

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas. "After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued to use it, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

Gaol Year Shows a Falling Off in the Number of Inmates

(From our own correspondent.)
Simcoe, Oct. 15.—Excellent choir-work and solos, a heartily responsive congregation and a characteristically bright and encouraging sermon by the rector characterized yesterday morning's worship at Trinity Church. In his sermon Rev. A. B. Farney traced Thanksgiving service through Bible times. The text was Psalm 118, verse 1. Words used at the laying of the cornerstone and dedication of the second temple, when the ark arrived at Zion City, at the last supper, and development of these early thanksgiving festivals into our modern annual thanksgiving completed. The speaker recounted the manifold blessings enjoyed by Canadians today in matters spiritual, social, economical, and material, showing clearly that the mass of Canadians have so far been really little concerned for have suffered through three years of war. Mrs. Carre and Miss Leah Butler were soloists of the day. Mr. Farney preached at St. Paul's yesterday evening. The soloists were Miss Hadow, Miss Hurley, Mrs. Boles and Mr. McLachlan. The sermon was on "War Time Gladness."

During the fall year, which ended on September 30th, there were but 26 commitments to the Norfolk county jail. The year began with three prisoners and closed with one. The total number of days confinement for all prisoners during the year was 908, or an average slightly less than two and a half prisoners per day. The commitments for the

KITCHEN OVERALL PLANT FIRE SWEEP AT AN EARLY HOUR

Prompt Action by Fire Department Kept Damage Down to $10,000.00

Falling glass striking on the sidewalk first warned the firemen at three o'clock this morning at the Kitchen Overall Building, within half a block of the fire station, was in flames. The glass cracked from the heat on the third story, fell to the pavement below and luckily awoke one of the fire fighters, who called to the members of the department in the nick of time to prevent what would otherwise have been a very serious conflagration.
The fire was started when, through faulty insulation a short circuit was created in the electric meter box on the third story. The heat that was created, melted the metal in the box and the molten metal, running down through the cracks in the instrument, ignited the woodwork. The floor and walls rapidly became wrapped in a blaze and the cloth used in the manufacture of overalls provided ready food for the flames.
Fireman Tom Hurley, whose bed is near the windows in the south-easterly corner of the fire hall, is a light sleeper and was awakened at five minutes to three by the sound of glass falling on the sidewalk. Not suspecting a fire, but thinking that someone across the street was breaking glass on the sidewalk, he at first paid little attention to the noise. When it continued, however, he jumped out of bed and was astonished to see flames shooting from the third story windows of the Kitchen Overall Building. He immediately called to his fellow firefighters and without loss of time they were on the scene.
The front door was broken in and with one line of hose the firemen went up to the third story. They were met here by an impassable wall of fire. Hurley, speaking from the burning cloth, Chief Lewis, to investigate the proportions and exact location of the flames, ventured into the room on all fours and found the fire had rapidly spread from a fifteen or twenty feet and was almost overcome, and rushed back to the door, where he struck back forward on the floor, the hose narrowly escaping losing his eyesight.
With one line of hose the firemen battled until half past four when the danger was under control.
Fred Freeman, Hurley's not discoverer of the fire, which he found from the most certainly have assumed more serious proportions, and the whole building would probably have been gutted, had the fire not been put out. Between the ceiling of the third story in which the flames were located in a space of three feet and the flames, which were just working through the cracked plaster of the ceiling when the firemen arrived. A few minutes more delay and the structure would likely have succumbed to the flames, for the amount of cloth piled up around the machines and the framework of the walls and floor would have easily become ignited and transformed the structure into an inferno.
The damage will amount to approximately $10,000, stated Mr. C. E. Kitchen, manager of the Kitchen Overall and Shirt Company, this morning, but this will be partially covered by insurance. A prominent local insurance broker also placed $10,000 as the probable amount of the loss. Mr. Kitchen in discussing the fire, pointed out that all the goods now on stock were so seriously damaged that they would have to be sold at a heavy sacrifice. The water caused much damage in the second story, where more machines are located, but the goods in that area are located in the office of W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., and the Wade store, also suffered, the music having trickled down through the second story, damaging the walls and ceilings rather badly. The heavy item of loss will be the machines on the third and second stories, many of which will

INCREASE IN STORAGE

By Courier Leased Wire
Ottawa, Oct. 14.—A large increase in the quantities of food commodities in cold warehouses on October 1, as compared with October 1, 1916 is shown in the monthly report of W. F. O'Connor, acting commissioner on the cost of living. Eggs, butter, beef, pork, mutton and fish show considerable increases while there has been a falling off in cheese, bacon and ham. As compared with September 1 of this year, there has been a large increase in the amount of beef, fresh and frozen, in cold storage and a decrease in the amount of pickled pork.

LEMONS BEAUTIFY

Strain lemon juice well before mixing and massage face, neck, arms, hands

Here is told how to prepare an inexpensive lemon lotion which can be used to bring back to any skin the sweet freshness of which it has been robbed, by trying atmospheric conditions. Wind-chafe, roughness, tan and redness are warded off and those self-tan lines of care or of age are softened away.
The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing local ounces of orchard white makes a whole quart of the most remarkable skin beautifier at about the cost of one cent for a small jar of the ordinary cold cream. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in. Then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener, smoother and beautifier.
Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands, and see for your-

PETROGRAD IN PERIL WITH ENEMY IN RIGAS

Landing of German Troops on Oesel and Oago Islands a Menace to Russian Safety An Appeal For Union in the Nations

Petrograd, Oct. 14.—Commenting on the German occupation of the Russian Island of Oesel, the Bourse Gazette to-day says: "On the whole, we must accept as a fact that we have let this whole group of islands fall into the hands of the enemy, and that the enemy will be in a position to occupy the islands."

"The Cabinet consulted Premier Kerensky by telephone, asking permission to issue a proclamation calling on the Petrograd citizens to forget politics and to unite to save the endangered capital."

London, Oct. 14.—Germany's most striking military move since the attack which resulted in the capture of Riga was initiated Friday on this same Russian front, when German troops were landed on Oesel and Dago Islands, at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga.

Heavy units of the main German battle fleet were brought up to assist in this operation, some of the Dreadnaughts appearing off the coast and covering the landing with their guns silencing the Russian shore batteries. The Russian forces hampered the process in every way possible, but considerable numbers of the Germans appear to have obtained a footing on the north-western coast of Oesel Island and on the southern shores of Dago Island. They were subsequently forced to re-embark on their ships from Dago Island. On Oesel Island, where the Russians have extensive aviation bases and other military establishments, the garrison engaged the invaders, but their resistance was quickly broken by the Germans, who are now advancing toward the south-eastern coast, according to Berlin, which adds that Arensburg, the capital of the island, and Serel, on the Svob peninsula, are in flames. Petrograd admits that the Russians are being pressed toward the south-east.

Although the German communication says the Germans suffered no losses during the landing on Oesel Island, the Petrograd War Office says that in attempting to cover the landing of the enemy on the island, ten torpedo boats were reported to have been sunk and one cruiser ran aground. The small detachment which landed on Dago Island were forced later by the Russians to return to the ships, while the Russian fleet, which at last accounts had suffered no material damage, was hindered by the German warcraft in the waters between Dago and Oesel Islands.

Details of Landing. Petrograd, Oct. 14.—The German forces which landed on Oesel Island, in the Gulf of Riga, under the cover of 93 war vessels, had occupied up to 10 o'clock Saturday morning the whole northern and eastern part of the island, and were within 12 versts of Arensburg, on the southern shore, according to an announcement made to-day by the Russian naval general staff. The Russians still occupy Serel Point and the Svob peninsula on the south-western coast. It now develops that the Germans did not occupy Dago Island, north of Oesel, and at the head of the Gulf of Finland, but contented themselves with making a demonstration against it.

Premier Kerensky in an urgent appeal to the Baltic fleet to defend the "Fatherland, in this hour of trial," divulged the fact that the garrison of Kronstadt, the chief fortress and military port of Russia, and the station of the Baltic fleet, twenty miles west of Petrograd, by its attitude already has weakened the defensive resources of the fortress.

Eight Dreadnaughts, a dozen light cruisers, forty torpedo boats and thirty mine-sweepers participated in the German landing on Oesel Island. The people of Petrograd received the news of the occupation calmly. The newspapers publish interviews with some of the Cabinet Ministers, and others, who agree that while the operation seriously affects Russia's strategic position, it does not constitute an immediate menace to the Russian capital.

I am commanded by the King and Queen to express their sincere sympathy with you at the loss you have sustained by the death of your son, Second Lieutenant P. G. Skellington, who, their Majesties regret to hear, has been accidentally killed whilst in the service of his country.

However, at the supper Mr. E. A. Danby, the Live Wire Chairman of the committee, heartily thanked the men on the teams for their noble work, and especially the team of the Great War Veterans. The membership drive is continuing during this week and this will be also as renewal week because the time for receiving renewals rates is extended to Saturday the 20th, and all renewals must be in by that date. FOUR MEN TRIED TO VISIT TORONTO

Chicago, Oct. 15.—The trial of four men on charges of attempting to foment a revolution against the British Government in India, and conspiracy, is set for to-day in the Federal district court before Judge Landis. The defendants are Gustave H. Jacobson, wealthy real estate dealer; Albert H. Wehde, curio collector; George Paul Boehm, mechanical engineer, residents of Chicago, and H. Ramba Lal Gupta, a Hindu. A number of others were indicted, including Baron Kurt von Reisswitz, former acting consul for the German empire in Chicago, who is now in Germany; Adolph Stern, also known as schlotz, and eight Hindus, but the government decided to place only the four on trial at this time. Ramifications of the German espionage system will be revealed at the trial, according to the federal authorities. The plot, which the government alleges, was hatched in Chicago, took certain men from this city, it is said, to India and during their travels, many cities in the Orient were visited.

EVERYBODY NEEDS PURE, RICH BLOOD

Pure blood enables the stomach, liver and other digestive organs to do their work properly. Without it they are sluggish, there is loss of appetite, sometimes faintness, a deranged state of the intestines, and, in general, all the symptoms of dyspepsia. Pure blood is required by every organ of the body for the proper performance of its functions. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure blood, and this is why it is so successful in the treatment of so many diseases and ailments. It acts directly on the blood, ridding it of scrofulous and other humors. It is a peculiar combination of blood-purifying, nerve-toning, strength-giving substances. Get it today.

CHICAGO SNATCHED VICTORY FROM DEFEAT IN FIFTH GAME

White Sox Came up From Behind Overcoming Three Run Lead and Tallying Three More for Good Measure—Pale Hose Pitchers Hit Hard

Chicago, Oct. 13.—It took the White Sox a long time to get started to-day, but once under way, they traveled with a celerity that baffled the eye.

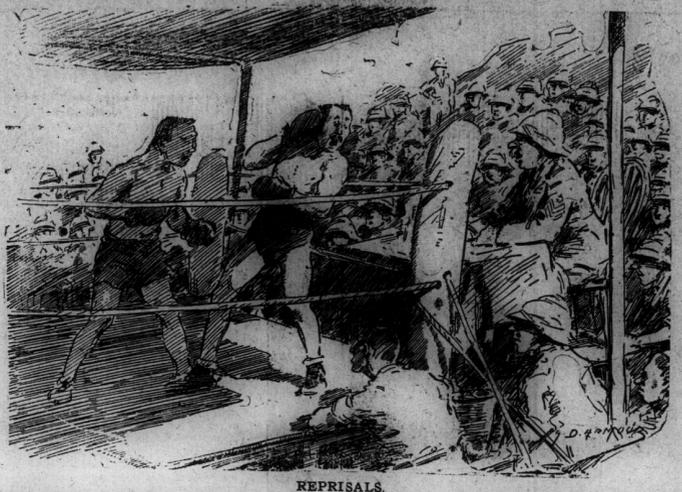

Apparently hopelessly beaten, discarded by a multiplicity of errors and to all intents and purposes thoroughly demoralized when their seventh turn at bat arrived, the Rowlands put over the grandest comeback in world series history and grabbed victory from the jaws of ignominious defeat by a score of 8 to 5.

The Giants were leading 5 to 2 when the "lucky timing" came along. They had so completely outplayed the Sox up to this time that the remainder of the game looked empty formality. Not only had McGraw's men hanged Rowland's pitchers all over the place, but they had been aided by six egregious errors, as horrible an exhibition of fielding as a big league park ever had seen. "Slim" Sallee, with his big lead to work on, was just breezing along under wraps, supremely confident and almost careless.

Then it happened! With one out in the seventh Jackson hit. So did Felsch. "Chick" Gandil, up to this time by no means a glittering success as a batter in this game, or one of those that preceded it, broke in with a double that was probably the most off-handed whack ever made in the city of Chicago. Both Joe and "Hap" scored and the tying run was carried half way along its journey by Gandil. "Chick" advanced on Weaver's out and Sallee, in trying to make Schalk hit a bad ball, passed him. Byrd Lynn batted for Williams, then pitching for Chicago. Schalk galloped down to second to draw a throw, and when Sallee, after receiving the ball from his catcher, thought he had an easy victim in Ray, tossed to Herzog, who made a rare and costly muff. Before the ball could be recovered, Gandil had scored and tied it up. Lynn, who was not very badly needed after this, completed the job of striking out that he had begun before the ill-advised play was attempted.

Having tied the score after once being all ready for the embalmer, the Sox were irresistible. It was a mortal clutch that they weren't going to let the Giants get any more chances to beat them. And so it proved. John Collins opened the eighth with a Texas leaguer and was sacrificed to second by McMullen, and scored on Eddie Collins' poke through Fletcher. To make sure that there would be no change for a play at home, Knuff fumbled the ball. Jackson hit to right, sending Collins to third and Eddie, cleverly delaying his progress so as to draw a throw to that base, enabled Joe to make second. Zimmerman cut loose a wild throw to Fletcher in trying to head off the general and Collins cashed, while Joe went to third. To make this result complete Felsch hit to centre and Jackson registered the Sox's eighth run. Gandil filed and Felsch died stalling, but nobody minded that, for the game was over.

SPORTING COMMENT

The present world's series is the fourteenth clash between the pennant winners of the American and National Leagues for the supremacy in baseball. A series between the Boston Americans and Pittsburgh Nationals back in 1903 was the first inter-league championship battle, and the interest in that series did not give the least idea that within a few years this sport would become the sport classic of the country. When that first series was played there was no friendly rivalry between the two leagues. The American League just had forced recognition from the senior circuit a few years before, and it was John I. Taylor, then the owner of the Red Sox, who hurled the challenge at Barney Dreyfuss. Jimmy Collins, famous third baseman, was manager of the Boston club and Fred Clarke was at the head of the winning Pirates. There were few of the old fans who were willing to admit that the American League classed with the old organization and the Red Sox went into the series real long shots. Dreyfuss unhesitatingly accepted the challenge and he lost. The Pirates started out like real winners, but the Red Sox won the last three games and took five out of nine. Dreyfuss was the loser but he paved the way to the big event which the world's series have since become.

Not payed under the supervision of the National Commission. The officials of the two clubs arranged all details, appointed the umpires, agreed upon nine games, or until one club won five, and finally turned most of the receipts over to the players. After the break in 1904, the National Commission stepped in and has since directed all the affairs connected with the series.

Baseball is like football in a certain respect, inasmuch as the respect is done by men on the playing field and not by the manager or the coach. This seems strange and unusual these days, when we read about the clever inside stuff about to be pulled off by McGraw or Rowland which will turn defeat into a glorious victory, but it can't be otherwise, according to the dope. If a ball club wins a game there always are nine reasons for the victory, and these reasons consist of the players on the winning side. The manager does his work before the game, and after that he is more or less a spectator. True, he may switch his men around and change pitchers when the going is rough, but that lets him out. As soon as the men get out on the field the manager's value to the team drops to almost zero. Let's talk it over. It is a well-known fact that a general's work is done the night before a battle, he has laid out his plans, issued his instructions, and the only remaining thing is for the men to carry out the orders. A football coach does the same thing, and the baseball manager faces similar conditions. He tells his men what to do, and it is up to them to do it. The manager can't go out on the field and play every position himself. For example, suppose on the very first play, a ball is knocked to Zimmerman and Heinie boots it. Who is to blame Surely not McGraw. Yet McGraw placed Jim at third and expected him to get everything that came his way. If an infielder makes a wild throw or an outfielder falls all over himself while chasing a fly ball, the blame rests on the shoulders of the men who make the errors, not the boss of the club. In 1912 New York had the series won from Boston and Fred Snodgrass muffed the easiest kind of a fly ball, which gave the Red Sox the game. In the same series Harry Hooper made a sensational one-handed jumping catch which robbed Larry Doyle of a homer, and again caused the defeat of the Giants. Jake Stahl, who managed the Red Sox that year, did not go around with his chest sticking out, telling everyone how he won the world's series. Nor did McGraw hang his head in shame because he felt directly responsible for Snodgrass' error. Both managers knew that the men themselves were responsible and let it go at that.

Wild Bill Donovan's job as manager of the Yankees is said to be slipping fast away from him. Also Miller Huggins, brainy little leader of the St. Louis Cardinals, is said to have been considered in his place. No semblance of truth can be attached to the rumors, even for the indefinite statement accredited to Huggins saying he has received "some kind" of an offer to take charge of the Then came a year without a series—the only break between 1903 and the present time. In 1904 Jimmy Collins again led his Boston team home in first place, and John McGraw won his first pennant as manager of the Giants. Naturally the talk of another series sprang up and the Boston club was anxious to defend its title of world's champions. After much deliberation an announcement was made that the New York club would not play such a series. The late John T. McGraw was then the directing spirit of the Giants and he had not entirely forgotten the wounds inflicted by the American League during the baseball war. That Fall the National Commission passed a rule making such a series between the major league pennant winners obligatory, and there has been no break since the 1904 season.

Of the games played to date, the American league has the edge on the older organization. Of the thirteen series between these organizations, the representatives of Ban Johnson's league have been victorious eight times, and the National league representatives have been victorious five times. The American League has won 38 games against 34 for the senior organization, and the two games have ended with the score tied. In the early days, the honors usually went to the National League, four of the first six series going against the Johnson clubs. In 1910 the tide turned, and since that year the younger league has been a rather consistent winner. The victory of the Braves over the Athletics in 1914 is the only break in a string of American League successes since 1910. Six of the last seven series have resulted in victories for the American League.

The first series, back in 1903, was with the Sportsman's Battalion in a letter to his mother here, stated that Tom Longboat the famous Indian runner, had been killed in action. Daly's letter was dated Sept. 23, and according to a press despatch from Stewart Lyon on Oct. 2 from the Canadian Army Headquarters, Tom Longboat on that day competed in the athletic events, running second in both the mile and three-mile races. Therefore, on the face of the foregoing, Daly must have received wrong information.

SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS, QUIT MEAT

Flush the Kidneys at once When Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then be fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Striking miners in Tennessee and Kentucky will return to work after six weeks idleness under a tentative agreement.

IS TOM LONGBOAT KILLED IN ACTION?

Letter From Front Tells Of Death of Famous Indian Runner

MAY NOT BE CORRECT

Tom Was Reported Alive Since Date of Sending Letter

Mrs. Michael Daly, of 464 Queen street east, Toronto received a letter from her son, Tommy Daly, former trainer of the Toronto ball team, who went overseas with the Sportsman's Battalion saying that Tom Longboat, the famous Indian marathon runner, Abbie Brennan, and a brother of Father Pennington, have been killed in action. The letter dated Sept. 23, did not give any particulars.

Longboat came into distinct prominence when he won the Hamilton Herald road race in 1906. He continued to be a shining light, and landed in front in the Boston Marathon, in 1907. In succeeding years he won about every amateur long distance race in Canada, defeating the best runners that could be encouraged to enter events with the Indian. He failed to win the English Olympic Marathon in 1908, dropping out of the race at the 19th mile mark, when it appeared he had first honors within his grasp.

In the four years when he was at his best, it is estimated that the Indian made as much as $17,000. His first prize money he won at Kingston when he collected $75 by meeting a relay of three runners. New York gave him his biggest purse, $3,900, his victory at that time being over Dorando, the Italian runner. Longboat's marriage which took place in Massey Hall, was a big event for the famous runner, and Toronto gave him a great send-off. Capt. the Rev. J. D. Morrow, now overseas tied the knot.

The best performances of Longboat was at the Island Stadium in June, 1912, when he defeated Wood, Shrub and Quaal, and set up a new world's record for fifteen miles.

NATIVE GESE SAVED BRITISH

Wild Birds Gave Warning To a Detachment In Saloniki

With British Forces in Saloniki, Oct. 13. (Correspondence)—This is the story of how the geese of Kale-Zir gave the warning and saved a British detachment.
When the Bulgars left their native fastnesses and came down into the plains, their advance was halted by a certain famous river and a historic lake. A British company was holding the Upper Lakes, for it was divided into two parts, connected by the river. The company was charged with responsibility for the upper lake and five miles of the connecting stream as far as Kale-Zir. They had absolute command of the lake, thanks to the motorboats, and a crossing there was inconceivable but the river flowed through a maze of reeds and swamps and forests, most parts of which appeared absolutely impenetrable from the British side. A feeling of comparative safety pervaded the British camp.
Then one evening the orderly officer set out from the camp on his bicycle to visit two outposts up the river nearly two miles from the camp. It was very dark. As he neared the sentry, he heard the movement of wings, and distinguished a flock after a flock of ducks flying from their night rest among the reeds.
"Looks odd," he remarked to the sentry. Then to a sergeant, "I'll take one man, sergeant, and we'll cycle down the path and have a look."
The path ran a quarter of a mile along the marsh and then died an abrupt death in a stifling fence of reeds. The officer and his orderly dismounted and listened. They could discern over in the swamp a long line of men in single file.
"Back at the picket post, the orderly sent a man to warn the camp, while he remained behind to keep the enemy raiders under observation.
The raiders were two hundred strong, under command of a German officer. They kept to the path until just before it came into a clearing. Then they halted and prepared to attack. They were in a loose sort of open order and came on quickly. At that moment the British officer fired four shots. Immediately the light over the British camp appeared. The raiders were hurled and a moment's silence and then a complete surprise. The raiders were hurled and a moment's silence and then a complete surprise. The raiders were hurled and a moment's silence and then a complete surprise.

I sit and sizzle when the snows are drifting on the prairie, the wintry tempest never blows that makes my heart less merry. It drags itself along the earth, its pinions crushed and broken. At night I sit and watch the stars, earth's little things forgetting, keep tab on Jupiter and Mars, and watch the dog star setting. I count the mountains of the moon, through cloudland's shreds and tatters, and do not care a pey-une for any worldly matters. CUT OFF REBELS
Associated Press
Mexico City, Oct. 15.—Word has been received here from Gen. Salvador Alvarado, in charge of military operations throughout Chiapas, Campeche, Yucatan and the states of the south that he would draw a close cordon of troops along the border between Chiapas and Guatemala in order to prevent any supplies or munitions reaching the rebels in Chiapas from Guatemala.

The cordon along the border is wild and not densely populated, and it is said munitions have been smuggled into Mexico without the knowledge of the Guatemalan authorities. The presence of the strong cordon along the border also has served to quiet apprehension of German activities along the frontier, fostered by the German coffee planters.

Guy Brothers Minstrels is an organization that is familiar to most of the cities of the country, but never before last evening had been seen in Portland.
We can say right here that the performance was excellent from beginning to end. Six of the company belong to the Guy family, and they are first rate artists, Arthur Guy pleasing especially in his "C B and Cornet solo." The other members of the troupe were fully equal to all demands made upon them.—(A Portland, Oregon paper).

Guy Brothers come to the Grand to-night, and should have a good house.
SUPERSTITIOUS
Every one knows that the members of the silent and the noisy drama are the most superstitious class of people on earth. They're super-superstitious, in fact. Take Jane Caprice, the winsome William Fox star, for example. Here are some of her strongest superstitions: She refuses to walk under a falling safe, and advances the unique reason for this that the world is losing its population rapidly enough. She will not put her hand in a lion's mouth, because she doesn't believe in cruelty to animals. She will not stand near a lightning blast because she says the light hurts her eyes.

She doesn't like sawdust for breakfast because she thinks heavy foods are unwholesome.
She will not run through a glass door on account of the pane.
She is extremely superstitious about the use of carbolic acid as a face lotion.
She refuses to jump off the Palladium because the wind made by her descent would ruffle her hair.
She will not sit at a table of thirteen persons unless there is something to eat.
She will not open an umbrella in the house unless the roof leaks.
She thinks it unlucky to take a trip to Europe at this time of year.
She is a firm believer in signs.
For example, she never tries to buy French pastry in a shop labelled "Hardware."

She thinks it the best sort of luck to find pick-uppins in the street, especially if they are studded with diamonds.
Unlike most persons, she wouldn't dream of picking up a horsehoop, particularly if the latter were attached to the horse's foot.
She thinks a white horse lucky, if you've bet on him for the race.
She thinks misfortune will overcome any one wearing an opal if he or she doesn't keep up the payments on it.

EVERYWOMAN
Additional interest attaches to the forthcoming production of the world famous spectacle, "Everywoman," by Henry W. Savage because of great success the piece achieved in the Drury Lane Theatre, London, where it had a long run. Though that vast playhouse seats over four thousand people it was packed to the rafters at every performance until the play had to give way to another Christmas pantomime which under the King's patent is a fixture in this theatre. The pit and gallery lines during the run of "Everywoman" are said to have been the longest ever known there.

The peculiar nature of "Everywoman" as a dramatic offering is that it sincerely attempts to teach a lesson while providing amusement—serves to enliven with interest for many who do not usually seek diversion within the walls of a playhouse. The story of the play is the adventures of a young and beautiful woman who sets out from her home in quest of love. The search leads her into strange experiences. To her after her career 150 people are employed and a symphony orchestra and a trainload of scenery and electrical effects are transported from city to city.
It will be run at the Grand, Oct. 25th.

"A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS"
"Enchanting is one of the words to qualify "A Daughter of the Gods," the attraction booked at Grand Opera House for three days, Oct. 18, 19, 20. Massive in its magnificent, luxurious in its wealth of scenic investiture and costuming, this spectacle is the last word in motion picture classics. As fast as the eye is fed with the kaleidoscopic changes of locale and incidents "the spectator's brain reels with enthusiastic admiration and childish wonder," says one critic describing the story, which is filled with heart throbs human emotions and nerve-tasting conditions, all harmonized in an enduring spell of beauty.

"So far as feminine physical perfection is concerned," comments Mary Edith Muter, author of "The Rose Behind the Wall," "Annette in ver truth is a daughter of the gods, so perfect in form and blood composition, so instinctively graceful, that she fills the eye like an inspired dream of the Greek masters." The scenes in which she takes part, dream-stuff and golden poetry, one must carry every after for mental retrospection whenever the subject of motion pictures is suggested.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood-poisoning disease, and in order to cure it you must take it internally, and act directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quick medicine, but it was prescribed by one of the best physicians in the country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. REVIVAL OF FAITH NEEDED

Stirring Address By Major C. A. Williams In Zion Church

Calling for a religious revival to counteract whatever unknown evils might follow in the wake of the war, Major C. A. Williams of Montreal delivered a powerful address in Zion church Sunday morning, at a service attended by the Great War Veterans' association as well as a large congregation from all churches of the city. Major Williams had a word of praise for the Rev. G. A. Woodside, pastor of Zion church, while Canada he declared is the heritage of the returned soldiers, their land rather than ours.

Taking his text from the scriptures, words, "O, Lord, revive Thy work," the speaker went on to ask and to answer the timely and important question, do we need a revival? Many there were who looked with cold suspicion, if not with open hostility, upon anything savouring of excitement or emotionalism in the realm of religion, disregarding the fact that the necessity of revivals at certain times was one of the great truths of religion, one of the great facts of life.

Others, on the other hand, made revivals a fetish, never happy unless they lived in an atmosphere of sustained enthusiasm and excitement. Both of these classes, the speaker considered, were in the wrong. There was not a realm of human life to which the law and fact of revival did not pertain; the revival was an economic, natural, literary phenomenon as well as spiritual and religious through all the ages, sudden and powerful and powerful revivals had been one of the characteristics of the children of God, and the history of the Christian church was largely that of revivals.

To-day, certainly, more than ever before the world stood in need of a revival of faith and devotion. Christianity was larger in numbers, vastness in extent, truer in doctrine and more potent for uplift and enlightenment than ever before. The church was neither dead nor dying, and Christians had never more cause to smile at the scoffing of the unbeliever than to-day. "The Galilean has conquered," declared Major Williams, "and He shall conquer; the tide of time shall never His covenant remove. His name shall stand forever."

These facts notwithstanding, and without regarding the situation in a spirit of pessimism or alarmism, there was another side to the situation which demanded consideration, and which gave grave cause for anxiety. The decline in church membership, scarcity of students and teachers in the Sunday schools, the manifest growth of uncertainty and unrest, all these were patent evils, useless to deny and stupid to disregard. Things were not going as well as they might, the speaker emphasized; Christianity was losing ground rather than gaining it. Christianity was winning in the abstract, by winning in the concrete. And he declared the speaker, "unless by the grace of God a great wave of religious revival sweeps through the churches, we shall continue to wane."

From a spiritual revival, the speaker feared to see a religious reaction follow the termination of war, a reaction to be combated only by devotion greater than had been ours in the past, for unless man by the reinforcement of his soul becomes the master of himself, no one knew what the future might bring forward.

Graphically, compellingly, Major Williams conjured up before his hearers a mental spectacle of the devastation wrought by a few bombs dropped on London, and of the unspeakable ruin which might follow the development of aerial warfare. "There are no frontiers which can be guarded in the air," he declared. "The old safety of this seagirt continent of ours, far from the cockpit of Europe, is gone forever, no spot in the world is safe to-day, unless the world returns to God. Unless the world turns to God, I say, then every new development of science becomes but an instrument of devility, to the ultimate annihilation of humanity."

The march of civilization in the past was marked by the rising of gone nations which had fallen before the consuming flames of an outraged judgment, and to-day the one hope for the warring nations lay in a return of their peoples to the God of their fathers, a renewal of

RUFFY AND CAMERON BUT YOU NEEDN'T BE BRUTAL

It happened to be present one day in a friend's home when her husband flew out at her in a fit of irritability when she was offering to help him.

Naturally she shrank back like one who has been struck. She had only been trying to help. She had no more idea of offending than a child who offers a caress. And her face looked like a child's face when its carresses are refused.

Later the husband condescended to explain himself. "You made me nervous," he said. "I didn't want any help just then."

"But you usually want me to help you when you are going over the hills."

It Made Him Nervous. "Well, I didn't mean," he said with finality, "and it made me nervous. I can't tell you why it made me nervous, but it did."

And he retired behind his paper evidently feeling that he had justified himself.

A great many people have a similar idea. Someone does something which makes them nervous, not anything wrong, not anything which the person would have reason to know would offend them, perhaps something with really kindly intentions, as in this case. But for some reason it irritates them. Therefore, they must give free rein to that irritability. I think there are few quotations twisted out of their original sense more often than that. It is not only Scripture that the Devil can twist to serve his purpose.

Another Kind of Frying Sones. I think that road is just as often paved with the selfish cruelty of those who refuse to recognize good intentions.

Of course, if people with whom you live, constantly do, with good intention, little things which grate on you, it is better for domestic harmony that you tell them so, and give them a chance to utilize that good will in a useful channel.

But you don't need to be brutal about it.

One beautiful Sunday morning, Mamma Duck asked Ruffy Duck to hurry to the market for her and to get some worms as Mamma Yellow Hen and Fluffy Chick had come to spend the day.

Fluffy Chick wanted to go too, so Mamma Yellow Hen said she might, and the two little friends, started off.

"Now do be careful," warned Mamma Duck, "and hurry before the store closes."

The two promised and ran down the road.

They hadn't gone far when Fluffy Chick saw a bug and away she chased it over the fields. Ruffy Duck at her heels. They went so far from the road they were lost and when at last they found the market the store was closed and the keeper gone.

"What shall we do?" cried Fluffy Chick, for she knew Mamma Duck would be disappointed.

"Let's go back into that meadow and catch some bugs and take them home," suggested Ruffy Duck.

So across the meadow they went chasing the bugs and butterflies.

"There's a big one!" cried Fluffy Chick, "get it, over the rocks!" Ruffy Duck hopped on the rocks and reached for the bug, but his foot slipped and over he went with a terrible splash into a pond.

Fluffy Chick had never seen so large a pond before and she began calling for help, fearing Ruffy Duck would be drowned. She ran around the side of the rock and all she could see of Ruffy's neck, two yellow legs sticking up in the air. She gave a loud squawk and Ruffy's head popped out of the water and a nice juicy worm dangled from his mouth.

"Oh, Ruffy, I thought you'd drowned!" cried Fluffy.

"I should say not!" exclaimed Ruffy Duck, swallowing the worm.

"What, I can't see it, why mamma never brought us worms, two yellow worms are plentiful and see how perfectly lovely I can paddle! Better come on in," he coaxed, diving for another worm.

Fluffy hated the idea of getting her feet wet, but she hated to see her friend getting all the worms, so she made a run and jumped into the water. She tried to paddle like Ruffy, but her feet wouldn't work, and Ruffy had to pull Fluffy Chick out or she would have drowned.

Ruffy's pocket was full of worms, so he decided it was time to go home, and Fluffy Chick was very much frightened, slowly followed.

"My! but Mamma Yellow Hen set up a terrible cackle when she saw Fluffy Chick's wet clothes! But when Ruffy told her that Fluffy Chick had tried to swim, she certainly did laugh."

"I don't see why I can't swim, if Ruffy can!" wailed Fluffy Chick, who always liked to do whatever her little friend did.

"Cut, cut, cut!" laughed Mamma Yellow Hen. "Ruffy's toes are made with webs between them on purpose to paddle with, but yours and mine aren't. All ducks can swim."

"I never let Ruffy know he could swim for fear he'd be running away to the pond," said Mamma Duck.

"Never mind, Fluffy Chick," said Ruffy Duck, "if you can't swim, I can, and I'll carry you on my back," and they all had a feast on the lovely worms Ruff had brought home.

After that when Mamma Yellow Hen and Mamma Duck missed Fluffy Chick and Ruffy Duck they always knew where to find them. Mamma Yellow Hen never felt worried over Fluffy Chick, for she knew her little one was safe, even around the water, with Ruffy Duck, because he could swim.

If Little Stomach is Sour, Liver Torpid or Bowels Clogged

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, lives gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleanser" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grownups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

For Your Sons and My Sons

The noble work of the British Red Cross knows neither race, creed nor colour. Its "Quality of Mercy" is not strained.

But its financial burden has become more than the Motherland alone can bear. That is why October 18th has been set aside as a day to receive generous offerings to enable the British Red Cross to "carry on."

Sons and Daughters of the Empire, wherever they may be, are once again urged to give generously to this cause.

And it is most earnestly hoped that, as was the case last year, the contributions from Ontario will set a standard in generosity that will be a pattern to the World.

LADY'S SKIRT By Anabel Worthington.

The woman who is inclined to stoutness will appreciate the merits of this plain two gored skirt. The advantage of the flat, invisible pockets is apparent, for they are a great convenience, but they do not add bulk to the figure. The front gore is cut in a double curve from the waist line to the side seam, making an attractive line, which breaks the width across the front. The back gore is gathered at the waist line and a narrow belt goes from seam to seam. Serge, gabardine, wool poplin or shepherd check will be suitable for this skirt.

The skirt pattern, No. 8463, is cut in sizes 24 to 32 inches waist measure. Width at lower edge of skirt 2 1/2 yards. The 24 inch size requires 3 yards 36 inch material.

To obtain this pattern, send to the office of this publication.
