

A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XXV.

"But we shall find it in your bill, I hope, Sir Jeremiah," said Mrs. Broseley, who was not without a rough-and-ready kind of wit.

"You certainly will," retorted Sir Jeremiah with a laugh, as he trotted out of the room.

"I've come to see your sister," she said to Carrie, who started with surprise at her; "an' I've come to see you. You're a good girl; I knew it the first time I saw you."

"Mr. Clark didn't turn up his nose," said Carrie. "Nature's done it for him already."

Mrs. Broseley laughed and dilated upon the advantages of Australia, while Carrie went up to prepare Maida for the visit.

"If you've got any influence with these young ladies, Mr. Bark—"

"Clark," said Ricky. "Well, Clark. You try and persuade them to come with me. It's a fine country, where you've room to move an' breathe, while I'm sure you 'aven't got 'ere. An' if I were you, I'd go but there an' try my fortune. Look at Broseley—that's my husband; p'raps you've 'eard of 'im—"

Ricky smiled, for, like everybody else, he had heard and read of the great Australian millionaire.

"Tim went out there without a penny in his pocket, an' he's worth—oh, well, never mind. But talk o' your landed gentry, w'en we've got more land than our 'anks put together. Oh, I may go up, may I?" To Carrie who had just returned from Maida. "I've just been talkin' to this young friend o' yours. Australia's the place for a young man with brains."

"But he hasn't any, dear Mrs. Broseley," said Carrie, sweetly.

Mrs. Broseley went up to Maida's room, and, bending over her, kissed her in motherly fashion.

"My dear," she said. "I have come to make all the arrangements. We start on the twenty-ninth. You can be ready by that time? I'll help you get your things—but, there you won't want many. You leave it to me. You shall come out o' this damp an' foggy London o' yours into the bright an' clear air. You'll soon pick up your 'ealth there. Why, bless your heart, I've known people who were declared to be at death's door—an' you are a long way from that—carried out to Australia an' came back perfectly bloomin', perfectly bloomin'!" "Now, don't argue, my dear," as Maida opened her white lips to suggest difficulties and obstacles.

"There is nothin' to keep you 'ere; an' as to obligations, why, if you like to follow your profession over there an' recite at the big cities, after you've got yourself strong an' well, at Milda Wolda—that's Tim's station—you can do so."

Maida did not know what to say; her eyes filled with tears and she turned her head away. It was not of herself that she was thinking, but of Carrie. If she—Maida—were unable to recite, what would become of Carrie?

"You are very kind," she said, in her low voice, her violet eyes, eloquent with gratitude, turned upon the fat, red, good-natured face. "I do not know what to say. It has taken me by surprise—"

"Most things do, I find," said Mrs. Broseley, with a smile. "You say 'yes, my dear. I should love to have you. Why, we'd make a sort o' queen o' you out there. Come, now; listen to what Sir Jeremiah says—an' he's mighty cute, is Sir Jeremiah, an' do you say yes."

"I will say yes, Mrs. Broseley," said Maida.

CHAPTER XXVI.

"I don't think this a proper kind of land for good people," remarked Carrie.

The two girls were sitting under the verandah which ran all round the great log house of the Broseleys' station. The house was bathed in a sunlight so intense, so clear and penetrating, that it seemed to mix with the clear, fine air and enter into one's lungs. Before the two girls stretched the wide plain dotted here and there with enormous trees and speckled at intervals by some of the vast herds which owned Timothy Broseley—once journeyman plasterer, not an Australian magnate—as lord and master. The Broseley acres ran for miles upon miles; they were the pick of the district, well watered, with undulations on one side of which the thousands upon thousands of cattle could browse in summer, the other providing a shelter during the winter months. Every squatter and cattle-raiser envied Tim Broseley his magnificent run and the luck which had helped him to obtain it.

But it is not all luck, and certainly not all beer and skittles, that goes to make up the life of an Australian rancher; hard work, any amount of common sense and no little business shrewdness and astuteness are required if fortune is to be wrested from the clench of hand of fate. Tim Broseley had all these qualities, and, added to them, a dogged patience, a stern determination to win, which had enabled him to watch and wait with the tenacity of purpose which is the characteristic of the race from which he sprang; John Bull may not always be as swift as the Continental greyhound, but he's a good 'un to hold on to when once he's got his teeth into a thing. Tim Broseley had hung on like grim death; from small beginnings, his wealth had grown until it had now become enormous. But notwithstanding his vast riches, Tim was not very much changed; a little stouter and much grayer than the journeyman plasterer who had trudged a sore-footed sundowner across the arid plains a matter of twenty years ago, he was just as plain of speech and unpolished as his wife, whom he was old-fashioned enough to still love. Though he had a magnificent house in Melbourne, he was never quite happy there, and was much more at home and at his ease in the big wooden bungalow, which he had helped to build with his own hands, and from which he could look around upon his broad domain and watch his countless flocks moving to and fro like specks upon the horizon. He was always happiest there; and stole away from the big, grand Melbourne house whenever he possibly could, and Mrs. Broseley was very much of his mind, though she liked dispensing hospital-ity to the Melbourne big-wigs and spending lavishly with the shops in George Street.

Of course she was now out at Milda Wolda, as the station was called, playing hostess to Maida and Carrie; and Mr. Broseley was there also. They had one son—the daughter had died; and it may be said with absolute truth that the old people would rather have lost all their money than the only daughter, upon whom they doted. This son was not a very bright specimen; he had not inherited his father's innate good qualities or business capacity, nor his mother's sweetness of temper and generous nature. He was a big fellow, but coarsely made, as was only natural; and the coarseness, extended to his nature, which showed every now and then through the thin veneer of an Australian's education begun rather too late in life; for the Broseleys' fortune, like most antipodean fortunes, had come all of a rush, and the boy's early life had been spent in poverty and hardship by the share of the family struggle, at first for bread and then for the money which is the butter which makes bread palatable. His name was Robert. He was dark, almost swarthy with dark eyes that were rather too small for his type of face, lips suggestively and unpleasantly full, but fortunately hidden by a heavy moustache, and a square jaw indicating a certain determination which chiefly displayed itself in getting his own way. Big hands and huge feet and anything but a graceful gait gave him a look of awkwardness which was atoned for by his great strength; it was said that when he was fit—that is to say, when he kept clear of the whiskey and those amusements which the fast youth of Melbourne delighted in—Robert could hold his own with any man in Australia. He had been known to pick up bodily a man larger than himself and sling him clean over his shoulder; this sounds easier than it is, and if anyone doubts the difficulty of the feat, let him try it and be convinced.

Robert would have liked to have spent his whole time in Melbourne or to have gone to England; for, unlike his father, he was not fond of work, and had a large taste for spending money; but old Tim had old-fashioned notions, and considered that every man should at least earn his salt though he got his beef for nothing. So Master Robert had to put in a certain time on one of the many runs. He was manager for this father, received a good salary and a large commission on the proceeds; had as many horses as a king to ride and drive, and was more or less happy in his own sweet way.

At this present time he was visiting a distant station; but he was expected home, and Mrs. Broseley, who worshipped him, and was, of course, blind to his faults, was all in a flutter of maternal anticipation. She had talked much to the two girls of her big and, as she called him, "handsome boy;" and Carrie, at any rate, was rather curious to see him.

"No, it certainly isn't a proper place for good people to live in," she said, leaning back in her rocking-chair and rocking herself lazily as she surveyed, through half-closed eyes, her servicable pair of feet, which were encased in the lightest of canvas slippers. "Because, you see, they never want to die; and the place is so beautiful, the air is so champagne, and there's such a general feeling of being always on the spree that even the goodest people would drop out of the way of longing for heaven. The simple fact is, my dear Maida, that no one knows what really living is until he or she has been in Australia in the summer time. It's hot, I grant you; but I like the heat. Do you remember that man in that book of W. D. Howells' who, when they tell him that it's so hot in Florence that if he stays through June he will be able to cook an omelette in the sun in the centre of the plaza; said that he should like nothing better than cooking omelettes by solar means in the open air? That's exactly how I feel about the heat. Besides, there's something in the air that helps one to bear it; and isn't it delicious to laze here in the shade of this jolly verandah and to feel that other poor wretches have to rot around? And if I felt the heat ever so much, I shouldn't complain when I look at you and see what the change has done for you already. I don't go so far as to say that you have exactly grown fat, but there certainly would not be any chance for you in the living-skeleton list now; and yesterday I fancied—it must have been fancy or drink—that there was a touch of color in your face; and did you laugh last night, or was it merely the echo of my own idiotic chuckle? Seriously, Maida, if—I if one could only forget the past, how happy one could be.

TARNOPOL OCCUPIED BY GERMANS—SERIOUS MENACE TO RUSSIANS. LONDON, July 23. The occupation by the German army of the city of Tarnopol in Eastern Galicia, is reported. The capture of Tarnopol, if confirmed, presents a serious menace to the whole Russian front. The capture of Tarnopol is about 25 miles behind the positions occupied by the Russians when the German counter-attacks began last week. Unless Russian forces to the north and east can carry out a rapid retreat, they will be threatened from their rear by the advancing Germans.

CONDITIONS ON RUSSIAN FRONT. PETROGRAD, July 23. That chaotic conditions are prevailing on a part of the Russian front was disclosed in a telegram from Premier Kerensky, the Provisional Government and the Council of Ministers and Soldiers' Delegates to the Executive Committee and Councilors of the Provisional Government with the Second Army on the western front. The telegram denounced the inauguration of measures to combat the discipline. "They unanimously recognized that the situation demands extreme measures and efforts for everything that can be risked to save the revolution from catastrophe. The commander in chief on the western front and the commander of the second army have issued orders to fire on deserters, runaways. Let the country know the truth, let it act without mercy. We find enough courage to strike those who by their cowardice are deserting Russia and the revolution!" referring to the threatened disaster telegram says: "Most of the military units are in a state of complete organization. Their spirit for the offensive has utterly disappeared. No longer listen to the orders of their leaders and they neglect all obligations of their comrades, even being by threats and shots. Some of the elements voluntarily evaded positions without even waiting for the approach of the enemy."

RUSSIANS ATTACK, BUT PETROGRAD, July 23. The Russians yesterday repulsed the Germans near Kovno and in the north of the Pinak marshes, sent the Teuton lines to a distance two miles and captured 1,000 men, but developments toward their success are being jeopardized by the weakness and instability of their detachments.

RISE IN SUPPLIES. LONDON, July 23. Despatches received at the Embassy here state that the Petrograd is considered suppressed. Those who participate in the disturbances are being arrested and disbanded, and the clothing parcelled by troops. In places shooting from windows is current, but drastic measures are being taken to prevent insubordination or criminal agitation.

TARNOPOL OCCUPIED BY GERMAN-SERIOUS MENACE TO RUSSIANS.

LONDON, July 23. The occupation by the Germans of the city of Tarnopol in Eastern Galicia, is reported. The capture of Tarnopol, if confirmed, presents a serious menace to the whole Russian line between Pinsk and the Carpathians. Tarnopol is about 25 miles behind the positions occupied by the Russians when the German counter-attacks began last week. Unless the Russian forces to the north and south can carry out a rapid retreat, they will be threatened from their flank by the advancing Germans.

CONDITIONS ON RUSSIAN FRONT.

PETROGRAD, July 23. That chaotic conditions are prevailing on a part of the Russian front, was disclosed in a telegram to Premier Kerensky, the Provisional Government and the Council of Workmen and Soldiers' Delegates by the Executive Committee and Commission of the Provisional Government with the Second Army on the southwestern front. The telegram announced the inauguration of stern measures to combat the disaffection. "They unanimously recognize that the situation demands extreme measures and efforts for everything must be risked to save the revolution from catastrophe. The commander in chief on the western front and the commander of the second army have given orders to fire on deserters and cowards. Let the country know the truth, let it act without mercy, let it find enough courage to strike those who by their cowardice are destroying Russia and the revolution." Referring to the threatened disaster the telegram says: "Most of the military units are in a state of complete disorganization. Their spirit for the offensive has utterly disappeared. They no longer listen to the orders of their leaders and they neglect all exhortations of their comrades, even replying by threats and shots. Some of the elements voluntarily evacuate positions without even waiting the approach of the enemy."

RUSSIANS ATTACK, BUT—

PETROGRAD, July 23. The Russians yesterday attacked the Germans near Kovno and Vilna, north of the Pinsk marshes, penetrated the Teuton lines to a distance of two miles and captured 1,000 Germans, but developments toward success are being jeopardized by the weakness and instability of certain detachments.

RISE IN SUPPLIED.

LONDON, July 23. Despatches received at the Russian Embassy here state that the rising at Petrograd is considered definitely suppressed. Those who participated in the disturbances are being disarmed and disbanded, and the city is being patrolled by troops. In isolated places shooting from windows has occurred, but drastic measures are being taken to prevent insubordination or criminal agitation.

DAYLIGHT BILL UNPOPULAR.

OTTAWA, July 23. Daylight Saving is not over popular with the members of the Commons. Sir George Foster moved the second reading of the Daylight Saving Bill to-day and piloted it into Committee, but the measure met with so much opposition that its future is in doubt. Of a dozen members who discussed the matter, only two had whole-hearted praise for it. The chief opposition came from the farmer members who maintained they already had all the daylight needed and that a change in the clock would simply mean that it would be more than ever difficult for them to get into town to do business at the end of the day. After listening to a criticism of the measure for half an hour the minister explained that he didn't wish to force the bill on the House, if the House did not care for it. On his motion finally the chairman of committee merely reported progress.

U. S. LOANS.

WASHINGTON, July 23. The loans of $75,000,000 to Russia and $50,000,000 to France to-day, brought the total sum advanced to the Allies within the last three months up to 1,523 million dollars.

RAID WARNINGS.

LONDON, July 23. A correspondent of the News of the World wired that seven German taubes crossed the Essex coast, flying from the west, at 8.45 o'clock in the morning. Others followed at intervals until 9.30. In all about twenty machines passed and disappeared toward the sea without dropping any bombs. Some excitement was caused in London by the sounding of the raid warnings, of which the first notice was given in Sunday morning's newspapers. Persons unaware of the intentions of the authorities were convinced when the firing of signals began that German airmen had again penetrated London's defenses and were showering bombs on the city. At 8.30 o'clock sound bombs were sent up from the stations in the country, transforming the usual Sunday quiet into a din which London now associates with an air raid. The signal consisted of three bombs fired at intervals of a quarter of a minute. There were distinct reports as the bombs left the small mortars, and loud ones when they exploded in the air. Persons who believed anti-aircraft guns were in action, made a rush for cover, being urged to do so by the police, who appeared in the streets with placards warning the public to seek shelter. The tube stations were favorite places of refuge. Some persons whose breakfast had been disturbed, brought pots of coffee with them and finished their meal on the platforms. The early morning services in the city churches proceeded with an interruption of about one hour. After the first warning the police again appeared on the streets with placards announcing that all was clear. There is little doubt an attempt was made to reach London. In giving notice that warning signals would be fired, the authorities announced that such warning would not be given until it appeared from information received from the military department that an attack on London was intended.

GERMAN OBJECTIVE DEFEATED.

With the French Armies in France, July 21. (By Associated Press.)—The Fifth Division of the German Guard in its furious attack on the eastern end of the Chemin des Dames on the Aisne front, during Thursday night and Friday morning, gained another, but a death-trap, in the shape of a trench 500 or 600 yards long on the northern side of the crest between Casemates and California Plateau, above Craonne. The objective of the Germans to obtain possession of observation points was defeated totally. To-day hundreds of German bodies lie on the ground, and the Germans, who supposedly are holding the trench, cannot advance or retire. The cannonade to-day was most intense, and the French who are in a position to observe all movements of the enemy, smothered with shells several attempts of the Germans to assemble troops in this vicinity for further operations. Numbers of prisoners belonging to the famous Guard regiments were taken. From them it was learned that the attack had been arranged for several days previously, but the German Crown Prince decided to await the arrival of special units of shock troops before making the assault. A model of the French defensive system had been constructed behind the German lines and the troops destined for the attack were instructed therewith before making the assault. They met their masters in the shape of stolid and hard fighting regiments from Toulaine, which held the positions. The only point

WEDDING BELLS.

TIMMONS-O'LEARY.

A very pretty wedding took place on June 17th, at St. Catherine's Church, Charlestown, by Rev. Father Tierney, when Miss 'Genie' Timmons, of this city, was united in matrimony to Mr. Richard O'Leary, formerly of Brigus but for many years a resident of Charlestown, Boston. The presents received were costly and numerous which testified to the esteem in which the newly married couple are held in Boston, as well as in their native land. We wish Mr. and Mrs. O'Leary every future happiness and success.

SUMMER SCHOOL NOTES.

SATURDAY, July 21st.

The Directors and Dr. Barnes, the Principal, thought it wise to shorten Saturday's programme, and a short session was held in the Methodist College Hall from 11.45 a.m. to 1 p.m., during which time two lectures were given, the first by Mr. C. Hutton on the teaching of Singing, and the second by Dr. Brunt on "The Child."

MONDAY, July 22nd.

Morning Session.—9 to 11.45, St. Bon's College. Lectures were given on the teaching of English Literature and Reading by Dr. Brunt, and on History and Arithmetic by Mr. Morehouse. Methodist College Hall.—At 11.45 both groups attended a lecture on the teaching of Singing by Mr. Hutton. Afternoon Session.—(St. Bon's College)—During the first period, 2.15 to 3, Mr. Morehouse and Dr. Brunt continued their course of lectures on the teaching of English and Arithmetic. The second period, 3 to 3.40, was devoted to instruction in Physical Culture. From 3.40 to 4.15 Mr. Morehouse gave a lecture on Nature Study to group B, while the ladies of A group were taken in Art by Miss Kelly.

Evening Session (Synod Building), 7.30 to 9.—The special subjects taken were English by Dr. Blackall and Mr. Whiteaway; French by Miss Stirling; Geometry by Miss Collins and Mr. Goodman.

Changes for Tuesday.—Dr. Campbell will give a lecture on Hygiene in the Methodist College Hall, beginning at 11.45 a.m. and group B will be taken in Art in the afternoon (3.30 to 4.15), the ladies by Miss Kelly and the men by Mr. Murdoch.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME.

The B.I.S. handed out a decisive defeat to the Cubs in the replayed Mt. Cashel preliminary game last night by a score of 9 to 4, and as a result they will go to the Garden Party tomorrow to play those doughty old warriors—the Lions—for the H. D. Reid Cup. Incidentally it may be mentioned that this is the nearest the Irishmen have got to a trophy since they entered the League five years ago, and their success to date may be attributed to two things, first the magnificent twirling of Carow ally assisted by his batterymate Brazie; and secondly, they seem to have developed a batting line, which was conspicuous by its absence other seasons.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES.

To-morrow afternoon the Red Lions and B.I.S. will compete for the H. D. Reid Cup at the Garden Party at Mt. Cashel. Thursday night at 7 o'clock will witness the much looked forward to regular League fixture between the B.I.S. and Wanderers. Much interest is centred in this clash as a win for the former will give them every game in the first round, while if the blue-and-white aggregation win it will make both clubs equal.

Fire at Mt. Scio.

At 10.20 o'clock last night Inspector General Sullivan received a telephone message stating that a fire, caused by the explosion of a lamp, had broken out at the residence of Mr. Geo. Carter, Mt. Scio. Sergt. Mackey and three constables were despatched to the scene, but on reaching the place found their services not required, as the fire in the meantime had been extinguished by the assistance of neighbors. Considerable damage was caused in the kitchen, to which the fire was confined.

Reserve August 2nd

FOR A "SUNSHINE" ENTERTAINMENT.

Knowing the great need of funds to continue the enlargement of the Jensen Camp, a number of ladies have asked to be allowed to use the house and grounds of Victoria, the residence of Mr. J. Browning, for a garden fete to be held on the afternoon and evening of Thursday, August 2nd. In the afternoon an entertainment of music and dancing will be held on the green, which last year was the scene of the Pastoral Play. Competition in games will be held, and there will also be a sale of flowers, fancy articles, candies, jams, pickles and ice cream. Tea will also be served. In the evening Mr. H. D. Reid has very kindly arranged to have the grounds lighted with electric lights, when there will be an open air tableaux and general dancing with other attractions. The admission fee will not be high. Would those who are in sympathy with this much needed and deserving object, and would like to help in some small way, kindly send any donation they would wish to give to Victoria at an early date?

The Gravity of the Situation.

To those who take a sober view of the war and are not tossed about like shuttlecocks by one extreme utterance after another, this morning's news will come as a sharp shock. Those who are not of this class and are content to take their opinions second-hand will do well to open for once the map of the Russian western front and draw two lines, one from Brody to Tarnopol and one from Halicz to Tarnopol. They will roughly represent the line on this front. They will further show clearly the sharp wedge which the Germans have been able to drive into the Russian formation and which threatens to split it asunder. It is plain that the German attack is very strong. It is equally plain that if it does not carry disaster to Russia her armies north and south of Tarnopol must retire precipitately. Her very advance to Halicz is turned into a great disadvantage by the attack, which is on her flank and almost in her rear. The cause of it all is sufficiently explained by the message. The news of Russia's sudden awakening and fierce onslaught was, after all, too good to be true. The magnetic personality of one man, now fortunately at the head of affairs, engulfed disaffection and hesitation for a moment in a wave of enthusiasm. But the wave, after sweeping away the first resistance of the enemy, has broken and spent itself against the second. And now the seeds of rebellion and lawlessness, sown in the fertile soil of ignorance, are springing into a bountiful crop. It is time for us to realize finally that little more can be expected from Russia by the other Allies. Breaking up as she is, the utmost good she can do is to engage for her complete defeat a great body of the enemy that can ill be spared from the other fronts. Tarnopol throws a strong light upon the recent great political events in Germany. There is no need to analyse them here. Hundreds of columns have already been written about them, of which hardly half-a-dozen agree and less than that number hit the truth. One great fact stands out. The military party, the Crown Prince, Ludendorff, Hindenburg and the rest, did what it was only natural they should do. Having the upper hand, they brought it down heavily. They care only for themselves, and for themselves the only hope is complete victory. And so they issue a flat defiance, through their tool Michaelis, both to the demagogue agitators within and to the foe without. The foe without, Britain, France and America, received it with incredulous ears. They knew that Germany had reliance in two things only, the submarines and a Russian collapse. The submarines had already failed, and while Michaelis was speaking Korniloff's armies were marching to victory. The defiance, therefore, was unbelievable, the last madness of despair, Germany was rushing to her ruin.

The situation changes overnight. London, Paris and Washington are at last beginning to understand that Berlin knows far more about Russia than they do. It foresees Tarnopol and smiled at Halicz. It may have foreseen the utter collapse that it prayed for: we have yet to see. As for the submarines, well-informed people in England, who think ahead of the rest, pay no attention to the sedatives of Lloyd George. After all it is said and done, the Germans are steadily sinking at least twenty ships a week; all the Allies between them cannot replace that wastage for a long time to come. There is thus a steady diminution of shipping which shows an increasing effect. The argument that contends that all the Allied shipping must be destroyed is utterly fatuous: probably half the amount would give Germany the victory. Equally fatuous is the argument that only the feeding of Britain matters: the supply and feeding of the troops in Europe, and the transportation of the American armies is far more important. The whole situation resolves itself, therefore, into this: the defeat of Russia, which must seriously be reckoned with, would add at least a year to the war. Continued success for the submarines, the mere maintenance of the present rate of destruction, may, probably will, mean complete victory for Germany.

This is what the Allies have to face. The situation challenges them, and the challenge goes forth most clearly, most insistently, to the United States. She must abandon the complacent and comfortable outlook upon the war which seems ineradicable from a large portion of her people. She must help fight the submarines with every resource at her command, and she must get her armies across with all speed to France. Among the other Allies there must be no faltering. We are one of them; we are faltering and faltering disgracefully. It is not the fault of the people but of the combination that calls itself a Government. It is no Government, but a mutual admiration society, its heterogeneous elements unable to say anything too good about one another, as a few weeks ago they were unable to say anything too bad. The war and our part in it lies outside its narrow ken. The Recruiting Committee, who know more about the real facts than a dozen governments, have declared that that part can only be sustained through selective conscription. We know that the Government, being not men but jellyfish, will shirk the plain issue. But it will be put to them and the responsibility will rest where it belongs. The first thing that should be expected to occupy the attention and concern of those who boast the title of a National Government (no body outside the House has conferred it upon them) is the national duty. It is the last thing they desire to be troubled with.

Miss May Benedict Doing Next Best Thing.

Miss May Benedict, daughter of U. S. Consul and Mrs. J. S. Benedict of St. John's, Newfoundland, arrived in Moncton, Thursday evening from her home in St. John's, and went to Sheldice where she will spend two or three days with her sister, Mrs. Tomlins. On Monday afternoon Miss Benedict leaves for Waterbury, Conn., where she will take a position in a hospital, relieving a nurse who is going overseas. Miss Benedict has been anxious to go overseas herself, but being denied this privilege by the family physician, she is doing the next best thing by taking the place of a nurse who has been accepted.—St. John Globe.

The Gas Rangel

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive. Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. Wedding Bells.

St. Thomas's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding last evening, the contracting parties being Miss Alice Maude Field, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Field, and Mr. George Cumming, of Langholm, Scotland, who has resided in St. John's, N.F., for some considerable time, and is at present employed with Hon. Geo. Knowling. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Field, and the groom was supported by Mr. W. G. Stranger. The wedding party drove to Smithville where a reception was held under the able management of the Misses Furlong. The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents testifying to the esteem in which she is held. The health of the bride was proposed by the Rev. Dr. Jones, the officiating clergyman, and a most enjoyable time was spent by all present.

Missing Fishermen Reach the City.

Two fishermen, members of the crew of the schooner, Electric Flash, named Eli J. Banfield and W. Archin, who were picked up in an open boat on Sunday morning near Cape Race by Capt. M. McDonald, reached the city yesterday. On last Thursday morning they left their vessel to attend to their trawls but were shortly after cut off from view of their ship by a dense bank of fog. Seeing that it was useless to attempt to regain the ship they set sail for the land, a distance of 130 miles. For seventy-two hours the men fared as best they could on some fish and fresh water, which fortunately for them was stored in the boat. The weather being calm, the men were able to rest in turns. They are grateful to Capt. McDonald and crew who did everything possible for their comfort. Both left by train this morning for their homes at Grand Bank.

Youthful Escapade.

Three Lads Placed Under Arrest for Theft.
A youthful escapade in which a farmer of Long Pond near Manuels was victimized to the extent of twenty dollars and our police detectives kept working overtime for a few days, terminated last evening when three boys were put under lock and key at the police station. It happened that a boy, who lived with his parents in Sydney, came here to spend a vacation with his grandmother. The latter, who thought she couldn't treat him hospitably enough, arranged to have him spend a while with another relative "up the shore." Here matters had to quiet an aspect about them to suit him, and after getting accustomed to the surroundings of his uncle's home, sleeping hours, etc., he systematically opened a trunk, "lifted" $20 and then made a bee line for the city by walking to Topsail where he purchased a ticket and boarded the first incoming train. He met with two former pals and divided the booty. All three then made some purchases, including a revolver, flashlight, some fruit and cigarettes, after which they went countrywards and pitched their tent near Kent's Pond. They enjoyed greatly the life of camping out, especially the bathing exercises that they engaged in frequently. All went well for a couple of days until the police, who had been acquainted of the theft at Manuels by the man who lost the money, rounded up the wayward youths. When taken into custody the principal of the trio had in his possession $1.85 and a revolver and flashlight. The other two hid what money they had near the camp and this morning brought Detective Whelan to get it. All three lads appeared before Court to-day. The lads were released on suspended sentence with the provision that their parents made up between them the amount stolen and restored the $20 to the man who was victimized.

Sport and Patriotism.

He was opposed to the cant of the Government and the cant of the community who had been kill-joys during the war. If, as the result of their efforts and advice, any good had been done, or could arise, he would be the last person to speak against them. The country was being crucified between the profiteer on one side and the canting humbug on the other. He was not a racing man. He had been racing horses and raccoons, but he did not suppose that he put a pound altogether on horses in his life. He was not so anxious about horse-racing or betting men as some people, but if the bookmakers were all thieves—some of them were and some of them were not,—if they were all thieves, and total accumulation of their thieving were put together for fifty years, it would not amount to the thieving of the profiteers in one week during the war. He wanted to see the people of this country enjoying themselves, and it ought to be remembered that the race meeting was often the only holiday many people had.—Mr. Ben Tillet.

Public Notice Regarding Coal.

I am instructed by the Tonnage Committee of the Executive Council to place before the General Public the soft coal situation at the present time and to ask all who are able to do so to co-operate with them in securing sufficient stocks. Coaling steamers are now available, but will not be available later on. Therefore, it is necessary to stock within the period that they are available sufficient coal to carry St. John's over the Winter till the opening of navigation next year.

The Coal Merchants have not sufficient storage capacity to enable this to be done, and the Tonnage Committee appeal to the public to assist in the matter by laying in their Winter supplies as soon as possible. Otherwise there will be a shortage of stocks next Winter. By order of the Tonnage Committee,

To-Day's Messages.
1.30 P.M.

LONDON, To-day.
While the Unionists have decided not to oppose Winston Spencer Churchill in the election for the Dundee seat, his re-election will be contested by Edwin Scrymgeour, Prohibitionist and Laborite. In the last election Scrymgeour was a candidate, holding 1,255 votes to Churchill's 9,240.

Aerial Traffic Lines.

LORD MONTAGU'S VIEW OF THE FUTURE.
The Empire's Landing Places.
An article on the commercial aspects of "Flying After the War" appeared in the Weekly Times in April, in which it was stated that the Government were appointing a committee of a widely representative character to inquire into the subject of aerial civic transport after the war; and later we reported at length a lecture by Mr. Thomas Holt, of the Aircraft Manufacturing Company, on aeroplane services for passengers and mails as a commercial possibility.

Why Not Yours?

WHO RECOMMENDED MICHAELIS.

BERLIN, To-day.
The Taegliche Rundschau states that Count George von Hertling, Bavarian Premier, after declining the Imperial Chancellorship, suggested that Dr. George Michaelis afterwards be named to the appointed place. The Cologne Volks Zeitung disputes this assertion, claiming that the appointment of the new Chancellor was the result of the recommendation of his predecessor Bethmann Hollweg.

THE WANDERINGS OF ARTHUR.

STOCKHOLM, To-day.
Arthur Henderson, member of the cabinet without portfolio, on his way home from Petrograd spent Sunday here. While in Stockholm he was in consultation with H. J. Almfors Blom, King and Camille Humanus, Socialist leaders and Foreign Minister Leedmann.

GERMANS MINING SOUTH AMERICAN WATERS.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, To-day.
A British steamer which arrived here to-day from Calcutta brought word of German attempts to stop trade between the far East and American ports. The ship's officers said that the waters of South America had been strewn with mines recently, and the two steamers which had not been reported since they left Capetown were believed to have been lost from this cause. During the voyage the officers of the ship also heard that a German raider operating in the Indian Ocean had been destroyed by British warships. The raider was an oil tanker which had been changed into a cruiser.

SHOOTING AFFAIR IN PETROGRAD.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
Three occupants of a motor car, dressed as soldiers, shot at a group of officers and soldiers on the steps of the People's Palace. Two soldiers were wounded at the first shot from the revolver of the assailants. The guard of 150 soldiers rushed from the building and fired on the three men, who attempted to escape, but who were lynched by the crowd. Fifteen civilians were wounded in the firing, some seriously.

SIGNALIZING THE FOURTH YEAR.

LONDON, To-day.
The beginning of the fourth year of the war will be signalized in Great Britain by important events, notably a great religious intercession service in London at which King George and Queen Mary will be present, and a big meeting in London on August 4th, when Premier Lloyd George will inaugurate the work of the National War Aims Committee in an important speech. The object of the War Aims Committee is to keep before the nation the causes of the war and the necessity of continuing hostilities until the forces which brought about the conflict are destroyed. The Committee has four Presidents, Premier Lloyd George, Herbert H. Asquith, Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Ex-

"Reprisals."

Apparently we do not all mean the same thing by the term "reprisals." If raids on women and children are meant, I am against the suggestion, on the ground that it would degrade us as it does the Germans, and put us on the same cowardly plane. The slaughter of the innocents, even at this dark hour, is revolting to me, although many of the mothers and fathers in their anguish think we ought to slaughter the children of the Germans, as they slaughter ours. But you cannot argue with distraught mothers and fathers. It seems to me we have much to do in the way of fighting. The men in authority know best the weak spots in the enemy to attack. All that courage and science can give us are at our disposal to stop these dastardly crimes without descending to the low level of the Germans. The answer, in short, to these crimes is to use every bomb we can make and every man we can spare in raids with a definite military object. That is war; that is business. The other is barbarism, and futile so far as I am concerned and so far as the world is concerned.—Mr. Will Crooks, M.P.

"Don't Blame God."

Don't slip into the idea that God is responsible for this war. I believe that many people have not thought the matter out, and some of them are robbed of their joy in religion and their eagerness in prayer by imagining that God is responsible for war. Blame anyone on earth that you like. Blame, as I should, the arrogance and pride of a great race set upon the intoxicating greed of a pan-Germanic world. Blame, if you like, as I also should, the short-sightedness of our own country and its too great love of ease and indulgence in the past. But the one person you have no right to blame is God. God is not responsible. If man misuses his noblest gift, that of freewill, don't blame God who gave it to him.—The Bishop of London.

"Favouring Gales."

The wind systems of the world can be made to serve the purposes of flying instead of winds being a disadvantage. "Wafted by a favouring gale," the speed of a machine may be doubled, so that, Lord Montagu suggested, meteorology and the study of wind currents will be of supreme importance. "These wind systems," he said, "and the consequent tendencies to a permanent direction of wind, either all the year round or at certain well-defined seasons, have a most important bearing on the world's air routes. We can follow the main currents instead of fighting against them.

The British Empire is in a peculiarly favourable position for the development of Imperial aviation, for our widely separated possessions, will enable our air traffic round the world, over land and sea, to proceed without having to ask for concessions from other nations. The very scattered nature of the Empire in this matter is an advantage. The importance of harbors and coaling stations under the British flag all over the world in the past to our naval forces and to our mercantile marine has been very great, but in future still more important will be a chain of landing-places for both land and sea planes, and, for the latter, sheltered harbours from other nations. More Power to His Elbow.

I hope that the new Food Controller—more power to his elbow—will succeed in stopping food profiteering—a form of blackmail which, even more than the war tax, the recruiting officer, has done so much to create industrial unrest in the country. The job is a difficult one, but Lord Rhondda has never shown a fear in the face of a very big task. I believe he will succeed in putting a stop to this monstrous form of blackmail.—Mr. Kellaway, M.P.

The Automobile Bug.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Do you know anyone who has the automobile bug? No, I don't mean the mania to possess one of these luxury-necessities. The kind of automobile bug I mean is the first cousin to the book worm. Perhaps "automobilitis" would be a less confusing name for this disease.

A neighbour of mine was asked the other day why she didn't go to the meeting of a society to which she has long belonged. "Well you know our car was out of order," she explained. "The car was out of order. That Settled it."

The meeting was in a home which my neighbour can reach from her home by electric in three-quarters of an hour. She acquired a car two years ago. Previous to that time she was in the habit of attending meetings that required anywhere from a half hour to an hour and a half's trip on the electric. She thought nothing of it—like the rest of us. But now that she has a car it has come to seem impossible to her that she should use any other means of conveyance. If the car is out of order, that settles it. She can't go.

To Be Sure She Has Small Children, But Even So. . . .

I know a young married woman who lived for three years about an hour's ride on the electric from her mother's home. Her husband had a machine and when he could take her she visited her family. But never once (to the best of my memory) in that time did she take the trip on the electric.

Another interesting thing about this disease is that the invalids never feel the same way about having their friends travel in the electric. They are always saying, "Why don't you come out often?" when coming out means a trip that they would never think of taking.

I Don't Mind Shanks Mare But I Hate To Change Cars. It is a very insidious disease. It attacks even people who have no machines. I know, for the more I ride in my friend's machines the less inclination I feel to go to places where I must use that one time friend and favorite, the trolley. I don't mind Shanks mare. I am not that far gone with "automobilitis" but I do resent this waiting for cars and changing, etc.

And yet it is really no harder than in the old days. I suspect "automobilitis" (like some other itises) is just a state of mind. And rather a foolish one when you look at it squarely.

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the cords of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other Liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and used one bottle which completely cured me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.

TALK

Talk is a violent form of physical exercise with an eight-day main-spring. It is one of our greatest American commodities and is usually retail in long, thought-denuded packages. This country produces every year millions of yards of talk which never comes in contact with a thought wave or any other obstacle, and can therefore be used over and over without showing any signs of wear.

Long ago Ralph Waldo Emerson of Boston, Massachusetts, who had one of the best intellects ever produced in that city, declared in one of his immortal essays: "Talk is cheap, but it takes money to buy salt pork." This statement by a man who was able to think in several different languages created a sensation in intellectual circles, and upset the theories of a great many Massachusetts people who had been paying most of their bills in talk. The world is indebted to Ralph Waldo Emerson for some of the brightest remarks ever uttered in any tongue, and if Boston had any sense of appreciation she would emblazon this imperishable axiom upon the dome of the State House.

If Boston had any sense of appreciation she would emblazon this imperishable axiom upon the dome of the State House.

"Talk" is produced by opening the mouth in the shape of an outside cellar door and allowing a pent-up vocabulary to escape. There are some vocabularies which would be sentenced to solitary confinement for life, if a vote of the community could be taken, but sometimes these are the first to escape. It is an appalling sight to see a naturally timid vocabulary which has had too many highballs break loose from its surroundings and scatter epithets and hic-coughs on the night air.

As a rule, women are equipped with bountiful nature with more talk than men and possess a better delivery. Man is a slow thinker and cannot discharge his thoughts with the deadly precision and rapid-fire staccato of the female of the species. This shows that man's boasted superiority over woman is a ghastly attempt to be funny at the expense of truth and justice.

Talk was originally intended to be used in conveying thought, but at times it seems as if it preferred to travel alone. If we would all cultivate the habit of aiming our talk at the subject in hand and then letting go in a prompt and noiseless manner, there would be fewer gossip-stricken homes, church quarrels and divorce duels.

Your Boys and Girls.

A courteous gentleness to social inferiors, such as servants is the sign manual of breeding. Therefore exact from the child a gentle deference for their feelings. He must be told to say, "please" when asking for a thing at the table and told to say, "thank you," when it is given to him.

The men and women of the South are noted especially for marks of politeness and a great deal of their training comes through the need of being polite to one's black nurse. The deflection is not treated with spankings, for the nurse has no right to spank. It is the old black nurse of the south who taught imperative obedience to the father's and mother's will, who inculcated love for them, who insisted upon every little shade of the ordinary behavior which stands for breeding. A good deal depends upon the character and bringing up of the nursemaid into whose hands a child has been entrusted.

KEEP YOUR BACKBONE STRAIGHT

As far as looks are concerned, you cannot improve on the good old fashioned straight backbone. It gives your clothes a smartness that all the fad walks combined could never give. It gives you youth! What author has not written of the tall, straight charms of its heroine? While the rounded shoulders and protruding abdomen belong to creatures no longer young! Keep your backbone straight and the rest of your anatomy will take care of itself.

Let it curve either in or out and like every other wrong will bring its own punishment. You'll cramp your lungs and damage your digestive organs. You won't be able to breathe correctly. You stomach, liver, bowels, and heart action will be disturbed.

On the side of looks there will be a cavendish chest, which is most unattractive, and rounded shoulders with ugly and protruding wings. Your face will reflect the disordered conditions of your internal organs. For no one is beautiful who is not healthy. You will be quite without grace of movement and repose in posture.

Now the exercise that I am going to recommend to you who have acquired the 1917 spinal curve is the exercise of will power. It is guaranteed to cure according to the amount of exercise of will power you put into it. When you walk or when you stand or when you sit, think of the back of your neck and your spine as being one continued straight line supporting your head. And hold that position. Try it before your mirror once and see what it does for you in the way it should be; your chin will be held up so that no double chin will get a chance to hang there from. The contour of your throat will be wonderfully improved. Your abdomen will fall into correct position and your back still be symmetrical and straight so that when you place your hands across your shoulder blades there will be no protruding wings. A quieting repose—which will not fail to have a soothing effect upon the nerves—will possess you, since the pressure on nerve centers will be relieved.

Everyday Etiquette.

"I have received an invitation to a church wedding. What kind of a reply should be made?" was Elizabeth's question.
"Cards to a large church wedding need no reply. The invited guest attends or not as the case may be, since an invitation to the church part of the ceremony is hardly regarded as a proffer of hospitality," said mother.

LOSING GROUND.
Germany now takes her beating, losing out at every meeting, from each vantage ground retreating, sick at heart and bruised and sore; soon on late we're bound to can her, and take down the flaunting banner from the Hohenzollern manor, there to flutter nevermore. Then the peace of which you're dreaming will have more than empty seeming, and no king will dare start scheming, and no king will dare start scheming, to incarnadine the map; for the world at carnage winces, and no common, garden quinces, be they kaisers or kron princes, will have nerve to start a scrap. Peace! The word has sound caressing, in these horrid times distressing! Peace, the gurion and the blessing! We are praying for that boom! But, though rocky be the sliding, fierce the path that we are treading, there is nothing we're more dreading than a peace that comes too soon. Peace, while there is still a kaiser, or a kron prinze early riser—war forevermore were wiser, war till every man is killed; but the kaiser's growing dizzy, no more keeping up with Lizzie; soon we'll win and then get busy, on the ruins start to build.

BERRIES PLENTIFUL.—In every section of the country berries are reported to be abnormally plentiful this season.

Board of Trade Report

The following fishery report was posted at the Board of Trade yesterday:—
From W. White, (Trout to English Hr.)—The catch is 1230 qts. with 90 for last week. Forty dories, skiffs and boats and 100 traps are fishing. The vorage is the worst in many years, and the traps are hauled repeatedly and not a single fish taken from them. The outlook is poor, but there is a good supply of caplin, squid and herring.
From S. E. Chafe, (Brigus S. Pt. to Bay Roberts Pt.)—Trapping is very poor and prospects are not bright. There is no improvement with hook and line since last report but squid is fairly plentiful. The catch is 730 qts. and for last week 240. Fifty-three traps and 35 dories and skiffs are fishing.
From W. Ward, (Mosquito Pt. to Bryant's Cove.)—Practically nothing was done at boat fishing or with traps during the week. The catch is 2000 qts. with 77 for last week. Thirty-five traps and 29 dories, skiffs and boats are fishing.
From T. McCarthy, (Renews to Seal Cove.)—Fish was scarce the first part of the week but fairly plentiful towards the close. Prospects are good and there is plenty caplin bait. Nine traps, 11 dories and skiffs and 31 motor boats are fishing. The catch is 6000 qts. with 2900 for last week.
From J. Leewood, (Little Hr. to Deer Hr.)—Thirteen traps and about 40 boats are fishing. The estimated catch is about 50 qts. for the season with traps and nothing with hook and line. Squid is plentiful but prospects are nil.

McMurdo's Store News

TUESDAY, July 24, 1917.
What we said yesterday about Zylex is true also in large measure of Zylex Soap. Of the most careful manufacture of judiciously selected materials, by English soap makers, it is easily great as a toilet soap, and it owes its peculiar medicinal properties to the presence of Ichtyol and Boracic Acid in its make-up. As an ordinary toilet soap, as a medicinal soap, alone or in connection with Zylex Ointment, it compares favorably with soaps that sell for 10c. and 15c. more a bar. Price 25c. a cake; box of 3 cakes, 70c.

Young Married Couple

AIR GRIEVANCE IN COURT.
A couple who only recently entered into partnership and vowed to combat life's battles together, had a grievance, arising out of their place of abode, aired in the Magistrates' Court today. Hubby was arrested under warrant last night, charged with desertion, on complaint of his better half. They lived in a neat and comfortable spot in the suburbs and amid congenial surroundings, about two miles from the Court House. Wife, a charming looking lassie, objected to living there any longer on the ground that it was too lonesome. This roused the ire of hubby, who absented himself from the domicile longer than usual, thus causing much anguish of mind to wife, whose affections for him were so lovingly strong that she refused to prosecute him in Court. The case was dismissed and the parties were left to settle the dispute between them, although on leaving the court room the young wife persisted in going elsewhere to live whilst her husband was equally firm in maintaining the position he took at first.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mr. A. L. Collins left on the s.s. Theletis on Friday for a visit north as far as Twillingate.
Material is constantly arriving for the Harbor Grace Shipbuilding Co., and work is progressing satisfactorily.
Miss Laura Garland, daughter of Mr. J. Garland, arrived from Sydney on Thursday on a visit to friends.
Mrs. (Capt.) Thomas Dunn and two children were among the passengers to Labrador by the s.s. Theletis on Friday.

A party of gentlemen whose names all began with the letter F, had an outing extending over a couple of days last week on New Harbor Barrrens. The finny tribe were in good spirits, and some fine sport was had by the party. About 60 dozen were secured.

Mr. John Luscombe, of St. John's, is in town on a visit, guest of Mr. and Mrs. P. Higgins.

Mr. R. Crane, of St. John's, is in town on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Robert Sheppard, and other friends.

Rev. T. H. James is in town, the guest of his sister, Mrs. Brunlee. All Mr. James' old friends are pleased to meet him.

Splendid Saving in England.

Washington, July 19.—A decrease of ten per cent. in the consumption of the whole country, as it was a recognition of the heroic and self-sacrificing services of the men who had fought and died for us.
Hon. Mr. Clift acknowledged the thanks paid to the Pensions Board, of which he deemed it a privilege to be a member, and said it would be very difficult to express a perfect appreciation of the multifarious duties performed by the Chairman, Mr. Clift pointed out the great care that had to be exercised when dealing with discharged men and the provision of allowances to dependents; he also intimated that the Pensions Board would probably continue in office until the end of the present year, when they expected to have their work completed and ready to be placed in the hands of their successors.

Here and There.

WEATHER REPORT.—The weather across country is strong S.E. wind and dull, temperature 40 to 69 above.
ON ANNUAL VISIT.—Mr. Fred Harvey, of the Nfld. Postal Service, North Sydney, reached town by yesterday's express and will spend a few weeks with friends in the city.
MORE DIPHTHERIA.—Three new cases of diphtheria were reported last evening. The patients, who were in one house on the Southside, were removed to the fever hospital.
Fresh Smoked Haddies, 12c. per lb., at ELLIS'S.
ETHIE FROM THE STRAITS.—The S. S. Ethie, Capt. Goobie, reached Humbermouth at 7.15 a.m. to-day having experienced foggy weather throughout the whole trip north as far as Battle Harbour. She reports the fishery west of Red Bay as bad while east of that place there is a fair sign and hook and line men are doing well. Trapping is now practically over in the Straits.

You Can Make Excellent Cake With Fewer Eggs

Just use an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted.
This applies equally well to nearly all baked foods. Try the following recipe according to the new way:

CREAM LAYER CAKE

Old Way	New Way
1 cup sugar	1 cup sugar
1 cup milk	1 cup milk
2 cups flour	2 cups flour
1 teaspoon Royal Baking Powder	2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
3 eggs	1 egg
1/2 cup shortening	2 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon flavoring	1 teaspoon flavoring

Makes 1 Large 2-Layer Cake

DIRECTIONS.—Cream the sugar and shortening together, then mix in the egg. After sifting the flour and Royal Baking Powder together, two or three times, add it all to the mixture. Gradually add the milk and beat with spoon until you have a smooth pour batter. Add the shortening and mix. Grease layer cake tins and bake in a moderately hot oven for twelve minutes. This cake is "at baked in two layers. Put together with cream filling and spread with white icing.

Naval and Military Pensions Bill.

RECEIVES ITS SECOND READING.
When the House of Assembly met yesterday afternoon most of the sitting was occupied in dealing with the Bill providing pensions for members of the Military and Naval forces of the Colony and for their widows and children and other dependents. The Bill provides for the establishment of a Board, consisting of three Commissioners, to administer the pensions. Hon. J. R. Bennett, the introducer, in explaining the measure, said it was virtually identical with the Canadian Bill, a few changes being made to suit our conditions. He paid a warm compliment to the work done by the Pensions Committee and especially eulogized the Chairman, Hon. Dr. McGrath, for his efforts and also the Ladies' Co-operative Committee, the members of which had aided in no small degree towards adjusting claims. Mr. Bennett said he felt sure the Bill would commend itself to the whole country, as it was a recognition of the heroic and self-sacrificing services of the men who had fought and died for us.
Hon. Mr. Clift acknowledged the thanks paid to the Pensions Board, of which he deemed it a privilege to be a member, and said it would be very difficult to express a perfect appreciation of the multifarious duties performed by the Chairman, Mr. Clift pointed out the great care that had to be exercised when dealing with discharged men and the provision of allowances to dependents; he also intimated that the Pensions Board would probably continue in office until the end of the present year, when they expected to have their work completed and ready to be placed in the hands of their successors.
