Grey was satisfied to be making money, and kept out of the market. But the enthusiastic slogan of "Buy-buy-buy" was contagious...

When he renewed his acquaintance with Grey, Prendergast had just been caught in a Reading deal, and consequently was in a frame of mind to decry all speculation...

Without, Broadway roared, a river of humanity in turbulent flood. Grey's eyes wandered over the crowd, seeing nothing of it...

"I think there is no need of my looking them over, Miss Stafford," he said. "You are usually very accurate."

He failed to catch her reply, made the any. But as he opened the hall door, something impelled him to glance back...

Once in the open air he was conscious of a certain sensation of relief. A break with Prendergast was inevitable, now—at last!

As for Prendergast, Grey's mind was made up; an observer might have caught an inkling of his intentions from the set of his jaw and the look in his eyes.

A SQUALL IN LONDON

With the cheerful and vigorous aid of the Irish members, the liberals in the British commons last evening created such an uproar that the speaker was compelled to adjourn the house.

In the course of a reply to some question Mr. Balfour stated a former statement that the government did not intend to deal with the fiscal question in the present session. He added that a colonial conference might be held in 1906 to consider the question of colonial preferences.

By Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the liberal leader, charges were made against Mr. Balfour with violating a pledge he had made in his Edinburgh speech, and moved the adjournment of the house to discuss the matter. He demanded that Mr. Balfour give a plain answer. The latter did not respond, but the secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Lytton, rose to speak. He was not permitted to proceed, nor was Mr. Winston Churchill. The liberals wanted to hear Mr. Balfour, thinking they would be able to dig from him something that would be of political advantage. But Mr. Balfour was so polite that the house should hear Mr. Lytton, and the latter rose once more. Immediately the disorder was renewed, and a great noise that the speaker finally adjourned the house.

NO CAUSE FOR PANIC

The New York stock market is again a centre of interest, because of the rapid fluctuations and the uncertainty that prevails with regard to the future. Last week's bank statement was rather disappointing. There is the usual doubt about the crops. The eastern crisis is still a disturbing feature. There is a slight fall in the demand for iron from the western railway dispute causes some uneasiness. Thomas W. Lawson is still hurrying broadcast at "the system," and threatening it with disaster. All those things have got on the nerves of "the street" and prices have declined. Some of the newspapers add to the doubtful feeling that prevails. One, for instance, prints large headlines as follows:

"Bulls are as extinct in Wall street as the last-winged dinosaurs - They have been exterminated by the rust, the boll weevil, the army worm and the Boston bogy man - Not a tick in the clouds - Everything is gloom, gloom, gloom."

On the commercial page the Times today quotes from several of Saturday's papers comments on the situation. The comment that is probably nearest to a true statement of the case is the following from the New York Evening Post:

Each year, at this time, the impressive spectacle is presented of the financial market automatically putting themselves in a state where they can await with equanimity the approach of harvest, and of Wall street predicting bad times as a consequence. The month of May is the period within the one entire uncertainty, among the factors which go to make up what we call prosperity, is turned into fact by the withdrawal of men, collectively and individually, has so much to do with determining the course of events in every other branch of industry, that the probabilities may be weighed from day to day by an observer cannot say whether the grain and cotton crops will be favored with sun and rain in due proportion up to harvest time, or whether a wet season or a dry season will upset all the plans of the farmer. Where so many other industries depend directly or indirectly on what grows out of the ground in a given season, it is natural that all industrial plans should be held in line of greatest doubt, so that the stock market should readjust itself to a normal level. It is not at all unlikely that the sudden cessation of orders in the iron trade is really a consequence of the present attitude. No one can have travelled through the great agricultural districts of the country - or, for that matter, have read the weekly trade reviews - without comprehending how largely the exportation of eastern merchandise is to be produced, transported, and sold to a great part of our population, rest on the probable good or bad luck of the American farmer. This being so, one could hardly with reason expect a wild, half-speculative buying movement in manufactures to be carried out by merchants and middlemen at the very moment when an accident of nature might leave them with unsalable stocks of merchandise on their hands. Nothing is lost by waiting a month or two, and very much may be gained.

As a matter of fact, the bulk in demand for iron, during May, is familiar in its intensity of markets as the cessation of demand for securities. It came in this month of 1904, 1905, 1906, 1907, and 1908, so that...

one who came to look up the monthly record of output and unsold supplies will discover, and it came for the same reason on each occasion. That does not mean that there may not have been contributory causes at those times. In 1906 and 1907 there were other causes at work which were more prominent in their nature. But the point is, that Wall street's gloom and despondency is always precisely the same when the "May reaction" comes, and the philosophers of the Stock Exchange are always sure that never was a month of May so abnormal as this one is.

The truth is, nobody can determine satisfactorily whether the check of financial activity was a response to this ordinary doubt as to harvest prospects, or to some deeper cause, until the harvest is fairly under way. We have plenty of bad business years with good harvests, and plenty of good business years when crops run short. Even the fact that the fall in stock exchange prices, this season, has been more violent than usual, proves nothing. Two months ago the market was further than usual above the normal level. If St. Paul shares have fallen 16 points, Union Pacific 20, and New York Central 28, during the past eight weeks, it must also be remembered that those one stocks had risen respectively 14, 24, and 26 points in the eight weeks before that, and had begun that advance from prices which were themselves the embodiment of an almost unbroken six-months' upward movement. There is at least some extravagance in describing the dropping of such excesses in values as a necessary signal of disaster. The market, Wall street, and the country at large, are the better for it. If the year's real governing influences in finance are to be favorable, there is the less danger of wild "over-speculating" by Wall street. If, on the other hand, we have some unpleasant developments before us, markets are now in shape to meet them.

The news of the death of Mrs. Mary A. Livermore recalls the life-work of one of the most famous of American women. Doubtless quite a number of St. John people have read with interest her autobiography, or other of her published works. Like that other famous Boston woman, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who last week, despite her great age, delivered a vigorous address on Women's Work in the World, Mrs. Livermore was active up to the very close of her long and useful life.

The Winnipeg Free Press states that during the decade, 1891-1901, the population of Winnipeg increased by 63 per cent, and that of St. Boniface, just across the river, only 20 per cent. But since 1901 the tables have been turned. The population of St. Boniface has increased 108 per cent, while Winnipeg increased 88 per cent.

Winnipeg will open a new rifle range on May 24th. It cost about $50,000, and will be one of the finest in Canada. There are twenty-five targets. Lady McMillan will fire the first shot, and his Honor Lieutenant-Governor McMillan will hoist the flag over the guns.

The Hon. G. W. Ross of Ontario disapproves of the proposed university residences in Toronto. He says McGill has none, the Scotch universities have none, and he believes the same could be said of the universities of Germany.

A BEAR STORY

Grand Falls Nimrod Has Exciting Fight With Bruin in His Native Woods. GRAND FALLS, May 23 (Special)—When Joe O'Regan accompanied by William Taylor visited Sunday the former's bear trap, set near Ryan Brook, a few miles from town, they heard a racket that apprised them at once that some large animal was in the trap. Cautionally approaching through the bushes, they discovered a huge male bear, who in his rage was then chewing the large dog pole attached by a big chain to the trap. Taylor did not like the look of the bear and told O'Regan, who was armed with a Winchester, not to go nearer, but to fire now, since the bear might be loose. Judge O'Regan's surprise when the bear rising on his hind legs, and the trap dangling on one fore paw, started towards him on the run, gnashing his teeth and foam falling from his mighty jaws. Hearing his approach, brain in his mighty struggles had broken the big chain attached to the heavy hard-wood pole or log, which caught between two trees and held the bear. The bear was not five feet distant when O'Regan fired, and brim dropped with a bullet in his brain. The bear was the largest ever killed in this neighborhood. Your scribe has one of the claws or nails which exceeds two inches in length. Embowered with the heavy trap and pole which requires two men to lift and handle the bear, although unable on account of the trap to use one paw, had climbed trees to the top, tearing the bark and timber in the very direction. The hide was black, glossy, curly and in splendid condition. Mr. O'Regan has set four more traps between the entrance to the woods and the forks of Ryan Brook, and expects to capture several more bears.

McGINN ELECTED

By a Majority of Sixty-Four He Defeats Joseph Walker in Fredericton Aldermanic Contest. Fredericton, May 23 (Special)—By a majority of sixty-four the ratepayers of the city today elected Wm. J. McGinn as alderman for St. Ann's ward over Joseph Walker. It was one of the sharpest contests the city has seen for sometime and the vote polled was surprisingly large for a bye-election.

Mr. McGinn entered the contest as a protest against the action of the city council in dismissing him from the position of superintendent of street lighting and a great deal of sympathy was felt for him, especially by mechanics and working men who gave him almost a solid support. His forces were better organized than his opponents and the only cause for surprise is the majority was not larger. The fact that Mr. McGinn is a Roman Catholic and Mr. Walker past county master of the Orange order lent an additional interest to the contest. The result of voting was as early day.

McGinn, Walker. City Hall 185 228 Court House 212 105 Totals 397 333 Majority for McGinn 64

The city clerk announced the result of the poll in the council chamber and afterward brief speeches were delivered by the candidates.

Mr. Jack Patterson, of the engineering class of 1905, of University, will report at the Grand Trunk railway's head offices at Ottawa on Tuesday, having been appointed to the position of field draughtsman on the western section of the trans-continent railway.

There will be 50,000 feet of lumber on the Upper St. John waters, which will not be brought out this spring, said a prominent lumberman on Saturday evening. Continuing the gentleman said that a lot more of the 100,000 feet of lumber estimated to be cut out this year would have to wait over for another season unless there is a wonderful rise of water at an early day.

There have been less runnings by the city in large numbers for some days past, but according to those in a position to know these logs are all from the Sugar Island boom. It is estimated that not more than 2,000,000 feet of new lumber has come into the boom this season so far. This is a very small amount, and is discouraging to the lumbermen.

INVESTIGATION IS POSTPONED

Hearing in the Bowen-Loomis Scandal at Washington Will Go Over. Washington, May 23—The further investigation of the Bowen-Loomis scandal has been postponed pending the arrival in this city of William V. Russell, late minister to Colombia, whom Mr. Bowen wants to have examined before any decision on the case is reached. Mr. Russell was secretary of the Bowen-Loomis scandal, and the latter was minister at Caracas.

When Mr. Bowen, talking with Secretary Taft today about the testimony of John Slater, a New York newspaper correspondent, asked to have Mr. Russell called as a witness, Secretary Taft secured the president's permission to delay further investigation until Mr. Russell reached here.

Clasper Whitney, of New York, another witness summoned to Washington, has been examined by the president but it is stated he had no material evidence to contribute to the case.
