A Life's Lesson.

They have broken your heart, I know. And your life is a blank. Are things of the long ago? Childish troubles will soon pass. These little girls, don't cry! These little girls, don't cry! They have broken your heart, I know. And your life is a blank. Are things of the long ago? Childish troubles will soon pass. These little girls, don't cry! These little girls, don't cry!

The Better Man.

There was a supercilious air about the man as he passed that irritated Albert Kemp almost to the point of blows. 'Hello, Nell!' he said, pausing in the front of the girl and completely ignoring her companion. 'Sorry you are already engaged tonight. You won't forget—7 o'clock and we'll have dinner and then slip across to the theatre. I won't forget,' murmured the girl.

Richard Kerr passed on, as though he hadn't a care to ruffle his soul. Kemp turned to the girl with anger flaming in his commonplace face. 'I can't stand that fellow; what is he to you, Nell? Why can't he leave you alone? I won't have him coming between us with his fine airs and ways!'

'Oh, and who said you wouldn't, Albert Kemp, I should like to know!' replied the girl with spirit. 'If you want to remain friends with me, you will let my friends alone. Time enough for you to talk like that when I've promised to be yours, not before. If you're going to be jealous and make a fool of yourself, I'm going home. I'm not going to have my evening spoiled. You'd better think of it over before we go any farther.'

'I'm sorry, Nell,' he said contritely, but I do hate to see that fellow hang about after you. It's because I think so much of you, I suppose. Come on, jump on this bus and we'll go to a theatre.'

When Nell Withers put her head on the pillow that night she gave herself to thinking about her widely different admirers. And yet her triumph, such as feminine nature caused her pain as she tossed and turned in her excitement, she could not forget the look of anguish that showed in Albert Kemp's eyes whenever Kerr's name was mentioned. And there was another thing: Kerr battered her, spent money—a great deal of money—on her, bought her presents, yet never gave her any indication that he looked upon her in the same way that Kemp did—as a future wife.

War! The flaunting, scarlet placards, carried by screaming newboys, filled the streets. The dreadful hour so long threatened had come. Yes, they came, a mighty host of volunteers, and among them were the clerk, Albert Kemp, and the dandy, Richard Kerr.

They had each told Nell Withers in their vastly different ways. Kemp, his eyes blazing, and his commonplace face red with the strain of his emotion, had told her that he wasn't going to let anyone say he was afraid of a bit of lead; the boss had promised to keep his job open, and he was off.

Both had written her a farewell letter and they were gone. In six weeks they had both been drafted into a famous regiment of the line engaged on the French front, stained with a week's growth on their chins, too sleek-headed and campaign-grimed. Both were lean, brown warriors.

But they were still the clerk and the dandy. No amount of mire could level them. Even the fact of fighting side by side had not bridged the gulf between them.

Building a yawn, he peered off his shabby jacket, and put his hands on his hips. The Tommies hurriedly made rough ring, joy beaming on their faces. At the end of the night the clerk said, walking across and holding out his hand: 'I reckon it's on to me to apologise.'

The ex-dandy lounged, shook the offered hand heartily, there was a politeness in his voice that not only smoothed down the other's anger, but gave both tools for not getting this over before, he said. 'Now perhaps we can be friends.'

'You bet!' said Kemp heartily. In front of the two men, hiding in the ditch, the darkness was riven with ceaseless blazing, proceeded by plugging of rifle shots. Both men were lying flat on their stomachs and death was hovering over them and all around them.

'I've got about twelve more bullets left, Dick,' came the low voice of Kemp. 'After that I reckon 't'll be good-by, my dear.'

'Ah,' granted Kerr like a man gratified as what might have been a dying man's yell of pain, floated back to them. 'It will be good-by every body, I'm thinking, old chap.'

'I've got something on my mind, Dick, and I want to get it off.' 'Fire away, sonny.'

'It's about Nell, Dick.' He could see Kerr rise a trifle on his side and look across at him. 'I thought we'd settled all that.'

'But we haven't—at all! I haven't, Dick. I want to tell you this; I used to think you were just a dressed up top—one of those fools that hasn't anything better to do than spending money and making girls fond of them when they mean nothing themselves. I used to hate you for hanging around Nell, I used to say to her, 'Why can't she get a girl of your own class? See, I was fond of her, Dick; if I hadn't come out here to have a go with these Germans I'd have asked her to marry me, and changed it, I used to reckon I was the best man of us two, though I was only a clerk. But I know now I'm out.'

'Old chap, you mustn't talk like that. What you said I was, only worse. I've been a waster all my life. I only came out here because I'd become sick of my own life. And look here, we mustn't say die, yet, you know, he added, his tone brightening. 'I guess there's just a reasonable chance of one of us getting away if the other draws the lot. Look here, I'll slip out to the right there and run as hard as I can, shooting all the time. It's dark as pitch and they might think I was a small troop if I kept firing. Anyways—'

'Yes,' said Kemp. 'There's a certainty of your being killed, so that I can get away. D'ye think I'm the sort that would take it, do you?'

'That's the photograph of the faces you see or I will ever see! We'll get it enlarged and hang it in the parlor.' And they did.

How to Cure Rheumatism. THE DISEASE IS IN THE BLOOD AND MUST BE TREATED THROUGH THE BLOOD.

There are almost as many ways of treating rheumatism as there are doctors. Most of these treatments are directed at the symptoms and are considered successful if they relieve the pain and the stiffness.

The patient has been exposed to dampness. This shows that the poison was not driven from the system by the treatment employed. Rheumatism can be relieved in a number of ways, but there is only one way to cure it, and that is through the blood, expelling the poisonous acid that causes the aches, and pains and stiffness.

To renew and enrich the blood there is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which go right to the root of the trouble and cure rheumatism to stay cured. The following is an example of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can do in cases of this kind.

Mr. Henry Smith, St. Jerome, Que., says:—'For upwards of a year I was a victim of rheumatism in a most painful form. The trouble was located in my legs and for a long time was so bad that I could not walk. The suffering which I endured can only be imagined by those who have been similarly afflicted. Doctors treatment did not help me and then I began trying other remedies but with no better results. Finally I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I had begun to lose faith in medicine, I finally decided to give the pills a trial. I am very grateful now that I did so, for after taking eight boxes of the pills I can walk as well as ever I did in my life. I have since taken the pills occasionally as a precautionary measure and cannot speak too highly in their favor.'

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Power to Keep Your Mouth Shut. Tell this story to your son.

'A rich old man lost a pocket-book stuffed with money. Somebody had taken it from his overcoat pocket. He was upbraiding himself for leaving it there, madder at the unknown person who got the money. He was mad especially because he knew that it must have been taken by one of a half dozen friends.'

But he was as wise as he was mad, for he kept his mouth shut. He didn't tell his wife, he didn't tell his kids, he didn't tell his friends, he didn't tell any human being that he had lost any money. He just kept quiet and waited. Six months passed, a year passed; two years passed. And this man found that it pays to keep your mouth shut.

A Successful Canadian Girl.

Toronto 'Saturday Night' of Oct. 2nd published the following together with a photo of the successful young writer:

'My girl will be interested in the success of one of their graduates, Miss Mary Susanna Edger, of Sarnia, Ontario, a daughter of Mr. J. Edgar, M. P. Her story is that of a drama contest in the Panama-Pacific Exposition, which called for a play setting forth the work of some women's organization, or the development of thought and effort among the women of America. Miss Edger who was then taking a course at the New York W. C. A. Training School, sent a poetic drama called 'The Wayside Piper,' with four songs and dances, and a final hymn to the music of Beethoven's 'Hymn of Praise.' The play by this aspiring young Canadian not only won the first prize in a competition of four hundred, but has been most successfully produced as the Commencement Play at the Training School, New York, also at the Silver Bay Conference and Bar Harbor during the summer. The judges were the editors of the 'Century Magazine,' 'Ryebody's,' 'Women's Home Companion,' and Miss Helen Thomas of the National Y. W. C. A. Board. The prize was given by several women writers—among them Kate Douglas Wiggin.

The 'Piper' recalls the magic player of Hamelin traditions, and is introduced, in this latest adaptation of the old story, as solving the 'girl' problem with his music. Guided by the Spirit of the Twentieth Century, he goes forth from the gathering of the counselors to accomplish his happy mission of making the hearts of girls attune to his notes of Faith, Hope and Love. These three graces come in turn to breathe into the piper's flute the magic of their spirit.

Here is Love's message: 'O music-maker I am known as Love; My home is everywhere, I set my feet Within the stony pathway of the sky, In quiet places where the wild birds dwell, In the heart of man, I wait to dawn And kindle fires along the sunset sky; I blossom in the rose and nightly fold My tender arms about the universe, I wake the smile that creeps on baby lips.'

I wake the thrill that comes in youth's glad hour, I wake the song that everywhere finds its birth For I am Love, and Love is Life's great power. No pipet, to my lips I place your flute And give your music something of myself. Now fare you forth along the world's highway And waken there the symphony of Love.'

[THE ACADIAN is glad to give space to the above article. Miss Edger is a niece of Mrs. Oscar Chase, of Church Street.—Ed.]

Wolfville People Praise Simple Mixture. Many in Wolfville praise the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-Lika. This remedy is the most THOROUGH bowel cleanser ever sold being even used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. Adler-Lika cannot grip and the INSTANT action is surprising.—A. V. Rand.

One kind of a hypocrite is a man who pretends to be busy when he isn't. A mere change of one vowel forms a vocation into a vocation. Da we deserve the good opinion of those who think well of us? The less brains a man has the easier it is for him to lose his head.

That's all the story but it is a pretty important story. It proves one of the most important things in the world is self-control. And one form of self-control is to avoid resembling a bottle of soda water with the cork out. Most of us might be called human gas tanks. Everything we know and we tell everybody else. The world is full of silly people, highly indignant that somebody has not kept a secret which they themselves were unable to keep. The power of silence is considerable.

Anyway, when a man accuses his wife of having married him for his money, he pays a tribute to her good sense. The word 'Blaw' does not mean drunk looked at the photograph in noble lineage.

Alcohol Greatest Shortener of Life.

How the use of alcohol shortens life was one of the interesting features of the discussion recently before the Association of Life Insurance Presidents at the Hotel Astor, New York. Mr. Arthur Haeter, chairman of a committee which studied the cases of 2,000,000 policy holders in an investigation for forty-three life insurance companies into the causes of premature deaths said that alcohol played a leading role in hastening death. He referred to a report that the Russian Government, and then said: 'If the Government of Russia carries out its present intention to abolish all forms of alcoholic beverage permanently the saving of human life will be enormous. It is not too much to say that the loss of 3,000,000 men as the result of the present war could be made good in less than ten years through complete abstinence from alcoholic beverages by all the inhabitants of Russia.'

LIQUOR BUSINESS PERILOUS TOO. There is a general impression that saloon keepers do not live as long as persons in non-hazardous occupations, but it is not generally known that most classes which are connected with either the manufacture or sale of liquor have a high mortality. The hotel proprietors who attended the bar either occasionally or regularly had as high a mortality as the saloon keepers, i.e., the lifetime was reduced about six years on the average on account of their occupation. In the fourteen subdivisions of the trades connected with the manufacture or sale of alcohol there was only one class which had a normal mortality, and that was the distillery proprietors.

'Among the men who admitted that they had taken alcohol occasionally to excess in the past, but whose habits were considered satisfactory when they were issued, there were 259 deaths, while there would have been only 195 deaths had this group been made up of insured lives in general. The extra mortality was, therefore, over 30 per cent., which was equivalent to a reduction in the average life of these men of over four years.—New York "Sun".'

Through an inadvertence last week no mention was made of the important part taken in the recognition service in the Baptist church by Rev. Dr. Manning, who gave an excellent address to the new pastor on behalf of the church.

Booker T. Washington, foremost teacher and leader of the negro race, died at his home in Turkege, Alabama, on Sunday last. Dr. Washington was the founder and president of the Turkege Institute. He visited Halifax a few months ago.

On another page of this issue will be found the program of the fifth annual entertainment of the Wolfville Boy Scouts, to be held in the Opera House on Friday, Nov. 26th.

The boys will be selling tickets early next week and we bespeak a liberal patronage of them. Let every one buy at least one ticket. If they can go they are assured of a good time, and if they cannot go they will have the satisfaction of helping a good cause.

Opera House Announcement Extraordinary.

Owing to urgent requests of a large number of our patrons we have succeeded in securing for one night per week a "Pathe News Sheet."

Absolutely nothing pro-German will appear in this film and many of the views are taken direct at the front in France, Belgium and other war zones.

In order to secure this weekly news we have been obliged to take on another film service and the entire program for this one night per week is one of the most expensive we have yet booked, but notwithstanding this fact the price of admission will be kept the same as on our regular Monday night feature, viz., 15c.

This service will commence early in December, probably on the first Friday and will consist of a "Pathe Weekly," a two reel installment of "The New Adventures of Get Rich Quick Wallingford" and a "Pathe Split Reel,"—one hall an "Animated Cartoon," the other hall a colored "Scene or Educational."

Next week, on Thursday evening, Mons. G. Marcel Andre, of Paris, France, will give his illustrated war lecture on "The Firing Line."

Actual scenes at the front, including Canadian troops in action.

It is expected that special music will be provided and the entire net receipts will be for the benefit of the Red Cross.

On Monday next (regular feature night) "Hazel Dawn" who made such a success here in "Niobe" will appear in a Paramount Feature entitled "Clarissa" adapted from the well known story or novel "Cambria Advocate."

Just the Right Present.

Don't take chances in the matter of Christmas presents. You don't want yours, like so many others, to be received with indifference or worse, and ten days after Christmas to be cast aside and forgotten.

You take no such chance in giving The Youth's Companion for a year. Did you ever know of a home in which it was not conspicuous on the library table or in some one's hands all through the year?

It is worth while to make a gift of that sort, and it is worth while to receive it too, for The Companion illustrates the best traits in American and Canadian life in its stories and sketches, upholds the best standards in its articles and other contributions, and combines the practical and informing with the entertaining and blood stirring.

If you do not know The Companion as it is to-day, let us send you one or two current issues free, that you may thoroughly test the paper's quality. We will send also the Forecast for 1916.

Every new subscriber who sends $2.25 for the fifty two weekly issues of 1916 will receive free all the issues for the rest of 1915 and The Companion Home Calendar for 1916.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION.

Boston, Mass.
Messrs. Aubrey Spencer and Wilbert Rogers, of Wolfville, went into the woods near Long Lake, Dalhousie, on Tuesday morning, November 9th, for a few days' hunting, with Mr. Samuel Switt as guide. They did not have to hunt long for game, for on the afternoon of the same day they were successful in capturing a fine three-year-old moose. Messrs. Spencer and Rogers returned to Wolfville on Friday, delighted with their short hunting trip.—Bridgetown Monitor.

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system.
To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's great blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and rebuild your strength.
Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

With the 40th Battalion.

Sunday, Oct. 31 '15.
Bramshott Camp, England.

After waiting in Valenciennes for over six weeks for word to prepare for embarkment orders were received at noon on Sunday, Oct. 17th, for tents to be struck and preparations made at once for an immediate start. We had all been anxiously waiting for this order for some time and it wasn't long before everything was done.

We had had so many disappointments that we were not surprised to be told shortly after that we could not leave till morning. As the tents were all struck but a couple of marines we all set out after supper to find dry wood for fire. In that one night at Valenciennes we made ourselves better known than in all the previous months. We carried away all the cook house tables, shower baths and loose wood about camp and made a number of roaring big fires. About 9:30, becoming hungry we raided the restaurant and had a feed. Revellie found us all peacefully huddled up around our fires cracking jokes and smoking. At 6:30 we ate a hearty breakfast of bully beef and hard tack and got into our harness ready for the start.

Left camp about seven for the railway by way of our parade ground upon which the other regiments in the camp, those with whom we had spent many a happy day, had lined up and gave us a hearty send off. Opinions were divided as to whether we should sail from Quebec or from Halifax and the majority were a little disappointed when the cars were shunted into the dock at Quebec and we embarked in H. M. T. "Saxonia." There were about 3,000 of us aboard altogether; beside the 40th were the 1st (French) Regiment from Quebec, which has also been in camp at Valenciennes; No. 2 Army Medical Corps; a detachment of the 34th Fort Garry Horse (Winnipeg); and a detachment of Royal Canadian Rifles (Halifax) both going over as reinforcements; also a large cargo of ammunition and rifles. Perhaps we were not packed in! Saxonia had nothing on us. Our leaving had been kept so quiet that we had very few to bid us farewell but those that were on the dock showed their appreciation of what we are giving up. The ship pulled away from the dock amidst the strains of "Oh Canada" by the band and a shower of tobacco and papers from the wharf returned by a shower of hat and shoulder badges from us. We steamed down the St. Lawrence till about dark when we anchored till some time during the night, and then proceeded on our way. We were all on deck a daylight to see the fast retreating shores of old Canada in the distance. We met fog almost all the way.

On Monday after being compelled to travel very slowly all the day and night preceding on account of our escort not being in sight, we laid to anchor and waited. At about one o'clock the next morning, as I was coming out of the hold where I had been on guard, I had my first introduction to a member of the English navy. She was just coming alongside, a little bit of a long, low, grey torpedo boat destroyer. It looked like a little toy beside the big transport, but when it began circling around us at top speed with the water flying all over her she had a look that made us take notice. I don't wonder the German submarines would rather stay at a distance.

At 5:30 when the boys turned out we were in a heavy sea with our propellers out of the water every time she pitched and Plymouth Sound coming into view over our bows. It wasn't long before we were in the smoother water of the Sound and had a flotilla of destroyers around us. We steamed on up a ways and anchored; meeting on the way a minesweeper, torpedo boat and submarine. No, it wasn't a German.

The fog came down upon us as thick as a mat as we anchored; and, as there was nothing to see, we breakfasted. Am afraid we said farewell to the mess-room aboard the "Saxonia" in a somewhat similar manner to our leaving Valenciennes. One of our fellows had a front tooth extracted by a flying tin mug; that was only the start. About ten o'clock three ferry boats came alongside and we proceeded to transfer ourselves aboard them, amidst the pouring rain which started to fall. I might say here that it rained part of every day but two of the trip. Nevertheless it takes more than rain water to dampen the spirits of the 40th. We landed at Plymouth dock at about 11:30 and were at once loaded into trains. English trains are certainly a joke in a sea and appearance, but they certainly buzz along. The scenery along the route was very pretty; the little stone, tile or thatched houses placed in amongst the green fields, divided by neatly trimmed hedges and narrow lanes, looked like a fairy land to us. Every little bit of land is cultivated and everything is neat and orderly and we didn't notice a scrap of paper or misplaced stone in the whole trip. Nova Scotian farmers can certainly learn a great deal about keeping their places neat from our English cousins. Another notable fact was the lack of the large, well repaired barn beside the little, tumbled down house. They do not appear to have any barns over here; perhaps that is why they keep their houses so well repaired. We stopped at only a few of the larger towns, and we were all out on the platform advertising our native land.

The people were very good to us, and everything in the line of papers, fruits, sweets or smokes which they happened to have about them at the time was ours. We arrived at a large town called Exeter at about three in the afternoon and were met at the station by a number of ladies who filled our water-bottles with piping hot tea, and gave us each a paper bag containing a ham sandwich and a apple. Also a card bearing the following—"From the Mayores of Exeter and committee, wishing you good luck." Perhaps we didn't appreciate it!—was the first we had had to eat since an early breakfast. After a roundabout trip, during which we passed through Salisbury and Portsmouth, we arrived at a small village called L'hopoot at 9:30 in the evening.

What was our surprise to be met on leaving the train by our draft company which left Valenciennes about two weeks ahead of us, and which we thought was at Shorecliffe. We marched about two miles through the country and were at the end of our journey—Bramshott Camp.

We are now situated in our new quarters, large wooden huts lined with asbestos and holding about forty men and a small stove and are very comfortable. We have nice wash houses fitted with hot water showers and convenient quarters for washing clothes. Bramshott is about eight miles from Aldershot and forty-two miles from London, and we can get there and back for three and six, the equivalent of eight-hundred cents in Canadian money. It is my job to be sure we all plan to see the big city. Here is quarters for about 25,000 men and that many freshmen left for France just before our arrival. There are now about 10,000 Canadians here, including ourselves and draft company, the 41st, 44th and 46th battalions, the 8th and 12th Mounted Rifles, also some other mentioned are from Quebec and the far West. Our drill ground is very small compared with the vast plateau of Valenciennes and instead of continuous sand and dust we see hedges and groves of trees. Within a few miles of camp are a number of small villages, and I guess probably we will be able to find plenty to amuse ourselves. Another thing which seems strange is lack of kept in tall lankness both in camp and in the surrounding villages, the idea being to hide our location from German air raids. We are all in excellent health and looking forward to a pleasant winter.

Greenwich Notes.

Mrs. Ernest Johnson recently returned from a visit to friends in Bridgetown.

Mrs. W. H. Bishop returned on Monday from the Victoria General Hospital where she went for treatment some three weeks ago.

Mr. Lorve Pusley is working at the cellar of the new house 365, purveyors building next to Mr. Edward Manning.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Stevens arrived last week from Washington, D. C., and are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Forsyth. Mrs. Stevens was formerly Miss Minnie Forsyth.

Mr. Lewis Forsyth's son, Harlan, has returned from the West, where he was among the harvesters in Saskatchewan.

The young men of Greenwich who have enlisted are: Messrs. Eric and Cyril D'Almaise, John Brown, John Fenwick, Charlie Clowry, Henry Manning. Of these the D'Almaises are in Belgium, Brown and Fenwick in France, and the others in training.

Greenwich is doing its little part for the soldiers at the front. Not only have we not turned away empty handed those who have solicited us for funds; but our women, who have met one afternoon and one evening of each week as an auxiliary circle of the Wolfville Red Cross Society, have knit 145 pairs of socks, made more than 100 yds. of cotton into bandages, beside doing considerable sewing on hospital outfits.

Mrs. Andrew's many friends will be pleased to learn that she has been "making good" at the Talitha Cumi Hospital where she went for a nine months' course in Ostritric. She made such a high standing in her final examination that she was the recipient of many congratulations from her superior nurses. She has now been asked to remain in the hospital for another 3 months as an assistant to the head nurses, which alone speaks of the high regard in which she is held. We do not know whether she has decided to remain or not but assure her of a warm welcome when she returns to our midst.

One Woman's Work for Canadian Soldiers.

MRS. RACHEL DEWOLFE ARCHIBALD, OF WOLFVILLE, TREATS 1000 WOUNDED BOYS AT LE TREPURT.

The basement of Mrs. Archibald's residence on Central avenue presented a busy and interesting scene last week when her gift of more than 400 jars of preserves, jams, syrups and pickles, prepared by Mrs. Archibald since last August, for the patients of the Canadian Hospital at Le Trepurt, were being packed into their attractive travelling quarters.

The packing boxes, made by Mr. Wright, were designed by Mrs. Archibald. On the outside they are bound with iron, reinforced where the handles join, and the covers were screwed on. Inside, they were formed into apartments lined with corrugated paper, and each jar, labelled and wrapped in tissue paper and waxed paper, was placed in its own little apartment, after which saw-dust was used to fill all crevices, so that the jars were wedged firmly in place.

Miss Archibald pasted the labels. Mr. Mills did the packing; young ladies from the Seminary tucked in little notes that were to let each sick boy know he had good friends at home who wanted him to be well and strong again. Mr. Joseph Bishop screwed the covers on the filled boxes and Mr. Edson Graham painted the lettering by hand. The finished boxes were most attractive.

The addresses read: Capt. Blaylock, Canadian Red Cross Com. for France, Boulogne, France; for No. 3 Canadian General Hospital, Le Trepurt, care of Miss Annie Strong, P. A. M. C. Asst. And, through the courtesy of R. d. Cross, the boxes received the freedom of travel both by rail and ocean.

When the fruit began ripening in August Mrs. Archibald began work. She gathered raspberries, blackberries, cherries, currants, grapes, pears, plums and apples, often taking the fruit the harvesters left in the orchards as a waste. In some cases fruit was presented her, and many friends, knowing the work she was engaged in, sent her help in the form of sugar and jars; the boxes were also given. But each berry and fruit received her own personal attention until it became a unit in the jar of delectable food, ready to tempt the palate of some wounded and hopefully weary Canadian boy.

The long table, filled with jars and bottles filled with preserves and syrups, jams and jellies, put up by a connoisseur's skill, and designed for such a purpose, was worth counting a day's take to see. Here were plums in their purple jelly, canned peaches and plums, preserved raspberries and peaches, spiced plums, spiced jam, pear and ginger marmalade, currant and raspberry jelly, apple jelly, pickles of all kinds that invalids may taste, and lastly, bottles and bottles full of syrup—raspberry, blackberry, currant and grape.

I have tried to have such an amount," explained Mrs. Archibald, "that each of our two boys at Le Trepurt may have at least a taste of homemade syrup or preserves in some form.

The gift was designed by Mrs. Archibald in response to a request sent her by her son, Leon, now serving with the Royal Engineers, who wrote her of the need of the sick boys for a little bit of something home-made from the mothers' pantries, saying it would be more helpful to them than any medicine.

One boxful of the fruit was sent as a personal gift to Miss Strong and her staff of the hospital. The second shipment Mrs. Archibald has made to Le Trepurt since May, and she expects to make another before the end of the year.

Wedding.

A fashionable wedding took place at Brookfield, Colchester county, on Wednesday evening last week when Rev. A. W. Brown, B. A., was united in marriage to Ruby G. Lockhart, only daughter of Frederick Lockhart, of that place. The ceremony took place in the Baptist church, and was performed by Rev. J. W. Brown Ph. D., father of the groom. Rev. Rob. M. Brown, brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Winifred Lockhart, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. The church was packed with relatives and friends. A reception was held at the home of the bride. The presents were numerous and valuable.

The bride was dressed in Duchess white silk with silver trimming, and shadow lace, a court train and a conventional veil with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses, maid-hair fern and lilies of the valley. Her travelling suit was of navy blue broadcloth, with Juliette hat. The ushers were Max Brown and Percy Lockhart. The groom's gift was a piano.

The happy couple took the night express for Truro followed by the well wishes of a host of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are expected in Wolfville the 18th, to visit Dr. and Mrs. Brown.

A LIFETIME OF SICKNESS

Worn Out, Thin and Miserable Until She Took "Fruit-a-tives"

PALESTINE, June 20th, 1914.
 "Stomach Trouble and Distressing Headaches nearly drove me wild. Some time ago, I got a box of 'Fruit-a-tives,' your famous fruit medicine, and they completely relieved me. To-day I am feeling fine and a physician, meeting me on the street, asked the reason for my improved appearance. I said, 'I am taking Fruit-a-tives.' He said, 'If Fruit-a-tives make you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can.'"

Day by Day.

Live day by day.
 I heard a voice at evening softly say:
 Best not thy yesterday into tomorrow;
 Nor load this week with last week's load of sorrow.
 Lift all thy burdens as they come, nor try
 To weight the present with the bygone and by.

One step and then another take thy way—
 Live day by day.

Live day by day.
 Though autumn leaves are withering round thy way,
 Walk in the sunshine, it is all for thee,
 Push straight ahead, as long as thou canst see.

Dread not the winter whither thou mayest go;
 But, when it comes, be thankful for the snow.
 Onward and upward. Look and smile and pray—
 Live day by day.

—Atlantic Monthly.

The office of an Ontario paper—the Acton Free Press—was attacked recently, the plate glass front being destroyed by a fusillade of empty liquor bottles. The Free Press has steadily and courageously fought the liquor trade, and in the local opinion contest, the victory for temperance was due in a large measure to the influence of the paper. The editor is, therefore, well hated by the liquor men, who vent their hate in the destruction of his property. In Dallas, Texas, on August the home of Dr. J. B. Gamble, editor of the Baptist Standard, was burned. He is a vigorous, outspoken opponent of the liquor traffic. Recently a man, not now in the state, confessed that he was paid $500 by the liquor traffic men to fire Dr. Gamble's house. They are the same conscienceless, vindictive, criminal gang, whether in Canada or the United States, or anywhere in the world.

WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cape Wolfe, Canada.—"Last March I was a complete wreck. I had given up all hope of getting better or living any length of time, as I was such a sufferer from female troubles. But I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am in good health and have a pair of twin boys two months old and growing finely. I surprised doctors and neighbors for they all know what a wreck I was."

"Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health."—Mrs. J. T. Cook, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P. E. I., Canada.

Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

FAMOUS ACTRESS' SON AND HUSBAND AT WAR

Mrs. Patrick Campbell (Mrs. George Cornwallis-West) thinks the hardest part of war falls upon women, because they have to do the waiting—always with anxiety haunting them. "It is all very well to insist that we are a nation of stoics and to go about our business and our amusements just as though there was no war. I say, it is all very well to talk that way, and no doubt there is a good deal of bravado in taking such an attitude, but for myself I can find no part in the life of London in the strange conditions in which I should be compelled to remain. I am proud to know that my husband and my son are doing their duty as soldiers, but I would like to be doing something myself."

way, and no doubt there is a good deal of bravado in taking such an attitude, but for myself I can find no part in the life of London in the strange conditions in which I should be compelled to remain. THE START OF THE QUARREL

Remarkable Snapshot Shows King Edward and Kaiser in Angry Mood

"I call the picture 'The Beginning of the War.'" is how Sir Herbert Tree describes a remarkable photograph which he possesses illustrating a quarrel between the late King Edward and the Kaiser Wilhelm several years ago. The origin of the quarrel is not divulged, but Mr. Bassett, the London correspondent of the Petit Parisien, relates how he first saw this snapshot, "taken five or six years ago, when King Edward VII, irritated by certain underhand tricks on the part of his nephew, found it necessary to tell Wilhelm II. what he thought of him fairly sharply. The indiscreet photograph shows the end of the scene. The two sovereigns had been talking in a corner of the garden, and after a discussion, which seems to have been very heated, King Edward has turned brusquely away, called his dogs to heel, and, obviously displeased has refused to hear another word. The Kaiser, looking thoroughly ashamed of himself is trying to detain him, his hands outstretched in supplication. . . . I have never seen such a striking and prophetic picture."

Sir Herbert Tree got the photograph in Homburg in 1909 from a certain prominent person who witnessed the royal quarrel. It may well be that that quarrel sowed the seeds of the Kaiser's anger that has attained such monstrous growth since the war began.

Dogs and Spies

A French officer, wounded in the fighting near Apremont, stated that at the beginning of the war a number of pet dogs who had belonged to "visitors" got left behind. The unhappy animals were cared for by the inhabitants, or by the French troops occupying the villages. But presently it was noticed that these dogs one by one disappeared, and their disappearance was speedily followed by "regrettable incidents."

In consequence there was a dog hunt and several which were shot as they trotted down the frontier roads were found to bear messages from spies amongst the French inhabitants.

HAVOC OF "COAL BOXES"

Superhuman Courage Needed to Face These Great Exploding Shells

Gunner Charles O'Brien, 56th Battery, R.F.A., who was wounded in the leg at Ypres, and is now in hospital at Southsea, tells of the terrible experience under fire from the German heavy guns. In a letter to his brother, Gunner O'Brien, who is only eight-and-a-half years of age, writes:

"We went into action at Ypres from behind a small forest, as we thought, unobserved. We had been there only half an hour when the sausages found us with their shrapnel. I tell you it was horrible. We couldn't stir an inch without their seeing us, and then they sent over six shells at a time."

"On our third day in this position we found the German guns and put to them. Of course, we fell on top of that we were all right after all. Well, we lived in a fool's paradise until the seventh day, when all of a sudden we heard a sound like a motor car coming up a steep hill. We knew that it was, and everybody promptly dashed for the gun pits, and then they arrived, four of 'em—heavy coal boxes."

"Even the sound of a coal box bursting 300 yards away simply terrified you, while at 100 yards the explosion is absolutely deafening. Well, these four burst about 20 yards behind the battery! We all trembled. Twenty seconds later another four shells burst five yards in front of the battery. There were three of us in our gun pit, and the shock threw us off our feet. The man who fell on top of us got hit in the head. He was the first to go. Then the Hans burst four more on us, and three of our guns were smashed, two men killed and about fourteen wounded. They kept us in mark like that for about twenty minutes and then went off to another unfortunate battery."

"When we ventured out we found the dead and wounded all over the place. One poor chap had one of his legs blown about three yards away while the call of his other leg was blown about ten yards away. I was struck later in the leg. It is a rash wound above the knee, and I hope it will be healed in about six weeks."

THE DUKE'S MESSAGE

"I would bid the people of Canada to be of good cheer. This is a time for courage and confident belief that the resources of the Dominion are equal to every stress which we may be called upon to meet. The present struggle has dislocated industry throughout the world, but it has also given great opportunities. The people of Canada should avail themselves of these. A better and wider market for food products is certain for some time to come at good prices, and Canada should increase as much as possible the area of cultivation, in order to profit thereby. This must necessarily tend to give an impetus to agriculture, the great basic industry of the country which will not only maintain, but strengthen our resources. Again, the Dominion can undertake the manufacture of many articles not hitherto made in Canada and thus do much to supply employment for those artisans and laborers who are temporarily out of work owing to the changes brought about by the war."

HERH Duke of Connaught.

Fate Refused Sacrifice
 Lieutenant Pottinger and his section of Royal Engineers were attempting to blow up a bridge under fire. They laid the charge, and the section retired. The lieutenant and the sapper remained behind to light the fuse, but the charge, for some reason, did not explode.

The sapper fired ten rounds of ammunition at the charge—all without success. Then Lieutenant Pottinger said, "I'll make the thing go off!"

He shook hands with the sapper, after which he stepped towards the bridge. When on the bridge, he put the muzzle of his revolver into the charge and fired all six cartridges.

Even then the charge did not go off, and the men had to flee, leaving the bridge intact. Had the charge gone off, the young lieutenant would have been blown to atoms, while the Germans would have been robbed of an easy crossing.

MAKING A WILL

Making a will is a simple thing to do but, like most simple things, it should be done properly to safeguard the important matters of the future. In Toronto the danger of using a printed form in making a will was illustrated in a case in which Mr. Justice Middleton declared an intestacy. He had been asked to interpret what purported to be the will of a deceased lady. The will was made on what apparently was an adaptation of a Scotch will form. "In the case in hand it may be that the testatrix intended to give everything to her mother," remarked Mr. Justice Middleton, "but she has not said so." In the bank where the name of the beneficiary and the property to be conveyed should be placed, all that was written was "Everything I have, clothes, money, etc." No name which appeared in the will, besides the signature of the testatrix, was the deceased woman's mother, who was named as executrix. Judge Middleton held that there was an intestacy as to the estate.

THE "MOVIE" BUSINESS

How the Financial End is Managed—Big "ums Change Hands

The cost of producing a moving picture feature may be anything from $10,000 to $50,000. The picture is sold to the Exchange men, for various sums ranging from $5,000 per foot and upwards to 10c or 15c per foot. Of course, these prices are realized several times over. For instance, the rights are sold to one man in one State of the American Union and to another in another; to one man in the East of Canada, and to another in the West.

Then the "movie" houses buy from the exchanges. The house which buys the first run in a big city like Toronto has to pay a big price, as much as $100 a day for a production of unusual interest. After a first run, a second run in a big city is generally considered a good purchase, as the first run has added greatly to the advertising of the feature. A second run of a picture for which $100 a day has been paid for the first run would fetch $150 for three days, a third run $75, or perhaps less, for three days. Then the production falls to the smaller houses at $10 to $15 a day in the city. Out-of-town runs are usually paid according to the capacity of the house, or they are sometimes played on a percentage basis.
