A QUEEN UNCROWNED
—OR—
THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER XIII

"And quite equal he is to the task. Well?"

"She was a pretty little thing—small and light, like a fairy, with a laugh like a bird's song, sweet and clear; short, flashing, dancing curls—red, like her father's, but very nice indeed; bright, sparkling, dark-gray eyes, and a dainty, delicate, pink and white complexion. I took care of her beauty, for a reason I had of my own, and cared for it every day, as a miser might for his money."

"You old wretch!" said the captain with a look of disgust.

"She was willful, fearless, bold, and stubborn, after her own way—her father's child in every sense of the word. Once she put her foot down to do a thing, you might as well try to move the Highlands over there, as that small girl. She was cute, too, and wonderfully wide-awake for her years—keen as a Venetian stiletto, and surprisingly smart at learning, so I have my doubts whether or not I would have succeeded—though, thanks to my training, she had refreshingly vague ideas of right and wrong. In some ways, she was like a woman, with all a woman's sense, even at that early age; and in others she was as simple as a child of three years. Howlet was dead, and my boys were away with Till; and I carefully kept Miss Jacquetta from all masculine eyes till the proper time came. Kit loved her; for she had the wildest and most winning ways, when in good humor, that ever a fairy had; but she only laughed at him and nick-named him and herself Beauty and the Beast, Bluebeard and Fatima, Red Riding Hood and the Wolf, Vulcan and Venus, and other flattering and complimentary titles."

"Good-girl, Jack!" laughed Captain Nick. "Her father's daughter, indeed! She knew what was what!"

"Kit's love soon turned to hate—as yours did, also, a little while ago; and I believe he would have throttled her, at times, if I would have let him. But I had better designs on the young lady than killing her and an opportunity soon came for putting them into execution."

"Well?"

"Have you ever heard the name of Aubrey De Vere?"

"Not as I know of. Who was he?"

"A son of Mr. Robert De Vere, of Fontelle."

"What! I thought he had no sons?"

"Ah, he had, though—two."

"Well?"

"Aubrey was the eldest—tall and handsome, as all of his race are—but Nature, though she gifted him with wealth and beauty, gave him, also, a slight drawback, in the shape of madness; for there were times when the young man was a raving, furious maniac."

"Phew! That was a drawback, upon my word!"

"Some fright or shock he had received in his boyhood was the cause; and there were intervals still when he was perfectly sane. The family could always tell when one of his violent paroxysms was coming on, in rather a peculiar way. From childhood he had ever been passionately fond of music, but ever since the loss of his reason he never touched a musical instrument except when the furious outbreaks were approaching. Then he would sit down at the organ—his favorite instrument—and play as no man in his sober senses ever played before. His friends kept him confined, generally, but there were times when, with the cunning of madness, he would escape; and so sanely could he talk and act, that no one, except those who knew, would ever suspect him of not being sane."

"Not an uncommon case," said the captain. "I have often heard of similar ones before."

"I knew all the particulars. I heard it from an old servant in the house, so that, when, one stormy night, he came to my house (we lived on the other side of the Hudson then), I knew him at once, and made him welcome to stay as long as he liked, for he had plenty of money and knew how to spend it. Here he saw Jacquetta, and fell in love with her, as only a madman can love."

"Well, and the result?"

"The result was a marriage. She liked him well enough, and had a mighty vague idea of what marriage was; and he was crazy after her. Oh, it was capital revenge! marrying her to a madman, whose family would cast her off with scorn, as if she were the dirt under their feet."

"You were a little out of your reckoning there, though," said the captain, with a sneer.

"Yes, I am glad of it now, though,

PAINS IN LEFT SIDE AND BACK

Other Troubles Women Often Have Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lachine, Quebec.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my left side and back, and with weakness and other troubles women so often have. I was this way about six months. I saw the Vegetable Compound advertised in the 'Montreal Standard' and I have taken four bottles of it. I was a very sick woman and I feel so much better I would not be without it. I also use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash. I recommend the medicines to my friends and I am willing for you to use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. M. W. ROSE, 580 Notre Dame Street, Lachine, Quebec.

Doctor Said An Operation
Provost, Alberta.—"Perhaps you will remember sending me your books a year ago. I was in a bad condition and would suffer awful pains at times and could not do anything. The doctor said I cost not have children unless I went under an operation. I read testimonials of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the papers and a friend recommended me to take it. After taking three bottles I became much better and now have a bonny baby four months old. I do my housework and help a little with the chores. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and am willing for you to use this testimonial letter."—Mrs. A. A. ADAMS, Box 54, Provost, Alberta. C.

The Russian Abortion

It is not surprising that some of the newspaper writers became hysterical when dealing with the Treaties which have been signed between this country and Russia, more particularly that relating to claims on Russia, with the conditional promise of a loan to the Soviet. In January, 1917, the Bolshevik Government repudiated the whole of its obligations. It does not withdraw from that position, but "by way of an exception" it will satisfy, in the conditions prescribed in the Treaty, the claims of British holders of loans issued, or taken over or guaranteed by the former Imperial Russian Government, or by municipalities of towns in the territory now included in the Union. At the same time the British Government recognises that the financial and economic position of Russia renders impracticable the full satisfaction of these claims, and if the terms of an agreement to be reached between the parties concerned satisfy the British Government that holders of not less than one-half of the total values of British holdings in the loans have agreed to the settlement and the Treaty has been signed, the British Government will recommend Parliament to enable them to guarantee the interest and sinking fund of a loan to be issued by the Soviet Government.

Presumably what is exactly meant by the Soviet Government agreeing to meet the claims will be determined in the negotiations, but at present the matter is left delightfully vague. It is extremely doubtful, however, if the terms will be accepted by holders of one-half of the debt, and that being so there will, presumably, be no need to ask Parliament to sanction the British Government guarantee of the proposed loan; but even if the guarantee became operative it is also extremely doubtful if the bankers and other capitalists to whom would fall the task of arranging the loan and procuring subscriptions would undertake the job. It seems to me, therefore, that the chances of the flotation of a loan to the Soviet Government are very small, and unless and until the guarantee is forthcoming on the conditions indicated above there is no need to get excited in regard to the inquiry of lending money to a country which has refused to meet its obligations.

As to the extent of Russia's indebtedness it may be mentioned that the amount borrowed by Russia from other countries for State expenditure, in connection with the railways, and for other purposes, amounted to approximately $225,000,000 in January, 1917. In addition, there were about $21,500,000 of municipal loans. Taking the arrears of interest on these obligations as dating from the beginning of 1917, in which year the repudiation was announced, the total must be increased by over $200,000,000, reckoning the interest rate at 5 per cent, thus making the aggregate amount approximately $1,200,000,000. This does not include the Treasury bills issued by Russia as cover for advances, amounting to from $80,000,000 to $280,000,000, made by the Allied Powers during the war. Adding this, but without allowing for interest in arrear on this part of the debt, the sum indicated as that which Russia owes to-day is $2,000,000,000, or more than the present total of our Five per Cent. War Loan.

Russia apparently seeks to increase this by a fresh loan guaranteed by our Government, but those who have the money to spare will want more satisfactory assurances than are now forthcoming if they are to lend it, and even if the issue is guaranteed by the British Government I should very much doubt whether the loan would be a success. If Mr. Ramsay MacDonald decides to make the op-

Another Glass Substitute

Follosas is the name given by Fritz Pollok to a new glass substitute, a product of the condensation of carbamide and thiocarbamide, with formaldehyde. The material is stated to be transparent and capable of being cut like glass, and given a high polish, but it can also be rolled, bored, and otherwise readily worked. It is tough and very light. It can be colored as desired, given beautiful opalescence in imitation of porcelain, and etched with hydrofluoric or concentrated sulphuric acid. Many uses are suggested. It can be used for optical instruments in place of thin glass, shaped into a great variety of ornamental objects, etched for designs and illuminated for advertising signs, and is proposed as a durable and non-splintering material for automobile panels.

Henderson Holds That Britain Must Decide the Method of Punishment

Z. R. 3 Makes a Successful 33 Hours Flight—Chief Accountant of Home Bank Convicted.

HENDERSON'S VIEWS.

PERPLEXING.
Some perplexity has been created here by the views expressed in Geneva by Arthur Henderson, British Home Secretary, at the Conference of the Committee of the League of Nations dealing with the Disarmament Protocol, on the subject of the obligations of the nations to apply sanctions against transgressors who resort to war in breach of the arbitral machinery to be set up to replace war. The British Home Secretary's opinions, given in Committee on various occasions, have been of an apparently contradictory nature, and he has expressed views here recently which apparently are not in accord with all his previous remarks. Just when everyone present at the meeting of the Committee in Geneva yesterday thought the proceedings were closed for the day, the French representatives, M. De Jouvenal, startled the meeting by contending that each State should supply the League of Nations' Council with whatever force the Council might require in enforcing sanctions. Signor Schanzer, former Foreign Minister of Italy, immediately opposed this view on behalf of the Italian Government. He contended that this was putting the League of Nations' Council above the State. Arthur Henderson supported Signor Schanzer's view and remarked that yesterday he was fighting against those who were weakening the protocol, while to-day he was opposing those who wanted to go too far. He expressed the hope and belief that loyal and effective co-operation in support of the covenant could be confidently expected from every member of the League, otherwise their membership would be a fraud and delusion. What we wish to proclaim to the world, Mr. Henderson said, is that we are determined to join hands loyally in effectively punishing aggressors. The extent of our co-operation in this must depend upon the actual circumstances, not only with regard to the aggression but also with regard to the geographical position and the resources of the individual States. It would be of no use to bind oneself to do a variety of things which may not be required. Mr. Henderson said he wanted to make it unmistakably clear that Great Britain could not depart from this position. He insisted that it must rest with the British Government to determine by what method in its judgment it could most effectively punish an aggressive nation. The Council of the League of Nations could make recommendations to procedure, but the Government of the country was entitled to use its discretion if it thought it had a better and more effective way of an aggressor in keeping with the discharge of its obligations.

TRAIN DERAILED BY BANDITS—FIFTEEN DEAD.

ODESSA, Sept. 26.
Fifteen persons were killed, twenty seriously injured and forty-three seriously hurt to-day when the Moscow-Odessa express was derailed by bandits about 300 miles from Moscow. Five women were among the fifteen killed. The bandits disconnected the rails which caused the locomotive and ten coaches and baggage cars to jump the track. With the exception of the three last coaches the entire train which was travelling at a high speed was completely wrecked, the engineer, conductors and passengers being instantly killed. The rails were torn up for a distance of nearly a thousand feet. The bandits escaped.

STORM DAMAGE IN ITALY.

ROME, Sept. 26.
Great damage is being wrought by floods, following in the wake of a storm, throughout Northern Italy, especially along Lago Maggiore, and the Upper Adige River. Overflowing rivers and streams have caused landslides, have carried stones and trees and have crushed numerous bridges and houses.

GALE SWEEPING COAST OF FRANCE.

LA ROCHELLE, France, Sept. 26.
A gale is raging along the Atlantic Coast of France devastating gardens, damaging houses, and keeping fishing boats in their harbour. Many vessels have failed to make port and it is feared that some have been wrecked.

CHANG DECLARED A TRAITOR.

Peking, Sept. 26.
A proclamation declaring the Manchurian Military Director, Chang Tso Lin, a bandit and traitor, and offering a reward to anyone who "will turn him over to the Government" was issued to-day at the headquarters of Wu Pei Fu, Commander of the Central Government Armies proceeding against the Manchurian chief.

SMITH AGAIN NOMINATED.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 26.
Governor Alfred Smith was to-day unanimously nominated by the Democratic State Convention. The nomination came after a great demonstration lasting fifteen minutes, during which the delegates paraded and danced through the hall.

THE FIRST CONVICTION.

TORONTO, Sept. 26.
Ocean G. Smith, former Chief Accountant of the defunct Home Bank of Canada, was found guilty on the count charging neglect in connection with the filing of returns to the Government, in the decision announced by County Judge Emerson Coatsworth this morning. Sentence is deferred for one week. This is the first verdict in several charges to be tried against officers and directors of the Home Bank, which collapsed August 17th, 1923.

IN THE AIR FOR 33 HOURS.

FRIEDRICHSHAVEN, Sept. 26.
The Z.R. 3 returned to this city and landed safely at 6.30 o'clock this evening, after an entirely successful flight of thirty-three hours over Germany and the Baltic.

FREIGHTER WITH CREW OF 25 BELIEVED LOST.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26.
Hope that the whaleback freighter Clifton, with a crew of 28, survived the storms of Sunday and Monday on Lake Huron, practically was abandoned early to-day. The only hope held out was by the Progress Steamship Company, owners of the vessel. Other vessel men believe that the boat more than eighty hours overdue at Detroit, has sunk with her crew and cargo of stone.

AUSTRALIA GETS TARIFF PREFERENCE.

OTTAWA, Sept. 26.
Ratification by the Canadian Parliament will be necessary, it is stated here, before full effect is given to the trade treaty concluded between Australia and Canada. Provision has already been made by Parliament, however, for giving Australia a tariff preference on dried currants and raisins by Order-in-Council, and it is on her dried fruits that Australia has sought trade preference more particularly. The present customs duty on dried currants and raisins is per pound one-half cent preferential, 2-3 cent intermediate, and under legislation passed in 1922, the Government may by Order-in-Council admit these dried fruits free under the British Preferential tariff and impose a duty of 3 cents per pound under the Intermediate and general tariffs. Australian dried currants and raisins, if the Order-in-Council is passed, would therefore be admitted free while the customs duty on dried raisins and currants coming from countries outside the British Empire would be raised from 2-3 cents to three cents a pound. The bulk of dried raisins and currants now entering Canada come from countries outside the Empire.

The Orphans' Collection

As will be seen from our advertising in this issue, the Belvedere Orphanage collection will be taken up to-morrow. It need scarcely be said that this is a most deserving charity, as those fatherless little children housed at that institution are absolutely dependent on this collection. The Sisters who so wisely administer the affairs at Belvedere have nothing personally to gain in any way. They have given up their lives to the education of little ones sorely afflicted in their early years, and they only ask now for the bare necessities of life to sustain the little charges under their care. Moreover, they are unable to make any public request. They are more or less isolated from the public, who until recently knew very little of the great work accomplished at Belvedere. It therefore behoves us all to lend a very material, helping hand to-morrow, and we have no doubt, but that our Roman Catholic citizens will be well to the forefront as usual and that the announcement in Monday's papers will be a record collection.

Striking Matches All Day Long

WAS MAN'S WORK MANY YEARS.
London, Sept. 13.—Tom Tutbill, who worked for 36 years in a London match factory striking matches to test their quality, died recently from blood poisoning contracted while at work. His job, one of the queerest in King George's Kingdom, was created for him after he had suffered from infantile paralysis, and needed an easy task.

All day long, day after day, year after year, Tutbill went on with his work, scratching all his matches by hand and passing judgment upon the quality of each fresh consignment from the workrooms. Some years ago he became eligible for a pension from his company but he liked his work and would not give it up.

TWO STORES
DUCKWORTH STREET & QUEEN'S ROAD.

Britain, Egypt and the Sudan

When Great Britain formally withdrew from Egypt last year, erecting that country into an independent kingdom for the first time in centuries, two conditions were laid down by Britain and were agreed to by Egypt. One was that Great Britain retained the right to guard the Suez Canal; the other was that Britain retained her sovereignty over the Sudan.

To both of these conditions Egypt agreed.

Now Egypt complains that British troops are being maintained in Egypt, and demands that they be withdrawn; she complains, moreover, that by controlling the Sudan Britain controls the Nile, and so holds Egypt's very existence at her mercy. Yet British troops have been kept in Egypt by the express consent of the Egyptian Government. Egypt had agreed that Britain had the right to defend the Suez Canal, and when the military problem of the defence of the Canal was discussed it was agreed that the logical place from which to defend the Canal was Egypt, and it was therefore agreed that Britain should keep a certain number of troops in Egypt for that purpose. These are the troops that Egypt desires Britain to withdraw.

Complaint is made that these soldiers really constitute an army of occupation, and that if the opportunity offers they will be used to suppress the Egyptian government, and to interfere with the freedom of that country. How baseless is such an argument may be gathered from the following incident. King Fuad quarrelled with his ministers and implored the British plenipotentiary, Field Marshal Lord Allenby, to support him. Lord Allenby, however, replied that as Egypt was endowed with a constitutional and parliamentary government, the King must abide by the advice and actions of his ministers until such time as the Egyptian Parliament refused them its confidence.

British rulers had taught Egypt how to acquire a constitutional government, a British officer showed an autocratic sovereign that that government must be respected.

So much, then, for the Egyptian complaint against the presence of British troops in Egypt.

The case of the Sudan is rather more complicated. Egypt, it must be remembered, was never a British colony in the sense that Canada or India or Jamaica may be termed colonies. Egypt was a Turkish colony, governed by the Khedive, or Viceroy. When Turkey entered the war against us Britain made Egypt a British protectorate; as soon as possible after the conclusion of the war Britain recognised Egypt as an independent kingdom.

Egypt is independent to-day because Great Britain defeated Turkey; Egypt is able to enjoy a democratic constitutional government because Great Britain educated her and fitted her for that purpose.

Britons (and "Colonials") gave their lives in the war against Turkey, as a result of which Egypt is to-day free; Britons spent the best years of their lives sweating—literally sweating, for it is a hot country—that Egyptians might be able to govern themselves when opportunity offered.

The Sudan is a British colony by right of conquest.

Part of the Egyptian argument for the turning over of the Sudan to Egypt is the statement that the Sudan was formerly an Egyptian colony. This is perfectly true. The Egyptians do not add, however—and this, too, is perfectly true—that while the Sudan was an Egyptian colony the people were enslaved, their country literally "spoiled by the Egyptians." Slavery did not cease until Kitchener overthrew the Mahdi.

Britain cannot turn the Sudanese over to the gentle ministrations of the plunder-seeking Egyptian government.

Consider the situation as it exists in the Sudan before Britain conquered it.

At that time slave dealers piled their ghastly trade; neighbouring tribesmen made periodical raids in search of women and gold; ivory poachers flourished; typhus, malaria and the dread cholera ravaged the country.

Then Britain took over the government of the country. This is the result:

Slavery has been abolished; the Sudanese may sleep peacefully at night and walk abroad fearlessly by day, British Tommies protect them, their women and their possessions; sanitation is so far conquering disease that Khartoum is now one of the healthiest towns in the world; British engineers have erected dams and so irrigated the once sterile land that it is now rapidly growing prosperous; British civil servants have been steadily educating the Sudanese so that they may soon be able to govern themselves; religious freedom has been the right of every person in the Sudan ever since the Union Jack waved over it.

So, in a single generation, under British care, the Sudan has passed from slavery, violence and savagery to order and prosperity. Britain's work in the Sudan is not yet done, it is worth carrying to a conclusion; Egypt would have her abandon it.

In the words of Mr. James Ramsay MacDonald, Labour Prime Minister of Great Britain, and pronounced pacifist:

"Great Britain cannot throw off its responsibilities contracted to the Sudan and the Sudanese by withdrawing and handing over the government of that country to any other government. We should be worse than cowards were we to throw off those responsibilities."

Some people see in the recent riots in the Sudan a definite desire upon the part of the Sudanese to be free of British rule; they believe that the Sudanese have reached the point to which Britain has been educating them, and they are now able and desirous to govern themselves; they say that Britain's work is done, that Britain should recognise this and withdraw.

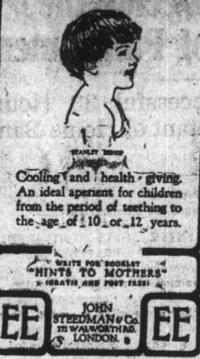

Such people are woefully ignorant of the true facts of the case.

The Sudanese have a craving for sugar. To them sugar is not a luxury, it is an absolute necessity. Now there is a shortage of sugar in that part of the world and sugar is selling at about six times its pre-war price. Even here in Canada, where we have access to the Cuban crop, it is double the pre-war price. This shortage of sugar has led to an enormous amount of smuggling of sugar from Egypt, and the smugglers return with strings of camels which they smuggle into Egypt. The government has vigorously attempted to suppress this smuggling, and this has stirred up a great deal of resentment among the Sudanese. Egyptian emissaries, well supplied with gold, have fanned this into what, transmitted over the cables for foreign newspapers, appears to be flames of revolt.

No one can appreciate the situation, however, who does not realize that religion enters into every question—even sugar smuggling—in the East. Religion in Moslem countries is a much more vital matter than in Christian countries. Egyptian agitators have not been slow to appeal to the religious fanaticism that lurks only just below the surface in the Sudan, and so the sugar riots have taken on a sinister complexion.

In this connection it is interesting to note that three men practically control Moslem thought in the Sudan. These three Moslem leaders are Saad Ali Mirgani, Saad Rahman el Mahdi, and Le Josef le Hinde. Now of these three the first two are loyal to Britain, or have been until quite recently; Le Josef le Hinde is a doubtful quantity. Should he transfer his influence to the Egyptian party he will create a very awkward situation.

STEEDMAN'S POWDERS

Cooling and health giving. An ideal aperitif for children from the period of teething to the age of 10 or 12 years.

JOHN STEEDMAN & CO. LONDON.

This month, September, is the period of the great Moslem feast. If nothing happens this month the question may be settled.

Egypt, it will have been noticed is playing the major part in stirring up trouble for the British in the Sudan; Egypt has constituted herself spokesman for this people, why?

Egypt wants the Sudan. She argues that as the Nile flows through the Sudan before it enters Egypt, and as the Nile in Egypt, therefore it is essential that she control the Sudan; she argues further that the Sudan was an Egyptian colony before it was British—these and similar arguments are advanced by the Egyptian government.

The writer spent a number of years in Egypt, his father is an Englishman who served successive Khedives. He ventures to suggest the following as among the reasons why Egypt desires the Sudan:

Before Britain entered Egypt corruption was rife and the fellahs (or peasant farmers) were shockingly over-taxed; in fact they dared not show signs of possessing more than a very bare pittance: Britain changed all that. Under British rule taxes were reduced to a minimum, the fellahs waxed prosperous. One thing Britain could not do—no earthly power ever could—was to change the nature of the Egyptian; he is still, as he ever was and probably ever will be, corrupt to a degree hardly to be realized in this country. Graft and bribery in Egypt are rampant, dishonesty and thievery is rampant.

Now all this costs a country large sums of money. This money can only be raised by taxation. In this writer's opinion, however, were the Egyptian government to impose heavy taxes upon the fellah that worthy, thinking of the good old days when he enjoyed the benefits of British rule, might refuse to pay taxes; he might even make his refusal vocal and eventually he might make things very uncomfortable for those in high places in Cairo; he might appeal to those Tommies who protected him in the past—perhaps that is one reason why the Egyptian government is so anxious to be rid of British troops in Egypt—and he might protest so vigorously and so loudly that Britain may once again be compelled to rule Egypt—which would be quite to the fellah's liking.

So the Egyptian government must necessarily walk warily in the matter of taxing the fellahs.

The Sudan is rapidly growing prosperous; it would be a fertile field for the tax-gatherer—in this writer's opinion that is one reason why Egypt has become so anxious that Britain should withdraw from the Sudan.

—Do You Enjoy Your Pain? —Are You Married to Your Disease? —Will You be Lonesome Without Your Suffering?

YOUR OPPORTUNITY.

Come and get well, for I practice the most marvelous Health Science known to mankind; I know what it will do, so do all my present and past patients.

If you think it is a "fake," "bunk" or another way to separate you from a few of your musty old dollars, stay away, "enjoy" your pains; they're yours.

No, I'm not soliciting your case, but I do hate to see so many sick people. I'm just telling you Chiropractic can get you well, if you want to be well.

"You don't believe it; it's not so."

ALRIGHT—

They told Edison he'd burn up New York with his new fangled electric lights.

They told Columbus he was bughouse and proved it (to their own satisfaction).

They said Orville and Wilbur Wright were crazy—the very idea that men could fly!

According to the "wise" ones, Ford would never be able to sell a thousand cars a year. Now look at him, he turns that number out every hour.

Go on—they're your pains and aches and miseries—enjoy them. You've hand-nursed them for years. They don't hurt me and you're not being misled.

I've just one purpose in life—that's to get folks well who are tired of being sick, and I do. I would practice Chiropractic if I had millions.

Yes, it costs money. Not near as much as it is worth though, and I am getting plenty of patients, thank you.

So get well or hug your disease closer and stay sick. You're the judge, and it makes no difference to me. (Honestly, how, how could it?)

Chiropractic is good for any kind of a disease or affliction you have.

Don't believe it?

Alright, then, Columbus was crazy.

HEADS VERSUS HEELS.

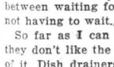

Do women, as a whole, like labor saving devices? You would think they would. There are so many motions in the job of housework that can't be done away with, so many little time eating, monotonous jobs that can't be done by any machine, that you would think women would be eager to avail themselves of any help that machinery or systematization could give.

And yet it sometimes seems to me as if many women really resent any new way of doing things. But they never use it. I have a new kind of dish drainer which has two special features. One is the wire arrangement to stand the plates up in, the other is a little hole in the end through which the water can be drained out. The idea of this is that by setting the drainer on a slight slant, the hot water which you use to pour over your clean dishes can be drained into your dishpan thus conserving hot water if your supply is limited—which ours decidedly is.

But I have never yet had a helper who would utilize this feature of the drainer. I always point it out to them hopefully. They apparently acquiesce. And then go on in the old way. I cannot imagine any reason why they are not willing to prop up the drainer and utilize the water twice. It saves them lugging it from the stove. Sometimes when they carelessly run short of water, it would mean the difference between waiting for more to heat and not having to wait.

So far as I can see it's just that they don't like the slight difference of it. Dish drainers never were propped up, therefore they never should be. Prefers To Do It Herself. I have a neighbor whose husband wants to buy her a washing machine. She won't let him do it. "I really think it's about as much work setting the thing up and fussing with it as washing the clothes myself," she says. And I have two friends who have washing machines which their maids refuse to use for the same reason. One of my mother's favorite re-proofs of my heedlessness when I was a child was: "You never let your head save your heels." I think that's just what a good many women are averse to doing—letting their head save their heels. They would rather do a lot of work in a customary routine way than less work in an unusual way that means a little more mental effort.

Let Their Heads Save Their Heels. Of course I know there are also many women who do let their heads save their heels in every way possible. As I look over my friends and acquaintances and think of the two women I know who accomplish more than any of the rest, I realize that both of them have their houses equipped with every possible labor saving device, both have small modern kitchens with the sink at the proper height, and the stove, icechest, kitchen table, sink, and so forth, properly placed to save steps.

Women are the conservatives of the race. It is natural that they should be for they also are the conservators. In some ways it is a good thing, but in other ways it handicaps them. It seems to me that the woman who finds herself dreading or resenting any labor saving device ought to take herself in hand and make a deliberate effort to get out of this attitude. She says it's more work to use the labor saving device than to do the thing the old way, but what she probably means is more work for her mind because it doesn't want to direct her hands in new motions. If she can once persuade her mind to do its share she will probably find she has saved herself time and energy in the end.

NELL BUYS A MAH JONGG SET.
Said I to Jeff: "Where common sense is, I don't kick about expenses. But there's times I do get muddled. When I think she's downright foolish. Money's mighty hard to get. Now she's bought a mah jongg set."
"Home she comes and proudly shows it. Says she's learned the game and knows it. Tells me in her way emphatic Mah jongg's so aristocratic. Chinese money, tiles and dice. Thirty dollars was the price!"
"Thirty dollars!" I exploded. "Well," said I, "if I was loaded like a cherry tree with cherries, and if money grew like berries, thirty dollars I'd not pay. For some Chinese game to play."
Later on I stopped my rowing. Watched and heard 'em punging, chowing. Building walls, discarding, drawing. And in spite of all my jawing I forgot the cost and sat in and played and that is that!

Faking "Old Masters"

CLEVER CROOKS IN THE ART WORLD.

Recent complaints by well-known artists that certain of their pictures have been duplicated by forgers have drawn attention to a subject with which few people, even in art circles, are acquainted. So skilful is the modern picture faker that experts are often deceived.

On the Continent there are several schools of forgers, who reap large sums by taking pictures for export to this country and America.

Each group has its own style and methods of work. One school, for instance, imitates the paintings of Rembrandt, another Van Dyck, another Rubens.

One man in each group is responsible for copying heads and faces, while another occupies himself solely with draperies and clothing, and so on. The result of their joint efforts is a marvel of ingenuity, the smallest details of the original artists' work being reproduced with wonderful accuracy.

To give the effect of age the forged picture is stained several times with varnish, the last coat being applied at a certain temperature. Powdered coffee and the white of egg are applied to complete the deception. Cracks are imitated by covering the canvas with old glue, and drying it in a special room.

In determining a picture's genuineness the camera, the microscope, the X-rays, and analytical chemistry play a big part. Magnified photographs of the brushwork of the doubtful picture are compared with others taken from authentic pictures by the artist concerned, tiny fragments of paint being removed for chemical examination.

Science, in fact, will ultimately lead to the extinction of this class of forger.

THE TALE BEARER.
A man of evil spirit would tell a scandal tale; "I do not care to hear it," I say, "but I will tell you the truth. I find that village scandal is proof that some one lied, and he's a tawdry vandal who speaks it far and wide. I want to love my neighbors, and think them good and true, and I detest the labors of gossip bounds like you. I want to think the hikers who meet me in the lane are not all fakes and pickers, as scandal fiends maintain. I'd have the Legislature put crimps in all who'd wreck my faith in human nature and in my friends, by heck. I'm fond of Moses Medler who lives next door to me; you tell me he's a peddler of bootleg ginger tea. I simply won't believe it—so stainless a renown." I wonder what's the pleasure that people seem to find in roasting without measure the best of humankind. There goes the village preacher; I hear the gossip croak, "From Talmadge and from Beecher he borrows all his smoke." There goes the learned physician; the gossip hound I hear, "He draws from the mortician a rake-off every year." No man's so high and stately but scandal sharks will grow, 'Twould for the village greatly if all his crimes were known."

Seven Convicts Set Free
"As the result of an important legal decision four months ago seven convicts under preventive detention are now to be set free," says the Star.

"In April thirteen judges, including the Lord Chief Justice, sat to consider an important point in regard to the Prevention of Crime Act—whether er a person once convicted as an habitual criminal must be regarded as such for the rest of his or her life." (We called special attention in Public Opinion to this matter.)

"Charles Leslie Norman, the appellant, was sentenced to three years' penal servitude at the Old Bailey for burglary and uttering a forged document. He was also ordered five years' preventive detention as an habitual criminal. Against the jury's finding that he was an habitual criminal an appeal was entered, and the majority of the thirteen judges decided in Norman's favour.

"When the result of the appeal became known convicts at Camp Hill Preventive Detention Prison, Parkhurst, became restive, and threatened to mutiny. They were told to appeal.

"The Health Office announced that 66 petitions against preventive detention had been received and considered, and the Court of Criminal Appeal has advised the Home Secretary that in seven of the cases the sentence of preventive detention should be remitted.

"Seven men are accordingly being discharged."

Soldier Farmers do Well
More than 1,000 soldier settlers have either paid off their indebtedness on their farms or have made prepayments on their loans of more than $1,000, according to Major J. Barnett, Chairman of the Soldier Settlement Board. The abandonment figures are approximately the same as in the 15 corn and wheat States of the United States. The Board had sold 1,600 farms for salvage, leaving $600,000 more than the Government had paid for the farms. . . .

Grit and Enterprise That Deserve Encouragement

There are frequent references made to the neglected wealth of our waters, wealth that could be obtained by the means and equipment which we possess, if only they were applied to the best account and if our faith in the fisheries was stronger. At last night's dinner at Donovan's, Sir Michael Cashin referred to the falling off in recent years of the prosecution of our fisheries, our chief industry, and from knowledge gained by practical experience he proved conclusively that the resources of the sea were sufficient to restore to Newfoundland her former prosperity, to place her in the front line of the British dependencies, and to lift from her shoulders her great burden of debt.

We know that this is true; we also know that the prosecution of this great industry is the natural bent of Newfoundlanders, and yet the tendency is to desert the fisheries for other occupations when opportunity offers. It is not because the supply of fish has been depleted, nor because the physical hardships inseparable from the calling are any greater to-day than they were in the past. In fact they have been considerably mitigated, and certainly the physique of our fishermen has not deteriorated. Fish is required abroad now in even greater quantity than in the past, and in the face of such circumstances, surely there is urgent need on the part of the authorities, business men, and producers to give this problem of ours first consideration.

It is gratifying to be able to refer to an actual case of what can be accomplished even under present conditions by energy, enterprise and determination. We refer to the successful prosecution of the fishery this year by Captain George Moulton of the schooner "James Arnold," which is a record of which he may well feel proud. Fitting out from the firm of W. W. Wareham & Sons of Harbour Buffett early in the season for the Bank fishery, he was soon back with 450 quintals. In a second voyage he secured 750 quintals, and on the third trip, 300. As soon as possible he was away again, this time bound for the Labrador, and he has just returned with a load of about 1,000 qts. We cannot state whether this constitutes a record for a vessel of the class of the "James Arnold," and it is immaterial, but it stands out as a fine achievement, an excellent testimony to the grit and tenacity of both master and crew, and a practical rebuff to those would lead us to believe that Newfoundland must look elsewhere to retrieve her fortune.

This country possesses an army of men of such sterling worth. Reverses do not daunt them, as witness the case of the fisherman who for ten long years was dogged by misfortune every season before his luck turned. Instances without number of such persistence might be quoted, instances too of accomplishments that would make a fitting subject for an epic. But these men are not seeking fame. All that they ask is that their labour will provide the frugal comforts required by their families and the wherewithal to enable them to carry on.

New War Memorial

A war memorial, the work of Muir's Marble Works, has been completed for the people of Port Blandford, to be erected to the memory of the men of that place who laid down their lives in the Great War. The memorial is a splendid piece of workmanship, and reflects great credit on the designers. It bears the following inscription:

WAR MEMORIAL.

Erected by the people of Port Blandford in memory of their glorious soldiers, who died in the Great War.
 No. 2693 Pte. Alexander William Penny; Killed in action at Monchy.
 No. 3484 Pte. John Sulley; Died of Wounds in France.
 No. 1727 Pte. Charles A. Mesher; Killed in action at Monchy.
 "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."
 It is now being made ready for shipment, and the unveiling will take place at Port Blandford in the very near future.

The Belvedere Orphans

This is the last opportunity to again call attention to the collection to be taken up at the Roman Catholic Churches to-morrow in aid of the Belvedere Orphans. Too much cannot be said of the good work accomplished by those talented Nuns who have made it their lifework to foster and educate little ones who have been deprived of their parents. It must take a vast amount of money to finance an institution which houses nearly two hundred children beside the regular staff, and the Mother Superior out there must have a busy time throughout the year financing their requirements. Our Catholic citizens have always felt it their duty to relieve the Sisters of all monetary worry, and it goes without saying that when to-morrow's collection is counted it will turn out to be a record one. Every dollar given to this collection is well and wisely spent, and those of us who have families and homes of our own to finance know too well how very many dollars are required to properly carry out the work assigned to those good Sisters.—adv. 11

Committed to Supreme Court

The preliminary enquiry into the charge of murder preferred against Alonzo Russell concluded this morning before Judge Morris when the depositions of Drs. The accused when asked by the Judge had nothing to say and was committed to the Supreme Court for trial.

Making Alterations at Post Office

A staff of carpenters are now busily engaged making some alterations on the second floor of the General Post Office. A portion of the partition has been torn down on the eastern side of the building to enlarge the Money Order Department. The Cashiers' and Accountants' quarters will be moved to the front of the building, and the Registration office will in future be conducted on the ground floor. The caretaker's quarters will be removed elsewhere, and will be fitted up as an office for the Inspectors and other officials.

Those who attended the Auction Sale in the spacious premises in the Morris Building, recently taken over by the firm of Fearn and Barnes, were led in their appreciation of the excellent arrangements made for the exhibition of goods on sale, the manner in which the business was conducted and the splendid quality and variety of the articles from which to obtain bargains. This enterprising firm has rapidly secured the good will of the public since it started in business, and the keynote of its success has been Service. With the new facilities at their disposal we bespeak for this enterprising firm an increasing share of the patronage of the public in the future.

PEPPY BEHIND THE SCENES.

Sept. 26.—The weather grown mighty cold, and some rain falling; so my wife would have me remain in doors, since I am taken with a great cold of the head. This, however, I would not do, since it is better to suffer from cold longer than to listen to her complaints all the day. But I find how many others do also suffer from cold and poor Peppy the worst of all. Not able to speak almost, and sneezing perpetually. He tells me he did see some fine snow fall this morning, at which I ask him if he had overdone himself with hot portions for his cold since I did never hear of snow in September. Little news anywhere, and seemingly no interest in the by-election at Bonaville, albeit I am told the Opposition will contest it. Divers names are mentioned as their candidates but none that I can believe. The election, I learn, like to be held in October, and, if this be true, the proclamation should be made by the end of next week. This day to buy myself a shot gun against a shooting trip which I hope to make soon, but my wife thinks I am not safe to be trusted with a gun and prays me not to go.

Obituary.

WILLIAM SEWARD CROSSMAN.

(H. P. SHORTIS).

A noble Christian life closed in a holy and peaceful death Thursday evening, when Mr. William S. Crossman, the doyen of our marine engineers, was called to his eternal reward. His death is mourned by a very large circle of friends whose esteem and affection he won during his long and eventful life, having attained the patriarchal age of 84 years. The deceased gentleman was endowed by Nature with many beautiful qualities of character which won for him the high esteem in which he was held by the public of all classes. His charity and unending faith ever impelled him to promote the good works of the community in which he lived, and the Church of England, to which he belonged. He was of a temperament that exudes good fellowship. In a word—he was a Newfoundland gentleman of the old school. So passed a great soul. That he did much good there is no doubt. That a great deal of it will never be known in this world there is just as little. The bright memory of his truly Christian example, his devoted life during his long residence here, will ever remain fresh in the hearts of those who knew him. No one who heard him speak could fail to be impressed with the sincerity of his words. He was possessed of sterling qualities and wisdom which the hard trials of experience alone can bestow. He was broadminded and tolerant in all things.

Mr. Crossman was born in St. John's 84 years ago and after leaving school, entered the large machine shop, owned by his father, Mr. Aaron Crossman, a native of Devonshire, England. This large and flourishing establishment was an institution, not alone in St. John's, but was known and patronized by people of the whole country in those days. When about 15 years of age he was selected by the pioneer lumber merchants of the Explicia, Messrs. Windsor and Valance, to superintend the erection of their mill, and his efforts gave every satisfaction to the proprietors. He was next appointed engineer on the S.S. "Aurora" and then on the tub Cabot. When the old tub was replaced by the S.S. "Hibernia" built by the steamship company (Capt. Edward White), Mr. Crossman was appointed engineer and was in charge of the engine room of the S.S. "Hibernia" and "Napier". He brought out the "Hibernia" in 1910, and was constantly on duty until three years ago, when he retired, having been elected to the firm of Job Egan and Co. for the long period of over 20 years without a break, which is indeed a splendid record, and a sufficient guarantee as to his ability, trustworthiness and integrity. Mr. Crossman made several trips to the Arctic regions, and was chief of the Neptune when he went to the relief of McMillan, with Capt. "Bob" Bartlett in charge. He was also in the same ship for two years in the Arctic, surveying the coast in the interests of the Canadian Government, and covered 21,000 miles during that period.

His wife, who predeceased him about 30 years ago, was a daughter of Mr. Oke, Inspector of Lighthouses, many years ago. Three brothers predeceased him, viz. Moses, John and James, also one sister, Mrs. Richard A. McCoubrey, of the "Times" newspaper. He leaves to mourn one son, Robert, the well known engineer of this city; one daughter, Mrs. W. B. Fraser, also of St. John's, many relatives and hosts of friends, to whom the sympathy of the whole community is extended. The funeral will take place from his late residence, 101 Gower Street, to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at 3.45 p.m. and interment will be in the Church of England cemetery, where all that is mortal of a truly good citizen and christian gentleman will repose in peace amongst those he loved best whilst upon earth. Requiescat in pace.

C. L. B. Cadets

The weather did not deter 139 all ranks from duty Thursday night. Lieut.-Col. as usual was in command with the following staff:—Major H. Outerbridge, M.B.E.; Captains L. Stick, P. Rendell, Horsley, C. Co.; Lieuts. W. R. Motty, Eric Jerrett, A. B. Perlin, M. Job Taylor and W. Reeves (multi) with Regt. Sergt. Major John Andrews and Brigade Major Williams. The attendance is showing signs of improvement.

The C.L.B. Ladies' Auxiliary under Mrs. Tasker Cook, President, and Mrs. W. H. Hynes, Secretary, and Committee, are busily engaged finalizing their annual sale to be held Thursday, October 2nd. They are making a special feature of dancing in the afternoon for children, and special arrangements are being made to accommodate older folks at night in the gymnasium. The ladies will dispose of plain and fancy work, ornaments, flowers and refreshments.

Recent orders announce that Battalion drill will be held in future on Tuesdays, beginning the seventh of October. There will be no parades next week on account of the preparation of the Armoury for the Ladies' Auxiliary. All officers, N.C.O.'s and lads of A. Co. and all Old Comrades are requested to meet Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next week in order to put up the stalls and decorate the Armoury for Thursday, October 2nd. Will you all be there, boys? Sure! Everybody is needed—bring a hammer and some nails!

During the week one lad was dismissed for non-attendance. We are sorry. Our advice is to enlist again and play the game. Six new recruits are posted to A. Co. and nine to F. Company. Second Lieut. Hubert Rendell has been granted three weeks leave from September fourteenth. The officers hope he will have a big bag of partridge as they are keenly looking forward to a partridge supper on his return.

The Battalion Band was again working overtime this week. The Band is always prominent in good works. On Thursday night they gave an excellent programme of music in Bannerman Park for the Child Welfare Association. Wednesday they played again in the Casino for the same object, and in the Armoury they organized a dance with the generous help of Miss Moore and provided the music to the approval of everyone. Heartiest congratulations, Capt. Morris.

Captain Stick, our energetic Adjutant, announced he is arranging a Bridge Drive next month. This will be part of the Officers' contribution to the budget of 1924.

Additional electric lighting is being installed in the Armoury by the Ladies' Auxiliary and by Headquarters funds. This is necessary when social functions are held in the building.

The Ambulance Department, under our Chief Medical Officer, Captain Fred Burden, M.D., are planning their Fall and Winter programme of ambulance classes. All lads that would like to take up this work can now attend lectures beginning October 3rd. This is one of the best branches of the Brigade work, and knowledge gained in "first aid" is useful always in everybody's life.

August "Brigade" has quite a complimentary reference to Captain Morris and the Battalion Band on account of his excellent programme rendered at his special concert some time ago. London Headquarters raised the question as to whether the Newfoundland Band has any competitor in England or elsewhere that could reproduce the same concert. Carry on, Capt. Sandy! Carry on!

Last evening the Officers held their monthly conference. President Geo. House in the chair. He presented his report as Camp Commandant, which was a record one in every respect. The report was ordered to be sent to the Diocesan Magazine. Mr. Llewellyn Colley reports that Major Anderson, G.C., of Heart's Content, is on the Brigade's casualty list in the General Hospital, St. John's. The gallant Major has a broken ankle and the Officers are going to place him on their waiting list. All ranks hope he will soon be able to get duty and rejoin his Company.

"People are getting fed up with inferior soaps. They want Sunlight Soap. They won't buy other soap. If you won't sell them Sunlight Soap, they will get it from the shop next door to you. Don't waste your time and lose your customers, just because someone wants you to sell soap which isn't as good as Sunlight Soap. Selling Sunlight Soap is the easiest thing any shopkeeper has to do."

Brigade Bank cashier Capt. A. S. Lewis reports for August that there are 128 depositors with $3490.87 to their credit in the Brigade Savings Bank. All ranks who have not opened accounts are requested to make every effort to open a Savings Account for the proverbial rainy day.

Public Opinion

IMPORTANCE OF PERSONALITY.
Frank Wilson, writing in the Sphere on "The Importance of Personality," says:—"The curious thing is that while we are represented in some quarters abroad as hide-bound in precedent, we are in fact the most individual and elastic of peoples. No wonder foreigners cannot understand us. We are suspicious of change, and yet talent continually breaks forth in unexpected and startling directions, and it is this pre-eminence of individual efforts which has made us what we are.

"The truth is that amidst all our wide diversities and disputations we are constantly—though unconsciously—looking for that expression of the individual soul which has built up our race, and which is destined to take us on to fresh triumphs.

"With all the world's new inventions and with all the changing political programmes and fetishes, it remains as true now as ever it has been that the source of achievement and of happiness in all fields is to be found in the individual human spirit. The strong heart, careless of surroundings, devoid of the circumstances of any time, the innovating brain makes history in spite of environment. The quick-witted wit, regardless of convention, struts into unexpected and startling forms of amalgam we call life. Unconquerable the nation which has the germs of these men through the generations!

"A detached observer with no national prejudices would unhesitatingly say that Britain has led the world in powerful personalities. She still leads it in spite of the pessimists. It would ill become us to boast, because the influences which cause us to produce outstanding men and women are largely beyond our control—climate, race, tradition, the necessity for struggle, our open-air habits, all these and other factors are responsible. But while we may not boast, and while we may pay tribute to the distinguished leaders in other lands, we may at least allow ourselves a measure of satisfaction that in these times, when prophets of evil think we are going into the deeps, we have set the note for the world in most directions of human endeavour, and that it looks very much as if we were going to continue to do it."

The Prince as Apache LINER MASQUE—50 DANCES.

After dancing most of the afternoon and again immediately after dinner yesterday the Prince of Wales left the ballroom just as a parade of competitors in a ball masque was beginning.

Ten minutes later it was noticed that on the crowded floor were two of the slimmest, neatest, and handsomest masked Apaches the world has ever known. They danced for some minutes without being recognized.

Then the Master of Ceremonies crossed to them and said, "What are our names, please?"

The reply from one Apache was a huckle and immediately there was a burst of applause, for the Prince had been recognized.

Toy Dog Prize.

He was conducted to the Judge's table where he was presented with a toy dog. His partner, Mrs. Richard Norton, was also given a toy souvenir.

The Prince's costume was grey angora trousers, a light brown sleeveless pullover, a blue shirt from which the sleeves were cut, a knotted brown silk kerchief round the neck, worn in gipsy fashion, and a tweed cap with a rosette pinned to the top.

Mrs. Norton was also in male attire very similar to that of the Prince. They danced once in costume and then retired to change, and for the remainder of the night the Prince danced incessantly, mainly with Lady Louis Mountbatten and Mrs. Norton. He must have had at least 50 dances.

Tug-of-War Team.

He also practised yesterday twice with a tug-of-war team which he will captain to-day. The team, with the Prince pulling at No. 7, will be: Lord Louis Mountbatten, Mr. David Boyle, Captain Lascelles, Colonel Duff, Mr. Duff Cooper, Major Bouch, and Mr. H. G. Chilton.—Daily Mail, Aug. 28.

Tilbury. The vessel left Swansea with coal for Bordeaux in charge of Captain J. D. Owens, of Lampeter, and with him was the Rev. J. C. Davies, minister of Belper (Derbyshire) Unitarian Church, who was making a holiday trip. Capt. Owens story was a graphic one. The ship ran into a storm about 30 miles off Ushant at 2 a.m. She disappeared 15 minutes after time beneath the waves which swept over her, and the water being shipped was so great that the vessel began to list rapidly. It was just possible, at intervals, to steer the vessel, but for the greater part of the time she was at the mercy of a storm more severe than the most experienced seaman had ever before encountered. The crew, for two hours, stood to their posts with great courage as the terrific seas surged over the ship. It was 4.15 a.m. when she tilted over to an angle of 40 to 50 degrees. Capt. Owens decided then that it was time to man one of the lifeboats, which had already been lowered ready. They found it was impossible to reach the boat on the port side, so they all got into the same boat. It was only ten minutes after they got off that the vessel disappeared. There were 18 of them in the boat in a raging sea for nearly seven hours sighting vessels that could not see them in the mountainous waters. They saw two steamers on the horizon and hailed them, but in vain. Eventually, however, the steamer Olivia observed them, and manoeuvring in a praiseworthy manner got close enough to take them on board. The captain paid a warm tribute to Capt. Currie and his crew of the Olivia for their gallantry in effecting the rescue. The Rev. J. C. Davies stated that what struck him most during the most horrifying moment was the clockwork manner in which everyone worked. The calmness of the crew impressed him and strengthened him when he thought the end had come. It was his first trip to sea, and one he should never forget.

Haunted by Executions

EX-WARDEN HANGS SELF IN TRUE OFFICIAL STYLE.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—Haunted by memories of executions he had witnessed while chief warden at Wandsworth prison, Charles Lazell hanged himself with all the elaborate detail with which he had seen scores of men go to their deaths.

The aged man, past eighty, went through the complete deathhouse formula.

First he found that the shed he had chosen as the spot for the suicide was the same number of paces from his house as the Wandsworth execution shed was from the death cell.

Early in the morning he arose and demanded his favorite dishes in accordance with the prison custom of allowing prisoners under death sentence to eat what they like the morning of their execution. He was given these delicacies.

Then he told his family he did not care to be disturbed, and he was going to the shed and "the hard work to do."

In the shed he mounted a pair of steps, fixed the noose about his throat and leaped through a trap door. His body was found several hours later.

Culture Flourished in Valley of Nile

Twelve Thousand Years Ago. Twelve thousand years ago Egypt had a culture of its own, a culture in advance of that to be found in many parts of the world to-day. This revelation is the substance of discoveries of the greatest historical importance made in the Assiut district during the late winter season by the two camps of the British School of Archaeology, writes the Luxor correspondent of The London Morning Post.

Hitherto, when reference has been made to pre-historic culture, the

Liner in Hurricane

Passengers Tossed into a Heap—Over 'Fifty Injured in Amazing Trip.

Caught in a hurricane that roared up the American coast, the White Star liner Arabic had an experience that a less-stout vessel could not have survived. Badly battered and with 52 of her passengers injured, most of them being women, she limped into New York harbour. One of the stewards, T. H. Owens, was reported to have been drowned. Other liners on the trans-Atlantic route encountered the hurricane, but the Berengaria, in which the Prince of Wales was travelling, escaped it. The Arabic, of 15,000 tons, formerly a North German Lloyd vessel, was on a voyage from Hamburg and Cherbourg by way of Halifax. Most of those aboard her between the latter port and New York were immigrants, but many Americans were included amongst the company. The liner eventually reached her destination with a heavy list to starboard, caused by the shifting of cargo, which the crew were working feverishly to get back into place. Most of the starboard lifeboats were missing. The Arabic had wireless for ambulances to meet her, and eight passengers were rushed off to hospital without delay. All the injured passengers are Americans, but five of the crew were among the 20 cases treated in hospital. The most seriously hurt was Paul Carney, fireman, of Liverpool, whose spine was fractured. From the accounts of those on board the ship a 100-mile-an-hour wind sprang up suddenly, and the Arabic was Buffeted in Mountainous Seas.

The skipper, Capt. Hickson, reported that a huge wave struck the liner on the starboard side about the bridge and threw about 100 screaming women, men and children into a heap in a corner of the main lounge. Mixed with them were articles of furniture, paintings, tapestries, and chunks of glass from broken port-holes. The flood rushed over the deck, sweeping all before it, crushing lifeboats, twisting iron stanchions and virtually filling every cabin of the two upper decks. The passengers had afterwards to sleep on tables and in deck chairs. While the storm was at its height a semi-panic reigned on all decks, and it is alleged some of the male passengers needed rough treatment before they could be quieted. Three gigantic waves hit the Arabic in rapid succession, carrying her almost on to her beam ends, and she took three minutes before righting. In the midst of the confusion a heroic woman calmly played the piano and sang in the ship's lounge, thereby quietening the passengers. Speed was reduced to half for the remainder of the trip, owing to fear that engines might be damaged. As the sea-water contaminated the ship's fresh supplies, passengers had to use fruit juices and bottled waters until port was reached. The highest praise was bestowed upon the crew, passengers declaring that their behaviour was a splendid example of bravery and unselfishness. "They gave no thought for themselves," stated one traveller, "and obeyed orders with the utmost coolness and efficiency. I never imagined such discipline could prevail on a passenger steamer," he added. The White Star liner Homeric, which encountered the storm off Nantucket, was also badly damaged. Seven first class passengers were injured, a lifeboat was lost, and all the port-holes were smashed. Three feet of water collected on one of the decks.

period indicated has been somewhere between 8,000 and 6,000 B.C. But 2,000 years even before that remote age man had worked down from the Caucasus through Sinai, settled in Egypt, and had advanced far beyond the primitive state. He had developed the social instinct; he had organized his towns and cities; and he had been taken through successive intellectual courses until he had embellished his sense of the beautiful. Twelve thousand years ago Art had been born and was flourishing in the northern districts of the Nile Valley. This discovery sheds light on the inhabited world of 120 centuries ago. For it has long been known that for numerous centuries before the latest pre-historic period, Europe was inhabited by human beings. But such evidence of their mode of life as has been secured has indicated that they existed in fairly primitive style. They apparently attempted to fashion and create, but their efforts appear to have been the untrained gropings of the inherent artistic instinct. Now, as the result of this discovery, their inspiration and their work becomes more comprehensible.

It seems as if Egypt in those early times had imbibed the spirit and the delicacy of the Solutrean culture and had amended it as her own individual art expanded. Situated even then at the gateway of the peoples of the earth, she impressed her ideas and her achievements upon those who passed by the Nile, and across the desert sands, infusing her visitors with her own conceptions, which in time were reflected less delicately in the outlying settlements of Europe and Asia.

There has been no undue haste in giving the facts of this important discovery to the public. In the first weeks of 1923, when public interest had been stimulated in Egyptology by the thrilling news concerning the treasures in the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the British School's camp at Qau, in the Assiut district, stumbled by one of those fortunate chances upon some fossilized human remains. Taking advantage of the momentary halt at Luxor, I hastened to Assiut, but the story had not been cleared up, though the available authoritative details were published in The Morning Post early last year.

At the end of the last season I was favored with a few more details at Cairo, and a short article in The Morning Post on May 1, 1924, foreshadowed the deeply interesting revelations to follow. Since early in 1923 Professor Sir Flinders Petrie, the active head of the British School of Archaeology, with his colleagues has been working on the information obtained at Qau, Hamamish and Badari, and they are now able to release the news of this discovery after proper study of the facts.

Piracy on High Sea

Armed Men Plunder Liqueur Ship—Amazing Adventure Near American Coast.

Shades of Captain Kidd and the freebooters of the Spanish Main were conjured up by a piratical adventure that befell a French vessel within a few miles of the American coast. This ship, the Mulhouse, registered at Pecamp, left the port of North Sydney, Nova Scotia, some weeks ago, having on board 36,000 cases of spirits and liqueurs shipped on account of firms carrying on business in France and elsewhere. The only passenger in the vessel was a representative of one of the firms. The nature of the voyage may be guessed from the fact that Capt. Ferraro, of the Mulhouse, had authority to sell, in the course of the trip, any portion of the cargo, subject to market rates, which were communicated to him daily by wireless. When the vessel, which was ostensibly bound for Bordeaux, was off Cape May, New Jersey, she was hailed by a schooner called the Patara, flying the British flag, whose captain expressed a wish to purchase 50 cases of the Mulhouse's cargo. The sale was effected and the required number of cases were transferred to the schooner, whose skipper promised on leaving that he would return with further orders. Six days later the Patara again appeared and her captain boarded the Mulhouse to negotiate a further bargain. While the two skipper were below discussing terms, however, a score of men armed with revolvers, suddenly boarded the Mulhouse from the schooner and smashed the wireless apparatus. Simultaneously, another small craft grappled the steamer, which passed into the possession of the intruders, who imprisoned the crew in the hold. The raiders then proceeded to transfer as much as they could of the cargo to their own vessel. After this another schooner hove in sight, and then another, and so the game continued for ten days. When the pirates cleared off they left 1,000 cases of drink on board to prevent the Mulhouse's captain from entering the American territorial limit and asking for aid. A strange feature was that the robbery occurred while the steamer Fire Island stood near by, the members of her crew being ignorant of what was going on. When the Mulhouse went back to Halifax, Captain Ferraro lodged a complaint with the maritime authorities. Several days later one of the pirate schooners was found in the harbor of St. Pierre, and Capt. Ferraro brought about the arrest of the entire crew. The capture, it is believed, will throw light on the whole conspiracy, which it is suggested, was carefully planned in Paris.

Our Caribou

We notice from time to time that reference has been made to our caribou, and to the fact that there is a possibility of these animals being exterminated. This outcry of extermination may have a far away sound, and may upon the face of it seem premature; but on closer consideration, it will be found, that after all, it may not be so far away.

At the rate which our caribou have been slaughtered during the last twenty years, it seems a wonder that we have as many herds roving the land as we have. Notwithstanding all the laws that have been enacted, there is still an annual slaughter which must eventually tell upon these animals.

We have always supported the idea of tourist traffic for Newfoundland, and we believe that great possibilities lie in store for us. As a tourist country Newfoundland has much to offer, and one of the principal attractions is that of the caribou and salmon fishing. With this in view it is well to consider at what rate our caribou are being destroyed; this would evidently come under the notice of the Game Board, and we have confidence in the gentlemen who compose this Board, to do their duty in this relation.

We are quite aware that some very drastic legislation is in force in reference to this matter, but it may be that further legislation is necessary and that a close season or two may be in order. The "Enterprise" is in favor of this latter idea, and would suggest that before it be too late, this question of the close season be considered. Not that we wish to entail any disappointment upon the sportsmen or upon anybody else, but we claim to stand for the country's general good, and adhere strongly to the principles that "prevention is better than cure."

We have the caribou and it is our duty and right to protect them. We owe this duty both to the present and the future. In this respect we have noticed the writings of Mr. Arthur English in the city papers. Mr. English is a gentleman who has travelled far and wide, and who has a great knowledge of natural history. He has stood within the Antarctic Circle, and also within the Arctic Circle, and his knowledge of Newfoundland is unsurpassed. Therefore, basing our theories upon what Mr. English has said, and corroborating them by our own experience, we claim that the time has come when some definite and firm step should be taken in this matter.

A close season would mean a lot, nor would it entail hardship on anybody. This close season does not refer to the public or settlers killing the caribou for food, it refers to the unnecessary slaughter which is entailed for sports, so called. The tourist traffic in this country must increase, and it is the duty of those in authority to conserve its best interests; and we think this cannot be accomplished in any better way than by safe-guarding our game. We will have more to say upon this matter at a later date. We believe it is a very vital matter, and worth the attention of the people; because if another ten years be allowed as at present, then the extermination of the caribou may be taken as a foregone conclusion. The prevention of this catastrophe is now in our own hands, and by acting in time those noble animals may be saved.

The herd now is not large. Of this we have ample evidence, but by prevention they could be increased. The caribou means much to the country at present, and by judicious control should mean a great deal more as the country is opened up. It is a great pity that we have been so lavish in the destruction of our game, as well as of our forests. We believe that the time has come to cry halt. Therefore, the "Enterprise" enters this protest.

Note.—We fully agree with our Trinity contemporary in this matter and have urged the necessity for a close season time and again. If, however, such is decided upon, its whole object would be defeated if it did not apply to citizens as well as to strangers.—(Ed.)

Price of Coal Drops $1.50 Ton

FORT WILLIAM DEALERS CUT PRICE OF ANTHRACITE AND SOFT COAL.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 17.—Residents of Fort William will save about $50,000 in cold cash this winter owing to a drop in the price of anthracite and domestic soft coal. This saving to the pockets of the householders does not include the great saving that will be made in the heating of places of business and public offices of various kinds. It is probable that the saving will run to $100,000 in Fort William alone, when every angle is taken into consideration.

Desires in fuel announced that a drop of $1.50 a ton had been effected in the various sizes of anthracite. The drop also affects domestic soft coal to the extent of $2 per ton.

GENERAL MOTORS.

August Sales Reflect Improvement in Automobile Industry.

N.Y.—Steady improvement in automobile conditions is indicated by General Motors report of sales for August. Its figures furnish an accurate index of the trend in the industry, as they include not only factory sales to dealers but retail sales to the public. Furthermore, General Motors produces about 20% of motor vehicles of the country in low, medium and high priced classes, and the report is therefore fairly representative of the whole trade.

"Under this plan of operation, Chrysler and Maxwell inventories are kept in liquid shape, and forward commitments are restricted to actual requirements." Chrysler and Maxwell now total about 2,900, compared with 1,696 a year ago and 1,221 two years ago.

Effect of this policy was evident early this year when the record output was given wide publicity by many manufacturers, although retail sales were showing no inclination to expand beyond the high totals of the previous year.

Sales of General Motors to its dealers of 48,450 units in August were 46% greater than the low of 32,984 in June this year and 61% of the peak sales of 73,668 in February. Notwithstanding the increase in sales to dealers the past two months the total was below the number delivered to the consumer, indicating the process of liquidating the heavy carry-over was still in progress. The extent to which dealers' stocks have been liquidated is shown by a comparison of figures for the past 10 months. With steadily rising demand from dealers recently, while retail deliveries were showing seasonal recession, the conclusion is that stocks of cars are now at the low point.

In five months beginning Nov. 1, total deliveries were 128,000 greater than sales by the factory. During the period the public received 354,866 vehicles, while the various General Motors divisions sold to dealers only 226,562.

In five months beginning No. 1, 1923, the situation was reversed and whereas dealers delivered only 221,840 cars to the public, they bought from the factory 343,274, of which more than 120,000 were placed in stock and represented the approximate surplus sold the past five months.

August deliveries to the public of 54,149 cars were only slightly lower than 55,832 in August last year. On this showing, and with definite signs of business improvement the latter part of this year, executives believe public purchases the current four months will closely approximate the closing months of 1923. In the last four months of 1923 retail deliveries of General Motors vehicles averaged 50,000 monthly, against 42,000 monthly in corresponding period of 1922. Sales to dealers during these periods averaged 70,000 and 43,000, respectively.

As officials have said the corporation would not in future attempt to stock its dealers and that factory output would be kept closely in line with the retail sales curve, the prospect is that General Motors for the balance of the year will be able to maintain its sales to dealers at 50,000 to 55,000 cars monthly. This would bring total sales by the corporation in the current year to around 650,000 vehicles, against 795,000 in 1923 and 457,000 in 1922.

MAXWELL MOTOR CORPORATION. Limiting Current Month's Production To Previous Month's Sales To Public.

NEW YORK.—Pres. Chrysler of Maxwell Motor Corporation has inaugurated a new policy to avoid over-production.

"Though the retail demand for new Chrysler cars is ahead of present output," Mr. Chrysler said, "our policy is to limit current month's production to previous month's actual sales to the public. This means that the Chrysler and Maxwell organization will avoid the embarrassment of over-production and overstocking dealers. We are now on a well-balanced basis, and, as sales increase, are in a position to expand plant operations.

"Under this plan of operation, Chrysler and Maxwell inventories are kept in liquid shape, and forward commitments are restricted to actual requirements."

Chrysler and Maxwell now total about 2,900, compared with 1,696 a year ago and 1,221 two years ago.

Portia Arrives From Westward

BRINGS ENCOURAGING FISHERY REPORTS.

S.S. Portia, Capt. Connors, arrived from the westward yesterday afternoon, and sails again this evening to take up the regular route. Capt. Connors brings very encouraging reports of the fishery in Fortune and St. Mary's Bay. During the past month the boats operating in these parts have done well; in fact some of the schooners have lettered their catch of twenty years ago. There is plenty of squid and herring for bait. It has been a very successful bank fishery as well. Buyers along the coast are now paying $8.50 per quintal for No. 1 fish.

At the Star Movie Monday

Georje Fitzmaurice JACK HOLT CHARLES DE ROCHE

See Pola Negri in "The Cheat" and witness the greatest entertainment the screen can give.

The biggest cheat of all is he who cheats himself out of happiness. Be square with yourself and see "THE picture of the year."

Just a few of the big scenes:— The stupendous charity bazaar—an eye-filling, breath-stopping spectacle; —the Parisian fashion show, with beautiful mannequins in a dazzling style show; —the sensational "branding scene"—the screen's greatest thrill; —the dramatic court room scene, with its smashing, unforgettable climax.

A beautiful, luxury-loving woman, a poor man's wife—Trying to live the lavish life she was accustomed to— Spending borrowed money with which to do it—Losing heavily at the gambling table, hoping to make a killing— Till desperation takes her to a man of millions—Who drives a hard bargain and relentlessly tries to collect. What was she to do? What did she do? Here, without doubt, is the greatest situation ever created. And you KNOW what Pola Negri can do with it!

Not a "vamp" picture, not a tragedy—Just a great, big picture of sensational surprises. With Pola Negri in a brand-new kind of role, the biggest surprise of all!

Good Hooking at Battle Harbor

Sub-Collector Moses Bartlett writing to the Deputy Minister of Customs from Battle Harbor says the shore fishermen are taking from three to five qtls. codfish daily. Squid has gone and herring is getting scarce although enough is available for bait. If the fishermen keep at it there would be four or five hundred qtls. fish landed for the week, (Sept 15th). There are only five schooners fishing here and they are doing well with trawls.

Why the British and French Prime Ministers go to Geneva

The Two Premiers.

Why are the two Premiers—Mr. Herriot and Mr. Ramsay MacDonald—going to Geneva in September? Not sail down its lovely lake nor to worship at the shrines of Calvin and Bossuet.

Mr. H. Wilson Harris explains in the Daily News the special nature of the great gathering of the League of Nations in Geneva which takes these two Premiers away from their countries when their hands are all too full of domestic tasks.

The League's Great Month.

"The League of Nations never goes to sleep, but for one month in the year it is always particularly wide awake. That month is nominally September," writes Mr. Wilson Harris. "It will begin this year, for example, before the end of the present week, or perhaps the Assembly does not start its sittings till next Monday the Council will be meeting on Thursday and Friday with a good deal of unusually important business to discuss, and it appears likely that the British and French Prime Ministers, laudably anxious to increase their knowledge of the practical working of the League, will be at Geneva well before the week-end to look around a little and find their bearings."

Two Bodies.

"The Council and Assembly of the League are separate bodies with, to some extent, separate functions, but in a general survey of the prospects of the coming month no laborious distinctions need be drawn between them. They are both the League. What the Council does the Assembly can always discuss, and generally does, and on the other hand the Assembly's decisions are almost invariably passed on to the Council to execute. The first task of the Assembly, indeed, is always to review the labours of the Council in the past twelve months, simulated thereby by a concise but necessarily voluminous report by the Secretary-General of all the activities of the Council since the Assembly was last in session. That takes about the first week of the Assembly's meeting, while in the second ten days or so the stage is mainly occupied by six grand committees, which divide up the field between them (political subjects, armaments, judicial questions, humanitarian activities and so forth) and report in the last week, or rather sooner, on progress registered and schemes elaborated under each several head. On the strength of such reports the Assembly takes its resolutions as to future action."

150 Delegates.

"This, it may be said, is mere procedure. Quite true, but it is just as well to dispel the idea that an Assembly meeting means no more than a month of copious and unsystematic talk. That it means a great deal of talk, is undeniable. That, indeed, is obvious enough, since one of the main purposes of the Assembly is to bring the statesmen of the world into contact with one another, and science has so far provided no particularly satisfactory substitute for the spoken word as medium of communication."

"But who are likely to talk this year, and what do they propose to talk about? Out of some 150 delegates only a handful can be enumerated here. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and M. Herriot will, of course, be among the chief. Signor Mussolini appears to be a doubtful starter, but Dr. Benes will be there, and M. Hymans, the Foreign Minister of Belgium, M. Branting from Sweden, Dr. Nansen from Norway, and the new Foreign Minister, Count Strynsky, from Poland."

What the Assembly Does.

"But what the Assembly does is a good deal more important than the persons who attend it. What it will do this year cannot wholly be foreseen. That is so every year. There is always the chance of something unexpected turning up or of something expected taking an unexpected turn. In any case, the fundamental fact about the League Assembly, propaetic though it may seem, is that the essentially important business this year is the routine business."

"If the delegates of 50 States come together to examine seriously how the mandate system is working, in actual practice, how the minorities entrusted to the League's protection in various countries of Europe are faring, how the government of the Saar Valley is being conducted, how far the Austrian and Hungarian reconstruction schemes are justifying themselves, what progress is being made with the preparation of disarmament schemes, what the Economic and Financial and Transit Commissions are doing to remove obstacles to international trade, what is being achieved to diminish abuses like the opium traffic, what new activities the Health Organization is developing, if these and a dozen more similar subjects are seriously considered, as they will be, that alone is abundantly sufficient to justify the assembling of delegates from nine-tenths of the civilized countries of the world.

The Great Question.

"This year, however, something more than the discharge of routine business is looked for. Something more, indeed, is necessary if Prime Ministers of Great Powers are to find it worth their while to go to Geneva. It will be surprising if the outstanding problem from next week onwards is not disarmament, linked, as the French will inevitably insist, with security. This will arise under at least four heads, and the Assembly's Third Commission, which regularly deals with armaments, promises to be as important as any that has ever sat."

"First of all, it will have before it replies from all the different Governments on the Treaty of Mutual Assistance—replies favourable like the French, and replies unfavourable like the British, and replies from non-members of the League like the United States and Germany and Russia."

"Secondly, it will have to approve an important convention on the traffic in arms, drafted by a League Commission in whose work an American official nominee took active part."

"Thirdly, it will consider the assumption by the League of responsibility for supervising the armaments of Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, and sooner or later—probably sooner than later—of Germany too."

"Fourthly, it will have to make arrangements for the holding of an international conference, already decided on, for the application of the Washington Conference limitation principles to naval powers not represented at Washington in 1921."

A Formidable Programme.

"That is a formidable enough programme for a special international conference in itself. Fortunately the League, thanks to its continuity and the efficiency of its central organization, can take this sort of thing in its stride."—Public Opinion, August 29.

Two Taxation Protests

From the Smooth Rock Falls and District Board of Trade, New Ontario, which is probably the youngest Board of Trade now established in Canada, come two taxation resolutions; one of which is of especial interest. The first deals with a subject which has been discussed in many of the smaller towns of Ontario of late. It proposes that under the Ontario Amusement Tax Act all amateur entertainments, sports and games held by local clubs or organizations be exempted from the admission fees are to be used to buy equipment for the furtherance of the organization and in no way for personal gain. Nearly everyone will agree with this proposal. It is a petty business for the Ontario Government to mulct small lacrosse clubs and amateur dramatic and musical societies, always hard up for funds for the small revenue that is derived from such sources.

The second resolution is more important and affects the whole Dominion. It proposes that the Federal Income Tax Act be amended so that on all incomes of married persons up to $3,000 and unmarried persons up to $2,000, all fees paid for medical or surgical treatment shall be allowed as deductions from income—providing such deduction is supported by the signed receipt of the attending Physician or Surgeon. This seems to be a fair proposal. The act at present allows certain deductions from taxable income in accordance with the number of the salaried man's dependent children. It seems equally fair that when this type of income taxpayer has had to pay out considerable sums for medical treatment he should get an exemption covering the amount involved. It is rather tough on the married man whose income has been reduced by the necessity of paying $300 or $400 for an operation on himself or a member of his family, should be obliged to pay taxes on that amount. The proposal is well safeguarded—since the taxpayer cannot claim exemption on his doctor's bills, but on his doctor's receipts. We think the medical profession would welcome even this small inducement to patients to pay up.—Saturday Night.

A Country Without Forests

What promises to lead to a large timber trade appears to be developing on the Pacific Coast. British Columbia forests are being called upon to a much larger extent every year to supply world markets, but one outstanding instance of this is reported from China by Canada's trade commissioner in that country. In 1913 no Canadian timber was used in China, that country's supply being almost entirely from Japan and the United States. Since 1914, however, Canada's shipments have grown from 120,000 feet to over twenty-seven million feet in 1922, and there would appear to be no reason why our exports of timber to that country should not continue to increase.

The growth in exports of railway ties to China has also been very large. In 1920 no Canadian ties were used. The trade in 1921 amounted to 20,000 pieces, but in 1922 there were 305,823 railway ties shipped to China.

China's need of foreign timber bears witness to the necessity for proper care with forest resources, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior. That country, naturally hilly, was formerly well provided with forests, the slopes of the mountains being covered with tree growth. These forests have been utterly destroyed, and no attempt has been made at reforestation by natural or artificial means. The consequence is that the mountain sides have been eroded and the soil washed away, leaving them bleak and bare, and China to-day, instead of having a timber supply of her own, is dependent upon outside sources. Canada may take a lesson from China in this connection. We have to-day vast areas of virgin timber but, due to carelessness on our part, we are permitting their destruction by fire and unscientific exploitation. Forest fires are taking a heavy toll not only of the mature timber but of the young growth as well. The forests are, next, to the land, Canada's chief natural resources, and its importance warrants the best attention of every thinking Canadian if the future is not to find this country in the same position as China in regard to a timber supply.

Schr. Louise A.W. is now ready to sail for Tilt Cove and La Scie with a full load of supplies from C. F. Bennett and Company.

Shenandoah Has Port in Pacific N. W.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 29 (P.)—The Pacific Northwest "port" for the Shenandoah, and any other heavier-than-air craft the navy or army may send to this section, is ready on the Camp Lewis military reservation, about 10 miles south of this city. The port consists of a mooring mast 150 feet high, together with the necessary machinery to handle a dirigible and to supply it with helium gas and fuel. It is expected that the Shenandoah will be on the Puget Sound in October.

The great mooring mast is situated on a prairie which affords plenty of room to maneuver the largest dirigibles. The mast itself is a great tube of steel, firmly imbedded in the earth and held in place by cables anchored in concrete blocks. Twenty surge lines, also anchored in concrete and handled by gasoline engines, will hold any dirigible that is tied to the mast. On top of the mast is a large swivel to which the dirigible is connected and which can be moved about according to the direction of the wind. The top, 180 feet high, is covered with a battery of flood-lights which will illuminate the field for a mile in every direction.

Running up alongside the mast proper are three large pipes. These will carry gas, water and gasoline to the airship.

A Distinctive Picture
Goldwyn-Gosmopolitan

Patrons of the Majestic Theatre will have the opportunity of learning all about the love affairs of a man in his second youth when "Second Youth," is played there for three days, beginning on Monday. The management announces that this is the date for the showing of the new Distinctive feature, in which a cast of celebrated screen and stage comedians poke fun at a very serious question, "Shall Women Propose?" That question has long agitated the feminine breast, but in this photodrama it is presented in such a variety of forms that every woman or girl in any audience will see herself in one of the characters. And as for the poor man in his second youth, who didn't know what love was until six women tried to show him all at the same time, well—he's one of the screams of recent productions.

Tiny Sail Boat Starts World Trip

Hamburg, Sept. 10.—Walter Greig, a journalist, and Wilhelm Leiser, a film photographer, left here Sept. 7 in a 21-foot sailing boat to sail around the world. They started up the Rhine River by way of the Rhine-Rhone canal, down the Rhone River, the Mediterranean, to the Canary Islands, bound for South America as the first leg of their journey.

Deepest Point in Ocean FOUND NEAR JAPAN COAST.

Tokio, Japan, Sept. 1. (A.P.)—The lowest known point on the earth's crust, the deepest known trench in the ocean, lies about 145 miles southeast of Tokio. This discovery, made recently by the Japanese naval survey ship Manabu, has been announced by the navy authorities. The new "deep" measures 32,636 feet, or more than six miles. It exceeds by 548 feet the hitherto greatest known ocean depth, the famous Marianne trench in which the United States naval ship Nero in 1899 found 32,088 feet off the east coast of the island of Mindanao in the Philippines.

The Manabu's "deep" apparently lies at the bottom of a precipitous declivity descending sharply about 100 miles from the southeastern coast of the main island of Japan. To the Japanese the first interest in the discovery lies in the seismic possibilities of this trench so near their coasts. The sharpness with which the ocean bed plunges a few miles from Japan is held by scientists to be a contributing factor to the severe earthquakes which visit this part of the country.

London Eliminates Straw Hats as Summer Headgear

London, Sept. 12. (A.P.)—Except for those on the heads of American tourists, straw hats have almost entirely passed out of the life of London. Before the war they were the recognized headgear for men in English cities during the summer just as they are in the cities of America. Factories at St. Albans and Luton turned them out by the thousands. Several of these makers have closed their plants, some solvent, others bankrupt. Those who continue to fabricate "boaters," as the Englishmen refer to stiff straws, depend almost entirely upon overseas orders, mostly from America.

The light and soft felt hat killed the boaters, with the able assistance of England's erratic weather. When the war came those who remained in civil life sacrificed some swank along with white bread, huge portions of roast beef and other peacetime enjoyments, and gave up the shining silk topper that every city gentleman wore to his work. The derby—called the bowler—became the standard winter wear, and the felt—called the homburg—the ordinary summertime headpiece. The straw began to pass out, and now has become rare indeed. Perhaps it is just as well. During August this summer it rained in London on 20 of the 31 days, and it looked like rain on most of the other eleven.

London Dreads Possible Collapse of St. Paul's

London, Sept. 13. (A.P.)—Despite heroic efforts being made to strengthen its fabric, evidence accumulates that St. Paul's cathedral, Sir Christopher Wren's masterpiece, is threatened with disintegration. This evidence has been obtained from a variety of sources, during the past 25 years.

The latest warning comes from the recently constituted Fine Arts Commission, which argues against the erection of a new bridge over the Thames opposite St. Paul's on the ground that the great cathedral already is threatened by heavy motor traffic, which is constantly increasing, and that any further shaking may lead to a catastrophe.

The defenders of the cathedral argue two ways. Either the new bridge would carry little traffic and so would be unnecessary, or it would carry a great deal in which case the constant vibration would endanger Wren's masterpiece, everywhere recognized as one of the finest buildings in the world.

Fears for the safety of St. Paul's first were entertained when the subway were run through the earth in close proximity to the foundations. The vibration was recognized as a menace. This menace has been steadily augmented by the constant increase in surface motor traffic which rolls past the church, and in very close proximity to it. Finally the arguments of the Fine Arts Commission against a new bridge and increased traffic are supplemented by a warning from Mervyn Macartney, surveyor of the cathedral. He argues that underground work for the structures of the proposed bridge would threaten the foundations of St. Paul's by tending to drain off the water under the "pot earth" on which the cathedral stands.

The Prince's Orchestra dance, which takes place at the Gaiety Hall on next Wednesday night, promises to be a very popular affair, judging by the number of tickets that have already been sold. LULL IN FIGHTING.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 27. While the three day lull in China's civil war merged into the fourth, unceasing preparations were continued for resumption of hostilities on the fighting fronts around Shanghai. All was quiet early this morning. Mr. Feng Lin, Military Commissioner of Shanghai, visited Nanhsing field early last night to assure himself that the city's defences were as perfect as they could be made.

MARSHAL FOCH PLAINLY EXPRESSES HIS OPINIONS ON THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

PARIS, Sept. 27. The opinion of Marshal Foch on France's security and the League of Nations, as set forth in his replies to questions put to him by the Revue Hebdomadaire, are expected by the French Press to create a deep impression on his countrymen. The first question was under what conditions France could place her confidence in the League of Nations. To this he replied that he always had considered two things lacking in the League: First, that the European nations which were most interested in the maintenance of peace and in the affairs of Europe should possess material means to make its decision respected, such as international force, or better, the national forces of one or more countries at its disposal under conditions to be determined before hand. The second question was whether he believed the League eventually could lighten the country's military burden by a system of international guarantee. To this the Marshal replied in the affirmative, but on condition that the foregoing conditions were fulfilled. Previously in the article, he considers that reduction in armaments can only be a corollary to guarantees of security, and that guarantees will be vain so long as the nations most interested in the maintenance of peace do not predominate at Geneva. A reduction of armaments in the case of France, according to Marshal Foch, depends on the disarmament of Germany, that she should not be admitted to the League of Nations before, first, an inventory of German armaments is taken, and the entire execution of the clauses in the treaty demanded by the Allies is accomplished and checked; and second, a method is arranged by which the League of Nations shall exercise the right of investigation under the Treaty of Versailles. The last question put to the Marshal by his interviewer was whether Foch thought the saying "If you want peace, prepare for war" could be replaced by "If you want peace, practise justice." His reply was not direct. His opinions, he thought, were those of all true soldiers, that nothing is more desirable than a reign of justice; that the making of war is an abominable calling; that bloodshed and the destruction of property are detestable, and that the League is a dangerous seductive idea, which is perhaps full of possibilities, but that time must be allowed men to consolidate it before it can be relied upon as a safe guarantee for the maintenance of peace.

FAREWELL DINNER TO BANK MANAGER

Mr. H. M. Stewart, who, after a period of eight years as Manager of the Bank of Commerce in St. John's, is leaving to-day to resume his duties in Chatham, Ont., was given a farewell dinner at Donovan's last night, by a number of his friends. The famous hotel excelled itself in the arrangements made for the occasion and Mr. A. E. Hickman, who acted as chairman, conducted affairs in such a manner as to make the occasion a most enjoyable one. Following a very elaborate menu and the health of the King having been honored, the chairman proposed the toast to the guest of the evening, Mr. Stewart. He referred to the hospitality which the Canadian banks had given to the development of the industries of the country since their establishment in Newfoundland, and spoke in glowing terms of the work done by Manager Stewart during the very trying years which had followed the cessation of hostilities. In expressing his regret at Mr. Stewart's departure, he wished him a continuation of success in his new home and every prosperity and happiness both for himself and his family. Mr. Stewart, upon rising to reply, was given an ovation. In thanking the proposer of the toast for the cordial sentiments expressed, he said that he too deeply regretted his departure. Newfoundland had become to him a home, and he wished to thank the people of the island, he trusted, would mean his loving touch with his many friends and pleasant association. The toast to Newfoundland was proposed by Mr. E. B. Watson, who spoke in that inimitable manner which on such occasions always gives his listeners such great pleasure. Sir Michael Cashin responded, and described the great change which had taken place in business affairs since the inception of the Bank in this country. He also referred at length to the situation in Newfoundland to-day, as compared with that of years ago in relation to the fisheries. He strongly emphasized the necessity for encouraging our staple industry, and developing to the utmost the wealth of our Labrador and Bank enterprises hand in hand with our inland resources. His remarks were closely followed and strongly endorsed by all present. "Our Bankers" was proposed by Mr. E. J. Godden, M.H.A. and was responded to by Mr. J. A. Paddon, Manager of the Bank of Montreal. Both speakers referred to the signs which indicated that we had surmounted our worst troubles and to the bright future which appeared to be in front of Newfoundland. The toast to the Press was proposed by Mr. H. E. Knight and responded to by Messrs. C. E. A. Jeffery and R. H. Hibbs, H.A. Before Old Lang Syne and the National Anthem brought to a close a very pleasant evening. Mr. A. E. Hickman in a graceful speech requested Mr. Stewart to accept as a souvenir of his stay in St. John's a silver cigarette box mounted in Labradorite and inscribed with his initials. Mr. Stewart who was very much taken by surprise, made a fitting reply. The toast to the Chairman proposed by Capt. Richard Gosse was enthusiastically endorsed. By no means the least enjoyable feature of the evening was the musical part of the programme, under the direction of Mr. Max Colton. Splendid solos were rendered by Messrs. P. F. Moore, Fred Emerson and Dr. Macpherson, and songs sung with eclat by the whole gathering allowed no interval to occur in the proceedings.

LENINGRAD A SCENE OF DESTRUCTION AND DESTRUCTION.

LENINGRAD, Sept. 26. With a partial subsidence of the flood caused by last Tuesday's storm, the stricken population of Leningrad began to-day the task of salvaging the wreckage left by the worst disaster that has visited the city in a hundred years. By nightfall 2,000 persons had been rescued from inundated buildings in the city which, since the inroads of the water, has been a veritable floating island. More than two hundred of these persons were unconscious, twenty-five dead bodies also were found, and everywhere there are many tales of heroism and of hairbreadth escapes from death. The city, which already bore scars and wounds from the revolution, presents a melancholy aspect. There is destruction, derelict and desolation everywhere thousands are homeless and the hospitals are crowded.

ARRANGEMENTS UNDERWAY TO FLOAT GERMAN'S LOAN.

LONDON, Sept. 27. Active negotiations for the issue of the $300,000,000 loan contemplated under the Dawes plan for the economic rehabilitation of Germany will get underway in a few days with the arrival in London of the German delegation from Berlin. At the German Embassy it was stated that this delegation would reach London shortly, meanwhile Dr. Schacht, President of the Reichs Bank is here discussing the preliminaries of the scheme with British American and Continental bankers. The real work of arranging the terms of the issue, however will not be settled until the full delation confers with the financiers J. P. Morgan and Thomas W. Lamont. The American banking representatives are already here and have been con-

"Little Old New York" Will be Shown Monday

A LOVE STORY THAT WILL CAPTURE YOUR HEART FOREVER.

Marion Davies will have a role entirely different from anything in which she has heretofore appeared and one exactly suited to her appealing personality when she appears as Patricia O'Day in "Little Old New York" at the Nickel Theatre on Monday for three days. The requiem, mischievous traits of Princess Mary Tudor, played by Miss Davies in "When Knighthood was in Flower," are found in little Patricia, but there is also a quality of wistful pathos, which shows a new side of Miss Davies' dramatic ability.

One of the most dramatic scenes in the picture which gives Miss Davies a wonderful opportunity for expressing emotion is on shipboard when Patricia's brother is hurled at sea. The star spent several days and nights on the ocean in an old-fashioned schooner while these scenes were being made. Those who saw her as Princess Mary Tudor will recall the poignant appeal made by her hopeless grief when she thought Charles Brandon was to be executed. The ship scene in "Little Old New York," where little Patricia sees the body of her loved brother lowered over the side of the ship into the heaving ocean rivals it in emotional depths. A cast which even surpasses that of Irving

"When Knighthood was in Flower," in which Miss Davies scored such a tremendous success, adds lustre to "Little Old New York." One set, that was made in the 23rd Regiment Armoury in Brooklyn because no studio was large enough, is the largest set ever filmed in motion pictures and covered 650 square feet of floor space.

Harrison Ford, Courtenay Foote, Mahlon Hamilton, Norval Keedwell, George Barrard, Sam Hardy and Andrew Dillon portray members of the first families of New York of those days—the Vanderbilts, Astors, Brevoorts and others, not forgetting Robert Fulton who ran the first steamboat up the Hudson, also Washington Irving.

A REQUEST TO MOTORISTS

FOR KIND CONSIDERATION.

It has been brought to the attention of the Newfoundland Motor Association that there are several thousand people in the city who do not own motor cars and who walk to Bowring Park on Sunday and holiday afternoons.

It is a well-known fact that these citizens are deluged with dust in the fine weather and often spattered with mud in wet weather, as however careful a driver may be, it is usually impossible not to raise dust and sometimes it is impossible to prevent splashing when driving through the mud.

The Association has therefore decided to issue a personal request to Motorists generally not to use the Southside Road on Sunday, Holiday and Half Holiday afternoons, thereby affording the many people in the city who do not own cars an opportunity to walk to the Park in some degree of comfort on Sundays and holidays. (This request, of course, does not apply to motorists living on the Southside nor motorists wishing to call at houses on the Southside on these afternoons). This is an appeal to Motorists, not an order nor a demand. A little consideration is all that is asked and the Association believes that Motorists, generally, are considerate.
