JR. COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE.

HAMPTON.

Hampton, Sept. 26.—The Kings county Teachers' Institute has been in session here for the past two days. On Thursday evening, Agricultural hall was filled to the doors with a select and intelligent audience to listen to the various speakers on the educational work of this province and Kings county in particular.

On the platform were the chairman, Rev. C. D. Schofield, doctor, teacher, and superintendent of education; Prof. William Raymond, of the New Brunswick University; Inspector Stevens, Fred. M. Sprout, Councillor S. Flewelling, chairman of the local board of school trustees, and Secretary Smith, of the station school. After preliminary remarks by the chairman, welcoming the visiting teachers, Professor Raymond was introduced and read an excellent paper on the value of a college education.

He presented figures showing that a large percentage of successful men in all the various walks of life were university graduates. If a man who sports a B. A. after his name proves a failure, that is no discredit to the university through which he passed. The B. A. simply shows that the man had a chance but did not profit by it.

Miss Louise Sewell, youngest daughter of the late Rev. William Scovil, formerly rector of Trinity church, Kingston, died Thursday week, of consumption, in Colorado, and her remains were brought home and buried in Trinity church yard, where she was born 23 years ago. Out of a family of six children only Samuel remains. All the others, except Ernest, died of consumption. Lizzy, wife of the late Fairweather, of Robbsey, was the eldest daughter and the last to precede Fannie.

Miss Williams, youngest daughter of Robert Williams, of Kingston, died of the same place. Perry Fairweather, a former Norton boy, was married on Wednesday to Miss Ray Princes, both of Kingston. John Frost, a popular widower, of Lower Norton, was married on Wednesday morning to Mrs. (Rev.) McNeil, formerly pastor of this village Baptist church for five years.

Miss Louise Flewelling, youngest daughter of the late Gifford Flewelling, was married on Wednesday at 5 o'clock in the Presbyterian church, to the Rev. Mr. Glover. They have gone to Prince Edward Island on their wedding tour. After their return they will sail for England, where they will remain a year, taking with them the bride's mother. Harry Robinson held a section sale of his house and other property at Centreville on Wednesday and will shortly remove to Boston. He will be greatly missed by his many friends in this community and especially among the boys belonging to the school here.

Miss Cora Milton, of Albert Mines, has been spending a few days with friends here. William Stiles of Arington Heights (Mass.), who has been visiting relatives here, has returned to his home in Boston, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. John M. Stiles, who will make a few weeks' visit in the States. Albion Stewart, I. C. R. fireman, of Moncton, visited his father, Hinton Stewart, here today.

Contractors James Piers & Son are placing a stone foundation under the ell of the Rev. Mr. Evans' house. Frederickton, Sept. 28.—(Special)—The steamer Aberdeen has been engaged to take mail to the States on the Washington route and goes to St. John today to make ready for the trip. A large number of people are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Agricultural Society at St. John tomorrow to attend the annual festival.

HOPEWELL HILL.

Hopewell Hill, Sept. 26.—The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra O. Barber, of Albert, will deeply sympathize with the death of their only son, Harry, 18 years of age, who died this morning from blood poisoning, resulting from a carbuncle. The deceased was a member of the school and was held in the highest esteem.

Miss Mary E. Archibald, daughter of Luther E. Archibald, who was walking along the bank of Church brook, toward her father's pasture, yesterday morning, fell over the cliff and sustained quite severe injuries. The young lady was found at the bottom of the bank in a semi-conscious condition, and assisted home by some men who were on their way to the mill. Her injuries were attended to by Dr. L. Chismann.

Mrs. Belle Jamieson, who has been visiting friends here, left this week for her home in Fredericton. Mr. and Mrs. George W. Newcombe visited Springhill (N. S.) this week. Paul C. Robinson, who has been on a trip to Bermuda (Ira) as first officer of the three-masted Ethyl B. Sumner, has returned to his home here.

At the afternoon session of the Albert County Teachers' Institute, yesterday, a very excellent paper on Teaching was read by W. M. Burns, which dealt largely with the qualifications of the teacher. It was highly commended, and emphasized the high standing and importance of the profession, which was the basis of all successful teaching. It was impossible to do for what we know, and a full and complete mastery of all subjects dealt with was imperative. Teachers should have a good fund of reserve information in order to be thoroughly prepared. He should be continually adding to his knowledge. The question of temper was touched upon and Mr. Chismann recommended that in order to attain it at all times of manly and womanly dignity.

Mr. Burns paper was followed by a masterly and exhaustive paper on Free Text Books by L. R. Hetherington, M. A., which was greatly appreciated by the Institute, and met with unanimous approval. The paper is most worthy of appearing in print in full. Last evening a largely attended public meeting was held in the Methodist church, which was addressed by Rev. Mr. McPherson, of Riverside; Rev. M. E. Fletcher, of Harver, and Rev. Allan W. Smithers, of the Church of England. All of the addresses were excellent, being recommended by a gentleman present, who was in a position to judge, to be the best ever heard by him at any Institute meeting here held at the province. Mr. McPherson spoke largely on the Appreciation of the Teacher, his remarks being most highly appreciated by the audience. Mr. Fletcher's address gave in a most entertaining manner an idea how native schools were conducted in Burma, where the reverend gentleman had spent nine years.

Rev. Mr. Smithers in a very scholarly manner, emphasized the need of a deductive rather than an inductive method of education, and the necessity of psychological training. He placed a high value on university education and the development of individuality, and referred in eloquent terms to the powerful personality of Cecil Rhodes, the great imperialist who said education was one of the most important factors in the unit front of the empire. Vocal music during the evening was furnished by C. Elvin and Miss Amy Peck. The speakers and Mr. Alexander Rogers, the chairman, as well as the singers received hearty votes of thanks.

At this morning's session of an excellent paper on the teaching of Latin was read by T. E. Colpitts, A. B., and an interesting and suggestive paper on Teachers' Unions and Salaries, by E. A. Coleman, of Surrey. The discussion on Mr. Coleman's paper was opened by H. H. Stuart, Mr. Stuart

FREDERICTON.

Fredericton, Sept. 28.—(Special)—The steamer Aberdeen has been engaged to take mail to the States on the Washington route and goes to St. John today to make ready for the trip.

A large number of people are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Agricultural Society at St. John tomorrow to attend the annual festival.

At the public meeting at Burton Friday evening, Mr. McPherson announced that opposing the bank of Church brook, take the field in the counties of Madawaska, Victoria and Carleton, but made no reference to York, which would indicate that the bank was to be taken to the city on Friday was barren of results.

The outlook here is decidedly gloomy for the opposition. It was thought it said there are several young lawyers willing to take the field if the party will put up the staff.

Mr. H. H. Hazen had a long conference with George Oiler, president of the Conservative Association, but nothing has yet been heard in regard to calling a convention of the party.

Henry Kerr, of Boiestown, who has been in Victoria Hospital for a fortnight undergoing treatment for paralysis, died yesterday morning at the age of 70 years. He was a native of New York, and was a member of the Victoria Lodge, No. 214, of the Grand Lodge of the Province of New Brunswick.

Adam Moore, a celebrated guide, who has been hunting on the coast with J. D. Moore and son, of New York, returned to the city yesterday by way of Bathurst, having canned down the rapids with Mrs. Rogers' housekeeper here. The party returned home by way of St. John.

F. F. Dow and Mr. McLeod, of Boston, who returned yesterday from a hunting trip to Gaspereaux. They wounded a moose but it got away, and the guide, Jim Paul, returned to try and find it. Three New York millionaires were out on the Tobique last week with Chas. Creemian, as guide, and secured one moose.

GATHAM.

Gatham, Sept. 28.—The regular meeting of the Northumberland County Agricultural Society was held in the Canada House last night. There was a good attendance.

It was shown that the new driving track which is expected to be one of the best in the province, was nearly completed. Plans for the agricultural exhibit in the building were laid before the meeting, but nothing definite was decided upon.

The advisability of holding an agricultural exhibition this year was discussed, but it was decided to postpone it until next year, when the new building would be ready.

The Northumberland County Teachers' Institute will be held in Hartness Academy, Newcastle, on Thursday and Friday, the 2nd and 3rd of October.

Little Harold Desbross, who accidentally shot himself last Sunday, is rapidly recovering.

Mr. Stuart Loggie, who has been spending his vacation at home, left on Sunday night for Montreal, where he is a student at McGill.

Miss Snowball gave a much enjoyed ball on the steamer St. Nicholas on Tuesday afternoon.

THE RESULT OF ENVIRONMENT. The Doherty murder and its subsequent legal proceedings have revealed such a state of youthful depravity in St. John as to suggest that the moral tone of the boys in this community is deteriorating, and that we are facing a problem of delinquency which opens ill for the future of this city.

Indeed it is even more clear now than it was after the chilly St. John meeting, that the opposition plant is of the hot-house variety and will not endure the "nipping" and "eager" air which accompanies a public test of its strength. Mr. Anderson, so long alone in the field and so coldly welcomed, must begin to feel a little less alone. Mayhap already he glances furtively at the fence as one who were he wise and had the courage to be cowardly, would wish himself on the other side.

While the immortal Fairville thrury are trying to persuade someone to run the obstacle race with Mr. Anderson, Mr. Hazen might "oblige," as the vaudeville folk have it, and tell us where the opposition sentiment is really strong. For Fairville after the York Theatre is really disheartening. From Campbellton the tidings are equally doleful. The convention there last evening did not nominate candidates and though Mr. Hazen and Mr. Mott had more than thirty persons before them they simply repeated ancient changes and left the nominating committee to make the best of a bad job.

A DREAM OF PAN-LATINISM. The growth and development of Pan-Slavism and Pan-Germanism in Europe has given French publicists an opportunity to put forward schemes for the advancement of Pan-Latinism or an alliance of the so-called Latin nations. There is nothing new in this movement for it was first conceived about the time of the downfall of the great Napoleon. It did not, however, receive much attention until Victor Hugo and Lamartine placed it prominently before the French people after the revolution of 1848, and there is no doubt that it impressed Napoleon III as his policy was evidently to form an alliance with Italy. His disastrous Mexican adventure under Maximilian was an offspring of this same idea, and had for its object the establishment of a Latin kingdom in America to thwart the advance of the Anglo-Saxon on this continent.

There is a disposition on the part of French publicists at present to urge a Pan-Latin alliance composed of France, Italy and Spain. Some of the arguments put forward by the political writers are well taken. Commercially Italy and France are have and particularly the opportunity to indulge in vicious ill-will, and we deny them the healthy exercise either of the woodpile or the public playground. And the boys are the product of our treatment, and their crimes the natural outcome of unnatural conditions.

THE FROST STRIKES FAIRVILLE.

The much heralded opposition convention for the parishes of Lancaster and Musquash was held in Fairville Monday and the ice wagon which was backed up to the doors of the York Theatre recently was again in evidence. The facts about the Fairville meeting are little short of brutal, but they must be told. They do not nominate a running mate for Mr. F. M. Anderson because there were only about thirty voters in the hall and these gentlemen, unthawed by the malcontent orators who talked "agin" the government," did not feel that they could do anything wiser than to adjourn without naming a man.

The chief spell-binders present were Mr. F. M. Sprout, the rejected of Kings; Mr. George V. Melmersey, the rejected of Kent; Mr. F. M. Anderson, the pie-social artist; and Mr. J. B. M. Baxter, whose name is yet to make and who it must be fairly set forth, saved the air to better effect than did his distinguished associates last evening.

Due tribute must be paid to the fortitude of the thirty men who stuck to their seats here for Mr. Anderson, and the pie-juggler pointed out the hideous inequities they said they detected in the local administration. But even the courage of the now immortal thirty could not prevail against the funeral and very evident fact that the tender vice which the opposition thrust forth tentatively in Fairville had been nipped by the frost which, advised from other portions of the province tell us, has brightened the far from robust campaign of Mr. Hazen and his men elsewhere.

Indeed it is even more clear now than it was after the chilly St. John meeting, that the opposition plant is of the hot-house variety and will not endure the "nipping" and "eager" air which accompanies a public test of its strength. Mr. Anderson, so long alone in the field and so coldly welcomed, must begin to feel a little less alone. Mayhap already he glances furtively at the fence as one who were he wise and had the courage to be cowardly, would wish himself on the other side. But there is one thing we wish to say right here for Mr. Anderson, and that is that he is a strategist of no mean ability. Fearful of some such lack of an audience as he encountered at Fairville, he had himself nominated as auctioneer at the recent pie social in another part of the county, and having disposed of the pie and seen that the crowd assembled to buy and eat them would "blow" be easily dispersed, he unwisely essayed on government inequity with assurance it not success. It was unfair, perhaps, but a man in Mr. Anderson's position must do something.

While the immortal Fairville thrury are trying to persuade someone to run the obstacle race with Mr. Anderson, Mr. Hazen might "oblige," as the vaudeville folk have it, and tell us where the opposition sentiment is really strong. For Fairville after the York Theatre is really disheartening. From Campbellton the tidings are equally doleful. The convention there last evening did not nominate candidates and though Mr. Hazen and Mr. Mott had more than thirty persons before them they simply repeated ancient changes and left the nominating committee to make the best of a bad job.

There is no election for some months yet the prematurely launched opposition movement will soon spend itself. Already it has been demonstrated clearly that its carrying power will be as slight as we felt warranted in saying it would be when we noted its initial velocity. Even Mr. Hazen, unless he does much better in the near future, can blame no one for refusing to regard him and his remarkable associates seriously.

MR. POWELL SOWS THE WIND.

The Telegraph has watched with interest the career of Mr. H. A. Powell, former M. P. for Westmorland, since the days when as a "boy orator" he talked himself into the local legislature. He was reckless of assertion in those days and age has not sobered him. Nor has political experience added to his small native wisdom. Since he has been with Mr. Borden in the West Mr. Powell has been sowing the wind with characteristic disregard of the reaping which will be in order in due season. The Kootenay (B. C.) Mail has this to say of him:

After listening to the address of Mr. Powell, ex-M. P. for Westmorland, we do not wonder at his admission that his constituents sneered him under by 330 to 400 votes. Mr. Borden should have left him at home. A man who will characterize a responsible body of civil servants, like the Intercolonial employees, as being "the scum of the earth," as Mr. Powell did here, is certainly not a fit and proper person to represent them in parliament. Perhaps Mr. Powell thought as he was away from home he could say such things with impunity; but it is the duty of the Intercolonial employees to deal with such a disgraceful charge. Again, his assertion that the Canadian postoffice staff is being recruited from criminals is another insult to a large and hardworked body of civil servants, and we do not believe Mr. Powell would dare to make these charges in the east, where the parties referred to are known. He is one of the men who strives to get class against class, judging from his insulting references to the French-Canadians.

Mr. Powell, it must be seen from the foregoing, has been storing up trouble for himself in the future. The people know that his remarks which are in extremely bad taste are no answer to the magnificent showing of the Intercolonial to which the Telegraph together with the Liberal press generally gave prominence recently in its news columns. The Mail is correct in asserting that Mr. Powell would not dare to repeat these amazing and criminally reckless charges in his own province. He will find when he returns that the news of his interesting vice has preceded him and should he ask anything at the hands of the people in New Brunswick hereafter they will know how to answer.

RUSSIA'S IRON HAND.

The recent appeal of the municipality of Helsinki against the replacing of the local police by Cossacks recalls the general process of Russification which is taking place in Finland. A few years ago some of the most prominent men of this civilized world sent a memorial to the Czar praying that the Finns be accorded better treatment and permitted to retain their language and customs, and control their educational institutions. This appeal, like that from Helsinki, was refused by the Emperor.

THE OULTON CASE.

The safety of human life diminishes every time a murderer goes undetected and unpunished. The law-abiding citizen goes on as before, but to the potential murderer in a community the escape of an assassin—the plain proof that a grave crime may be committed with a fair chance that no penalty will follow—is an invitation to try their luck. That the law, which is intended to prevent even more than to punish, should reach the offender is of the gravest importance. The quicker it strikes the guilty—and the harder—the smaller will be the number who yield to any criminal impulses thereafter. If there was any doubt in this community that justice Oulton was meted out, that doubt is all probability was removed by the Telegraph's publication today of an interview with Holm, the convict, whose knowledge of recent crimes in St. John proves so astonishing. Who can say how much the fact that the slayer of Oulton escaped had to do with the murder of Boheny which followed? Boys are impressionable and of simple logic. Some one killed Oulton and went about his business unmolested. Might not someone kill Doherty and have equal luck?

From this aspect, if from no other, the death of the old miser takes on an importance which the police are too slow in recognizing but which the local government emphasized by offering a reward for the murderers.

Commenting editorially upon the statements of Holm the Globe says "there is quite sufficient in them to justify the authorities in a re-examination of the whole matter." True, and each re-examination is a step in progress as a result of the investigations made by this newspaper. It is unfortunate that somewhat more robust methods were not employed by the police immediately after the discovery of the body. It is all work following a cold trail when the quarry has human cunning to profit by the lapse of time. Had several arrests been made at once and the prisoners been separated and held for such time as was sufficient to prove conclusively whether or not their hands were clean, innocent persons might have been subjected to temporary annoyance and even injustice, but in the end the balance would have been on the side of the public good. And it might have been demonstrated, as it cannot be too often, that in St. John murder is not a safe trade.

The Telegraph attaches no undue importance to the statements of a felon as such, but unquestionably there was in the convict's complacent narrative much information which confirmed the general impression as to the nature of the Oulton affair.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Athletic sport for the boys of this city is one of St. John's greatest needs. It is a healthy substitute for the dime novel and the tanyard. It cannot be an awful blow to the local pride of Truro when the Upper Canadian papers speak of the McNutt shooting as a "double tragedy at Halifax, N. S."

Mr. J. D. Hazen, the opposition leader, promises not to claim his defeat of the Tweedie administration as a Conservative victory. We congratulate Mr. Hazen on his modesty.

We have been expecting the morning summary to inculcate that the Attorney-General had a hand in the Oulton mystery in the moments which he could spare from his dark designs on the Oromocto bridge.

WOODSTOCK FAIR CLOSES.

The Prize Winners—A Spirited Competition by Lady Drivers—Most Successful Show. Woodstock, Sept. 30.—(Special)—The last of the three days' exhibition had, despite the weather and a fair crowd was in attendance. Nearly all of the visiting judges left town for home on the evening train.

A large number of Jersey cattle was exhibited and judged by score card. The results were: Jersey cow, John Connor, 1st; Jersey heifer, 2nd; Jersey bull, 3rd.

In the ladies' driving contest the following ladies drove elegant turnouts: Mrs. Belyea, the wife of Mayor Belyea; Mrs. (Mrs.) Manser, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Hayden, Miss McQuarrie and Miss Brown.

The judges considered the entries were of equal merit and decided that the prize money should be divided equally between them and that a medal be presented to each of the ladies.

In the jumping competition the horse ridden by Roy Briggs, 1st prize, and the one ridden by Arthur Smith, 2nd.

The following the grand, people of prize winners, after which the exhibition closed.

RULES OF THE ROAD FOR SHIPS AT SEA.

Draft of a Treaty for Uniform Law for Salvage and Collisions.

Hamburg, Sept. 26.—The fifth conference of the international maritime committee, which opened yesterday, today discussed and adopted the draft of a treaty relative to a uniform law for collisions and maritime salvage in the proposed code.

The distinction between "salvage" and "assistance" is abolished, and all successful services rendered to a ship in peril give the right to equitable remuneration. The sum to be paid is for successful service only, and cannot exceed the value of the saved property.

Persons who co-operate against the express prohibition of the captain of the ship in peril are barred from all right to remuneration, and the authorities who fix the compensation are to proceed on the basis of the efforts and merits of those who have rendered assistance, the saved property by the vessel assisted, the success obtained and the value of the salvaged objects.

Every contract made in time of peril may be modified in its effect by the captain, if he considers that remuneration should be divided equally between them and that a medal be presented to each of the ladies.

We are horrified at news of an insidious attempt to destroy that old and cherished institution the pie social. At Fairfield the St. Martins candidate, appeared before an unsuspecting crowd disguised as an auctioneer of pies, and then, throwing off the mask, spoke for half an hour "agin the government." Unless some one calls Mr. Anderson off the popularity of the pie social is over.

ST. JOHN LADY WRITES INTERESTINGLY OF LIFE ON THE WESTERN PRAIRIE.

The Havoc Played by a Heavy Rain With Homes and Property—What a Dust Storm is Like—Arthur Hayden's Burial in the Distant West.

Calgary N.W.T., July—Summer is in our midst regarding supreme in these delightful long days of summer and we know to appreciate its warm sunshine after the heavy rains and the flood of two weeks ago. Above us is today a cloudless sky, of matchless blue, and through our open windows is blown the perfume of the flowers as their heads nod graciously back and forth in the cool breeze.

How it did rain, when the heavy storms came. We almost thought that the fury of the gale would lift our house and carry us, with others, down the Bow river. All the night the wind blew and whistled round Calgary and while during the early part of evening only men in "slickers" were to be seen on streets, those of the female persuasion were safe indoors. For one who was a non-combatant it was capital fun to sit in a window and watch the gallant efforts of yellow-coated civilization trying to brave the street crossings with dignity, while the wind howled and tore at the coat tails which gaily streamed behind, before and above as the wind enjoyed its frolic, and we would (Shall I confess it?) merrily laugh as suffering humanity disappeared in reckless despair round the corner.

The following morning we learned that the Bow river had overflowed its banks, and was rushing madly down its course, carrying barns and houses which were of had been near its banks. The sight was well worth seeing and one most unusual to the New Brunswickers, so we all hurried to the scene of the disaster. Some of the streets we could not get across, as a team of oxen was rapidly widening, was running through the mud, and we often had to make a detour to get near our destination. There was much to be seen, tumblers, those of the Langavine bridge looking as if it had been hung over the middle of the river by some unseen mechanism, while the water dashed against the rear and the family Lares and Penates adorned the street.

One very long room in the barracks is always used as a ball room when dances are given, and a great deal of time and trouble are spent keeping the floor in good order for terephoson and other dancing. I believe they are very hospitable entertainers at the barracks, giving many dances through the winter, some as well as a few during the summer.

The C. B. R. gardens at the station are looking very pretty now, the young trees showing in well in the garden and foliage. In their midst is a band stand, and here the band plays every Thursday evening during the summer and the garden paths are well used for the purpose. I believe they are very hospitable entertainers at the barracks, giving many dances through the winter, some as well as a few during the summer.

The sad drowning of two little ones last week from playing near the water's edge, cast a gloom over Calgary. The little boy had fallen in and his sister, a bright girl of 13, thinking only of her brother, gave her noble young life endeavoring to rescue him, and I believe the bodies had not been recovered yet. It was a terrible shock to the morning, the news went forth of the drowning of Arthur Hayden in this creek, and rescue parties were sent out at once, but the body was not recovered until a fortnight ago. A brave Canadian soldier, one who had served his country nobly out in Africa; a young man who was esteemed among the highest in New Brunswick, where he was so favorably known and who in coming to this western country to carve out a future for himself, had made a noble young life endeavoring to rescue him, and I believe the bodies had not been recovered yet.

Was it not a great pity the coronation had to be postponed? If you had seen the Indians who had come and encamped on the outlying prairies nearly a week ahead of the time, in expectation of all the steeplechase and sports in store for them, you would understand the bitterness of the disappointment to them, as they had been making all their preparations to do the most startling colors. One morning up town I saw two squaws going along Stephen avenue with an Indian boy of about 11. The color of his face was so far as responsibility is admitted by the law of the particular state. Perhaps the most significant change proposed is that each vessel should be required to carry a fixed indemnity represented by a quota of the goods saved or their value.

The conference subsequently decided to submit two treaties approved by the conference to some government to be selected by the presiding board, with the request that the government approach other governments with a view of the adoption of the treaties.

A SERIOUS TALK ON DREAMS.

Constitute the Least Understood of the Phenomena of Sleep - Thought Transference - Some Causes of Dreams - What Various Ones Are Alleged to Portend.

No apology is necessary for a serious talk about dreams. They form a subject of large and general interest, which has played a conspicuous part in history, and will continue to influence the minds of men and women down to the end of time.

Hardy had addled and bridled and ridden you as a cavalry horse all night. It is not worth while pausing to consider whether or not there may be any truth in the dream. Everybody believes in them. Some minds view them with a large measure of credulity and attach a significance to every fantasy of the brain.

Dreams constitute the least understood of the phenomena of sleep, although from the earliest days of human society bright and zealous students have been striving to solve the mystery. One thing is clear: The mind which controls us while we are awake is not the same mind which sees and thinks while we are asleep.

The oddest thing about dreams, to my mind, is their unreliability. To the dreamer no matter how incongruous, absurd or fantastic—no matter how contrary to the facts, as known to the mind in waking activity—everything the sleeper sees or hears is plausible. The sense of comparison is gone, as well as the capacity to adjust things to our actual knowledge.

Thought Transference in Sleep. A recent discovery at the University of Chicago is calculated to throw an important light upon certain phases of dream-making. It is the presence of a fact that all nerve action is electro-dynamic, and this being so the correlation of minds is made identical with the wireless telegraph.

Unfavorable Omens to the Unmarried. To dream of white things, petals, a nun, dolls, being in love, losing a partner, attending an auction, driving a mule, vicarious, a castle, walrus, pearls, diamonds, a volcano, a bank, a battle, being hanged, white, fresh meat, a hotel, a looking glass, changing an engagement, a pistol, a theatre, cut glass, a ring, a diamond, a watch, a pair of diamonds, old shoes, setting a trap, a fan, being stung by a bee, a saw, copper, bitten, red ribbons, pins, shoes, copper, being a throne, being hungry, mourning, reading, a picnic, strawberries, drinking tea, snow, hearing a clock strike, sitting in a chimney corner, a mule, a pig, a bird, a cat, a dog, a horse, a man, an old man or an old woman, quines, doves, a shawl, or death.

There is a traveler at one of the big city hotels who doesn't like to be asked what happened to his trunk the other night. "The boys" have been fond of telling him that he resembles the chosen people. He doesn't like it a bit (those things are a matter of taste), and sometimes, he has been somewhat "frightened." Well, when he entered the sample room the other day, proudly leading in an important customer upon whom he was anxious to make a good impression, he was confronted by his trunk, which was suspended about five feet above the floor and which bore this sign in type of stark size:—"Israel Goldstein."

Indications of quarrels, plots, jealousy, false friends, danger—To dream of yam, wild apples, a wolf, ashes, a leopard, a volcano, war, anger, a bank, a battle, fog, seeing a bear, drinking beer, a sore tongue, onions, eating cake, a thaw, crabs, losing shoes, dirt, seeing cubs, hearing of selling secrets, unpaid bills, snakes, fanning, laughing, breaking ribs, ghosts, firing a gun, bags, taking medicine, iron, lizards, being blind, a cat (except the killing of), stones, being in the dust, washing your feet, seeing anything rotten, snails, fire, rats, being kissed by one you like, or being in a field.

It has been amply demonstrated that time plays an unimportant part in our dreams. An experience which might take an hour to recount, covering a long train of events, and including journeys by land and sea, may occur in a matter of minutes. Frequently a romance or tragedy may be woven about some casual appeal to our partial consciousness, such as the slaming of a door, or the presence of a bed covering upon some part. Yet it is worth noting that we seldom seem to hear loud noises in our dreams. We see the flash of a cannon, but the succeeding explosion is lost upon us. Neither do we appear to experience heavy shocks. We fall from a height, and unless we are awakened thereby, as usually happens, we never seem to land violently. There is something rhythmic about most dreams, and it is well that this is the case; for strenuous experiences clearly take away the refreshing effect of sleep. A friend who was reproached in the morning for looking weary and out of sorts, said: "You would feel tired, too, if big John

Around the Town

It requires more Christianity to watch in silence a person at down on your best hat than it does to continue your best hat on a hat that was put out of business in this case. But a last go-to-meeting overcoat, it was a dandy fall overcoat and, as a proud possessor passed down the aisle of one of St. John's churches on a recent Sabbath, I had to stifle the feeling of envy which is natural to man under such circumstances. The coat and its owner were politely ushered into a vacant pew, and they both took outside positions, the coat being laid over the seat outside the owner, who poked himself at the pew entry. All went well until the owner of the new appeared on the scene. He politely motioned for the coat owner to move further in the pew, so he need not pass over his feet. The proud possessor of the coat responded and, forgetful of his possession, allowed the new owner to sit down serenely on the garment. When the new owner rose to assist in taking the overcoat, the coat owner discovered he had been sitting on the coat owner's garment all through the service. Perhaps he didn't make nasty goo goo eyes at his host, who was the innocent cause of his predicament, but that is the oddest, nothing but a bundle of wrinkles, and it wasn't a patch to the owner's face. He had passed the stage of wrinkles, and it isn't he taking any love for the man who put his new fall coat temporarily out of business.

THE MAN'S DEAD BUT IT WAS ONLY "ASSAULT."

Augusta, Me., Sept. 26—After a trial extending over three days, a verdict of "guilty of assault" was returned by the jury in the case of James Granger, who was charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Albert W. Heseltine.

The jury had the case under consideration four hours before they agreed upon a verdict. Granger was released tonight in $500 bonds and will appear in court tomorrow and answer to the new charge established by the verdict of the jury. Heseltine came to his death through wounds alleged to have been inflicted during a quarrel at Granger's home. The prosecution claimed that the wounds were inflicted by Granger, and presented witnesses who testified to having heard Granger threaten to "cut out Heseltine's heart."
