made by their opponents with only four men out.

The Felldians and Methodist will play the opening game of the second round this afternoon.

Our New Boot & Shoe Co.

Messrs. C. Ash & Sons have been very busily engaged the past few weeks in installing the machinery for their new boot and shoe factory. All the apparatus including the fine electro-motor, and the new Champion machine which is a marvel in that it takes the place of a half a dozen or more machines, dealing with the boot from almost its beginning to its finish. They are now attending to the wants of some Labrador customers, and the factory will soon be in full swing. Mr. Ash, senr., whose 56th birthday occurs next Sunday, has been at work since his 15th year and has had 37 years of experience in boot and shoe factory work. The firm will soon have for display some novelties in ladies and gents styles of their own designing besides standard varieties. We all wish a most prosperous career for our three enterprising townsmen.—Harbour Grace Standard.

The Papal Guards

The Most Unique and Striking Army in the World.

The most singular and striking body of trained soldiers serving under any potentate is that which garrisons the Pope's palace in Rome. From the silver-casqued Noble Guards, the Swiss Haliborders in doublet and ruff, down to the Palatine Guards in shako and the Pontifical Gendarmes in bearskin, they form a distinctive feature of the papal court and a fitting setting to a mediæval picture. Their gorgeous or quaint uniforms, glancing helmets, flashing arms, glittering breastplates—like the black velvet doublets, ruffs and rapiers of the gentlemen-in-waiting—are in perfect artistic harmony with their surroundings, from which they receive and on which they bestow that correlative fitness of the Vatican, although the presence of these troopers and foreign mercenaries, morally speaking, is an anomaly and an anachronism.

This singular little army of a spiritual potentate consists of noble Roman volunteers, burgher civic guards and Italian or foreign mercenaries; and comprises four companies, differently armed, uniformed and officered, and each possessing a distinct history of its own and a separate organization.

First in dignity and antiquity come the Noble Guards in their scarlet tunics, golden epaulets and silver helmets. Raised in 1845 under the name of Light Horsemen, they were formed into two squadrons; and many years later, in 1555, their strength was increased by the addition of 100 free lances, chosen exclusively from the scion of noble houses who could show a sufficient number of quarterings. The two corps were re-organized and united into one by Pope Pius VII. in 1801, when after the stress and storm of the great French revolution, he had righted the ship of St. Peter. These noble guardsmen mount guard in the ante-chamber of his holiness' private apartment, and escort the Pope when he drives out. They now number 69 all told, under the command of a lieutenant-general.

The Swiss Guards, who rank next in precedence, were first enrolled by the fighting Pope Julius II., and subsequently, during the 17th and 18th centuries, three companies were added to the original one. After many vicissitudes, they were finally reduced to one company, which musters 122 captains ranking as colonel. The other men of all ranks, commanded by a captain ranking as colonel. The other two corps of household troops—namely the Palatine or Palace Guards and Pontifical Gendarmes—are far more modern, and do not possess the same stirring traditions. They are chiefly

An English Chemist Has Discovered How to Grow Hair.

In England the ladies have entirely abandoned wearing rats which is due entirely to this new discovery. It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-looked-for article is proven every day.

The Americans are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henna leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called SALVIA, and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McMurdo & Co., your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into St. John's and a large, generous bottle can be purchased for 5¢.

Gone to Relieve Fire Sufferers.

The s.s. Fogota, Capt. Barbour, arrived from the northward midnight Saturday, and after a delay of four hours was despatched to the relief of the fire sufferers, going as far north as Squid Tickle, Salvage. The ship took along a substantial supply of flour, beef, butter, barrels of bread, biscuit, etc. Inspector O'Reilly and Constables Green and Humber left to distribute the goods. A large amount of clothing, principally bedding, went forward on yesterday's express for the homeless and destitute men, women and children at Lewisporte and Scissors Cove. The Fogota arrived back at 10 o'clock this morning.

The barq. Helen Stewart is now loading molasses at Barbadoes.

MARRIAGE OF MISS MORISON AND DR. HOLMAN.
 At the Presbyterian Church on Saturday afternoon, Miss Mary Morison, daughter of Hon. Donald Morison, was married to William Ludlow Holman, M.D., Bacteriologist at the University of Pittsburgh. Owing to the absence of the uncle of the bride, Rev. Ralph G. Strathie, M.A., through illness, the marriage knot was tied by the Rev. F. S. Coffin, of Harbor Grace. Among those present in the church was the Deputy Governor, Sir William Horwood, Lady Horwood, Lady Williams and Miss Dean. At 3 o'clock the bride entered the church, accompanied by her father. She was attired in a beautiful gown of white satin, embroidered with lace, with a nice wreath and veil. She carried a fine bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Holman, sister of the groom, and Miss Janet Miller, cousin of the bride. They wore gowns of white silk, trimmed with gold embroidery, and carried bouquets. The flower maids were Miss Jean Knowling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Knowling, Jr., and Miss Hope Grieve, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grieve, who wore pretty white dresses trimmed with gold lace. Mr. R. Morison, brother of the bride, was the groom's man. At the close of the ceremony Lohengrin's Wedding March was played as the wedding party passed from the vestry along the aisle to the motors and carriages outside. A reception was held at Balsam Place. At 5.30 Dr. and Mrs. Holman left by automobile for Holyrood, whence they will join the cross-country train to-day and proceed to England via Quebec, where they will tour the Lake District. After the honeymoon they will take up their residence in Pittsburgh. The groom presented to the bride a cameo moonstone pendant; butterfly wing pendants to the bridesmaids, and gold lockets and charms to the flower girls. The happy husband and wife received many congratulations orally, by letter, telegraph and cable, and in these good wishes for a happy, prosperous and lengthy married life the Evening Telegram joins. Importance of Malta.

Special Evening Telegram.
MALTA, To-day.
 The conference to decide Great Britain's future policy in the Mediterranean, which began here on May 29th, was concluded to-day. Among those who participated were Premier Asquith, Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, Viscount Kitchener and General Ian Hamilton. An official statement issued this evening says: "The Lords and Commissioners of the Admiralty having concluded the inspection of the Mediterranean fleet and naval establishments at Malta desire to express their satisfaction at the efficiency of the organization. Their intention is to make full use of the facilities of this important and complete naval base, the value of which to the British Navy is of a permanent character. They propose to assign such a proportion of the refitting and repairing work to the dockyard as will keep it in a normal condition of activity and capable at all times of attending to the needs of peace or war for the fleet cruising or operating in the Mediterranean. Submarines will play an increasingly important part in the defence of the island."

The Song That Reached My Heart.

I sat amidst a mighty throng
 Within a palace grand
 In a city far beyond the sea
 In a distant foreign land.
 I listened to the grandest strain
 My ear had never heard.
 Enraptured, charmed, amazed I was,
 My inmost soul was stirred.
 I looked on the singer fair,
 My heart was at her feet.
 She sang of love, the old, old theme,
 In accents low and sweet.
 And then she sang another song
 That made the teardrops start;
 She sang a song, a song of home,
 A song that reached my heart.
 That night I shall never forget,
 That night with its pleasure and pain,
 I think of the singer, I think of the song,
 And I wish I could live it again.
 In fancy again I recall
 The scene with its splendor bright;
 The mighty throng, the palace grand,
 O, the memory of that night!
 My fancy it may have been,
 But never have I heard
 A song that thrilled me 'er like this,
 Like this so strangely stirred.
 The memories of that night of bliss
 Will never from me part.
 She sang the song of "Home, Sweet Home."
 The song that reached my heart.
Chorus:
 Home, home, sweet home,
 She sang the song of "Home, Sweet Home."
 The song that reached my heart.

Champion Lazy Men.

County Clare N.C. Went to Bed at Ten and Got Up Twenty-Nine Years Later.
 The "won't works" many of whose careers of laziness have been revealed in the police courts during recent years, have achieved some remarkable records of idleness, says a London paper; but the case of a gardener who recently committed suicide out of sheer disinclination to go on working is surely unique.
 This man did not mind starting a job, but he could never be induced to finish it, and he reminds one of the man about whom the wife recently complained to the magistrate at Wood Green Police Court. She described her husband as a piece-worker, and it seemed that he only worked on Wednesday, when it was his custom to put in two hours' toil.
 Another case was that of a man sentenced to three years' penal servitude for theft. His age was 40, and it was stated that he had only done one day's work in his life. This was during the taxicab strike, when he wheeled a barrow of luggage from Charing Cross to Euston.
 There are at least half a dozen claimants to the title of the laziest man in England. A good first would be the lazy man at Tottenham. Although he found it impossible to sleep all the 24 hours of the day, he tried very hard.
 He was practically dragged from his bed to the police court by his indignant wife, but he promptly went back to bed again when he had been lectured by the magistrate and had paid the penalty of his idleness.
 Then there was the County Clare man, who went to bed when he was 10 and did not get up until he was 39. Then for some mysterious reason he began to get bored. He rose from his couch in 1907, took to the strenuous life, and was last heard of escorting a coal truck.
 One man, brought up at the Willesden Police Court charged with sleeping out, actually fell asleep in the dock while the magistrate was pronouncing sentence.
 Another man, who had not worked for so long that he had forgotten whether he was a gardener or a printer, when asked by the magistrate whether he had anything to say, replied with a drawl, "Hardly worth while," and disappeared with a yawn into the cells below.
 Yet another case was that of the man of 59 who, when the policeman said he had never done a day's work in his life, protested indignantly that "he once did a bit of 'oppin.'"

Chocolate as a Food.

Not so many years ago the drink called chocolate was thought to be a reckless dissipation for one who had regard for his or her stomach. To indulge in chocolate candy was quite as pernicious as to eat tomatoes, and with quite as much reason. Chocolate was an exotic and bizarre drink, told about travellers who had ventured into Mexico or Spain, but to-day it is even ordered in the sick room and, at least in the form of cocoa from which the fats have been removed, it is considered both digestible and nourishing.
 What a difference the scientific study of dietetics has brought about. Sugar—that is, carbohydrates—is now acknowledged to be a normal part of human food; in certain circumstances, says the Bulletin of the Pan-American Union, a necessary part of it, and any way to get sugar into the system so that it will be agreeably assimilated is to help nature to accomplish her proper ends. The carbohydrates are the accessory ingredients supplying energy to the body above that which may be obtained from the proteins.
 The harder the physical work an individual performs the more proteins must he eat, and up to a certain point the less sugar does he require; but in ordinary life the individual requires a dietetic mixture of proteins, fats and sweets, while under conditions in which muscular tissue has been rapidly exhausted sugar has the faculty of restoring energy quickly, and therefore of making the heavier foods accomplish better results.
 The starchy foods, like potatoes, are useful in all dietaries, but when immediate results are sought, sugar must be used. Yet plain sugar in a dietary will not invariably be acceptable to the human animal and nothing makes sugar so agreeable as a due proportion of chocolate added.
 Capt. Edgar Hann, of Westleyville, came up on the Fogota. He will go in command of the Stella Maris, which will run the mail to the Labrador. The steamer leaves here on Wednesday and will, until the latter part of June, do fishery protection service on the French Shore. Magistrate Penny, of Carbonara, will go along on the ship. On her last trip for the season the Stella Maris will go to Baffin's Land.

 The national executive council of the transport workers' federation have decided that there shall be no national strike pending the result of the meeting summoned by the Government for June 4th, to deal with the proposal for a joint Conciliation board. The council recommended the London strike committee to accept the Government's suggestion for a Conciliation Board if the employers are prepared to do likewise. Meanwhile preparations are being made for a meeting of delegates from all parts of the country to be held in London the afternoon of June 4th, to deal with the situation arising from the conference to which the Government has invited employers and men earlier in the day. Canadian Newspapers Are Prospering.

Over 100 New Papers Started in 1911.
 We have just received from the publishers, A. McKim Limited, Montreal & Toronto, a copy of the 1912 Supplement to their Canadian Newspaper Directory. This work shows that within the last year over one hundred new papers have started to publish in the Dominion. In fact so quickly is the Canadian Newspaper field spreading out that A. McKim Limited, have decided that it will be necessary in future to publish the Canadian Newspaper Directory annually instead of biennially as before. This Canadian Newspaper Directory gives full particulars of practically every publication in Canada, and is intended as a guide to advertisers, in selecting papers best suited to their requirements. The Supplement before us brings populations and sworn circulations up to date and taken in conjunction with the directory proper makes a very valuable book of reference for the general advertiser.
 The firm of A. McKim Limited, are to be congratulated upon the splendid service rendered both to publisher and advertiser through this very complete Directory.

CONCERNING BREAD

And of Special Interest to the Millions Who Eat It.

The housewife together with every lover of good, pure bread, will welcome the announcement that: It is possible to obtain Flour from which can be made Bread possessing all the wholesome nutritive and digestive properties contained in the Best and Finest Spring Wheat. Bread made from "ARUNDELL" flour in addition to these merits has that distinctly sweet and wheaty taste obtainable only from the best spring wheat.

"ARUNDELL" goes largely into competition in London and throughout the U. K. with these flours milled by special process and which have become so deservedly popular by reason of their retaining all the best properties of the pure spring wheat none of the merits of which are sacrificed to obtain the maximum of whiteness.

Try a barrel of "ARUNDELL" and be convinced of all that is claimed for it; also that by reason of its strength and absorbent qualities it is the most economical flour for family use.—may27,61,ead.

Guards' Trophies

A regrettable feature of Saturday's big fire was that the various trophies won since the organization of the brigade perished. Notably was the famous Montgomerie Cup. Only a particle of this cup was found in the debris, and is being kept as a memento. The Blackwood shooting cup, won by the Guards two years in succession, met a similar fate. The latter circumstance will mean the calling off of this year's inter-brigade shoot unless some good Samaritan comes to the front.

Invermore's Passengers.

The S. S. Invermore arrived at Port aux Basques at 8 a.m. yesterday bringing the following passengers:—W. J. Brown, E. Arnold, Miss G. Parsons, Miss J. N. Bartlett, L. C. Sanford and wife, Miss A. Hobbs, W. Bage, J. R. and Mrs. Whittaker, A. E. G. Austin, J. A. Grant, E. G. Schmidt, W. E. Wilkinson, Rev. S. Peters, W. Horwood, N. M. Gray, Miss F. Bunzay, Jas. Rielly, S. Christian.

Strange Act.

A member of the crew of the barqt. Galatea reported to Inspector Collins Saturday night that a man was lying down asleep near the edge of Baird's wharf, and had been there for some time. He was well dressed and apparently sober. For what reason he was there could not be understood, except that he was enjoying a soothing breeze from the sea. Eventually the officers escorted the visitor to the police station.

FISHING AT CAPE ST. MARY'S.

According to passengers by Saturday's express the Cape St. Mary's fleet are having good fishing. Some of the boats have taken to date from 100 to 150 qts., which is much more than for the same period last year.

Roosevelt Plans Convention Campaign.

Special to Evening Telegram. OYSTER BAY, To-day. Roosevelt's line of battle for the Republican National Convention was formed yesterday at a "council of war" at Sagamore Hill which lasted most of the day. There was mapped out a campaign which, it was hoped, would result in the capture of the Convention. The first step is the organization. Roosevelt has forced throughout the country and planned send to Chicago, a week or so in advance of the Convention, an Executive Committee from every state which Roosevelt delegates been selected or in which there is contest. By this method it is expected to mobilize and drill an organization, which will act as unit in every matter which comes before the Convention. Whether Roosevelt will go to Chicago to lead the fight in person is now an open question. The Colonel virtually served notice on his opponents that under certain circumstances he might go, he said he did not intend to go unless some grave emergency in the shape of unfair play should arise. "If there is unfair play I may show up," he said.

Cricket.

B. F. C. vs. Rev. G. H. Hewitt's XI. The above match was played on B. F. C. ground on Saturday last and resulted in a win for the visitors by four wickets.

The game was full of interest, especially from the school's point of view as they were playing a practically experimental XI. The bowling was left entirely to reserve men and Bennett behind the stumps was also a second string.

On going in first the school were dismissed for 45, of which Bishop was responsible for 17. Rev. Hewitt's team obtained a lead of 8 runs in the first innings and eventually won by 4 wickets.

Duly and Fox for the visitors, bowled exceedingly well, while the fielding on the part of the B. F. C. boys was mainly responsible for the comparatively low score of their opponents.

Will Build Stores

The Dominion Iron and Steel Coy. of Bell Island, have, we learn, with the co-operation of their workmen, decided to erect a building in the very near future to be known as a general store, or a place for the supplying of employees with goods, provisions, etc. This, it is believed, will prove of material advantage as, at the present the miners and workmen generally are handicapped making purchases and getting their wants supplied and very often suffer inconvenience. The new building will be started this coming autumn.

Daily Service to Canada and the States.

At 6 p.m. to-day the first train on the daily service between Newfoundland and Canada will be sent on its way without any special ceremony. The inauguration of this service should be of great advantage to Newfoundland and it was a happy thought to make the King's birthday a red letter day in the service.

The growth of transportation has already been marvellous and we hope that the future will mark a continuance of that growth and exceed the anticipations of its best wishers.

A pleasing feature of the make-up of the train which will inaugurate the new service is that it will be "All Newfoundland." The engine and the carriages have been built in the shops of the Company by our local mechanics. The train will be in charge of conductor Noseworthy and the engine driver will be Mr. Patrick.

We now append the staff for the new service:—

Conductors—Lush, Noseworthy, Pushie, Veltch, Gaul, Kelly.

Engineers—From St. John's to Clarendville, Patrick and McDonald; from Clarendville to Bishop's Falls, Stone and Batstone; from Bishop's Falls to Bay of Islands, Power and Guy; from Bay of Islands to Port aux Basques, Chafe, Stanley and Tippie.

Porters—Pile, Brown, Colleymore, Davis and Jones.

Baggage-men—Dingwell, Mackie, Luby, Tracey, McCarthy and Hawco.

Brakemen—Parsons, Lee, Richards, O'Neill, Forsey and Mitchem.

Stewards—Moist, Hopkins, Fleming, Joe Moore, Hartley.

Annual Procession at Litledale.

Yesterday afternoon the annual procession took place at Litledale. This charming spot presented a most picturesque appearance with its rich and rare beauty, bathed in brilliant rays of brightest sunshine. The school children of St. Joseph's, (Kilbride), led the way followed by the Sodality of the Children of Mary, the pupils of the Academy, the Rev. Mother and Community, and Rev. Fr. O'Callaghan.

Quite a large gathering of visitors was present and were delighted with the beauty and order of everything. The singing of all was very fine, and indeed touching, appropriate hymns being rendered with perfect harmony and gaining feeling, as the procession wended its way around the exquisite grounds. Indeed a prettier picture it would be difficult to imagine than that presented by the appearance of the little ones in their snow white dresses moving so gently along beneath the shadows of the new-born foliage, and chanting sweet songs of joy in honor of Him who rules earth as well as heaven. After the procession Benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament was given by Fr. O'Callaghan in the beautiful Convent Chapel—a picture of neatness and rare taste—and an eloquent though silent testimony of the devotional care and painstaking efforts of the good sisters.

Not So Bad as Represented

Mr. F. Bursell, Captain for so many years of the Southside Fire Brigade, called in the office this morning to say that the hose in use at the fire on the Southside on Friday was not so bad as represented. Some twenty to twenty-five lengths were in use, and the pressure from the forcing pump in use there is comfortable, sufficient to drive a stream of water over the saddle of St. Mary's Church from the road. Of these lengths which are each about 25 feet, only three gave out. Altogether there is about 1000 feet of hose on the Southside, and some 700 feet was in use on Saturday at the fire at the Guards' Armoury. These lengths stood the pressure of the hydrants to which they are attached, which is less than that of the Southside pump. The whole of this hose is much lighter than that in use on this side the harbour and is by no means new, as it was purchased shortly after the great fire of 1892. In connection with the fire on the Southside, we learn that the hose was not the property of Mr. Kelly but of Mr. Haden, his father-in-law, but that considerable furniture and household effects were destroyed. Of that which was saved, some of it was taken away and according to Mr. Haden has not yet been returned. Mr. Haden had not a cent of insurance on his property and effects.

The New Barclay Book

Through the Postern Gate. This romance is in every way worthy of the author of the Rosary; wholesome, sweet, instinct with nobility, thrilling with life and with love. The confident wooing of the hero has in it so much of unspooled human nature, and the hesitation of the heroine so much of tender foresight and solicitude, that one cannot but wish that life might often bring one in contact with characters of such rare naturalness and beauty. Other books by this charming writer are: The Rosary (500th thousand), The Mistress of Shenstone and the following of the Star, each uniformly bound in purple linen, gilt title, British and U. On Justifying One's Self
 BY RUTH CAMERON.

A certain young woman who had been given a chance to make good in a very big position, lost this chance recently. And the reason, as expressed by her employers, who, by the way, were quite as disappointed as she, was simply that she didn't know how to receive criticism.

Whenever her employers criticized her, she always fought back. Instead of being grateful to them for giving time and energy to try to make her a successful business woman, she was angry and resentful at every criticism. Instead of profiting by their suggestions and corrections, she always tried to justify herself.

Now to try to vindicate one's self when one knows that a criticism is decidedly the opposite.

And yet there are a great many employees—and others—who always adopt this latter course. Even when they know in their hearts that they have made mistakes, they try to prove otherwise to those who criticize them.

Of course it is not at all easy to tell when a criticism is just. To be able to weigh a criticism of one's self calmly and dispassionately, and see where it is right and where it is wrong, is a fine art. Even a most upright judge finds it difficult to decide a case fairly when his own interests are involved. But one can at least make some effort to do this.

Mistakes make the greatest foundations in the world of success. But they should not be used for anything except the foundation. Once you try to incorporate them into the building itself, you make sure to build a failure which will come crumbling down about your ears sooner or later. Will you then argue and contest with the master builder who helps you to recognize these mistakes? Will you try to deceive him and incorporate some of them in the building in spite of him? Or will you listen to him calmly and thoughtfully, and thank him for his help?

According to which course you take, you will prove yourself a big or little man.

For it is only the little people who cannot endure criticism. Sir Walter Scott in his journal mentions an anonymous letter sent to him from Italy, full of acid and acute criticism on his "Life of Bonaparte," and instead of resenting it and justifying himself, he marks with consummate restraint and wisdom, "Its tone is decidedly hostile. But that shall not prevent me from making use of all its criticisms where just." If Scott had been a lesser man he would have scoffed at the criticism, and concluded that the anonymous writer was merely some disagreeable ignoramus.

Again, Epictetus, after hearing a scathing criticism of himself, comments gently, "He little knew my other shortcomings or he would not have mentioned these alone."

What a splendid watchword that would make for those of us who are inclined to be resentful of all criticism to remember when we open our mouths to justify ourselves.

How The Body Kills Germs.

Germs that get into the body are killed in two ways—by the white corpuscles of the blood, and by a germ-killing substance that is in the blood. Just what this substance is, we do not know. The blood of a healthy person always has some germ-killing substance in it to ward off the attack of disease. The fountain head of life is the stomach. A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished. To put the body in healthy condition, to feed the system on rich, red blood and throw out the poisons from the body, nothing in the past forty years has excelled Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a pure glyceric extract (without alcohol), golden seal and Oregon grape root, stone root, mandrake and queen's root with black cherry bark.

"My husband was a sufferer from stomach trouble and impure blood," writes Mrs. JAMES H. MARTIN, of Frankfort, Ky. "He had a sore on his face that would form a scab which would dry and drop off in about a month, then another would immediately form. It continued this way for a long time. He tried every remedy that any one would suggest, but found no relief. He then tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which completely cured him. He has stayed cured now for two years, and I recommend this valuable medicine for impurities of the blood."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, bowels, and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

Household Notes.

The meats of pecan nuts may easily be removed if they are first placed in a pan and boiling water poured over them. Allow them to remain in the water for twenty or thirty minutes. When the nuts are cracked, the meats come out without trouble and are usually whole.

Cooking vegetables which disagreeably scent the entire house becomes an undesirable necessity at times. If a pan containing vinegar and spices (cinnamon and cloves) is placed on the stove to boil while the food is cooking, the odor will be absorbed by the vinegar and spices.

A glass water bottle when constantly used soon becomes discolored. This may be easily cleaned by pouring a little vinegar into the bottle and adding a pinch of salt. Allow this to stand for several hours, then rinse with clear water. The bottle will be perfectly clear and bright.

Mud stains on garments should be allowed to get thoroughly dry before attempting to remove. When perfectly dry, hang in the sun for a few hours, then brush out carefully. If the stains still appear, try rubbing with a flannel dipped in alcohol. Brush well before trying anything else.

When coal is dear, throw a pailful of strong salt and water over all you have in the cellar. Tar water or resin water will also help the coal to burn more slowly and give a better heat. Keep all your cinders and ashes and mix coal dust with sawdust and clay. The latter make excellent fireballs.

Glasses which are used for milk or any milky substances should always be washed in cold water in preference to hot, as the latter is apt to leave a cloudy appearance and necessitate a great deal more labor in the washing. The same rule applies to perfectly new glasses which have not been used.

Ink stains on garments can be soaked out in a mixture of salt and milk. A teaspoonful of salt to nearly a gill of milk is the right proportion. This answers for either white or colored fabrics; but if the ink has been allowed to dry, it will be necessary to soak the stained part in the milk for an hour or two.

To clean window shades, add two tablespoonfuls of benzine to a pint of hot water. Wet a cloth in this solution and clean a small space at a time. Dry thoroughly with a clean cloth. This is especially fine for shades of any light color, removing fly specks and the general accumulation of dirt that settles on a window shade.

Very frequently we desire to give that rich, old-ivory tone to white-laces. This may be accomplished by the following method: Place in a pan five cents' worth of yellow ochre. Mix with this sufficient rice powder to produce the desired shade. Shake the lace into this, and after removing, brush away all loose dust. The lace will retain the yellowish tint indefinitely.

It is not generally known that the ordinary brown kitchen soap is a strong disinfectant. A doctor who has spent most of his life in a laboratory succeeded in hatching out bacteria in every soap, except that which contained lye, in however small a quantity. Lye is an ingredient in all brown and yellow common soaps, and for this reason these soaps have a distinct disinfectant value.

Do not pad the ironing board with wool blankets, which hold moisture and make your clothes hard to iron dry. Cover the top with a thick layer of cotton batting—one pound will be sufficient—then cover with one thickness of cotton flannel, drawing the cloth tightly and sewing or tacking on under side. Cover this in the same way with one thickness of smooth muslin, and you will find an excellent surface for ironing.

 Ugly cracks in furniture may be easily filled in with beeswax, so that the marks will hardly show. Slightly soften the beeswax until it becomes pliable, then press it firmly into the cracks and smooth the surface over with a thin knife. Sandpaper the surrounding wood, and work some dust into the beeswax. This gives a finish to the wood and when it is varnished the cracks will have disappeared.

Asparagus tips should be tied in bunches of equal length and stood in a kettle of boiling water, with the tips out of the water, which are thus cooked by steam, while the harder parts are cooked by the boiling water. If not separated in some such way, the tips will be boiled to a much, while the hard part is yet undone. A good way is to cut the stalks in two, boil the tender tips in one vessel and the hard parts in another, then when both are done mix and season.

There's Something in the English After All.

This is a newspaper poem which has been current for some years. It appeared first in the Boston Transcript, and was credited at that time to a writer named Shadwell.

I've been meditating lately that, when everything is told,
 There's something in the English after all.
 They may be bent on conquest, and too eager after gold,
 But there's something in the English after all.
 Though their sins and faults are many, and I won't exhaust my breath
 By endeavoring to tell you of them all,
 Yet they have a sense of duty and they'll face it to the death,
 So there's something in the English after all.

If you're wounded by a savage foe and bugles sound "Retire,"
 There's something in the English after all;
 You may bet your life they'll carry you beyond the zone of fire;
 For there's something in the English after all.
 Yes, although their guns be empty, and their blood be ebbing fast,
 And to stay by wounded comrades be to fall,
 Yet they'll set their teeth like bulldogs and protect you to the last,
 Or they'll die like English soldiers after all.

When a British ship is lost at sea, oh, oh, then I know you'll find
 That there's something in the English after all.
 There's no panic rush for safety, where the weak are left behind,
 For there's something in the English after all.
 But the women and the children are the first to leave the wreck,
 With the men in line as steady as a wall.
 And the captain is the last to stand upon the reeling deck,
 So there's something in the English after all.

Though half of Europe hates them and would joy in their decline,
 Yet there's something in the English after all.
 They may scorn the scanty numbers of the thin red British line,
 Yet they fear its lean battalions after all.

For they know that from the colonel to the drummer in the band
 There is not a single soldier in them all
 But would go to blind destruction, were their country to command,
 And call it only duty—after all.

Sanitary Men and the Council.

On Saturday afternoon the sanitary men met in the Longshoremen's Hall, Delegate McGrath, who presided, addressed the body with a view to settling the outstanding difference existing between the employees and the Municipal Council. He intimated that an effort to surmount the difficulty would be made in the way of a conference with the Council. Saturday night the full Board, including the Mayor, called at the sanitary stables when matters were settled to the satisfaction of the sanitary men. Mayor Ellis pointed out to the men that they were only required to sweep up the different wards. This would mean only an extra hour's work Sunday morning and they would be paid $10.50 per week. These terms were accepted by the men and cheers were given for the Mayor and Councilors.

Son's Cruel Treatment.

A serious assault case will be heard in the Magistrate's Court on Wednesday, the principals being a father and his son. The assault was committed on Mr. James Chayer, of Topsail, who is nearly 70 years of age. When the old man took out a summons Saturday he showed signs of the assault. A deep wound was to be seen near his forehead and his right hand was badly battered.

The Monthly Grouch.
 By WALT MASON.

He gaily goes into the stores and buys brick cheese and oven doors and things and has them charged; the smile he wears is good to see; with fifty-seven kinds of glee his bosom seems enlarged. He seems to like the little graft of buying up a whole blamed raft of goods of divers sorts; and strangers seeing him would say: "He surely has a queeny way! He seems a prince of sports!" But on the first day of the month—collection day, say June the oneth—his sweet smiles aren't there; and when the tired collector comes he snorts and haws and hums, as savage as a bear. "This bill must be corrected, please; I didn't buy that Switzer cheese nor yet that stovepipe hat; you have me charged with potted meat—it simply wasn't fit to eat—I will not pay for that! Your prices are too heavily high; you soak me, for you know that I am always prompt to pay; take back your bill and make it right, then come around next Thursday night—don't bother me to-day!" The wan collector, tired and pale, must camp upon this fellow's trail and circumvent his wiles; and still the villain she pursues until she wears out all her shoes and sickens of his smiles.
