PILES CURED

Writing from Poplar, B.C., Mrs. C. Hanson, proprietress of the Commercial Hotel, says: "I suffered for years with bleeding piles. The pain was so bad at times that I could hardly walk, and ordinary remedies seemed utterly unable to give me any ease. Finally I decided to undergo an operation, and went to the Sacred Heart Hospital in Spokane. There they performed an operation. For a time I was certainly better, but within twelve months the piles became as painful as ever. I tried liniments, hot poultices, various 'poultices,' and indeed everything I could think would be likely to do any good, but still I continued to suffer, and the shooting, burning, stinging pains, the dull, aching, 'worn-out' feeling that the disease causes continued as bad as ever.

"One day I read about Zam-Buk and thought I would try it. The first one or two boxes gave me more ease than anything else I had tried, so I went on with the treatment. In a short time I began to feel altogether different and better. Well, I went on using Zam-Buk, and by the time I had used six boxes I was delighted to find myself entirely cured. That was three years ago, and there has been no return of the trouble.

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for piles, eczema, ulcers, abscesses, eruptions, chapped hands, various sores, burns, scalds, bruises, inflamed patches, and all skin injuries and diseases. Druggists and stores everywhere, 50c. box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

CHAPTER XIV.

Madam Conway's Disasters.

Dinner being over, Madam Conway and Maggie returned to the parlor, where, while the former resumed her chair, the latter amused herself by examining the books and odd-looking daguerreotypes which lay upon the table.

"Oh, grandmother!" she almost screamed, bounding to that lady's side, "as I live, here's a picture of Theo and George Douglas taken together," and she held up a handsome casing before the astonished old lady, who, donning her spectacles in a twinkling, saw for herself that what Maggie said was true.

"They stole it," she gasped. "We are in a den of thieves! Who knows what they'll take from my bandbox?" and she was about to leave the room, when Maggie whose quick mind saw farther ahead bade her stop.

combines the rich gluten of Manitoba Spring wheat and the lighter, but equally important, properties of Ontario Fall wheat. The two combined form a perfectly blended flour that makes bread light, white, nutritious and extremely palatable, while pastry made with Beaver Flour has a crisp, flaky texture that brings many a compliment to the cook.

You don't need to be an expert in baking to attain the best results with BEAVER FLOUR.

But if you are an expert, you will readily recognize its incomparable qualities.

Your grocer has BEAVER FLOUR, and will recommend it.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

How Mrs. Reed of Peoria, Ill., Escaped The Surgeon's Knife.

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For twenty years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.

Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed.

"Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. JOSEPH A. LYNCH, Jessup, Pa.

Women who suffer from female ills should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of the most successful remedies the world has ever known, before submitting to a surgical operation.

ten years old, and then an uncle he was named after took him, and gave him a college schooling; and then put him into his store in Worcester. Your head aches was, don't it? Poor thing! The Pennsylvania will be steeped directly," she added, in an aside to Madam Conway, who had groaned aloud as if in pain. Then resuming her story, she continued, "Better'n six year ago Uncle George, who was a bachelor, died, leaving the heft of his property, seventy-five thousand dollars or more, to my son, who is now top of the heap in the store, and worth $100,000. I presume; some say $220,000; but that's the way some folks have of agittin' things."

"Is he married?" asked Maggie, and Mrs. Douglas, mistaking the motive which prompted the question, answered, "Yes, dear, he is. If he want, I know of no darter-in-law I'd as soon have as you. I don't believe in finding fault with my son's wife, but there's a proud look in her face I don't like. This is her picture," and she passed to Maggie the daguerreotype of Theo.

"I've looked at it before," said Maggie, and the good woman proceeded "I hain't seen her yet; but he's goin' to bring her to Charlton bimeby. He's a good boy, George is, free as water—gave me this carpet, the sofa and chair, and has paid Betsey Jane's schoolin' one winter at Leicester. But Betsey don't take to books much. She's more like me, her father says. They had a big party for George last night, but I wasn't invited. Shouldn't a' gone if I had been; but for all that, a body don't want to be slighted, even if they don't belong to the quality. If I'm good enough to be George's mother I'm good enough to go to a party with his wife. But she want to blame and I shan't lay it up against her. I shall see her to-morrow, pretty likely, for Sam Babbit's wife and I are goin' down to the Bremen's muster. You've heard on't, I s'pose. The different engines are goin' to see which will shine water the highest over a 180-foot pole. I wouldn't miss goin' for anything, and of course I shall call on Theodahy. I calkerite to like her, and when they go to house-keepin' I've got a hull chest full of sheets, and pillow-biers, and towels I'm goin' to give her, besides three or four bed quilts I pieced myself, two in herin'-bone pattern and one in risin' sun. I'll show 'em to you," and leaving the room, she soon returned with three patch-work quilts, wherein were all possible shades of color, red and yellow predominating, and in one the "risin' sun" forming a huge center piece.

"Heavens!" faintly articulated Madam Conway, pressing her hands upon her head, which was supposed to be aching dreadfully. The thought of Theo reposing beneath the "risin' sun," or yet the "herin'-bone," was intolerable; and looking beseechingly at Maggie, she whispered, "Do see if Mike is ready."

"If it's the carriage you mean," chimed in Mrs. Douglas, "it's been waiting quite a spell, but I thought you warn't fit to ride yet, so I didn't tell you."

Starting to her feet, Madam Conway's bonnet went on in a trice, and taking her shawl in her hand, she walked out doors, barely expressing her thanks to Mrs. Douglas, who, greatly distressed at her abrupt departure, ran for the herb tea, and taking the tin cup in her hand, followed her guest to the carriage, urging her to "take a swallow just to keep from vomiting."

"She's better without it," said Maggie. "She seldom takes medicine," and politely expressing her gratitude to Mrs. Douglas for her kindness, she bade Mike drive on.

"Some crazy critter just out of the asylum, I'll bet," said Mrs. Douglas, walking back to the house with her pennyroyal tea. "How queer she acted! But that girl's a lady, every inch of her, and so handsome, too; I wonder who she is?"

"Don't you believe the old woman felt a little above us?" suggested Betsey Jane, who had more discernment than her mother.

"Like enough she did, though I never thought on't. But she needn't. I'm as good as she is, and I'll warrant as much thought on, where I'm known," and quite satisfied with her own position, Mrs. Douglas went back to her dishwashing, while Betsey Jane stole away upstairs to try the experiment of arranging her hair after the fashion in which Margaret wore hers.

In the meantime Mike, perfectly sobered, had turned his horses' heads in the direction of Hillsdale, when Madam Conway called out, "To Worcester, Mike—to Worcester, as fast as you can drive."

Everyday Mind - Reading.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

about us.

Did you ever happen to interest yourself in the science of mind reading? I don't mean the abstract science which we read about in books, but the simple, concrete kind which you and I can practice every day if we have our wits about us.

For instance, a young engaged couple who have been absent from each other for some months come together again, and after the customary greetings have somewhat subsided, she asks him, "Do you ever wonder if I'll look the way you think I do, when you see me again?" "No," he answers, "but you do, or else you wouldn't have asked me that." In which conclusion he was quite correct, and showed that he understood the everyday science of mind reading to a T.

Suppose you are with a group of girls, and one of them looks at you thoughtfully and then observes, "Does my nose look shiny?" do you thoughtlessly say "No," or "Yes," as the case may be, and let it go at that? Or do you read the thought that made her wonder about the condition of her nose, and reach for your own powder puff.

Again, our judgments of other people's motives and characters are often excellent sidelights on our own inward workings to him who has the wit to look for them. "He says he gets fifty dollars a week," a man said to me the other day, speaking of a fellow employee, but they all fourflush about their salaries. I usually deduct about twenty-five per cent. from what they say. He probably gets thirty-five or forty dollars at the most."

Where did that man get such an idea of his friends? Partly from his experience with them, but partly out of his own knowledge of himself. I am sure it would be safe to apply this twenty-five per cent rule to any statements which he should make.

The man who is always suspicious of other men's honesty proves that he has many dishonest thoughts of himself. The woman who is always ready to believe the worst of other women therein admits her consciousness of her own inherent weakness, however virtuous the shelter of circumstances and environment may have made her.

Another interesting branch of mind reading consists in tracing trains of thought. You notice a child with an exquisite complexion and mention the fact. A moment later your companion says, "I wonder how Mrs. So-and-So is. Have you heard from her lately?" If she had said, "Speaking of complexions, how is Mrs. So-and-So who has such a bad skin?" would his thought have been any plainer? That is an exaggeratedly simple example of this kind of mind reading. Much more intricate and lengthy trails can be followed by any one who tries not to be too sure of his conclusions. I have frequently put mine to the test of inquiry, and while they were often right, they were sometimes totally wrong.

Don'tless you are already a mind reader. If you are not, I recommend the gentle art to you as a diversion and a tool. I think you'll find it both.

HOW TO PRESERVE YOUTH AND BEAUTY.

One great secret of youth and beauty for the young woman or the mother is the proper understanding of her womanly system and good health. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such for instance, as "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M.D., which can readily be procured by sending thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, addressing Dr. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y.

The womanly system is a delicate machine which can only be compared to the intricate mechanism of a beautiful watch which will keep in good running order only with good care and the proper oiling at the right time, so that the delicate mechanism may not be worn out. Very many times young women get old or run down before their time through ignorance and the improper handling of this human mechanism. Mental depression, a confused head, backache, headache, or hot flashes and many symptoms of the womanly system can be avoided by a proper understanding of what to do, in those trying times that come to all women.

Mrs. G. H. WILLIAMS.

Mrs. G. H. WILLIAMS, of Lynnhaven, Va., writes: "It is six years since my health gave way. I had female trouble and all the doctors (I employed three) said I would die. I was unable to do my work, had to hire someone all the time. Finally, I read in the papers about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and decided to try it. I had not taken but one bottle until I found it had done me good. I took in all five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am able to do all my housework and have gained fourteen pounds. I advise all women who suffer from female trouble to try your 'Favorite Prescription.' It is the only medicine on earth."

Fads and Fashions.

Lace-top fringes are both new and attractive.

Draped satin girdles are eked out with strips of lace.

Low, round, square and V-shaped necks will be the mode.

Such laces as Irish and filet are sometimes used together.

Shades of tan and champagne are again in great favor.

In the latest spring modes the waist line is quite defined.

Sash ends may be knotted or simply let fall, a la militaire.

The colonial shoe, with its silver buckle, is again being worn.

Foulard and sole souple gowns show a lot of lingerie and lace.

Set-in-sleeves of a modified kimono order are frequently seen.

A lace band is used in the hair in place of the more common ribbon one.

In open embroidery patterns, oblong, square and triangular eyelets appear.

Champagne-colored needle-run lace is a charming addition to many afternoon dress accessories.

HEALTH RESTORED TO THIS FAMILY

Wife's experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food led to husband's cure. "Since childhood I was afflicted with biliousness and sick headache," writes Mr. A. K. Van Wyck, Park Hill, Ont., "and as all the doctors' medicines and prescriptions failed to do me any permanent good, I had lost faith in all medicines. It was by accident that I came to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for it had been recommended for Mrs. Van Wyck and did her so much good that she wished me to try it. "I did so, and was surprised at the results. It is now three years since I discontinued the medicine and I have not had an attack of the old trouble. I hope that others may benefit by my experience." The cures effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are lasting because it builds up the system and removes the cause of trouble. 50 cents a box, $1 for $2.50; at all dealers, or Edimanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

The Boarding House

BY H. L. RANN.

The boarding house is a dietetic institute which is used as a teaser for people with ingrowing appetites. It is visited three times a day by gloomy spendthrifts who put in most of their time trying to subdue the stewed prune and the sole-leather pancake. This is a very exhausting process, and usually results in causing the boarder to fall back on the cheap but filling corn meal mush which preserves the countenance of the teeth and discourages new boarders from making glibulous observations for the desert. The boarding house is the only institution in this country which has not been lotted from chin to fetlock by the high cost of living. It is presided over by a stern, female despot who does all of the serving that is necessary and whose business it is to wither with one lethal glance meek boarders who interject indelicate remarks about a second helping. Every once in a while somebody who has enjoyed the friendly contact of plain home cooking centers into a boarding house with a virgin meal ticket and an expectant look, and tries the patience of the landlady by cuddling up to everything on the table that isn't nailed down. Boarders who try to popularize themselves in this manner are generally planted at the immediate right of the landlady, where she can steer them up against the dark meat and the wholesome society of the codfish patty. It is a pathetic sight to see a tall, eager boarder, in whose breast the spark of hope has not wholly died out, trying to wrap a Poland-China appetite around a thimbleful of corned beef hash, yet who has not seen this and weeps in secret? A great many people dislike to board on account of having to mingle with the gizzard and the neck, two of the most entertaining sections of the shredded hen, while others rant from one boarding house to another in the hope of running into a new breakfast menu.

One always admires a beautifully kept kitchen range. To do this keep a small bucket of lard, an old glove to protect the hand and a large woolen cloth in a convenient place; about twice a day dip the cloth into the lard and rub the range before it cools.

Successful Students.

We take a deep interest in our students abroad and feel justly proud of them when we find them in the front rank and a credit to themselves, their parents and country. To-day it gives us much pleasure to note from the "Kingston Whig" of the splendid success of Mr. Stanley H. Martin, son of Mr. A. W. Martin, cashier of the G. P. O., at Queen's University of that city, Ontario, Canada. His class taking their fifth year in medicine numbered seventy-five, and out of eight subjects he was first with three others; was fifth with equals in Anatomy and Chemistry, and in Materia Medica, &c., obtained approximately high place. Mr. W. J. Brown, of Bonaville, his class, stands near him in the same subjects. We congratulate the young men and hope that their future studies may be crowned with such good results. Mr. Martin was formerly a student at the Methodist College.

That Drowning Fatality.

By the seer, J. R. Rodway, which arrived yesterday from Baine Harbor, Placentia Bay, we learn of the sad drowning fatality of the three men, J. H. Joyce, Joseph Upshall and Walter Upshall, as previously alluded to in the Telegram. Very little information is to hand regarding the tragedy as nobody witnessed the happening. It appears the three men in question left Haystack on Tuesday last in a boat, which was filled with fishing gear, for Little Harbor East. They were not heard of afterwards. The theory held out is that owing to the strong gale that raged from the southeast at the time the boat had not gone far when she capsized and the occupants were drowned. Search parties were organized, but despite their earnest endeavours they could not find the bodies, nor are they likely to be recovered as the exact place is unknown where the men were lost. The sad affair has cast a gloom over the settlement.

Coastal Boats.

Train Notes.

The east bound express arrived in the city at 8.25 this morning. An east bound freight train is leaving Port aux Basques to-night. The west bound freight train left Shoal Harbor at 7.30 a.m. to-day.

LAD TO REST.

The funeral of the late James P. Hanley took place yesterday afternoon. A large number of citizens attended, including officers of H. M. Customs. Forming a guard of honor were officers of the Knights of Columbus and T. A. & B. Society, of which bodies deceased was a member. At the Cathedral the Rev. Monsignor Roche officiated and interment was at Belvedere.

Selman Stock Co.

Last night a very large audience filled the T. A. Theatre to witness "The Bells," a drama which certainly appeals to the emotions. Alsace-Lorraine, the captured French province, is the territory wherein the principal plot has its home, and the plotters themselves are "racy of the soil." There was something about the performance which brought one back to a Victorian era, was it the talent of the lady and gentlemen performers or the vivid work of Joseph Selman in a role which suited him and which he suited to a nicety. Mr. Selman played well last night and sustained a role which must have been a critical one. What none expected was his versatility. As Mathias he impersonated a striking character. Debonair, dashing and handsome his youth slips by, middle age finds him a secret criminal, and the "sere and yellow leaf" brings him to task with his secret discovered—the commission of a crime. When mesmeric influences were brought to bear last night and when an aureole of light was thrown round Mr. Selman's head one of the most graphic delineations of a role hard to fill was given. Mr. Selman has sustained his old time reputation nobly, and his talented aides—both ladies and gentlemen—did the same. The costumes were quaint and old, the apparel, the description of which enthralls when we read old books. In respect it put us in mind of "Twelfth Night," "Sir Toby Belch," et al. The "supports" of Mr. Selman were not lacking. They were in splendid form. Miss Mackenzie delighted the audience with her vaudeville feature. She mimicked the mocking bird capitably, and her "Every Little Movement" from Madame Sherry was an encore which was highly appreciated. None should miss the reproduction of this excellent drama to-night.

Able to Look After Himself.

In the Daily News this morning is published officially part of the debate of March 8th, in the House of Assembly. We are not mentioning the date of the debate to draw special attention to the fact that the publication is now nearly eight weeks behind the time when the speeches were made, but we wish to show up the attitude of the Minister of Justice.

We do not give the whole of the speech, but sufficient to draw attention to the fact that in debating the matter of the pay of the police, his main thought seemed to be what he himself was getting out of the Department of Justice and that he earned the rebuke Mr. Kent administered to him.

Hon. Minister of Justice.—As the hon. member for St. John's East has shown such anxiety this afternoon to have the salaries of the policemen increased, I would ask him to look at the other end of the Institution and give the benefit of some of his sympathy to the Head of the Department.

Mr. Kent.—He is able to look after himself.

Hon. Minister of Justice.—Nevertheless he is deserving of sympathy from the hon. gentleman, and the more so since the hon. gentleman opposite occupied the same position. If you go back twenty years you will find that the salary was $2,400, while to-day it is only $2,000, notwithstanding the increased cost of living. If the sympathy he has for the policemen is genuine, he ought to extend it to the Head of the Department and when we come in here next year he should be prepared to have this salary as well as some other salaries not only brought back to $2,400, but have some reasonable advance made to make up for the increased cost of living.

MR. KENT.

I did not mention the Head of the Department. I know no one here in this House better able to speak for himself, or, if occasion arises, to take care of himself. I know also that the Head of the Department is not depending on his salary. He is generally a lawyer of good standing and with a good private practice by which he is able to earn from private clients amounts to supplement his salary as Head of the Department. Besides this he may charge the Government with work done which does not come within the duties of his office, such as litigation which he conducts on behalf of the Government. Consequently I am not doing him any injustice in not pointing out that he is not being taken care of in this respect.

Collision in the Harbor.

Yesterday afternoon—as the S. S. Glencoe was coming down the harbour, after moving out from the dock wharf she collided with a submerged schooner carrying away her topmast, and a moment later ran foul of another half-sunken craft and tore the bowsprit out of her. The schooners referred to have been moored near the South Side, laying there all the winter and are a great menace to shipping going up and down the harbor.

Wonder Shine certainly does "deliver the goods." To put a polish on metal quickly and without any rubbing, a polish that will not quickly wear off, there is nothing which comes near it. It is quite unique in method, and is a quick cleaner as well as a polisher. Price 25c. a package.

Sutton's Seeds are going fast. Owing to the large number of outport and other orders that have come in within the last few days, taxing our staff to their utmost capacity, our stock is rapidly being depleted. We would therefore urge all our customers to send in their orders as quickly as they can, to prevent possible disappointment.

This is one of the very best Liniments that can be bought in Newfoundland, and hundreds of bottles are being sold every week. It is one of the strongest and most penetrating Liniments that has been placed on the market, and every person who has used it can testify to its good merits. It has been proven a fine preparation for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Faceache, Toothache, and all kinds of aches and pains, and testimonials were published to this effect a few weeks ago.

Remember, when speaking of Liniments, the words "Stafford's Liniment" should come before any other, and always be sure you obtain the bottle with "Queen of Liniments" printed on the wrapper.

You can purchase this Liniment at any outport merchant's store, and in case they happen to be out of it when you require a bottle, you can send twenty cents in stamps to Dr. P. Stafford & Son, St. John's, and they will very promptly mail you one at once.

Light, Warmth and Food.

These three words embrace the most urgent necessities of life, and it is an extraordinary thing that in each case gas gives us the best, cheapest and healthiest artificial light known. Again, we want Warmth, and the best fire is at hand to give it in the best form; and lastly, we must have Food, and here the gas cooker never fails us. All this is absolutely true, as we have shown over and over again.

If, however, any of our customers are in the least doubtful on any of these points, we cordially invite them to consult us. In the meantime, our advice is to get good burners, to use modern gas fires and cookers, and above all, to keep your gas appliances (whether old or new) in good order, for in this is the true secret of efficiency and complete satisfaction.

Men felt their vessel sinking in shrinking they gazed upon their eyes of midnight bore from out the shore. The peasant, rude and lowly prayers holy, his eyes toward his sank to ocean's floor, and no one ashore. Men faced their doom as human souls heroic, oh hearts of tea ever your requiem will roar! You came ashore. The bride and groom children, broken hearted, can only the faces, and smiles they'll see no came ashore. Ah, ne'er was such aumph and the glory of manhood under, der, of hearts of virgin ore, of death in death 'is splendor—and Ism came ashore!

Worthy of a Carnegie Medal.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—We hear a great deal of heroes and heroines of other countries, particularly after some great tragedy, such as the loss of the Titanic, or the "Massacre at Poz," these people are lauded to the skies for their bravery, urged on as it were by the applause of the crowd; but we in Newfoundland hear very little of our great heroine, Miss Emily Day, of the Cove, who practically gave her own life to save the life of a little child.

If anyone is deserving of the Carnegie Medal this young lady is, and even if she is not eligible for the Carnegie Medal, surely Newfoundland is not going to let the act of bravery of this young lady pass unnoticed.

Who the proper person is that should call the attention of the Carnegie Trustees to the act of bravery by this young lady is I do not know, but surely some one will do so.

We will no doubt be asked later to subscribe to the several funds for the relief of the sufferers. Like a conscientious writer in one of our daily papers, I think charity begins at home.

If Miss Day is not eligible for the Carnegie Fund or reward for her conspicuous bravery, surely we Newfoundlanders will not allow her bravery to pass unnoticed; and I am sure that every man, woman and child in Newfoundland will be only too glad to subscribe their mite, to show they do appreciate bravery in their countrymen and women.

True, this young woman did not have command of a great ship, or some other great undertaking, but she did have charge of a child, and well she took care of her charges, sacrificing her life, and if not her life, probably her health for life.

Truly she proved herself a heroine; and which one of us does not admire her. What child is there to-day who listens to the story, how the young lady to save the child in her charge risked her life so that the life of the little one might be saved, but who in after years will tell their children, and their children's children, how Emily Day showed herself

'Titanic' Disaster.

The Charge Against the Californian's Captain.

Senator Smith first read an affidavit made by Gill on Wednesday. In this statement Gill declared he was "actuated by a desire that no captain who refused or neglects to give aid to a vessel in distress should be able to hush up the matter."

He charged that several members of the crew whom he had urged to join with him in protesting against the conduct of the Californian's captain in disregarding the Titanic's rockets, refused because they feared "to lose their jobs."

He said he saw the Titanic very plainly. Gill said he was on his third voyage in the Californian. In the bright starlight night of Sunday, April 14, he said he came up on deck of the Californian at 11.56 p.m., as the vessel with engines stopped, was drifting amid floe ice. From the starboard rail Gill said he saw the broadside lights of a very large steamer, watched her at least two minutes, and that those on the Californian's bridge, officer and lookout, could not have helped seeing her.

At midnight Gill continued, he went to his cabin, where he remarked at midnight to his mate Wm. Thomas, that he had seen a big vessel, apparently German, going along at full speed. He could not sleep and went back on deck to smoke a cigarette. Ten minutes later he saw a white rocket, ten miles off to starboard, which he first thought was a shooting star. A second rocket in the same place, seven minutes later, he saw distinctly and he remarked to himself "that must be a vessel in distress."

He did not notify the bridge of his business, he said. It was not helped but again the rockets and he supposed they would pay attention. Gill swore that he then turned in, and at 6.40 a.m., was awakened with orders to turn out to render assistance, that the Titanic had gone down. The Californian then was proceeding at full speed, clear of the ice fields, but with plenty of icebergs about. He heard second officer J. C. Evans telling fourth officer Wootton that the third officer had reported rockets during his watch, and Gill said he knew then it must have been the Titanic he had seen.

Evans, according to the affidavit, said that the captain had been notified of the rockets by the apprentice officer, thought to have been named Gibson. The skipper ordered Morse signals to the distressed vessel sent up. Gibson again reported the rockets to the captain, who told Gibson to continue to Morse the distressed vessel until he got a reply. No reply was received.

Gill said the next remark he heard Evans make was "why in the devil did he not wake up the wireless man."

The entire crew according to Gill, talked among themselves about the disregarding of the rockets. Mr. Stone, the second navigator, was on the Californian's bridge at the time of the rocket signals.

Gill's affidavit was listened to with intense interest by the committee. Capt. Lord of the liner Californian, prepared to enter a sweeping denial of the statements by Gill, took the witness stand at 3.10 p.m.

Captain Stanley Lord, of the Californian said he had followed the sea for 20 years. He had the log of the Californian with him and read from the record. The entries included several references to icebergs.

"Did you try to get into communication with the Titanic on Sunday night?" asked Senator Smith.

"Yes, sir, about 10.15—that night, ship's time. We told him we were surrounded by ice and had stopped."

"Did the Titanic acknowledge that message?"

"Yes, sir. It told us to shut up—or 'keep out' or something like that."

"How far were the Californian and the Titanic apart when you sent your message to the Titanic telling her you were blocked in the ice?"

"At 4.10 that morning the Virginian sent word of the collision, Captain Lord said, following it by a second message, asking that word of the extent of the damage be sent to her. Captain Lord was then excused."

"Cyril Evans, wireless operator of the Californian testified that he turned in at 11.25 on Sunday and never heard any distress signal from the Titanic."

"In the evening the Titanic called me up and we exchanged signals."

Said Evans: "I said 'here's a message for you about ice,' and he said he had heard me send it to other ships."

"From the position we had of the Titanic we were about 19 1/2 miles apart."

"Did the Californian receive the Titanic's 'C.Q.D.' call?"

"No," said the captain, "but we got it from the Virginian about six o'clock the morning of the 15th."

"What is the speed of the Californian?"

"About eleven knots ordinarily," said the Captain, "we made 13 1/2 when we were going to the Titanic, we were driving all we could."

"When you told the Titanic you were surrounded by ice, how badly were you surrounded by ice?"

The witness said the field was about 25 miles long and several miles wide. The Californian, he said, was about a quarter mile from the edge of the floe.

"What did you notify the Titanic for?"

"As a matter of courtesy entirely. I didn't know where she was. As a matter of fact I thought she was 18 miles South of us."

"Do you know anything regarding the Titanic disaster of your own knowledge?"

"Nothing."

"Did you see any of her signals or anything of the ship herself?"

"No."

"Was the Titanic beyond your range of vision?"

"Yes, 19 1/2 or 20 miles away."

Low temperature of the water was no indication of the proximity of ice, Captain Lord said. He added he had very little experience with ice.

"Would glasses in the crow's nest have aided in sighting ice?" asked the Senator.

"I think not. I tried it once and I don't believe I shall try it again. It was when I hoisted a man in a coal basket to the masthead to see if we could discover the Titanic."

"If you had received the Titanic's distress call Sunday evening after your communication with the Titanic how long would it have taken you to reach her?"

"At the very least, two hours, under the ice conditions."

Captain Lord said that if the operator had been on duty he would have caught the Titanic's signal. An operator on duty in the day, he said, was of more service than to remain on duty at night, because as there were so many one-operator ships that one got more information in the day than at night, when the other operators were asleep.

"Wouldn't it be better to have your operator awake when other eyes are closed?"

"It probably would."

"When I came on the bridge at 10.30 Sunday night," Captain Lord said, "the third officer there said he thought he saw a light. It was a peculiar light and we had been having trouble with the stars, mistaking them for lights. Finally a ship did come up and I asked the operator if he had heard anything, and he said he had had the Titanic, and given the ice message. Then this ship came up and lay within four to seven miles of us. She lay there all night nearly but we couldn't hear from her. It was not the Titanic. I told the operator to call this ship again. She sent up several rockets but she would not answer. I have a faint recollection of hearing the cabin boy about 'four o'clock' saying something about the ship still standing by. Soon after that she steamed away. This boat sent up several white rockets, but they were not distress signals."

"Captain Lord said that at the Californian's position, 19 1/2 miles away from the Titanic, it would have been impossible to see either Morse signals or the distress signals."

"The first news that reached me of the disaster," said the officer, "was shortly after five o'clock Monday morning when the Frankfort reported that the Titanic had sunk after hitting an iceberg."

At 4.10 that morning the Virginian sent word of the collision, Captain Lord said, following it by a second message, asking that word of the extent of the damage be sent to her. Captain Lord was then excused.

Evans read the message as follows:—

"April 14,—5.35 p.m.—Californian to Captain Titanic, 42.3 N., 49.9 W.—passed three large bergs five miles southward of us. Regard us."

He next communicated with the Titanic at 9.05, New York time, that same evening, Evans said. The Captain said we were going to stop on account of ice. He told me to advise Titanic. I did and said:—

"Say, old man, we are surrounded by ice," and he said, shut up, I am working with Cape Race, and that I had jammed him."

"After that I heard him sending private messages to Cape Race."

Evans said he was awakened at 3.40 in the morning by the chief officer, who said he had seen rockets and wanted to get some information.

"I made ready and called, and the Frankfort answered with the news of the sinking of the Titanic. The Virginian called before I left the key and furnished more information."

Evans said the Frankfort operator had not told him of the receipt of a "C.Q.D." from the Titanic nor of a rebuff by the Titanic's wireless operator.

"Did anyone tell you about Captain Lord having been informed three times that night about a ship sending up rockets?" asked Senator Smith.

"I think Gibson, the apprentice, told me that the Captain was being called and told about the rockets," said Evans.

"There was a lot of talk while we were on our way to the scene of the wreck. I heard the men say rockets had been sent up in the night and that the captain had been roused."

"The witness said the apprentice got out the Morse signals and tried to get in communication with the distressed vessel. No effort was made to use rockets on the Californian."

The express bound west arrived at Port aux Basques at 10 o'clock this morning and the s.s. Bruce left for North Sydney half an hour later. The local arrived at 1.30 p.m.

Our Regiment.

In the Rossley Star Theatre there, assembled last night a goodly company to enjoy the farcical comedy, "Our Regiment," staged under the direction of Mr. T. H. O'Neil by a company of local amateurs. The play is replete with comical situations and largely spiced with witty words and smart sayings. For a first performance it ran with considerable smoothness and all present enjoyed themselves immensely as the funny situations were developed and the quips, retorts and witticisms came forth.

Mrs. W. G. Gosling, Miss Hutton and Miss Withers played their respective roles with the ease and acceptance of favourites. Mrs. Wakefield also did nicely. Lieut. Shankland was good as Batters, the servant. Mr. C. Clift was great as the curate who was like a fish out of water. Mr. J. Clift was immense as the soldier, who was a lady's man, don't cher know? Mr. E. Jackson who was the retired merchant with a positive dislike for the military, but duly subject to a wife with a will of her own played the part with great skill. Mr. Basil Jackson with a love for matters military, was energetic, perhaps a trifle too much. Lieut. Garbett's role was also played with considerable acceptance.

Altogether the staging, the make-ups, and the performance was most creditable to those connected with it, and we can confidently recommend the play and the players to our readers.

Jimmy bit his pencil, and looked at the ceiling. It was less wearying than trying to write an essay on Henry VIII. But suddenly the sharp voice of the teacher broke in upon his reverie. "Two minutes more!" she rapped out. Jimmy had to write something. So he set to work, and evolved the following:—

"Henry VIII. was King of England, and the greatest widower that never was. He was born at a place called Amie Domingo, and he had three hundred and fifty wives. The first was beheaded, and then executed; the second was removed, and the third died; and then he married Ann Bullen, Henry VIII. was succeeded in the throne by his grandmother, Mary, Queen of Scots, sometimes called the Lady of the Lay of the Last Minstrel. He was buried in Westminster Abbey by the Archbishop of York.—Glasgow News."

For a cold in the head you can use nothing better than "Starford's Liptonment." Inhale for a few minutes and watch results.—ap27,tt Appreciation.

This kindly remembrance of their old incumbent who severed his connection with them seven years ago came as a surprise and touched the heart of the venerable clergyman.

Valuables on Victims.

Special to Evening Telegram. WASHINGTON, To-Day. Owing to the absence of any treaty with Britain covering the disposition of effects of American citizens who die on British ships on the high seas, it may probably be impossible for relatives of American victims of the Titanic disaster to obtain possession immediately of valuable found on the recovered bodies brought to Halifax. The property must be dealt with under the Canadian law, which probably means that it will be necessary for relatives and friends of the deceased to go to the Canadian courts to obtain the property to which they lay claim.

Better Rules for Wireless.

Special to Evening Telegram. WASHINGTON, To-Day. After a discussion, intended to discover the needed reforms in the use of wireless telegraphy at sea, the Senate Committee investigating the Titanic disaster yesterday entered on the final stage of the inquiry. Today officers and crew of the sunken ship will be released and be free to return to their homes in England. At the same time (may) will be quizzed searchingly as to his ideas of regulations to make a repetition of the disaster impossible. Marconi, inventor of the wireless. Sammis, chief engineer of the American Marconi Company, wireless operators Bride and Cottam, a passenger named Hugh Woolner, England, fourth officer Boxhall of the Titanic were to-day's witnesses. Virtually all agreed that better regulations of wireless communication at sea was essential.

Reforms in China

Special to Evening Telegram. PEKING, To-Day. In his first official address, Yuan Shi Kai made a special reference to the position of foreigners. Foreign powers in recent years, he said, had adopted a peaceful and just attitude, and had shown a desire for the interest of China which calls for gratitude. Chinese should learn under it and treat foreigners with friendship and candor, and should rejoice over the establishment of the Republic after a thousand years of despotism. Yuan emphasized the necessity of forming a firm foundation on which to base a policy of progress. The most important matter at present, he said, was finance. Foreign capital was essential to China and the Government was drafting principles of financial reform. Yuan recommended plans for lightening the burdens of the people, proper surveys of lands for new scale of taxation, for a unified system of currency and for standard weights and measures. Yuan said owing to the insufficiency of financial experts among Chinese, the employment of talented foreigners was necessary. He recommended the employment of foreigners at the Finance Ministry, so as to ensure a correct budget and proper accounting.

The Tailors Celebration.

The fifth annual date of the Nfld. Branch of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of America, was held in the British Hall last night, and it was pronounced one of the biggest and most enjoyable events of the season. Deputy Mayor Martin, Councillors Ryan and Mully and upwards of 300 prominent ladies and gentlemen were present. Dancing commenced at 9 p.m. and continued until midnight when the following programme was rendered:—

Solo Mr. John Kelly. Recitation Mr. C. K. Murphy. Song Mr. Harry LeRoy.

Each of these performers were enthusiastically cheered, and after the interval, Mr. M. J. Doyle, the Chairman of the Committee in charge of the function, made a very practical speech, in which he outlined the benefits of unionism in this city and appealed to the large gathering to support only those stores that were identified with the union.

Messrs. Edward Perks, Edward Connolly, Joseph Snow and M. Kelly were the floor directors, and the following committee who had control of the arrangements are to be congratulated on their signal success:—Messrs. M. J. Doyle, Chairman; E. Perks, Secretary; M. Colbert, James Kennedy, Charles Austin, J. Wiseman, Charles Byrne, P. Hickey and P. Constantine. The music was supplied by Gummerson's Orchestra.

S. MILLEY.

The Rum Cure.

We have been requested by a resident of Grand Bank to publish a translation of an article of La Vieille, St. Pierre, Miquelon. We comply in part.

Mr. John E. Lake, of Fortune, is not content with the state of things, so one would judge from a letter which he published in the Evening Chronicle, of St. John's, the 11th of January last. He is very anxious to have a policeman at Fortune in order to prevent the spread of smallpox in that vicinity. He swears, and pesters, even on St. Pierre, where he says the facility with which we can procure rum is a danger of spreading the disease.

Mr. John E. Lake seems to have singular notions on the treatment of certain maladies. We have always heard it said that in case of an epidemic a glass of rum or cognac was a good preventive. He wants a policeman at all costs, a "constable" as he says. He must have a constable or everything will be lost.

The contents of the letter in question informs us of the malady which was prevalent at that time at certain parts of the coast of Newfoundland. He does not say there has been one victim up to the present time; the persons who are attacked go to their daily ordinary occupation, in fact are not hindered at all in their work. The doctors say that it is a disease of the skin, caused by cold. We are very happy to learn that the disease is not serious, and that very ordinary precautions are sufficient to cure it.

In spite of all that the master, John E. Lake, can say—who calls for a constable in the name of humanity—it is not the small pox, and we hope that the slightly severe measures that have been taken at St. Pierre at this time against boats coming from Newfoundland will be abolished. Although being the first to demand strict precautions in the case of a real and characteristic epidemic, we would wish on the other hand that too useless severity be the cause of any loss to the commerce of St. Pierre. Now one knows that the time will soon be here when hundreds of boats will be coming here to do business—buy salt, get repairs done, etc.

We ought at this point to signalize that for several years, at about the same time, the boats of Fortune Bay are consigned and that a great deal of talk has been made on the subject of disease which are, if not imaginary, at least without importance. Our Consul at St. John's, who receives reports more or less authentic and interesting, immediately sends alarming messages to St. Pierre, which resulted in those strict precautions being taken here to prevent English boats coming to our port. We are convinced that there has been a great deal of bluff in these reports; our neighbors detest us cordially we knew, and lose no opportunity of accusing us of injury. This is why we give the alarm cry and demand that the President of the Chamber of Commerce be cautious of what he is doing, and that he take measures to safeguard our commercial interests.

Will he have time to do so? or does the pursuit of his political affairs take up all his attention?

Act, Mr. Coanec, act! the people of commerce have elected you for that purpose and not to make absurd discourses on the quays of St. Pierre. Otherwise throw up your job and allow some one to be put in your place who will be disposed to defend our interests when they are menaced.

A word in conclusion to Mr. John E. Lake. We sincerely hope Mr. John E. Lake will not have to suffer from smallpox, large pox, skin disease, breaking out, cold sores or other troublesome affections mentioned in his letter. We advise him, if he is afraid, to drink every morning and evening a good glass of first class rum. He is sure not to be sick. We would willingly send him a couple of gallons of good quality, but duty on this liquor is very heavy.

OBITUARY.

PHILIP J. CAREEN.

There passed peacefully away at Point Lance on April 20th, Philip J. Careen, oldest son of Michael and the late Catherine Careen, aged 23 years. The deceased had been ailing a long time but bore his illness with patience and resignation. In November last all thought he was on the road to recovery, but the dread disease consumption set in and claimed him for its victim. At noon Saturday he passed to the Great Beyond fortified with the rites of his holy religion, which is the one great comfort to those left behind. He leaves a father, four brothers and one sister to mourn the loss of a dutiful son and a loving brother. Rest in peace.

Concert at Western Bay.

A grand concert was held in the Roman Catholic school house, on Wednesday, April 24th. The proceeds go towards the building of a Hall for the P. P. U. members of this place. The doors opened at 7.30 p.m. and the curtain was drawn at 8 p.m. Long before the time numbers were seen wending their way to the school house, and long before the curtain was drawn aside the school was nearly packed. All the performers acted their parts in an able manner, despite the short time they had to prepare it, which goes to show that they had an able instructor. The outbursts of applause which greeted each item of the programme goes to show that the onlookers enjoyed themselves.

Great credit is to be given to all the performers and more especially to Miss Veronica Tobin and Master Ambrose Sellars who acted with great credit to themselves. The programme consisted of songs, dialogues and recitations and a step dance. We wish to thank Mr. John Walsh, blacksmith, for the able manner in which he acted as chairman; he is an ideal chairman.

The concert ended at 12.30 a.m. by singing the National Anthem. Without doubt this was the best concert ever held at Western Bay. After the concert the school house was cleared for dancing, which was kept up till the wee small hours of the morning, when all dispersed to their different homes. All present thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

ON WET FISH AND DRY WOOD AND THEIR SALES.

Mrs. Tucker says that every one must have noticed how small like our local fishermen slowly but surely creep up from the fish markets and soon get among the throng in order to effect a ready sale. The first day that the first fresh fish come in people go down and buy from the boat, in fact some people go out in boats to meet them. Then a few days later the fishermen reach the market, and the Council Inspector is on the scene with very shiny brass buttons. But the fisherman is not contented with his surroundings, he longs to be with the people. He can see his rows of fine fresh fish and he can also see gangs of citizens pass by the head of the cove, he's beginning to feel uneasy and he thinks that the people think "there's no fish in to-day." He's been told by the Councilors how much they spent on the market, but he fires it all overboard and makes the first step to mix among the throng. He's told by the Inspector that he must "stop in the market," but he defies all and soon we behold him behind two oars on which is displayed his catch.

Now, Mrs. Tucker would suggest that we haul the fish market up out of the cove, 'tis a poor stand and the fishermen don't get a square show. No man would go to the water's edge to start business, and Mrs. Tucker says we shouldn't be ashamed to look a good fat codfish square in the face. "I will do away with a lot of anxiety, for as it is now, no one knows when fish is 'in' or out."

Tucker says that there was no time like the time he lugged his fish in a wheel barrow. You were generally surrounded by inquisitive women that asked all kinds of questions, and drove a hard bargain in an eight-cent black backed fish. If you could manage to induce the Minister of Fisheries to see that we'd have all "black backers" on our local grounds our local fishermen would become rich in no time.

Delaney says that there are a cute crowd in this town that wait till dusk to buy a load of wood or a six cent fish, in the hopes that they'll get the said load of wood and the aforesaid six cent fish for nothing. We will often behold a black horse at early morning, wending over by Mr. Carter's with a load of wood behind him and a sack of hay in front of him. There he stands and there also walks up and down the man who owns the horse, the wood and the hay. The "cute man" with the claw-hammer coat from which protrudes a red handkerchief arrives on the scene. He asks the man how are the roads, how are the trout, how are the hens, asks about everything but the wood, and after wishing the man good day and casting a searching glance at the wood, goes home and takes a sleep for himself and dreams of the bargain he's going to strike at a quarter to six. But as the bearer of the "claw-hammer" dreams, he of the load of wood partakes of stimulants. The wind has shifted several times and the horse's head has been shifted accordingly. The hay bag and several gallons of oats on tick have disappeared, and the man footsore, dusty, hungry and impatient goes into Mr. Carter and ask him to allow him to fire the firewood in his yard until "the of the claw-hammer" come back.

Delany says by early 'tis no use looking for quarter to six bargains as of old. The country man and the fisherman are on to the cute claw-hammered man, and also wide awake to the seemingly disinterested domestic with the 5-cent piece between her teeth.

Bad Roads in Ferryland.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—It is about time for some one to open the eyes of our members of Ferryland District on the condition of our roads. It is an impossibility to get over those roads unless they are shovelled. Now is the time for P. F. Moore to take a trip up over them and he may be able to coax a few dollars from the Government to improve their condition. If it was motoring time we would not worry at all for the big fellows would see to it themselves. Is this Mike that has all the talk and still can't get enough money to shovel two banks of snow? Now we poor mortals have to suffer. A few more months and they will be looking for our votes, then their smiles would melt the snow. Is the West End any more than Ferryland District? I hope not. Hoping Mr. P. F. Moore and Mr. M. P. Cashin will give this letter prompt attention.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The Bell Island steamer took a number of workmen to the Island yesterday afternoon.

Another case of scarlet fever developed at Bear's Cove last week in the home of Mr. Prescott Parsons.

Mr. Thomas Hanrahan, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Montreal, after a few weeks visit to his parents here, left for his station again by Thursday's cross-country express. The best wishes of Tom's many friends accompany him.

Mr. Joseph Graham, a former Harbor Gracian, but who for the past 25 years has been living in Montreal, is in town representing the Royal Fishers Co., of Montreal, and is a guest of John Casey, Esq., J. P.

The brethren of the Masonic Order here have arranged to give the children their annual festival on Tuesday night. The Masonic and British Halls will be both used on this happy occasion, the former for amusements and the latter for supper. A dance will be held in the Masonic Hall at night. The committee have made big preparations for a good time.

The friends of A. H. Seymour, Esq., M. H. A., will be glad to hear that the operation performed for him at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, on Thursday last was a great success, and that the patient is doing well.

The S. S. Bloodhound arrived in port this morning from the Gulf fishery, and we are sorry to say, the small catch of 600 seals.

The Directors of the Dock Company here held their meeting on Thursday evening when Mr. William Warren was appointed Superintendent of their works. Mr. Joseph Hanrahan was chosen as office manager, and Mr. John Vatcher as engineer. It is pleasing to see Harbor Gracians getting these positions.

The S. S. Southern Cross arrived in port at 7.30 on Friday morning with the good trip of 5,200 old seals, about the weight of 16,000 young seals. The captain reports old seals plentiful, but being short handed, and many of the crew being inexperienced he failed to fill her up as he otherwise would.

The marriage of Mr. Dugald Noel, of the South Side, and Miss Edith Heath, youngest daughter of Mr. Samuel Heath, now of H. M. Customs, St. John's, took place at St. Paul's Church on Wednesday evening last. We wish the young couple much happiness.

Dandelion helped to fill the bill at the dinner table of many of our citizens yesterday; crowds of children could be seen in the different meadows on Saturday gathering it.

Mr. Arthur Ridley, Manager, and Mr. Cook, Secretary, of the British Fish Company that is to open business here are in town. Arrangements are now completed for the taking over of the extensive premises of Messrs. Munn & Co. The opening up of this business seems to give us all new hope for the uplifting of this old town. Mr. Ridley has received a hearty welcome in town.

As the people were leaving the different churches yesterday after the morning service, the clanging of the fire bells sent people rushing to Victoria Street, where the chimney of Mr. L. T. Chafe's residence was on fire. No water was needed from the apparatus, and the alarm was an unnecessary one.
