FOR AMERICANS
NOW IN MEXICO

The State Department Demands Prompt Action From the Federal Authorities.

Many Foreigners Are Being Held for Ransom by the Revolutionists.

[Canadian Press.] Washington, July 18.—In response to Consul Hamm's request for protection for Americans in the Durango section the state department has demanded action from the Mexican federal authorities. The department went further than usual, in that it requested the Federal Government to dispatch troops from Torreon.

Consul Hamm has previously reported foreigners irrespective of nationality being held for ransom by revolutionists in Durango.

DIAZ APPOINTED. [Canadian Press.] Mexico City, July 18.—Gen. Felix Diaz, who has been appointed special ambassador to Japan to express the thanks of Mexico to the Japanese for their participation in Mexico's Centennial in 1910, is referred to today by the newspaper El Pais in an editorial article as "the political emissary." The article says Diaz is being sent out of the country and expresses the opinion that there will be no elections in Mexico in the time fixed.

"El Independiente" has frankly expressed the opinion that Diaz has been practically exiled, at least temporarily.

An unusual honor is to be paid to the new Japanese minister by the Mexican Government, which is sending a commission consisting of one representative of the foreign office and two military attaches, to meet him at the port of Manzanillo. Plans are being drawn up for a huge popular demonstration on the arrival in the capital of the Japanese diplomat.

MAY DISPOSE OF

Further Sale of Debentures To Be Discussed by Finance Committee.

A NEW OFFER TODAY

It is expected that there will be a further sale of city of London debentures effected at the session of the finance committee this afternoon. Two weeks ago the city disposed of $300,000 worth of bonds to the Wood-Gundy Company, Toronto, the sale being ratified at the meeting of July 7. Another offer has been received for an additional block of the city bonds, and will be considered this afternoon.

$100,000 Paid Over. In spite of the stringency in the money market London has made one fairly well on the $754,500 issue it had for sale this summer. At the time the debentures were advertised for sale no adequate bids were received. Six that time, however, the Toronto Bond Company has taken up its option in $300,000. Of this amount $100,000 has already been paid over, and it is expected that another $100,000 block will be taken up early next week, the remaining $100,000 being paid for before the end of the month.

Two Other Loans. City Treasurer J. S. Bell also has engineered two other loans. He has brought in $450,000 to the city treasury. The loans were, $200,000 with the Canada Trust Company and $250,000 with the Bank of Montreal, through the agency of the Citizens Bank. Bonds to the extent of the loans have been hypothecated, with the two financial institutions.

These bonds, which have been sold, were disposed of on a 5 per cent basis, a basis considered exceptionally good, with the money market in its present state of tightness. The offer to be made this afternoon will likely be on the same basis and will be for $250,000 of the 4 1/2 per cent 30-year bonds remaining unsold.

The funeral of Mrs. Booth will be held on Sunday morning to the G. T. R. depot to meet the 10:17 train for Windsor, where interment will be made.

[Canadian Press.] Kiel, Germany, July 18.—Eight thousand workmen in the shipbuilding yards here today joined in the strike started by 20,000 men at Hamburg on July 14. Original Figures of Expert Report
Will Be Demanded

Ald. Richter Points Out That It Is the Only Way to Check Mr. Warfield's Figures—Finds Report a Mass of Verbiage and Beyond Average Man to Interpret.

Requests for the original figures on which the Warfield report on electrification was based will be made by Ald. J. G. Richter at this afternoon's session of the finance committee. Ald. Richter's claim is that the original power curves, profiles and other data from which the report was compiled should be provided if the figures of the reporting engineer are to be checked up by the committee.

Must Have Data. "If we are going to check up those figures we have to have the data," explained Ald. Richter this morning. "We are not prepared to take anyone's say so that such and such figures are right. What we want to do is to ascertain just how those figures are computed."

Ald. Richter will make the further request that complete sets of the blue prints, used in compiling the report, be prepared and filed at the city hall—one with the city clerk's department, one in the engineer's department, another in the treasurer's, and one in the assessment department. In this way, if any reference were necessary in future years there would be at least one or more copies available. The blue prints are necessary in the first place for a checking up, and the finance committee alderman is of the opinion that sufficient numbers should be provided to guard their loss.

Amends Report. Engineer Warfield has amended his report. Acting at the request of Ald. Richter, he claims, he substituted the hauling costs of the London and Port Stanley Railway in the physical characteristics section of his report, and also carried out his tabulated statements of steam and storage battery operation similarly to the original report's treatment of electric operation.

Ald. Richter claims he made no such request. In a statement to The Advertiser this afternoon, he explained that when he had first gone over the report of Engineer Warfield he had found many mistakes in addition and subtraction. When Mr. Warfield had brought the report to him, he had suggested that it be carefully gone over and all corrections made, a copy of these corrections being sent to all those who had been furnished with a copy of the original report. This was the only amendment he had suggested after the original report had been placed in his hands.

"What is your opinion of having the Warfield report printed?" was asked Mr. Richter.

"Well, that is a pretty hard question to answer," laughed the alderman. "I have only managed to wade through 25 pages so far, and have been unable to find the gist of it yet."

"Is the report such that the average man would be able to intelligently interpret it?" was the next question.

"Hardly. What I have seen so far has been mostly verbiage."

CITY DADDIES TO LOSE BAY WINDOWS
IN NEW QUARTERS

Obese Fathers Will Have to Foot It Upstairs in Spencer Block.

Work on the New Civic Home of London Is Making Rapid Progress.

That old stock joke about "aldermanic proportions" is going to die a painful and a sudden death in London in just six weeks. It will be six weeks more before the new "city hall" in the Spencer block, at the corner of Wellington and Dundas streets, will be ready for occupancy. After that—well, after that there will be 12 slim aldermen in the city of London. The "why" of the slimmness is easily explained—the council chamber and committee-rooms are to be on the third floor. Moreover, there will be no elevator, and the city fathers of the Forster City will have a stair-climbing stunt every week that is calculated to reduce the flesh of the most aldermanically-designed member of the common council.

Addition Started. Work on the new civic home of London is rapidly progressing. The contractors of the water commission have already started the $400 addition that is being made to that section of the building the electrical and waterworks departments are to occupy, while the city's contractors are just as busy. Strangers in London are going to have some fun from now on when they ask for the city hall, for there will be three of them. First, there will be the city hall—that was, then the city hall—that is, and lastly, the city hall—that is to be. By the time the natives have explained all that and more to their wondering visitors, the said visitors can be calculated to have a fine impression of London's palace of municipal administration.

No Sod Turning. At the city hall, wagers are being freely laid that the Spencer block city hall will replace the Royal Bank city hall for many, many years before the federal square city hall is ready for occupancy. Eight to 10 years is the time set for the latter to be ready, and this, too, in face of the statement by Mayor Graham in January of 1912, that he would be turning the first sod of the new city hall before July of that year. Truly a prophet is without honor in his own country.

Asks Heart Balm
After Fifty Years

[Canadian Press.] Paterson, N. J., July 18.—Miss Emma Mahoney, 67 years old, of Wooster, Ohio, asks a heart balm of $25,000 from John Wolf, a 77-year-old veteran of the civil war, and a retired merchant, in papers which have been served upon him here.

Miss Mahoney asserts that she has not seen Mr. Wolf since their separation in 1863, when he went to the front, after it is alleged, he had proposed to her.

She says she has waited fifty years in the hope that her sweetheart of youthful days would sometime wed her, and that she was recently encouraged by a second proposal of marriage, but later received word that the marriage would never take place.

She has forwarded scores of alleged love-letters, many of them containing poems.

Cannonaded Hospital When Red Cross Flag Was Flying, Say Bulgars.

Fired Upon the Wounded Who Tried to Crawl Out of Ruins.

[Canadian Press.] Sofia, Bulgaria, July 18.—The general commanding the Bulgarian army operating against the Greeks officially charges the Greeks with deliberately raking with their cannon fire the hospital at Demir-Hissar in spite of the fact that the Red Cross was flying over the building.

A few of the hospital attendants fled, the general says, but the remainder of the nurses and all the patients were killed, a few of the sick and wounded who had managed to crawl out from the ruins of the hospital being shot down by Greek soldiers.

The general also charges the Greek troops with massacring the population of Kilikiss.

The group was taken on the patch of Emanuel Sherk, Station No. 11, Wharfedale road, four and a half miles from London. Mr. Sherk's farm consists of ten acres, one and a half of which are devoted to Cuthbert raspberries and one and a half acres of an earlier variety. The balance is partly a young orchard, besides half an acre of onions. In the seven years he has been on the place the farm, which was previously a pasture, has increased three times in value, and is now one of the best in Westminister. Mr. Sherk says there's gold in the ground if one will only dig it up. Photo was taken by Master Ellison Atkinson, Langarth street.

Alberta's Minister of Agriculture Asks Govt. to Initiate Protective System.

Thoroughbreds Imported From the East Are Led Away Into Mountains.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, July 18.—Hon. Duncan Marshall, minister of agriculture for Alberta, who arrived in the capital yesterday, urged upon the Dominion Government the necessity of taking some steps to put a stop to the depredations of wild horses in the Grand Prairie and Peace River district, which has been one of the main pioneering points for the past few years.

It is contended that the wild stallions have made raids upon the ranches of the new settlers, have killed many of the domestic horses, and have led away many of the well-bred domestic mares, which have been imported with considerable cost, and which are one of the principal assets of the new settlers.

Heavy Losses.

Being no respecters of the provincial boundaries or of physical setbacks, such as mountain ranges, these wild horses have caused as great an amount of damage in the eastern districts of British Columbia as in the foothills. These equine marauders, according to statistics in the department, are supposed to be descended from the horses which were abandoned in the gold rush to the Yukon in '98. From the Bow River westward, the wild horses have been a constant menace to the settlers, and have caused considerable loss of property. With railway construction over the divide and imported horses which are used on the ranching, the depredations of these nomads have become even more pronounced and the necessity for the action is emphatic. Mr. Marshall impressed upon the federal authorities the necessity of immediate action.

Hard to Deal With.

Hon. Dr. Roche, minister of interior, pointed out that the Department of Interior and the Federal authorities had no jurisdiction in the matter. He explained that it was an extraordinary situation which no federal legislation could cope with. The interior department recognized that it was a serious problem, but decided that the most effective action could only be taken by the provinces individually.

If it was found that provincial legislation was inefficient the Minister of Interior gave an informal promise that the Federal Government would endeavor to relieve the situation. It has been suggested that a bounty be placed upon the heads of stallions who lead these raids which read like a volume from Swift's fiction, written long before the Canadian west was ever dreamed of. To emphasize the seriousness of the situation Mr. Marshall told the Minister of the Interior that the Alberta Government was sending experts to investigate the conditions in the grand prairie and Peace River countries and hoped for the co-operation of British Columbia on the question which is of vital interest to both provinces.

Special Legislation.

If it was found that the federal authorities cannot act in the matter legislation will be brought before the next session of the Alberta Legislature which will effectively deal with the problem.

The Federal Government is particularly interested because of the fact that it has spent thousands of dollars in subsidizing the purchase in Great Britain of many pure-bred stallions, with the idea of improving the stock in the west and of these two provinces in particular.

Submarine Shot Down Two Hundred Feet Without Air Supply.

MEN WERE DESPERATE

[Canadian Press.]

Stockholm, Sweden, July 18.—A terrifying accident to a Swedish submarine, which sank with her crew like stones in 200 feet of water on July 2, has just become known despite official efforts to keep the affair a secret.

The submarine was practicing outside the harbor, when by a mistake all of her tanks were filled simultaneously and she sank to the bottom.

The pressure was enormous and the water began to dent the hull. Desperate measures were necessary, and Lieut. Beckman, in charge of the boat, ordered the lead keel detached. When this was removed the boat rose to the surface and the shaken crew drew in great draughts of air.

It is stated here that never before has a submarine risen to the surface after sinking to such a depth.

Evelevik, Minn., July 18.—Amid scenes of wild excitement the five men who were entombed at the Spruce mine here Wednesday were brought to the surface last night, after having stood neck deep in water for 31 hours.

Through interpreters, the men, all foreigners, told their story. They heard the guards warn the men when the water started rushing down the shaft, but they drew back at the sight of the swirling torrent. As the water crawled up, they were submerged first to their waists, and then to their armpits, and realizing their plight, they attempted

AMERICAN MAY GET CONTRACT

Welland Canal Tenders Show Pittsburg Firm Lowest by $500,000.

FOUR BIDS RECEIVED

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, July 18.—It is understood that four tenders at least have been submitted to the Government for the instruction of the first section of the Welland Canal on the Lake Ontario end. These are now being considered.

Among the tenderers it is stated are A. M. Davis, of Ottawa, and MacKay & Pinkerwood, of Sault Ste. Marie. The former firm is prominent in the work of construction, having built portions of the Cornwall and Soulages Canals, and having a contract for some of the superstructure of the Quebec Bridge.

In addition to these two Canadian firms, it is stated that two American firms, whose names cannot be learned, are among the tenderers for the work on the Welland. One of these, a Pittsburg firm, has, it is said, tendered nearly a half million lower than the lowest Canadian tenderer.

As the job is a four-million-dollar one, the difference is very considerable, and the department is said to be somewhat at a loss how to act in the matter.

FOUND DEAD
ON HIS PORCH

Arnold Sporer, of Hotel Oxford, Was Stricken As He Slept.

HAD A WEAK HEART

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Woodstock, July 18.—Lying on a lounge on the outside porch of his hotel, Arnold Sporer, proprietor of the Hotel Oxford, was found dead this morning by Night Porter Hais.

Sporer had been in the habit of sleeping there on hot nights, and had laid down partially dressed, having only removed his coat and vest. His position was quite natural and restful and Coroner McElroy satisfied that death was due to heart failure, as deceased had a very weak heart.

Mr. Sporer purchased the hotel nearly a year ago. He was a native of Switzerland, and had no relatives here. He was unmarried. No inquest will be held. Deceased was talking to his chef about 1 o'clock this morning, and seemed to be in his usual health.

COL. LITTLE'S CONDITION
GIVES HOPE OF RECOVERY

He Has Gained in Strength, Although Still in a Critical State.

[Canadian Press.]

The family of Col. J. W. Little, whose condition has caused grave anxiety among citizens, are hopeful that he will be restored to complete health.

While the danger mark has not been passed, the indications are that the patient will continue to improve, and that he will retain his strength and vitality.

The illness of Col. Little has caused universal sympathy in London. Foremost in the ranks of public men, he has won for himself a certain reliance among citizens. His advice has been beneficial to London in a great many matters, and no man has ever had the true interests of his city more at heart than he. His business ability has helped to build up the city from a commercial standpoint, and there will be a personal and communal relief at the good news that has come from his bedside within the last few days.

This afternoon it was stated at Col. Little's residence that he was still gaining in strength.

Mystery in Death
of Wesley Boran

[Canadian Press.] Brockville, July 18.—Sidney Empey, charged with manslaughter in connection with the supposed drowning of Wesley Boran one week ago, was brought out in police court today.

The crown asked for an adjournment of the preliminary hearing to await the recovery of Boran's body, which is expected to be recovered not later than on Sunday next, providing, of course, he has been drowned, which is only problematical.

Empey, who sticks to his original story, was admitted to bail for his appearance on July 26, furnishing bail for $2,000, exacted by Magistrate Patterson.

A Grand Review.

This afternoon the camp will close with a grand review and march past at about 3:30, followed by the distribution of prizes and trophies for rifle shooting and general efficiency, and for athletic prowess.

London cadets practically swept the boards in the rifle shooting. While it reflects great credit both on the boys themselves and on their officers, it must be remembered that they are possessed of many advantages in having the rifle range in their own town, where they can practice all the year round, and in having so well-equipped armories at their disposal.

AWFUL FATE OF FISHERMAN ON
PT. STANLEY TUG

William Gilbert Was Scalded to Death in Engine Room by Escaping Steam.

Craft Helpless in Lake Through Lack of Power After Accident Occurs.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Port Stanley, July 18.—William Gilbert, aged 40, a fisherman employed on the tug "On a Jag," was scalded to death today. Gilbert had gone below to put on a suit of rubber clothes, as the weather was rough, and while down in the engine room a flange suddenly blew out.

Unable to Rescue Him.

A jet of scalding water flew over him and he was knocked down. Others on the boat heard the noise, but owing to the steam could not get to him for some time. When they finally did reach him nothing could be done, as the boat was without power owing to the accident to the boiler.

Tug Comes to Aid.

The tug drifted about helplessly until the fishing boat Hector came out to the fishing ground. The men on the "On a Jag" soon signalled her, and as quickly as possible the "On a Jag" was towed in. Gilbert, however, was so terribly scalded that he died soon after. He was unmarried, and resided here.

COL. HODGINS IS GREATLY PLEASED
WITH THE CADETS

Says They Could Give Lessons to Militia in Many Points.

Camp To Close This Afternoon With Grand Review—The Prize Winners.

Colonel Hodgins, in a statement today, expressed the greatest satisfaction with this year's cadet camp. In many respects it was the best ever held, and in some points could teach lessons to the militia. More than twice the number of properly-accredited cadets are in camp this year as compared with last year, and Col. Hodgins looks for a big increase next summer. A conference of the officers is being held this afternoon, at which it will probably be decided to hold the cadet camp at an earlier date than formerly. Colonel Hodgins is strongly in favor of the change. "It was really my fault that the camp was so late in the season this year," he said. "There was so much to be done after the militia camp that I thought it best to leave it until we had more rest and a bit of a bit. But I think it was a mistake. I'm satisfied that we could have had 200 more boys at this camp if it had been held earlier in the summer, immediately after the closing of school, and if I am allowed to have a few affairs next summer it will be held then."

Regulating Booths. Another question which has arisen in connection with this camp will also be discussed, namely, the proper regulation of refreshment booths on the camp grounds. While the cases of sickness among the boys have been remarkably few, they might have been still less if the boys had exercised due restraint in the amount of sweet stuff eaten. The Y. M. C. A. have charge of the refreshment tent at this camp, and while they endeavor to teach the boys proper restraint in the matter of appetite, they are considered to have done well in the amount of sweet stuff eaten.

Too Much Sweet Stuff. Col. Belton, A. D. M. S., who is looking after the health of the camp, thinks that some restriction should be exercised in the matter, and Col. Hodgins has the point under consideration. "I think next year we will have to bar some of the sweet stuff from the refreshment tent," he said. "The boys go there and they load up their little stomachs with pies and cakes and sweet stuff, and the result is they are taken sick and have to spend a few hours in the hospital. There is no need for it, as they are well fed in camp. Also it gives them the habit of spending more money than there is any need for." Ice cream comes will not come under the ban, however, as they are considered to hold fairly harmless. As was the case at Niagara camp this year, the refreshment tent will probably be brought under a schedule of restricted hours, and will also be restricted in the wares that dispense.

Serbs Defeated On Bulgarian Frontier

King Ferdinand Telegraphs That Bulgaria Wants Peace.

[Canadian Press.]

Sofia, July 17.—An official dispatch reports the defeat by the Bulgarians of the Servians forces which had penetrated Bulgarian territory on the western frontier. The Bulgarians attacked them yesterday and put them to flight. The Servians are retreating in the direction of Vlasina, across the border.

Another dispatch says severe losses have been inflicted on the Greek army operating on the Bulgarian left flank. King Ferdinand today personally telegraphed to King Charles of Roumania that Bulgaria was ready to negotiate terms of settlement with Roumania.

The efforts of A. Malinoff, the democratic leader and former premier, to form a cabinet to take the place of that under Premier Daneff have thus far proven futile.

New York, July 17.—Maurice Doherty, 30, and his wife, 28, are in a hospital today technically under arrest, charged with attempting to carry out a suicide pact. They had married only a month ago. Doherty was formerly an attendant in the immigration hospital on Ellis Island, and his wife until recently was supervising nurse in the Washington Heights Hospital. The two were found last night in a critical condition from poisoning in a room in the East Side hotel. They left a note saying, "No one but ourselves knows the reason, but it is compelling." There is still some doubt that they will recover.

Big things in the way of illumination of grounds and buildings are planned for the Western Fair. Bids have been called on the installation of an entire new system for the fair and will be opened next week. Provided these tenders are within a reasonable figure the fair board will have the work done before the 1913 exhibition.

In the past the lighting system of the grounds and buildings, while better than it formerly was, has been far from satisfactory. There has been no regulation of the supply, a generator in one of the machinery buildings having supplied the light and power circuits of the fair. It is now proposed to install a small power station, where the power can be delivered from whatever company is selected. From this power station the proper regulation of current can be made.

The tentative plan of the board is for the installation of 500-watt tungsten lights throughout every building and in all sections of the grounds. The members propose to make the fair the best-lighted exhibition in the Province, and want to be in a position where they can guarantee unlimited light and power to the various exhibitions and concession renters.

Important Goings-On Saturday at This Store

To provide a direct and serviceable medium between the people who make things and the people who need things, is the kind of merchandising which is the aim of this store, and the kind that lessens the cost of living for the masses. At no time in the season are such extraordinary opportunities offered for the men and women to get summer clothing at low prices as will be found to prevail generally throughout the store this Saturday (tomorrow). As the end of the month approaches, the time for stock inventory, before which we are determined to have made all our clearings for the season, important events are crowding in, fast. Summer stocks are at their best. Fresh goods are shown throughout the store, and because we like to clean out the week's business on Saturday, people who are looking for lower-priced things will find a good many small lots of goods which have had their prices changed for a quick out-go.

LONDON, FRIDAY, JULY 18.

THE FINISHING BLOW TO THE EMERGENCY.

Mr. Churchill's speech gives the final kick to the dead emergency.
"There were two courses open to us: we could have laid down three extra ships in place of the three Canadian ships, and we could do still, but it is not at present clear that this step, which would mean the addition of eight and a half million pounds to the naval estimates, is necessary, and certainly it ought not to be done unless it is necessary."
If it is not "necessary" to replace the three ships that were to be, there is no emergency. Of course, a nation like Great Britain is always exposed to many perils, but an emergency is some specially critical situation, quite abnormal in character. It would be a trifling with serious matters to speak of the Empire as being all the time in emergency. If no special extra additions are at present required by the British navy, the Empire is not in an unusual plight except that it is rather better off than ordinarily.

And that is the real fact today. The British Empire was never in a more secure position than now. Great Britain's trade and revenue are beating all records; she has the sinews of war.
Ireland is about to be reconciled after centuries of chronic rebellion. The United States has become from a foe a friend, France, who used to be called England's natural enemy, is almost an ally. Russia was never less a menace since the days of Catherine II.
Canada and Australia are reaching the maturity of great nations, to support the motherland, Germany from the Kaiser to the Karl Marxian is friendly to Great Britain. The horizon is almost clear, even of the old Balkan troubles.
The alarmist may as well go to bed and sleep for a while.

It will not be long before Canada must revert to the Laurier naval policy and take her place by Australia in guarding against the possible developments of the future. At present all is well and no contributions are called for on any ground. But permanent provision is demanded against those future emergencies which Mr. Churchill foresees. Mr. Borden has not a word to say on this important matter. Sir Wilfrid and the Liberal party are there with the goods and the men that John Bull wants.

THE BATTLE ON LAKE ERIE.

The cities on the southern shore of Lake Erie are busy celebrating the centennial of the battle of Lake Erie.
The action took place on the 13th of September, 1813, but as there are several cities to take part in the memorial services they are spreading the function over a lengthened period, so that each one will have its own celebration, and secure the advantages derivable from the attendance of visitors.
The city of Erie, Pa., has already had its gala day, and the others will follow in due course.

It is only natural that our neighbors should indulge in a little jubilation over this event. Though the ships were small, and the men engaged few, in comparison with those in modern naval battles, yet it was a decisive contest. Its result was not only the destruction of the British fleet in Lake Erie. It meant the evacuation of Amherstburg and Detroit by the British;
the retreat of Proctor on the Thames; and his defeat at Moraviantown. It may not have had much effect so far as the general results of the war were concerned, but it was a disaster for the British on Lake Erie.
But while the battle on Lake Erie was a victory for the United States, the British had no reason for shame or humiliation over their defeat. Our neighbors used to boast that Commodore Perry won the fight against great odds, and many of their histories would justify the claim. Of late years, we are told, that the forces were about equal, which is a variation of the story in degree only. The fact is that Captain Barclay, the British commander, went into this fight under great disadvantages. He tried to impress this on General Proctor. But the latter felt that his position at Detroit would be imperilled so long as Perry's fleet was on the lake, and insisted on the attack. We have not seen in any of the United States papers lately a detailed statement of the forces engaged. So it may be as well to give the particulars as found in the official documents.

The British fleet was outnumbered in ships and men. There were six British vessels, with a crew combined of 345 men. The United States had nine ships and 630 men. The disparity in armaments was not less. In actual number of guns Barclay had slightly the advantage; but in calibre he was outclassed. Perry had five 32-pounders, four 24-pounders, four 12-pounders and twenty 32-pound carronades. Barclay's heaviest guns were 21-pounders, of which he had only two, eight 24-pound carronades, and one 12-pound carronade. The remainder of his artillery was of diminishing calibre. He had one 13-pounder, five 12-pounders, five 9-pounders, three 6-pounders, two 4-pounders, and a 2-pounder. Perry's fleet could discharge a broadside of 714 pounds' metal; the British only 430 pounds.

The consequence of this disparity of armaments was that with heavier weight and longer range guns Perry was able to inflict serious damage on the British vessels before they got near enough to touch his ships. Barclay fought at a disadvantage, but he fought bravely, and did his best. He was wounded himself, and his best captain was killed early in the contest. He lost 38 men killed, and had 55 wounded, but the enemy lost 37 killed and had 96 wounded. He disabled the enemy's flagship, and Perry had to transfer his command to a smaller vessel. But the "repercussion" of artillery was too great for the British captain with his small force. He had to succumb to superior numbers and heavier artillery.

It was a gallant fight. And while our neighbors are justly proud of the achievements of Commodore Perry, we are just as proud of Capt. Barclay, and his 345 men, nearly half of whom were raw Canadian lake sailors. They did not achieve success, but they deserved it. It is a happy omen today that Americans and Canadians can celebrate their victories with the utmost goodwill to each other.
They had their Perry and their Lawrence, and Canadians will not grudge the honors paid to such heroes. We had our Brock and our De Salaberry, and generous Americans will pay them tribute. While the commemoration of the war and its heroes is void of the spirit of offence on both sides of the line, the celebration of 100 years of Anglo-American peace is still nobler in conception. It looks to the future not to the past.

A TERRIBLE INDICTMENT.

King Constantine of Greece is the authority for charges against the Bulgarian troops which make Christendom shudder. The details are almost un-printable. A cry of horror went up periodically from the British people against the Turks for far less than the Bulgarians are accused of. King Constantine alleges that the advance of the Greek army in the tracks of the retreating Bulgarians uncovered a series of crimes "such as human history has never before recorded." The Christians and Mussulmans have been butchered indiscriminately. At Dorian 30,000 Mussulmans were slaughtered after their wives and daughters had been dishonored. The fate of the women everywhere is worse than death.
Mutilation and outrage have been Bulgarian pastimes; in the pockets of Bulgarian prisoners were found the clipped ears of Grecian women.

This indictment calls for a reply from the Bulgarian king. He may plead that the charges are untrue or wildly exaggerated, and may bring countercharges against the Greeks and Ser-vians. How are outsiders to know?
The withdrawal of the war correspondents after Turkey's surrender has left the theatre of strife in darkness.
The world is dependent upon stories furnished by the combatants themselves. Who is to sit in judgment and punish the guilty? Not one of the Great Powers—mutual jealousies forbid. Not the Concert of Europe—it has been officially announced—that the Powers will let the Balkan States fight to a finish even though they finish one another.

The world has over-rated Bulgaria.
The valor and swift success of the Bulgarian armies imposed on Christian sympathies, which were naturally with a so-called Christian power against the hated Turk. Bulgaria was credited with civil virtues, corresponding with her military prowess, but it is now remembered that civilization is a late growth in that bloodstained soil.

Admirers of Kipling boomed him for

WITHOUT FOOD TWENTY-EIGHT DAYS.

A remarkable feat of involuntary fasting was performed twelve years ago by a corporal in a regiment of French colonial infantry. On his way to work one morning a man heard cries proceeding from a disused mine near Brest. At the bottom of an excavation nearly 100 feet deep, Corporal Andre Desrats was found in so weak a condition that he could hardly articulate a word. When he recovered his rescuers learned that, after accidentally falling into the mine, Desrats had been imprisoned for 28 days without anything to eat or drink. But a pig's head a man, Dr. W. B. Carpenter in his "Manual of Physiology," records that a pig weighing 160 pounds was entombled by the fall of a portion of the chalk cliffs at Dover. It was dug out 160 days later, and found to be still alive, but reduced in weight to 40 pounds.

"CONTINENTAL" BRITISH CAP-
TAL.

[Toronto Star.]
British capital, we are told, is sentimental. Quite true. That is why it goes anywhere in the world where the security is sound and the interest sure.
It probably feels sentimental toward Canada, because we have always paid well and there has been no trouble in collecting. That is enough to warm any creditor toward the object of solicitude. Capital, British or otherwise, will always adore with passion tender
the country that returns its affection with interest. In this way, and in this way alone, is British capital, or any other capital, sentimental. It does on us, so to speak, so long as we have the price. Its love is anywhere from four per cent to a hundred.

Play All About Dollies, Just for You, and It Is Called "Racketty Packetty House!"

BY AUNT GERTIE.

Boys and girls, what do you think has happened now?

Why, a children's play, written just for children, played by children and played for children, is the very latest thing in New York!

Isn't it grand?
The name of this play is "Racketty-Packetty House!"

Did you ever hear of a lovelier name? The story, out of which the play was made, is written by Frances Hodgson Burnett, who knows all about what little folks think and like.

Listen!
"Racketty Packetty House" is a doll's house. In it live the quaintest, best-natured, happy-go-luckiest boy and girl dolls you ever knew.

The play tells all about "Racketty Packetty House" and its inmates; how Cynthia, the little girl owner of the house, got tired of it all, and had it pushed behind the nursery door.

Then her papa gave her Tidy Castle, a lovely new doll house with dressed up lord and lady dolls in it.

Poor "Racketty Packetty House" and "I'm not going to tell you any more except that Cynthia gave "Racketty its inmates thought they would all be burned!

One day a real princess came to see Cynthia. She wasn't at all interested in Tidy Castle. But she spied the quaint dollies and their house behind the door. She loved them all right away.

Packetty House" to her. She took it home with her; painted it, dressed the dollies in new clothes and loved and cared for them all, always.

Here is a picture of Peter Piper, the happy boy dolly of "Racketty Packetty House" when someone wanted to burn it up or throw it away.

Oh, you ought to see that play children. There are fairies in it, too, you know!

The Poets' Corner

THE FAIRY LOUGH.

Loughareema! Loughareema!
Lies so high among the heather;
A little lough, a dark lough,
The water's black and deep;
Ould herons go a-fishin' there,
An' seagulls all together
Float round the one green island
On the fairy lough as eep.

Loughareema! Loughareema!
When the sun goes down at even,
When the hills are dark an' airy,
'Tis a curlew whistles sweet!
Then something rustles all the ree
That stand so thick and even;
A little wave runs up the shore
An' dries as if on feet.

Loughareema! Loughareema!
Stars come out, an' stars are hidin';
The water whispers on the stone.
The flitting moths are free,
One's before the mornin' light
The horsemen will come ridin'
Round an' round the fairy lough,
An' no one there to see!

Coat Suits of Scotch Plaids

How would you like to have a coat suit of plaid taffeta? You may soon wear one if you keep up with the fashion. They were among the new Paris offerings.

The first plaid suit that appeared in Paris was Scotch as to design and taffeta as to fabric. The skirt was narrow, fastened down the front and opened in that new way that has more grace to it than the straight slash, but which has not penetrated into the majority of ready-to-wear gowns; it is a curved line directly in front that gives a chance to step out, but does not show either the front or the side of the leg. The jacket was one of those negligee affairs that have pervaded the dress-making world with their loose shoulders, straight three-quarter sleeve, rounded peplum and large-waisted folded skirt. The skirt in this case was plain taffeta, as well as were the bands on the sleeves and the edges of revers.

The hat was of plain solid colored straw with a single fantasy standing up like a flame, and the blouse beneath the coat was of white muslin

To Freshen Your Old Hat

Hot weather is ruination to hats, and the woman of moderate income is wondering how she can keep her headgear respectable the rest of the season. The girl who does not want to spend another dollar on her hats can do a surprising amount of freshening.

Let her remove the trimming and freshen the hat itself. A black hat is easy. It can be made to look like new by washing in denatured alcohol after dusting. The entire hat may be soaked in the alcohol and while still damp it is straightened where bent.

The woman who once a week wipes off black hats with alcohol and also uses it on ribbons will find her hats wear much longer.

Colored hats that have faded are seemingly hopeless, but a box of water color paint, or some of the special dyes for straw hats, soon restores their beauty. Soiled white hats can be freshened by bread crumbs—a favorite method of cleaning with many milliners—and they are improved by coating thickly with magnesia, which is kept on overnight. One woman uses the whitener that she puts on her shoes. Sunburnt hats are hard to freshen. If good, if not, worth that, try bleaching them should be with oxalic acid, a teaspoonful to a pint of water. Scrub the straw hat well, then rinse at once with hot water, followed by cold. Wipe dry and hang in the sun. While still damp, press with a hot iron on the wrong side, with a thin cloth over the straw.

White feathers and the numerous alpacas of the season may be made snowy by cleaning in a paste made of gasoline and white cornmeal, and rinsing with gasoline alone, or with more of the paste until it shows no soil. If the curl has come out, hold it over the kitchen range or curl the flues, a few at a time, with the back of a heated silver knife.

Ribbons may be washed in alcohol and pressed under heavy paper or a thick cloth while still slightly damp. Faded flowers are almost hopeless, but may be freshened by coloring with powdered rouge, rubbing off the edges for shaded effects.

Steel buckles can be soaked in corn oil for six or eight hours, then polished with fine emery. Jet is brightened by rubbing in alcohol and polishing with tissue paper. Dulled bronze and gilt trimmings are difficult, but may be somewhat freshened by good silver polish thinned with alcohol instead of water.

Lace that will wash should be first soaked in cold water, then put in glass jar with lukewarm water and a tiny pinch of borax, and well shaken. Rinse well in several hot waters, squeeze out most of the moisture and dry by hanging over a radiator with a Turkish towel, to which the lace is pinned, each point in position. Dry in the sun. Lace that will not wash may be cleaned with French chalk or magnesia.

PROBLEMS OF THE FAIR SEX SOLVED BY CYNTHIA GREY

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn as they are received. No letters can be answered privately.]

Going To The "Bend."
Dear Miss Grey: Can you give us any information about Grand Bend (Huron) as a holiday place for a week? Is there a good hotel (for lady and gentleman), and its name, and how is the journey made?

BRITISHERS.
A.—Accommodation may be secured at several places, I understand. There are the Bremer House, the Imperia (temperance) and Holt's boarding house. You should write to these for information. As to the route, Grand Bend is reached via Grand Trunk to Exeter, and from thence by motor bus.

She's 30: He's 19.
Dear Miss Grey: I am a reader of your charming column and am delighted with the letters. I am deeply in love with a young man 11 years my junior. I have only known him two weeks. He has not yet proposed but I am expecting him to do it every day. What will I say? I am 30; he is 19 years old.

Do you think that eleven o'clock is too late for a gentleman to stay?

What do you think of my writing? Does it show a noble character? Here is a receipt for a cake which I think is fine. The name is George cake, one tablespoon of butter, one cup yellow sugar, half cup molasses, half cup hot water, half teaspoon soda, two cups flour, two teaspoons cinnamon, one egg.

A.—1. After reading your letter over twice I am not sure whether you are joking or just writing fairy tales. But I must warn you that such a dignified person as myself, with a mind dwelling on lofty heights, cannot possibly appreciate such humor as your letter contains. Candidly, I think a young woman of 30 is old enough to decide her little boy to bring up in the way he should go, by all means accept.
2.—If the gentleman is the little 19-year-old, yes, I think he should be home with mother by that hour.

SNOW-WHITE

AS TOLD BY AUNT GERTIE

WHO IS THE FAIREST WOMAN IN THE WORLD?

CHAPTER I.
Once upon a time when the earth was white with snow and all the outer world seemed wrapped in winter's stillness, a beautiful queen sat beside her castle window working embroidery at an ebony frame.

As she worked, her eyes wandered to the lovely scene outdoors and she pricked her finger with the needle. She hung her hand out over the sill and three red, red drops of blood fell on to the white, white snow.

She looked a moment and then exclaimed, in a soft, gentle voice, "Oh, that I had a child as white as snow, as red as blood and as black as the wood of the embroidery frame!"

It was not so very long after that the queen had a little baby daughter. Her skin was just as white as the snow. Her hair was just as black as the ebony embroidery frame, and her lips were like blood.

They called her SNOW-WHITE. The poor queen died when the beautiful baby opened its eyes, and a year the king married another beautiful woman. This new queen was so proud she could not bear to think any one else in the world was as beautiful as she. So she got a magic mirror. And every day she stood before it, looked into it and said:

"Looking glass upon the wall,
Who is fairest of us all?"

The looking glass, smiling back at her, always answered:
"You are the fairest of them all."

death and bring me her heart for a token," said the wicked queen.

The man said he would and led the little girl away into the deep woods. But the child pleaded so prettily and so piteously that the heart of the big man was touched. Instead of killing her he said: "Away with you, poor child! Just then a wild boar rushed through the woods. He aimed, fired and killed the animal, took out its heart and carried it home to the queen. It was salted and cooked. The wicked woman ate it, thinking it was the heart of Snow-white and that she would never be troubled with the beautiful child again.

When the lonesome little girl found herself all by herself in the big woods she felt like a ton of bricks and was very frightened. But Providence was with Snow-white and the wild beasts couldn't harm her. All day long she kept on running till her poor little feet ached and bled; her head felt like a ton of bricks and her poor little tongue almost hung out of her mouth from thirst.

Just as the shadows were falling on the world at dusk, and it was not possible to see anything more in the dark woods, Snow-white spied a little house beneath a big tree.

She knocked at the door. No one answered. She turned the handle and pushed. The door opened.

And what do you think she saw?

tiresome; but, honest, now, women-folks, wouldn't you like to slip per into the ear of every blessed member of the I. I. of H. that they haven't told us a single thing that we didn't know before? Of course we know that all corsets should be made to order, but how many women of our every-day world can afford to pay the price asked for the specially-ordered article? And if a woman has to dress hurriedly in the mornings to make the fire, carry water, and prepare breakfast for a hungry man and six children, how is she to take the time to read these gentlemen's directions and adjust her "stays" in a proper and hygienic manner? These are questions for the I. I. of H. to answer. Really, they should confine their efforts for improving the race to masculine attire until, at least, they have something new to tell us about our own!

Hard To Credit. Hard as it may be to believe it, one of the earliest of official rat catchers appears to have been a woman. An English warrant dated 1672 announces that, "whereas, Elizabeth Wickley is employed in killing rats and other vermin, in and about His Majesty's Stores and Houses in ye Tower of London, and therefore thought fit to allow her ye sum of eight pounds ($40) per annum." During the next century the office was invested with great dignity, and the "Gentleman's Magazine" for 1741 recorded the appointment of Mr. Gower as rat killer to his majesty, "a place of 100 pounds ($500) a year, an honorable office."

However, if one does not care to adopt a coat suit or plaid for any occasion, one may like to take up the idea of wearing a short plain coat with a skirt of white muslin or crepe de voile or satin. The latter combination is quite effective for any afternoon occasion, especially in the open, and the adding of plaid silk or voile in any way to a white crepe gown is a fashion that grows in power as people see how attractive it is.

Tea-Table Talk

The I. I. of H. Faith, and what do you think the funny men are discussing now? No, not the hobble skirt, this time, nor the slashed waist, neither is it the peek-a-boo waist. But it is quite probable that these articles of feminine apparel will not long escape the attention of this body of serious-minded gentlemen who call themselves the Incorporated Institute of Hygiene of London, England.

At present, however, the dear things are calling attention to the hygienic wearing of corsets! That the world may be benefited by their investigation along this line, the I. I. of H. have printed a treatise upon the subject and it would seem that nothing remains to be said. The treatise opens with several premises among which are such startling facts as: "That the requirements of modern dress and the exigencies of modern civilization appear to make the wearing of some sort of corset a practical necessity to the majority of women."

"That many corsets in use are wrongly constructed and tend to produce injuries to the compression and displacement of important internal organs. That the injurious effects attributed to the wearing of corsets can be greatly minimized, if not entirely removed, by the adoption of properly constructed corsets and their right adjustment."

In addition to the setting forth of the evils of the naughty, harmful corset, these learned men further proceed to enlighten women as to their proper construction and the right way of adjusting them. They also state that no corset except those made to measure should be worn.

LITTLE GIRLS IN STREET CARS.

The old-fashioned idea of not allowing little girls to run about in public places, or to travel in public conveyances without an older person in charge, had much to commend itself to all women who have the interest of their little girls at heart. It is a curious fact that a little girl will be perfectly well behaved in public when alone, or with an older sister, or mother. But, given two or three companions of her own age, and she becomes unrecognizable as the same quiet, demure little maiden. There is always the boyish in a bunch of girls, and, for some mysterious reason, so far unsolved, a bolsterous girl will demoralize a whole group of well-behaved girls, while the generally well-behaved girls have not the slightest influence upon the hoyden. Time and again one hears shocked mothers telling of the behavior of groups of girls who go back and forth on the street cars to smart private schools, where they are day after day for the best of these young ladies—all under 14 years of age—made a perfect demimonde in the car, so that men glowered at them over their newspapers, and women exchanged glances of amazement and distress. Putting out her tongue at the other girls, who shrieked with laughter in chorus, was one of the ways in which one of the best dressed of the girls made indiscreetly merry, and drew all eyes upon her. Others were quite familiar in their behavior to the conductor, and still others passed the time by pulling off each other's hats. Could anything be more deplorable than this? If these were the children of poor mothers, who had not the time to give to their little girls' manners, we should be very critical of the poor mothers. But what is one to say to such behavior on the part of girls whose parents are in such a position that they can send their daughters to expensive private schools? Does the fault lie with the parents who have not thought it necessary to instruct their girls in the dignity and beauty of quiet behavior in all public places, or with the private schools who have not thought it necessary to warn their girl pupils that they are under the authority of the school till they reach home? Perhaps the blame lies a little with each. In any case the less little girls go about in groups in cars or streets the better for them.

and washing soda, and then in clear hot water. Dry them and spread them in the sun for a sunbath of half an hour. Then remove the ice from the box, wrap it in a newspaper so that it will melt as little as possible, and wash the tray on which it stands just as you have washed the shelves. Dry it with a towel and put it in the sunshine until the inside of the compartment is clean. This should be washed with soda, soda and water, and then clear, hot water, and the corners should be cleaned carefully with a stiff brush. Pour hot soda water through the drain pipe and run a long flexible wire with a little brush at the end through the pipe to remove any obstructions from it. Return the tray to the ice box, and then put the ice back in place. This part of the cleaning can be done in a few minutes, so that the ice will melt very little and the refrigerator will not have time to get heated.

Wash the inside walls of the refrigerator with soda, soda and water, and clear water, and rub them dry with a cloth. Then return the trays or shelves and put the food back in place.

THREE-PIECE COSTUMES.

A few of the high-class manufacturers have brought out some handsome three-piece costumes, says the Dry-goods Economist. These are mostly of a dressy character and the materials employed are a velvet, plush, dveline, wool velour, and high-lustre broadcloth. These fabrics are used for the skirt and coat, while the waist is of charmeuse, chiffon or printed crepe in matching color.

The coats of these three-piece costumes are of various types and shapes. A large proportion are rather short, many showing waistscoats of silk or velvet, and handsomely embroidered, or of one of the new printed fabrics.

The waists of these costumes are made on simple lines, many showing the soft vest of fine net or lace and being finished with the Medici collar to match. Some show a panel in the back of the waist made of the same material as the skirt. Others have the suspender effect made of the heavier material, thus carrying out the idea of the three-piece suit.

Caring for the Refrigerator

Once a week at least—twice a week in very warm weather—the icebox or refrigerator should be thoroughly cleaned. First remove all food. Then remove the trays or shelves, if they are of a removable kind, and wash them in hot soapuds, then in boiling water

Do Your Children Get Enough Sleep?

Different Ages Need Different Hours of Sleep—A Time-Table.

"Can't I sit up just a little later, mother?" is the plea that is heard in every home where there are children the civilized world over. And in far too many of these homes the fond and doting parents, unwilling to discipline their youngsters, all too frequently reply, "Well, just half an hour longer."

Then the child dawdles about at the expiration of the half hour before going to bed. But when morning comes the breakfast is at the same hour and the youngsters have to get up and eat and get off to school just as early, regardless of the fact that lost an hour from their sleep by retiring that much later than usual.

It is true that women will not depart a hair's breadth from their customary methods of making a cake or anything else. Yet these same people as parents permit those dearest to them to change about in their regular hours of sleeping, allow them to sleep less and do all sorts of things that will break up their rest and tend to shatter their health in time. There should be just as much firmness in the matter of making children sleep the proper number of hours as there is in making a cake or building a bridge or mixing chemicals; there should be more care, in fact, for after all, the children are above everything else in the life and laws of succeeding generations.

Children of different ages need different hours of sleep, the infant sleeping most of the time, while the young lad or young miss needs less than half the day for sleep. Of course, it is possible to sleep too much. A great many grown people probably sleep too much, but it is seldom a child will do that. In the first place, a child's nature is different. When it has had sufficient sleep it wakes up naturally, its young body is rested and its natural desire is to be up and playing.

With children the danger is always on the side of not enough sleep. If a child wants to sleep an hour or so longer than usual, it is quite natural. In most cases, and due, no doubt, to the fact that it has played a little harder on the day previous.

According to the best of authorities, the following table shows the least number of hours that children of various ages should sleep:

At 4 months.....	20 hours
At 6 months.....	18 hours
At 1 year.....	15 hours
At 2 years.....	15 hours
At 4 years.....	13 hours
At 7 years.....	12 hours
At 9 years.....	10½ hours
At 14 years.....	10 hours

How the Militants Have Injured Women's Cause

LOYD GEORGE CALLS IT ORGANIZED LUNACY—ALIENATED THEIR SYMPATHIZERS.

Mr. Lloyd George in an article in the July number of Nash's Magazine on women's suffrage says that the cause is being retarded by militancy and that militancy is nothing more than "organized lunacy." He goes on:

"The militants have erected militancy into a principle. I am beginning to think that a good many of them are more concerned with the success of their method than with the success of their cause. They would rather not have the vote than fail to win it by the particular brand of agitation they have pinned their faith to. They don't really want the vote to be given them; they want to get it, and to get it by force, and they are quite unable to see that the more force they use the stronger becomes the resolve both of Parliament and the country to send them empty away. If they had accepted Mr. Asquith's pledge of two years ago, and thanked him for it and helped him to redeem it, women's suffrage by now would be an accomplished fact. But they preferred their own ways, and what is the result? The result is that working for their cause in the House of Commons today is like swimming, not merely against a tide, but against a cataract. The real reason why the attempts to carry woman suffrage through the House of Commons during the past two years have failed is not merely the difficulty of trying to combine a non-party measure with the party system; it is, above all, the impossibility of using Parliament to pass a bill that the opinion of the country has been so resolutely and so consistently opposed to."

THE LIFE OF BOOKS.

"I am speaking out of my own heart when I say that the life of books is its own exceeding great reward," says Claudius Clear in the British Weekly. "Though I had never profited one farthing by this love, though I had lost many a pound by reason of it, I should regret a single hour I ever gave to reading, and one of the greatest things I look forward to in the future is the chance of reading and re-reading some things I have partially forgotten, and reading things which I know of but do not know. Reading is its own exceeding great reward, and a new brightness and expectancy as resource will come into the minds of all of you if you do as I have counselled you, and make lovers, friends, and acquaintances in the world of books."

HOW LIFE IS CHANGING.

"The invention of the motor car has changed life more than almost any circumstance of the last fifteen years," says Desmond Coke in the Daily Mail. "Outlying towns that were then impossible have suddenly woken to new prosperity, while by Nature's old law of the pendulum London districts fashionable so lately are now a forest of 'let' boards."

"More and more the rush is to outlying places, a flight from the once envied hub. Hotels have shared in the dramatic change of fortune. They may be too near town; they find it difficult to be too distant. House property grows into a new science, for with this motor car arrived the week-end habit. The home by now is a mere five-day refuge after work. Life lies between the Saturday and Monday; so who would want a mansion? It had lost much more sensible to have a motor car and flat!"

A famous headmaster said to Mr. Coke: "As for religion, motoring kills all Sunday you have as soon as a boy gets home. Some 80 boys here just con-

THEIR FATHERS' TRADE.

Prof. S. J. Chapman and Mr. W. Abbot contribute an article to the Journal of the Royal Statistical Society on "The Tendency of Children to Enter Their Fathers' Trades." The authors collected figures from evening continuation schools in Lancashire in which the scholars had already begun to earn their livings. From some 2,415 correct returns obtained, dealing with 1,199 males, percentages of the callings adopted by the children of men in every one of the important trades were worked out. In every case it was found that the largest section of recruits to any trade was drawn from families already connected with it. Of the sons of textile workers for instance, 61.7 per cent. follow the trade of their fathers; of metal workers, 53.3 per cent. of miners, 36 per cent.; of clerical workers, 49.1 per cent. "The relative pull of the father's trade on his children, in comparison with the pull of any other given trade of about the same grade," say the authors, "would tend to be roughly three to one, on the assumption that all trades are of equal magnitude, and growing at the same rate."

Plitt's Squeal Will Implicate Grafters

Confession Expected to Give Long-Sought Important Details.

[Canadian Press.] New York, July 18.—The police graft situation was brought to the front again today. Charles B. Plitt, jun., who was the so-called press agent of Former Police Lieut. Charles Becker, has submitted to District Attorney Whitman a five-page typewritten statement reputed to be a confession of facts relating to the alliance between the police system and the underworld. Mr. Whitman assigned one of his assistants to talk with Plitt, who is under indictment on a perjury charge, with a view to determining if Plitt's statement is worthy of grand jury investigation.

Plitt's "squeal" is reported to contain the information, long sought by the prosecutor, that will enable Mr. Whitman to follow the graft trail to police headquarters. An inspector, a civilian attaché at headquarters, and several minor officials are said to be mentioned in Plitt's statement. The statement is declared to tell also of alleged participation in graft by Becker, who is under sentence of death at Sing Sing prison for the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, a year ago.

Russia Buys Most Farming Machinery

[Canadian Press.] Washington, July 18.—Russia is the largest purchaser of the United States' agricultural machinery, export figures of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce showing that $10,000,000 worth of such machinery was sent to Russia during the fiscal year just ended, against $7,000,000 to Canada, $6,500,000 to Argentina, $4,000,000 to Germany and $3,500,000 to France. The exports of this class of manufactures to Russia exceeded those of any previous year. This country exported $21,000,000 worth of agricultural machinery in 1902 and $42,000,000 worth this year.

MELLEN TO RETIRE

Leave New York, New Haven and Hartford Shortly.

[Canadian Press.] New York, N. Y., July 18.—Directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad are to meet here again today to act on the resignation of Charles S. Mellen, tendered yesterday. Although it is understood that some of the directors urged Mr. Mellen to reconsider his decision, his resignation was formally presented, and, according to present plans, he will retire as the head of the New Haven and allied lines not later than Oct. 1 next. Only a few days ago Mr. Mellen resigned as president of the Boston and Maine, controlled by the New Haven. Whether a successor to Mr. Mellen will be agreed upon at the meeting scheduled for today was not announced. Among the men mentioned in this connection is Howard Elliot, head of the Northern Pacific.

Ingersoll Picnic a Great Success

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ingersoll, July 13.—The annual union Sunday school excursion was fully in keeping with the high standard that has been set in previous years. Every home sent a representative. Two special trains were run over the C. P. R. The first one left shortly after 8:30 and the second one at 9 o'clock. In all 23 coaches were occupied by the excursionists, and those of the first train were crowded.

At the lakeside the crowd spent a delightful day. Every arrangement for the pleasure of the excursionists had been made by the committee and these were carried out to the satisfaction of all.

One of the most successful garden parties of the season was held last night on the lawn of Mr. Patrick Kirwin, Dorham Township, east of Mount Elgin. The gathering was very large, being representative of all the surrounding districts. A program supplied by the excursionists, and those of a garden party was presented and thoroughly enjoyed by all. A number from Ingersoll were in attendance and all report a delightful outing.

THE GREAT CANADIAN HOME

MOST UNJUST.

A St. Louis man went out fishing one day recently. He had a nice lunch fixed up, but upon arriving at the fishing place he discovered that he had lost it, so he retraced his steps until he met a large, satisfied looking colored man, who was seated by the roadside under a tree picking his teeth.

"Did you pick up anything in the road?" inquired the fisherman.
"No, sah, I didn't pick up nuffin. Couldn't a dog hab found it and eat it up?"

IMPOSSIBLE TO FOLLOW.

The physician was giving good advice to the layman.
"Don't let the little things pass unnoticed," said the doctor. "It's these little things that often turn out to be serious, if allowed to run on without attention. Even if you have a simple ailment, keep your eye on it."
"But how can I do that?" cried the patient. "I have a boil on the back of my neck."

SO RECKLESS.

"It's no use, talking," remarked Banks, dejectedly. "It's impossible to make a woman understand even the first principles of finance."
"What's the matter now?" inquired Henderson.
"Matter!" ejaculated the disgusted Banks. "Why, when I was away yesterday the baby swallowed a dime. And what does my wife do but call in a doctor and pay him $5 for getting that coin back?"

QUITE LADY-LIKE.

Frances came downstairs like a ton of bricks. "Now Frances," said the little girl's mother, "you came downstairs so noisily that you could be heard all over the house. Now go back and come down quietly and properly, as a lady should do."
Frances retired, and in a few minutes re-entered the parlor.
"Did you hear me come downstairs this time, mother?" she asked.
"No dear, you came down like a lady that time," replied her mother. "Yes," said Frances. "I slid down the banisters."

REVENGE IS SWEET

How a Lady Got Even for the Spoiling of Her Skirt.

An incident which might have been blazed for a moving picture play is reported to have taken place near the market Wednesday afternoon. A woman was passing along King street on the north side when she suddenly noticed that one side of her new skirt had been all splashed by muddy water. She had just passed a store where two men were engaged in washing the windows. One of them was up the ladder with a pail of water, and she promptly taxed him with the crime. He denied all knowledge of it, and descended to the sidewalk to expostulate with the angry woman. She promptly made grab for his pail and emptied the contents over him, drenching him to the skin.

A crowd gathered and the woman expressed her opinions on the sterner sex so forcibly that the average suffragette was put to shame. Then she went on her way, avenged, if not rejoicing.

EIGHT BRANCHES IN TORONTO.
The Home Bank of Canada has opened its eighth branch in Toronto at 1158 Yonge street north. The present office at this address is temporary, as the bank owns the property at the corner of Yonge and Alcorn avenue, and will erect a building there later on.

This location is convenient to the proposed new Union Station for the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern Railways. Mr. H. S. Hase, of the head office, is the manager in charge.

The Home Bank has now eight offices in Toronto at the following addresses: 78 Church street, 8-10 King street west, corner Queen west and Bathurst, corner Bloor west and Bathurst, corner Queen east and Ontario, Dundas street, corner High Park avenue, West Toronto, Broadview avenue, corner Wilton, and 1158 Yonge street. These branches, with the exception of 78 Church street, are located in the centre of population in the different wards in Toronto. The old head office at 78 Church street was opened in 1854, and the business has grown away from that section of the city during the past thirty years.

Baby Fell 26 Feet Escaped Unhurt

[Special to The Advertiser.] Woodstock, July 18.—After seeing her 2-year-old son fall down a 26-foot well, Mrs. Thomas Matheson, of Inverkip, had the unexpected joy of seeing him brought up unharmed. The well was empty, but a foot of soft mud in the bottom saved the child, who had walked onto the top and fell in where a plank was off. Neighbors rescued the baby.

FARMERS BUSY

Hay and Wheat Are Being Cut Around Ingersoll.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ingersoll, July 18.—In neighboring districts several wheat fields have already been cut, and the binders will be heard in many others before the end of the week. The grain is ripening very rapidly. Farmers will undoubtedly be rushed during the next few weeks. In some localities there is considerable hay to be cut, and with the wheat ready on all sides, the farmers will have to work overtime. The wheat is vigorous and gives every indication of a bountiful yield.

WILL BE GIVEN A TRIAL.
[Special to The Advertiser.] Woodstock, July 18.—Wm. Arnott, assistant chief of the local fire brigade, has been appointed chief for three months on trial in place of Chief Borsland, formerly of London, who takes up his duties as chief in Cobalt on Aug. 1.

KILLED IN WRECK.
[Canadian Press.] Rochester, July 18.—In the wreck of an eastbound freight on the New York Central near Chili station today, Edward Upchurch, of Buffalo, was killed, and it is believed that other bodies may be buried under the wreckage. Upchurch was beating his way. His head and both feet were completely severed.

PREPARING MAMMA.

"Mamma, what would you do if that big vase in the dining-room should be broken?" said Tommy.
"I should thrash whoever did it," said Mrs. Banks, gazing severely at her little son.
"Well, then, you'd better begin to get up your muscles," said Tommy, gleefully, "cos father's broken it."

NEW TARIFF IS BEING DEBATED IN THE SENATE

Average Reduction Proposed by Democrats Will Total Almost 28 Per Cent.

Agricultural Interests Deemed of Greatest Importance in Framing Provisions.

[Canadian Press.]
Washington, July 18.—An average reduction of 27.64 per cent. under the rates of the existing Payne-Aldrich tariff law is proposed by the Democratic Underwood-Simmons tariff bill upon which the Senate began general debate today, according to the report of the finance committee majority submitted by the chairman, Senator F. M. Simmons.

The report also shows that the bill as reported to the Senate provides rates 4.22 per cent. lower than the Underwood bill as it passed the House, and that from it, together with other Government receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, there will be an estimated surplus in the Government treasury of $2,020,000.

Admitted Free.
A salient feature of this bill, it is pointed out, is the large increase of imports to be admitted free of duty. Under the House bill the value of free list imports, on the basis of 1912 importations was $103,000,000, whereas the Democrats of the Senate in their sweeping changes, propose to free list imports valued at $147,367,000, an increase in undutiable imports over the House bill of $44,367,000.

Upon the basis of ten months for the coming fiscal year, the report estimates that the receipts from customs alone under the new bill will be $266,730,000; from income tax for ten months, $38,530,000; corporation tax, $37,000,000; internal revenue, including tax on cotton futures of $5,000,000, $297,000,000, and that the revenue from all other sources will bring the total for the fiscal year to $796,810,000. With disbursements estimated for the committee by treasury experts at $994,790,000, a balance is shown in favor of the Government of $2,020,000.

Are Too Drastic.
In analyzing its change in the House administrative features of the bill, the committee "deemed the amendments of the House entirely too drastic," particularly those authorizing examination of books of foreign manufacturers, a five per cent. tariff discount on imports in American ships and other like features, which were stricken out. Particular attention is called to the Senate provision designed to furnish the President with power to impose tariff duties of a retaliatory character upon all articles comprised in a specified list, which includes many agricultural products.

"For some years," says the report in referring to this retaliatory provision, "there has been a development of maximum and minimum tariffs abroad, and in not a few instances the Government of the United States has been compelled to see its citizens subjected to harsh and discriminating tariff treatment abroad without being able under the law to afford relief."

Makes For Equity.
"The provision now recommended will, it is believed, place in the hands of the President powers which, though extensive in their sphere, are judiciously circumscribed to permit of their being exerted within the limits assigned them without disturbing the general fiscal system of the United States. Wise use of the retaliatory power will, it is reasonably expected, bring about equitable arrangements with these countries which do not now afford us fair treatment, and it is probable that the weapon thus provided will be so available and effective as to render its actual use entirely unnecessary under any ordinary conditions."

Another important feature added by the Senate committee is a rate of one-tenth of one cent a pound on cotton sold through stock exchanges for future delivery.

The changes in all the schedules are dealt with at length in the report. Of agricultural products, many of which were transferred to the free list in addition to those put there by the House, the committee has this to say:

"The House bill and amendments made by the committee on finance fully recognized the paramount interests of our agricultural population by placing agricultural implements of every kind and description, and fence and baling wire, cotton bagging and ties, low priced blankets, boots and shoes, cement, nails, lumber, coal, harness, saddles, cotton gins, wagons, carts, bagging for grain, wool, and other necessary sewing machines and many other products of daily utility on the free list. In common with the rest of our people, our agricultural population will share in the benefit of the reduction of the duties on sugar and its eventual elimination. The substantial reductions made all along the line on cotton and woolen goods, weaving apparel and fabrics, and the reduction of the duties on iron and steel, hardware and similar products of our factories, will remove a considerable part of the burden of tariff taxation."

Free Sugar and Wool.
The sugar and wool schedules are left unchanged as to free sugar and free wool, but reductions by the Senate committee in wool tops and yarns are explained, and sweeping reductions in the metal schedules are treated in the report with considerable comment. Pig iron, ferro-manganese and other products were placed on the free list by the committee, and the report says:

"The House bill places iron ore upon the free list mainly because it was the lead of the House. It has sought in the amendments it proposes to the House bill to further extend the free list by the establishment of a revenue-producing tariff upon the basis of competitive rates, as a just and fair interpretation in the light of existing conditions of the tariff authorities of the party in power upon that subject, and now submits the results of its labors with the confident belief that the enactment into law of the House bill as amended will result in a more equitable distribution of the burdens and incidental benefits of our system of customs taxation; that it will tend to disintegrate the monopolies built up under the present system; that it will enlarge opportunity through individual effort, reduce the cost of living and relieve the people from the burdens of the protective system strikingly exemplified in the so-called Payne-Aldrich bill, which this measure is intended to supersede."

A Revenue-Producer.
Concerning the general revision, the Senate committee states that it was the lead of the House. "It has sought in the amendments it proposes to the House bill to further extend the free list by the establishment of a revenue-producing tariff upon the basis of competitive rates, as a just and fair interpretation in the light of existing conditions of the tariff authorities of the party in power upon that subject, and now submits the results of its labors with the confident belief that the enactment into law of the House bill as amended will result in a more equitable distribution of the burdens and incidental benefits of our system of customs taxation; that it will tend to disintegrate the monopolies built up under the present system; that it will enlarge opportunity through individual effort, reduce the cost of living and relieve the people from the burdens of the protective system strikingly exemplified in the so-called Payne-Aldrich bill, which this measure is intended to supersede."

REINFORCED WALL CONCRETE FACED FOR BREAKWATER

Recommendation of the City Engineer for West London's Protection.

Warns Council Against Delay in Construction of Storm Sewer System.

Comprehensive reports on the West London breakwater and on a storm sewer system for the city were presented to the board of works last night by the City Engineer W. N. Ashplant. Reviewing the breakwater question the engineer stated that in the past fifteen years $21,178 had been spent on it for piling, plankings and general filling. None of this work had been of permanent character and he recommended a permanent construction paid for out of debentures, as the safer and better policy. He recommended the previous reports on various types of construction and recommended a reinforced embankment, faced with concrete, as the most effective form of construction. The estimated cost of this would be $12,400 per foot, and would provide for a required gravel and earth filling (40,000 yards), the reinforced concrete facing and a pipe rail fence for the protection of the top of the bank. With an additional 10 per cent for contingencies the cost would amount to $22,130.

New Drainage Demanded.
As a semi-preface to his dissertation on storm water sewerage, the engineer pointed out the fact that the new 12-inch sanitary sewer on Dundas street, from Egerton to Quebec, would be inadequate to handle the waste from McCormick's factory or another large industry that might locate there. He recommended the diversion of Carling's Creek at Egerton street and Dundas, and a short, deep cut from there to the river.

The cost, which would be in the neighborhood of $60,000 to $70,000, he characterized as a secondary consideration. He also recommended the covering of Carling's Creek, which in the Chipman report on storm sewers is suggested as the main artery of the system, near Richmond street, and also near the mouth branch of the creek at the river. This would make the scheme more practicable. By diverting the creek at Egerton street and running its upper waters to the south branch of the river, the sewer for utilizing Carling's Creek would be made more feasible for the downtown district.

No Change of Plans.
No alteration in the Chipman scheme would be necessary in view of the Egerton street sewer, and the cost as outlined in that report would be about the same—$400,000, according to Engineer Ashplant, who took issue with Engineer Chipman's statement that the Egerton street outlet was unnecessary. Referring to the necessity for accommodating sewage from the eastern section, as well as the storm water, Engineer Ashplant recommended that no action be taken at present on the construction of the Egerton street outlet. His idea was that the sanitary sewer should be laid at the same time as the storm water trunk line to the river.

More Information Required.
That the information due the Chipman report is insufficient to justify an immediate start on the storm water system as soon as the funds are available, is one contention of the engineer. He asserted that description, class of construction and similar items were matters for study more exhaustive than the report, and greater than he had the time to devote, so asked that special reports be secured along these lines.

Progressive Ideas Needed.
Engineer Ashplant has a rub for previous councils. In part he says: "I have been sufficiently long in the employ of the council to realize that the city is in need of immediate action being taken along progressive lines relative to drainage and good roads particularly. These items must call for the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars. In the absence of more definite data I must decline to accept responsibility for the construction of piecemeal additions that are and have been crushed through delay."

Construction Indifferent.
"Indifferent construction, lack of systematic planning, skilled inspection and care in layout, as well as the construction of private works without the required gradients, has much to do with the present condition. I must warn the council against delay. Thorough engineering is necessary. The system is in serious shape as a result of indifference to construction in past years and the carrying out of abuses contrary to the advice of the council's previous experts. Works which have not the advantage of appearing on the surface as being reproductive, have evidently met with relatively scant consideration, with the result that drainage, which should have been the first consideration of a city, appears in London to have been neglected, and the question of adequate sewage disposal ignored."

WOULD SEPARATE WATER AND ELECTRIC DEPTS.

Water Commission Ask for a Ruling on Matter by the City Council.

Definition of some policy for the proposed separation of the waterworks and electrical departments, now under control of the water commission, or a public utility commission, will be asked from the council by that body. At the meeting of the water commission yesterday, Chairman Philip Pocock reported that the special waterworks investigation committee had no powers to investigate or report on a scheme for the separation of the two public ownership utilities in London. He requested that the commission memorialize the council to provide this power for the committee, placed in the form of a resolution, this suggestion passed the commission.

Housing Employees.
The question of providing free houses for employees of the commission at the Springbank pumping station and also at Springbank Park, was again raised. Commissioner J. H. Chapman declared in favor of charging all employees, save the general superintendent, at least a nominal rent for the upkeep of the houses. While the question was temporarily laid over, it seemed to be the sentiment of the commission that Commissioner Chapman's ideas should be carried out.

Commissioner H. A. Stevenson raised the question of the purchase of the Cove island by the water commission. A report on this will be submitted later. Passing of accounts and the usual routine of the commission occupied the remainder of the meeting.

STEAMER REFLOATED

The Diana May Be Able To Go On to Crocker Land.

[Canadian Press.]
St. Johns, Nfld., July 18.—The Donald B. McMillan Arctic exploring ship Diana, which stranded on Barge Point on the southern coast of Labrador Wednesday night, was refloated last evening, according to a message received by Job Bros., the owners here, from the telegraph operator at Red Bay, in the Straits of Belle Isle, today.

The firm assumes that the vessel is coming here for repairs, but had no direct word from her today, and it is possible that the Diana was only slightly damaged, and is proceeding on her voyage to Crocker Land.

EXPLORER'S SHIP WENT ASHORE IN THE STRAITS

Crocker Land Expedition on the Sealer Diana Is 400 Miles From Help.

[Canadian Press.]

St. Johns, Nfld., July 17.—The sealer Diana, conveying McMillan's Crocker Land expedition northward, went ashore last night in a dense fog at Barge Point, forty miles west of Battle Harbor, Bette Isle Straits, and is likely to be a total wreck. The ship is so firmly aground, according to latest reports, that it is unlikely she will ever be refloated. The Newfoundland Government cruiser Stella Maris has been ordered to her aid.

It is not believed here that she can pull off the Diana, which is completely loaded with coal and supplies. Everybody aboard the Diana is safe and well.

The Stella Maris will have to steam more than 400 miles from this port to reach the disabled vessel. Barge Point, where the accident occurred, is on the extreme southern portion of the Labrador coast, and is about 50 miles east of the boundary line separating Labrador from Quebec Province. There is no large settlement in the vicinity.

The Diana sailed from Boston after taking on a quantity of food and medical supplies on July 5, and after a stop at Sydney, N. S., sailed north on July 12. The expedition was sent out by the American Geographical Society and the American Museum of Natural History of New York. The explorers are under command of Donald B. McMillan. They planned to remain three years in Crocker Land.

BOY OF NINE UNDER ARREST

May Be Charged With Murdering Little Girl of Two.

PLANNED A ROBBERY

Winnipeg, July 17.—One of the most extraordinary cases which has yet come before the provincial police was the one today which may result in a charge of murder being preferred against Anton Sawchuk, a 9-year-old child, who is alleged to have murdered Annie Lutz, aged 2½ years, on a farm at Tyndal on Monday. At an inquest last night at Tyndal the verdict was an open one and the boy was brought to the city today.

As far as can be learned the boy planned to rob the house of the Lutzs. He is supposed to have entered the house when only Annie was there and to have deliberately shot her. The boy is also alleged to have planned to murder the whole family.

JAPS ACCUSED OF FINANCING THE REVOLUTION

Serious Trouble Is Brewing in China Over Rebellion in Provinces.

Old Enemy of Yuan Shi Kai Named President by Southern Leaders.

[Canadian Press.]
Peking, China, July 18.—The situation brought about by the rebellion in the southern provinces of China has improved somewhat today, when regarded from the northern point of view. Fewer soldiers have deserted the Government of Provisional President Yuan Shi Kai, than had been anticipated by the authorities.

Heavy fighting is expected to occur at Kiu Kiang in the province of Kiang Si, after the full following the recent defeat of the southern forces at Hu Chow in the province of Che Kiang.

Joined by Forts.
The southern rebels have been joined by the forts at Wu Sung, a seaport ten miles to the north of Shanghai, and at Nanking, the southern capital, both in the province of Kiang Si, while the large force of soldiers occupying them also has gone over to the rebels.

The leaders of the southern forces issued a proclamation today announcing the appointment as president of the republic of Tsen Chun Hsuan, a former viceroy of Canton, and Yuan Shi Kai's old enemy. Wang Chung Wei is named foreign minister, and Chang Hsuan Hui, finance minister. All three are considered in northern circles to be fanatics.

Twenty Killed.
The southern rebels yesterday killed twenty officers who were loyal to the Peking Government, including the new governor of the province of Ngan Swei.

Provisional President Yuan Shi Kai had a long conference with the loyal generals today, when plans for the suppression of the rebellion were discussed.

The belief prevails very generally in Peking that the Japanese are financing the revolution in the southern provinces, and some of the newspapers assert that 40 officers of the Japanese army are with the rebel troops.

NEARLY BOKE JAIL.
[Canadian Press.]

Portage la Prairie, July 18.—William Oxley, a prisoner serving an 18 months' term in the jail for horse stealing, made a daring attempt at escape yesterday. He grabbed the warden's keys and being a big man was only overpowered after a desperate struggle.

MILITANTS WOULD OUST REBELLIOUS SISTERS

Refused To Go On a Hunger Strike, and Are To Be Expelled.

London, July 17.—Two suffragettes, Leila and Rosalind Cadz, brought an action in the chancery division at Dublin today to restrain a committee of the Irish Women's Franchise League from expelling them from that society because they refused to go on a "hunger strike."

The master of the rolls stopped the case and dismissed the action, remarking that the plaintiffs' case had no merit more than that of the defendants', all being engaged in a criminal conspiracy.

May Dennis, better known as Lillian Denton, the militant suffragette, after travelling over the country for several weeks in various disguises with the police at her heels, has escaped into France.

After the Kew Gardens outrage, for which she was convicted, but released on license, she disappeared for several months. She reappeared in a dramatic manner at Doncaster during the trial of another woman for setting fire to a building. She admitted that she was the guilty party and on her own confession was again arrested and later on remanded to Armitage jail.

She was released once more after going on a "hunger strike" under the provisions of the "cat-and-mouse" act. She got away from police surveillance again and the detectives traced her to Dundee, Cardiff and Dover. At the latter place she disguised herself as an old woman, and with a shawl thrown over her head hobbled along the coast till she found a sympathizer with her cause, who picked her up and took her in a yacht to France.

Appin, July 18.—Archibald Henderson, of Delaware, and Miss Dolly Black were married here on Wednesday at high noon by Rev. A. U. Campbell.

The bride, on her father's arm, entered an arch of green upon the lawn, where the groom awaited her arrival. She was beautifully attired in white embroidered satin, with veil and orange blossoms. Only the immediate friends were present.

A dainty dejeuner was served. The bridal couple left immediately after for a western trip. They will reside in St. Thomas.

A few evenings previous to Miss Black's marriage the young people of the community, numbering ninety, met at her home and showered her with many useful articles, granite ware, a washing outfit, table linen, towels and china ware.

Minister's Wife Secures Divorce

[Special to The Advertiser.]
Ann Arbor, Mich., July 17.—Charging cruelty and desertion, Mrs. Bessie Conant today obtained a divorce from Ray Conant, formerly a Methodist minister in Windsor, Ont.

Mrs. Conant alleged that shortly after their marriage in Windsor in 1909 her husband became a drunkard. When intoxicated he would smash the furniture and beat her. Later, when the baby came, he would take the child to a saloon. Finally he deserted her.

RAINSOAKED HAY

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Wyoming, July 18.—A heavy down-pour of rain fell in this district last night accompanied by neither wind nor lightning. It thoroughly soaked the ground and any outstanding hay. Hay-making, however, had been rushed through so unintermittently during the past few days that little is out.

The harvesting and threshing of the pea crop grown for the present owing to the wet.

A number from here attended the social at Petrolia held in the interests of the Catholic Church in that town. The unpleasant weather was rather a deterrent to enjoyment.

GERMANY AND THE OLYMPIC GAMES

New Enthusiasm For Athletes in the Fatherland—
A Great Publicity Campaign for the Olympiad
In 1916—Preparations at Berlin.

In 1916 the Olympic Games will be held in Germany for the first time. And although three years have still to intervene a great deal of energy is already being devoted to insuring the success of the meeting. Until recent years most outdoor sports, apart from tennis and cycling, have had only a very small following in Germany. The demands of physical culture were thought to be fully satisfied by the Turnerschaft, a gymnastic organization which covered the whole of the country; other forms of exercise were opposed either as a waste of time or as dangerous, or as tending to divert interest from the more useful if less amusing gymnastics. But just before the turn of the century came a great change. Skiing and tobogganing, hockey, football, at least among the lower classes, rowing, and what are known as light athletics rapidly became popular. The Emperor himself lectured the universities on the harmful effect of excessive beer-drinking and the advantage of open-air exercise, and the Crown Prince set a good example by his interest in every kind of sport. Football was introduced into both the army and the navy, and in Bavaria the introduction of games received much encouragement from Prince Rupprecht, the heir of the present regent. The spirit of association which drives the German to form a Verein or association on the least possible excuse soon began to work. In a short time sport and athletic clubs began to spring up throughout the whole country, and these again were quickly brought together into national unions for tennis, rowing, heavy and light athletics, hockey, football, skiing and other sports. Last year it was calculated that, apart from the great national gymnastic association, the Deutscher Turnerschaft, which had a membership of at least 1,250,000, not far short of two million members, were united in various national sport and athletic unions.

An Uplift Battle.
With individual sports well organized it was not difficult to form a committee representing the athletic activities of the whole country, and already in 1904 an "Imperial Committee for Olympic Games" was brought together. But the athletic movement in Germany was then still young, and an uplift battle had to be fought against the prejudice of the old-established Turnerschaft. Although the scheme for a national stadium, where periodic athletic competitions could be held for the whole of Germany, was formed as early as 1906, the lack of funds, and the refusal of either the Government or the town of Berlin to take any interest in the matter, prevented its execution. Until a year ago the Union Racing Club stepped into help by the offer of monetary support and of land on the Grunewald Racecourse. In the meantime, and especially after the Stockholm games of last year, national pride was at last aroused by the poor figure which Germany up to then had cut in the Olympic competitions. In the end, too, the goodwill of the Turnerschaft was won by the assurance that gymnastics should receive ample attention in the stadium meetings, and the committee was strengthened by the support of the organization. Under the patronage of the Crown Prince and the presidency of Lieutenant-General von Podholski, the late Prussian minister for agriculture, the committee now consists of representatives from all the sport associations in Germany together with the German members in the International Olympic Committee, and representatives from the war office and the ministry of the interior. To it the Government has entrusted all the preparations for the games in 1916, the management of finance, the selection and training of German competitors, and the control of the new stadium, where the meeting is to be held.

An Advertising Campaign.
As there is still much need of popularizing the idea of the Olympic Games in Germany itself, one of the first tasks undertaken by the committee has been a campaign of advertisement. This agitation is being carried out chiefly through the aid of the press. In addition, posters announcing the opening of the stadium are being spread through the whole of the country, and a series of lectures on the meaning of the Olympic contests is being delivered in the twenty-five most important towns, and no efforts are being spared to impress the importance of the games on all athletic associations, and the necessity of training their members as possible competitors. Further, in order to raise the general standard of physical culture, and to provide as wide a field as possible for the selection of Olympic candidates, the committee has instituted a series of rewards for all-round athletic development. The more important forms of exercise—swimming, running, jumping, tennis, skating, wrestling, discus throwing, putting the weight, rowing, cycling, skiing, football, hockey, and golf—are divided into five groups. If the competitor, in the space of one year, satisfies a by no means high standard—in the high jump, for instance, he must clear 1.35 metre, in the 100-metre race he must get down to 13 seconds—in one sport from each of these five groups he receives a bronze medal. If he passes the same test in four separate years he receives a silver medal, in eight years a gold medal. To a competitor above the age of 32 the gold medal is awarded if he can satisfy the tests once only. As far as the preparation of competitors is concerned, the present year is to be devoted exclusively to the search for promising material. The reports that have appeared of competitors having been already selected being, as was to be expected, premature. During 1914 and 1915 the best material in the various clubs will be further developed, mainly by the local clubs themselves. By the early part of 1916 the committee hopes to have made contracts with a body of expert trainers, who will finally take over the selected German representatives at the beginning of 1916. For the riding competitions special arrangements will be made by the military authorities. From the beginning of next year the mounted troops will be trained in the same kind of competitions as are held in the Olympic Games. A preliminary selection of officers will be made in 1915. In 1916, after the final selection, the approved candidates will complete their training at the Military Riding Institute in Hanover.

Gymnastic Exercises.
Although the program of the Sixth Olympiad will not be authoritatively fixed until the meeting of the international committee in Paris next summer, it is not likely that the wishes of the German hosts will meet with any strong opposition. Germany, as is natural, wishes to lay as strong an emphasis as possible on gymnastics, a form of physical exercise in which she has excelled for nearly a century. It is proposed that the sports shall be opened by a great gymnastic display; that gymnastic competitions shall be held for German clubs, and that certain competitions shall be open to gymnasts of all countries. In athletics the committee suggests that the standing jump shall be abolished. Certain swimming races are to be added. Cycling, which fell out at Stockholm owing to lack of accommodation, is to be brought back again. It is suggested that in addition to six different track races cycle polo shall be introduced, and that a race of 240 kilometres shall be held round Berlin. Whether skating will be included is doubtful. If agreed to by the international committee this section of the games might be held early in February, but there is much to be said against dividing up the meeting in this way. Another possibility would be to use the artificial ice in the Eisplatz, an excellent rink in the centre of Berlin. For the rowing races there is a magnificent course to the east of Berlin, where eight boats can row abreast, but it is possible that a course will be chosen on the Havel, as the committee hopes to be able to concentrate all competitions on the west side of Berlin, as near as possible to the Stadium itself. It is hoped that golf, which is now making some progress in Germany, and for which there exists already a National Union, containing some 2,500 members, may also be included in the sports. At the moment the Berlin course is a poor one, but it is expected that very soon an excellent course will be constructed in the neighborhood of Potsdam, fully capable of satisfying all the demands of an international competition.

As the time for the games draws nearer, an extensive system of advertisement will be carried out abroad, for which the help of the consular service will be requisitioned. It is further hoped that arrangements will be made by the Berlin theatres for an opera and theatre festival to be held at the same time as the games in order to make a visit to Berlin in 1916 still more attractive to foreigners.

FURTHER, BUT—
They had been "walking out" for some months, but as yet he had not been able to muster up courage to ask for a kiss. One night, however, as they were walking in the country he gathered himself together and said:

"Mary, Ah! going to kiss yer at every stile 'twixt 'ere and 'ome."

Mary, who was half-way over the stile, looked down on him with blushing face.

"Come on, then," she said, and descended from the stile again and began walking back in the direction from which they had come.

"Wot are yer going that way for?" queried he, mounting the stile again in pursuit of his prize. "It's a lot

Lady Sackville and her husband are shown leaving the court at London. Inset is a picture of Sir John Murray Scott, the eccentric millionaire, who willed upwards of $5,000,000 to Lady Sackville. His brothers and sisters brought suit to recover the money on the ground that Lady Sackville exercised undue influence over Sir John, and virtually obtained possession of the fortune by fraudulent means. The case was decided in Lady Sackville's favor. Above is Knowle Park, the beautiful residence of the Sackvilles, which Sir John during his lifetime paid out large sums of money to restore and keep up.

PRICES AND WAGES IN THE PAST FORTY YEARS

[L. G. Chiozza Money, M. P., in the London Daily News.]

Prices have begun to interest a large number of people for the simple reason that after a very long period of falling prices there was first a check to the fall and then a rise effecting nearly all, but not quite all, commodities.

The point here is one of very great importance, and it is well that we should be quite clear as to what has happened. Let us take the period of the last forty years. In that period prices all round have fallen by over twenty-five per cent. That is to say, while we talk of prices being high at the present time, they are low as compared with the level of thirty years ago.

The fact is that during the 'seventies, during the 'eighties, and onwards to the year 1890 prices were continually falling. By about the middle of the 'eighties they had fallen to very much the level at which they stand today. They continued to fall until the year 1896 was reached. At that point there was a check in the fall, followed by a sharp rise in the year 1900, which took prices back to the level of the 'eighties. After a very slight reaction the advance continued in 1906 prices advanced beyond the level of 1900, and since then there has been an almost continuous rise, taking commodities as a whole. For last year, 1912, the facts are that prices were about fifteen per cent. higher than in 1900, and very nearly at the level at which they stood in 1884, nearly thirty years previous.

How Real Wages Rose. It will be seen that quite apart from any rise in cash, wages which occurred since 1870, there was a continuous increase in real wages owing to the increasing purchasing power of the sovereign. If cash wages had been perfectly stationary in the 'seventies, 'eighties, and 'nineties, down to 1896, the real remuneration of the working man would have risen owing to the all-round fall in the price of necessities of life.

What happened was that wages slightly rose while prices were falling rapidly. The rise was not very great, and the chief increases in the remuneration of the British working people, as a whole, arose (1) from the fall in prices, and (2) from the fact that during the period there was a certain transfer from the less well paid to the better paid employments in the country. For example, the proportion of agricultural laborers (who are badly paid) in the population declined, while the proportion of miners and engineers (who are much better paid) increased.

Altogether there was a fair increase in the standard of living in the United Kingdom in the twenty years down to 1896, as, of course, everyone who has lived through that period can testify from common observation.

There is not much doubt that the considerable fall in prices down to 1896 reconciled the working classes to a not very considerable increase in money wages.

It is also accustomed the masses of the people to a continuous increase in the standard of life which, although it was partly indeed when viewed from the standpoint of what one would desire to see enjoyed, was not inconsiderable when measured by the very poor standard of the old days.

The Advance Must Go On. Then came the New Deal, which is a dearth relative to the point which had been reached after the continued fall of which I have spoken.

In the early years of the advance—1896-1900—the rise was compensated for by an advance in money wages. After 1900, however, there was a very different tale to tell. Money wages remained for all practical purposes stationary down to 1910, even while prices rose 10 per cent. While prices rose only 10 per cent. This came a sharp and continued rise in the standard of living of which I have spoken.

And the worst of the thing was that during this very period of rising prices

the standard of living of the upper classes was obviously increasing. Further, it was increasing not only by reason of the fact that they had more to spend, but by reason of the fact that modern science was giving them more opportunity to spend their incomes to advantage. The motor-car is a conspicuous instance of the added value which has been given to rich people's incomes by recent science. At the present time it is true that even before that the fruit of invention, although enjoyed in some measure by everyone, is chiefly cornered by a limited class.

Even while the working classes were suffering from a rapid increase in the prices of the necessities of life, they had thrust upon them abundant evidences of increased wealth for the minority. They also became better acquainted with the distribution of the wealth of the country. Who shall wonder, then, if labor unrest made its appearance in an acute form?

In the last two years wages have again taken an upward course, but the rise has not yet compensated the working classes, or, for that matter, the lower ranks of the middle classes, for the New Dealness. The true claim of labor emerges from the considerations which have been reviewed. It is beyond question that the wealth of the nation as a whole has increased continuously, and labor is entitled to a continuous increase of real remuneration.

Harpies in British Society From Becky Sharp Down

The Scott-Sackville serves to emphasize a very remarkable change which has, of recent years, come over a certain section of that British society which spells itself with a capital S. In early and mid-Victorian days, it was considered utterly out of the question for a woman, with any pretensions to respectability, to confide her financial distresses to any man not closely related to her, far less accept pecuniary assistance from him. For instance, in "Vanity Fair," directly Daydon Crowley discovers that Becky has been accepting presents from Lord Steyne, he entertains no doubt of her guilt. And that was the spirit of the early and mid-Victorian days.

But now all that is changed. On her own showing, Lady Sackville confided to Sir John Scott "how hard up we were," and did not hesitate to accept from him, among many other things, a necklace of pearls which she values at fifteen thousand dollars. And her action in so doing would not be considered particularly remarkable by a certain section of society. For the number of society women who possess diamond tiaras, while their husbands' means of subsistence are far less obvious, is by no means small.

The Pace That Kills. It may be true, as the defenders of the present social state are always asserting, that present-day British society is not so extravagant as was its counterpart in days of Nero or Vitellius. But, nevertheless, it costs a pretty penny to cut much of a figure in it. And the lady who is to the manner born, or otherwise, to her name. Still, the pace must be kept up. Dressmakers and milliners—the unreasonable creatures!—are for ever "something on account." Bridge must be played. And bridge debts must be paid—if you want to play again. And so my lady tries to turn her uselessly beautiful hand to something that will bring grist to the mill. As a rule, she tries the Stock Exchange first. She asks the first financial magnate she can think of for a "tip," and, for a while, becomes absorbed in "contingencies" and the rest. Princess Radziwill sought the late Cecil Rhodes' advice with regard to "investment," after meeting him once at a London dinner-party. This he refused, and she, later, proceeded to forge his name for something like a hundred thousand dollars. He had considered her, when he first met her, a "bright, clever woman." And there are others.

Working the Oracle. As a rule, however, my lady meets with but little success on the Stock Exchange, and anyhow, she prefers to work the oracle in a different way. So the financial magnate is told, with all the exactness of utter untruth, how undeserved pecuniary misfortune has overtaken her, and how, unless some rich friend comes to her aid, her social career must culminate in a climax of some tragic sort. And if it suits his purpose and the amount he is not too stiff, the financial magnate consents to play the part of the "kind, rich friend" to titled beauty in distress. And how about the husband of titled beauty? Well, he knows that in nine cases out of ten there is "no harm in it," as the saying is—that the transaction is merely the result of graft on his wife's part, and snobbery on that of the financial magnate. And if he can't be quite sure of the tenth case—well, a man who suffers from a chronic lack of both principle and principle is not likely to be too scrupulous. In fact, as he shares the plunder with titled beauty, he reflects with satisfaction on the "doosid cleverness of little wife on getting the best of that stockbroker, or American, or colonial Johnny. What the doose are fellows like that for, anyway, what?" Yet it is difficult to know for which of the twain to feel the greater veneration—the society harpy or the society harpy's husband.

LONDON HAS BECOME EMPIRE'S SOCIAL CAPITAL

The Headquarters of the World's "Society"—Growing Cult of the Beautiful.

In contrast to the "Backyard View" of London is the picture of London, written in the Daily Mail by one who knows well the other capitals of Europe—Mr. G. Valentine Williams.

London's Immense Changes. "Do Londoners, whose ignorance about London and the things of London is proverbial, ever stop and think on the immense changes which the past decade has seen in the life and external appearance of their capital? Do they ever step out of the narrow circle in which, Londoner-like, they live and take a general survey of London and the position she occupies today among the other European capitals?"

"It has been my experience to find that they do not, and I therefore claim the privilege, as a Londoner born and bred, of telling them something of the changes I have remarked on returning home after a more or less up and down residence abroad during the past eight and a half years.

Foreigners in London. "The years I have spent on the Continent included long stays in Paris, Berlin, and Vienna, and as the result of my observations there I can unhesitatingly affirm that London, still the world's commercial centre, has also now become the premier social capital of Europe. One has only to scan the society columns of the newspapers and note the names of the regular foreign notabilities who regularly figure in the events of the London social season to realize the attraction London exercises on society abroad. A fortnight or three weeks in London in June now habitually figures in the social curriculum of the smart set of Paris, Berlin, and Vienna, and of Madrid and Budapest as well. London has become the favorite diplomatic post. Young foreign diplomatists make every endeavor to get transferred to London.

"Do Londoners realize how enormously the traffic of foreign tourists to London has increased? Every day I meet in the streets, in motor omnibuses, in the tubes, familiar types from provincial cities in France and Germany, comfortable bourgeois figures one rarely saw in London—at any rate in such numbers—ten years back.

"London has discovered the secret of life. Life has become more beautiful, gay, more irresponsible. We have awakened to the fact that our architecture and our streets need not be so hopelessly ugly as our public monuments. We have begun to plan a London of our parks, which have always had, is a superb setting for such noble rearrangements as that made in the approach to Buckingham Palace in connection with the Victorian Memorial.

have a Joy Shave! Oil Your Razor with 3-in-One

Always do this before and after shaving: Draw your "ordinary" or "safety" razor blade between thumb and forefinger moistened with a little 3-in-One Oil. Oil your strop, too. Then you'll secure keenest edge in a jiffy.

3-in-One Oil Prevents Rust from forming on the microscopic "teeth" which form the cutting edge of every razor blade. It keeps blades from rusting, makes it "pull" and "hunt." You can remove all the latter moisture out of those tiny "teeth" but 3-in-One Oil will positively ward off any rusting between shaves.

Right now buy a bottle and have perfect shave! The look with the bottle tells you hundreds of other helpful uses, indoors and out. For sale at all good hardware, drug, grocery and general stores. 1 oz. 10c; 3 oz. 25c; 8 oz. 50c, 1/2 pt. 50c.

WILSON'S FLY PAD. POISON

Every ten cent packet will kill more flies than $8.00 worth of any sticky fly killer. Refuse substitutes, which are most unsatisfactory.

"The motor-traffic is clean, and the spotless condition of the roadway in Piccadilly, Oxford Street, St. James's Street, and the parks was a revelation to me. It rivals the far-famed cleanliness of the Berlin streets. But what happened to London's horses? London, once the premier capital for the elegance and dash of its equipages, is quite outclassed today by Budapest and Moscow, where social standing and wealth are still measured by horse-flesh and not by horse-power.

London's Entertainment. "The cult of the beautiful in London is also seen in the mounting of the plays in the theatres. The whole business of entertainment has been revolutionized by the evolution of the super-music-hall and the picture palace. No other city in the world except New York could afford to make such huge vaudeville enterprises with such costly programs as London possesses a financial success. Men I have met abroad have told me more than once that what impressed them most on a first visit to London were the vast good tempered audiences which stretched in a sea of faces from stalls to gallery at one or other of London's colossal music-halls. London clamors for the beautiful and the artistic, and the super-music-hall furnishes it.

"The growing cult of the beautiful has brought with it a corresponding quickening of the pace in the chase after pleasure, which may be expected to bring with it the ill-effects seen in the social life of other countries. The future of England, both socially and politically, is being followed with eager interest throughout the continent of Europe."

HIS ALARM CLOCK.

The following story is told of a young lawyer, who was not overwhelmed with clients. A friend entering the office one day observed on the desk a cheap alarm clock. "Taking it home," he observed, "to wake you up in the morning?" The lawyer smiled. "No," he replied, "I am keeping it there to wake me up when it's time to go home."

CAPABLE.

"Is she musical?" "Yes, she has a natural voice, a sharp tongue, and a flat nose."

"Ahead in 1909—Still Ahead in 1913." Greatest Test on Record?

KNIGHT ENGINE VS. POPPET VALVE ENGINE.

Since the A. C. A. Judges made their report on the Poppet Valve test, and the comparison was made with the R. A. C. Judges' report on the Knight Engine test, the claim has been made by the manufacturers of the Poppet Valve engine that theirs was the greatest engine test on record. Opinions vary as to this. We will submit very briefly the conditions of the two tests, and rest content to abide by the public's decision as to which was more exhaustive. The Poppet Valve test continued for 300 hours. The test of the Knight Motor, made four years ago, consisted of the following:

- (1). 132 hours of running on the bench.
- (2). Fitting to Chassis and running 2,000 miles on the Brooklands speedway with no adjustment, at a speed of 42 miles per hour.
- (3). Placing the engine again on a test bench and a five hours' continuous run to develop its condition at that time.
- (4). An entire dismantling of the engine to show the amount of wear as the result of the test.

Take the two performances side by side, the one a steady run on the bench, the other a run of 132 hours on the bench, 2,000 miles of road work, and then a further test and a searching examination of the parts, and on this latter basis alone, we believe the two tests are substantially on a par. The rules of the test laid down for the Knight were, however, at least 33 1-3% more severe than the rules for the Poppet Valve.

The requirements of the Knight Test were that it should develop continuously at least 30% more than its rated horsepower; in other words, 50.8 h.p. The requirements of the Poppet Valve were that it should develop only 70% of its maximum horsepower, which was shown to be 44.9; or, in other words, that it should run only developing 80% of its rated 38 h.p.—that is, 30.4 h.p. In other words, though the different motors were of the same capacity, the Knight was prepared to assume a requirement demanding a maintenance of 30% over its rated h.p., whereas the Poppet Valve only assumed an obligation to maintain 20% less than its rated h.p. As a matter of fact, the Knight continuously developed for 132 hours 54.3 h.p., or 41% over its rating. The Poppet Valve only 35.7, or 2.3 h.p. below its rating. In fact, in the test the Poppet Valve engine did not, for a space of more than ten hours, maintain its rated h.p.

As a comparison, an electric dynamo rated, say, at 38 h.p., should run indefinitely developing 93% of its load, but try it out for even a short time developing 41% over its load and see what happens. The claim that the Poppet Valve test was more searching under these conditions is a good deal like the man who said to the champion runner of the 100 yards race: "I can beat you. It is true I did not run 100 yards in 10 1-5 seconds, but I ran further than you. I ran 200 yards." (Time not mentioned).

This is the last of the series of advertisements proving the superior efficiency of the Knight Engine when compared with the Poppet Valve.

Interested parties will upon request be sent a catalogue, which shows the development of the Knight Engine to its highest degree of efficiency—in the Russell-Knight "SIX."

Mr. McQueen Goes West.—Mr. Chas. McQueen, who until recently was connected with the editorial staff of The Advertiser, left Thursday for Winnipeg, to accept a position as assistant sporting editor of the Winnipeg Telegram.

Hard on Vagrants.—Evidently Magistrate Elhu Burritt Smith, of Ailsa Craig, does not approve of vagrancy. A few weeks ago he sentenced on old man of 84 to six months, and a few days ago he sentenced Jeffrey Davis, a man 65 years old, to five months in the Central Prison for a like offence against the laws of his country. The old man arrived in the city yesterday and is now lodged in the common jail for no greater offence than being without visible means of support.

Skirtmakers' Picnic.—The manager and Miss Rose, of the Metropolitan Suit and Skirt Company, entertained the staff at a picnic at Springbank Wednesday evening. The party left the city at 5 o'clock and had a program of sports and a baseball game. The work of some of the girls at bat was something that would have opened the eyes of the captains of the Canadian League. There was a prize for the prettiest girl in the crowd, but it was not awarded, because of the difficulty of choosing the winner. It was decided to make the outing an annual affair.

BOARD OF WORKSRESENTS CHARGE*OF THE COMMITTEE

Street Oiling Difficulties Under

Discussion Again Thurs-

-day Night.

No. 3 Has Enough To Do in

Watering Streets, Its Mem-bers Declare.

Street oiling difficulties of the council took another tack last night, when the board of works discussed the suggestion from the fire, water and light committee that street oiling should be improved. The suggestion was hardly one that found favor in the eyes of the board of works.

"Street watering is enough for No.

3 committee to look after," said Chairman Bennett, of the Board. "It has enough to do with that without monopolizing with street oiling."

"Let them do it if they want to," commented Ald. J. H. Saunders. "Last year they had the chance to have it,

but didn't know enough to take it. Now

they want it."

Resent Criticism.

The members of the board resented the statements of the fire, water and light committee that the work was improperly done.

"It's ridiculous the way the street

watering has been done this year, and yet they talk to us about oiling," declared Chairman Bennett.

"Yes, and we've had to oil streets

they should have watered," supplemented Ald. Saunders. As the estimates have been struck for the year, nothing could be done to transfer the control of street oiling to the water committee, as was asked, and so the proposition was passed up.

Pavement Bids.

The board recommended to the council the acceptance of the bids of Foley and Gleason, Ottawa, for the construction of asphalt pavements on Waterloo street, between King and Bathurst streets and on Piccadilly street from Richmond to St. George streets. The contract prices are: $6,130 and $3,740 respectively.

Another paving question that was up,

was that of Wortley road. Headed by Dr. Robert Ferguson and C. B. Hunt,

a deputation of ratepayers appeared before the board to ask why the pavement petitioned for some time ago was not laid. The explanation made was that the question of debenture

sale and investigation into the durability of the specific class of pavement recommended for that street, had held up the work. Speedy work was promised from now on, however.

Ald. J. H. Saunders demanded to know why the street railway had been allowed to tear up its switch on Adelaide street, permitting cars to run

west on Central avenue. No permission had been granted, and Ald. Saunders wanted to know how it was the company had started the work. On his recommendation City Engineer

Asphlant was instructed to stop the work till the council was able to investigate the matter.

CADETS' PARADE

Fine Showing Made During

Route March by the Boy Soldiers.

Lads Show Remarkable Precision and General Efficiency

—900 Out.

Thousands of citizens turned out on Thursday evening to witness the parade of the cadets who are encamped at present on Carling's Heights. Unstinted praise was accorded the boys

all along the line of march, for the smartness and general efficiency shown. They marched with great steadiness and their deportment would have done credit to many a militia

camp.

Leaving the camp grounds at 7 o'clock, the boys, under command of

Col. Hodgins, proceeded to Richmond and Dundas streets, thence north to Dufferin avenue, along Dufferin avenue to Victoria Park, through the park to Central avenue, and by Central to the camp grounds.

The streets were thickly lined with people, and the boys were met with enthusiastic applause, which they fully merited. The parade was headed by

Col. Hodgins and staff, and the band of the Seventh Regiment, which accompanied the cadets as far as Victoria Park. In front of the soldiers' monument the band turned aside and played the boys past, after which a band concert was given. The band of the First Hussars also furnished splendid music for the march.

The Music Helped.

Too much cannot be said for the bugle bands of the various corps. They showed clearly the results of the painstaking efforts which have been taken in instructing them, and also the faithful practice put in by the boys themselves. Their music was splendid and doubtless had a great deal to do with the precision and swing of the marching. The pipe band, heading the Chatham cadets, was most generous with its selections, playing nearly all the time. They were greeted with loud applause. The whole four battalions took part in the parade, the cadets in line numbering about 900.

The uniforms were the subject of much favorable comment. Although great latitude is allowed in choosing the style of uniform, they are all cut along military lines and looked exceedingly smart.

favorably impressed with the showing
