WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER V.

"I'm hanged if I know!" I returned, in the same under-tone. "Did you ever set eyes on such a figure? When I first saw her, I nearly collapsed."

"But who—what is she?" "Natalie's nurse, or some such thing. She'll be a lively addition to Chavasse, won't she?"

"I should like to see madame's face when she first beholds her!" Alice cried, with a saucy smile, darting off toward her own gate. "Good-bye to you both until to-morrow!" she called out; and with that her blue skirts and flaxen head disappeared.

Turning round quickly, I encountered the bronze face of Valla, and gave a start. Those hard beady-black eyes of hers were glaring upon the closed gate of the rectory with a fierce intensity quite horrible to see. Had she overheard Alice's words? I wondered. I thought that, if she had, and wore that expression in consequence, she must be an uncommonly amiable creature. But in another moment the look was gone, and as the woman turned her turbaned head to look at Natalie sitting beside me, the large, featured, brown face was full of inexpressible tenderness. Natalie saw neither look; she was thoughtfully staring straight before her.

I whipped up the ponies to a smart trot, and in a very few minutes we were in the road which led to the Mount. Not until we had turned in at the lodge gates did Natalie seem to take any notice and then she started, and looked up at me inquiringly. "Are we there, Ned?" she asked with a nervous little clutch at my arm, and with the blood pulsing to and fro in her cheeks. "There or here—whichever you like," I replied. "This is Chavasse, Ned; and there is madame on the steps waiting to welcome you."

CHAPTER VI.

I pulled up the ponies, helped Natalie out of the phaeton, and madame came down the steps. She was very pale as she took the girl into her arms and kissed her—very pale; but her voice was clear and quiet as usual as she bade her welcome to Chavasse.

"You must be terribly tired, my dear," she said, keeping her hand in hers; "and"—her eyes encountering Valla—"who is this?"

"It is Valla. She was my nurse, and has always been with me since my mother died." Nat said, timidly, her lovely eyes scanning the fine combed face above her. "I could not leave her."

"Certainly not; there was no need my dear." Madame beckoned to the housekeeper, who, with Virtue Dent and several of the other maids, was lingering curiously about the hall. "Take Miss Orme's maid with you, Mrs. Batterbin," she directed, quietly, "and see that she is comfortable. Tea is in the library, Ned; I thought it the best thing for Natalie after such a long journey. This way, my dear."

Still holding Natalie's hand, madame disappeared with her in the gloom of the great shadow hall. I gave the reins to Jim, and lingered ed a moment, watching portly old Mrs. Batterbin waddle toward the kitchen regions, with Valla, in her flowing rainbow-hued robes, stalking beside her, and followed by a couple of giggling maids. Not by Virtue Dent, though. She had dropped her demure courtesy to Natalie, with her rapid glance at her face, and then with her hands folded before her stood with her eyes fixed upon the ground. As I passed her she looked up, and met my gaze. The smile was on my face still, and I suppose she saw it, for the sedate lines of her lips relaxed, and she smiled too. Looking at the girl, as I said before, I hated to say a word or two to her.

"What do you think of that article, Virtue?" "She's very strange, sir," she answered, with some hesitation. "Will she live here?" "Oh, yes, I suppose so! She is Miss Orme's maid—a regular native, you know. Her name's Valla!"

"Is that all, sir?" "I believe so. I don't think they give for two names over there." "Thank you, sir." She dropped me one of her slight demure courtesies in acknowledgment of the information, I suppose, and then stood before me, hesitating, and so obviously desiring to say something else that I asked:

"What is it, Virtue?" "Madame said, sir," she explained, altering, "that I should wait upon Miss Orme, if I liked it and she liked me. Will she make any difference to the Valla, do you think?"

"I don't know; we shall see," said. "She will expect to wait upon her mistress, of course. Miss Orme says she has been with her all her life."

"Thank you, sir; I thought I would be so," she replied, moving a step back and dropping the corner of her apron, which she had been twisting in her thin fingers. "Madame didn't know of her coming when she promised me, of course."

There was an odd intonation in the girl's quiet voice—a hopeless tone of which I did not like the sound. I looked down at her curiously.

"Why? Are you disappointed, Virtue?" I asked. "Yes, sir."

"But why?" "I like Miss Orme, Mr. Ned. I could do anything for her."

"But you have only just seen her, I said."

"I know, sir; but it makes no difference. I like her, and—I don't like that woman—that Valla. Why, you have only just seen Miss Orme, sir, but you like her!" And with that, giving me no time to reply, she went quietly toward the passage which led down stairs.

I thought, as I turned away toward the library door, what a queer girl Virtue Dent was—and what a sharp one! She was right enough. I was fairly bewitched—not at all in a sentimental way, be it understood, by Natalie Orme, I think it was owing to her lovely golden-black eyes. I was at one with Virtue Dent there. And more—I began to think that I did not like Valla any better than she did. I could not forget the ugly look with which she had followed Alice Deeping's retreating figure. In fact, it struck me that Valla and Virtue were very probably about on a par for juiciness. The time came before long when I wished with all my heart that one of them had never entered the doors of Mount Chavasse.

I went on to the library—one of the pleasantest rooms at the Mount, in my opinion, either in summer or in winter. My mother's dainty tea-table with its old-fashioned dragon-china stood there, but neither she nor Natalie was seated at it. Madame had taken off the girl's little black hat, and stood with her two hands upon the slim shoulders, looking down into the small brown face with its rich blood ebbling and flowing under the transparent skin, and those wonderful eyes raised to hers.

"You are not like what I expected, Natalie," she was saying, as I entered. "How old are you?"

"Nearly twenty-one. I know I look younger than that. I suppose it is through being so little. I did not reach poor papa's shoulder."

"No," said madame quietly. "You expected me to be taller," Natalie said, questioningly, "did you not imagine?"

"I thought you would be fair." "Ah, like papa! I was never like him. He used to tell me that I was my mother over again."

"I did not know your mother, dear." "Oh, no—I know! She was never out of Jamaica. I have eyes and hair like hers."

"I dare say," said madame, a little coldly; and her fine white hand touched the rippling little waves and curls of silky black hair. "Nevertheless, you are very like your father, Natalie."

"Am I?" "Yes. Not in eyes, or hair, or complexion, but your features are like his, and your voice resembles his. Well"—she sighed, and then stooped and kissed the girl—"you must try to be happy at Chavasse, my dear, and remember that it is always most freely your home for—for your father's sake."

She would have added more, I think, but that she turned her head slightly, and saw me standing at a little distance. She released Natalie immediately, and was instantly her quiet dignified self again—the stately Made ame of the Mount, whom nothing ever disturbed or moved from the placid proud tenor of her way.

"Find Natalie a seat, Ned," she said, cheerfully, "and make her comfortable. She must be terribly tired after such a journey, and must have a good long rest before dinner. By the way—I have not asked yet—I hope he did not keep you waiting at the station, my dear?"

Natalie half laughed as she sunk into the big chair I had wheeled forward, and took one of the dragon-tea-cups from my hand. I laughed, too, meeting her black eyes.

"Don't betray me, Ned," I said. "I told you I should catch it if you did."

"Nat!" madame repeated, surprised. "I've been used to being called 'Nat.'" Miss Orme explained demurely, "and so Ned thought he would rather call me so too. You don't mind, do you, madame?"

"Of course not, my dear," madame replied, with amazing cordiality, considering that the proprietress had sustained a rather severe shock. "Upon my word, Ned, you appear to have done as I told you, and made her feel at home. As that is the case, I think I will leave you to take care of her. I must see that your maid is properly looked after, Natalie. Does she speak English?"

"Oh, yes, every one does in Jamaica."

I think! Valla makes mistakes sometimes, but only now and then. Papa said she was too sharp for a native. "You should have seen Alice Deeping stare at her, mother," I interposed. "She was at the rectory gate and ran out like the madcap she is to speak to Nat. Her eyes looked like a couple of saucers. She said she would like to see your face when you first beheld her."

ing stare at her, mother." I interpose here and there. Your chest feels your shoulders.

Cold is responsible for this condition, and a vigorous application of Zam-Buk will put you right. Take a hot bath, and then rub your chest and the aching limbs well with Zam-Buk.

Mrs. B. Gorie, 76 Berkeley St., Toronto, writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Zam-Buk. A few weeks ago I was suffering from a bad cold which had settled in my throat, chest and limbs. I tried all kinds of remedies, new and old, and found very little relief until I used Zam-Buk. On applying this to my throat and chest I found such ease and relief from the tightness and soreness I determined to use only Zam-Buk. I also rubbed it on my limbs where I felt the rheumatic pains. In three days from the time I first began applying Zam-Buk I was free from the cold in throat and chest, and also the rheumatism in my limbs."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ring worm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c per box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld., upon receipt of price. Avoid harmful imitations and substitutes.

Discounting One's Own Opinion.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you, But make allowance for their doubting too."

Do you discount the value of your opinions? You don't know what I mean? Why just this—do you take your own peculiarities into consideration when you are reckoning the value of your own opinions?

Almost everyone discounts the value of other folk's opinions and advice by the temperament and peculiarities of these people. Not always consciously, perhaps, but with a swift subconscious process like the reckonings of a lightning calculator.

For instance, when Mr. H., who is well known to be of an exceedingly cautious temperament, says to you of some venture, which you are considering, "Don't do it. It's too risky. Put your money in the savings bank; it's the only safe way," you don't take that pessimistic point of view at its full face value. Possibly you discount it about fifty per cent. Possibly more.

Again, if Mr. E., who is equally well known to be a hopeless optimist, toots the investment to the skies and assures you, "Why, man, I wouldn't be afraid to put every cent I've got into it; what's the sense of taking two and a half per cent. from a savings bank when you can get eight here and be just as safe?" you do not accept his point of view either as the final and ultimate truth. Instead you consciously or subconsciously discount his statement by making allowance for his honorably hopeful temperament. You simply have to discount people's opinions. If you don't do so to some extent you would be a fool. And an ability to discount quickly, accurately, and without prejudice is one of the surest foundation stones of success.

But do you carry this process one step further and discount the value of your opinion? It is only one man out of a thousand who fails to discount other people's points of view. It is less than one in a thousand who remembers to discount his own.

And yet undoubtedly your own opinion, your own advice, to yourself, needs discounting just as much as other folk's—perhaps more.

Do you know a single person who is perfectly balanced, neither too hopeful nor too pessimistic, too cautious nor too radical, too conservative nor too quick to act—in short absolutely without a single overbalance which needs to be corrected? Probably not. I'm sure I don't. Then why take it for granted that you are such a person?

Why not use the same wisdom in dealing with yourself that you do in dealing with other people?

Study yourself. Find out where you are overbalanced, whether more cautious or more impulsive, more hopeful or more pessimistic, than the normal and then use your knowledge to discount the value of your own advice to yourself.

No, it's not the easiest thing in the world to do. Of course not. It is never easy to do great things. And according to the greatest race the world has ever known, to "know thyself" is the greatest thing man can ever do.

A Happy Child in a Few Hours

When cross, sick, feverish, tongue coated or bilious give "Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's insides, the stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are clogged up with purifying waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When your child is listless, drooping, pale, doesn't sleep soundly or eat heartily or is cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not what does it matter if nights are long, posed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed. A little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

Wedding at Carbonear

A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday, December 31st, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Powell when their daughter, Miss Mary Ann, was united in wedlock to Mr. John F. Earle, by the Rev. A. Pincock. The bride looked charming in an embroidered empire gown and was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Powell. The groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. Arthur Earle. The bride received many presents, both ornamental and useful, which show the esteem in which she was held by her many friends and with them we join in wishing them many happy years. The day on which the wedding took place was the bride's birthday and also the forty-ninth anniversary of the wedding of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Earle, to whom we extend congratulations.—Com.

To-morrow evening, the Methodist College Literary Institute will open its debating season. This estimable institution is now 46 years in existence and has been a great aid to the development of the literary tastes of its members, broadening the mind and fitting them to speak or write of matters of public interest when occasion requires. Mr. Geo. Peters, who presided at some very successful sessions last year will also this year preside at the debates. He is well qualified for such an important office. This year's schedule of debates for discussion will be very interesting and to-morrow night's session will be occupied with the question of the position of the United States in connection with the Panama Canal.

Intervention.

Special Evening Telegram.
LONDON, Jan. 7.
Foreign Secretary Grey made the following statement in the Commons to-day, regarding the possibility of intervention by the Powers, should the peace plenipotentiaries fail to reach an agreement: "The subject is, of course, receiving the attention of the Powers, but I cannot make any public statement as to our views and decision except such as may be made by common consent."

Echoes of Titanic Disaster.

Special to The Evening Telegram.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.
The danger of the repetition of the Titanic disaster has led the Navy Department to begin preparations earlier than usual for an ice patrol and to warn of presence of icebergs in the track of the Atlantic. Scout cruisers will be sent out in April as an extra precaution. Much remedial legislation proposed after the Titanic disaster, will be enforced. The officials of the Naval Department believe that they regard by information being despatched by the Hydrographic offices, the peril from icebergs will be minimized.

WEDNESDAY, January 7, 1913.

Here and There.

Advertising in the Evening Telegram is a sure paying investment for every shopkeeper—big or small.

The Royal Gazette last night did not contain any announcement of the appointment of the three fish merchants to the Legislative Council. What is the cause of the delay?

The Evening Telegram, the greatest Home Paper among the greatest buying people of Newfoundland, is a practical proposition that no business man can resist.

The Turks appear to be at their last gasp in Adrianople. They are eighty thousand sick there. They are tightly besieged, with no hope of military relief, it is no wonder they are making overtures for capitulation.

Like the Turks in Thrace, the Morris Party is hoping against hope to retain power in Newfoundland. But the outlook is gloomy for both of them. The forces arranged against them are too powerful for them to hold on, when the time of reckoning comes.

The Council of the Fishermen's Union for the District of Port de Grave, will hold the annual meeting at Port de Grave on the 18th instant. A public meeting will be held there at night. The Local Council has passed a resolution inviting us to address that meeting. How does that agree with the Herald falsehood that out-port people avoid us?

The women who "keep the house" are the buyers for families, and they are readers of the Evening Telegram, the Home Paper of Newfoundland. Be sure you tell them through your Home Paper what you have to sell them and that you are ready to serve them with your goods.

The wives of the fishermen are the keenest supporters of the Fishermen's Union movement. And naturally so. A movement which makes for the material comfort of the home very properly appeals to them in these days of dear coal and high taxation on the prime necessities of life.

The trade of the United Kingdom for last year was enormous. The total trade was in the neighborhood

The Invermore leaves Port aux Basques on the arrival of Monday's express.

GOES INTO BUSINESS.—Mr. M. Mulhoney, purser of the S. S. Fogota, resigned that position last trip and will go into business for himself at his native place, Indian Arm. B.B. Mr. Mulhoney, who was an obliging and competent official, is succeeded by Mr. R. Elliott, of Change Islands.

GONE INTO DEEP WATER.—Private advice received in the city to-day, from Greenspond, say that an effort was made yesterday to tow the stranded s.s. Earl of Devon off the rocks, but that she slid into still deeper water and this will render the permanent re-floating of the ship still more difficult.

CHURCH PARADE.—The members of the Star of the Sea Society will parade to the 8 o'clock Mass in the R. C. Cathedral on Sunday next when all including the officers will receive Holy Communion. A meeting will be held the latter part of the month to arrange for the season's series of entertainments. Lectures will again be a prominent feature of these.

OBITUARY.—The death occurred this morning, at her residence, Fleming Street, of Mrs. Sarah Cairnes, wife of Mr. Jno. Cairnes. The deceased who was in her 79th year, was a woman of kindly and affable disposition, a kind mother and good wife and neighbor. The deceased leaves to mourn her a husband and 4 sons and 3 daughters to whom the Telegram extends its sympathy in their bereavement.

of 6,000 million dollars, and showed an increase for the year of nearly 500 million dollars. With such increase the Free Trade policy is not likely to be seriously shaken.

People who arrived here from Placentia to-day, say that for the past two weeks, herring of large size, have been very plentiful at Mussel Harbor and good catches have been made. The storms of Friday and Saturday last wrought havoc with the fishing gear set out to take the herring. At Mussel Harbor 16 feet of nets were swept away and a large number of boats burst their moorings and going on the rocks were dashed in pieces. The store of Jas. Adams, of Bordeaux, was blown down and destroyed with salt and other property. At Arnold's Cove, another premises was levelled with the gale and a lot of property destroyed. Wareham's schooner at Haystack, drove ashore with a lot of salt on board and will likely be a total wreck. The wind was the most severe ever felt in that section.

Libel Suit.

The Proprietor, Mr. W. J. Herder, and the Editor, Mr. W. F. Lloyd, of the Evening Telegram, have instructed Mr. A. J. Herder, B.A., to take a suit for $10,000 damages each against the Evening Herald and the Managing Director and Editor, Hon. P. T. McGrath, for the publication yesterday of damaging reflections on the statements we issued last week and on Monday of this week, in regard to the circulation of the Evening Telegram. On January 2nd, 3rd and 4th, we published a statement which had been sworn to by Mr. W. J. Herder, before Judge Knight, showing the daily circulation of the Evening Telegram each day of issue in 1912, and pointing out that the average circulation per issue was 5,104 copies. On Monday we published a statement showing the circulation for January 2nd, 3rd and 4th of 5,564, 5,518 and 5,625 copies. The charge in the Evening Herald which exception is taken was as follows:—

"The claims of the Telegram's 'circulation liar' remind us strongly of its boast as to 'victory all along the line' in the late political campaign. The imputation is that we are endeavoring to obtain advertisements by false pretences, and that Mr. W. J. Herder has taken a false oath in furtherance of such a course. Mr. A. E. Morine, K.C., has been retained as Counsel in the suit.

PARADE RINK.—The Parade Rink contains a splendid sheet of ice and will be open for the first time this season to-night. The Terra Nova band, which has a splendid programme in readiness, will discourse the music for the season.

Another thing that is badly needed is a watermelon with a handle.

If you proceed upon the theory that it pays to be square you will have nothing to regret if you fail to collect. To most of us the remarkable thing about Julius Rosenwald's birthday bequests is that he had the money.

Another way for a man to achieve a reputation for cleverness and ability is to drink too much. It is said of every drunkard that he would make a great success if he could let liquor alone.

Do not attach too much importance to distinction. A man can achieve a certain degree of it by becoming the father of an eighteen-pound baby.

The Departed.

They may prance around in congress to and fro, as they pranced around in days of long ago; but the wild and woolly game never more will seem the same, since the voters put the lid on Uncle Joe. Oh, a stranger in the house will hold his chair; and a stranger at his desk will rip and swear; and the whiskers that we knew never more will be in view, some one's else's bunch of handgowns will be there. Oh, we'll miss that good old face with its cigar! And we'll miss the raucous snorting of the czar! Though the legislative men may get milling now and then, they'll be shy their scrapping Henry of Navarre. And the Murdocks and the Norrises and those who were always reaching out for Uncle's nose, if they want to start a scrap must shake up a weaker chap, for they's lost the hardest hitting of their foes. Oh, the voters rose and exercised their power and they handed Uncle Joe a lemon sotr; they extinguished all the light of the beacon on the height, and they paralyzed the watchman on the tower. Back to Danville and the dump goes Uncle Joe, and the zephyrs through his galways sadly blow; and though enemies declare that his proper place is there, oh, I kind o' sort o' hate to see him go!

Accordingly, starting slashes in prices have been made and at 9 a.m. Thursday, January 9th, this big money-saving opportunity will become a reality.
To stimulate early buying the early comers will be given cash prizes. A big crowd is sure to be on hand at the opening hour.—adv.

The s.s. Dundee, Capt. Blandford, arrived here last night after having finished the Bonavista service. The ship left Westville at 7 a.m. yesterday and had a gale of W. by N. which to contend with. She was running in the recent stormy weather and Capt. Blandford says that it was the worst in his experience. The ship, during the storm, carried between 7,000 and 8,000 passengers all of whom were pleased with the treatment received from the captain and officers. Her passengers for this port were Dr. and Mrs. Roberts and maid, Miss Way, W. J. Jones, H. S. Oakley, J. B. House, S. Sainsbury, P. B. Bishop and 5 second class. She brought 1 1/2 cars freight.

May her soul rest in peace.—Boston and Montreal papers please copy.
Passed peacefully away on the 8th, Sir Edward Dalton Shea in his 93rd year.—R. I. P. Funeral on Friday, at 2.30 p.m., from the Cochrane House.
At Kelligrews, after a lingering illness, Elizabeth (Beattie) Nugent, daughter of Mr. Michael and Mary Nugent, aged 35 years.

Death of Sir Edward Shea,

LATE PRESIDENT OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

There passed peacefully away this morning, Sir Edward Shea, probably the oldest legislator in the British Empire. Sir Edward has been closely identified with the Legislature for a period which extends beyond the usual span of the average man's life. He lived through three reigns, having been born a little time after Queen Victoria, and the most active part of his life was contemporary with the middle Victorian period. He was born and educated in the city. He left school at the age of sixteen and commenced work and afterwards became the editor of the "Newfoundland" in 1872. He was appointed to the Legislative Council in 1885, and stood for Ferryland, which he represented in the House of Assembly, according to Judge Prowse's table, until 1865. In 1869 he stood successfully for the Conservative Party and some of the most exciting incidents of election times took place in that constituency during that election. He was not returned at that time. We understand, however, before that time he held his first ministerial office as Financial Secretary. When Sir Frederick Carter was returned in 1872, Mr. Shea was appointed to the Legislative Council and became Colonial Secretary, which office he retained under the Carter, Whiteway and the early days of the Thorburn Administration, until 1886 when he was appointed President of the Legislative Council. This office he retained until twelve months ago, when he asked to be relieved of it, as he felt, from old age, for he was in his 82nd year then, unable to stand the strain of the duties, the office called for. His wife, Gertrude Corbet, died in 1903. To the bereaved children, who survive, the Evening Telegram joins with the rest of the community in extending its sympathy. They are Mr. George Shea, M.H.A. for St. John's, East; Mrs. Jackson, wife of the late Sir H. M. Jackson, a former Governor of Turk's Island; Mrs. Mare, wife of the late Robert L. Mare; and Miss Ellen, his constant and devoted companion during his declining years. Sir Edward was knighted in 1902 and was in late years a venerable and stately figure reminding the younger generation of an old generation of statesmen, the counterparts of whom are today but few in number. His brother Sir Ambrose, who passed away a few years ago, also played a long part in the affairs of Newfoundland, and afterwards became Governor of the Bahamas. The funeral of Sir Edward will take place on Friday next from Cochrane House.

Dunure Arrives

AFTER QUICK PASSAGE.
The bark Dunure, Capt. Hartley, arrived to-day from Bahia in sand ballast to Bowring Bros. The passage was made in seventeen days despite the fact that the vessel encountered a succession of heavy gales and storms. After leaving Bahia, conditions were moderate, but after coming on this coast heavy weather was met. On New Year's Eve she experienced a strong gale from the N. W. which developed into a hurricane, accompanied by a terrific sea. The Dunure's decks were repeatedly swept by the waves, but she made good headway and survived the storm without mishap. All the crew are well.

Smart Willing

Jim Smart, the wrestler, who is here on a visit, called at our office to-day and stated that he did not come here to do any wrestling, but seeing that some of the sporting men of the city would like to see him appear on the mat again with Otto Oppelt, Smart intimated his willingness to wrestle anybody. It is hoped that a match will be arranged between these two grapplers as no doubt a clever exhibition would be the outcome.

Last Night's Lecture.

Rev. John Antle, Superintendent of the Columbia Coast Mission, lectured to a large audience last night in the Synod Hall. The theme of his discourse, which was of absorbing interest throughout, was the experiences of the esteemed cleric in the North West. At the opening His Excellency the Governor, who presided, spoke briefly on the self-sacrificing and zealous labors of the missionary. In commencing his remarks Mr. Antle referred to the wonderful work achieved but said nothing of his individual efforts. This was another example of his modesty. The address was illustrated with lantern slides and pictures of lumber and mining camps and hospitals in operation were thrown on the screen. "Heal the sick, and say unto them, the Kingdom of Heaven is come nigh unto you," is the Biblical motto of the Mission.

At the close, Mr. Ruggles rendered a solo which was applauded by the audience. Votes of thanks to His Excellency the Governor for presiding, and to Rev. J. Antle for his lecture, were proposed by Rev. Canon Bolt and Sir William Horwood, C.J., and carried by acclamation. The rendition of the National Anthem brought the event to a conclusion.

For Dandruff, Falling Hair, or Itchy Scalp—25c. "Danderine."

SAVE YOUR HAIR! DANDERINE DESTROYS DANDRUFF AND STOPS FALLING HAIR AT ONCE—GROWS HAIR, WE PROVE IT.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous you must use Danderine, because nothing else accomplishes so much for the hair.

Just one application of Knowlton's Danderine will double the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots fall out, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, don't hesitate, but get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. One bottle will truly amaze you.

Six Below.

Yesterday afternoon the weather set in cold across country with a N. W. gale and snowing in several places. Last night the glass dropped steadily and it became intensely cold in the city and all over the country. Late last night the lowest temperature recorded was at the Quarry where the thermometer registered 6 below zero.

The Nascopie.

Mr. W. Sinnott, who is supercargo on the S. S. Nascopie, recently wrote his family, his letter being received a few days ago. He is delighted with his trip on the steamer to the Mediterranean where he visited Alicante, Naples, Tunis and other places. She is expected to arrive at Tripoli to-day or to-morrow, will then proceed to Newcastle for repairs at which she will come here for the sealing voyage.

Straits Blocked.

The S. S. Home arrived at Bay of Islands at 5.45 p.m. yesterday from the Straits. The ship reports getting as far north as Ferrol Point where she met heavy ice and could not proceed further. The ship had one of the most stormy trips in her experience. She will make another trip, going as far north as the ice will permit her.

"Lape's Diapepsin" settles upset Stomachs and ends Indigestion in five minutes.

Do some foods you eat hit back-taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic get this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

Cable News.

Special to The Evening Telegram.

LONDON, Jan. 7. The Ambassador's office here held a long conference to-day at the Foreign Office. It is felt that in diplomatic circles that in the end they will force Turkey to accept the conditions that make necessary the new papers this morning call upon the Powers to prevent the resumption of war, and all insist that Adrianople is bound to fall, and should be given to Bulgaria. It is further added that the Islands captured by Greece should be restored to the Hellenic Kingdom.

The Standard voices the consensus of opinion of the British press in saying: "We look forward to the united action of the Powers, which will have the effect of removing the present deadlock, thus affording the Ottoman Government the necessary excuse for yielding to the inevitable."

M. Zenezaras, in a statement to the London Times, this morning, says: "No other solution is possible to peace, than the resession by Turkey of Adrianople and the Aegean Islands."

The Greek Prime Minister points out that the possession by Greece of all the Aegean Islands including those held by Italy, will ensure permanent peace in the near East with members of the Balkan Alliance living in perfect concord with their neighbors. He finally pledged the protection by Greece of all Mussulmans dwelling in the Aegean Islands, and assures them of equal standing and protection by law.

PARIS, Jan. 7. The death of air scout-Lieut. Toprakchieff, of the Bulgarian Army, at Adrianople, is the first occurrence of its kind in warfare to occupy a place in history. Eye witnesses say he was ordered to fly over the city to ascertain whether the Turks were preparing for a sortie. A division of the Turkish infantry, supported by artillery and cavalry, was in readiness. The waiting Turks saw the machine and used their guns. The watchmen, Bulgarians with field glasses saw a jet of flame and cloud of smoke enveloping the aviator, who tumbling around "aeroplaned" like lightning in the middle of the Turkish forces killing several. Evidently knowing he was doomed, he resolved to sell his life as dearly as possible. His body was recovered with a right hand, with which he had blown out his brains a second before the crash.

Week of Prayer.

At Cochrane St. Church the pastor, Rev. Mr. Whitmarsh, conducted the service, and offered the opening prayer, and was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Curtis who read the lesson, and also by the Rev. Dr. Rogers who was the speaker of the evening. With such a speaker as Dr. Rogers, and such a topic as "The Church Universal," the service and address could not be other than well spoken. The Dr. spoke for the space of sixteen minutes, and dealt very ably with the great question in hand, and showed what a great moral and spiritual force the Church had been in all the ages of the world, and that notwithstanding the various divisions and denominations, who were one in principle and purpose; therefore the poet had well spoken when he said, "Like a mighty army, moves the Church of God." The speaker laid strong emphasis upon the position and responsibility and mission of the Church in its divisions in name; but at the same time he rejoiced in its Divine commission and final triumph.

Twitching of the Nerves.

A Distressing Symptom of Nervous Exhaustion Cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. John McKellar.

What sympathy you feel for anyone whose nerves twitch and jerk, and what resolves you make to never allow your nervous system to become exhausted, until paralysis of some form claims you as a victim.

The only way is to watch the warning symptoms, such as sleeplessness, headache, indigestion, tired feelings and irritability. By the prompt use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you can feel healthy and vigorous, restore the vitality of the body, and prevent serious disease.

Mrs. John McKellar, 11 Barton street east, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"It was injured some years ago, and has left me with a broken-down nervous system. I could not sleep, and suffered from twitching of the nerves and disagreeable nervous sensations. I then began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that I never used any medicine that did me so much good. In fact, am entirely cured of my old trouble. The Nerve Food not only strengthened the nerves, but also built up my system in general, and has left me with a broken-down nervous system.
