

MUST DISPOSE OF MORE POWER TO CUT LOSSES

Gregory Commission Submits Report on Nipigon Project.

WOULD ALTER CONTRACT Members of Government-Appointed Body Advise Immediate Action.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—An interim report covering its investigation into the Nipigon power project has been issued by the Gregory commission which was appointed by the provincial government some time ago to investigate and report on the whole Ontario hydro power enterprise. The document deals with the whole history of the Nipigon venture, the early stages of which were marked by some irregular procedures on the part of the commission, according to the report, and then takes up the question of the present deficit, which it finds equals $340,000 annually and is likely to reach $750,000 annually before the tide turns.

This burden, the commission suggests, cannot be carried by the hydro commission nor by the municipality of Port Arthur, for whom it was primarily promoted to secure. The province, continues the report, borrowed the money for the work on behalf of the hydro commission, the province signed the bonds, and, willingly or unwillingly, the province will have to make good the loss.

The Gregory report further suggests that the time has arrived for the provincial government to insist that the present standard contract adhere to by the hydro commission should not be allowed to bar out responsible customers for power. This recommendation appears to apply to the case of the Great Lakes Pulp & Paper Company, who have refused to take 10,000 horsepower from the hydro commission on the advice of their lawyers, who object to the details of the contract.

Outlines Nipigon's History. Dealing with the history of Nipigon, the Gregory report points out that the hydro commission omitted to publish an estimate of the maximum price at which power would be supplied and of the probable cost of development. This was a contravention of the hydro act, says the report. The reason for such an omission, the report hazards, was the hydro's desire to escape a possible legal action should the figures ultimately exceed those given to the people when the bylaws were submitted to them.

The original project, the report continues, was for a $3,000,000 development on Dog Lake. After, however, the bylaws had been passed, the report continues, the hydro altered its plans and entered upon a $12,000,000 power development at Cameron Falls on the Nipigon River. The Great Lakes Company held the power rights on the Nipigon and Sir Adam Beck was anxious, continues the report, to secure those rights for the hydro commission. He therefore negotiated a deal with the Great Lakes Company which obligated the hydro commission to supply power, but failed to deal with the company's take as power when available. The failure of the company to take power from the commission has meant a severe blow to the commission's revenue account.

The Gregory commission states the advances which the province must make to meet the Nipigon losses annually can be carried in a suspension account, with the hope that some day there may be a profitable market for the power, when these advances can be returned.

The following is a copy in part of the report: "To His Honor, Henry Cockshutt, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario. "May it Please Your Honor:

"We were, by letters patent bearing date April 20, 1922, directed to inquire into, consider and report upon, among other things, all power developments undertaken by the hydro-electric power commission of Ontario, and generally all matters of expenditure and administration by the said commission.

"Soon after we began our inquiry it was represented to us by a report of the city of Port William that a situation existed in Thunder Bay district which urgently demanded our attention. Inquiries were made by us at the cities of Port William and Port Arthur, and later at the city of Toronto. The work of our engineers and accountants in respect of the construction of the plant and the hydraulic features of the undertaking in the Thunder Bay district is not yet sufficiently advanced to enable us to report upon these subjects, but we are now in a position to report upon the other features of the undertaking, and respectfully submit this report thereon. In our report we shall generally refer to the hydro-electric power commission of Ontario as the 'hydro-electric commission.'"

"The hydro-electric commission was trustee for the cities of Port William and Port Arthur, and these cities were, under the contracts entered into by them with the hydro-electric commission, responsible for meeting the cost of the undertaking. If, therefore, Sir Adam Beck's contention that the government required to make a more expensive development on the Nipigon River in order to provide power for the owners of the limits were well founded, it is clear that before entering upon this undertaking the hydro-electric commission should have obtained from the government an undertaking on its part to indemnify the hydro-electric commission for the additional outlay it would have to make, both in connection with the operation, through complying with the government's request; or it should have obtained from the owners of the limits a firm agreement to guarantee the hydro-electric commission such power as the commission was required to provide for them. In the event of its not obtaining a guarantee from the government or a fully-secured contract from the owners of the limits, it should have declined to make the proposed development, unless the municipalities of Port Arthur and Port William, after having all the facts laid before them, have consented to the undertaking on their own account. It is of special importance that it should do so, because its representatives, as we have already pointed out, had announced that the development would be made at Dog Lake, where the estimated cost at Nipigon was more than four times as great.

"Future Trouble. "A weak point in the situation from the standpoint of the hydro-electric commission was that while it now became responsible for providing power for the owners of the limits, the owners of the limits were under no obligation to take power from the commission. This fact led to much trouble in the future. "Before the final decision to establish the development at Cameron Falls was announced, Mr. Gaby, chief engineer for the hydro-electric commission, submitted a report in which he made an estimate of the future demand for power, and recommended that the development be located at Cameron Falls. It is to be noted that in his calculation he did not include the requirements of Carrick or his successors in title to the Black Sturgeon and Pio River pulp limits, but bases his recommendations on the prospective sale of power to other parties, which, he said, would be developed at Dog Lake could not meet.

"The attitude of the hydro-electric commission is shown in a letter, which, in the following September, while negotiations with Carrick were proceeding, Mr. Pope, the secretary of the commission, wrote to Mr. Carrick. In this letter Mr. Pope said:

"Unless the commission received a definite contract for the supply of power, it will be unable to consider future requirements you may desire to provide for."

"No contract with the commission was ever made by Carrick, and it appears clear that the development at Cameron Falls was made without reference to the requirements of the owners of the Black Sturgeon and Pio River limits.

"In a statement furnished to us by the Hydro-Electric Commission the rate of interest payable by it to the government in respect of the Nipigon development has been placed at 5 per cent. We are informed by Sir Adam Beck and other officials of the Hydro-Electric Commission that about January, 1920, at a conference held with the Provincial Government, regarding a certain contract for the sale of power then under discussion, it was suggested that the government reduce the rate of interest to 3 per cent. Sir Adam Beck and other officials state that this proposal was assented to by the government, Honorable Mr. Dwyer and other members of the Cabinet, who appeared before us, state that the subject of interest was referred to casually and that there was no thought on the part of the government of undertaking that the province should pay any part of it. Mr. Drury stated that the government had no right to lower the rate, the legislature having conferred on it no power to do so.

"If the terms of agreement between the Hydro-Electric Commission and the City of Port Arthur were carried out, Port Arthur would have to pay the entire deficit in the form of higher rates for power, but if it did so its rate would be more than $60 per horsepower—a rate which it is clear it could not pay. Mr. G. T. Clarkson, the auditor of the Hydro-Electric Commission states that the commission has no funds out of which to meet the deficit. In reply to our inquiry as to how the deficit should be met, he took the position that we have already described, and said: "The deficit met by the government should be carried in a suspense account, and repaid to it by the Thunder Bay System as receipts from sale of power place it in a position to do so. That such a time will come, we have no doubt—nor have we any doubt that the time will also come when the development at Cameron Falls will be insufficient to supply the requirements of Port William, Port Arthur and the surrounding district. "No time must now be lost, and no effort should be spared to secure customers for power. Negotiations for the sale of power have been carried on in the past by the Hydro-Electric Commission, but apparently in a half-hearted manner—at any rate they have been without result. From evidence given before us it would appear that if both parties to the negotiations are prepared to make a fair contract, no insuperable obstacles will be found in the way. If a contract be made, an early development should follow, and also a large increase in revenue would be assured. "One of the reasons alleged for the failure of the negotiations referred to was that the purchasers of power could not procure an enforceable contract from the Hydro-Electric Commission. There were other terms in dispute between the parties, but these were trifling. In our opinion the question of enforceability should not be permitted to stand in the way of a contract being made. If there is any reasonable doubt as to whether such a contract is enforceable, the doubt should be set at rest by appropriate legislation.

"The municipalities themselves, upon whom the burden must ultimately rest, are deeply interested in promoting the sale of power. Month after month, year after year, deputation after deputation has come down, at great expense, from these cities to the Hydro-Electric Commission for the purpose of implementing any negotiations going on for the sale of power and bringing them to a successful conclusion. It is little wonder that representatives of the municipalities should have spent so much time and money on fruitless errands.

"As between the cities of Port Arthur and Port William, we think there ought to be complete equality of treatment by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission in the matter of any improved lands contiguous to the municipalities, and there is much to be said in favor of laying down a general principle that, in view of the responsibility for the Nipigon development assumed by the cities of Port Arthur and Port William, power should not be sold in any part of the Thunder Bay district at a lower rate than to Port Arthur and Port William.

"Effective Action Imperative. "The provincial government has now to carry the load, and will have to carry an increasing load for some years to come. Under these conditions it is imperative that it co-operate to the fullest extent possible with the Hydro-Electric Commission to assure greater sale of power, for it is only by the sale of more power that the annual deficit can be reduced, and that the commission eventually made good. It should go further and insist that where it is possible to make a contract with responsible parties for the sale of power on fair and reasonable terms nothing should be permitted to prevent such a contract being entered into. Other questions may wait, but a deficit that is growing at the rate of $300,000 a year calls for prompt and effective action.

"Dated November 15, 1922. (Signed) "W. D. GREGORY, "Chairman. "M. J. HANLEY, "LOYD HARRIS, "J. A. ROSS, "R. A. ROSS.

"HELLO BROADWAY" COMES TO GRAND

Distinct Amusement Bargain Appears At Popular Play-house For Three Days.

The Grand Opera House has a distinct amusement bargain for its patrons the first half of this week—a real musical revue, presented by a company of twenty people, and at a price of admission such as these companies rarely play for. Jimmie Evans' Company, which opens at the Grand Tonic in "Hello, Broadway," has played for five solid years in Canadian territory. In St. John and Halifax, said by theatrical folk to be the most discriminating cities of their size in Canada, so far as amusement values are concerned, the Evans Company has played season after season, having a record of 42 weeks in St. John and 36 in Halifax.

Entering the Ontario territory, they have delighted the theatregoers of Hamilton, London, and other cities. In Mr. Lundy's office, Lieutenant Wright questioned the Toronto complainants, and at the close, obtained a clear, concise statement from Mr. Lundy.

Interviews Martins. From Toronto he returned to Niagara Falls, N.Y., called on the police there and seven miles out saw the Martins, at whose home the Toronto people had sought refuge in July. When Lieutenant Wright had collected his material he went to Mr. Lundy, thanked the lawyer for his help, and announced that he was preparing his official report. Mrs. A. Stafford, one of the Toronto party, said: "My brother John, Beatty Ryder Bagnall, Miss Hyslop and myself were visiting in Buffalo, and we motored in my brother's car from Buffalo to Niagara Falls. When about seven miles from Niagara Falls, a car containing several soldiers cut in front of us, and stopped so suddenly that my brother was unable to stop his car in time to avoid a collision. The sergeant in charge of the soldiers came back and was talking to my brother, explaining to him that the man in front had stopped suddenly.

Soldiers Attack Motorist. "The soldiers were following another soldier looked at the license on our car and said, 'Ontario, where did you come from?' Mr. Bagnall said, 'Toronto.' 'What business have you in our country?' 'O, just as much as you,' said Mr. Bagnall. The soldier struck at Mr. Bagnall, and I told Mr. Bagnall to get away, as I saw the soldier was in a condition to cause a row. Mr. Bagnall backed round the car and tried to avoid the soldier. The soldier followed him, and two other soldiers got out of Lieut. Wright Prepares Report of Alleged Attack On Toronto Motor Party.

Special to The Advertiser. Toronto, Nov. 18.—The complaint that Toronto motorists were ill-treated by United States soldiers, between Buffalo and Niagara Falls, on Sunday, July 2 last, did not die in the state archives at Albany, it only slept, and is now awake again.

A report was ordered by the then Governor Miller, and it presented at all, it will go to his conqueror, present Governor Smith. Lieutenant W. R. Wright of New York, with credentials from the then state governor, examined the soldiers under oath and then came to Toronto, where he interviewed J. Stewart Lundy, barrister, of 18 Toronto street, who months before had tried to obtain redress.

From Toronto he returned to Niagara Falls, N.Y., called on the police there and seven miles out saw the Martins, at whose home the Toronto people had sought refuge in July. When Lieutenant Wright had collected his material he went to Mr. Lundy, thanked the lawyer for his help, and announced that he was preparing his official report. Mrs. A. Stafford, one of the Toronto party, said: "My brother John, Beatty Ryder Bagnall, Miss Hyslop and myself were visiting in Buffalo, and we motored in my brother's car from Buffalo to Niagara Falls. The sergeant in charge of the soldiers came back and was talking to my brother, explaining to him that the man in front had stopped suddenly.

RESIGNS SENATORSHIP. Washington, Nov. 19.—Truman H. Newbury has resigned as senator from Michigan, effective immediately. The resignation was sent to Governor Groesbeck at Lansing under date of November 18, and a copy of it was delivered today to Vice-President Coolidge with a request that it be read into the records of the Senate as soon as possible.

their car, passed round to the rear of our car, and attacked Mr. Bagnall. "One of the soldiers grabbed Mr. Bagnall, and my brother went to his rescue. The three of them immediately turned on my brother, and Mr. Bagnall jumped into a passing car, saying he was going for the police. My brother backed towards a house on the road, one occupied by Mr. Martin, and, eventually, got upon the veranda and opened the door into the house.

Break Into House. "The soldier who had been causing all the trouble forced the door open and dragged my brother out of the house. One of the soldiers drew a revolver and said: 'I will shoot.' I rushed to the veranda, caught the arm of the man who had the gun, and called to my brother to run. My brother ran round the house, and the soldier tried to follow him, but I clung to his arm and was thrown forcibly against a water barrel, which crushed my side. Mr. Martin, his wife and his daughter tried to stop the row. They also were very roughly handled, and their grandchild was knocked over by the soldier.

"My brother got into the house and I had gone back to the car and was standing with Miss Hyslop, when the man came to us, and demanded to know where the men were. We told him they went for the police. The soldiers jumped into their car and went after them. The sergeant behind explained that the man causing the trouble was a champion boxer in the regiment. When our car was taken to the garage the police arrived. The police informed us they had located the men, and had used considerable force in arresting them." Mrs. Stafford states that the sergeant's conduct was manly, but apparently he had no control of his men.

HYMNS PLAY BIG PART IN SERVICE

Rev. J. Garbutt Traces Development of Some of Our Finest Mediums of Praise.

The evolution of the hymn, and the great contribution made by Fanny Crosby in its development was the interesting theme of a sermon delivered by the Rev. J. Garbutt at Dundas Street Centre Methodist Church Sunday evening. In the history of hymn composition, Mr. Garbutt asserted that the reformation was a particularly fruitful period. The Puritan influence was also well defined and the poetry of Isaac Watts represented the definite vogue for the English hymn.

NON-UNIONISTS NOT APPEALING

W. D. Robb Ridicules Story of Workers Acting on Rights Question.

"There is absolutely nothing to it; it is ridiculous," was the emphatic reply made by W. D. Robb, vice-president and general manager of the Canadian National Railway, who passed through the city Monday morning, when questioned about the rumored appeal of the non-union employees in the passenger service of the G. T. R., who are being replaced by union men who participated in the strike of 1910, and who by a recent ruling are having their pension and seniority rights restored.

Best Possible Course. "We have taken the best possible course in the matter," Mr. Robb continued, "and are only adjusting a situation that should have been done not when returned to work after the strike."

It is a known fact that for some years Mr. Robb has been endeavoring to settle the grievances between the men who walked out in 1910 and the company. The employees claimed that one of the conditions under which they returned to work was that their seniority and pension rights would be restored, but it was only a few weeks ago that the G. T. R. granted the appeal.

Tour of Inspection. Mr. Robb, who is on his way to the United States to make a tour of inspection of the western Ontario line of the Grand Trunk, was decidedly optimistic regarding the future outlook of the newly-organized Canadian National Railway, and declared that the report at the end of the year would show that the road is in a much better financial condition than of any other.

Ireland Aroused As De Valera Issues Threats If Military Aide Is Executed

Dublin, Nov. 19.—News that four youthful irregulars had been executed for possessing weapons...

The Irish Independent, a supporter of the Free State government, criticized the government's action...

Republican leaders claim that the four youths named were not executed...

Official denial was made Saturday that there had been any further executions...

This showed that Erskine Childers' chief military aide of...

De Valera on Saturday issued an appeal to the nation protesting against the execution of children...

Crouching at the gate, Mount Joy prison, a child at her side, Annie MacSwiney of Cork...

MacSwiney of Cork began a hunger strike which she declared would continue until her sister, Marie MacSwiney...

Marie on Saturday entered the fourteenth day of her own hunger strike. She has refused to eat since she was arrested during a raid by Free State soldiers upon a republican irregular council of war in this city...

On Saturday last, provincial architect Heakes viewed the site and plans as prepared by the inspector and submitted his frank approval...

BAPTIST TELLS WHAT HE THINKS

Dean Fox Speaks to Methodist Brotherhood on Baptist View of Union.

Dean Fox, of the Western University, addressed the Brotherhood of the First Methodist Church Sunday morning...

In a few introductory remarks he congratulated the Brotherhood on the method they had adopted of having a speaker from the various other denominations to come and explain the attitude of their respective churches towards the question of union...

The persecutions under Nero, and the pogroms in Russia could only be attributed to a lack of accurate knowledge of the religions attacked...

The deans pointed out that the Baptists were in the States at least a very large body, numbering well over eight millions, while they were a denomination of some size and influence in England, as well as in the other parts of the European countries...

Again they were a church of many countries. One found them in England and Canada, Switzerland and Australia, and each of these branches, though agreeing as to fundamentals, found some points of divergence when it came to more subtle points of theological interpretation...

For instance, there was Dr. Clifford, the famous English divine, who was so radical in his views that the congregation of St. Spurgeon's, London, refused to sit with him...

SUNK IN STORM OFF PORT BURWELL

Amherstburg, Nov. 19.—A message received here today from Port Burwell, Ont., brought news of the sinking in Lake Erie last night of the little wooden steamer City of Dresden...

All members of the crew except one man, named Kerr, were saved after a battle with the furious waves that swept the lake during a south-west gale...

The City of Dresden was owned by Captain McQueen of this town. She carried a crew of four men besides the captain. It is believed the boat was on its way with coal from Cooness to Port Burwell.

MORRISON SPEAKS TO TARA AUDIENCE

Provincial Secretary of U. F. O. Pays Visit To North Bruce.

Special to The Advertiser. Cargill, Nov. 19.—J. J. Morrison, provincial secretary of the U. F. O., addressed two large and enthusiastic meetings in North Bruce Friday.

In the afternoon Mr. Morrison addressed a meeting at Port Elgin which drew a fairly large crowd. Mr. Johnson of Underwood, Bruce Township, presided at this meeting.

In the evening Mr. Morrison addressed a large gathering in the town hall at Tara, John Anderson of Derby Township presiding.

In his speeches Mr. Morrison dealt entirely with provincial matters and made no reference to the new federal Progressive League or to political matters outside the province.

He had no criticism to offer in regard to the present administration at Ottawa.

Two killed when motor is hit by radial car. Windsor, Nov. 19.—W. Peters, Vernon avenue, Riverside, 21 years of age, and Gerald Cox, Ottawa street, Riverside, 9 years of age, were killed late this afternoon when a delivery truck in which they were riding was struck by an eastbound hydro work car at Intersection road, Riverside.

The truck in which they were riding was the property of the Little Cox boy's father, who is a grocer. The hydro car was in charge of A. Carhart.

Peters was driving the truck north toward the river, and evidently did not notice the approach of the car on the railway. The truck was a complete wreck. Both the victims died instantly.

To lay Cornerstone of New Monastery. Next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the cornerstone of the new Monastery of the Precious Blood, now in process of building on Talbot street, will be laid.

This announcement was given out at St. Peter's Cathedral, Sunday. Bishop M. F. Fallon will officiate at the ceremony.

The ceremony will be largely attended by Catholic clergy and the laity of this city, and His Lordship Bishop Fallon will speak, it is understood.

The new monastery is being built on the site of the old Carling home, on the west side of Talbot street, which property was acquired some time ago for this purpose.

The location is an ideal one, and the building, when completed, will be one of the finest of its kind in Canada.

YOUTH WOUNDED AS GUN EXPLODES

James Mason Loses Left Hand in Accident While Hunting.

James Mason, 17 years old, 336 Hamilton road, had his left hand so badly lacerated on Saturday afternoon when his shotgun exploded that it was necessary to have the injured member removed.

Mason had gone out for an afternoon's hunting east of the city, and was alone at the time the accident occurred. He stated that he set the gun down, and when he picked it up by the muzzle it exploded.

It is thought that the trigger caught on a twig, causing the discharge of the gun. A farmer nearby hearing the cries for help brought the boy to the city, and he was removed to the Victoria Hospital.

Dr. Edward Spence was summoned, and upon examination it was found that amputation was necessary. At first the condition of the boy was very grave due to the excessive loss of blood, but it was learned on Sunday that he is making satisfactory progress.

LONDON, ONTARIO, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1922.

LIBERALS AND LABOR CONTEST IN IRISH HOUSE

Both Claim Right To Be Recognized as Official Opposition in New House. GREAT RUSH FOR SEATS Lady Astor and Lloyd George Present and Secured Two Coveted Positions.

London, Nov. 20.—A parliament in which Ireland, with the exception of part of Ulster, is not represented and in which the Labor party appears as the chief contender for recognition as the opposition, opened at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon.

The proceedings started with the usual formalities. Following tradition, members found the speaker's chair vacant. For a moment the clerk assumed the duties of the speaker, but instead of speaking, he merely pointed a finger at T. P. O'Connor, "father of the house," who promptly proposed a resolution that the House should be reconvened.

The question as to which party will be recognized as constituting the official opposition remains in question of paramount interest as Parliament assembled. The Laborites have asserted an uncompromising claim to this position on the ground of their numerical strength, but rumors are afloat that their claim will be disputed by the Liberalists.

Urges Drastic Action. The Daily Herald, Labor's official paper, which may be assumed to know the intentions of the members of that party, says today: "If the speaker should not immediately concede the Labor party's clear title to the opposition official position by calling upon its leader to speak first in the initial debate, then the Labor party should immediately walk out of the house in a body."

The situation is complicated by the possibility, which, however, is still more than a possibility, of a coalition of the Asquithian and Georgian Liberalists into a single party. Gossip concerning such an amalgamation is being spread in London. It is not circles but no definite step toward such a union is known to have been taken.

The Laborites are credited with making the contention that theirs is the right to monopolize the front opposition, and that the Liberalists and the Georgianists are to be excluded from the House of Commons. Such a claim, the Times says, cannot be sustained inasmuch as former members of the party have been prescribed rights to those places.

The Irish Constitution. The general opinion is that the constitution bill will be carried through today, however, it is expected that the Conservative "die hards," for whom it speaks, may raise difficulties in the way of ratification. The newspaper believes that the House of Commons will actually pass the bill, but that the article setting forth certain alleged violations, it aims to show that the constitution differs materially from that of Canada and the other dominions, and that it repudiates imperial supremacy and establishes a new constitutional form unknown within the British Empire.

The rush of members to the House of Commons to obtain their seats for the opening session was the biggest since the war, and long before 8 o'clock, when the doors opened, a small crowd had gathered to "peg" small cards in the crevices of the doors. The doors opened the members rushed in, snatched cards from the attendants and rushed up the steps for the desired positions.

NEWBERRY PUTS IN RESIGNATION TO U. S. SENATE

Republicans Sympathize With Colleague as Victim of Persecution. WASHINGTON STIRRED UP Democrats, Jubilant, Regard Move as Confession of Defeat.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—The resignation of Senator T. H. Newberry, Michigan, was to be read to the senate today, shortly after that body convened at noon. Newberry's resignation was sent to Governor Grosbeck of Michigan, Saturday night, and filed with Vice-President Coolidge, Sunday, by Newberry's secretary.

Newberry requested that Coolidge have it read in senatorial records as soon as possible. While Newberry's action was not wholly unexpected, receipt of word that he had resigned stirred official Washington. Republican officials expressed sympathy for Newberry, who had been regarded by his Republican colleagues as the victim of political persecution.

Democrats received the news with pleasure, regarding it as a confession that the administration regarding the resignation of Newberry by the next senate as a certainty. With finish written to one of the Federal Grand Jury charges of senatorial controversies of his kind, interest centered in the sequel. Many expected Newberry would ask Michigan voters to elect him again at a special election, expected to be held soon, to fill the vacancy created by his resignation.

But the tone of Newberry's letter of resignation seemed to indicate that he was glad to be out of the whole affair and would not again seek senatorial honors. In this connection, the question was being asked whether Henry Ford, whom Newberry defeated him in the general election in 1918, would be a candidate for the vacancy.

Other offices are nearly opposite each other, on Jackson street east, and it is believed that after the safe at the Maple Leaf Milling Company was removed, the thieves crossed the road, and entering Freeman's by a side door, set to work on the safes there, when they were frightened away.

Both offices are headquarters for wholesale firms, and, fortunately, the money had been banked at noon the day previous. Papers and checks were not disturbed by the robbers. Electric light bulbs had been removed from their sockets to accommodate a plug on an electric drill which was used on the safes, and the large safe at Freeman's had been blown open by a large bag of flour. The smaller safe, beside it, had just been started on, when the robbers took flight. The lights over the safes in Freeman's office were found burning at 7:20 o'clock this morning by one of the employees, and the thieves had, apparently, carried on their operations under the full glare of the lights.

Safe experts are of the opinion that the job was the work of a gang of experts, who used a powerful explosive, possibly nitro-glycerine, to blow the doors. It was not until noon on Sunday that the robbery at the Maple Leaf Milling Company was discovered by the manager, R. A. Jacques.

BLOW 2 SAFES AT HAMILTON

Yeggmen Enter Offices of W. A. Freeman and Maple Leaf Milling Company.

Hamilton, Nov. 19.—Less than 25 was secured when yeggmen blew two safes at the office of the W. A. Freeman Company and one at the Maple Leaf Milling Company office, early Sunday morning.

The offices are nearly opposite each other, on Jackson street east, and it is believed that after the safe at the Maple Leaf Milling Company was removed, the thieves crossed the road, and entering Freeman's by a side door, set to work on the safes there, when they were frightened away.

HON. R. W. CRAIG DENIES $50,000 BRIBE RUMOR

Attorney-General Asserts Ralph Connor Statements Untrue and Novelist Drew Personal Inference From Confidential Conversation. STORY ENTIRELY UNWARRANTED

Winnipeg, Nov. 20.—Hon. R. W. Craig, attorney-general on his return from Ottawa last night, issued a statement denying the statement made by Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordon at the Presbyterian Synod here last week that Mr. Craig had been offered $50,000 to "let up on the enforcement of the temperance act," and also denied that he had confirmed the report at Ottawa. Such offer was not made to him, directly or indirectly, by anyone, he said, and Dr. Gordon had evidently drawn an "unwarranted inference" from a "personal reference" he used as an illustration in private conversation with Dr. Gordon.

Mr. Craig's statement follows: "Since my return to the city I have read the statements in the press relative to the alleged $50,000 bribe, and I have been offered to me, as the enforcement of the temperance act, and it had been reported that I confirmed his statement. Such an offer was not made to me directly or indirectly, by anyone, nor have at any time confirmed such a statement."

PREDICT HUGHES TRIUMPH IN AUSTRALIAN ELECTION. Hon. Digby Denham Declares Rebirth of Liberal Complicates Political Situation. Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 20.—Premier W. H. Hughes of Australia will be returned to power in the Australian general elections on Dec. 18, but the alignment of parties in the new house will be almost certainly changed, it was predicted by Hon. Digby F. Denham, ex-premier of Queensland, on his arrival here yesterday on the steamer Niagara. Mr. Denham is on his way to visit a married daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) Richard Stacey, in Ottawa.

TRIUMPHS OF M. JONQUELLE

By Melville Davison Post.

THE MAN WITH STEEL FINGERS. Begin Here Today. M. JONQUELLE, greatest of French detectives, was ushered into the presence of the strange and fear-compelling LORD VALLEYS, the English-Serb, who had just inherited the title and estates of his murdered uncle, Lord Winton.

Three lives had stood between Lord Valleys and the wealth of his uncle. But both of Lord Winton's sons were killed in the great war. Only one, who married an American, left an heir, and this heir, a daughter, was buried by English law from inheritance.

Then came the murder of Lord Winton and the inheritance of the estate by the strange, powerful and morose Lord Valleys. Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER II. THE murder of Lord Winton, the wise English authorities attributed to me. Lord Valleys continued coolly. "They spared no effort to fix it upon me. That they were unable to do so is not, I think, attributable to this thing which you call Providence. It is attributable rather, I think, to the intelligence of my legal counsel."

He looked directly at Monsieur Jonquelle. His big, placid face lifted; his voice was even and unaltered. "I am not embarrassed to discuss it, monsieur," he continued. "When the war had ended with the death of Lord Winton's sons, I was, by virtue of what you have so aptly called 'the accident of birth,' next in succession to the title. I thought it both advisable and courteous to present myself to Lord Winton, and I went to England for that purpose."

Lord Winton was an eccentric person. As he grew older, and after the death of his sons, his eccentricity became more dominant. I did not find him on his estates at Ravencroft; he was at that time in London in a little old house which the family has always owned on a street toward Covent Garden.

"On the night that I called to see Lord Winton, it was quite late. I found him alone in his house. He seemed disturbed to see me, but he was courteous, and I cannot complain of his welcome. He seemed, however, not to realize that I had grown into a man. He seemed to regard me as a queer, foreign lad to whom he owed some obligation of hospitality."

Lord Valleys stopped. He leaned a little forward in the chair, and his voice took on a firmer note. "Monsieur," he said, "I am saying to you now a thing to which I testified at the English trial, and which was not believed. Lord Winton told me that he expected a person to call on him within a very few minutes and to remain for perhaps an hour. He asked me to return at the end of an hour. I got up to go. As I went down the stairway, a hansom, entering the street from the direction of the city, stopped before the door. The door was closed but the sound was clearly audible."

"Lord Winton, who was behind me, came also down the steps. On a console in the hall were several candles which, according to custom, had placed there. An idea came to Lord Winton, for he stopped me as my hand was on the door to go out. He took up one of these candles in a tall brass candlestick, and touching me on the arm, handed it to me."

"Instead of going out," he said, "suppose you go down into the wine-cellar. There should be some bottles of Burgundy in the wine-cellar stored there by your grandfather. See if you can find them, and we shall have a glass of wine with our talk. I have a great deal to say to you, my nephew. The wine will sustain us."

"You will see, monsieur, that this idea that I was merely a grown-up lad, came to visit an ancient relative, was quite fixed with our Winton. As he went to the wine-cellar, he was sending me, as though I were a lad from Elton, to find the wine for our evening's drinking. He gave me the key, a direction about the steps and doors. He even said there was a box of biscuits on the dining-room table which I should bring up. It was all, you see, monsieur, quite as though I were an undergraduate student of some English public school."

"The man looked down at his firm, placid hands resting upon and obscuring the arms of the chair in which he sat. "This, monsieur," he said, "is a portion of my evidence which the English criminal court refused to believe. It was incredibly stupid. Monsieur Jonquelle looked up sharply at that sentence. "The English criminal court," he said, "was even more stupid than you imagine. It was, as you have said, incredibly stupid."

"There was only my word for the statement," he said. "I could not prove it, and yet it was the truth."

tain in which bin it was to be found, and I had to make a search of very nearly the whole of the cellar. This did not disturb me, for Lord Winton had fired an hour as the length of the visit of the person whom he expected, and who, in fact, had arrived. And I was not to return until that time. It was, as nearly as I can determine, about 11 o'clock of the night when I went down the steps to the wine-cellar.

The man remained silent a moment as if in some contemplation. Finally he continued: "An unfortunate accident occurred. In rising from a bin over which I had been stooped, the candle touched a straw hanging from above, and immediately the arched-out, half-rotten wood of the beamed ceiling flashed into flame."

"I was appalled, but I did not lose my sense of necessity. I undertook to put the fire out. I made a desperate effort at first. There is that underground cell, for I knew the house must burn if this whole wood ceiling took fire. The place filled with smoke. It became very nearly impossible to breathe, but I did not give up the fight against the fire. Finally, when I was blinded, choked and very nearly unconscious, I broke open the door leading from the basement of the house and ran out into the street. It seemed that I should never breathe, and I continued to run."

"You know what followed. I was taken up by one of the Metropolitan police; the burning house was entered, and Lord Winton brought out. He was dead. The small blade of a knife had been driven into his body low down on the right side. It had severed a vital artery."

"The final instalment of this thrilling mystery will appear in our next issue."

BURGESS BEDDIE STORIES FOUND AT LAST. Rich is he who doth command Friendship that will understand. The Green Forest had a dog named Nature. A sadly frightened and very hungry young Fox lay beside a log in the Green Forest. He had heard his mother say that he had not run away from Farmer Brown's barnyard, where he had been a prisoner. Yes, sir, he wished just that, but it was not as easy as it seemed. It was better, far better, to be a prisoner there than a prisoner in the Green Forest, and this is just what the young Fox was. As a prisoner in Farmer Brown's barnyard he had plenty to eat and the best of care. As a prisoner in the Green Forest he was likely to starve to death.

All night he had struggled to free himself, but in vain. That chain which held him had wedged so tightly in a crack in an old log that, do what he would, he couldn't get it free. So when morning came he was in despair, and completely wred out. He was so tired and discouraged that he hardly noticed the racket which Sammy Jay and Blacky the Crow and Chatterer the Red Squirrel were making. As soon as it was light enough all three had hurried over to see if he was still there, and when they had found that he was had started in to try to torment him by shrieking at him and calling him names and making fun of him.

That same morning Farmer Brown's Boy had eaten an early breakfast, hurried through his work, and started out again to look for that young Fox. He headed straight for the Green Forest, for the afternoon before he had searched all through the old pasture. He heard the voices of Blacky the Crow and Sammy Jay carried a long distance. Even before he reached the edge of the Green Forest Farmer Brown's Boy heard them. He paused for a moment to listen. He knew by the sound that those two scamps were greatly excited over something. His face brightened. "Perhaps those rascals have found the young Fox," said he to himself. "I can tell by the sound of their voices that they have found something unusual. I'll go over there and see what it is."

So with Bowser the Hound trotting at his heels, Farmer Brown's Boy headed straight for the place where the voices were coming from. The nearer he got the louder those voices became. Then he heard the voice of Chatterer the Red Squirrel, and it sounded as if he were confirming his statement.

"Caw, caw, caw!" here comes Farmer Brown's Boy. He were as excited as Blacky the Crow and Sammy Jay. He hurried, and hope grew in his heart. Blacky the Crow was the first one to discover Farmer Brown's Boy. "Caw, caw, caw," he shrieked louder than ever. "Caw, caw, caw!" here comes Farmer Brown's Boy! Now, once such news would have filled the heart of the young Fox with fear. Probably that is what Blacky the Crow thought it would do this time. But it didn't. No, sir, it didn't. Instead it filled the young Fox with joy. You see, he knew that Farmer Brown's Boy was a friend. He knew it probably because he would have to go back as a prisoner in Farmer Brown's barnyard, but that would be better, a thousand times better, than being a prisoner in the Green Forest. So the young Fox pricked up his ears and listened eagerly.

Presently he heard footsteps. Then he saw Farmer Brown's Boy slowly approaching, and looking this way and that way. The young Fox sat up and whined, "sir, he did just that. Of course, Farmer Brown's Boy heard him and hurried over to him. "You poor little rascal!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy as he saw how the young Fox was held a prisoner. "You poor little rascal! I wonder how long you have been a prisoner here." Then he went to work to get the chain free from the log, while Bowser the Hound looked on, wagging his tail. When the chain was free he picked the young Fox up in his arms and started for home, while Blacky the Crow and Sammy Jay hurried to tell all the other little guppies of the Green Forest what had happened. The next story: "The Proof of True Friendship."

RESOURCEFUL. The lady of the house was reading in her drawing-room when the nursemaid rushed in, exclaiming: "Oh, ma'am, the twins have fallen in the well!" "How very annoying," said her mistress. "What shall I do?" wailed the maid. "Go into the library—very gently, so as not to disturb Fido—and get me the last number of the 'Modern Mothers' Magazine. It contains an article on 'How to Bring up Children.'

I am mailing you a Kitchen Girl's address, as you requested. Expect a Newcomer. Dear Miss Grey—After reading your splendid Mail-Box letters and answers for some time I have at last taken courage to write. I inclose addressed envelopes for Musielan's address, as I am expecting a new-comer around Christmas time, and I would so much like to get the long cashmere coat she is offering. I have three children now, but have never been able to afford a long coat yet, and it does not look at all likely that I could this time. My little girl is not yet 2 years old, and is quite delicate; not walking yet. I would be very grateful indeed if you could inclose the address of Berkshire Lass to any of the Boxes from Berkshire, as that is my home, and I would like to correspond with someone from those parts. Still I am very much interested in the letters from the Lancashire and other Boxes. I inclose small note for hospital fund, and will try to send more as soon as possible, and will gladly pay postage and repay in some way for any baby's clothes I might be lucky enough to get. PUMPKIN FACE. I am mailing you Berkshire Lass' address also. Musielan's but as there have been numerous requests for Musielan's name and address I am afraid you are too late to receive the coat. Thank you for the inclosed hospital mite.

Sends Patterns. Dear Miss Grey—Am sending a dozen patterns and have kept one so I can cut some another time and send to you when your supply runs low. Isn't this lovely weather these days? Too bad the frost took all the pretty flowers. I have a small slip of chrysanthemums that has not been hurt yet. It is covered with little yellow buds. Isn't it terrible about the fire sweeping through the north? But the east is sending some comfort. Our city is raising $1,000 to send. It is hard to hear of little ones suffering, and cold weather here. Wishing you success, I remain as before, your affectionate friend, M. J.

Sends More Seeds. Dear Miss Grey—Did you get out from under that avalanche of seed I sent you last fall? The small blade of a knife will be all right for another year as it was all freshly gathered. I am mailing you another box to you, consisting of Pine, Morning Glory, Petunia, Salpiglossis, Cosmos, Aster, Four-o'clock, Marigold, Verbena, Balsam, Hollyhock, Nicotiana, and Phlox. I wonder if there is quite a variety. I wonder if some of the Boxes who had lovely flower gardens had my seeds to thank for? My last fall, so am inclosing it, also a slipshooter for fund.

Many thanks for the seeds, also for the inclosed recitation and hospital mite. I am sure many of the Boxes have you to thank for their lovely seeds. The seeds were most popular last fall, Aunt Rose.

Doonside—Many thanks for the box of nuts, which Cynthia more than appreciated, also thanks for the extra stocking foot patterns. Sends a Mite. Cynthia Grey—Find inclosed mite for S. C. H. fund. I am busy sending a parcel to one of your Boxes. Will write again soon. JOY. Thank you, Joy, for the inclosed hospital mite, also thank you for sending a parcel to one of my needy friends. I will send some more again and write a longer letter.

Another Request. Dear Miss Grey—I saw in the paper where Doonside offered quilt blocks, which she said anyone could have by sending fifty cents for the hospital fund. I would like them for our church, as I intended to have three or four made, but have been sick for a long time. Am I to use for the quilt. I will send some money later for the cot. WESTERN STAR. I am sorry to have to tell you, but for the sake of a helping hand I have given out a long time ago. There never was an offer in the Mail-Box which proved so popular as yours. With a sudden cry of terror, she grasped his arm. "No. No. No!" she shrieked, convulsively. "She is a widow. I want you myself!"

Is Making a Quilt. Dear Miss Grey—This is my first visit to your Mail-Box, so I will not say long. I saw in the paper where Doonside has offered patches for a quilt. I would like to get them if I am not too late. When I get it finished I am offering it for sale to the highest bidder, and the money goes to the S. C. H. fund. I hope I am not too late. I will send you something for the fund. I am inclosing 50 cents for the patches and postage. Yours sincerely, A KEEWONG LASS.

I am sorry, but the patches were given out some time ago. If you want the money returned, please let me know. It is splendid of you to offer the money received from your quilt to our hospital fund. With so many interested ones, surely the fund will soon have our $1,000. With the Thanksgiving money all in, we have passed the eight hundred mark. Isn't that splendid. BUTTER SCOTCH PIE. Dear Miss Grey—Would you please send me some stocking-foot pattern? I am sending a recipe for a pie, which we all like. BUTTER SCOTCH PIE.—Beat yolks 2 eggs and add 1/2 cups milk and let come to a boil. Mix 1 cup brown sugar, 2 heaping tablespoons flour, pinch of salt, and add to milk and eggs. Cook until it thickens. Before taking from fire add 1 teaspoon vanilla and piece of butter, the size of an egg. Pour into a baked pie shell and put the beaten whites of the eggs on top and brown in the oven. Inclosed mite for the S. C. H. fund. Glad to see your fund growing. Best wishes, from A NEWCOMER BUT AN OLD PATTERN. An mailing you this stocking-foot pattern, and many thanks for the recipe for the Butter Scotch pie, which is one of my favorite pie recipes. I hope the Box will like it as well as I do. Thank you, too, for the inclosed hospital mite.

October Joins Corner. Dear Miss Grey—This is my first letter to your cosy corner, and may I call again? I read your page every day, and I am sure it is fine. I wish some girls would write to me. I soon would answer. Anyone wanting a recipe for a good cake I would be glad to give it to them. OCTOBER. Certainly you may call again, October, and if any of the younger Boxes would like to correspond with you, they may have your address from the Mail-Box, as I have placed your name on file.

Sends a Mite. Dear Miss Grey—Find inclosed another mite for S. C. H. fund. Many thanks for BRUVINUTA's mite for our hospital fund, which is growing very rapidly these last few weeks. Missed Her Letter. Dear Miss Grey—This is my second letter to the Mail-Box, as I did not see my first one in print. Perhaps my pen-name had something to do with it, but will change it this time. I inclose stamped envelope for A Kitchen Girl's address. I see in the paper where Inez Marie gave a remedy for blackheads. I shall try it, as I have a great many, but my husband doesn't need to put his shaving cream away because I haven't got such a thing as a husband. Well, I can't use the whole space for this, so will close. Will sign myself, I am sorry you did not see your first letter in print. I am sure it never could have reached the Mail-Box, although you had your letter addressed correctly this time. I did not have time to write out the hieroglyphics you signed for a pen-name, so gave you the name of A. QUESTION.

NOTHING DOING. A certain gilded youth once fell in love with a fair maid, and when he found out where she lived, he sent her a small note. The contents of the note were to the effect that he loved her for herself alone. "P. S.—You can meet me at the station, and to make no mistake, I will wear a light pair of trousers and a dark cutaway coat; in my right hand I will carry a small cane; in my left a cigar—Yours forever, Adolphus. As the boy wanted an answer, she took the letter to her father, who made reply, and added: "P. S.—I shall make no mistake; I will be dressed in my shirt-sleeves. I will wear in my right hand a stick; in my left hand I will wear a six-shooter. You will recognize me by the way I tap your head with the stick."

At times my heart would flutter and palpitate so and I would take such weak spells in the pit of my stomach that I sometimes thought I would never get better. I had almost given up hope when a friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I did not stop until I had taken twenty-five boxes. It has done wonders for me and I want to recommend it to everyone." DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD. 50 Cent a box, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

For cooking, just add water. CARNATION MILK is much richer than whole milk because part of the water has been taken away by evaporation. For cooking, therefore, add an equal part of water to the Carnation you use and you will have milk of normal richness. If you want thinner milk, all you have to do is increase the amount of water. Use Carnation just as it comes from the container, or slightly diluted, for creaming coffee, fruits and cereals. Buy Carnation Milk regularly from your grocer. It is economical, convenient and absolutely pure. Send today for the Carnation Cook Book. Try this recipe. CREAM WHITE SAUCE (For creaming vegetables) 2 tablespoons flour, 1/3 cup Carnation Milk, 2 tablespoons butter or substitute, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2/3 cup water. Melt butter or butter substitute, add flour and stir until thoroughly mixed. Add the milk diluted with the water and cook about five minutes or until mixture thickens, then add seasonings. This recipe makes one cup. All vegetables may be creamed. The vegetables should be cooked by either boiling or steaming. After cooking with salt, drain and add cream sauce. FEW OFFERINGS AT MONDAY'S MARKET

Demand for Wheat and Oats Good, But Supply Is Small.

The market this morning was quiet, with very little offering.

There was only a small demand for hay, owing to the large supplies that have been received during the last few weeks.

The demand for wheat and oats was good, with a limited supply on hand. Butter and egg prices remain steady.

It was reported that on Saturday a good deal of the fruit and vegetables remained unavailing, the inclement weather probably having something to do with this.

URGES PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF RAILWAYS

Sir Adam Beck Shows Rotary Civic Ownership Good Asset.

That the London waterworks system and the London and Port Stanley Railway have been paying their way, and will have the debt paid within 30 years; that the large public-owned undertakings in the province, in which the people of this city are interested, were in excellent condition, was the substance of a lengthy statement offered in support of the purchase of the London street railway, by Sir Adam Beck, at the Rotary luncheon at the Tecumseh Hotel, last noon Monday.

"People shudder when the spending of money is mentioned," said Sir Adam Beck. "They criticize the bodies that will not only spend money but also bring it back to the city. The fact and figures involved."

He said that there had been real co-operation between the London and Port Stanley Railway and the city. Even at that time, the men in public view were the subjects of adverse criticism. They were criticized for the expense they were going to incur to operate, he stated, and many thought there was nothing but disaster in sight.

The London and Port Stanley has paid seven annual installments on its debt. It is about to pay the eighth yearly installment. In 22 years the debt will be free of debt. Does that look like bankruptcy?

The London and Port Stanley is the one railroad, other than the Hydro Electric, that is attempting to pay off the debt in thirty years, and in 22 years more, the debt will be liquidated. Your surplus earnings go into the road, into the buildings of depots, and improvements for the greater value of the road."

Much the same condition of prosperity prevailed in the case of the waterworks system. The waterworks system has not cost you anything, declared Sir Adam Beck. "The city has not had a charge for water since 1912, the quantity of grain in storage has increased in wheat by 2,528,522 bushels, in oats by 1,082,143 bushels, in barley by 306,359 bushels, and in rye indicates a decrease of 85,959 bushels."

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Although wheat showed something of an upward tendency here today during the early decline, it was not until the high price record for touching a new high price today, the initial strength of the market was not until the pool quotations, but this was later offset by enlarged world shipments and the new Argentine crop. Besides, estimates of the Argentine exportable surplus for 1922-23 are 1,000,000 bushels. The opening, which was followed by moderate gains and then by a setback to close with a loss of 1/4 cent.

GOVERNMENT READY TO GET BACK OF HALLEBURY

Premier Drury Makes Announcement on Trip to the North—Ontario Men Have Chance to See Just How Much Help Is Needed Yet in Burned Area

How SHOULD MONEY BE RAISED? By Staff Correspondent. Englehart, Nov. 20.—After passing through the greater part of the burned area of Northern Ontario, and seeing for themselves the devastation and the many needs of the fire sufferers to carry them through the winter, representatives from all parts of the province, consisting of mayors and presidents of boards of trades, are unanimous in their opinion that not only must further relief be brought to the fire sufferers immediately, but that the greatest need is for a permanent relief fund.

When the special train was leaving Charlton a number of the inhabitants congregated alongside the tracks and gave their cheer for the party and justly shouted: "Long live Northern Ontario."

Premier Drury's Words. Standing on top of a pile of boxes in a well-lighted hall, Premier Drury told the members of the party and inhabitants of the town: "The people here don't want charity; they want a fighting chance. The government cannot see an Ontario municipality default in its payments. They have a care of such disasters and are only asking for a leg up to get back into the saddle again."

The Ontario government is going to take care of the debenture payments for five years. They are re-storing the schools, and rebuilding government offices, and they are going to make good the destroyed public utilities.

"I have every confidence in Halleybury and I am sure it will be rebuilt." At this point a feminine voice yelled from the crowd: "You bet it will! There are 8,000 people affected," said W. H. Alderson, chairman of the relief committee, who spoke at the same meeting, "and 200,000 people are unemployed at once for emergency work only."

The old committee that worked at previous fires had a surplus of $88,000, which is invested in bonds. He wants a permanent organization to take care of such disasters and follow the Red Cross in way of relief. Eighty-eight thousand dollars were contributed to the fund to purchase a small portion of the lumber required."

Want the Need Known. "The $1,000,000 required deals only with emergency relief. Mr. Drury has been very frank in saying that we feel some permanent committee with previous experience should be called into existence. We have been in the habit of sending money and for bringing you to Toronto to travel on that train, but let me tell you, none of the relief money will go to pay that expense. The premier of Ontario, the premier of Canada, and the railway company, completed the arrangements. Even if the money did come from the fund, it would be a waste of money to have it go back home and tell your people of the great need."

As the meeting was about to close, a speaker addressed a question to Premier Drury, asking that the government impose a tax to make certain raising sufficient funds, and to insure the revival unless we are not a few, as in the case of many voluntary appeals.

The premier jumped back to the platform and answered the question by saying that he was not in a position to make any plan in his own mind. Among his remarks were such words: "People must be made to understand that it is not their voluntariness, the milk of human kindness must not be dried up by legislation or a most unfortunate situation, but a most unfortunate situation."

How to Get the Money. Speakers followed in quick succession, and the issue was between two methods of raising money by taxation, or by voluntary giving. A. J. Young, chairman of the former Relief Committee, said "Legislation is slow. We must have money now. The snow is falling and nature is crying for help. Let's have quick action."

Argument ceased when the Premier again rose and said "Gentlemen, you must not ask me to raise this money by taxation. It will be awkward for I certainly refuse."

Hallebury presents an altogether different appearance since the fire immediately following the fire. Buildings seem to have gone up with lightning rapidity. A brick building that had been destroyed by the fire is almost ready for occupation along the main street.

An old trailer that at one time had been used for the hauling of lumber, but had been used for a long time as a bumpy belt line car is now functioning in the capacity of a quick lunch counter.

The Premier stopped at one of the newly constructed shacks to enquire about the welfare of the occupants. He rapped at the door and the housewife answered, "I'm not here, I'm out for a car ticket. I would give anybody a ticket myself."

"It's only people who are destitute who lower themselves to begging," the court remarked. "It's very wrong for you to do this thing. However, you'll be here for some time, but don't do it again."

SAYS KINGDOM IS PRESENT REALITY

Rev. James McKay Preaches Inspiring Sermon at New St. James.

From the text "Behold the Kingdom of God is at hand," Rev. James McKay preached an inspiring sermon at New St. James' Church, Sunday morning, making clear the teaching of the heretofore, but present reality, and also the fact that Christ's conception of the Kingdom of God differed radically from that of the people of His day, who believed that His kingdom must be a last and final thing, existing only for them in the future.

"Our Lord taught us," Mr. McKay declared, "that the life of the world to come is not separated from the life of the present. They are one, the beginning of which is here, and the completion of which is hereafter, and death, which used to be regarded as the great divide between this life and the other, is according to our Lord's teachings, but the avenue from which should pass from a partial to a complete life; from a partial endowment to a full endowment of God to a full realization of it."

True Conception. Dealing with the true conception of the kingdom of God, whatever it might be in substance, it was essentially a thing of love, Mr. McKay continued.

"Just a word or two regarding the part God intends man should play in the building of His kingdom. It is an allimportant part which the eternal and assigned to man in the wonderful task of His kingdom."

"Man, it is, who under God, is to sow the seed which is the word of God." "Man, it is again in whose heart the word is to be sown."

"And still further, it is in the life of man, in his words and works, and in his dealings with his fellow-men, and the fruit is borne which indicates the growth of God's kingdom. It is through him that the fruits of the kingdom are manifested in the world."

God's Kingdom. "In so far as you let the will of God and the spirit of God control your life, just so far is God's kingdom coming to your heart—just in so far as Jesus Christ King of your life."

"And in so far as you fulfill the commands of Christ by loving God, and by loving and serving your fellowmen, just in that proportion do you succeed in establishing God's kingdom in your community and in the world."

"This being the case, should we not daily pray, 'Lord let thy kingdom come in my heart, let thy will be done in my life, that I may be instrumental in helping to bring about thy kingdom and the fulfillment of thy will in this world.'"

MADE TO VISIT STORES TO RETURN STOLEN GOODS. Welland, Nov. 20.—When a 10-year-old boy named John, of this town on Saturday afternoon and made extensive raids on local stores she laid herself open to novel punishment. Magistrate Goodwin today sentenced her to visit each of the four stores plundered in company with a policeman and to return the articles taken with an apology to the proprietors. The child had been successful in three stores, and had even stolen a large mesh bag to carry her loot when a $4.50 dog attracted her attention. It was too large to be hidden and a clerk in the store caught her and sent for the police.

HOLD PASSENGERS IN QUARANTINE

Quebec, Nov. 19.—(By Canadian Press.)—As a result of the discovery of one case of smallpox among the cabin passengers on board the Canadian Pacific steamer Montclair a few hours before she reached the Grosse Ile quarantine station, 34 miles below this city, early Saturday morning, the vessel was held up for 22 hours while the 221 cabin passengers were obliged to disembark, and they will be detained on the island for an indefinite period, awaiting the decision of the medical authorities for their release.

The steamer Montclair sailed from Liverpool for Quebec and Montreal on Friday, Nov. 10, and after a hard passage fighting a strong head wind, she was making her way up the St. Lawrence when, within seven hours of Grosse Ile, J. M. Webber of Bridgend, Wales, aged 24, who was on his way to Western Canada with his bride, developed symptoms of smallpox.

W. H. Alderson States Representatives Will Make Appeal To People of Province.

Special to The Advertiser.
Cobalt, Nov. 19.—Premier Drury, members of the northern fire relief committee and 80 mayors and presidents of boards of trade and chambers of commerce, passed through Cobalt on their way through the fire-swept area of Northern Ontario. A special train left Toronto Friday night, at the joint expense of the federal and provincial governments, with representatives from all parts of Ontario taking the trip for the purpose of showing them at first hand and impressing upon them the destruction caused by the recent holocaust and the urgent need of the fire sufferers of New Ontario to carry them through the winter.

Chairman W. H. Alderson, of the fire relief committee, states that an appeal will be made to the province, through the representatives on their return, for the sum of $1,000,000, to be expended in rehabilitating these areas. "It is hard for the people of old Ontario," he said, "to realize to the fullest extent the terrible devastation of the fire area and the suffering of the people. Help is needed, and needed urgently, to carry these people through the winter."

Kitchener Hotelman Found Guilty of Having Whiskey On Premises.

Special to The Advertiser.
Kitchener, Nov. 19.—Charles Brohman, president of the Breslau Hotel, was fined $1,000 in police court here yesterday, when he was found guilty of having liquor on the hotel premises. License Inspector Steinmann stated that with the provincial officers he visited the hotel last week and found a man standing in front of the bar drinking something from a small glass.

He stated that as soon as he entered the bar-room Brohman, who was behind the bar, took a bottle from underneath the counter and made a dash for the back of the house. The inspector chased him and caught him just as he dashed the bottle into the sink. They collected enough of the stuff before it got away to produce evidence of whiskey in court. Brohman said the bottle was left in the hotel by a traveler who did not give his name, and that he was throwing it away when the inspectors happened in.

There were more remonstrances and more vigorous application of the clippers, and then Langer called for help. This was on Friday.

Feed your product
more vitamins

BRIGHT color on big spaces may create interest in a picture, but it lacks four-fifths of the advertising vitamins that send people into a specific retail store to buy goods.

The retail distributor must have advertising that builds up confidence in the product; that can educate new customers; that can make them desire new things to eat and wear and enjoy; that finally sends them to the counter with cash in hand.

"I thought of telling my story in a single newspaper," he writes, "which I did and soon saw results. The single medium soon became two, and then a dozen, and now many hundreds on the American continent alone, where practically every daily newspaper of any importance carries Salada Tea Company advertisements."

There is only one common power that can influence buyers for our local merchants and the national advertiser. This is the Daily Newspaper in our trade area. The retailer who impresses this fact upon the manufacturer turns over his stock quickly and profitably.

"We believe that an investment of $130 (one hundred and thirty dollars) made today in the bonds of the City of Vienna (Austria) presents extraordinary opportunities for profit in the event of any material advance in the value of Austrian money (kroner)."

"Owing to conditions arising out of the great world war, the Austrian krona, like to the money of other European countries, has depreciated considerably. Due to this depreciation, a City of Vienna (Austria) 5 per cent bond of 1,000 krona denomination can now be bought for approximately 13c (thirteen cents). With Austrian exchange at normal this same bond would have a value of $208.33. If you purchase one lot of 1,000,000 (one million) krona in City of Vienna 5 per cent bonds from us today, this would cost you $130. With Austrian exchange at normal these same bonds would have a total value of $208,330.

"It is not necessary to wait until the Austrian krona returns to normal to realize substantial profits. You can sell your bonds and interest coupons on any advance of the Austrian krona rate."

"The Austrian krona will sell at 1c per krona before very long. Just think what this means to Austrian securities which rise only 1c per krona (or 10 per thousand krona) will give these bonds a value of $10,000—a profit of more than 8,000 per cent on the investment. When the Austrian krona sells at 3c per krona, or $30 per thousand krona, your profit would be $300 per thousand krona, or for every $130 invested."

"Assuming that five years hence the Austrian krona rate has advanced to only one quarter of its normal value your profit would be over $50,000 on each lot of a thousand (one million) krona bonds of the City of Vienna 5 per cent loan. With the Austrian krona advancing to one half of its normal value a transaction over 10c per krona, or $100 per thousand krona) the profit would be over $100,000."

In other words, let us assist in the recovery of Vienna in the following manner: We will loan them $130 now, and when everything becomes happy in the future we will be repaid to the extent of $208,330. What a splendid contribution to make to the rebuilding of Europe. One could pick out of such a transaction a thrill second only to being able to throw a medal when asked what you did when the great war was on.

Put in $130 and take out $208,330. The only trouble is that the people of Vienna are starving. They are objects of pity, dumb, heartless, broken creatures with their minds so filled with miseries of the past and the poverty of today that the future holds nothing in store.

Meet any man who has been in Vienna in recent months, outline the proposition to him of securing $208,330 for $130, and he will tell you of a currency hopelessly deflated and of money that bulges the pockets but represents hardly any purchasing power at all.

The wonder is that a firm dealing in this kind of stuff can stay in business, and yet they must find some purchasers, otherwise they would be down and out.

The Gregory Commission.

The interim report covering the inquiry into the development by the Hydro-Electric Commission of power on the Nipigon river has been submitted, bearing the signatures of Chairman W. D. Gregory and Messrs. M. J. Haney, Lloyd Harris, J. A. Ross, R. A. Ross.

The report goes back to the inception of the development, and claims that the hydro commission approached Sir William Hearst, then premier of the province, with a view of securing the cancellation of power development rights which had been granted to the holders of pulp limits.

When the people of Fort William were asked to vote on the matter of taking power from the hydro commission, it is charged that certain sections of the power commission act were deliberately set aside. This act provides that the maximum price at which power shall be delivered to a municipality shall be named, and that it shall become a part of the bylaw on which the ratepayers shall vote.

It's Great to Be Married

It is also found that there is a deficit of $304,822 in the operation of the Nipigon plant, which has now only one customer, the municipality of Port Arthur. There were two customers previously, but the Nipigon Fibre and Paper Company never paid its bills, and has since gone into liquidation, although most of its indebtedness is secured by a bonding company.

Figures furnished by the auditor of the hydro commission show a deficit for the year of $304,822, and the question naturally arises, who is going to become responsible for this amount? If Port Arthur were to pay for the whole operation of the plant their rate would be $60 per h. p. against $25, which they are paying under protest, because they were promised a $20 rate in the first place.

There is no unity among the parties concerned as to where this deficit shall be lodged. Deficits have few friends, and they are never as popular as surpluses. When a surplus is in sight there are few to dodge responsibility, but when it is a deficit there is apt to be a hurried washing of hands. The province will have to look after it, because it borrowed the money and guaranteed the bonds. It is not simply the present shortage that has to be cared for, but the commission points out that "the obligation incurred by the province for the Nipigon development has proved to be a very real and a very serious one," the reason being that it may "grow from year to year and may reach a million."

The whole trend of the report is that the credit of the province has been pledged to a large expenditure at the suggestion of the Hydro-Electric Commission. The plant now in operation has not enough customers, and is losing money. The recommendation of the commissioners is timely when it intimates that there must be "the fullest co-operation with the hydro commission to assure greater sales of power, for it is only by the sale of more power that the annual deficit can be reduced. . . . Other questions may wait, but a deficit that is growing at the rate of $300,000 a year calls for prompt and effective action."

In other words, it is incumbent upon all parties to get to work seriously and make the best of a poor situation.

No Place For a Man.

Police court in Toronto. Present, prisoners, magistrate, etc.

Case No. 1.—Wife, Mary, charges Russian with beating her up. Husband says he got hit first.

No. 2.—Woman charged with stealing purse in departmental store. Told to keep away from big stores for six months.

No. 3.—Two colored girls, described by the beak as a menace to society, sent down for six months.

No. 4.—Biganist, 18-year-old girl, remanded for a week.

No. 5.—Charged with having liquor in her house, woman remanded for a week.

Since when did police court in "Toronto the Good" become the almost exclusive property of the fair sex? Time was when a man stood a pretty fair chance of elbowing in now and then. At present it looks as though he would have to do something desperate and get there early in the morning before the women folk come along and clutter up the premises for the day.

COMMENT

Patience is a man who goes forth and comes home with a basket of beechnuts.

The danger of women going into politics is that they may soon know more about it than the men.

When one woman starts to think that it's a shame the way some other woman uses her husband—watch out.

The Progressive may get along well with Forke for their leader, if there are not too many rushing in to be Forke handles.

It must have been a master mind that introduced the idea of building roads by dumping a pile of gravel in the middle of the highway and figuring that in time the traffic would beat it down.

A doctor is out with the statement that using a broom is good exercise for women and working a bucksaw is great for men. Right here we see where this sawbones is going to starve to death.

A man in Illinois drowned himself in a five-gallon can by holding his head in the water. The man who said he could drown himself in a teacup was perhaps right. Cramped quarters, no doubt, to start the long trip, but it can be done.

The St. Catharines Standard, with this fine weather continuing, is looking for the first spring robin. Not so fast, sonny—you'll be hustling around some morning looking in the attic for that old cap with the ear-flaps and that fine old saw that you used to twine about your neck.

Edward Johnson, a Guelph, Ont., boy, who has made a world reputation as a tenor, appears with the Metropolitan Opera Company in London. He is acclaimed as an outstanding success, and at once the American critics start on the work of musical theft. The New York World heads the list with: "We ought to be proud of this American tenor."

IT'S GREAT TO BE MARRIED

There is an increasing number of cases where husband and wife work. In many cases they are forced to it because the husband cannot make enough by his own efforts. Thus the kitchenette continues to grow in favor and the tin cans pile up at the back door. Husband and wife meet on the way home after the whistle blows for quitting time. A worthy effort in some cases, no doubt, but a rank departure from the fine ideals of home building.

The Dutton Advance tells of a meeting of the U. F. O. of West Elgin, where the reporters were asked to leave. One was there, not a member, but it was stated he "had no paper or pencil," and was considered less harmful. Reporters are supposed to take voluminous notes, but it is the ambition of the highly-trained reporter many times to keep his pencil and paper in his pocket. Especially is this so in the art of interviewing. The appearance of a pad and pencil acts like a muzzle, and the person to whom the reporter is talking at once begins to measure his statement and weigh his words.

What a blessed thing that we have the chrysanthemum to come along as fall merges into winter and wave to us its riot of color and its excellence of bloom. Some weeks ago we took up the dahlias and the gladioli, raked leaves over the pansy bed and threw a little covering over the wilted stalks of the annuals. Then, too, the rose bush has been taken care of for the winter, but still the chrysanthemum remains. You may urge that it's a petted thing that grows best under glass. But, let it grow where and how it pleases, the fact remains that it's here, a glorious companion of late fall and early winter.

Plans are being developed for making a new province in Northern Ontario, especially that section north of Lake Superior, which no doubt feels that it is nearer to Manitoba than to the heart of Ontario. The expense of such a move, were it to be carried out, would be an added burden in the way of taxation. It may be that the response of what is called Old Ontario to the need of New Ontario for help when the latter was fire-swept may show the feeling the older sections of the province have with those to the north. And it will be found that this section of Ontario is ever ready to listen and reasonably deal with the problems peculiar to the north.

Some American critics seek to convey the impression to their readers that the allied nations regard United States as a modern Shylock who made money out of the war and hung on to it. Canadians live next door to the United States, and Canada appreciates to the full the contribution made by United States in war time. Likewise we are ready to acknowledge the excellent spirit that has prompted our American cousins to pour their millions into relief funds for Russia, Poland, Armenia and other points of excessive need. It is a mistaken idea to assume that the fine points of United States activities have passed unnoticed in this country.

Answers to Health Questions: H. I. Q.—Every time I take a deep breath I get a severe pain under my heart. Will you please tell me where I can go for a complete physical examination? A.—Is olive oil good for the hair? Q.—You can go to any hospital clinic or to your own physician and be examined to make sure there is no organic trouble present. Be governed by the advice you will receive. A.—For your age and height you should weigh 85 pounds. However, you are much too young to be worrying about your weight. F. G. Q.—Kindly tell me whether it is necessary to have an inward gaitre operated on. A.—Medical treatment very often cures this condition. Try it before resorting to an operation. WORRIED. Q.—I am a woman 25 years of age. I suffer from heart trouble. When I go out into the cold my lips and cheeks become purple. Will you kindly tell me what is best to do? A.—Rest is the best treatment for your heart condition. This will tend to strengthen the heart muscles. But you should consult your own doctor for advice founded on careful examination.

TO THE EDITOR ABOUT DOGS. Editor Advertiser: Sir—A week or so ago I read with great interest an article on your editorial page about a yellow dog. I know many of your readers appreciated the thought contained in it. Did you ever stop to think what fine qualities a dog really has? We were talking of it the other night, and here are a few virtues, and I think they are virtues, that can be claimed for a dog: He is faithful; you nor neglects to welcome your home-coming. He does not talk back. He accepts whatever you do as right. He does not gossip or backbite. His life is a sermon on unselfish affection without hope of reward. In prompt obedience he is a model for children. He will run his four legs off to make you or your children happy. He will submit to almost any hardship to make children happy. Like a real hero, he will risk his life for you and yours. If children are rough he will endure it. If children are unkind he will forgive it. If he does not go enough to eat he will forget it. If you burden him too heavily he will bring up as best he can. He is thankful for his simple food. He seldom sulks nor long retains a misanthropic grudge. His added friends do not lessen his affection for you. He does not question your dress or your station in life. He respects your change of temperament and seeks to please you. He does not bore you with his troubles. He is polite and thanks you with a wag of his tail for every kind word or act. He does what you tell him without asking why. He trusts you supremely and is the very embodiment of faith, hope and love. Thanking you for your interest in dumb animals, A LOVER OF DOGS. Perhaps nothing makes a girl so angry as the thought that a young man thinks she would not resent being kissed.

The Evening Story

RACHEL. (Copyright, 1922, by W. Werner.) "At last, mamma, you shall have it easy. Today, Cohen, he makes up his mind and he has made the offer. Next week Abe Cohen will be shining up the window and putting the big diamond ring in the spot where the sunlight will make it sparkle, and pushing the tarnished French clock back where it will look nifty in the shadows. You shall have it good, now, mamma." Rachel stood holding a snowy tea-towel. Her lined face was filled with thought, but her husband failed to find the exultation he had expected. "Ain't you glad, then?" "He was shorter than his buckom wife and his spectacled eyes peered up at her anxiously. She could not glance, somehow. She could not achieve the gratified relief he anticipated. "Yes," The words came dully. "We shall move into a new flat with a sun-parlor where you shall be doing a bit of silk-embroidery. None of your cotton flowers, mind. My wife shall want for nothing. A new soft sofa, where you shall sit in doing receive your friends. Why, Rachel, you shall wear satins every day. Never let me see you in an apron again." "Yes," She would not put them on for fear of stretching the new curtains. Her wife, looking out at the teeming street that she would leave so soon. Some children were dancing ecstatically to the music of a cheery old barrel organ and the monkey was posing with his red cap in a wrinkled paw looking up at her in wonder. Rachel always saved her original intentions for him; she would miss the monkey when they moved. She knew every child on both sides of the street. Many of them were related to her and played in the shabby old second-hand store as naturally as in their own domain, the street. Then the window pane became curiously misted; the group of children was augmented by another child, a big-eyed girl with a tangle of dusky curls about her face, and soon to her longing mother heart in a grand new place with a plush sofa? Josie would not fit in with sun parlors and satin dresses. Then she came out of her dreams to become aware of her husband. "And, mamma, I have saved the best for the last. You shall have a girl to do your work. There! Even Rosie Meyers has to wash her own dishes, though they say she wears gloves to keep her hands white—rubber gloves that she buys at the 10-cent store. We shall make her take notice, mamma. What?" "Then Rachel surprised him. "If we didn't sell the shop we would have something to leave to Josie—and—" "There was a trenchant silence while Ben stared. Never before had his big plump wife been hard to understand. She had always agreed with a submissiveness that was curiously at variance with her commanding presence. He caught his breath, and for a moment he sensed something portentous in the atmosphere. "And," went on the low pathetic tones of "little girl" that she has named Rachel. "A burst of gay laughter from the children in the street filled the stuffy little room. A big picture of the child Josie, enlarged in vivid crayons, looked down at the parents staring defiantly at each other. "Then," he said slowly, "you have heard from her after my orders? She married her soldier, who belonged outside the temple—married him without my blessing because she loved him." "And what better reason could she have?" Rachel's soft voice rang out protectively. "Didn't I marry you because I loved you? Didn't my father say you would never be able to buy me a gown? Gown! What did I care for clothes? Now the soldier boy is dead, killed in battle fighting for us old folks, and I— How could I sit with idle hands folded over a satin lap? I want my girl—I want my grandchild. What does Josie know about bringing up a child?" Ben squared his round shoulders. "Didn't you used to say that Rosie built it up and we know all the customers. They would miss us, and Ben, I want to have something to hold in my arms again. I want my Josie's child." "Then I am no more master in my own house," Ben tried to storm, but he did not succeed in so doing. His wife put a tender hand on his bent shoulder. "Always, Ben. Always master, but—" Ben became conscious of a curious happiness. Rachel's eyes looked as they had looked in her radiant youth. He hoped Josie's daughter would look like her grandmother. "Have I your own way, mamma. If you need Josie to help you about the shop, why send for her?"

London Syndicate Raises Price of Rough On American Goods Five Per Cent.

Cables received by diamond cutters in New York Monday confirm the rumors that have been current in the trade for some time that the London Diamond Syndicate was about to again raise the price of rough diamonds. Some of the cables received stated simply that 'rough had been raised 5 per cent,' others stated that 5 per cent was in effect on American goods, and still others stated that the increase was 5 per cent of the "closed" (American) goods and two and one-half per cent on others.

WILL DISCUSS PLAN TO MAKE WORLD "DRY"

Prohibition Leaders of Fifty Nations To Meet At Toronto. FAMOUS MEN TO ATTEND Toronto, Nov. 19.—(By Canadian Press)—The "dry" forces of the world will invade Toronto this week, when the first international convention of the World League Against Alcoholism will be held in Massey Hall here, combined with the conventions of the Ontario and Dominion Alliance.

GEORGES CLEMENCEAU former premier of France, who was accorded an enthusiastic welcome on his arrival in New York Saturday morning. He was met by a reception committee composed of prominent United States citizens. J. J. Jusserand, French ambassador to the United States, was also on hand to greet him.

It is expected that the World League convention will be attended by representatives from more than fifty nations, including those of Europe, India, Australia, the Orient, Africa, South America, Egypt and the West Indies.

A large number of prominent women leaders will address the convention, including Miss Cora Frances Stoddard, executive secretary of the Scientific Temperance Federation, and Miss Mary Campbell of India.

More effective law enforcement, it is expected, will be one of the subjects dealt with by the convention. The national anti-alcohol meetings of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, being held in Philadelphia, will close in time to enable the delegates there to attend the world league convention in Toronto.
