SEEDING GENERAL IN WEST MONDAY IS TEN DAYS LATE

Ample Moisture to Give Grain Good Start and Growing Weather Is Needed From Now on.

LAST YEAR'S CROP YET

About Fifteen Million Bushels of Wheat Yet to Come Out Acreage Likely to Exceed Last Year.

Special to The Toronto World.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 19.—The Telegram's special crop report commences from the despatches of 150 correspondents says:

Seeding has commenced generally on the higher lands throughout the prairie province and will be general throughout the west on Monday, except in certain low lying districts where little can be done for two weeks yet. There is ample moisture in the ground to give the grain a first-rate start and the fact that seeding is ten days later on the average than last year is of little moment if the crop has good growing weather right along.

Shortage of help, wet weather and a heavy crop combined against the farmers getting as much fall plowing done as was desirable, but a larger amount of summer fallow was prepared for this year's crop and it is evident that an active season's breaking was done in the new districts.

As regards the amount of last year's crop yet unmarketed the most carefully compiled estimates are but approximate. From reports received it would be safe to infer that not less than fifteen million bushels of wheat will yet come out.

Prospects are fair, even good, if two weeks' unbroken fine weather should enable the farmers to go ahead with wheat planting. The acreage in oats and barley is likely to greatly exceed that of last year.

Flax was not a profitable crop last year and the acreage under it this year will be substantially reduced.

St. Lawrence Bridge To Enter Montreal

New Bridge Across the River Expected to Touch South Shore at Lafayette Avenue.

MONTREAL, April 19.—(Special.)—From reliable sources it was learned today that the new $6,000,000 bridge across the St. Lawrence River here would touch the south shore at Montreal South, at the foot of Lafayette avenue.

The Dominion Government owns the land there—a 200 acre farm, purchased a few years ago as the site for a military training school. It will not be necessary to expropriate any land for the approaches to the new bridge.

Oil-soaked rags were in her hands, And the bombs in her grip were seven. She cried "Well blow this mansion up Where Lloyd and George do dwell!" "Wow!" cried her fellow-suffs, whose names Were sweet as caramel, Millicent, Pansy, Rosalys, Phyllis and Christobel.

R. J. FLEMING TRANSPORTATION MANAGER?

When Toronto has the Toronto Railway Co. System under municipal ownership and civic commission control next July, will Mackenzie & Mann go the city one better on any salary offered R. J. to manage the Toronto system?

Ever since Mr. Fleming went over to the Mackenzie & Mann interests he has been advanced again and again to positions of confidence and executive administration, until he has practically reached equality with the associates of the heads of the firm.

TOMMY ROT AND COMMON SENSE

If anything were wanting to prove the lack of capacity of a certain clique in the city council it was supplied at the special meeting on Friday night.

The seats reserved for spectators were pretty well filled and the entertainment was of high order.

After the meeting, which ended in the refusal of all but three of the council to stultify themselves, many of the audience were heard to say that if the general public would only attend the meetings of the council they would get a proper size-up of the mental calibre of the faction that is always found opposed to the civic administration and that gets its inspiration from a certain newspaper.

"Tommy rot" was the general characterization of the kind of stuff that Tommy Church and Tommy Foster attempted to pass off as arguments. As for Controller O'Neil his excuse for departing from his position of the day before was that he had been given information that led him to change his mind. He, however, did not descend to vilification. The sensible remarks of Controller McCarthy, Alderman Wickert and Alderman McBride had the effect of steadying the majority of the council, some of whom might have gone up in the air after listening to the panegyrics of the two Tommies.

The merits of the proposition need not be discussed at this time beyond the statement that the general public is heartily sick of the present transportation facilities and is crying for relief, which will, in all probability never be given under the present ownership. What the council did was merely to ask for permissive legislation to buy the street railway and the electric light plant if satisfactory deals can be made with the owners. Surely that is a sensible proposition and Mayor Hocken deserves the warm praise of the people for at least doing something to relieve the present situation. He is a big enough man to ignore the foolish talk of Church and Foster. The ratepayers have the final say. Mr. Hocken will make the best deal possible with the Mackenzie interests and if the terms are not acceptable to the people it will be for them to pass final judgment.

Meantime the Telegram's influence at the city hall is waning. The sane men of the council are not going to be terrorized by flamboyant appeals to prejudice that are appearing in the columns of that paper.

LAURIER CAUTIOUS EXTREMELY SO SAY FOLLOWERS

They Feel He Handled Navy Issue Badly and That Mr. Pugsley Almost Redeemed Party.

WHO IS REAL LEADER?

Question on Order Paper Asks to Whom Salary of Leader of Opposition Should Be Paid in Future.

(By Tom King.)

OTTAWA, April 19.—The reports in the Liberal newspapers that Hon. Mr. Rogers is trying to supplant the present prime minister are being countered by reports in the Conservative papers to the effect that Hon. William Pugsley is trying to oust Sir Wilfrid Laurier from his position as leader of the opposition.

Last night Mr. Edwards of Frontenac put a question upon the order paper asking to whom the salary of the leader of the opposition would be paid hereafter, and some factious Liberal will no doubt come back with an enquiry as to whom the salary of the prime minister is to be hereafter paid. There is no such office, technically speaking, as prime minister or leader of the opposition, and the salaries paid in either case go to the member of parliament "holding the recognized position."

One could imagine a coalition government, of which no one would be first minister and an opposition broken into groups without a recognized leader, but the accounts will run no risk for the present in paying Sir Wilfrid Laurier his usual salary.

At the same time there is a line of cleavage among the Liberals, some of whom regard the old chief as cautious to the verge of timidity. They feel that he handled the navy issue badly, and that Mr. Pugsley as far as possible has redeemed the situation. The western members especially feel that Sir Wilfrid dabbled over long with imperialism and ruined their case by his extravagant proposals respecting two fleets. By common consent from now on Mr. Pugsley will do the hard fighting in the house, but this does not mean that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is to retire from the leadership. Indeed the old chief is said to brook little dictation or even suggestion from his followers.

There are Conservative members who believe that Mr. Rogers is a greater politician than Mr. Horden and Liberal members who believe that Mr. Pugsley is more crafty and bold than his chief, but any rumors of insurrection against either party leader at this time may be dismissed as "greatly exaggerated."

Asks For Release of Our State Prisoner

Ill Health Given as Reason Why R. C. Miller Should Be Released.

MONTREAL, April 19.—The friends of R. C. Miller, Canada's state prisoner, now in jail in Ottawa for refusing to state to parliament what he did with over $40,000, alleged to have been paid to secure government contracts for the Diamond Light and Heating Company, of which he was president, are circulating a petition for his release on the grounds of ill-health.

CHINESE LAUNDRYMAN MAY BE MURDERED

MONTREAL, April 19.—(Special.)—Ching Sing, a Chinese laundryman of Papineau avenue, has disappeared and the police think he has been murdered and thrown into the river.

The door knob of his shop was covered with blood when the police broke into the shop. Ching Sing was in bad favor in Chinatown and there are fears that some of his enemies have killed him and secreted the body.

Mr. Macdonell Denies It. In reference to an editorial in last Wednesday's World which said, "It is well known that ex-Mayor Shaw and Mr. A. C. Macdonell, M.P., have been lobbying for the vacant position of Hydro-Electric Commissioner," Mr. Macdonell said to The Sunday World yesterday:

"That is absolutely incorrect. I never lobbied for the position, never asked anybody else to do it, and I wouldn't accept the position if offered me, as I find my time is fully occupied in Ottawa representing the people of South Toronto."

May Be Drowned. IROQUOIS, April 19.—The young son, aged 4 years, of William Bushey of Toronto, who is employed with the Hydro-Electric Commission putting up poles and stringing wires along the river front, strayed away from the Commercial Hotel and it is thought he may be in the river.

PROVINCE MAY HAVE TO BUY OUT ELECTRICAL DEVELOPMENT CO'Y. TO SECURE SUFFICIENT CURRENT

Toronto's Demand For Power Near Limit Now of Contract With Hydro—Hon. Adam Beck Furious Over Controllers Church and Foster Revealing What Took Place in His Private Conference With Board of Control.

Toronto's hydro-electric system, now having entered the profit period, finds itself reaching the limit of electric current at its disposal. That limit is 100,000 horsepower. Arrangements have to be made in the very near future for more current. The possibility of procuring more current from the provincial hydro-electric system is fading away before the projected radial system of the province. That radial system will require all the surplus of the provincial electric development plant, and a good deal more.

At present the Toronto Electric Light Company has the cream of the business in the city. When the city buys out the Toronto Electric Light Company, as is likely within a month or two, all the electric light and power for the city will be under civic commission control. Then there will be assured an earnings power that will not only take charge of all expense, but will yield a profit.

It is now in natural sequence for the province to either buy out the Electrical Development Company or increase the electric development plant at Niagara Falls. What is generally expected is that the Electrical Development Company for the same reason that the Toronto Railway Company and the Toronto Electric Light Company are selling out to the city. The money is needed for the C. N. R. In the meantime however, the city will be assured the necessary amount of electric current from the Electrical Development Company which the Toronto Electric Light Company's property and business passes into the hands of a civic commission.

Hon. Adam Beck is one of the most indignant men in Ontario today. He read the report of the city council meeting and realized that Toronto take over the Toronto Electric Light contract, but had that occurred in the private conference between the board of control and Mr. Beck. Mr. Beck was assured that the conference would be unquestionably private. What he has been saying about Controllers Church and Foster today over the phone would make those controllers take to the tall timbers and hide their heads in shame did they hear it.

The idea imputed by Controller Church to Mr. Beck, that the hydro contracts with the sister municipalities would be broken about Toronto take over the Toronto Electric Light contract, would never occur to the man who is now negotiating for power from other sources. The Hydro-Electric Commission could easily take the necessary power from the Electrical Development Company and hand it over to the city.

FIFTY MILLIONS FOR EQUIPMENT NEED OF C. N. R.

Company Will Require This Amount Within Three Years and Orders Will Be Placed Early.

G.T.P. OUTLAY ALSO BIG

With Five Thousand Miles of Branch Lines, It Will Spend Thirty-Five Millions on Additions to Service.

Special to The Toronto World.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 19.—With the proposed expenditure of $40,000,000 on freight equipment, of $7,000,000 on passenger equipment, and of $3,000,000 on subsidiary rolling stock and operating stock, or with a total expenditure of $50,000,000 on all kinds of equipment, the Canadian Northern Railway is planning what it will need to operate its new transcontinental lines when finished.

With the completion of this line from Quebec to Port Mann within reasonable distance, the company finds itself face to face with the colossal and almost unprecedented task of anticipating what equipment will be needed to operate the railway.

The above estimate, secured after careful figuring, is regarded as conservative and it is expected the company will need this equipment within less than three years. Orders will be placed for a considerable portion of it as soon as the money market justifies the expenditure.

Where this vast amount of railway equipment is to be manufactured is puzzling Canadian Northern officials. At the present time every locomotive and car manufacturing company on the continent has more work on its hands than it can possibly attend to.

Thirty-five million dollars will be expended by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in new equipment to man its nearly completed transcontinental railway from Moncton to Prince Rupert.

With its extensive program of 3500 miles of main line, stretching from the end of the continent, and with the still more extensive program of 6000 miles of branch lines track the Grand Trunk Pacific will be requiring large amounts of new rolling stock within a few years. At present the company has barely sufficient rolling stock to equip the divisions now being operated, viz., 8025 miles of track, and even if the opening of the transcontinental were not less than two years away the company would still have to make large additions to the service.

Body Recovered. KINGSTON, Ont., April 19.—The body of Gideon King, who was drowned as a result of giving away of a bridge near Hinchinbrooke, when the dam was dynamited, was recovered at noon today about half a mile from where the bridge was located. It appears that King was warned of the unsafety of the bridge, but that rather than go seven miles out of his way to get to Parham, he took the cut across the bridge.

H. H. Hamilton, a convict at the penitentiary, died today, fifty years of age. In 1909 he was sentenced at Cornwall to ten years for theft and forgery.

DANGER AS GREAT AS IN OAKVILLE

One Hundred Thousand Lives Constantly in Peril Thru Bad System of Electrical Wiring.

The lives of thousands of people in Ontario resident in a number of towns and villages throughout the province are in danger, and they are not aware of the fact.

While the power has been turned off at Oakville to safeguard the lives of 2500 residents, the residents of many towns and villages throughout Ontario, easily numbering over 100,000 persons, are equally as much in danger as those of Oakville would be if the power of that place had not been turned off.

Speaking to The Sunday World on this point, H. F. Strickland of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission said that the proper grounding of the transformer secondaries, as will be required by the new hydro-electric wiring regulations, would prevent such accidents, even in spite of cross-connections, and that the Town of Oakville will immediately proceed with this grounding before any current will be turned into any building.

In spite of the extreme danger to the lives of the inhabitants, there are towns all thru the Province of Ontario whose wiring system, while similar to Oakville's, does not provide proper grounding of transformer secondaries. With the idea of eliminating this hidden danger to such a great number of the residents of this province, the work of locating these places thru inspection, is to be immediately carried on under the supervision of H. F. Strickland, who says, regarding this urgent undertaking:

"It will be a great protection to the community at large to see the adoption and enforcing of the regulations of the hydro-electric, as such accidents have been much too frequent and the commission is to be commended for taking up the work."

"In the meantime Oakville will be in darkness till the town electrician gets all his transformers and secondaries grounded, the completion of which will eliminate all such danger as was present before."

"This will now have to be done all over Ontario, where observance of such precautions are conspicuous by their absence."

Mexican Garrison Ammunition Lost

Breach Blocks of All Cannons and Machine Guns Made Away With.

EL PASO, Texas, April 19.—The Mexican federal garrison at Juarez freed itself in a predicament today. Some daring person had made away with the ammunition and the breach blocks of all cannon and machine guns, rendering the pieces useless.

Complicating the situation was the fact that during the siege of Naco, Sonora, a large shipment of ammunition was sent thru the United States for the relief of General Ojeda, and now Colonel Juan N. Vasquez finds himself in command of plenty of men at Juarez, but with virtually no artillery and little ammunition.

Jose Pierce, who was a Medero official in the border town, was arrested, but the car was not permitted to cross to the Mexican side at Naco, Arizona, and remains held there by order of American officials. Juarez, it is predicted, soon may need the ammunition as well as the breach blocks.

NO COMPLAINTS OF LINCOLN LICENSES

ST. CATHARINES, April 19.—While the license commissioners of Welland County were delivering a severe lecture on Friday to the sixty license holders in that license district against the danger of violating the law the commissioners in the neighboring County of Lincoln were congratulating themselves that they had in the bare fifteen license holders within their jurisdiction, not one against whom one complaint had been registered.

Since the reduction a license in this locality has become a valuable asset and the shrewd holders are showing their appreciation of their value by a closer observance of the law that was the case some years ago.

DYNAMITE STOLEN AT ST. CATHARINES

ST. CATHARINES, April 19.—The theft of a quantity of dynamite from the storehouse near Decew Falls, used by contractor W. H. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of James Sheils of Power Glen in connection with the robbery.

New Wilson Tariff Reported Wednesday

No Change in Items of Wheat on Which Millers Have Been Making Fight.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The ways and means committee majority agreed today to amendments to transfer buckwheat and rye to the free list, and to add savings banks "not conducted for profit," to the list of exemptions from the operation of the income tax. They were reported later to the caucus.

There was no change in the items of wheat, on which the millers have been making a great fight because of the putting of flour on the free list. When the caucus assembled Democratic Leader Underwood said he expected the tariff bill would be completed in caucus tonight. As amended it will be reintroduced in the house Monday, and according to present plans, voted upon by the entire membership of the ways and means committee at a meeting Tuesday, and probably taken up for consideration by the house Wednesday.

SIR WILLIAM IS COMMITTED

One Who Knows Financier Says He Will Carry Out Deal if City is Willing.

A prominent citizen said yesterday: "I am in favor of getting rid of competition between the Hydro-Electric and the Toronto Electric Light Company, and I am also in favor of unifying the street railway system and having all public franchises owned by the city. I believe this is the view of the council and of the owners of the two private corporations and the citizens generally."

"But I notice that the attempt is being made to convey the impression that Sir William Mackenzie will withdraw. You can put it down from me that if Sir William Mackenzie passes his word, it is as good as his signature, and when Mr. E. R. Wood also stands sponsor for Sir William, that is a double guarantee. I know further that a cable has been received from England, signed by Sir William, which practically ties up the two corporations to the deal with the city, if the city sees fit to make it. The issue now, therefore, is as to the merits of the deal, and the willingness of the citizens of Toronto to enter into it. The other side is committed. Put that down as certain."

Bryan Holds Up Anti-Jap Bills

Asks Governor Johnson of California to Withhold Signature.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Secretary of State Bryan today telegraphed to Gov. Johnson of California, requesting him to withhold his signature from an anti-alien land legislation passed by the California Legislature which might be in violation of treaties between the U. S. and Japan.

The postponement by the California Legislature of the alien land bills until next week has the effect to slightly relieve the tension here.

President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan make no secret of the fact that they are precluded from officially interfering in the progress of legislation in California, that they are privately addressing themselves to individuals to secure the amelioration of the features of the pending land bills offensive to the Japanese Government.

Montreal Carters Demand More Money

Entire Staff of Dominion Transport Company Quit Work Suddenly.

MONTREAL, April 19.—(Special.)—Dissatisfied with the increase of wages given them, the entire staff of carters of the Dominion Transport Company this morning refused to take their teams out, and as a result the freight of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is in danger of being badly congested unless some settlement is reached shortly.

"The men left their work suddenly without giving us any notice of their intention to do so," said an official of the Dominion Transport Company today. "An increase was granted the men in wages and a notice to that effect was posted. They were dissatisfied with the increase granted, and we were negotiating with them about it."

The men say that they asked for an increase of 25c a day in wages over their present rate of $2 per day of ten hours. The company is willing to give a 15c increase, but this the men will not accept. It is during the last twelve months that the men have been getting $2, previously they had $1.85.

The men demand that they shall be paid 25c an hour for over time. At noon it was rumored that the Shelden Forwarding Company teamsters were likely to go in sympathy, but all is quiet yet.

No Bonanzas in Police Auction

Inspector MacLellan Was Amateur Salesman in Disposing of Accumulation of Junk.

Inspector MacLellan was the amateur auctioneer at the police sale of unclaimed goods which took place Saturday afternoon in the police department at the city hall and attracted the usual small crowd of second-hand dealers and others eager to buy for a few cents something which may turn out to be worth as many dollars. This entertainment should be classified as gambling, for it is the gambling spirit that collects the crowd. To attempt to make a catalog of the thousand squallid little articles sold would be a difficult and tiresome task. As far as could be found out, there was nothing of particular interest in the sordid event yesterday afternoon. The cheap second-hand dealer was there and the inspector who was selling the junk did an active business for a couple of hours. It did not appear that the buyers obtained any bonanzas worth writing home about. Some of the purchasers of valises with their contents may have struck luck, but if they did they kept it to themselves. Almost every small commercial article was included in the pile of stuff sold. It is really surprising what an amount of garbage accumulates at the police department in the course of a year.

TWO WOODBRIDGE LICENSES HELD

Commissioners Held Them Back—Licenses Granted For Many Hotels.

The West York License Commissioners, R. L. McCormack, West Toronto; Ed. Smith, Woodbridge; Charles Aymer, Humber Bay, met at the Palmer House yesterday afternoon to consider the applications for licenses for the license year 1913-14. R. L. McCormack was chairman, and License Inspector Donald Mackenzie was also present. In Etobicoke Township the Grand Trunk Railway Co., Humber Bay, and the estate of Frank Macdonald, Thistleton, were granted licenses. The applications of the Humber Beach Hotel Co. and Mrs. D. J. Macdonnell, Ishington, were held over. In York Township Ed. Hayes, Fairbank; John H. Fleming, Lambton Mills, and the Lambton Golf Club were given their licenses. The applications of J. J. Macnamara, Fisherville, and Fred Vanduyke, Lambton Mills, were held over until the next meeting of the board. These parcels are arranged to sell their property. In Mimico a license was granted to W. J. Richardson, and in New Toronto to John O'Meara.

The applications of Nelson R. Babin and John T. Moore of Woodbridge were both held over. The board will meet next Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Palmer House.

It is good sense to consult an expert when one is seeking definite information on a specific proposition. Now, choosing a piano is an important matter. We say choose a because no one knows as we do the thorough and painstaking work, backed by more than a half century's experience, that goes into this piano. In this opinion, however, we have the support of a long line of authorities who know whereof they speak.

—"The tone is massive in its sonority and of very excellent quality."—Friedhelm, the great Russian pianist.
—"I find the singing quality especially beautiful and the touch wonderfully light and crisp."—Adela Veroni, greatest woman pianist in the world.
—"In tone, quality, touch, and mechanism the Heintzman and Co. piano would be a credit to any country."—Dr. P. H. Torington.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

Some loss is predicted for you and some anxiety concerning money. Take no risks with strangers, and be careful of your health. Watchfulness and understanding will bring you safely thru your dangers and make your year successful. Those born today will be favorites in society and inclined to take the popularity too seriously. While not curtailing their pleasure, the unreality of this sort of life should be demonstrated to them, lest they waste their lives in it.

MACKENZIE CLAN TREK TO CANADA

Lost Crops in Oklahoma Thru Drought and Grasshoppers and Will Start Over Again.

WINNIPEG, April 19.—(Special).—Over two thousand immigrants have arrived in the city in the past thirty-six hours from Eastern Canada and Europe. They are on their way west to take up farms.

Among new arrivals is a most unique party composed of 35 Scotchmen, a portion of the Mackenzie clan, who have migrated from Oklahoma. These newcomers, who all bear the names of Mackenzie, are descendants of those members of their clan who came to the American continent with Lord Baltimore 200 years ago. At that time they settled in Maryland and remained there and prospered as farmers for 173 years. Twenty-five years ago some of them, attracted by new territory which had been opened up in Western Oklahoma, trailed into that state, where they remained until now.

Norman Mackenzie, leader of the party, states that they left Oklahoma owing to the failure of their crops for the past five years. During this period they have lost their crops thru drought and grasshoppers each year. On their arrival in Winnipeg they were advised of benefits to be derived from settling in homestead districts north of this city, but members of the party said they had made up their minds to go to a district northwest of Edmonton.

They are a fine party, all of them being typical Highlanders, tall and agile. A peculiar thing about them is that they speak Gaelic perfectly but with a strong American accent, which makes it difficult for their fellow-countrymen who come into contact with them to understand. They are fore-runners of another 75 or 80 families of the same clan who are still in Oklahoma, but anticipate following.

No Improvement in Western Finances

Opening Up of Immigration Season and Good Weather May Have Good Effect.

WINNIPEG, April 19.—(Special).—Continued fine weather during the week has aided materially in expansion of trade in city and in all the larger towns of the west.

At country points less business has been done, owing to the fact that transportation has been rendered difficult by the state of the roads. Collections have been better for the past ten days. Returns are, however, still unsatisfactory. Payments have not been made by country merchants, who complain of their inability to secure funds from customers.

There is little or no improvement in the financial situation and borrowers are asked to pay high price for money. The opening of the immigration season will have some effect and a continuance of good weather will aid in the development of better feeling.

The falling off in trade is shown in a great lessening in clearing house returns. The market for municipals is depressed. These issues can now be secured to net investors fully 5-18 per cent.

The result is that these securities are attracting attention in Europe and in the United States in places where attention was not previously paid to them, and it is believed that money will be forthcoming from both of these sources. No one expects that there will be any cheaper money this year.

Pope's Condition Is Improving

Only One Bulletin a Day Will Be Issued From the Sick Room.

ROME, April 19.—Professor Ettore Marchiafava and Dr. Andrea Amici, the papal physicians, announced today that owing to the continued improvement in the Pope's condition, only one bulletin a day would now be issued from the sickroom.

This morning's bulletin read as follows: "His holiness passed a very tranquil night with his temperature standing this morning at 97.1. His coughing spells and expectoration have further diminished, and his general condition is stronger and better. Owing to the continued amelioration only one bulletin daily will now be published. (Signed) "Marchiafava, Amici."

For the first time since his illness the Pope and his sisters lunched at the Vatican together with Angelo Sarto, his brother. This is considered here as the best proof that the Pope is really entering on the convalescent stage. He slept tranquilly for two hours this afternoon. His breathing was easier and his rest more refreshing than it has been.

SWIMMING CHAMPIONSHIPS.

MONTREAL, April 19.—The annual Canadian amateur swimming championships will be held in the tank of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association tonight. In these events two Olympic stars will compete in George Hodgson, the champion middle distance swimmer of the world, and Kurt E. Behrens, who finished third in the diving competition in Sweden. Behrens' chief opponent will be Cassels of Ottawa.

Funeral of George A. Harper.

A large number of members of the Independent Order of Foresters and members of the Masonic Order accompanied the remains of George A. Harper, assistant supreme chief ranger of the I. O. F., and a well-known Mason, from his late residence, 190 Warren road, to his family plot in Mount Pleasant Cemetery on Saturday afternoon.

A large number of floral tributes were conveyed in a carriage, which followed the body to its last resting place. Rev. Archdeacon Cody of St. Paul's Episcopal Church conducted the service at the grave. The pall-bearers were: Dr. C. D. Clarke, Dr. Millman, Dr. C. A. Stone and Messrs. Hunter, Henry and McMurry.

DYING FROM GALL-STONES

Doctors Said Only an Operation Could Save His Life—"Fruit-a-tives" Enabled Him to Pass Nearly 200 Gall-Stones.

J. B. HARDING, Esq.
46 Grove Ave., Toronto, Ont., Jan. 10th, 1913.

"I suffered untold agony from GALL-STONES, for the past three years, and tried many doctors without getting relief. I also paid $5.00 for one bottle of medicine which was useless. At times the pain from these gall-stones was so great that I lost consciousness, and my condition was desperate. I was quite satisfied that I was dying, and the doctors said I must be operated upon.

"During one of these very severe, acute attacks, I was given some 'FRUIT-A-TIVES,' and after taking a short treatment of this remedy, I passed gall-stones over an inch in length, and as many as one hundred and fifty or two hundred in number. 'FRUIT-A-TIVES' was the only thing that would relieve my pain. They are the greatest medicine in the world, and if there is anyone in Canada or anywhere else, that suffers from gall-stones, I say 'Let them take 'Fruit-a-tives' and be cured.'

"If this testimonial will further the good work of 'Fruit-a-tives,' publish it with my full authority."
J. B. HARDING.

Are you wondering how "Fruit-a-tives"—a medicine made from fruit juices, can cure Gall-stones? We will tell you. The Gall bladder is the reservoir for holding the Gall, or bile, secreted by the liver. If there is insufficient bile, then the bile in the Gall bladder is thick and easily forms stones. When the liver is weak, it secretes very little bile and then the Gall bladder is partially filled with a thick, jelly-like mass of bile and thus forms into lumps or stones. "Fruit-a-tives" stimulates the liver to secrete more bile, and this increased bile softens the Gall-stones and by overfilling the Gall bladder, forces the passage of the stones through the Gall duct—and thus cures the disease.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices. By a wonderful process, the medicinal properties of certain fruits are greatly intensified—then valuable tonics and antiseptics are added and the whole made into the pleasant tasting tablets known in every section of Canada as "Fruit-a-tives."

Both the milling and the meat packing industries of the state are threatened, it is said, in a resolution adopted by the board of directors.

City Council Not Expected to Take Firm Action With Controllers—Matters For Discussion Monday.

When the city council meets on Monday afternoon there will be no certainty that the chairman of committees will be appointed to a special committee to act with Mayor Hocken and Controller McCarthy in framing a policy of civic work for the year and in supplying the council with information upon the several civic departments. The three controllers who are refusing to obey the instructions of the council have been given such a grueling thrashing by next July, and the whole rapid transit service of the city unified and on a single fare basis.

The report of the experts on transportation has now been made public, but does not call for discussion in the council, inasmuch as the Toronto Railway Co. system will probably be under municipal ownership by next July, and the whole rapid transit service of the city unified and on a single fare basis.

The council may reappoint F. W. Ellis hydro-electric controller, but may defer the reappointment until the provincial hydro-electric commission decides if an investigation into the well-squelched matter in the Toronto hydro-electric department is necessary.

New York Schools Do the Turkey Trot

Department of Education Throws Building Open For Municipal Dances.

NEW YORK, April 19.—To combat the evil influences charged against the public dance halls and their turkey trots and tangos, the recreation leaders of the department of education last night for the first time threw open a school building for a "municipal dance."

The plan proved highly successful, it was reported, with over five hundred couples dancing the full three and one-half hours allotted without even a protest against the prohibition of the turkey trot and tango.

It is hoped to extend the municipal dance idea to all of the fifty-five school centres of the greater city.

DEATH OF CAPT. COONEY.

Capt. Robert Cooney, one of the best known lake navigators, dropped dead on the steps of Dr. James White's office in Hamilton on Friday.

During his sailing life Captain Cooney commanded several sailing vessels, and the steamers Macanasa, Garden City and Dundurn. The body was shipped to his home, 20 Church street, St. Catharines, on Saturday. His wife and one child survive him.

Captain Cooney was very well known in Toronto and out of respect for his memory flags on many of the steamers in port were placed at half mast.

SANGUINOL Makes Strong Nerves

Read this message from Mr. Wm. Newman of 15 Northcote Avenue, Toronto, whose wife was persuaded to give Sanguinol a trial when she was very nervous and rundown.

"I can assure you I will never forget the benefit my wife received from Sanguinol. She has taken four bottles, and never felt better in her life. She has gained five pounds. She was very nervous and anemic; cannot praise Sanguinol enough. She previously used a dozen or more other medicines, but none did her any good but Sanguinol."

Does that sound as if Sanguinol might bring health and happiness to you? It is not the most convincing proof of the efficiency of any remedy the results accomplished by it?

Get Sanguinol today. Let it prove to you that it is unsurpassed as a nerve-tonic and blood-builder.

Sanguinol is sold by the following stores: 770 Queen Street East, 1521 Dundas Street, 491 Parliament Street, 212 College Street, 122 Bloor Street, 1219 Bloor West, 782 and 884 Yonge Street, Van Zandt Drug Store and E. A. Legge, corner of College and Ossington Avenue.

MAKING OF AUTO STEELS

Result of Exhaustive Experiments and Tests—Steel Manufacturers Praise Grade of R-C-H Material.

Choosing of steel for use in the driving parts of his cars is one of the most important problems the automobile manufacturer and engineer has to solve. There can be no doubt but what the advent of the motor car has had a marked influence on the steel industry, and the methods of handling raw material to meet the requirements placed upon them when incorporated in a machine. That the material of this kind used in the gears, shafts and other driving parts of the R-C-H car is the best obtainable is vouched for by two large steel companies, in letters received by the corporation which have been requested for an expression from the steel companies.

One of the steel concerns answered: "Regarding the steel which you are using of our manufacture, we say that our No. 11 chrome-nickel steel, which you are using in transmission shafts, is one of the best steels which can be used for that purpose. This steel is a chrome-nickel steel which we have developed in our laboratories for just such work as is needed for transmission gears in automobile construction. It is capable, under well regulated heat treatment, of giving you a tensile strength of 200,000 pounds per square inch, with a density of material which gives you the maximum wear on the surface. This steel is made with extreme care, being melted in a carefully selected material, and from the ingot to the finish bar is given a most thorough and careful mechanical treatment. This steel is being used in transmission gears by some of the very best and most careful makers of high-priced cars in this country."

Regarding driving gears, the second steel firm wrote: "The raw material contained in the steel which you are using in the bevel gears and driving shafts of the R-C-H car is of the highest quality obtainable, and is manufactured under the most modern methods of mill practice. It is a full chrome-nickel steel, melted in a tungsten acid heat furnace, a small furnace being used to secure uniformity in melting. The material is poured into ingots, thereby insuring a uniform cooling of the metal. All ingots are forged into billets under a five-ton hammer, and before the final rolling, the billets are subjected to three inspections, and it is a rare proposition to find any material showing seams or defects. Inasmuch as this steel, during the processes of melting and finishing, is handled or given the same care in manufacture as the highest grade of tool steel, that when it is received in your shop, it is ready to be forged, machined, and heat-treated to best advantage."

And, from the raw material to the finished product, the steel is brought through in the R-C-H plant, facilities for handling it, with a completely equipped forge, machine and heat-treating departments being unexcelled. The stock taken into the forge department is brought to the highest state of efficiency by the blows of the huge hammers, and the presses which bring the blanks to their required size. Every piece comes through close grained and tough, as a result of its submission to the heavy hammers.

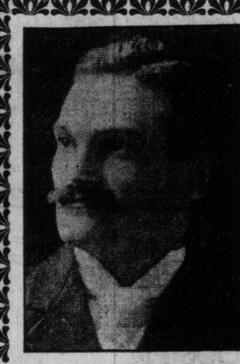

Turned over to the machine department, the blanks are handled by skillful, high-priced men, and some of the most expensive machinery on the market. Every R-C-H gear cut and every shaft turned is planned and made to the heat-treating implement is provided with the most modern appliances for the scientific treating and hardening of steel.

Expert handling of this material in its own plants, under the supervision of its own men, is an important feature of the R-C-H manufacturing program.

GOSSIP FROM PARLIAMENT HILL

(By Tom King.)
OTTAWA, April 19.—The end of this week finds parliament just about where it was a week ago. There have been three days more of debate upon the closure resolution, and one can say now, with more assurance than he could last Saturday, that a division will be reached next week. It is also more certain than it seemed a week ago, that a vote is inevitable. Mr. Pugsley, with all his resourcefulness, has apparently been unable to find the way out of the cul-de-sac. Moreover, pacific counsels prevail, and no one talks seriously any longer of riotous scenes and bloodshed. The Liberals may have been trapped, but it was done by the clever use of rules, and the law is on the side of the government.

The debating has not been of a high order. The government, wisely or unwisely, refused to explain or defend the new rules, after a day or two of discussion, and the opposition members, who have continued the debate, displayed little familiarity with the rules of the house, old or new. Their speeches were, therefore, not instructive, and were seldom even interesting. The fact is, that few members of the house acquainted themselves with the parliamentary mechanism. They know, in a general way, that rules are in existence, and that, to understand them, one must refer to "Bourinot." "Bourinot" they suspect of being a book; but why it should have a name suggesting some new dish on a French bill-of-fare, they are unable to explain. They accept the rules and Bourinot as the ordinary man accepts taxes and a cold in the head. They know he knows not whence; he would rather not have them; but it is the custom of the country, and what can he do about it? Members of parliament are not students of books, but considerers of numbers; they never enter the parliamentary library. They are, on the whole, keen, shrewd, capable men, fairly representative of the amount of the material development; but they do not read or write books and magazines as do so many British statesmen. They would rather take the trouble to sit down and master the authorities upon parliamentary law and practice; and perhaps they are wise to refrain from any such attempt. Indeed, a man, to be a past-master of parliamentary law and practice, should bind himself to a course of study, no less onerous than the course of study to which a student at law is attired. Blackstone could be mastered more easily than Bourinot.

Neither Hon. Frank Oliver nor Hon. Robert Rogers shone in the debate which the former precipitated on Thursday, respecting the Donaldson homestead in Prince Albert. The former had data enough to make a strong prima facie case, but he presented them to the house with-to eat his own words. To such an absurd extent has the rule been carried, that during the fortnight session in committee on the naval bill, a member, who called to order for repeating himself, was held to be contumacious for denying the charge.

These members are constantly being called upon to withdraw some remark which, in withdrawal, is often coupled with a repetition of the same statement in equally offensive form, and the controversy is apt to be prolonged indefinitely. Now and then it happens that a most colorful and inoffensive reference is declared to be unparliamentary while, upon other occasions, gross language goes unrebuked. It was a case of dog eat dog when Carvell and Dr. Edwards got into a brawl about 3 o'clock Friday morning, while the house was in committee of supply, and the chairman was inclined to let them fight it out. Here is an interesting extract from Hansard.

Mr. Edwards: I wish to give an emphatic denial to the statement made by my hon. friend.

Mr. Carvell: That is not a point of order. I rise to a point of order. I demand my rights.

The Chairman: Order. Mr. Carvell: I will propose to allow a member to take away the floor from me.

Mr. Edwards: The hon. member for Carleton has made a false statement.

Mr. Carvell: That is not a point of order.

Mr. Edwards: The hon. member has made a false statement.

Mr. Carvell: I won't take it from anybody that there is any point of order upon that.

Mr. Edwards: The hon. member for Carleton, N. B., has lied.

The Chairman: Such language will lead hon. gentlemen too far.

Mr. Graham: Surely you will not allow the words of the hon. member for Frontenac to go unchallenged.

The Chairman: No, certainly the hon. member has no right to say that another member has lied.

Mr. Graham: You should ask him to withdraw.

Mr. Edwards: In obedience to your ruling, Mr. Chairman, and only in obedience to your ruling, I withdraw. I said what I meant; but I will follow the custom of the hon. member for Carleton, and immediately withdraw it.

Mr. Carvell: We have the hon. member for Frontenac in his true colors tonight. We have never got the hon. gentleman where he belonged before. A man who so far forgets himself, who loses his head, who displays his natural self to such an extent that he is no longer a member of this house that he lies—you can expect a man like that to make the poor small carriers contribute a gold watch and chain to himself.

Mr. Edwards: That is another false statement which is better represented by the word "lie." I will not withdraw that expression here; but I am prepared to say it outside, where I will not have to withdraw it.

The Chairman: I will remind the hon. gentleman that he is out of order now; and I would draw his attention to the fact that he is going too far.

Mr. Borden: I think the debate is wandering very far indeed from the item under discussion, and we had better come back to it.

With the adoption of closure, which will come next week, the work of the session should draw to a close. The Liberals will have to get out of the naval bill being put thru the house by the closure route, and the temptation for the government will be strong to try the new-found power of cutting off debate, in bringing the Bank Act and other matters to a vote, within a reasonable time. Both sides will probably welcome a moderate use of whip and spur, if it means prorogation of the twenty-fourth of May. Of course there is the senate to be reckoned with, but the impression gathers strength that the conscript fathers will not tempt fate by throwing out the naval bill. They may throw out some other measure, just to show that they are still alive, but with the coming of spring, legislation is apt to be rushed, and parliament can rush thru a vast amount of business when prorogation is in sight. It is no secret that the government will have a sigh of relief when the going trains carry away the members to parliament, to be gone till the snow flies next November.

Two Kew Beach Street Openings

City Surveyors Cause Quite a Stir Among Residents—Muth-Need-Ed Improvements May Be Made.
Kew Beach residents were stirred up Saturday by seeing a corps of city surveyors climbing fences and making surveys in the back of lots from Woodbine avenue to Kew Beach Gardens.

Enquiries at the city hall elicited that the surveys were being made as a result of the projected extension of Butler avenue, east and west, and of Herbert avenue from Queen street south to the lake front.

A moon in favor of the extensions has been sent to the assessment department for a report, and the surveys are being made to furnish the information required upon which to base a report.

The promoters of the extension point out that values at Kew Beach have been climbing for several years, and that with the vast harbor development schemes in the eastern portion of the city are likely to be accelerated. In view also of building boom in the Beaches it appears to be a case of now or never for the extension in question. As the property is well settled, property which has been within the old city limits for many years, it is expected that the assessment department will report in favor of two avenues being opened up. The outcome, in addition to the convenience of access, must include several thousand feet of valuable land, which at present is of no municipal revenue value, and is not even opened up by lanes. Some of the lots which would afford an extra double frontage are 400 feet deep.

A Correction.
The World on the front page of Saturday, dealing with the financial situation, was made to say that the eighty-cent wheat in Manitoba meant fifteen dollar land. What was written was that dollar wheat meant thirty dollar land and sixty-cent wheat meant fifteen dollar land.

How to Get Rich Buying Homes

Man From New York, Who First Bought on Indian Road, Finds it Profitable.

Considerable interest has been aroused in Indian road real estate circles over a recent transfer of a house and lot at $20,000, which was purchased about a year ago for less than half that sum. The property, No. 24, was bought purely for residential purposes by a gentleman in N. Y. C. A. circles, who had come from New York, and had been startled by the rentals which the Toronto house had created. During his year's domicile he has enjoyed the superiority of the High Park district, the only discomfort being the persistence with which home seekers have sought to purchase property in the vicinity. He concluded that it would be to the advantage of his family to sell out and re-invest the proceeds where a home could be secured equally high and dry, and having more spacious grounds. Having cleared over $10,000 on the Avenue road property, he looked the field over carefully and purchased the extensive Usher property in North Toronto for $22,000. He will make the property his home, but his friends would not be surprised to see him chased out again within a year or so at another 10 or 11 thousand dollars, as a far-seeing business man in New York was international.

While regarding a flyer in real estate as a gamble to be condemned, the gentleman in question expressed the view to The World yesterday that a prudent purchase of a house and lot for a home for a family in Toronto was an excellent thing from a good citizenship and investment viewpoint.

Made-in-Canada Train.
The second annual trip of the "Made-in-Canada" train will begin early in May, and will take up two months during which over one hundred cities and towns on all lines of railway in Western Canada will be given an opportunity to see industrial and agricultural exhibits on the train, and also the moving picture show, which will be a feature of the train's work this year. The train will be much larger and more completely equipped for its purpose than that of last year, when it made a two-month trip thru the west. The Canadian Home Market Association is the organizer of this tour.

ROCKWELL TO PREACH HERE.

Noted Athlete, Who Now Wrestles With Bible Questions, Will Speak on Earth's Coming Reformation.
Of fine physique and powerful personality, Mr. Rockwell, of New York City, makes a striking figure on the platform. Since becoming interested in the Bible, he has spent considerable time in research and in lecturing to large audiences throughout the country, and many are showing great enthusiasm over his statements. He lectures next Sunday, at 8 p.m., in the Royal Alexandra Theatre, on the subject: "The World's Greatest Reformation Coming." He insists that his address be free to all.

Mr. Rockwell modestly discounts any drawing influence due to his personality, and gives all credit to his Bible. "The time should come," he adds, "when there will be no more death, when all who are in their graves shall come forth, and when all mankind shall be made happy and joyous, and when the Bible, which is certainly good news, that should have a hopeful and encouraging effect upon any Christian audience. The Bible contains more good news to the square inch than any other book in the world. No wonder my audiences are so large. But should I cease to give the straightforward Bible, and nothing but the Bible, and supply instead my own thoughts and theories, as some have made the mistake of doing, I believe that my audiences would soon be as slim as most of them. People have ceased dotting on personal fancies and are demanding the truth."

FAVORS REFERENDUM ON NAVAL QUESTION

Ottawa Citizen Says Had People Been Consulted Closure Would Not Be Needed.

The Ottawa Citizen (Conservative) strongly favors referring the navy question to the people. It says in part: "The referendum would have saved the country from deadlocks and the seeming need of closure. Of the latter, one is the alleged antidote of the other, and both would be abolished by the adoption of principle whereby disputed measures could be referred directly to the people for settlement. Were this done, logic would become stronger than logic power and an argument of real value where today it has none. Had there been a clause added to the naval bill stipulating that the bill be referred to the people for approval before enactment, there would have been no need to introduce closure to force thru one bill and afterwards leave the country at the mercy of any future Liberal government whose leader was less scrupulous than Premier Borden.

The referendum would give a direct mandate. Now it has to be inferred. It is seldom that a general election gives any specific decision. The election of 1911 was not a pronouncement upon any proposed naval policy. To declare that it gave a direct mandate for the Borden or any other naval bill cannot be done, as anyone who remembers the issues at stake will know. But where a single measure is referred to the people, that pronouncement is undeniable. And in no other way can it be so surely done.

Moreover, if the government went to the country now on the naval question, the result would leave public opinion on the question in doubt. It would be a partisan contest, fought for power more than for politics, and involved with other issues than the one now before the country. The referendum would remove all excuse for what would be a needless election, and would decide much more surely the very question which would be urged as the cause of the appeal.

Greatest of all, the referendum would save the naval bill and Canada's action. Passed under closure, it is all real merit. With the Liberals crying out in protest, it represents a financial loss to Canada more than it means an imperial gain to the empire. The value of the gift is in the giving—a truth just as clear on April 18 as on Dec. 25, and as true of a nation as of an individual. Despite the protests of Liberal politicians, and their partisan heroes, The Citizen believes that the referendum should be adopted even at this late moment, and that its operation would reveal that the people of Canada are in favor of Premier Borden's proposal, in preference to accepting the Liberal plan of committing Canada to a national naval program extravagant in its cost as it would be deadly in its effects.

RINKING POPULAR

The Pastime Taking Well This Season—Large Crowds at Parkdale.

That roller skating is one of the chief amusements for the young people of Toronto is plainly evidenced from the large crowds that are nightly attending Parkdale rink. Many out-of-town people attend the rink in the city and from remarks overheard it is certain they never have attended before a rink quite so well conducted as Parkdale and where there are so many nice young people.

It is only natural, however, that Parkdale should have an exclusive patronage as every skating rink is carefully looked after. The floor is perfect in every way, being treated daily with the liquid preparation, dustless anti-slip. The ventilation is one of the rink's main features. The skate equipment is of the very latest and the best to be had while the music is without doubt unequalled by any rink in America. Director Wiggins and his men having played at Parkdale since its opening over seven years ago.

An evening at this rink is one of really pleasure, while rinking is an enjoyable amusement it is also a nice exercise and it has often been said that nothing is as productive to gracefulness as roller skating.

DRUNKENNESS CAN BE CURED

Old Fallacy That Drunkenness Cannot be Cured Exploded.

Many men drink who desire to stop the habit. Whiskey, however, had undermined the constitution and created a craving that is not to be denied and the man must have whiskey or something that will remove the craving and build up the system and restore the nerves.

Samarita Prescription stops the craving, steadies the nerves, builds up the general health and makes drink actually distasteful and nauseous. It is tasteless, and odorless, and can be given with or without the patient's knowledge, in tea, coffee or food. It is used regularly by Physicians and hospitals. It has cured thousands in Canada, and restored happiness to hundreds of homes.

Read what Mrs. G. of Hull says of it and what it did for her: "It is four months today since I started to use your remedy. I followed the directions and had the best of results. One week after I started using your remedy the patient stopped drinking and has not drunk a glass of liquor since. I hope you will accept my heartfelt thanks. Hoping God will bless your remedy wherever tried, I remain,

"Mrs. G., Hull, Que." (Name withheld by request.) Now, if there is anyone in your town who needs this Remedy tell them of it. Practical philanthropy can take no better form. If you have a husband, father, brother or friend who drinks, help them help themselves. Write today.

A FREE TRIAL PACKAGE of Samarita with booklet giving full particulars, directions, testimonials, price, etc., will be sent in a plain sealed package to anyone mentioning this paper. Correspondence sacredly confidential. The trial package alone has often cured. Write today. The Samarita Remedy Company, Dept. 32, 49 Colborne street, Toronto, Canada.

FLOWER DAY NOW C. P. R. INSTITUTION

Twenty-four Years Ago Company Began Distribution of Seeds and Bulbs to Beautify Their Grounds.

It is just twenty-four years since an employe of the C. P. R. raised a few varieties of flower seeds in his own garden and distributed them among his friends in the company, with the idea of beautifying to some extent the somewhat barren aspect of the stations on the railroad, round houses and yard offices on the company's property.

It was a small beginning, but Saturday the C. P. R. celebrated its semi-annual flower day, and the little annual flower seeds in the earlier days has grown to such an extent that it requires a floral department to handle the work. Instead of a few packages of seeds handed out to a limited number of employes, no less than 150,000 packets of various varieties have been distributed to station agents, section foremen, those in charge of round houses, yard offices, and all employes living on company's property showing an inclination toward the cultivation of flowers.

In the fall a million bulbs were given out, and the benefit of these is now being felt, as from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and even on Vancouver Island, the traveler will see the delightful results from the fall planting of these flowers. Even in the midst of the prairies, where men are permanently encamped working on the irrigation ditches, at 40 different points, have seeds been sent for cultivation, which is another demonstration of the effect the tending of flowers has on the human mind and body.

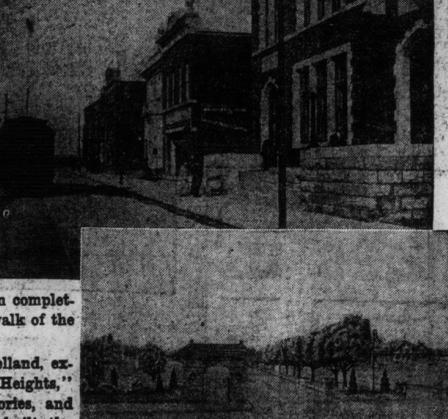

These men take a great delight in caring for the plants as they gradually grow, and enjoy their fragrance as much as the man near a home. The influences and encouragement of flower growing on the C. P. R. during the last 24 years has materially assisted in the inauguration of floral societies in almost every town along the lines of the system; and an examination will show that actively connected with these hundreds of societies are employes of the C. P. R., whose first lessons in flower culture, and the love of the beautiful were learned in the service of the company, under the stimulating influences of the floral department.

CYCLING IS NOT DEAD IN CANADA THE GLOBE SPORTING ED. SAYS SO

Chairman C. W. A. Membership Committee Replies to Statement That Association is Composed of Promoters and Trade Representatives.

Sporting Editor, Toronto Sunday World: The innocuous re C. W. A. matters printed in the sporting page of The Globe April 8, are enough to make any reasonable man ask: "Will the sporting editor of The Globe come out frankly and say what he is driving at, or forever hold his peace?"

When The Globe's sporting editor says the C. W. A. is now composed practically of promoters and trade representatives, he not only does cycling in Canada an injustice, but knowingly mis-states the facts. Practically all the men on the board of the C. W. A. today have been associated with cycling for years. They might be called the fathers of the case for the sport in Canada. They have kept the sport alive.

At the time of the last Olympic games, when The Globe's sporting editor wrote the article which has been so widely quoted, he was not only not cycling, but he was not even in Canada. At the same time, and today, he likewise would not have been in Canada if he were here. Here is one statement from a man who knows, Mr. T. A. Russell, general manager of the Canada Cycle & Motor Co.

"The bicycle business shows an increase over last year; in fact, over any season for the past ten years."

And it was not The Globe or the A. A. U. of C. or anybody else but the men and companies, who have given of their time and money to keep the game alive, and who are credited with this satisfactory result. These are the men who the sporting editor of The Globe perpetually slanders in connection with C. W. A. matters.

On account of my association with the Dunlop company, I probably should not refer to the sport in Canada, but should the great work they have done for cycling in Canada be allowed to pass unnoticed, when the C. W. A. is being mentioned in connection with which it cannot be friendly, at least ought to be just.

During the time the Dunlop company has been doing their share to keep amateur cycling alive in Canada, the sporting editor of The Globe has incurred an expense for them of $60,000. And the men who have given of their time to running this business, and who are the very men who today compose the board of the C. W. A. I can personally pay no greater tribute to the unselfish devotion of these men to the cause of cycling, than to say that, no matter how busy they might be, or what private engagements they might have, not one of them has ever failed to turn up at a meeting, to contribute their voluntary share towards making the venture not only successful for the riders, but for the public who turned out to see the sport.

Where is The Globe Man? I would like to ask, in that time, what has The Globe sporting editor done for the same cause? Yet The Globe's sporting page exists for sporting reasons exclusively; and, naturally, the editor is supposed to have an unbiased mind on sporting topics.

The Globe's sporting editor seems to labor under the impression that the C. W. A. has deliberately set its mind against the re-invigoration of its association with the A. A. U. of C. Nothing is further from the truth. The word "re-invigoration" because The Globe's sporting editor likewise labors under the same impression. The C. W. A. never was federated with the A. A. U. of C. As a matter of fact, the C. W. A. has for a number of years been under the same impression, but the understanding between the two bodies has been dwindling and dwindling, just in proportion as the A. A. U. of C. has been helping in helping the bicyclist, and its officials—prompted by personal motives only, persisted in knocking certain members of the C. W. A. board.

I have attended the various C. W. A. meetings, called for a discussion of the question: "Why can't the C. W. A. and A. A. U. of C. work harmoniously?" and I may say that nothing but the friendliest and frankest attitude towards what might be called that "far-off unanimous decision" has taken place.

Professional Cycling. The hitch seems to rest on the C. W. A.'s determined opinion on the professional cycling in Canada. Why shouldn't they? Cycling bodies the world over—with which, too, the C. W. A. is federated—control professional races in their respective countries. Why should the A. A. U. of C. ask the C. W. A. to be the lone association in the world which cannot boss its own special sport, right down the line?

Mind you, there is a vast difference between the C. W. A. promoting professional races on their own account and desiring to maintain control of professional races started by outside officials. The C. W. A. has some record as absolutely being opposed to those within its own ranks promoting professional races. The C. W. A. exists to help bicycling for the amateur, but, if the coming of a professional race will help the cause, the C. W. A. says, "Why bring it along?" This was proven in the case of the six-day meet, held in Toronto last year. Suppose the C. W. A. had followed the dictates of the A. A. U. of C., and opposed this venture, what would have been the result? The promoters of the six-day meet would have laughed at the opposition and gone ahead with their venture. And, while they were going ahead, they would have taken a crack at the C. W. A. before they were forbidden them to go on their track and practice.

Now, see how differently it worked out. The C. W. A. on a sensible basis of viewing the proposition. The promoters of the six-day meet had first to get the sanction of the C. W. A. before they could make a move in Toronto. They had next to let the C. W. A. appoint all the officials to run the race. They had, next, to let the C. W. A. have their say in the board track; and they had, next, to sell the track at a special price to the C. W. A., that same might be used for the amateurs later on.

In connection with this board track, let me point out a few facts, to show the unselfish calibre of the men who compose the C. W. A. board. One of their own points, some of these men bought the track which had been used in the six-day meet. Now, Chairman McKay, of the racing board, one of the owners of the track, is trying to get the city council's permission to allow the track being put up in some park, where the boys can make use of it. The C. W. A. men look a long way ahead. The big meet will soon be coming off in Berlin, and Canada sports to be represented. According to The Globe's sporting editor's idea of the whole thing, Canadians should sit back, fold their hands and say, "Bicycling is dead in this country. We might as well forget all about ourselves in that line of sport."

The C. W. A. refused to accept this dictum from The Globe's sporting editor, or from anybody else. They believe in the cause which they support, and in the unquestionable greatness of Canadians as bicycle riders. These men's beliefs, too, go further than words. The C. W. A. practically has no money; therefore the board must pretty well carry its expenses. That board will always be found doing things in the open, and asking in favor of anybody, if a meet is professional, it will be labeled professional. If it is amateur, it will be labeled amateur; and the public will know, better than they can know about any other sport in Canada, that when the C. W. A. puts its label of professional or amateur on a meet, that it is a decision of the board.

No personal motives guide the C. W. A. men in making these decisions. They do not carry animosities between a person and business matters into public sporting bodies. Neither do they live in the past. To give you a sample of how the C. W. A. men think, I will mention other lines of sport, where the lines run by "promoters and men of the trade"; it would label nearly all the C. W. A. men as "professionals," because it knows that most of them were paid to play hockey; and there is no difference between a man competing for a money prize (or playing into a bettor's hands) and drawing a stipend.

Simon-pure Amateurism. If this is not the case, why would the manager of a somewhat conspicuous O. H. A. team, when criticised for failure to make good in a city championship, admit that his boys "hadn't tried." Where can Simon-pure amateurism get off at on the "hadn't tried" cry? The C. W. A. would label most of the men playing Rugby as professionals; and last year's fiasco in Rugby ought to convince anybody but a ninny that this is so.

The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada never did anything for cycling in Canada. Certain its officers, because they were frustrated in business ventures by men who happened to be C. W. A. officers, have held spite against the C. W. A. ever since.

Permission to run boys' races, mixed up with whippet races, are granted when people who know anything about sporting matters are fully aware that dog races are always professional— their owners compete for money prizes. Canada's leading amateurs are allowed to dictate how much money will be spent on their prizes. And, the pure writer's own experience, a champion of whippet races is allowed to ask over the phone—when his permission is being sought to use his picture on a post-card—"What is there in it for me?" But the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union never has been in helping the bicyclist, and its officials—prompted by personal motives only, persisted in knocking certain members of the C. W. A. board.

I have attended the various C. W. A. meetings, called for a discussion of the question: "Why can't the C. W. A. and A. A. U. of C. work harmoniously?" and I may say that nothing but the friendliest and frankest attitude towards what might be called that "far-off unanimous decision" has taken place.

Professional Cycling. The hitch seems to rest on the C. W. A.'s determined opinion on the professional cycling in Canada. Why shouldn't they? Cycling bodies the world over—with which, too, the C. W. A. is federated—control professional races in their respective countries. Why should the A. A. U. of C. ask the C. W. A. to be the lone association in the world which cannot boss its own special sport, right down the line?

Mind you, there is a vast difference between the C. W. A. promoting professional races on their own account and desiring to maintain control of professional races started by outside officials. The C. W. A. has some record as absolutely being opposed to those within its own ranks promoting professional races. The C. W. A. exists to help bicycling for the amateur, but, if the coming of a professional race will help the cause, the C. W. A. says, "Why bring it along?" This was proven in the case of the six-day meet, held in

Hope Strike Will Be Ended Monday

Board of Trade Offers Services in Settling of Teamsters' Dispute—Freight Tied Up.

The teamsters' strike has congested freight traffic to such an extent that the board of trade has offered its services to settle the strike and break the deadlock.

The freight situation is rapidly growing serious and the only freight that is being moved in and out of the city is handled by private wagons.

Thomas Marshall, manager of the board of trade's traffic department, was closeted for several hours with officers of the four companies affected, with the committee representing the men, in an effort to find a satisfactory basis for an agreement.

The World was informed Saturday afternoon that all parties were making a most earnest effort for a settlement, and both the companies and the strikers hope that the strike will be over by Monday morning.

Suffs. Try to Blow Up Famous Relic

Militants Attempt to Destroy Eddystone Lighthouse—Wind Blew Out Fuse.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., April 19.—A militant suffragette "bomb troop" this morning attempted to blow up the famous Eddystone Lighthouse on Plymouth Hoe, which is the original Eddystone lighthouse built by John Smeaton in 1759.

The bomb was placed by the women within the entrance gate of the tower. The fuse had been lighted but was apparently extinguished by the wind.

BELGIUM STRIKE STILL GROWING

Two Million Dollars a Day Being Lost—Printers and Tailors Join in the Movement.

BRUSSELS, April 19.—Two-thirds of the loss of $2,000,000 a day caused by the strike for political rights, fall according to the socialist trade union leaders, upon the employers and supporters of the existing system, and the organizers of the strike affirm that the men, by exercising self-determination, are holding out as long as the capitalists are willing to endure their deprivation of dividends for a political reason only. All appearance in the total of men all strike will continue for a considerable period, as the determination of the men is met by the equally firm re-election of some of the compromise Premier Charles de Broqueville, who the other cabinet ministers. The premier declares that he did not offer his resignation to King Albert on Thursday, as reported, nor will he consent to submit to a referendum of the country the demand of the men for equal suffrage.

The printers of the capital struck work at midnight, but as the newspapers were practically ready for publication at that hour all appeared this morning. Even the men employed on the socialist organ, Le Peuple, walked out, but enough will be permitted to stay to print a sheet containing strike news. Some of the evening papers came out today in reduced form.

The federal garrison of 600 regulars was entrenched in the suburb of the California Gulf city.

The insurgents are said to number more than 1000, with strong reinforcements on the way from Hermosillo, the state capital.

Second Injection For Friedmann Patients

German Physician Gives Further Treatment at the New York Hospital For Deformities.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Dr. Friedrich F. Friedmann visited the Hospital for Deformities to give a second injection of his vaccine for tuberculosis to such of his patients there as require it.

The vaccine was to be administered in the presence of government physicians who are investigating the treatment.

Meantime Dr. Friedmann said active preparations are being made for marketing the vaccine. No deal had yet been closed, he added, but negotiations are being pushed.

FATHER MINEHAN WRITES

Editor World: Not even when I expressed myself very forcibly on the doings of a certain faction in this city did I feel greater indignation than when I read of the action of a majority of the board of control this forenoon in carrying a resolution to withdraw the bill empowering the City of Toronto to purchase the Toronto street railway and electric light concerns.

There may be occasions when it is advisable to obstruct and make a fight about turn, but such occasions are rare, and they are rare on the part of the lighting change artists.

But if ever there was a time when the self-avowed trick operators should evoke an outburst of indignation, it is in his opinion, pre-eminently such, in his negotiations leading up to the proposed new law council and the legislature the mayor, in my judgment, has taken the most progressive move in the history of Toronto—a move which will be the commencement of equally epoch-making advances.

The board of control and council seemed to be pretty unanimous on that point a day ago. What has brought about the volte face?

The only suggested reason for it is a fear that the hydro-electric system will be prejudiced. Let me say that if this proposal be blocked by the hydro-electric forces, this latter will be prejudiced far more. Will taking over the electric light company's business put the hydro-electric in a worse position than it now occupies?

The City of Toronto and thousands of its citizens have been good friends of the hydro-electric, but if this latter is to become a monopoly to which we must sacrifice the city's interests I say, as one citizen, that I shall have no further use for the hydro. L. Minehan.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING NEWS

CONSTRUCTION COMMENT

BONDS SECURED BY MORTGAGES ARE VERY STABLE

Investors, Who Are Not Speculators or Traders, Take Very Kindly to Them—Security Increases as Good Farming Land Decreases.

The immediate function of an organized mortgage business is to render convertible and turn into liquid capital the great wealth stored in real estate.

For about 200 years mortgage companies have successfully pursued their business in Great Britain and on the continent. In Germany, France, Holland, Norway, Sweden and Austria, these companies have sold enormous amounts of their bonds secured by their investment in mortgages upon real estate, bearing interest at from 4 1/2 to 5 per cent.

In times of war and financial trouble, these bonds have been found to be more stable in value than any other class of security. During the Franco-Prussian war the 4 per cent bonds of the Credit Foncier sold at from 92 to 95, and the bonds of the German companies showed a similar strength. In times of commercial panics, it has been observed, both in Germany and in Austria, that these bonds actually rose in value.

Issue Perpetual Bonds. The great advantage of the system of issuing bonds secured by mortgages lies in the convertibility which it gives to mortgage investments. Many of these bonds run for from 50 to 75 years, and the Swedish and some English companies issue perpetual bonds.

In Europe the debenture bonds of the mortgage companies are not secured by the special deposit of mortgages with the trustee; in America this has been, and is now, the rule. For investors, especially small investors who have the time, opportunity, or experience in selecting mortgages upon real estate, such bonds have in Canada as well as abroad, been for many years a favorite investment. If such companies do not succumb to the temptation of dealing in other securities offering larger profits, but with greater risk, success must necessarily follow.

Early Losses. In the early history of the business on this continent, from 1835 to 1892, there was such an enormous demand for these mortgage securities, and so little experience in their negotiation, that many losses were made by investors who did not inform themselves as to the management and operations of some of the then existing mortgage companies. Since 1893 the business has been scientifically managed, with the result that the losses by investors have been almost a negligible quantity. Foreclosures have been extremely rare and when circumstances have made them necessary the security has amply provided for the payment of both principal and interest.

It is noticeable that, within the last few years, insurance companies, who are usually most careful investors, have turned their attention more than ever before to western farm mortgage securities, and their success with these investments has been remarkable. Small investors who have a few hundred or a few thousand dollars to invest find such mortgages and debentures available for the investment of small odd sums.

Security Increases. It is not always recognized by, or known to, investors that the value of the security behind these bonds, owing to the diminishing supply of good farming land, increases, in most cases, during the life of the loan, and in many of the newer fields it cannot be doubted but that this increase in value must continue steadily for many years to come.

There have been many changes of late years in the methods of farming, and farmers are learning all the time by instruction, study and example how to get the best returns from their land; there will be great and increasing improvement in this direction with better returns in favorable seasons, and the minimizing of losses in poor ones.

For the investor who is not a speculator, or trader, there is no investment which is better and surer than the farm mortgage, and there are few equal to it.

Bertha and Craig Street Frontage Doubles in Eighteen Months

James Edgeworth has sold a block of land on Bertha and Craig streets, Swansea, consisting of 25 lots, to a syndicate for about $20,000. The lots were 25 feet frontage by 100 feet deep and were bought by Mr. Edgeworth 18 months ago for $10,000. Random Features and News of Real Estate

Real estate men are leaving the seasons out of their calculations. Weather appears to have little to do with market conditions. The first two months of this year exceeded all other previous mid-winter months in point of activity, and now real estate men are looking to the greatest June, July and August selling ever experienced in land and home building.

Most calculations have been upset by the way new population pours in, by the amount of local money that is available for building and investment in productive realty. Eight money talk has practically disappeared, and as predicted last winter, April will go out with normal conditions largely restored. Real estate men say that the buying side of the market is just starting up power for one of the greatest periods of investment the city has known. They expect it to be pretty solid investment, centering on house and small central properties and building land. What will make that buying power assert itself is the closing of the deal for the purchase by the city of the street railway system.

The acquisition of the transit services will do more to set Toronto real estate on sound permanent values than anything that has yet happened. It will mean readjustment in some quarters, but the big point is that it will pave the way for the city to develop its slow growing suburbs by the running out of colonizing lines on the one fare plan. It will be a distinct step toward Greater Toronto. It will place thousands of feet of cheap frontage on the market for the building of the moderate priced homes. The building activity that will immediately result will to a great extent end speculation and the need for housing companies, and will do more than anything that could be suggested to promote industrial expansion.

To take just one section of the city as an example of what may be expected to result from the securing by the city of control of its streets and street cars. The double tracking of Yonge street right to York Mills and the paving and widening of the street would be made an easy matter, and these works would probably be well under way this fall. Then in place of intermittent cars would come frequent and rapid service with one fare. The development of this part of North Toronto that would at once follow would make its present rate of growth, respectable in proportions as is, small indeed. With the complete and sudden settlement of North Toronto would come the early development of all that Yonge street land beyond York Mills for miles up, as it would all be brought very close to the one fare and rapid transit line. What will happen out the Yonge street gives an idea easily grasped.

Then with all the surface car lines in and around Toronto linked up under one management, without conflict of interests and with one aim always in view, that the development of the city on sound, progressive lines, a system of subways would naturally follow. That adds another phase of rapid transit that would bring about wonderful changes in realty values in the heart of the city. The expert who will figure out just how are necessary. Most of the new transportation system will tend to increase values is due to make big money. Expert knowledge of realty conditions will have great scope here shortly.

alho King street will get the large office. To those firms that will stay along Realty Row the post office building will be a decided benefit. Public buildings are often considered business "deadeners," but the new Adelaide street post office cannot be included in this class. The week brought out few large realty transactions, although many, so do brokers report, are under way with the betterment of money conditions. House and land trading occupies the market with builders, causing considerable of the buying still. Considerable of the buying still. The first of May, when many must move, is a few days away, and there are some very worried tenants in town. New accommodation is very scarce and it will be a month yet before the results of the spring building operations begin to show. Nineteen-thirteen is piling up new building records. The first four months will probably be two million dollars ahead of the same period last year.

This month's permits are now eighty per cent of April, 1912. The city architect's department is well up in its work, and builders are not being delayed an hour. AUSTRALIAN HAS NOVEL SCHEME TO FIND A WORTHY WHITE HOPE Advertises for the Perfect Man and Will Train Him For Two Years in Tricks of the Ring—Looks Like a Success.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—"Snowy" Baker, the man who has succeeded Hugh D. McIntosh, as Australia's leading fight promoter, is possessed of the ambition to discover an Australian born husky who can be developed into the greatest world beating heavyweight of all times.

He has set forth that when chosen he will be finally made for all the would-be champions who have made application and undergone inspection, the fellow chosen will live in clover for two years.

He will be clothed, fed and paid good wages and all that will be required of him will be to pay strict attention to the men employed to teach him the science of ringmanship and adhere strictly to the tenets of correct living.

Baker recognizes that the hunt for his idol will call for all the patience he is endowed with. He expects set backs and disappointments, and has made up his mind not to be discouraged or turned aside from his purpose.

He believes that even if he has carried a recruit along to a certain point some flaw will develop that will suggest the advisability of calling a halt, and sending the novice back to the mines or the shearing sheds or wherever he came from.

Will Try Again. In which case "Snowy" will grab another package of raw material and begin all over again. He is determined to find the man he is after or know the reason why.

According to news brought by a recent mail there were a couple of hundred applications for the job after one month of publicity.

The would-be champions ranged in age from 15 to 23 years and weighed all the way from 180 to 280 pounds.

It may be that Baker will become alarmed at the dimensions his scheme has assumed but he appears to think that he has a thoro grasp of the situation, and that he will be able to sift a whole regiment of stalwarts, to find a whole lot of promising material. Needless to say, it is a breath of good heavyweight material in Australia that has impelled Baker to this course. It remains to be seen what will come of the scheme. Some old time trainers will tell you that champions are born, not made, but whether they are born or made, Baker feels that they must be advertised for.

Apart from what the scouring of the highways and byways of Australia may bring forth, Baker has three ex-aminateur heavyweights in process of development just now. These are Gordon Coghill, former amateur heavyweight champion of Australia; Albert Pooley and Harold Ewers. The last named is a west Australian who was unearched by the American colored pugilist Sam McVey during a tour of the western country. McVey made a pupil of Ewers and coached him along Ewers stands six feet three, and is spoken of as a fellow of infinite promise.

Coghill won his spurs recently by defeating Syd Fitzsimmons of New Zealand, a nephew of the veteran Bob Fitzsimmons. The two heavies met in the first of a series of elimination bouts at the Rushcutters Bay stadium in Sydney, and Fitzsimmons was knocked out in the fourth round. Fitzsimmons was put down twice in the third round and also he battled pluckily but was palpably marked for defeat. In the following round that his seconds threw up the sponges.

The scarcity of heavyweights in Australia has fired some of the old timers with the ambition to get back into harness. Bill Lang who has been out of the game for quite a while, is to box Petty Officer Curran of England, some time this month in Melbourne. The pair met once before in London, and Lang lost on a foul in the opening round.

Even Bill Squires—"boshters" Bill—has heard the trumpet call, and is hastening ringward. A great light weight has dawned on Bill. He says he sees now that what ailed him in the past was conceding too much weight to his opponents. He is after the light heavyweight title of Australia now, and will never go out of his class again.

Bill's most formidable rivals in the light heavyweight division are Dave Smith who lost to Eddie McGoorty in New York, and Jerry Jerome, an Australian aboriginal. Smith is the light heavyweight champion at present. Jerome is forty years old but for all that is quite a factor in Australian pugilism. He boxes with the right hand forward and reserves his left for knocking-out purposes.

Yankees Will Be in The Fight This Year Says Clarke Griffith

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 19.—No less authority than Fox Griffith, manager of the Washington American League team, expects Frank Chance's Yankees to make a stir in the league race this year. Although the Yankees lost the opening games to Griffith's team, they caused the Washington manager to sit up and take notice.

"Any club that can walk up to the plate against a pitcher like Walter Johnson is a good hitting club," he said. "The Yankees will fool a lot of people who expect them to be fighting it out for last place in the league race."

COMPOSITE PIRATE IS YOUNGEST IN YEARS

Old Players Gradually Being Replaced on Pittsburg Team—Will Be Improvement.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 19.—The composite Pines of 1913 is a younger man than any representation of the City of Pittsburg on the baseball diamond in ten years. The old fellows are gradually dropping out and young blood is replacing them, not in accordance with any fixed policy of the club, but because many of the stars of past years have outlived their usefulness. Old players are never dropped from the roster merely because they are old. The combination of Clarke-Wagner-Leach-Ritchey, that was looked upon as one of the most formidable in organized baseball, was first broken up when Claude Ritchey was let out. Clarke was next to go, thru self-elimination, and last summer a third member of the quartet, in the person of Tommy Leach, was dropped. Today only Hans Wagner remains.

It is a question of the survival of the fittest. The big Dutchman is 32 years old. Perhaps it could be put "33 years young" for it is only the lines on his face and the graying of his hair at the temples which indicate his age. Hans Wagner will be robbing opposing players of base hits and knocking down fences with his own drives this summer. He will not be running wild on the paths. He will continue to be a terror to pitchers, the idol of every American youth and one of the most valuable talents written about men in the United States. His career of usefulness has outlasted that of any contemporary baseball star, and he is still going.

Horse Show Here Greater Than Ever

Two Lieutenant-Governors Will Grace Opening, Which Takes Place April 29.

One week from Tuesday the Canadian National Horse Show will open at the armories with greater splendor than ever. The large demand for boxes, coupled with the record number of entries, leads the directors of the show to believe that the event will be the greatest ever held at the armories.

For the first time in the existence of this show, this event will be graced by two lieutenant-governors. His Honor Lieut.-Gov. Sir John Gibson will open the show, while His Honor Lieut.-Gov. D. C. Cameron of Manitoba will be present in the role of a very interested spectator, as he has made a large number of entries. His list is confined chiefly to the carriage classes, but as they are said to be the best in the west, the local exhibitors will have to have something good to beat him.

Miss Viau of Montreal has also a number of entries in the carriage classes, and as Miss Wilks of Galt, Mrs. Adam Stables of London and the Emslaire Stables of Oakville, again showing, coupled with a large number of other entries, this class promises to arouse a lot of enthusiasm.

The hunting classes this spring have, as usual, more than filled up, as a large number of horses will be shown in the Toronto ring for the first time at this show, the awards in the different classes will be eagerly looked forward to.

Go Out in Front in Five-Man Event—No Other Changes of Any Account.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., April 19.—Last night's rolling in the National Bowling Tournament resulted in several changes in the positions of the leaders. In the five-man event, the Bronx Centrals of New York rolled 2983 and displaced the Slippery Elms of Rochester from the first place. Kump's Merrimacs of Buffalo took sixth place in that class by rolling 2775, and the Majestics, also of Buffalo, lodged in eighth place with a score of 2764.

Arderson of Paterson, N.J., rolled 650 in the individual class and took fourth place. W. Noack of Newark holds the first place with a score of 666. O'Connell of Newburgh is still a good second with 664.

In the two-man competition, Smith and Riddell with a score of 1259 seemed to have a firm claim on first honors. No changes were made in the standing in this class.

JENNINGS SAYS EVERS WILL NOT BE SUCCESS

Tiger Leader Predicts Failure For Cub Machine This Season Without Chance.

DETROIT, Mich., April 19.—"John Evers will never get by as a manager," says Manager Jennings of the Tigers.

"He is too high strung. He was so nervous even as a player that he suffered a breakdown a couple of years ago and had to quit. With the added cares of managing that Chicago bunch of crabs it will be all the worse.

"Besides, he has to contend with the tremendous and growing unpopularity of his owner, and with the fact that the Cub fans have been accustomed to a winner for so many years that a slump is going to put the team in bad immediately. "The slump is certain because of the loss of such stars as Brown, Tinker, Chance and Sheppard, and the fact that he hasn't a pitcher on his staff whom he can send in and feel that he will win. When he finds the Cubs trailing he simply will go crazy."

T. M. C. Run to Whitby.

The season's first official run of the Toronto Motorcycle Club will be held today to Whitby and return. The touring committee has arranged for dinner in Whitby and a large turnout is looked for. The leaders are leaving the club quarters, Brunswick avenue and College street, at 10 o'clock sharp, so be on hand and get away with as little noise as possible.

Wanderers Off to Oshawa.

The Wanderers' Motorcycle Club is holding a club run to Oshawa this morning. All members are requested to be at the club quarters, King and Jarvis streets, sharp at 9 o'clock. Dinner will be served at Oshawa and a good turnout is expected.

BERMUDA BEST TRAINING CAMP ROOM FOR SEVERAL MORE CLUBS

Frank Chance Likes British Isle and Will Return Next Season—Plenty of Available Grounds and More Clubs May Go.

By W. J. MacBeth.

NEW YORK, April 19.—Bermuda is likely to become as much of a contested question as the pennants of the major leagues. Frank Chance proved conclusively the benefits to be derived from the beautiful climate of this little island dependency of Great Britain. When Chance left New York for Bermuda he weighed 215 pounds in his winter overcoat. When he left Bermuda for New York he scarcely raised the beam at 183 pounds, stripped. Chance therefore took off more than twenty-five pounds of excess baggage, but that is not the point. Chance went to Bermuda a physical question mark. He had been unable to play during two baseball campaigns. The layoff had rolled up many pounds of useless flesh. If he had been a young ball player his task of getting into fit physical condition would have been hard indeed. For a veteran of fifteen years' service the effort seemed absolutely impossible before Huk proved himself an exception to the laws of "youth will be served."

Bermuda Greatest Yet.

Frank Chance believes that he would not have been able to overcome the handicaps under which he labored but for the rejuvenating climate of Bermuda. He is a living example of what may be accomplished there. He was in Bermuda seven weeks. In less than four weeks he was almost down to playing weight. He started his "come back" efforts, very doubtful as to the possibility of getting his legs into shape. According to Trainer Barrett, Chance has the best pair of legs on the team. What Chance accomplished simply shows the possibilities of Bermuda.

His entire squad left the island as fit as any club which ever represented the American League in this city. The athletes found unusually rough weather on their return to the north but this did not seem to affect them as it had done previously when the preparatory work had been carried out in Georgia. The Highlanders were so unlucky as to be knocked about and out of commission in their exhibition games around New York. This was the fault of luck and not of lack of physical fitness.

New York will return to Bermuda next year. One other major league club is likely to go there. Charles H. Ebbets, the Brooklyn manager, believes a visit would prove not only beneficial but financially successful as well. He is only one of many who think that a series of practice games between two first-class major league clubs would draw a gate sufficient to pay a great part of the training expenses. Mr. Ebbets is very fond of Chance's Yankees just now. The big bear filled his new park in the first game of the spring in this vicinity. The clubs are booked to battle next year at the new Farrell Field. Charley is not adverse to grabbing off all the money he can and he sees a nice little pot of it in Bermuda.

Lots of Room for More. It would be easy enough for two or three big league teams to find accommodations on the coral isle. Business Manager Irwin discovered a real big league field at Somerset. This town is twelve miles across the bay from Hamilton and within easy driving distance. There is another field at the navy yards where the blue jackets decide their soccer and cricket arguments. Either one of these places would welcome major league athletes. As a matter of fact any one of the three available grounds might accommodate at least two teams. Jersey City worked out with the Yankees at the Hamilton cricket grounds this year. There was room enough for everybody and no confusion at any time.

JOE RIVERS FAILED TO IMPRESS N. Y. FIGHT FANS IN CROSS BOUT

Expected to Smother Gotham Dentist, But Was Lucky to Have a Shade—Hardly Ready to Tackle Ritchie—Corbett's Fight Gossip For Sunday World Readers.

By James J. Corbett. Former Heavyweight Champion of the World. (Written for The Toronto Sunday World)

On their showing in New York last week, neither Joe Rivers nor Leach Cross strengthened his position as possible successor to Willie Ritchie, the lightweight champion. Provided, of course, the boys from their best, on that occasion, and there is no reason for thinking otherwise.

I was disappointed in Rivers' performance. When Joe and Leach boxed the first time, the Californian came like a whirlwind the last round or two, and at the finish had the local boy in a shape. It looked as if he had solved Cross' style, and would show to better advantage in a return battle. This favorable impression was further strengthened by his impressive defeat of "Knock Out" Brown. As it turned out, Joe was barely able to earn a "shade" on Cross in the second start.

Altho Willie Ritchie has not been seen in the ring since winning the title from Ad Wolgast on a foul, there is no doubt of his ability as a boxer. He has several working performances to his credit, which quite outshadow anything either Rivers or Cross has shown to date, among them a four-round "win" from Jack Britton, a "popular" verdict over Young Erbe, and a 20-round "lose" to Freddy Welsh, which was probably his most brilliant achievement, all things considered, not excepting the winning of the title. It will be remembered that in the Welsh bout Ritchie, then a comparative novice, "subbed" for Wolgast, and took the bout on 48 hours' notice, part of which time was spent in traveling from San Francisco to Los Angeles.

Rivers Only a Kid. Joe Rivers is only a kid in years—barely 21—and may eventually develop class enough to give Ritchie a stubborn argument. He did, in fact, show a slight improvement in cleverness in the last Cross match, but has a great deal to learn before he can hope to rank with the champion in point of skill. Cross, however, is a veteran compared with the others, and can't be expected to improve. He is as good now as he can ever hope to be. While a trifle better than the average, lightweight, Leach is some degrees short of championship form.

If Ritchie and Rivers meet on the fourth of July, the champion should be returned the winner by a safe margin. It should be no great task for a clever performer to solve Rivers' style in a few rounds. The latter's only chance in such a battle would appear to rest in the possibility of landing a "lucky" punch, and he would have to be lucky to put one over on the champion.

If further proof was necessary to convince the New York boxing commissioners that referees' decisions ought to be allowed, the Rivers-Cross bout furnished plenty of it. As usual in important matches, the newspaper critics were divided on the question of which boy was entitled to the decision. I don't believe there was one who called it a draw. Some said Rivers won all the way, while others maintained that Cross earned the verdict.

This is a decidedly unsatisfactory state of affairs. It is unfair to the boxers and unfair to the public. Rivers and Cross might pull off a dozen ten-round bouts in New York, and no matter how they resulted, unless terminating in knock outs, they would all go down in the record books as "no-decision" contests. The public pays liberally to see boxing matches and wants a winner for its money, when possible to pick one. The only way out of the difficulty is to clothe the referees with power to render decisions. The contention of some writers that this curtailment of a referee's authority discourages gambling on bouts has been exploded. There is as much betting under the present system as in the old Horton law days, when decisions were rendered and open gambling was tolerated by the authorities. Attendants at local bouts will testify to this. And, what's more, there will always be betting on boxing matches, or any other form of sport, as long as there is any public interest in it, law or no law.

Will Take On the Easy Ones. Rivers says he will stick around New York for a while and take on a few good lightweights. Joe shows the right spirit, at any rate. He is a fighter first, last, and all the time, and deservedly popular with the fans. There is some talk of sending Rivers against young Joe Shugrus, the Jersey lightweight, who outpointed Cross by a narrow margin a few months ago. Shugrus is the most promising material developed in the east in a long time, and might prove a surprise party for the little Spaniard.

It is said that Luther McCarty asks $15,000 to box "Gunboat" Smith ten rounds at Madison Square Garden. Billy Gibson, the match-maker, offered a guarantee of $12,500, altho that was before the "Gunboat's" poor showing with Rodel. McCarty's demand is beyond all reason. If the pair were matched, Smith would be the card, for Luther is not over-popular in New York, and a promoter would be taking big chances in guaranteeing him even $5,000.

Can anyone imagine Jack "Twin" Sullivan asking for $15,000? Still, the veteran recently proved to local sports fans that he must be considered in the running. He easily outpointed big "Soldier" Kearns, and has challenged both McCarty and Smith. At Buffalo several months ago the "Twin" shaded the "Gunboat" something McCarty has not yet accomplished, and his record will stand comparison with that of any of the present lot of white heavyweights. In his prime, Sullivan stuck to the middleweight division for the very good reason that the heavies were a vastly different sort than is getting away with the stuff these days. The game looks easy now, and old as he is, the "Twin" is anxious to do business with any or all of them.

Dan McKittrick, manager of Joe Jeannette, rises to ask why such a boxer as McCarty, Smith, Willard, et al, who at present occupy the centre of the pugilistic stage, are making much talk concerning their pretensions and intentions, should be allowed to dictate just when, where and whom they shall fight. Dan argues that they not only draw the color line, but dodge challenges from the whites eligible to meet them in the ring. He justly claims the fashionable "white hopes" arrogate to themselves a privilege never attempted by real champions. In refusing to meet negro boxers, who have far better claims to the right to battle for the title than any of the usurers.

Not to give McKittrick a short answer, the "hopes" have the best reasons in the world for refusing to meet such men as Jeannette and Langford—they are afraid they would be licked. In fact, I might say they feel sure of it.

Palzer Home Again. Speaking of "hopes," big Al Palzer has returned from abroad. I understand Tom O'Rourke finally grew tired of waiting for Jack Johnson to come thru with his forfeit money, and decided the wisest course was to hike for home and easier game. O'Rourke made a mistake in taking his fighter to France on the long chance of getting a battle with Johnson. As a result, Palzer has been forced to loaf for nearly four months; and he is not the sort who thrives on idleness. To get the big husky in condition to give a good account of himself calls for lots of hard work. And the best kind of work for that type is actual ring experience. Before Palzer and O'Rourke had their disagreement last spring, the big fellow looked like a "corner." Then came the temporary split, which resulted

This Big Tailoring House Must Reach You

We make clothes of quality for gentlemen of any build and any age—and make 'em right.

We are specialists in suits for the young man, the middle-aged, and the young-old-man. With the modern philosopher we believe that because one reaches an afternoon-hour in life there is no reason why he should wear gloomy, ill-fitting clothes. We believe, not only does "apparel oft' proclaim the man," but that it has a psychological effect on that man, and on his attitude towards his surroundings and his fellow men.

There are no "old men" in the customers' list of the Scotland Woolen Mills Company, simply because the Scotland Woolen Mills Company makes every man-of-years a young-old-man. — Bright, well-fitting clothing does it all.

We don't want you to conclude that because The Scotland Woolen Mills Company sell its Suits and Overcoats for Fifteen Dollars that these are only fifteen dollar clothes—They're worth over twice the price. They are made with exceptional care, and we can assure you that we actually put into each individual suit as much and more careful cut and finish as any custom tailor in the business.

In a long spell of enforced idleness, so that when a truce was patched up and the McCarty battle arranged, little time was left for training purposes. At least not sufficient time to enable Palzer to get back into the form he had shown during the earlier part of his career. Palzer's return should stir things up around here. He is not afraid to fight any one at any time. In that Al differs from the majority of "hopes." He may not be the best of the lot, but he is the most willing, and, properly trained, I believe would give a good account of himself with McCarty, Willard, or Smith. I see that Georges Carpentier, the French boxer, called off his match with Frank Klaus, from a sporting standpoint. It is just as well, Klaus had once demonstrated his superiority over the youthful Frenchman, and would undoubtedly have repeated. While it knocks the Pittsburgh boxer out of a chance to gather in a nice purse, American fight followers are glad that Frank Klaus is "in our midst" once more. His presence is absolutely essential to the settlement of the middleweight championship. A match between McCarty and Klaus will about determine the matter to the satisfaction of the fan-

MAKING THE SCHOOL BOY a FARMER

By Donald G. French.

IF YOU want your boy to take an interest in dogs and become a mine of information about them, buy him a pup; if you want to make a builder of him, supply him with a kit of tools and some material; if you want the rural schoolboy to become a farmer, make him do something which will give him a personal interest in farm products.

But—you may say he has lots of things at home on the farm to take a personal interest in, why not let him do so? Just because there, in the usual routine of the farm, he feels that he is performing a task for someone else—he may be a perfectly dutiful son and yet not be able to see that what he is doing for his father he is doing for himself. The idea that is at the bottom of the Rural School Garden and the work which supplements it, is, undoubtedly, the correct one with respect to the teaching of elementary agriculture, because it gives the boy a sense of personal ownership and personal responsibility.

This problem of teaching agriculture in the public schools of Ontario, is just about as old as the public schools themselves. Sixty-five years ago, we are told, when the first Normal School for the training of teachers was established, arrangements were made for a regular course of lectures on agricultural chemistry. Following the chronology of this subject down the years we find a series of text-books, regulations and amendments to regulations, but very little in the way of practical agricultural teaching as a result.

Finally came the School Garden idea; instead of dealing with agriculture as a book subject—in which case too often the relationship of the subject to the outside world may largely be forgotten and the energies of the student focussed upon the memorization of facts and formulae—instead of dealing with mere abstract facts, the boy comes into contact with living things. Not the least—indeed is it not the greatest?—point about this school gardening is the experimental plot which is in charge of the individual pupil, and in which he endeavors to grow the best grain or the largest vegetables or the most beautiful flowers. In too many phases of school life it is so difficult to cultivate the individuality of the child. Here, however, is work which will develop the personal observation and personal resources of the little experimentalist.

In 1907 the Ontario Government made provision for special grants to schools carrying on school gardening, but altho the province has 5000 rural schools only 15 of these qualified for the school garden grant by 1910. An idea always needs a man at the back of it to bend his energies to its development. Therefore, it was well for the propagation of this idea that the government saw fit to appoint a Director of Elementary Education in the person of Professor S. B. McCready.

Under the oversight of the active and enthusiastic Director, the work was systematized and rapidly extended. The experimental side of School Garden work has been strengthened by co-operation with the Experimental Union, an organization formed in 1879 and composed of students, ex-students and teachers of the Agricultural College. This association conducts annually numerous and varied experiments dealing with farm crops, fertilizers, poultry, fruits, vegetables and forestry. In the Schools' Division of this Union, schools are supplied with flower and vegetable seeds; the seeds of farm crops, tree seeds, vines, bulbs, shrubs and tree seedlings as well as instruction sheets, booklets on gardening, government publications and agricultural text-books. The forest tree seedlings, agricultural seeds, government publications, and instruction sheets are furnished free; charges are made for the other material.

The seeds and other material supplied for planting may be used in the school garden plots, or the children may conduct experiments in gardens of their own at their homes. In any case, there is, as pointed out already, the personal interest and individual responsibility of the pupil.

While many of these gardens are made on the school grounds there are cases where plots of suitable land have to be obtained by rental from neighboring farms, or the land may be loaned by the farmer. One would expect to find the farmers of every community anxious to assist the movement by supplying land and even labor for tilling it, but, while such an attitude is found in some sections, the teacher has, unfortunately, in others, to overcome by enthusiasm and proof the indifference of those who are really to be benefited.

the local consolidated school with its class in agriculture would serve as a feeder to the Agricultural classes in the Collegiates, or directly to the Agricultural College.

The rural school fall fair is a natural result of the school garden idea. To some extent it is taking the place of the old-time closing day exercises. The prizes given serve to stimulate interest and act as an incentive to better work for another year.

The working out of this idea has not been confined solely to rural schools, but in towns and cities, the school-children have planted flower gardens and vegetable plots and the influence of the work done, at school in this way spreads itself to the homes and encourages the transformation of unsightly backyards into bowers of beauty and little truck-farms that may be made money-savers, for a very small area of land will produce a large crop of vegetable produce if properly handled. Two or three crops a year may be grown, even in our climate, from the same plot of ground.

We have seen how experimental work conducted by the pupils will help to instill valuable principles in connection with agriculture. There are many things which will be brought home forcibly to the schoolboy farmer. He will learn the necessity of keeping his plot clean and free from weeds. He will find out that there are different kinds of weeds and that they may require different treatment. The importance of drainage—proper draining, the experts tell us, would easily treble the present crop production of the province—cannot escape his attention. He will have to combat different kinds of plant diseases, and fight many varieties of insect pests. And because he must do all these things on his own account he will be the more ready to enter into the handling of these problems on a larger scale in the actual work of the whole farm. The relation between book-learning, as given by the printed bulletins and books on agriculture, to the real world in which he lives will become apparent to him and will impress the truth that real education is not something confined within the walls of the schoolroom, but something that applies to his every day life and makes it broader, fuller and happier.

Such a movement should progress rapidly. One might wonder why it is not immediately adopted by every rural school in the province. There is, however, a vast incubus of indifference to overcome. Sometimes it is the parents who regard the idea as a fad or whim of the teacher; sometimes the board of trustees refuse to cooperate with the teacher, and even some of the public school inspectors who are expected to form the advance guard of education, are opposed to the work.

Aside from its value as a school subject or even its relation to farm life, this work is reported by teachers as having a good effect on the discipline of the school, promoting a spirit of friendliness and helpfulness among the pupils, and serving as a bond of sympathy between teachers and pupils.

The movement is making encouraging progress. During 1912, two hundred and fifty schools shared in the distribution of material, which consisted of collections of forest tree seedlings from the Norfolk forestry farm; packets of barley, alfalfa, lettuce, onion seed, flax, and other seeds for experimental plots; all of which was sent out free. Material for which a charge was made consisted of flower and vegetable seeds for the school garden or the child's home garden, tulip bulbs for fall planting, vines for decorating the school or covering out-buildings, shrubbery for planting on the school grounds. The schools sharing in the work are mostly in Western Ontario, but some schools in the newer parts of the province have joined in the work.

During 1913, seed will be supplied free on the understanding that it is to be used strictly for educational purposes. School progress clubs will be promoted and other plans developed for further extension of the school garden idea. And the spread of this system should result in making the rural school a place with beautiful surroundings, a cradle of scientific agriculture, and a practical training ground for making raw schoolboys into skilled farmers.

Let us see just what they are doing in some of these gardens. One circular sent out by the Director reads "School experiment with lettuce," and the object of the experiment is "to learn the advantages or disadvantages of growing lettuce thickly; of thinning out plants, of transplanting, of sowing for a succession of crops and of applying nitrate of soda as a fertilizer." Full directions are given for preparation of soil, planting, fertilizing, thinning, transplanting, handling portions in a different manner so as to observe results. Each pupil is furnished with a record upon which to enter dates of sowing, cultivating, thinning, fertilizing, first using. It is hinted that the distribution of the product among the pupils' homes will show a marked advantage over the ordinary home-grown crop. Another experiment is with different varieties of onions. This affords ample exercise in the following of directions, comparison of qualities, estimating of acreage yields. Further the desire of the boy to grow the biggest onions may best be instilled of an ambition that will a few years later produce a skilled scientific farmer or horticulturist.

Something nearer to what we may consider actual farming is an experiment on "the best time to sow spring grains". In addition to the circular of instructions, a chart is furnished showing the results of experiments already conducted. This chart serves as a guide to the pupil in making his estimates.

Within recent years alfalfa has become highly important as a fodder plant for the province. Many farmers yet need to be educated up to its value. The school garden experiments will help to prove the value of alfalfa and to increase its use.

The study of seeds is another branch of this agricultural work. Sprouting of seeds between damp blotters and observing the percentage of good seeds, is an experiment of great practical value. The importance of good, clean seed can scarcely be overestimated. Studies in time required for germination, studies of different varieties of grains, methods of seeding, amount of seed sown to the acre, yields per acre, costs of cultivating, harvesting and threshing; these and many other problems are well within the work of our schoolboy, and will give him an intelligent insight into farm operations.

A sample record of an experiment in the sowing of barley, made by a pupil in Waterloo County, shows the following net results: Four sowings were made, May 10th, 23rd, 31st, June 12th; seeds germinated (in order) May 20th, 29th, June 6th, June 16th; estimated yield per acre (in order of sowing) 25 bushels, 20 bushels, 15 bushels, 10 bushels; quality of seed, good, fair, fair, small. Surely this will prove a practical demonstration, to this boy and his schoolmates, of the value of early sowing!

Of course the success of this work depends upon intelligent directions, in the first instance, by the department, and in the detailed working out of instructions, by the teacher. To qualify the Public School teacher for efficient work in elementary agriculture special training of Normal graduates is given in connection with the Agricultural College; Summer School sessions are also held and winter reading courses outlined. Special certificates in Elementary Agriculture and Horticulture are issued to teachers passing the requisite examinations.

One of the great obstacles to the successful teaching of agriculture in the rural school is the large number of classes and the wide curriculum to be handled, in so many schools, by a single teacher. The consolidation plan now so successfully operated in Manitoba, would give, in place of four or five of the present smaller schools, one large school located centrally, and with arrangements for the conveyance of children to the school. The facilities for conducting school gardens would be much better under this system, and a plan might be developed, whereby Financing the Farmer.

During the enquiry now proceeding in connection with the new bank act a vigorous plea was made for a larger extension of credit to farmers at reasonable rates of interest. It was stated that in the west very high rates were charged even up to twenty per cent. This extreme case, if it occurred, was no doubt charged under exceptional circumstances, but it is certain that farmers everywhere in Canada find it difficult to get necessary loans on fair terms. To that extent they have been handicapped as compared with the controllers of other industries. So clearly is this now recognized that both in the Dominion and in the neighboring republic the question of extending money facilities to agriculturists is attracting considerable and increasing attention on the part of the government and economic experts. This has caused the systems established in many European countries to be more closely investigated and in circulating information regarding these, valuable work has been done by the International Agricultural Institute with its headquarters in Rome. The progress made in Europe was due in part to the opening up of new countries during last century. The flood of cheap agricultural products from virgin lands compelled the European farmer to revise his business methods, to conduct his trade on a cash basis, to cultivate intensive farming, to improve and maintain quality and to establish co-operative organizations reducing the cost of manufacture and distribution. Not only this, but thru co-operative, and in some cases, state aided and supervised banks, abundant credit has been provided at low rates of interest and on favorable terms of repayment. This enables the farmer to pay cash for whatever he buys, thus receiving the benefit of cheap prices and better discounts.

To last month's issue of The Popular Science Monthly, Professor H. C. Price of Ohio State University contributed an article on this subject explaining very clearly how European farmers have secured these benefits and the various systems organized either for the advance of long term loans or for short credits. He classifies the sources from which the necessary capital is supplied for the use of farmers under three heads. 1. Subvention from the government; 2. Savings deposits of the farmers and rural population; 3. The sale of bonds secured by mortgages on farm land. Regarding the desirability of government subventions European opinion differs and especially in Germany, many oppose it as unnecessary. The practice in European countries has varied greatly. In France, Professor Price notes, the rural banks have been established for the most part on funds advanced by the government without interest and in 1910 had a working capital at disposal of between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000 of which more than half had been so advanced. In Austria the provincial government have also actively assisted and in Germany indirect aid has been given by the establishment of central banks founded on capital advanced by the government. These central banks lend to rural banks and co-operative industrial associations and receive deposits from them thus acting as a compensating medium among the local institutions. Thus, says Professor Price, if a rural bank has large deposits and a surplus of funds, it deposits them in a central bank to be loaned out to some other bank in need of funds.

Of the sources of capital above noted Professor Price describes the second—savings and deposits of the farmers and rural population—as the most important. "It has the advantage of developing the habit of saving among all classes in the country and it keeps the money in the rural districts in which it is earned. In Germany alone there are over 16,000 rural savings and loan banks with one and one-half million members and deposits of over $250,000,000. Instead of being deposited in savings banks to be loaned out in the cities, as is the case in America, or deposited in postoffice savings banks to be loaned to city banks, the money is kept in the rural districts and loaned out at a rate of interest that the farmer can use it to advantage." The third source of capital is that of the sale of bonds secured by mortgage on farm lands. This system was begun in Germany as far back as 1770 and was the first form of co-operative agricultural credit established in Europe. During the last thirty years it has rapidly developed and "at the present time the German farmers have over $1,000,000,000 borrowed in this way, none of it costing them more than 4 per cent. interest and in some cases it is as low as 3 per cent."

As providing typical examples of agricultural credit associations Professor Price cites Saxony, in the heart of the sugar belt district of Germany and the richest agricultural section of the empire. As the most intensive systems of agriculture have been developed a large working capital per acre is required and the institutions that provide it are land mortgage associations advancing loans on farm mortgages and the farmers' co-operation banks that lend on personal credit. The former permit of the gradual reduction of the loan by annual payments made with the interest and the instalments usually amount to one-half up to three-quarter per cent. of the face value of the loan. After the loan is made the rate of interest cannot be raised and the farmer has the privilege of paying it off in whole or in part at any time. Short time loans required for temporary purposes are obtained thru rural co-operative or limited liability banks. Their fundamental object is "to furnish credit to their members for working capital at the lowest rates of interest possible and not to make a profit on their business." In Saxony there are 660 rural banks all members of the three central co-operative associations. These consist of 1. The Central Co-operative Bank, which does nothing but a banking business with co-operative associations; 2. The Central Co-operative Association for the purpose and sale of agricultural products also dealing exclusively with the lesser associations and 3. The Union of Co-operative Societies which exercises general powers of supervision and arranges for the organization of new societies. Above them is the government and its direct oversight. These organizations are stated to have been of great advantage not only financially and industrially but no less in the way of improving the moral and social life of the community.

STILL HOPING FOR RESCUE

Dr. Friedmann's Critics.

That Dr. Friedmann, the discoverer of the serum for the treatment of tuberculosis has failed to win approval in Washington is emblazoned on the front pages of the New York papers. It is asserted that his technique is bad and his asepsis so much at fault as to involve risk of blood poisoning. Furthermore, according to the reports, the German savant is strongly tinged with commercialism. It is asserted that according to the ethics of the profession he should have given the details of his process to the medical world and refrained from attempts to exploit it for his own pecuniary advantage.

We heard the same complaint from these truly ethical gentlemen in New York when Friedmann first landed on this side. However he was subjected to keen scrutiny in Toronto and the profession here, regarding him with an open mind, expressed the opinion that his methods were not as much at fault as stated. Dr. Friedmann may have peculiar ideas about making money, but we have never heard of the medical profession, as a body, refusing a liberal recompense for their services.

The main thing we want to know is "Has Dr. Friedmann a cure?" If so, we fancy millions of suffering people will be disposed to overlook any slight errors of judgment on the part of the German scientist.

Whatever doubt may have been cast on the value of his treatment, in consequence of his evident determination to turn it to his own advantage, will be confirmed or dispelled by actual results. If his specific succeeds in removing the white plague it is none the less a world-wide boon even the Dr. Friedmann does not care to rank with the great men who gave their discoveries to humanity without price.

Back to the Land.

Nearly every social economist you talk to can suggest a new cause for the increased cost of living. The one big, vital reason that towers above every other possible or suggested cause is that the rural districts are not keeping pace in growth and productive development with the urban centres.

The supply has fallen below the demand; Ontario as an agricultural province, Canada as an agricultural country, import foodstuffs that should be on the list of exports. For why? Not enough people on the land.

Even in older settled Ontario, there are a few sections that will show you by the results of intensive cultivation that five times the present rural population would not begin to crowd the land. There is room for them; there is need for the produce that they might grow. The problem is how to get them there.

Worse yet, it is a problem of grave concern to hold upon the land those who are now there. Results of agricultural education in certain neighboring states show that within a very few years the tendency to leave the farm has been almost completely checked. The School Garden movement is the most hopeful plan that has so far been undertaken in this province towards achieving the economic necessity of directing us "back to the land."

Perhaps the more pressing problem today is not so much the going back as the keeping on. In Canada, as elsewhere, the drift city-wards is constant. Farm life must be made more attractive

Wilson and Panama Tolls.

It seems to be the impression in England that President Wilson will favor the British contention with regard to the Panama tolls controversy. It is stated that he has intimated to Ambassador Bryce that the settlement will be favorable to Britain but there is a strong feeling in congress in favor of the exemption of American coast wise shipping and we may not expect that the president will imperil his tariff reform legislation by precipitating a further struggle at this time.

We believe that Mr. Taft did not strongly favor the American side, but the approach of the elections moved him to give his support to the bill that passed congress. He was too weak a man to run the risk of displeasing those violent politicians and newspapers who for political reasons urged the adoption of an obviously unfair proposal. Mr. Wilson may be strong enough to adopt a just resolution and attempt by all the means in his power to carry it thru.

At any rate Ambassador Bryce has been impressed with the president's sense of fairness and a favorable outcome of a dispute, which should never have arisen, may be expected.

Why Deport Them?

Lord Robert Cecil suggests that the militant suffragettes be deported. He opposes forcible feeding as inhuman and says the women could have no objection to being treated like prisoners of war.

But would this cure the militants? In prison they refuse to eat knowing that the government cannot let them starve to death. Suppose they object to being sent to St. Helena or the Seychelles Islands and start the hunger strike there, the same reason that impelled the British Government to stop forcible feeding would require them to return Mrs. Pankhurst and her ardent followers to freedom in England.

Mr. McKenna and Mr. Asquith, as The Sunday World has previously pointed out, will not be able to suppress these sincere women who, after exhausting every constitutional means to secure the vote have adopted the policy of smashing windows and blowing up buildings; and it seems to be now the prevailing idea that the struggle between the women and the hard-headed English legislators can only end with the granting of their just demands.

The Toronto Railway.

The striking need of increased street railway accommodation in Toronto, especially in the newly-annexed and fast growing suburbs, should be the main driving force in bringing the city council and the Toronto Railway together in the pending negotiations for the purchase of the existing line.

The company's charter has nine years to run. It is obvious that the company cannot be compelled to extend into the new districts, to put on sufficient cars to serve the people's needs, or to spend money on improving trackage and equipment. We are growing at the rate of 40,000 every year and traffic conditions are growing worse every day.

Then the people must own the street railway if it is to be extended to meet present and future requirements.

Crusts - & - Crumbs

By ALBERT ERNEST STAFFORD

We were talking last week about Paul's teaching concerning the physical body, the psychic body, and the spiritual body; and, of course, it was a typographical error that made the statement: "It is sown a physical body; it is raised a spiritual body." That is just exactly what Paul did not say. He said it was sown a physical body and raised a spiritual one.

The resurrection taught by Paul was not of the body of flesh and blood, but of the psychic body out of the body of flesh and blood, into the glorified condition of the spiritual body. For, under certain circumstances, the psychic and the spiritual body may become one. This is the mystical marriage of "the spirit and the bride." In the re-incarnation, a word that Jesus uses in Matthew xix, 28, where it is translated regeneration, a man is provided with the kind of body, or rather he provides himself with the kind of body, best adapted to carry out his aims and develop his character. The same word is used in Titus iii, 5, by Paul, who tells us that by the washing of re-incarnation and the renewing of the Holy Spirit or Breath of Life, we may be made heirs to eternal life. Once a man has attained to this "perfection"—the word so translated in the New Testament means initiation—it is his own choice whether he remain in heaven or whether he voluntarily come down from heaven and incarnate on earth to help his fellows. It should not be difficult to understand that the Christ, "the first born among many brethren," (Romans viii, 29) made the greatest of all sacrifices in coming down from heaven and incarnating among men, and that his "goings forth are from of old, from everlasting," (Micah v, 2), as an example and inspiration to all men. This appears to me to be the teaching of Paul on the matter. And he assures us that, as in Adam, the psychic nature, all men die, so in Christ, the spiritual nature, shall all be made alive.

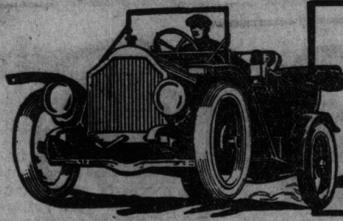

My correspondent, who raised these questions last week, asked if, at the end of our earthly experience, we should have attained a vehicle that we can use in this present world, yet which would be free from physical laws, and be purely spiritual. One can scarcely miss the conclusion which is taught universally in the great religions of the world, that we already have a spiritual vehicle, and also a psychic vehicle, and that the object of incarnation, the descent into the flesh, is to build up a physical vehicle which would bring us into touch with all physical conditions. Unfortunately, most of us become so engrossed with the attractions and fascinations of the physical plane that we abandon our hold on the higher planes, and are no better than blind men in our trippings and stumbings thru the mazes of gross matter. Could we but raise our consciousness to the level that Paul styled the third heaven, there would be no longer any doubt for us of the existence of the spiritual body. A very large number of people who have learned about evolution seem to think that these inner bodies will be evolved from the physical, for they are accustomed to think of life beginning below and ascending. But I prefer the Christian teaching, which is Madam Blavatsky's teaching, and the mystic teaching generally, recorded by St. John (iii, 13): "No man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, the Son of Man, which is in heaven." These words are spoken by Jesus, who does not say that the son of man is on earth, or that he will be in heaven, but that he is in heaven. The Higher Self of every man, his "son of man," is in heaven, and it is of that inner divine self that it was said that "their angels do always behold the face of the Father." This was spoken of little children, and as men grow up, if they can preserve the inner, childlike intent, they will accomplish that initiation or perfection which makes them of the kingdom of heaven, "little ones," in the technical language of the Mysteries.

We are not to forget the evolution of the physical while we take this view of the spiritual life of man, but the mysteries are not to be understood without taking into account the triple evolution of body, soul and mind. The utmost confusion exists among modern writers on these questions, and the student will favor the views of those who are consistent with each other and with the ancient standards. Of course those who have no regard whatever for consistency are at liberty to believe anything that please until their experience teaches them better. The second question of my correspondent was "What did I believe Jesus meant by His sayings about His second coming to judge the world, and

"that hereafter ye shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with power and great glory." My correspondent does not quote completely, nor quite correctly. The passage must be taken as a whole, and if there is any value in the text at all it applies, not to something which is to take place hereafter, but to something which has already taken place. Read the passage, Matthew xxiv, 29-35. The 34th verse says: "Verily, I say unto you, this generation shall not pass, till all these things be fulfilled." That generation has passed, and doubtless the things were fulfilled, so we need not worry about them unless they apply to our generation also, and it is quite possible that they may. Let us read what is said: "Immediately after the tribulation of those days shall the sun be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light, and the stars shall fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens shall be shaken; and then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to another. Now learn a parable of the fig-tree: When his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is nigh. So likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the doors." In Matthew xxv, 64, it is recorded that Jesus said to the High Priest: "Hereafter shall ye see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven." Mark gives a form of the passage, still not quite what my correspondent quotes: xiii, 26, "Then shall they see the Son of Man coming in the clouds with great power and glory," but Mark adds also that this was to occur before that generation had passed away (verse 30). And also very notably in verse 31: "And then if any man shall say to you, Lo, here is Christ; or, lo, he is there, believe him not." The whole passage in Matthew is a mosaic made up of quotations from Daniel xii, 1; Isaiah xlii, 10; xxxv, 4; Zechariah, xii, 13; Daniel vii, 13; Isaiah xxxvii, 18; Zechariah ii, 6; Deuteronomy xxx, 4; xxviii, 64. In the same chapter in which this passage occurs there are quotations from the Book of Enoch, a scripture which is frequently drawn upon in these discourses. This clue will perhaps not be of great authority to the ordinary reader, but the student is aware that when the Book of Enoch is quoted he is dealing with a mystical scripture which is mainly to be interpreted of every man's own experience in his own heart and soul, and not of outer physical phenomena. We know that the stars do not fall from heaven, and we also know the difference between stars and meteorites. And we know that meteorites fall on the earth because the earth attracts them, but that the earth is much more likely to fall into one of the stars or into the sun itself than we are to see the stars falling from heaven. The stars must mean something else than either meteorites or the huge suns which we call stars. There is a slight clue in Revelation xii, 16, which few are likely to accept. Taken with Daniel xii, 3, it ought to be sufficiently clear. The physical catastrophe which is described in the Book of Enoch is the inversion or displacement of the poles of the earth, which occurs at intervals of many thousands of years. Of the times and seasons knoweth no man, but one can judge from the signs of the times, and from the fig-tree, that occult symbol, whose blossom is borne inwardly.

I shall make two quotations from the third volume of Madam Blavatsky's book, "The Secret Doctrine." Speaking of the development of consciousness in the inner body she says: "The greatest enemy of spiritual memory being man's physical brain, the organ of his sensuous nature. . . . When an Adept reaches, during his lifetime, that state of holiness and purity that makes him 'equal to the Angels,' then at death his apparitional or astral body becomes as solid and tangible as was the late body, and is transformed into the real man, (66, 61)." And, secondly: "Every student of occultism knows that the heavenly bodies are closely related during each Manvantara with the mankind of that special cycle; and there are some who believe that each great character born during that period has—as every other mortal has, only in a far stronger degree—his destiny outlined within his proper constellation or star, traced as a self-prophecy, an anticipated autobiography, by the indwelling Spirit of that particular star. The human Monad in its first beginning is that Spirit, or the Soul of that star (Planet) itself. As our Sun radiates its light and beams on every body in space within the boundaries of its system, so the Regent of every Planet-star, the Parent-Monad, shoots out from itself the Monad of every 'pilgrim' Soul born under its house within its own group. The Regents are eoterically seven, whether in the Sephiroth, the 'Angels of the Presence,' the Rishis, or the 'Amshaspendas.'"

The pleasant weather and the fact that the Cooksville road was in fair condition for the first time this season brought the riders out in numbers last Sunday. Both the Wanderers and the T.M.C. held impromptu runs and many old and many new faces were seen on this popular roadway. The cry of "Hello, Bill!" and "Hello, Fred!" was frequent, and many of the boys were proudly displaying new mounts of the latest model, fitted with all the newest accessories. Several new English models were noticed, both of the single and twin type, and many side cars were in evidence.

Toronto Motorcycle Club (Inc.) Keeping on the Hustle.
 Although the T.M.C. committee did not call the run until Saturday evening, 69 of the boys turned out. After leaving the club rooms (where all were photographed), they went to Cooksville. J. W. Cunningham, chairman of the C.M.A. competition committee, was a welcome participant and enjoyed the ride in W. Stoner's Matchless side-car. He also remarked that he had never seen so many riders together at one time and that it was no wonder the T.M.C. was piling up their membership, when for $2 a year they could have the privilege of such good fellowship as is exhibited by the T.M.C. boys, and that all riders should be proud to belong to such a club.

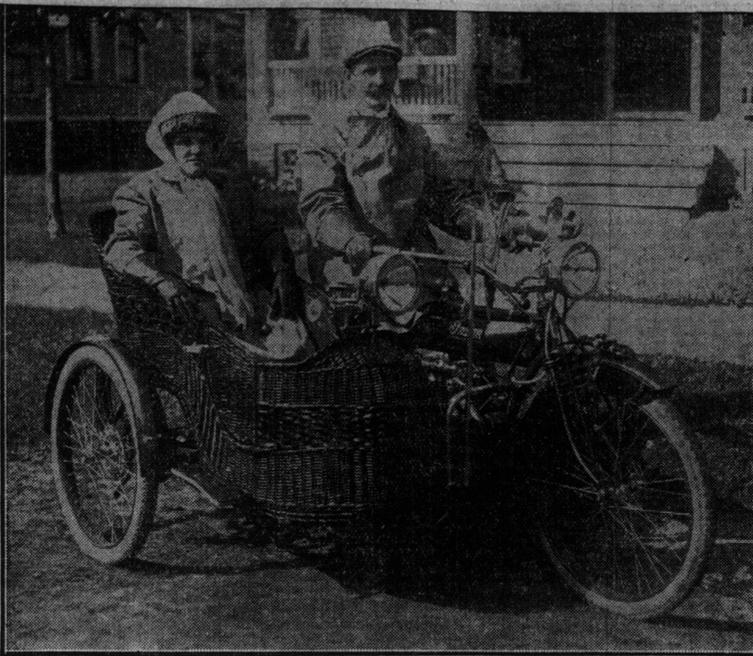

Off For Whitby.
 At 10 a. m. this morning, the weather permitting, the boys will meet at the club rooms and will proceed to Whitby, where dinner has been arranged for. So far, thirteen of the members with their automobiles, and about 10% of the riders, have signified their intentions of taking part, and as all those in autos and some with side-cars are taking their wives, this should be one of the most enjoyable outings of the summer.

Theatre Party.
 The theatre party and banquet on Friday night was a grand success. So many of the boys turned out that the committee could not get enough extra tickets for the theatre, and some could only attend the banquet, which was done justice to by all. The toast of the King was joined in heartily by everyone, and "Our Club," which was proposed by Alex. McLean, was well responded to by Rev. J. D. Morrow. "Our Country," proposed by A. E. Humphry, was ably taken care of by R. B. Whyte, who is studying for the ministry, and was so interesting that the boys could have listened for another hour if the time would have permitted. J. B. Hays replied to "Our Visitors," and Fred A. O. Johnston, the president, to that of "The Officers."

Wednesday, April 23, is the club's next regular meeting, and so far they have thirty-two new candidates, and it is expected that there will be a few more than this. The meeting will open at 8.30 and all officers are requested to be sharp on time. The Club's phone is College 6295. Four Hundred and Twenty Miles On a Gallon.

News comes to hand from New Zealand of the invention of Mr. E. R. Godward of a new system of carburation, which is claimed to possess many advantages. The carburetor is stated to be free from liability of flooding, to be without jets and to require no adjusting, whilst it gives perfect control at all rates of speed, with an increase in flexibility over that of conventional design. It is claimed to be equally serviceable whether gasoline, paraffin or benzole is used, but perhaps the most remarkable thing about it is its economy of fuel. The carburetor has been fitted to a Torpedo machine with a 2 1/2 h. p. Precision engine, and in a series of track tests, which were made with full touring equipment, and a 13-stone rider, the machine, weighing 170 pounds, a 10 miles test run showed a consumption of only 4 1/2 oz. of gasoline. This consumption works out at the rate of 855 miles per gallon. The speed was not great—22 1/2 miles per hour—this being due to the small size of the track upon which the test was made. Next the machine was tried running on paraffin. To make this test 10 oz. of fuel were poured into the empty tank, and the machine was driven five miles at an average speed of 22.6 m. p. h. The tank was then drained off and 8 oz. removed, the consumption for five miles thus working out at 2 oz., or at the rate of 400 m. p. g. We are further informed that, in the course of a series of privately-made tests over various distances, gradients, and under all conditions and rates of speed, Mr. Godward has covered 10 1/2 miles at 25.2 m. p. h. on 6 oz. of gasoline in the face of a strong wind, whilst upon another occasion, when the air was calm and the machine running at the rate of 19 m. p. h., 10 miles were traversed on 4 oz. of benzole, this working out at an equivalent of 430 miles to the gallon. There would appear to be little doubt as to the genuineness of these recorded performances, and we hope to be able to give further particulars concerning this very interesting development.

A New Fuel.

Another new fuel for internal combustion engines has come to light in England called del monte spirit. Tests as to its value have been carried on at Brooklands, and the results were in favor of the new fuel over gasoline. While not as superior as benzole this fuel is more adaptable on account of the ease with which it can be manufactured. Del monte spirit is a by-product of canal coal and at present its market value is about $1.25 per ton.

Another Tip.
 After fixing that mysterious puncture, and you wonder what could have done it, just feel around inside of the casing and maybe you will find the cause of it—generally it is a thin silver of metal, or a pin.

NEW HUDSON "SIX"

Know the Dealer

These are the things you should know before placing your order for any car. On them rests your motoring satisfaction. If you do not do business with the dealer who possesses these qualifications, then you are likely to be disappointed in the car.

Do not do business with an unprosperous dealer nor one whose business suffers through lack of capital. You will find such a dealer, in a commercial sense, conducts his business from hand to mouth. He is usually the dealer who will sell a car at a discount and whatever profit he makes on the sale must go to the payment of his selling cost and overhead. He will have little or none to furnish you with service on the car.

You know the truth of this fact when you consider that it is the same in all lines of business.

Purchase your car of a prosperous automobile dealer, which insures that you get good service, and good service with a poor car is a better buy than poor service with the best automobile made.

Service a Most Important Item

If you would know the value of dealers' service in the operation of an automobile, you have but to consult men who have owned several different makes of cars and, if you will talk with any HUDSON owner, you will appreciate the value of the type of service we furnish to the owner of an automobile.

All business is done solely on confidence.

Confidence of one man in another. If you cannot have confidence in a dealer who sells the car you have selected, then yours is an unsafe purchase.

There is scarcely any limit to which we will not go to insure HUDSON owners the fullest satisfaction from their cars. We are more interested in you and your motoring interests after we have sold you the car than before you have bought. Yet we realize that this is contrary to the attitude of the average automobile concern.

This service that we give you is but keeping faith with the Hudson Motor Car Company. There is a clause in our contract with the factory, which insures every purchaser of the highest standard of motor car service to be had, and this we cheerfully and rigidly adhere to in our deals with owners.

The Secret of Our Success

Any concern's success grows with the increasing popularity of the goods it sells. The New HUDSON "Six" rose to a higher point as a sales success than any 6-cylinder car has ever seen in the same length of time it has been on the market.

The "54" HUDSON'S smooth, sweet running mechanism gives a sensation of flying that is lacking in the greatest of Four-cylinder cars. You can throttle it down to 3 miles an hour on high speed and pick up to 60 miles an hour with smoothness and ease that will be a revelation to you.

Avoid Disappointment in Getting Delivery

Ninety per cent of leading dealers' orders are for spring delivery—hence, within a few days, it will be impossible to secure a delivery date for any one of the three leading cars. You know the names of these three cars if you are familiar with the automobile market and you know that one of them is the HUDSON.

Hence, we cannot impress too strongly upon prospective purchasers the necessity of securing a fixed delivery date for their cars.

The "54" HUDSON, fully equipped, with speedometer, clock, top, curtains, demountable rims and five-passenger Phaeton body is $3200.

At $2425 you can obtain the HUDSON "37."

It too, was designed by the same engineers that built the "54." Experts point to it as being the "Four-cylinder masterpiece."

You Can Make This Saving

IN THE United States over 400,000 cars have been equipped with No-Rim-Cut Tires. Over two million tires were bought by men who watch tire-mileage closely. In Canada, in scarcely more than two years, we have sold 90,000 tires, enough to equip over 20,000 cars. The output of our Canadian factory has jumped from 25 tires to 500 tires per day.

All but two of the Canadian automobile makers have contracted for No-Rim-Cut Tires for their 1913 cars. In a new market, could we have made this record if No-Rim-Cut Tires were not giving increased mileage?

WHAT SELLS THESE TIRES?

There are two main causes of short life in ordinary tires. Rim-cutting and Overloading. No-Rim-Cut Tires cannot rim-cut. No-Rim-Cut Tires are 10% oversize. These two features cut the cost of tire mileage. These money-saving features are responsible for our record sales in Canada and the United States.

No-Rim-Cutting

Before we made No-Rim-Cut Tires nearly one tire in four was wrecked through rim-cutting. The tremendous pressure on the fabric of the tire, where it was held by the hook-shaped side ring of the rim, brought about a constant friction that soon ruined the tire. 25% of ordinary tires are still wrecked by rim-cutting. No-Rim-Cut Tires save this waste.

10% Oversize Saves 25%

The car manufacturer provides tire equipment for ordinary loads. But men will overload their cars. They will add heavy equipment that is not provided for by the manufacturer. No-Rim-Cut Tires are fully 10% over the rated size. Experts will tell you that each 5% increase in size adds 15% extra mileage. When we place the added mileage at 25%, we feel that we are estimating conservatively what the average car owner may expect from No-Rim-Cut Tires.

The Passing of "Rule of Thumb"

When rubber is such a variable product, how can we keep No-Rim-Cut Tires uniform in quality?

This is how:
 At our Bowmanville plant we maintain a staff of chemists—graduates from leading universities. These men analyse in a completely equipped laboratory every shipment of raw rubber that enters the plant, every roll of duck used in Goodyear products.

They refine a sample of the rubber in miniature machines. The "cure" it in a miniature furnace. The product of this test is the same as our factory would produce from the same raw rubber.

The sample is then tested for strength, toughness and elasticity. It is chemically analysed to see what must be combined with it to give the greatest tire wear.

Every roll of duck used for building tires also goes through a laboratory test.

Duck that looks alright and feels alright is often rejected because it does not measure up to specifications which we know to be the best for making tires.

This preliminary testing, careful inspection at every stage of manufacture and mechanical test of the finished tires, convert varying materials into a product of No-Rim-Cut Tires which give every purchaser increased tire mileage.

MOTORING

FLEXIBILITY AN IMPORTANT FEATURE

Knight Engineer Tells Why.

Mr. W. O. Thomas, technical expert on Silent Knight engines, and consulting engineer for firms manufacturing these power plants, has been making one of his regular visits at the Russell factory for the past fortnight.

He is never more at home than when he is sitting at the wheel of a big "Russell" as it ploughs thru the corduroy near the plant. It speaks well for Mr. Thomas that he is continuously testing cars in all parts of the world and is never brought into the hands of the law.

The World ventured the opinion that he was lucky. "Lucky," said Mr. Thomas, "why, I've no desire to break speed laws. It may show something to some people but it really doesn't mean anything to break down speed limits."

"Many firms base their claim of superiority on the fact that they won a certain race or can exceed the speed limit." This is often misleading, according to this Knight engineer, who has driven cars on three continents. "For," he said, "as matters stand at present racing is purely a question of tires and of luck." Under the plan that he suggested to The World it would be a matter of perfection of design. "My idea," said Mr. Thomas, "would be to have the cars run as slowly, then as rapidly as possible. This would show the all-round worth of the two cars and would form a basis of comparing fuel consumption."

Two to Sixty M. P. H. On High.

"Thus, if a car like the Belgium Knight, which is able to go from two to sixty miles an hour under full load, were to be entered it would be credited with a score of 30.

As cars go today this would be a very high score, inasmuch as but few cars can throttle down as low as two miles an hour. The average racing car can get nowhere near that figure.

"I once had an amusing encounter with Chief Engineer Pomeroy of the Vauxhall, whom I overheard saying, that the motors he used in his racer were the same he used in his Hummer. I offered to bet him that he could not throttle his motor down to approximately the same, their adjustment was entirely different. This might not signify anything in actual racing should be for in open competition to demonstrate to the public which car is going to give the best service, year-in, year-out, from every angle.

"Sooner or later we will come to this. Europe has already begun to count fuel consumption almost as much as speed. The limitation of the piston displacement of the next 500-mile race is only the first step in that same direction. In a few years we will see a transformation of standards in racing. Then those cars with a decidedly low fuel consumption will have more of a show in these contests."

Dirty Contact Points.

With a magneto most of the trouble of missing is caused by the same fault—dirty points of contact. The cure is the same as the battery machine case. A good thing to remember is that the contact points and the spark plug points should both get the same distance.

AIR CAPACITY IN TIRES.

The Dunlop Company were rather surprised the other day to find a single motorist who, out of the some 20,000 motorists in Canada, didn't know that Dunlops make the largest tires in Canada, and have always done so.

This motorist had been rather confused by certain advertising which calls the regular straight side type of tire by "coined" names, and compares it with the regular clincher tire without explaining to lay minds that all tire manufacturers make straight side as well as clincher tires, and that in every case the straight side tires of one company are larger than the clincher tires of the same company.

Of course the sizes of straight side tires vary amongst the different makers; but ever since this type of tire was introduced into Canada by Dunlops, Dunlop tires have always been largest, due to the fact that Dunlop straight side tires have less "toe" than other makes. This means that Dunlops give you more cubic inches for air, and therefore are larger than so-called "oversize" tires, or any other kind of tires.

Dunlops do not call their tires "oversize" because making the largest tires is the regular policy of the Dunlop Company, and has been ever since they introduced the tire-making industry into Canada.

THE PICTURE ON MEMORY'S WALL.

Nothing in the realm of tire advertising has made such a hit as that picture of two redskins pointing at a new trail.

From all over Canada have come tributes to its cleverness and artistic worth.

Dealers are sending in letters for extra copies. Men of the trade in every province are asking for one—"for my den." The motoring editor of a western newspaper composed a plot on the picture and gave the dumb characters real names. This editor incidentally notes that his picture was "cabbaged" by somebody.

The creation of the picture bears similar stories on all sides. "It's been stealing," says one dealer.

However, the tire company who own the "Trail" have a few more copies left. If, Mr. Dealer, somebody disappeared with yours, it may be possible for you to secure another copy.

THE SIX CYLINDER ERA

How and Why it Has Arrived.

The six-cylinder era in the motor car world has come.

Mr. A. M. Thompson, the Hudson dealer, crystallized the leap of the six-cylinder cars to a dominant position in the industry when he made public the news that in 1914 there will not be forty automobile manufacturers of moderate price cars who do not build a six-cylinder motor car.

The leap of the Six is interesting. The American and Canadian motorist's first memory of automobiles was the single cylinder car. When the two-cylinder car came there was great deprecation on single cylinder cars, and soon the four-cylinder came into vogue, and people would no longer have cars of two cylinders.

Gradually the four began to work itself into favor. The new advance information as to 1914 models gives the six-cylinder car the spot light at the centre of the automobile stage. Coincident with this news comes the information that six-cylinder motor car manufacturing records have been shattered and that the institution which today holds the record, and which has the largest six-cylinder output in the history of the world's automobile industry, is the Hudson Motor Car Company.

well as six-cylinder cars, because the Hudson Motor Car Company makes both—and there is no time between the power impulses, so that the sense of jerkiness is entirely absent from the high-class six-cylinder automobile.

Six Easy on Tires.

"The experts for instance will locate on a tire the points at which it touches the ground when the explosion comes in the cylinders. They will mark these points with ink, and almost invariably the first tire trouble that a man has with a car will come, with any other type than the Six, where, those ink marks appear. With a Six the smoothness of operation makes the car economical on tires.

"Another very important point is that with the new Hudson Six Phaeton you can slow down to three miles on high gear in dense city traffic, and without shifting gears pick up speed rapidly. From a standing start with a Hudson Six Phaeton you can achieve a speed of fifty-eight miles an hour in thirty seconds.

"Any man paying $2000 or over for a car is entitled to a six-cylinder automobile.

"One thing that every motorist should consider is the fact that with most companies next season coming to the Six, it is positively certain that cars of other types will suffer severe depreciation in motorist's hands, and inasmuch as depreciation is the biggest point a man must take into consideration in buying an automobile, it is vital to know these things about the six-cylinder era."

One of the largest advertisements ever published in a single issue of an English motor paper appears in a recent number of Motor, the most reputable automobile publication in Europe. It overwrites the Hupmobile and was inserted by Whiting Co., Ltd., the Hupmobile agent for England. The advertisement, printed in colors throughout, occupies twenty full pages and gives a graphic detailed description of the entire Hupmobile line.

Conservative advertising methods have long been established in Europe, especially in England, and very seldom does an advertiser there use more than two pages at a time. As a consequence the appearance of the recent Hupmobile advertisement created a great deal of comment in advertising sections of London and many sales experts questioned the advisability of such a large space.

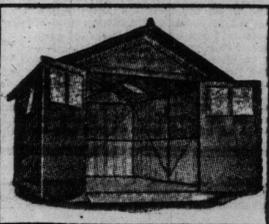

Writing to the Hup Motor Car Co. at Detroit a good assortment of the remarkable popularity of Hupmobiles in the British Isles has necessitated our taking large space in The Motor Magazine. This publication enjoys a very wide circulation throughout England and it in fact claims to have the largest number of subscribers of any motor car publication in the world. We have repeatedly had requests from many motor car prospects throughout the empire concerning Hupmobiles and so we decided to make a very broad statement on the relative merits of the Hupmobile, its principles of design, construction, etc.

"Our results were surprising. We have interested many persons whom we had no idea were in the market for a machine, and we look forward to increased business for the coming season."

MOTOR BOATING

HINTS TO ONTARIO MOTORISTS ON TOURING IN UNITED STATES

Ontario Motor League Will Give Information Required—Customs and Licensing Regulations Discussed.

Automobile touring has started. The lure of fine weather and roads well dried out has set scores of Toronto motorists to studying road maps, guide books, and customs regulations. The office of the Ontario Motor League is being deluged with requests for information regarding the formalities of getting a car across the border and securing licenses to travel thru the States. New York State, with its many miles of improved highways, is the mecca of the Ontario motorist, and quite a few during the past week have gone across the border.

Securing Licenses. Rather confusing to the novice are regulations which must be complied with in crossing into the United States. However, the Motor League gives advice to its members, which, if followed, will result in the motorist getting over the line with the minimum of difficulty. From the league office a form of application for a New York State license may be secured, thus saving three or four days in the preliminary preparations for the trip. This form, when properly filled out and mailed to the office of the secretary of state in Buffalo, along with the required registration fee, which varies from $5 to $25, according to horse-power rating, will bring to the address of the motorist the requisite license and the number-plate to be attached to the car. The number-plates come thru the customs, but as they have no value as merchandise, are duty free, so express charges only have to be paid.

Passing the Customs. If the tour is for a period of seven days or less, the necessary arrangements can all be made at the border customs port; but if the car is to remain longer than a week in the States, other formalities must be observed. In crossing into the United States with any car other than one of United States manufacture, it is necessary to furnish a bond for 90 per cent. of the value of the car, which is double the estimated customs duties. This bond must be given by a company recognized in the United States, such as the United States Guarantee and Fidelity Company. The cost of the bond is $5. In addition to the bond, it is necessary to have a consular invoice. This invoice is prepared at the office of the United States consul in Toronto in triplicate, and the owner of the car is required to make an affidavit before the United States consul to the effect that he is taking the car into the States for touring purposes only. A fee of $2.50 is charged for this service. Having secured the license numbers, the bond, and the consular invoice, the motorist will have no difficulty in getting across the border. He must still, however, take the precaution of securing a tourist's permit, or clearance certificate, from the Canadian customs officer at the port of exportation. This is necessary to avoid trouble in returning to Canada with the car. Where the car being taken into the States is one of United States manufacture, there is no need of a bond or consular invoice; the clearance certificate, however, is doubly necessary. In some instances where the owners have neglected to have this certificate made out, they have been required to pay full duty (35 per cent.) on bringing the car back into Canada. Entering New York State. Toronto motorists enter New York State at three points—Lewiston, Niagara Falls, and Buffalo; from the corresponding Canadian points—Queenston, Niagara Falls, and Fort Erie.

At the height of the touring season the best point to make an entrance is at the bridge at Lewiston, as here there is not so likely to be a congestion of cars waiting to pass customs as at Niagara Falls and Fort Erie. The New York license is now recognized, at least for a limited period, in most of the other states. The Canadian motorist having a New York State license on his car, not being a resident of New York State, is, strictly speaking, under obligation to take out a license in every state he visits, as Ontario does not recognize the license of any of the states. But in practice, the car with the New York State license is not interfered with by the officers of other states. Auto Road Guide.

In the course of a week or two, the 1913 edition of the automobile road guide of Canada will come from the press. This book is published under the auspices of the Ontario Motor League, and gives, in addition to running directions over 10,000 miles of road of Canada, a summary of motor vehicle laws in Canada and the United States, and of the customs regulations. The book is one which should be in the hands of all Ontario motorists who are interested in touring.

PETERBORO AUTO CLUB Organization to Be Enlarged and Made an Active Body.

PETERBORO, April 19.—The Peterboro Automobile Club has been reorganized and rejuvenated. The club is putting on a membership campaign, and expects to have at least 100 members this year. At the annual general meeting, which was a very enthusiastic one, the following officers were elected: Honorary President, Dr. Halliday; President, R. W. Travers; Vice-President, A. E. Coulthard; Secretary, C. K. Rackman; chairman of good roads committee, Dr. Sutton; chairman of entertainment committee, W. H. Denham. Messrs. E. W. Travers and A. H. Stratton were elected to represent the club on the executive of Ontario Motor League. The Peterboro Club is holding a dinner on the evening of Thursday, April 24, which will be attended by the secretary of the Ontario Motor League and one or two other officers.

Traction Treads

Dunlop traction treads are first in the land—first in quality—first in anti-skidding—first in endurance. Being first to make the All Red Route Transcontinental tour proves them to be first in everything else.

Never in the whole history of auto-mobiling were tires put to such a test as Dunlop Traction Tread received between August 27, 1912, and October 14, of the same year.

Think of driving an automobile over railroad tracks in the dead of night where the tires were the only factors giving the car a grip on the rail. On one side of the car was an incline of 500 feet. If the tires skidded, or gave out, the chances are the whole party would, in the twinkling of an eye, go crashing headlong to their doom.

Think of driving a car in British Columbia where the wheels were embedded in gumbo a foot and a half deep. Think of a car making headway in Northern Ontario over log roads compared to which the much-negated rugged corduroy road is a king. Can any tire user think of these things—knowing that he can get first-hand proof of their actually happening—without feeling that Dunlop Traction Tread tires have surely proved their right to his consideration? Dunlop Traction Tread tires fit every rim, are the largest tires made in Canada, and never did rim-out.

Ty Cobb will be allowed to remain idle, according to the report that is going the rounds of American League circles. He will not be permitted to hold up Employer Navin for $15,000. Navin has kept a still tongue in his head for many weeks and still has nothing to say. Cobb can have $10,000 for the season, it is said, which is twice as much money as the average player receives. The Georgia Peach says he ought to be traded, but there isn't a club in the Johnson circuit that will meet his salary demands.

The Havers car is being received very favorably in foreign markets, shipments leaving the factory today for Johannesburg, South Africa, and for Buenos Ayres. Agencies have already been established with the Commonwealth Co-operative Motor Co., Sydney, Australia, and with the Australian-American Automobile Co., Brisbane, Australia. Negotiations are also on for a very strong connection in England, which together with pending deals in France, Germany, and Russia, will give the Havers line a good outlet for export.

TORONTO MOTOR BOAT CLUB

Popular Organization Shows Rapid Growth.

Monday night is "members' night" at the Toronto Motor Boat Club. Each week until the regular club schedule goes into effect the genial members of this club will meet, and over the festive board discuss the doings of the past season and make plans for the coming season. At these gatherings the new boats, which will be put overboard just as soon as the season opens up, take on speeds which make the wise ones take notice, and some of the old boats which are being overhauled are credited with being able to show the new ones something.

On these occasions it is hard to keep away the old "salts," and when Vice-commodore Henry Simpson lights up a big cigar (Henry likes big ones), and settles down to tell one of his many witty stories everyone is at attention. Then again Ruthven McDonald always has a story or two on tap to keep the mirth going round. The motor boat boys have a number of other versatile entertainers on their roster, and it is not to be wondered that their club is fast growing into one of the most popular on the water front. In fact, there are those of the members who look forward to it being the largest aquatic organization in the city by the time the new club house is built.

The list of officers for 1913 shows that the club's affairs are in capable hands and a successful season is assured. Those elected are as follows:

commodore, Cecil R. Jenkins; vice-commodore, Henry Simpson; rear-commodore, Ernest Jackson; fleet captain, Capt. J. P. Beatty; hon. secretary, C. R. Allison; hon. treasurer, T. W. Ross; executive committee, W. C. Freeman, W. G. Trethewey; house committee, Geo. J. Beattie, Sam. Harris; publicity committee, Percy E. Thring, Geo. E. Fisher, E. S. T. Gerov.

A Cadillac Record

First Sale in Dayton After Flood.

One of the first, if not the first, commercial transactions, and in any event the first sale of a motor car, concluded in Dayton, Ohio, after the waters of the recent flood had subsided was the sale of a Cadillac by H. M. McCord, the local dealer. The car had been entirely submerged for thirty hours. Aside from a deposit of mud it was found to be none the worse for its bath. An examination showed that owing to the accurate fit of the piston and piston rings not a drop of water had worked its way into the cylinders.

THE STAGE

Sothorn-Marlowe In Fine Repertoire

"Much Ado About Nothing" to Be Revived on Extravagant Scale.

Monday night E. H. Sothorn and Julia Marlowe, will begin at the Royal Alexandra Theatre a week's engagement in their Shakespearian repertoire, with the arrangement of plays as follows: Monday, "Taming of the Shrew"; Tuesday, "Romeo and Juliet"; Wednesday, "Much Ado About Nothing"; Thursday, "Twelfth Night"; Friday, "The Merchant of Venice"; Saturday matinee, "As You Like It"; Saturday night, "Hamlet."

To say that Mr. Sothorn and Miss Marlowe draw crowded houses wherever they appear, is to repeat a well-known fact. That they can be drawn with Shakespere is something that only a few years ago would have been considered a miracle. And yet these three hundred year old dramas of Shakespere pack the theatre wherever they are presented by Mr. Sothorn and Miss Marlowe. Aside from the excellent art of the two players, their personalities have undoubtedly been a potent factor in the situation. "Much Ado About Nothing," which Mr. Sothorn and Miss Marlowe have revived this season, may be considered in the light of a novelty, as the two stars have not presented it since the first season of their artistic alliance, seven years ago. They have reproduced this most engaging comedy in handsomely attractive fashion, and at an expense of $25,000, a generous outlay. The scenic investiture constitutes a series of exceptionally beautiful pictures, one of the most notable showing the interior of a church in which the telling fourth act is played. The comedy offers unusually fine opportunities to Mr. Sothorn and Miss Marlowe of which they avail themselves to the utmost. The beauties of the latter is well known as a thoroughly poised and scintillating impersonation, while Mr. Sothorn's Benedict is a brilliant achievement in high comedy. Of the other plays in the repertoire it is unnecessary to speak.

The excellent supporting organization includes, among others, Frederick Lewis, J. Sayre Crawley, William Harris, Sidney Mather, Walter Connolly, Malcolm Bradley, Lenore Chipendale, Helen Singer, Millicent McLaughlin and Ina Goldsmith. The curtain during the engagement will rise promptly at eight o'clock evenings, and at two o'clock at the Saturday matinee.

Victor Morley in "The Quaker Girl"

Beautiful Operetta to Be the Attraction at Princess Theatre This Week.

"The Quaker Girl," the widely heralded musical hit of three continents, will make its initial appearance at the Princess Theatre tomorrow night, coming here after a year's run at the Park Theatre, New York. "The Quaker Girl" is the most successful of all English plays, and previous to its Broadway success, had been reigning for two years in London, and, in addition, bore the endorsement of Paris, where it was produced with great success. The entertainment is in three acts, and is presented by the New York organization of 100 singers, with Victor Morley in the principal role. The score, which is one of the most tuneful ever imported to this side, is by Lionel Monckton, while James T. Tanner provided the dainty little story of the book, and Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank are responsible for the lyrics. The opening act finds Prudence, the Quaker girl, in her quaint home town, chafing under the stern restraint of her faith, and hence in quite the mood to meet Tony Chute, a gay young attaché of the American embassy in Paris. In the meantime, Captain Characterie, who is in love with the Princess Mathilde, an exiled Bonaparte princess, comes to life secluded Quaker village, where the princess is in hiding, and invites Tony and Prudence to join them in a glass of wine. The Quaker girl's stern parents, on hearing of this terrible crime, banish her, and she leaves for Paris with Madam Blum, a modiste, and as one of the shopgirls at Madam Blum's fashionable establishment. Here Diane, an actress, who is also in love with Tony, endeavors to break off the affair between the Quaker miss and Tony by placing a love letter to herself from Tony in the pocket of a gown which Prudence is compelled to don in her character of shopgirl. Diane, unfortunately for the success of the scheme, puts the wrong letter in the gown, and, instead of separating Tony and Prudence, it unites them still more. The final act shows a ball-room scene in the Fre Catalan, outside of Paris, and is a marvel of scenic embellishment. Here it is that Tony and Prudence are finally united and plight their troth.

Eugenie Blair in A Popular Drama

Famous Emotional Actress Coming to the Grand Theatre This Week.

That gripping drama which has had a most successful run both here and on the other side of the Atlantic, "Madame X," will be the attraction this week at the Grand Opera House, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Theatregoers will have an opportunity of seeing that well-known actress, Eugenie Blair, in the title role, and the critics have been unanimous in their encomiums of her performance. It is doubtful if there is a patron of the theatre in this city who has not seen Miss Blair in some one of her former successes, the most notable of which were "Zaza" and "The Kreutzer Sonata." The play is from the pen of that celebrated French dramatist, Alexandre Bisson, and enjoyed a run of one year at the New Amsterdam Theatre, in New York; six months or more at the Chicago Opera House; and several months in Boston and Philadelphia. It also has the distinction of having been played simultaneously in London, Paris, Berlin, Australia, and South Africa.

SOOTHERN AND MARLOWE, IN "ROMEO AND JULIET," AT THE ROYAL ALEXANDRA THIS WEEK.

It is a play of intense human interest, containing a great moral. That the way of the transgressor is hard is amply exemplified in its unfolding; yet, at the same time, one does not realize they are being sermonized.

The production is identical with that seen here at high prices, and the company has been carefully selected. A well-balanced performance may be looked for.

"The Love Rose" at Gayety Theatre

Charlie Howard With the Columbia Burlesquers Here This Week.

Well aware of the fact that patrons of burlesque theatres are out for a few hours of solid laughter, John G. Jermon, that eminent producer of extravaganzas, has hit the nail on the head when building this season's attraction of the Columbia Burlesquers, which will be seen at the Gayety this week. Perhaps it has been a very wise move on the part of the management to secure such a favorite as Charlie Howard for the principal male comedy role. Those who have had an opportunity to get acquainted with the grotesque humor and eccentricities of this popular funmaker are all aware of the fact that Howard alone is capable of keeping an audience in convulsions of laughter for many hours. It is really hard to say how many star entertainers are gracing the cast of the Columbia, each individual being a headliner in their respective work. Of no less importance is the chorus, which, like all the Jermon shows, is always a predominant feature; and in keeping with the entire stupendousness of the offering, is the elaborateness of the stage settings and the glittering and brilliancy of the many novel and surprising electrical devices. Many risqué situations are presented in the two-act musical pot-pourri; but at no time do they border on profanity. In fact, "The Love Rose," the name given to the comedietta,

Bessie Clayton in A Series of Dances

One of the Best Known Dancers as Headliner at Shea's Theatre This Week.

Bessie Clayton, one of the best-known dancers, appears as the headline feature at Shea's Theatre next week. Miss Clayton is well remembered as the feature of the Weber & Field's all-star company and has recently returned from a European tour of great success. She is appearing in a series of dances of her own creation and is assisted by a company of European dancers. The Vienna Abend Blatt of recent date said: "The American dancer, Miss Bessie Clayton, made her first appearance in the New Review and scored an individual success. She is marvelous. Her grace and art are perfection."

The special-extra attraction on the week's bill is William A. Weston & Co., in "Attorneys." Mr. Weston, with Franklyn Mae, assisted by Max L. Roen, Ninon Mantha, China Barsin and George Zaiser, has a musical novelty. The scene is laid in the library of a prosperous lawyer's home. Surprise arises from the concealed musical instruments that form a hidden part of every article of furniture in the room. A vein of comedy is introduced.

An important feature of the week's bill is again Thomas A. Edison's great invention, talking-moving pictures, showing two subjects.

An offering that is always welcomed is Zeno, Jordan & Zeno, in "The Wizard of the Air." These acrobats perform with the greatest skill and daring and introduce the only woman who does a complete double somersault. Julia Nash and her company will be seen for the first time in the comedy sketch by Zeilah Covington, "Her First Case." Miss Nash is supported by Marster P. Leslie and Henry Chesterfield.

Adler and Arline are newcomers and offer "A New Idea." Nick Hufford and Dell Chain, in "The Cullud Farsou," and "The Minstrel Man," have a comedy skit that is full of laughs. Will Roehm's "Athletic Girls" appears here for the first time and there is much interest already evidenced in this offering by the physical culture students of this city.

Tyrone Power as Brutus in Caesar

Great Shakespearian Actor Will Appear at Princess, Supported by Company of Stars.

Mr. Tyrone Power, who, since his recent appearance with Mr. Faversham in the role of Brutus in "Julius Caesar," is hailed as the greatest player of Shakespearian characters at present on the English-speaking stage, will appear at the Princess Theatre for the entire week, beginning Monday, April 28, supported by a large company, all of whom have been identified with only the foremost stars and most pretentious offerings of recent years.

It has been a matter of frequent speculation among patrons and supporters of the higher class of dramatic presentations as to why more time and effort was not devoted to Shakespearian productions, appealing, as such offerings logically should, to the valuable support of the schools and, in fact, all institutions of learning, where all that is most beautiful and expressive in the English language is regarded as a most important part of the curriculum. It would seem that this field has unaccountably—but it is to be hoped—only temporarily forsaken for what seems evidently the fast declining vogue of musical comedy and melodrama, and that the really masterful interpreters of Shakespearian characters, are limited to a list of two or three. Who is the logical successor of Richard Mansfield? is a question discussed frequently since the death of that great artist. To judge by the criticisms of the New York press of Mr. Power's acting in the role of Brutus in "Julius Caesar," Tyrone Power seems to have the strongest claim to that distinguished honor. To quote Mr. William Winter, who is regarded as America's most eminent critic: "Tyrone Power's impersonation of Brutus in 'Julius Caesar' is a triumphant success. He will become the rightful and acknowledged leader of the American stage." Acton Davies, of The New York Sun, says: "Undoubtedly he is one of the greatest actors of the stage today."

MISS NATALIE ALT, AS PRUDENCE, IN "THE QUAKER GIRL," AT THE PRINCESS THEATRE THIS WEEK.

Uproarious Comedy Coming Next Week

"Seven Days" the Success of the Season at the Grand Opera House.

"Seven Days," the brilliant comedy by Mary Roberts Rhinehart and Avery Hopwood, comes to the Grand next week. This attraction is one of unusual interest, coming as it does with a record of three wonderfully successful seasons in New York City, and later in London, where it is now playing. This play has been styled "a succession of curious incidents." It cannot be any better described. In the first act, everybody gets in "on the ground floor," along with a burglar, and for seven days thereafter finds himself much like the proverbial mouse in a trap. The story revolves about a dinner party given by Wilson, who has been amicably separated from his wife, and the sudden illness of Wilson's Japanese butler. The latter is a small-pox suspect, and while all the guests are inside the house, strict quarantine is established by the board of health.

In the second act there is a ludicrous picture of ill-assorted beings trying to make the best, or the worst, of their predicament. To add to the confusion, Wilson's former wife happens along and finds herself caught, like the rest. In order to keep themselves from starving an effort is made to get breakfast, which is the most disastrous failure on record. In the third and last act the unhappy party has managed to get some extra clothes, which do not, however, hide the fact that all have been vaccinated, some in other places. They go to the roof to get a breath of fresh air, and all end happily there. A noted English cast will appear in the piece here, headed by the charming English comedienne, Miss Eva Unsell, who formerly appeared with the London company presenting "Seven Days."

Masterpiece of Pictorial Fiction

"The Artist's Great Madonna" Will Be Presented at the Strand This Week.

Nelson Waring, wizard of the piano, will make his final appearance at the Strand this week. The photo-play, "The Artist's Great Madonna," is a masterpiece of pictorial fiction. The story goes:

Angelo, an artist, determines to paint a Madonna which shall be the peer of them all. He sets out in search of a model and meets Suzette, who offers to pose for him. She does not take him seriously. She mimics his actions and finally jumps down from the platform, dancing to the door, and, throwing him a kiss, goes out. He continues his search but without success, and is about to give up in despair when he visits a French cabaret, and there meets Toto, an old flame of his. She is an extremely fascinating and beautiful woman, and when she offers to pose for him, Angelo thinks he has at last found the model he is searching for. She looks strikingly beautiful but lacks the purity of soul he seeks. He attempts to reproduce her features on the canvas, but the inspiration is not there and he tells her she lacks expression. She becomes angry and is about to strike him with a palette knife when Maria, who has been sent to Angelo by his friend, enters, clad in a long, flowing robe. Angela is struck with her soft beauty, and, taking the note which she hands him, reads: "Here is your Great Madonna, Henri." Toto instantly becomes jealous of Maria and leaves in a rage. Angelo then instructs Maria as to the pose he desires and starts painting with great fervor. It is soon apparent that something is wrong. Her face is perfect but it lacks the humanity of the Mother of Sorrows. He tells her "When you have seen life, indeed, you will be my great Madonna." He determines to show her something of life, and tells her to put on her street dress.

FAREWELL APPEARANCE OF MR. NELSON WARING, THE WIZARD AT THE PIANO, AT THE STRAND THIS WEEK.

Later, Angelo and Maria are seen in the little cottage in the full enjoyment each other's love. They are interrupted by the postman with a letter from Jim Townsend, saying: "I am sending the seed to the house as a present to Angelo, the youngest. They look at each other, speechless with happiness. Angelo places the papers in the baby's hand, and, with his arm around Maria, looks proudly from his model wife and child to his finished painting, "The Great Madonna."

Mother of Fifty Beautiful Girls

Property Mistress of "The Quaker Girl" Company Has Big Job in Caring For Her "Children."

It isn't stylish, of course, to have such a tremendous family; and the fact that they are all girls is enough to make any woman throw up her hands in deprecation. Think of making and mending the dresses for fifty girls; and the ribbons to be tied and the gowns to be buttoned up the back! And the tears to be dried and hurts to be healed, and the would-be sweethearts to be shooed away or encouraged, as the case may deserve. It is certainly a Rooseveltian task; but there is one woman in the United States who has had the experience, and who likes the job. She is Mrs. Mabel Gillman, and she is the wardrobe mistress and "mother" of the 50 girls who comprise the chorus of "The Quaker Girl," which comes to the Princess Theatre this week. In the three colossal acts of this operetta there are two changes of costume for each of the girls in each act—six different dresses for 50 girls—300 costumes in all—to be packed and unpacked, checked out and taken back again, as each change is made; mended up, pressed, and kept ready for instant use. A dozen feminine Hercules might rebel against such a state of affairs, but Mrs. Gillman is perfect mistress of the situation. She carries her sewing machine with her from town to town, when the company tours the country; and there is never the slightest confusion as the lightning changes are made. But, aside from this stupendous task of taking care of the wardrobe, Mrs. Gillman is really a mother to the 50 girls in her charge. In other ways. Many of the girls are their early teens, ranging from 14 to 17, and have been placed in her care by their real mothers, and she is personally responsible for them. But, in spite of her troubles, Mrs. Gillman would not change her position, for it has its own compensations, if only in the love and appreciation of her "children."

Breezy Musical Comedies the Feature at Star Theatre This Week.

There is much to enjoy and plenty to enthrall over in the breezy musical comedies, "Gay Life in Toronto" and "The Hotel Cabaret," which will be presented for the first time by "The Girls from Reno," at the Star Theatre this week.

Both productions have been written especially for the company by James Madison, and abound in highly humorous situations, jingling melodies, and sensational features galore, thus appealing especially to the patrons of the Star Theatre, who seek an entertainment that includes voluptuousness without coarseness, and fun without vulgarity.

Chief among the comedians is Mike Collins, who has justly earned for himself the title "Funniest Man in Burlesque." In a role written especially for him, Mr. Collins has the chance to display his talents to the utmost, and it is needless to state that he takes full advantage of his opportunities.

Fifteen Broadway song hits and newest dancing numbers are introduced, together with a host of vaudeville specialties, contributed by such famous stars as Harry Campbell, King of Irish comedians; Lew Reynolds, the happy hobo; Jack Sullivan, versatile entertainer; Jeanette Young, known as the Tetraxini of burlesque; Margaret H. King, a soubrette with unusual charm and magnetism; Dolly Fields, the girl with the funny slide; Lew Weber, terpsichorean marvel.

In conjunction with the regular show all the games played by the Toronto ball team will be shown on the wonderful paragon score board.

News of the Horses in General and Turf Topics

By Ed. Baker

NOTED STALLION BINGEN DIED AT LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY

Sire of Uhlán, 1.58 World's Champion Trotter and Many Other Noted Horses—A Heavy Loss to the Trotting Turf.

The death of the great trotting stallion, Bingen, 2.06 1/4, at Lexington, Ky., Saturday last, removed a sire whose place will be hard to fill altho the noted stallion was in his twentieth year and has left behind him a number of sons that are famous as the sires of extreme speed.

The sudden death of Bingen is something more than a mere financial loss to his owner, David M. Look of New York, who purchased the horse with all the rest of William Bradley's trotters for $75,000 about a year ago. It is doubted by some well informed horsemen whether there is another stallion of any breed or type in the world whose taking off would be a greater public misfortune. Bingen was one of those exceedingly rare animals that seem to possess the mighty power to project their own characteristics thru successive generations and establish distinct families. Physically he was an almost perfect specimen of the trotting horse, with the beauty of form and carriage and the brilliancy of action to have made him a horse show winner.

The raised in the westernmost state of the Union, he was taken to Maine when a yearling. He developed sensational speed, trotting a public trial in 2.12 1/2 as a two-year-old. Kept nearly all his life in a cold, northern climate, where other great sires like Burton Wilkes, 2.18, and Peter the Great, 2.07 1/4, were failures, Bingen got Uhlán, 1.58, incomparably the fastest trotter ever foaled, and founded a family which outranks any in the stud book of like age for early and extreme speed and the capacity to breed on. His removal to Kentucky last year was looked upon as giving him the first opportunity commensurate with his demonstrated greatness as a sire, and astute breeders expected to see his descendants dominate the future of track and stud as the result of his services there. At the close of last season he was the sire of 106 trotters and in the 2.30 list. Twenty-nine of his sons were the sires of 239 trotters, and 123 of his daughters had produced seven-tenths trotters. Among his best sons were Todd, 2.14 1/4, sire of seventy-nine in the list; Bingara, sire of Baden, 2.05 1/4; Bergen, 2.06 1/4, and forty-one others; Admiral Dewey, 2.04 1/4, with twenty-eight in the list; Vice Commodore, 2.11, with sixteen; J. Malcolm, Forbes, 2.08, with six; Aquilin, 2.13 1/4, with eight; and Border Knight, 2.12 1/4, with three.

Bingen was a dark bay stallion, without white about 12 hands high, bred by A. Smith McCann and foaled the property of Dr. David Bennett, Lexington, Ky., in 1893. His sire, May King, 2.20, was by Electioneer of Boston, May Queen, 2.20, by Alexander Norman, and was one of the last horses that would have been expected to get so great a sire as Bingen. Young Miss, the dam of Bingen, was a daughter of Young Jim, one of the best sons of George Wilkes, 2.22, and his second dam was by Red Wilkes, another great son of the old horse. Thru George W. Leavitt, E. H. Greeley of Ellsworth, Me., purchased Bingen for $800 as a yearling and sold him one year later for $8000 to J. Malcolm Forbes of Boston. At the sale of Mr. Forbes' stud, in 1904, Bingen brought $32,000 under the hammer, Arthur H. Parker, of Bedford, Mass., buying him. When Bingen's great son, Todd, 2.14 1/4, died, in 1908, William Bradley, his owner, paid $40,000 for the old horse to take his place in the stud at Ardmore Farm, Raritan, N. J.

Bingen took his record of 2.06 1/4 when that time meant a great deal more than it does today but in his best year he was unfortunate in having to meet a horse like The Abbott that trotted to a record of 2.03 1/4. The Bingen family is well represented in Canada mainly thru the grandson of the great horse, Kentucky Todd, (3), 2.08 3/4, a son of Todd, 2.14 1/4. Fritz Bingen, 2.16 1/4, now located in St. Catharines, is undoubtedly one of the Bingen's best sons but this horse has never had the opportunities some of the others have had either on the track or in the stud.

RACING IN NEW YORK HAS GOOD PROSPECTS

Owners Fund Which Now Amounts to $100,000 Guarantees Successful Meetings.

For the season of racing at Belmont Park it has been decided to divide $1,000 of the "owners fund," which, added to the money that will be hung up by the Westchester Racing Association, has made possible the increasing of the values of the stakes that have already been decided upon for the eighteen days of racing to begin May 20. The fund that is being subscribed to by the owners has already reached $100,000, and each day there are liberal additions. Twenty-four gentlemen prominent in the financial world have made up the amount. It is not possible to give a detailed list of the sources of the fund, for the reason that so many new subscriptions are constantly arriving, and it is probable that the money that is to be devoted to the sport will be twice its present amount before the season opens on Decoration Day.

DETROIT CLASSICS HAVE BIG ENTRIES

Entries to the Merchants' and Manufacturers' and Chamber of Commerce stakes, and three early purses to be raced at the Blue Ribbon meeting at Detroit, which will be held August 13 to 15, contain the best assortment of quality of any renewals of these turf classics. With a number of stragglers yet to come from California and other distant sections, there are 25 in the $10,000 trot and 23 in the Chamber of Commerce Pace, while the 2.18 trot has 35, and the new 2.16 pace for freighted horses 16 and the 2.05 pace 14. DR. RIDDELL HAS BIG STABLE OF STANDARD-BRED HORSES

Noted Orangeville Horseman Recently Imported Some Chocily-Bred Young Trotters—Stallions and Brood Mares in the List.

While the Town of Orangeville has not cut much figure in racing matters for a number of years, it has always been prominent in the eyes of harness horse enthusiasts on account of the place being the home of Dr. Harry Riddell, one of the leading veterinarians in America, and one of the most competent and popular horsemen in the country. When the breeding interests fell below par in other parts Dr. Riddell never lost faith in the standard-bred and it has been attributable to his efforts that a number of closely-bred trotters were brought into this country for breeding purposes.

EMPIRE CITY TRACK FREE-FOR-ALL PACE

New York Association Will Give $5000 For the Open Class—Gold Cup For Winner.

There is at least one big track association that is alive to what the patrons of harness racing want and that one is the Greater New York Fair and Exposition, that will conduct the grand circuit meeting at the Empire City track meeting at the Belmont Park, which will be held August 26-30, when no less than $33,000 will be given for early closing events.

Robert M. Williams, manager of the big fair announced that he will shortly open what he calls "the grand championship pacing sweepstakes," with a view of bringing together the greatest pacers in the country at the meeting. He will hang up a purse of $5,000, open to all, at an entrance fee of straight three per cent, for a race at mile heats, best two in three, with $3,000 to the winner, $1,500 to the second and $500 to the third.

We Would Like to Show you the PAIGE 36

Paige Model Glenwood, 5-passenger touring car, $1700

There is no other car in the market that we could take greater satisfaction in showing you. There is no other car in the Paige price field—or anywhere near it—in which we could feel such pride.

This is a remarkable car, this Paige "36." Remarkable in several ways. It is just as extraordinary in its design and its workmanship and its splendid materials as it is in its equipment. And Paige "36" equipment is something the whole public is talking about.

Think, for instance, of a $1700 car equipped with the famous Gray & Davis Electric starting and lighting system. The same system that some of the very best high-priced cars are featuring.

Try to match Paige "36" equipment if you can. And Paige "36"—just as a car—more than measures up to its equipment. A big, roomy, sturdily built car. 116-inch wheel base, 34x4-inch tires, left-side drive, center control, cork insert clutch.

CALIFORNIA MARE GREAT TROTTER

Honey Healy, in Will Duffie's Stable Shows Remarkable Speed—Trots a Half in 1.01 1-2 at Los Angeles.

Nearly every spring there is talk of a sensational trotter in California, and this year is no exception. Recent reports from the golden state indicate that Will Duffie, the man who came over from the Rockies last season with Don Fronto, 2.02 1/4 (p), Helen Stiles, 2.04 1/4, and the crack three-year-old Manrico, 2.07 1/4, that won the last Kentucky Futurity for three-year-old trotters, has, in Honey Healy, 2.29 1/4, a trotting mare that bids fair to duplicate the performances of Sweet Maria, 2.02, and Senoma Girl, 2.05 1/4, former crack trotting mares.

ALCYFRAS BURNED AT MOOSE JAW, SASK.

A dispatch from Moose Jaw, Sask., dated April 14, states that fire had destroyed some of the stables at the exhibition grounds there and that several valuable Alcyfras, 2.03 1/4, were burned to death.

EARLY-CLOSING EVENTS FOR WINNIPEG FAIR.

Dr. A. W. Bell, manager of the Canadian Industrial Exhibition Association, Winnipeg, Man., has sent out the announcement that entries for early closing events to be held during the Winnipeg Fair, July 8-14, must be mailed to him not later than May 27.

HORSEMAN FUTURITY ASSIGNED TO KALAMAZOO.

The Grand Circuit stewards have decided that the "Chicago Horseman and Spirit of the Times" Futurity shall be decided at the Kalamazoo Grand Circuit meeting, August 4-9, this year.

BUREAU STATISTICS OF U.S. GOVERNMENT

Show Cost of Raising a Colt to Three Years—Interesting Figures.

Reports have been received from about ten thousand correspondents of the bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture at Washington, upon the cost of raising colts on farms to the age of three years. The average for the United States is found to be $104.06; or, if we deduct the value of work done by the horse before he has passed his third year, namely, $75.22, the net cost is $28.84. This is 69 per cent of the selling value of such horses, $136.17.

WEARY TIREDNESS CHANGED TO VIGOR

That Played-out Feeling Was Quickly Remedied and Health Restored.

"My life for years has been of secondary character," writes T. B. Titchell, head of a well known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill-health, which were all too apparent to my family. I grew thin, thin pale, and before long I was jaundiced—eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfitted for business. In the morning a lightness in the head, particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found weakening and knowing that I had to be at business every day I neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused griping nor nausea, and it seemed incredible that pills should cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—they gave new life to my liver, strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared, my appetite, strength, spirits are perfect."

FOUR CLASSY FILLIES IN KENTUCKY DERBY.

Among the entries for this year's Kentucky Derby, which will be run May 10, at Churchill Downs, is the filly Ringling, that ran so creditably on the big tracks here last season as a two-year-old.

LOU DILLON'S COLT BY ATLANTIC EXPRESS.

The world's champion trotting mare, Lou Dillon, 1.58 1/4, recently foaled a grand looking colt by Atlantic Express, (3), 2.08 1/4, and has been mated with the world's champion trotting stallion, The Harvester, 2.01. The colt or filly, resulting from this mating, will have a speed inheritance of 1.68 1/4. If the mare carries off the Kentucky classic this year.

The EARLY SUMMER SUIT.

BY JOSEPHINE JORDAN

With Drawings from Exclusive Paris . . . Photographs .

BY LES F WILSON

All of the new jackets are of loose cut. The waist line remains natural. The blouse coat is being shown in a number of forms, with considerable fullness falling over the belt and with the belt placed at a low waist line.

SHORT lengths in jackets predominate; the average length is twenty-four inches, and from this shorter and shorter until the holo is reached. All of the new jackets are of very loose cut, hanging freely from the figure and always, without exception, in what is known as fancy styles.

Another feature of jacket suits is the separate waistcoat or vest. This is much seen and accompanies the very short jacket, as well as the longer ones. Many of the jackets have odd little trimming effects, such as tassels, sashes, embroideries, and braids, which suggest the now militant and picturesquely garbed countries of the near east.

One hears the names Balkan, Bulgarian, Turkish, Musulman, and others equally suggestive applied to the models or the features thereof, so it is clear, even to the most casual observer, that Paris designers have borrowed inspiration from the scene of recent conflict.

Particularly notable is this influence in the changes which have taken place in the skirts. One cannot say that they are really wider, though they are fuller, and are, moreover, full in a most peculiar way. That is to say, while very narrow at the bottom—in many instances so narrow that the hem must be split open or left open at the crossing lines of the draperies in order to allow the wearer to step—they are full around the body and often they are plaited or shirred into the belt.

As nearly as possible the designers have copied the Musulman skirt in its various forms. This will give a new silhouette, and a most peculiar one, the figure assuming the outline of a vase resting on a narrow base and then curving at the sides to its top—which corresponds to the waist line.

This waist line, however, is not confined or made unusually small; in fact, more than ever is the apparently corsetless or natural figure in vogue. Anything in the way of a laced or rigid or distorted figure line would be impossible with the present style of dress. In fact, one feels sure that women with naturally good figures will leave them as natural and as revealed as is consistent with the present day idea of modesty.

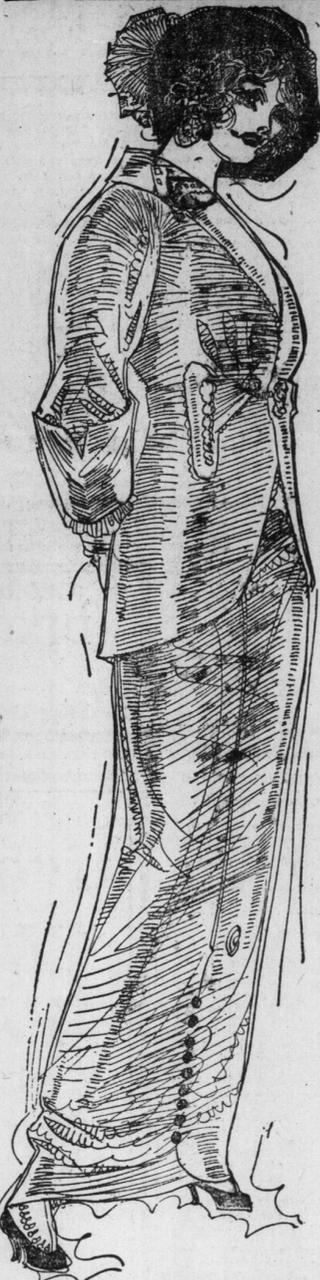

Some of the new skirts look as if a fullness has been let down especially for the purpose of forming pockets or slings for the knees. There is no particular rule in the designing of these skirts, but everything that is queer and unusual and eastern is seen.

Considerable emphasis is being put upon the three-quarter garment, which is a sort of combination coat and wrap, sometimes with the sleeve set in at the armhole, or, again, continuous with the body of the coat.

One notable feature is that these coats button high at the neck, being designed for real protection when motoring or driving. This is a good feature.

Among the most interesting one piece costumes are those in Paquin's line. The skirts are simply but smartly cut, in the new Musulman effects, with the bodices largely developed in printed silks. These present a really new idea, and one feels sure of their general acceptance.

Paul Poiret has, to some extent, abandoned the high waist line, and, going to the other extreme, shows many models in the Greek style, girdled at the normal waist

The outwary comes in many varied styles, from simple, smart, tailor made fastenings with two or more buttons to an elaborate coat with trimmed back, oddly cut seams, and fancy revers and cuffs.

line, though slightly shorter in front than at the back, and giving, therefore, the figure line of the Venus de Milo.

Poiret also shows models built with the low waist line of the Mycenae age. In tailored suits he has some plaited skirts. Generally speaking, his jackets are short and of straight, loose cut.

Callot-Soures are most extreme of all in emphasizing natural figure lines and the revelation of feminine charms. Many of their street suits show the skirts open half way to the knee, draped in most oriental fashion. Their evening dresses are so transparent, both in skirts and in bodices, as to leave little to the imagination. It is a state of undress rather than of dress.

Turkish and Balkan Embroideries. Short Jackets Dominate in Loose Styles. Normal or Lowered Waistline in Costumes. Long Sleeves in Suits. New Skirts Narrow at Hem, Full Around Figure, and Often Plaited or Gathered to Belt. Leading Colors Yellow, Brick or Terra Cotta Red and Dull Blues.

Yet their models are wonderfully beautiful and artistic, and, of course, will form the basis from which other less extreme effects will be developed.

In tailored suitings broadened ratines, cords, twills, gabardines (an English twill), and agario cloths are used. Silk is much used in heavy cord weaves for tailored suits. Terry weaves in worsted and silk new effects—simulating in no small degree uncut velvets—are seen among the new cloakings.

An effort is being made to revive tussah silks in the new brocade and agario and terry weaves. The tussah yarns are combined with cotton in some of the new materials, the result being rather good.

Generally speaking, crepes of all kinds promise extremely well, being strongly represented in silk and cotton and wool.

Very little voile or marquisette is shown. Chiffon is less used than formerly. Materials having weight are essential to the development of the new forms, as they must, as it were, fall into graceful lines by their own weight. Otherwise the skirts will give to the figure a bulky and ungainly outline.

The prominent color of the season is unquestionably yellow in all shades. Sand color is highly spoken of, and, commencing with this delicate tan, the full gamut of yellows is run to the deepest russet orange.

Yellows and reds are also much the fashion, also the shades of terra cotta and mahogany, together with Persian reds. Generally speaking, there is a tendency to get away from navy blue and black in favor of novelties.

As a matter of fact, the showings have included almost all colors, but there is a feeling that shades of tan, both medium and strong, and shades of gray will be popular. Turkish embroideries which, as is well known, are largely in chain stitch, bid fair to be in fashion. Bulgarian embroideries, notably in the floral designs affected by the peasant class, are prominent among novelty trimmings, both for dresses and for millinery.

Bright colored tassels, such as are frequently noted on the costumes of the native orientals, are used in most unusual and unexpected ways in the new costumes and suits for spring. These bright touches of color are most characteristic.

Many smart wash suits have been made up for summer in styles similar to those shown in worsteds and silks. Linens of all kinds in the natural colorings, as well as in rose, gray, green, navy, brown, and Balkan blue, are fashionable. Cotton ratine and sponges are also being used largely this season, and other novelty wash fabrics are being employed with excellent effect.

The combination idea is seen in many of the suits. For example, a coat of rose ratine is made with a skirt of white, and a suit having blouse of broadened cotton matisse has the skirt of the plain fabric. Linens and ratines with the open work borders, as well as embroidered linens, are being used to some extent. Novelty ratines with handsome borders are employed in some of the high priced suits.

The straight cut coat is shown in many different styles. Some are finished off with simple revers similar to a man's tuxedo and others with fancy waistcoats.

While some of the cheaper suits are made on strictly tailored lines, so that they can be easily laundered, the tendency is for suits showing some trimming. The use of printed ratines or linens on light colored wash suits, for example, is effective. Silk is also used, particularly black moire, faille, or brocade.

Lingerie collars give a pretty finishing touch to a wash waist, and manufacturers are using them to a considerable extent.

Blouses of all kinds, cutaways, and straight cut Chinese coats are shown in the wash suit lines. These are made quite short, averaging from about twenty-four to twenty-six inches. The skirts frequently show the introduction of a few plaits and some have the drapery suggestion, but the tendency is for the simpler skirts as being better adapted to wash fabrics than the more elaborately draped styles.

A simple model in serge bound in tulle. One of the new skirts narrow at the hem and gathered into a belt.

In separate skirts, while white is particularly favored, checks and stripes are also well thought of and would look exceedingly well with some of the new short coats that have recently been brought out. In the popular priced numbers the skirt having a few plaits inset in the side gore, front or back, is a favorite. These plaits sometimes start from the waist line, but are stitched down below the hips. In every instance the effect of narrowness around the ankles is preserved.

Plaited backs are noted on some of the muslin and panel effect, both back and front.

Tunic skirts are well liked, and stimulated tunics, giving the effect of a two or three tier skirt, are well thought of. Some of the newest of these tunics are made to give the effect of a Russian blouse and are expected to meet with favor in the larger cities.

Many models showing the drapery suggestion have been brought out this season and are proving most popular. The majority of these show slight fullness at the sides drawn into a back panel or slight fullness at one side drawn into the front.

Skirts have the fullness gathered into the front seam, giving the new oriental note. These, however, are not expected to meet with general approval.

The sling, the cross over drapery, the low drapery coming below the hips, and other ideas suggestive of the orient or of the classic are being brought out in the more expensive style skirts, but the demand for them is limited and the tendency is more toward simpler effects.

While serge, as usual, is a good seller, there have been many calls for skirts of ratine and sponge, in plain and in fancy weaves. Worsteds and silk poplins are also being taken by many of the large buyers. Cotton and worsted Bedford cords are in good demand. Fancy mixtures are only fair. Many smart numbers in checks have been brought out recently and are well thought of. In wash skirts pique, cordelines, reps, various weaves of linen, and sponge are the materials that are favored.

Worsteds used for the new tailored suits of the simpler kind are usually novel weaves. But the good old navy and black serges are still much worn.

A quaint blouse is made of soft Chinese silk, made with an open neck, the front turned back in pointed edges with a tiny frill.

Tulle or mousseline in warm shades worn over a sheath of silver, steel, or gold lace is original and effective.

When plaits are used on skirts they are stitched down to avoid extra fullness above the feet.

The waist line must not under any circumstances be made to look small. All the smart costumes tend toward the straight up and down effect.

The coats of the new tailored suits show diversity in styles—blouses, cutaway, and straight cut Chinese coats are also fashionable.

Pretty new gowns are made of ratine and linen in a variety of colors, the rose and coral tints being favored.

Amusing Bits of Stage Criticism

E. H. Sothern Relates Stories of Some Strange Comments on Actors.

"The odd twists in criticisms and comments on actors," says E. H. Sothern, "are frequently amusing. I sat one night watching a fine performance of a celebrated star. Suddenly a woman behind me whispered to her escort, 'That man has worked in a dry-goods store. His arms and hands never go below the counter.' Then I realized what I had not noticed before—that the actor's gestures were all made from the waist up. 'On another occasion, in a French theatre, where an actor was presenting a magnificent character study of a nobleman, a man sitting next to me remarked, 'He is superb.' 'Yes,' replied his companion, 'but he is impossible as an aristocrat, because he has the legs of a peasant.' 'Both critics and actors are temperamental, and we are all swayed by our temperaments—which reminds me of a story concerning a painter who hung in a gallery a picture he had just completed. Below it he placed a bit of chalk, and then tacked to the frame a card on which he had written: 'Mark on the picture what you do not like.' The following day he found his painting simply obliterated with chalk marks. He complained to a friend who suggested that he write on a fresh card: 'Mark on the picture what pleases you.' The artist followed the suggestion, and once more found the picture obliterated. Now, probably all those who marked the painting were critics, but their temperaments varied. 'In this connection I recall another story, of an actor who once played 'Hamlet' in a small western town, and was scathingly reviewed the following day by the one newspaper in the place. The actor called upon the critic and expressed himself very forcibly and loftily, winding up with: 'Why, sir, I am so familiar with the part of Hamlet that I can play it backwards.' To which the critic replied: 'That is the way you played it last night.'"

A. Chamberlain On Unionists Unity

Must Not Act Like Spoiled Children Because They Could Not Have Own Way.

LONDON, April 19.—Mr. Austin Chamberlain, speaking recently at the annual meeting of the Grand Committee of the Birmingham Unionist Association, said they were within a month of the tenth anniversary of the speech in which the senior member for Birmingham launched a new movement in politics. Their chairman (Mr. Jesse Collings) had expressed a doubt about the wisdom of the recent change in their procedure. He himself had never pretended to like it, and he did not pretend to now. But neither they nor he were going to behave like spoiled children. They were not going to ruin the whole cause because they could not at once have their own way.

They were ready to make concessions for the sake of unity, and he was glad to acknowledge that even within the last few days he had seen a marked evidence of a similar feeling prevailing in the other section of the Opposition within their ranks. They wanted to be united, and if they marched step by step, had patience with those who found difficulties, tried to persuade them, and refrained from bullying, in the long run they would convince them that the policy adopted in Birmingham ten years ago was the right policy.

Actor Killed While Playing Carmen

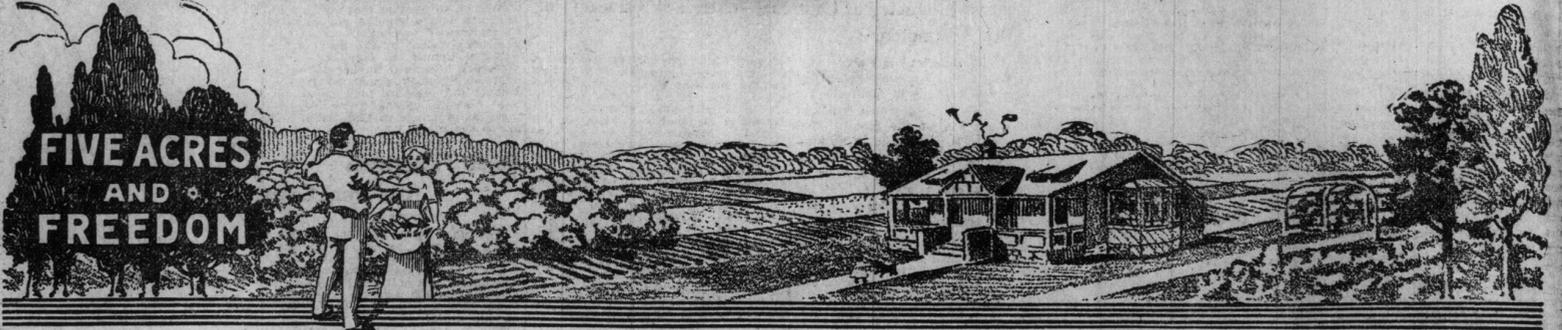

Performers Duel to Death in View of Horrified Audience.

MADRID, April 18.—An extraordinary and tragic affair occurred at the theatre at Argamasilla de Alba, in the Province of Ciudad Real. It appears that the leading baritone, Senor Pardo, and the chief tenor, Senor Martinez, attached to the operatic company at present performing in the town, were deadly enemies, as a consequence of rivalry in a love affair, and they had agreed to fight a duel to the death. They had, however, decided to await the termination of the operatic season in the little town, in order that their rivalry might not interfere or interrupt the promised performances. The season terminated with a performance of "Carmen," and at the close of the third act the spectators were horrified to find themselves the witnesses of a fierce duel between the two singers. The fight did not last long, the tenor, Martinez, falling dead at the feet of his rival.

Personal Application. Why don't they keep the street a little cleaner? You ask with deep annoyance not us, but the street sweeper. Why don't they keep the park a little greener? (Did you ever stop to think that "they" means you?) How long will they permit this graft and stealing? Why don't they see the courts are clean and true? Why will they wink at crooked public dealing? (Did you ever stop to think that "they" means you?) Why don't they stop this miserable child labor? And let us have the public playgrounds, too? While thus you gently knock your unknown neighbor. (Did you ever stop to think that "they" means you?) —San Francisco Star.

Charles Bartlett, of the "101 Bison" company, is recovering from the effects of being shot in the eye. He is still busy "shooting" Indians at the old stand.

ELGIN GARDENS

These Five Acre Market Gardens Offer You Freedom --- Independence --- Health --- and a Far Greater Income than the City Can Ever Give You.

There is nothing more deeply rooted in a man's nature than the desire to own enough land on which to build a comfortable home, and which will yield a good living for himself and his family.

He is then a king—the equal of all men. He has no fear of the future; the present can have no terrors for him. Stock exchange panics—upheavals in the business world—wars and rumors of wars—all pass him unscathed. The same conditions that make the city wage-earner a slave make the market gardener wealthy.

If you are working for others, is your position secure? Are you any better off now than you were five, six, ten years ago? Does your present work offer you anything better than a bare living in the future? Have you any chance in your present job of becoming comfortably wealthy in the next ten years—of having your own home free of all debt, and some of the luxuries to which you are entitled? There is no man with a limited income who has watched the cost of living soaring beyond him but has turned his eyes to the country as the only means of salvation. The market garden has always appealed to him as the one ideal profession for which he is fitted, and from which he can derive the income he needs.

But there have always been difficulties in his way. If near a large city market, garden land is too high—selling at subdivision prices. If at a distance, he is too far from his market to sell his produce profitably without some co-operative system of marketing.

Elgin Gardens offers you the one way out—the solution of all these difficulties.

If you have the courage to follow your desire to get back to the land, we offer you the opportunity right now.

The company who own the famous Elgin Gardens will take you out to these Gardens—the finest garden land in Ontario—put your land in a state of cultivation, all ready to begin planting, furnish you with the finest of young shoots from their greenhouse, teach you how to plant, cultivate, and get the best results, if you do not know already—in a word, give you a free scientific education in market gardening; and then, when your vegetables are ripe, show you when and how to gather them, furnish crates for shipping, take them off your hands, ship, and sell them for you, and return you the money.

Market Gardening--the New Profession

Clerks, office men, mechanics, and ordinary workmen who slaved in the city for a miserable little weekly wage, but who had the courage to shake off the yoke and put all their energy into gardening, have in a few short years become independent, and in many cases wealthy.

Women who worked in stuffy city offices and stores for a salary which barely kept them alive, have taken up the new profession, and in a couple of years have become the owners of a revenue-producing garden beyond their fondest dreams.

Look at the five and ten-acre fruit and vegetable ranches in Southern California, the onion gardens of the Gulf Coast of Texas, the little potato farms of Virginia and Delaware, and the famous celery gardens of Florida, and Kalamazoo, Michigan.

And to come nearer home—look at the famous Niagara and Grimsby fruit belt, where four and five acres have made fortunes for their owners.

A Five Acre Elgin Garden Will Net You More Money than a 100 Acre Farm Planted to a Mixed Crop

To prove this statement, take a trip through the Niagara or Grimsby district, and ask any of the gardeners over there what revenue they have derived from their little two, three, and five-acre gardens, and then compare that with the income of any farmer you know. You will be surprised.

One big reason for this difference in revenue between the market garden and the large farm is the expense of running the latter, and the great amount of waste.

In France, one of the richest countries in the world, there are no large farms. They are all very small, practically gardens, every inch of land is worked, and produces its revenue. Consequently the French farmer, as a class, is richer than the farmer of any other nationality.

Send for Beautifully Illustrated Booklet

This booklet will show you what money can be made in market gardening—why the soil of Elgin Gardens is the best in Ontario for the raising of celery, onions, melons, and small fruits, and why you can get your produce to market from ten days to two weeks ahead of other fruit districts, thus securing the top price.

"ANTIQUITIES" MADE TO ORDER

How EGYPTIAN MUMMIES, ANCIENT POTTERY and JEWELRY and ART OBJECTS ARE FORGED and FAKED.

Handsome Forged Mummy of the Ptolemaic Period That Sold for $5,000.

Blue Jar with Anubis Head, Which the Maker Said Was a Genuine Antique, Because the Earth Was Old.

Clever Imitation of a Winged Scarab of Great Value.

Imitation Sacred Cat, Alleged to Come from the Temple at Thebes.

One of the Little Ushebt Funerary Figures Counterfeited in Enormous Quantities.

Wooden Dove, Copied from the Statuettes Placed in Ancient Egyptian Tombs.

THE fabrication of forged antiquities has become one of the most profitable industries of modern Egypt. Every year more and more wealthy American and European tourists go to the sunny and salubrious land of the Pharaohs.

Practically every one of these tourists wishes to take away some relic of the ancient Pharaohs as a souvenir. To supply this demand the modern Egyptians are working night and day making very attractive articles in the ancient style.

The Egyptian law now requires that every person finding antiquities shall report the fact to the government, which reserves the right to purchase them. This law really favors the antiquity forgers, for they represent to their customers that they are offering them contraband goods, which offer usually has the effect of whetting the appetite to buy.

A scholar and Egyptologist, Dr. T. G. Wakeling, has made a lifelong study of the methods of the antiquity forgers, and published a very interesting book on the subject. It is illustrated with remarkable specimens of forgeries which the author has collected himself.

The manufacture of mummy cases of all periods is one of the most profitable occupations of the antiquity forgers. A handsome mummy case, like the one of the Ptolemaic period shown on this page, will sell for $5,000 or even more, and the original cost need not be more than $20. One transaction of this kind will support a thrifty Egyptian for life.

In making the mummy case a fragment of genuine old case is frequently used so that the workers may keep the style and tone perfectly. A bundle of rags and cow bones may be used in place of the mummy, or if it is intended to make a very fine job a genuine old mummy may be inserted. Unidentified old mummies are cheap and common in Egypt.

The painted mummy cloth is counterfeited with great care. Sometimes genuine old cloth from a mummy of small value is used, as in the example shown here. The painting is modern, and an expert can tell this because the colors have run. A genuine ancient painting follows the design with greater exactness.

One of the most enterprising antiquity dealers in Egypt, a leading citizen of Luxor, actually constructed a great tomb in order to pass off his forgeries more successfully. He represented it as the tomb of some forgotten pharaoh or chief minister of three thousand years ago. He filled it with stelae, ushebt, jewelry, mummies, vases and other forged antiquities, all apparently covered with the dust of ages.

An American millionaire enjoyed the privilege of first visiting this tomb. He was conducted there secretly at dead of night in order to avoid the government guards who constantly watch the antiquities of this district. He was so impressed by what he saw that he cheerfully gave up $100,000 for the contents of the tomb. It has been filled up again several times since then.

Purchasers of antiquities are tempted by the fact that the objects are sometimes worth what is asked for them, even though forged. Dr. Wakeling mentions the case of forged antiquities of real gold that were sold for no more than the value of the metal. The modern workmanship was excellent.

Tourists will gratify their secret longing to buy antiquities in obscure places in spite of the warnings of archaeologists and reputable dealers. An American woman showed the author a handsome necklace of yellow beads, which she had bought for $50. He remarked that they were being made regularly for $2 apiece.

"How can you say so, doctor," exclaimed the woman. "My donkey boy told me that he stole it from an old tomb himself, and he has such an honest little face!"

Scarabs furnish the greatest employment to the antiquity makers and dealers. Some of the best scarabs are made in Europe and exported to Egypt, where the intelligent natives sell them to forgers. Scarab making has been carried on for about a hundred years. It has reached such a point that learned Egyptologists are frequently unable to tell whether a specimen is genuine or not.

The scarab, which represents the sacred beetle of Egypt, was used as a charm and buried in large numbers on a mummy's breast. It was supposed that the sacred beetle would ward off the attacks of evil spirits.

The forged scarabs are sometimes made of glass, stained to imitate some semi-precious stone such as carnelian, which was much used in the ancient specimens. In another the ancient glass is imitated and then stained to give an appearance of antiquity. A capable expert can detect these two forms of forgery without much difficulty.

A PAGE OF THE BEST HUMOR OF THE WEEK

What He Really Needed.
A young man, very fond of the girls but very cautious as to his dealings with them, recently went to a poetical friend and asked him if he would help get up a birthday sonnet to a certain young lady.
"Well," said the poet friend, "what do you want me to say?"
"Why, you ought to know about what's the proper thing," said the young man. "Something rather tender, but at the same time, remember, I don't want to commit myself in any way."
"Well," said the poet, "you don't want a poet to draw up your birthday verse. You want a lawyer."—London Opinion.

Juvenile Diplomacy.
Mother: "I gave each of you boys an orange. Charles, you said you wouldn't eat yours till after dinner. And you, Jack, said the same. Have you deceived me?"
Charles: "No, mother, we didn't eat our oranges. I ate Jack's, and he ate mine."—Life.

Sensational.
"He has written a new play." "Original?" "Yes. The heroine is a married woman."
"Oh, I know! And falls in love with another man."
"No. That's the original part of it. The play shows marriage to be a sacred relation that some people take seriously, and get a good deal of happiness out of."—London Opinion.

His Business.
"You insist that the officer arrested you while you were quietly attending to your own business?"
"Yes, your honor. He caught me suddenly by the collar, and threatened to strike me with his club unless I accompanied him to the station house."
"You say you were quietly attending to your own business, making no noise or commotion of any kind."
"Yes, your honor."
"What is your business?"
"I'm a burglar."—Lippincott's.

The Crime.
"He was arrested for grafting, was he not?"
"Haven't you got sense enough to know that men are not arrested for grafting? He was arrested for being caught at it."—Life.

Sunburnt.
Arold: "Who giv' yer yer black eye, Jimmie?"
Jimmie: "No one. I was lookin' thru a knot hole in the fence at a football match, an' got it sunburnt."—London Sketch.

A Good Seat.
Madge: "Did you have a good seat at the opera?"
Marjorie: "Lovely! We were near enough to one of the boxes to hear every word the society people said."—London Opinion.

JUST THE THING FOR HIM.
Insurance Man: "If you lose a hand, we pay you one thousand dollars."
Pat: "I'll spake to me brother Mike. He's a contractor, an' do be losin' hands all the toime!"
—Puck.

Contrary to Precedent.
Pedestrian: "Officer, am I still in New York—in the city limits?"
Policeman: "Indade, an' yez are, son."
Pedestrian: "Strange! I passed three Gentlemen on the last block."—Life.

That's the Question.
"Here is a story of a Chicago woman who says that present marriage laws make woman the slave of man," said the square-jawed matron as she looked up from the newspaper.
"Why don't they enforce the law, then?" meekly asked Mr. Henpecke.—Buffalo Express.

The Sarcastic Guide.
During one of the flying meets a young woman went thru the hangars under the guidance of a mechanic. After asking all the usual foolish questions that aviators and their assistants have to answer during a tour of inspection, she wanted to know:
"But what if your engine stops in the air? What happens? Can't you come down?"
"That's exactly the trouble," responded the willing guide. "There are now three men up in the air in France with their engines stopped. They can't get down, and are starving to death."—London Opinion.

Anxious Mother. "As I passed the parlor door last evening I saw Mr. Niccetto's face very, very close to yours."
Lovely Daughter: "Y-e-s, ma, he's so awfully near-sighted."

Wanted His Money's Worth.
Customer: "I say, Mr. Barber, I don't hear your scissors at work in my hair."
Barber (apologetically): "There is very little hair on your head, sir."
Customer: "That makes no difference; I pay my money, and I want you to rattle the scissors on the bald place, just the same as if I had hair on it."

Had the Worst of It.
"Didn't you say your dog's bark is worse than his bite?"
"Then for goodness' sake don't let him bark! He's just bitten me."

Ought to Sell Easily.
Prospective Tenant: "There's one great disadvantage about this house; it is damp."
Landlord: "That's no disadvantage. If a fire were to break out, it wouldn't burn so quickly."

Employer: "Yes, I advertised for a strong boy. Do you think you will suit?"
Applicant: "Well, I have just finished thrashing three other applicants out in the passage!"
—London Opinion.

Amateur Actor (to friend): "What do you think of Hamlet, Charley?"
Dear Friend: "Immense! In one part of the play you were equal to Forbes-Robertson."
Amateur Actor: "What part was that, Charley?"
Dear Friend: "Where Polonius is giving his parting advice to Laertes."
Amateur Actor: "But I was behind the scenes then."
Dear Friend: "So is Forbes-Robertson."—Tit-Bits.

In a Minor League.
Teacher: "What can you say of the Medes and Persians?"
Youthful Baseball Enthusiast: "I never kept track of those minor league teams."

The Major: "Ah, good morning, Count! What's the matter? I never saw you looking so old as you do this morning."
The Count: "That's natural, Major. I never was so old as I am this morning."—Tit-Bits.

The Two Evils.
Doctor: "I'm sorry, Mr. Isaacs, but I'm afraid your case is practically without hope; altho, of course, I can keep you alive for some few weeks."
Mr. Isaacs: "Don't do it, doctor, don't do it. The insurance premium is due next Tuesday."—London Opinion.

Not If She Knew It.
"I asked your husband last night if he had to live his life over again, if he would marry you, and he said he certainly wouldn't!"
"He certainly wouldn't!"

Why They Like It.
First Benedict: "Well, does this weather suit you?"
Second Ditto: "Capital! capital!"
And you?
First Ditto: "I believe you—my wife has such a cold she can't speak."
Second Ditto: "So has mine."—Tit-Bits.

It Didn't Matter.
"My dear child, what are you doing?" asked the astonished mother. She paused to glance at some very strange marks her little girl was making with a pencil on a piece of paper.
"Oh, I'm writing a letter to Lily Smith!" came the answer.
"Writing a letter?" laughed the mother. "But you don't know how to write."
"That doesn't matter, mummie. You see, Lily can't read."

That was a great scheme old Shrewdly worked.
"I didn't hear of it."
"He gave it out that the first one of his eleven daughters to be married should have his entire fortune."
"What was the result?"
"Eleven sloppemats in one night. They can't determine which one was first, so Shrewdly gets rid of the girls and keeps the fortune."—Tit-Bits.

She: "Do you think that cigaret smoking affects the memory?"
He: "I'm sure of it—why, I offer them to Jones every day, and he never once remembers to offer me one."

Damaged.
Nell: "Jack told me last night he had given me his heart."
Belle: "Well, it's damaged goods. He told me last week I had broken it."

Another Victim.
Newboy: "Great mystery; fifty victims. Paper, mister?"
Passer-by: "Here, boy, I'll take one."
Passer-by (after reading a moment): "Here, boy, there's nothing of the kind in this paper. Where is it?"
Newboy: "That's the mystery, gov'nor. You're the fifty-first victim."—London Opinion.

Getting at the Truth.
Was he rich? Or was he poor? She wanted very much to know before giving him an answer to the momentous question. So, after thinking deeply for a minute: "I'm afraid we shouldn't get along very well," she said. "You're too extravagant."
"Extravagant!" he repeated. "On the contrary, I'm very economical. I have to be," he added as an afterthought.
"Then I can never be your wife."
"Because I'm economical!" he gasped, astonished at her logic.
"No," she replied: "but because you have to be!"—Answers.

Suspicious Character to Bank Messenger: "Carry yer bag, gov'nor?"
—London Opinion.

Appreciated Brevity.
Doctor Abernethy, the famous Scotch surgeon, was a man of few words, but he once met his match—in a woman. She called at his office in Edinburgh one day and showed a hand badly inflamed and swollen, when the following dialog, opened by the doctor, took place:
"Burn?"
"Bruise?"
"Poultice."
The next day the woman called again, and the dialog was as follows:
"Better?"
"Worse."
"More poultice."
Two days later the woman made another call, and this conversation occurred:
"Better?"
"Well? Fee?"
"Nothing!" exclaimed the doctor. "Most sensible woman I ever met!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

This Democratic Age.
"I want somebody to show me where to unload this coal," said the grimy-looking man at the kitchen door.
"Well, you needn't ask me," replied the young woman thus addressed, as she tossed her head scornfully. "I'm the kitchen lady."
"Indeed!" was the retort. "And I'm the coal gentleman; the father of three kitchen ladies, one laundry lady, one charlady; and if you don't show me where to put this coal, I'll call the woman of the house."

"This was altogether too much for the haughty cook."
"I'll show you sir," she ventured humbly, then meekly led the way to the coal-cellar.—Answers.

Boy: "I'm tryin' to keep two fellers from fightin'."
Village Grocer: "Who are the fellows, sonny?"
Boy: "Bill Perkins and me."

Precisior.—President Wilson, at a dinner in Washington, said of a statistician, "His figures are so precise that one inclines to doubt them. He is like the American sugar planter in Hawaii, who, taking a friend to the edge of a volcano, said: "That crater, George, is just seventy thousand and four years old."
"But why the four?" George asked.
"Oh, I've been here four" was the reply. "It was seventy thousand when I came."—Washington Star.

Toronto Suffragette Would be Willing To Take Human Life if Necessary For Cause

Laura E. McCully, B.A., A.M., Who Says She is "Not Lady-Like", Replies to Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, Whose Article in the Sunday World Opposing the Franchise for Women Was Published Last Week.

By Laura E. McCully, B. A., A. M., Fellow in English of Yale.

Re letter of Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge in edition of April 13.

I write to congratulate your correspondent, Mrs. Dodge, on a letter which is written in strictly parliamentary terms. As an anti-suffrage letter it is unique in that respect in my experience. I regret that a natural desire to shake hands with a clean opponent cannot justify me in applying that adjective to its contents.

Mrs. Dodge asserts as her main point that the giving of the ballot will weaken woman's influence, now being effectively applied in reform work. Obviously Mrs. Dodge has never tried to get a bill for the good of women and children thru any legislature. Again, does she think it more unrefined to drop a slip in a ballot box than to solicit votes thru a place like Toronto's "Ward," as did several society women here last general election, no disparagement to them, either! She points out that the ballot is but a trifling factor as men use it, and simultaneously urges that to give it to women will cause upheaval of homes and complete loss of influence. Did men lose their influence over women when they got the vote? Generally speaking, the influence of one sex over the other has nothing to do with anything but sex; especially and unhappily, most of the time it has nothing to do with righteousness.

Mrs. Dodge takes the stand that without woman and her influence man is "crude and uncivilized, without manners, morals, religion." Observe, I quote, paragraphs 2 and 3. I never knew of any man who had lived apart from women all his life, so I cannot say. But I do know that the fear of consequences keeps men, women and nations as good as they are. History, science, self-preservation keeps telling them "that way, the way of sin, the death." Those who are sane and normal, comparatively at least, take heed, and they live, and their children and their nation. But it is not woman but God who saves them—and you may say "the creative instinct" or "good" instead of God if you like.

Are Men So Harsh? I sincerely hope that man is not as destructive as Mrs. Dodge represents him. I don't want to have to spend my existence trying to soften the harshness of man. I feel as must many women of the modern world, that I am sometimes too harsh myself. I need every effort I can make to ameliorate my own natural belligerence, especially when I reflect on the stupidity, mis-education and shallowness of my sex as exemplified in those of the opposite way of political thinking to my own. Dear male reader, do I have half a brick at me? Reflect—have you never felt likewise toward your political opponents?

You would think, when there are a million extra women in a country, the men would be glad to have them enter a new field of activity. And so the majority of those who have to keep a sister-in-law, aunt, cousin, etc., would. But a few selfish men in the professions not now open to women don't want them to come in for selfish reasons. These men do not care a rap how the other man has to work to support the woman who, we will say, had a father—and grandfather in legal practice and cannot succeed at anything else herself. Why doesn't she go into domestic service? For the same reason that you, Mr. Long-fingered Surgeon, failed in your student days, failed ignominiously, as a book-agent. Happily, to you the whole world lay open. Not so to her. So sweat away, and support her, if she is your aunt, and let some coal-heaver's son with the muscles of a prize-fighter and the brains of a pea-earner live at legal rag-picking and tell her and all such that her place is in the home. That's what they do in England—here, too, when the game is politics.

The Why of Militancy. Everybody wonders at militancy, except the militants. The problem is a simple one. When you've agitated "ad nauseam"—when you've convinced the government and made it acknowledge your principles are right, and made it promise you your law, what are you going to do if you don't get that law? Are you going to ask each individual member of that government for a testimonial stating that your measure was a noble, uplifting reform, and are you going to frame those testimonials, hang them in a memorial hall, disband and go home? Certainly you are not; not if you have in your exchequer the people's money to the extent of nearly half a million, perhaps, by now, much more! You must give them value for that—that is playing the game. Anything else is nothing.

Just here I feel impelled to make a damning confession. I am not a lady. This may seem a detached and personal statement to the casual reader, and to him I apologize. I write it for the eye of Mrs. Dodge, and her alone. When I go to ask a busy man spinster not wedged with responsibility, ought to do for myself, I feel ashamed! Then, when I feel that shame, heartburnings may be guessed, that I am no real lady. When I throw the interests of half the world on a few heroic men and see them scouted, ridiculed and imprisoned, as was the late W. T. Stead, then I know beyond cavil that I am no lady at all; for my blood-bolts, and if my representative were murdered I should be quite ready to take human life in my indignation. Do not destroy property, madam, I said, take human life.

Now, lest I be arrested at once, let me say that I do not mean by assassination—Heaven forbid! Only by war, you know. And King George, Kaiser Wilhelm and every cabinet in Europe hold precisely the same views. Many suffragettes do not, but you see this one had forebears who fought in England's battles, and what others they could find.

Let Mrs. Dodge Enlist. Let me elucidate what I conceive to be the logical and final standpoint. If Mrs. Dodge thinks anti-suffrage worth fighting for, let her enlist to oppose us, should a climax occur. We have no objection, in fact, could wish all our enemies to be even as she. Then at worst we should not have died in vain eliminating some of them in the interests of the intellectual average of our sex. For the forensic fury and heroic sobriety which, were I a man, would follow here, I merely refer the reader to the opening lines of any such document as the Declaration of Independence. Eight words do me—"the sword of the Lord and of Gideon." As G.E.S. points out, the man who manufactures weapons instead of being a Lucifer is he who opens the door to freedom if men have but the wit to enter it. Similarly, the women's movement owes its immediate prospects to the inventor of gunpowder. Moral suasion has had its perfect work with the usual results. We have convinced ourselves and ranged on our side all those who in all ages, at all times, as now, spring up to join the hosts of progress. We have numbers; we have numbers, and if we are not right, let God decide against us, for as I read the situation, the final test approaches.

Dear reader, do not picture the writer as one who has a bloodthirsty itching to spill your innocent corpuscles or those of our gallant police and regulars, or even in paying the debt to nature, to be surrounded by a military band. But there is such a thing in human nature as a moral impulse, vulgarly spoken of as a sense of right and wrong and more dispassionately denominated by the upper classes as the categorical imperative. Yours, perhaps, is satisfied when you recite in church, or hear recited, "Oh, God, save the State," and "Give peace in our time, oh Lord!" But ours must drive us further than that, causing us great uneasiness, when we read of a woman who has thrown a brick getting the same term as a man who has assaulted a little girl of five. In fact, recall the spread of disease, of immortality, insanity, the increasing number of laboring women with uncurable babies, and the growth of extravagance, athenism and moral indifference in the formerly respectable middle classes. Necessity of a Renaissance. On the whole, we see the necessity of a Renaissance. Now, is a fact that when something is re-born, some-

Our Embroidery Design Decoration for Waist

This pattern is for use upon any white or colored linen, Indian Head, pique, chambray or semi-weight fabric which bears rather heavy embroidery garniture. All parts with the exception of eyeslets and tendrils should be made in solid stitch. In the long honeysuckle bloom be sure to work the pattern to preserve the central line. Always slant the thread a little, yet be sure to round it perfectly at the top. This is the sun-ray band which indicates direction of thread. Use the regular embroidery needle with long eye—a double thread of floss, preferably the soft ball variety. Avoid knots or any attempt at padding. This could be done beautifully in color. For example, one could use a golden tan and make the flowers in their natural tints, cream and pale yellow, with green foliage upon a delicate pink cambray.

To Transfer. Put a cake of soap in a pint of hot water, stir vigorously to remove soap. Saturate the design with the mixture, then remove the excess moisture. Place the fabric to which the design is to be transferred on a hard, flat surface and the design face down on the material. Cover with a dry sheet of thick paper, and with the bowl of a table-spoon rub hard till the design is transferred, being careful to rub from rather than toward you. Do not wet the material or rub the face of the design with damp fingers. To remove the design after the article is complete wash with warm water with soap.

thing else dies, and often it dies fighting. In that case, unwillingly, but nevertheless resolved, there are those who hold themselves ready to oblige. There is no tragedy like the death of a principle; that must be obviated at all cost. It is against the law. But the feeding tube and the hired rowdy begin to pall, and we reflect on the good old fashioned Anglo-Saxon way. The martyr spirit seems scarcely consistent with the national character to such an extent as to court extinction. A little of it lights a surprising conflagration, and when have we shirked a fight? To return to Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge. All ladylike women had better prepare to go home soon, as it begins to look like work for man, and as Bernard Shaw gallantly puts it, superman. To the prayer "Oh, God, Save the State," we are willing to add, "by means of our lives if need be." Are you?

Many Toronto People Spend Winter On Beautiful Isle of Pines, Cuba

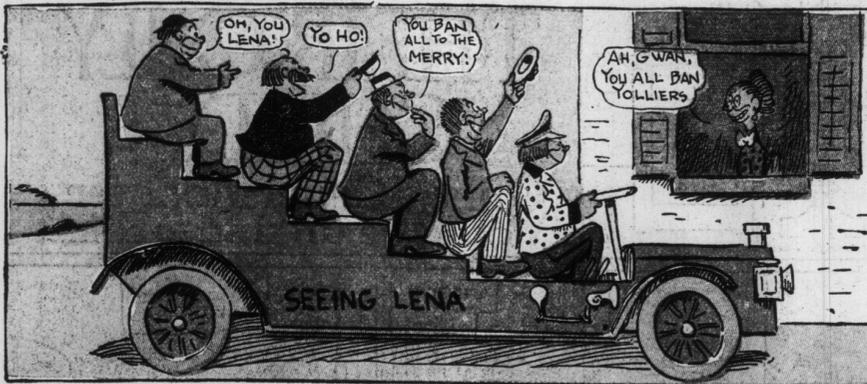

O. B. Sheppard Has Bungalow in "Millionaires' Row" and Many Other Canadians Find Climate and Scenery Alluring—National Pastime is Cock-Fighting.

Can you imagine an island, fertile and with unquestionably the finest climate in the world, being neglected and undeveloped until the early part of the past decade?—an island where heat prostrations have never been known, where frost has never cast its blight. If you have been to the Isle of Pines it will not be necessary to call on the imagination. If you have not been so blest it will be impossible to conjure up just the kind of place I refer to. For the Isle of Pines is somewhat different. There is no other place just like it. Other places have some of its qualities but I have it on good authority that there is no other part of the world which enjoys such a wonderful climate. In Florida, the Bahamas, Cuba,—in all other West India Islands the climatic conditions, the similar regarding temperature, are absolutely different in so far as humidity is concerned. In the "Island of the Caribbean" the heat never falls below the level of the Standard Oil man. Fifty years ago that tells the tale of the rush of Americans, Canadians, English, to take up homes there. It is this clear, bracing air that has attracted many millionaires to establish winter places. The Isle of Pines is the only white man's island in the tropics—the only island where Anglo-Saxons can live and retain their normal activity and alertness. It is the white man's paradise of the south!

The difference between Cuba and the Isle of Pines is as marked as the difference between Italy and England. It is in the air. "Pine-laden, always in motion, the health-giving ozone of this charming island is a great tissue builder. Altho not frequented by consumptives a few who have come here with the disease have become completely cured. But the health-giving assets are not all up "in the air." The continuous sunshine, the balsamic air, the cooling breezes suffice to place the Isle of Pines high in the roll of health resorts. But nature was in a generous mood when this island was under construction and provided her with a system of medicinal springs that have quite miraculous virtues. The writer has experienced unbelievable benefit himself and knows whereof he writes. One spring, known as "General Weyler," because that tyrant received great relief there, is visited by dozens of people every day and remarkable cures are being consummated all the time. No charge is levied for taking the baths but one must wait their turn. There is always someone waiting from early morning until sunset. It is altogether likely that a large sanitarium will be built at these springs within a year or so. The question of a water supply is not confined to the many springs, now ever. Excellent, absolutely pure water can be secured by sinking a well from twenty to thirty feet, any place on the whole island. The great question of water, which is one of the important questions of tropical countries, is boundedly attended to by nature on this island. It is just ten years since the island was visited by a German who had lung trouble and only a few dollars in money. He was the pioneer white man on the Isle of Pines. By setting out vegetable gardens, working industriously and sticking here has attained, if appearance be the criterion, the earthly end of man—health, wealth and happiness. He has seen, in a short decade, a neglected island change at first slowly, but with ever-increasing rapidity, to a live, busy and daily more beautiful place. There are now several thousand Americans and many Canadians and English here. Where a few years ago forest and untilled fields were now beautiful grape fruit, alligator pear and lime orchards beautify the landscape. Beautiful homes in beautiful environments are multiplying at a rapid rate. In a quarter of a mile from where I sit, by the beautiful Casas River, work was begun today on a winter home for a Pittsburg multi-millionaire, an ex-becomes oppressive or enervating. My desk in the other direction lies the property of three prominent Toronto men. They intend to erect bungalows and have winter homes. They are Mr. O. B. Sheppard, Mr. T. F. Pheasant, Mr. T. H. Sheppard. Their place in one of the most beautifully situated on the whole island, it has long water frontage on the Casas River which is locally known as "Millionaires Row." With its excellent facilities for bathing, motor-boating, canoeing, etc., it makes an ideal place for a winter home. The banks are very high and thus the full benefit of all breezes is secured. This island, which fits in in many ways with Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," and which was undoubtedly infested by pirates, has a very interesting history. Peg-Leg Jolo, Morgan, Drake, and others work that ilk, made it their rendezvous and was thru the keys and shoal waters slip. Many claim that this is, indeed, the one and only original "Treasure Island." People have certainly dug no one knows here. With what results the authorities would demand one-third of the booty. In size the Isle of Pines is one-third the size of Porto Rico. It is quite large enough to have slight diversities and decided differences in the soil. The central part of the island, from north up the Casas River to San Francisco Heights and Santa Fe, appeal to me as the finest part of the island. It is probably the most uniform, excellent tract of land—the only portion, I should say, that one would be safe in home. In addition to its many health-improving features it is a paying commercial proposition. Its pine-apples are not equaled elsewhere and its grapefruit unsurpassed. Native fruit abounds and beautiful flowers and royal palms make a delightful environment. The Isle of Pines is young and full of life. It might appropriately be termed "The Isle with a Future." Regarding its destiny a great movement is on-foot at present which is likely to change its future history. It is in present governed, and well governed, from Havana, Cuba. A monster petition is being signed by hundreds of thousands asking that United States, whose property it really is, to govern it either by governor or from Washington. The indications are very favorable to that being done and in that event land values will soar very high. It will not affect the island appreciably except from a sentimental standpoint. William Jennings Bryan was here this winter and was greatly impressed with the island's many features. Hon. Arthur M. Beaupre, American minister to Cuba, was also a recent and enthusiastic visitor to the island. Prominent among Torontonians who are now on the island are: Mr. Fred Keller of the Gerhard Heintzman Co., and Mr. A. E. Phillips. Mr. Keller says that he never saw a climate like that enjoyed by this island where it is always warm but never hot. Others from Toronto are: Mr. and Mrs. H. Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Pheasant, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Sheppard, Miss E. Sheppard, Misses J. and A. Robertson, from St. Catharines, Mr. and Mrs. McElroy, from Midland, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Pratt, Miss E. Pratt, Mrs. Geo. Chew, Messrs. Fred and Beverly Chew, G. Cotton; from Berlin, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Hueth; from A. J. Ross, D. J. Minchin, H. Tolton, J. McAllister. The season is getting pretty well on so that a great many have gone back home. There are several from the Maritime Provinces and the west. What do you do with yourself? How do you put in the time? People who have never been south ask, what don't you do that you can any place where you have perfect summer weather. All the outdoor sports, including horseback riding, canoeing, shooting, fishing, motor-boating, swimming, picnics, dances, (lots of them) tennis. And a few other sports indigenous to the soil flourish in a short time, under Mr. Fred Keller's chaperonage, I go to see my first cock-fight in a little beautiful arena surrounded with royal palms and mango trees; the latter covered with most luscious mangoes. The cock-fight is a national institution attended by all hands. By-the-way, the fresh fruit and vegetables—16-lb. pineapples, new potatoes all the year round, are a treat. There is no necessity for saying that this island is growing and developing rapidly. With such natural advantages discovery meant popularity, so popularity is following fast on discovery heels. This is the coming wintering place—and will be especially popular with Canucks on account of the number of Canadians here. It is an ideal place for people of means and is rightly termed "The Gem of the Caribbean." In the illustrated section this week will be found several views of the Isle of Pines.

The first is the Ideal Sure-Grip Safety Catch, which provides for sliding sides without the old disadvantages of the hook catch. See illustration.

The second is the Ideal Ball Bearing Caster, which enables you to push or slide the crib in any direction and over any surface, rough floor or carpet, almost without effort, without noise and without causing a rattle or strain anywhere.

We want your opinion of these features and we want you to tell us, if you will, whether you think there is any further way in which these cribs can be improved.

HOW TO COMPETE

Go to your furniture dealer. Say "Please show me your line of 'Ideal' Cribs." Ask him to demonstrate the working of the "Ideal" Sure-Grip Safety Catch. Ask him to show you how easily the crib can be moved on the Ideal Ball Bearing Casters. Note the strength of the Spring. See the well-made mattresses we provide. See how smooth and white the enamel is. Then ask the dealer to give you the number and dimensions of the crib you looked at and write us your opinion of it.

- Tells us: 1. What you think are its good points;
- 2. Whether you think it has any bad points, and—
- 3. How you think such bad points might be improved.

The judges will be Mr. W. P. Bennett, Managing Director of the Ideal Bedding Company; Mr. J. J. Gibbons, of J. J. Gibbons Limited, and Mr. W. G. Rook, of the Canadian Home Journal.

Their awards and decisions must be accepted as final. All replies must be received at these offices not later than May 1st; prizes will be awarded on May 15th, and awards will be announced in the June number of the Canadian Home Journal.

Make up your mind to use your eyes with a little good judgment and there is no reason why you should not win a prize.

"The Chocolates that are different."

EUGENIE BLAIR IN "MADAME X." Being an actress of wide scope and experience there is not a doubt but what she can bring to bear all the emotion, force and temperament so absolutely necessary toward giving a finished and polished interpretation of this difficult role. The play itself is too well known to say much about. In fact the press of the entire world has said about all that could be said. It is a truly wonderful play and one which has lent to the stage one of the greatest dramatic offerings ever presented. The story tells of a woman who erred and repented, but was not forgiven, and whose pride kept her from further seeking forgiveness. Left alone she drifted and drifted until her shame was so great she became an absinthe fiend, and in a row killed her paramour who sought to find her husband and extort money from him. Her own son whom she does not know, nor who knows her, is appointed to defend her and secures her acquittal thru his wonderful plea. Her husband who is in court to hear his boy plead his first case, recognizes his wife, who dies almost immediately after the verdict is rendered. Miss Blair is accompanied by a carefully selected company of metropolitan players, and brings the entire original production with her.

PAGE BOYS OF THE ONTARIO PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.

If you have an apple tree that is not producing fruit that you desire, it can be grafted with scions of good varieties and they will bear in three years. Grafting is interesting work, and can be performed by any amateur who will give the necessary attention to details. Have you ever seen a fruit tree bearing a half-dozen different varieties or more? If not, why not try the experiment for the fun of the thing?

When pruning apple trees see that they are well thinned out so that the sun can gain access to the centre. Do not allow any limbs to rub or cross. Pear and plum trees should be shortened in at least about one-third of last season's growth. Cherry trees require very little pruning when once well formed and well established.

Grape vines require systematic pruning each year. The method to follow will depend upon the system of pruning given the vine during the first two or three years of its growth. One of the main points to observe is to keep the bearing wood as near as possible the main trunk or the main arms. Thin out well, leaving only about six or eight limbs to a vine, well placed, and each limb with no more than six or seven buds.

Order seeds and plants for the garden as early as possible. By so doing, one is certain of getting what he wants and in best quality.

As soon as possible start seeds of nasturtiums for window boxes or for transplanting to the garden later. Do not sow thickly, as they do not transplant as easily as many other kinds of annuals. Place two or three seeds in a three-inch pot. To secure early flowers of mignonette, sow eight or ten seeds in the same sized pots as mentioned for nasturtiums. A few pots of petunias, verbenas, cosmos and lobelia also should be sown, as they require to be early to give good flowering results. Antirrhinum and scabiosa seeds may be started similarly.
