Love That Knew No Bounds.

CHAPTER IX.

And as the young lady was not there to speak for herself, being upstairs construing Caesar for her classmates' edification, that was the reply Mr. Duvesne bore away some half hour later, bearing also, as Phillips opening the hall door observed, with a secret snigger, a "Madame d'Arblay" carnation worn by Miss Leonora at luncheon. "Hadn't the countess that shade? Then would he take it to her?" And Mrs. Alwyn announced to Sydney, "Leonora and I go to Oakleigh Place on Saturday, so I must deputize you to receive Mr. Villiers. He writes asking for a peep of the country. I don't fancy he is very robust, so I hope he may enjoy the change, poor fellow."

Accordingly, on the day fixed, Mrs. Alwyn drove off with her elder daughter, Leonora, a most artistic study in cool draperies, a bunch of innocent-eyed jasmine on her bosom; and Sydney, the road paved to possible liking by persecuted pity, was left to meet the guest whose coming concerned her so much more closely than she yet divined.

Highly contented as the major had gone back to town, he had wisely refrained from overpraise of Sydney in any form. A hint or two that might come in useful as to her disposition he had given—"Docile in reality, I'm positive, but not commonplace 'yea, nay,' you know. Drive her with the snaffle and not with the curb, my lad! her mother uses that too much"—but her personal charms he passed over with "you'll see her soon, and I needn't describe her," so the appearance of his young hostess took Mr. Rupert as an agreeable surprise.

As the Hedyngham cab turned in at the leafy sweep of The Dale grounds, she came to meet him from under the drooping limeboughs, the gracefulness of ready greeting in her slender summer-clad figure, the slight embarrassment that flushed her cheeks and darkened her serious eyes melting quickly as she fancied she detected in the new-comer that delicacy which her mother had foreshadowed.

Handsome after the type of his cousin Leonora, whom he immensely admired, she might not be, but well-bred to the most careless observer with "points that gain upon a fellow every time he looks at her, you know!" Ah! it took very few seconds for Mr. Rupert to decide this quarry was worth pursuit, and, with the pleasant pendant of "six thousand," should be his in due time.

So he made the most of the mood in which she met him. "Was awfully tired. Town with the thermometer at ninety was slow suicide, but laborers couldn't choose localities!" And after he had disposed of traveling dust he reappeared under the lime and took his tea with a wearied-out sort of enjoyment in the restful hour that gave no hint of others neither so early nor so healthy that had emptied his pockets and paled his complexion of late.

Apologies for Mrs. Alwyn's absence were received with great equanimity. "It is best to take one's pleasures by degrees," said Mr. Villiers, "and one's relations, too, though I'm not clear if I may claim you in that list. What is the etiquette of step-cousinship? Does it allow me to say 'Sydney' for instance?"

"I don't think you called me 'Miss Alwyn' four years ago," she answered, amused at this point of ceremony. "Speak to me as you do to Leonora. Treat us alike."

"Then it will be 'Sydney.' Thank you. I can treat you both alike, so far. But as to four years ago being precedent, why, four years are a gulf at your age. You have grown out of knowledge since then."

"In the same time most girls would have done the same thing," she answered, calmly, letting a rather fervid glance shoot harmless by as she gave him another cup of tea.

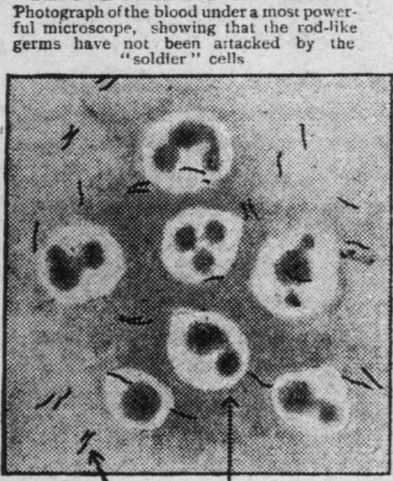

"Ah! but you've done more than grow. May I without hopelessly putting my foot in it, say how you've improved?"

300% increase in the power of the "soldier" cells that defend the body—after feeding on Virol

Striking Evidence

An elaborate series of investigations recently conducted at a well-known sanatorium has definitely proved that the addition of Virol to the diet exercises a remarkable influence on the action of the white cells of the blood, which protect the body against germs. The experiments showed there was a distinct and progressive increase in the functional activity of the white cells in proportion to the number of weeks the patient had been fed on Virol.

BEFORE FEEDING ON VIROL.

Photograph of the blood under a most powerful microscope, showing that the red-like germs have not been attacked by the "soldier" cells.

AFTER FEEDING ON VIROL.

Photograph of the blood under a most powerful microscope, showing that the "soldier" cells have absorbed the red-like germs.

After twelve weeks' Virol diet, the power of the white cells of the blood to destroy the germs was four times as great as that of the average blood of those who had not been fed on Virol.

The infinitesimal "soldier" cells of the blood that defend you die by millions in your body daily; millions of new ones have to take their place. Virol is made of the particular kinds of foods, beginning with bone-marrow, that feed the blood-making bones and glands, thus providing the body with healthy blood crammed with "soldier" cells.

Everyone—man, woman and child—especially those who are delicate, wasting or run down, should therefore take Virol. Feed babies and young children on Virol; they are subject to so many ills from which these "soldier" cells alone can defend them.

VIROL

Used in more than a Thousand Hospitals and Sanatoria

VIROL, LTD., 152/166, Old Street, London, E.C.

T. J. EDENS, Agent.

"No, you may not," said Sydney, "for you haven't been here long enough to know whether I deserve the compliment. Please make something besides personal remarks, or else perhaps we shall quarrel."

"Which fate forbid!" returned the gentleman; "the last thing on earth I want is either to begin with a quarrel, or," very pointedly, "to end with me."

But that shaft, too, glanced unnoticed by its aim, and Mr. Villiers was driven to make himself agreeable for the next hour on entirely new lines, with a companion not to be "fetched" by any art of flirtation—a baby at coquetry, though out of her teens, the like of whom in all his London life he had never encountered before.

Determined on approval, however, he found no fault with this specimen of a new class. On the contrary, he liked the change from every-day womanhood, and flattered himself that keeping well in sight a certain girlish dignity which Sydney, at her frankness, always wore, he made capital "running" in the time that elapsed between their meeting and Mrs. Alwyn's return.

From Oakleigh Place the ladies came back in a state of honored sweetness. The countess had been charming. Leonora had sung to her. Mr. Edward Duvesne had turned the pages. Some one had compared her voice to Patti's. And now here, at home, Rupert and Sydney were getting on admirably. Every plan seemed prosperous. For a whole evening Mrs. Alwyn was superbly serene; and only once, when she was showing her nephew the little conservatory where he might be permitted a cigar, was the express object of his visit touched upon.

"Leonora is handsomer than ever, Aunt Helen," said Mr. Villiers, "and "little Sydney," as we used to call her—

"Yes, Rupert. About her—what do you think—altogether?"

"That she's quite delightful. Developed every way—beautiful amazingly!"

This was warmer praise than Leonora's—more than Mrs. Alwyn could stand.

"I am relieved that you like her—at first," she said, her mouth drooping ominously at the corners, "you will find out her best and worst characteristics by degrees. You may have to be careful, Sydney is so decided—what some would call willful."

"So much the better," laughed Mr. Villiers, "if she takes willfully in my favor. I must try and make her."

They then said good-night, and no more conversation on the subject was exchanged for long.

But given a mother and suitor, playing judiciously into each other's hands, the game went on with every prospect of success. Though Leonora and her mother performed their devotions at Oakleigh church next day Mr. Villiers elected to walk with Sydney to St. Clair's, gravely informing his companion that he thought people should always attend their parish church, though he would have been sorely puzzled to tell where or what his was! And, coached by the cunning major, he fearlessly attacked his aunt's prejudices on feminine occupations, pronounced gardening a most invigorating exercise, and only wished he could shake off office drudgery any day and come and help his "cousins" at the work.

"But I shall be down again soon," he informed Sydney on the Monday morning when his first visit ended, and she, at the request of her mother, whose head did so ache if she rose too early, attended their guests' seven o'clock breakfast. "I feel no end better for this splendid air. I shall soon repeat the dose if I don't out-step my welcome."

"There is no risk of that," returned Sydney, pleased at this tribute to St. Clair's curative powers; "as mamma said last night, you must come soon and come often if it does you good." And of this invitation the young man took full advantage.

The Comynghams had all left Oakleigh in September. A scare as to the water supply at the House dispersed them till the spring.

"It's awfully provoking, especially for me," said the Honourable Edward, quite sentimentally, taking leave at The Dale, "for I wanted to hurry on those builders at my new rectory. The place ought to be done by the spring. I hope Miss Villiers will show an interest in it then, and tell me how it ought to be arranged."

That speech was food for hope through long winter weeks, when Oakleigh Church was supplied by a locum tenens, and saw little of Mrs. Alwyn or her daughter. It might be well, too, the elder lady consoled herself with thinking, that this break had occurred. Sydney's affair could now be adjusted at reasonable leisure. Her marriage-day might be decided on by when the Comynghams came back; and they would be without her through the next summer's campaign, destined, the mother fondly hoped, to bring the bridegroom of her desire to Leonora's feet.

Thus through his flying visits Mr. Rupert's courtship was well seconded by his aunt Helen, and—without much difficulty—the hours of his presence were made brighter to Sydney than those of his absence.

With some tact he watched her likings and turned them to his own use. A question of winter gifts was raised before him. Sydney, disappointed, had to give up most she desired to make. When Mr. Villiers next presented himself he was bewildered in blanket-like rugs, purchased, he declared, at Hedyngham, to protect him from the east wind driving to St. Clair's, but no use to him, so would Sydney dispose of them as she chose? Did he hear books mentioned, wished for, by some fortuitous chance he was sure either to have such "at home" (meaning at a particular book-shop off Oxford Street) or could borrow them for her easily; and as weeks slipped by this prudent siege seemed likely to take effect.

A charming work on plant-lore had of late appeared. Knowing it of the very kind Sydney would delight in, Mr. Rupert brought it down, a Christmas gift, with—not to be marked—bangles for Leonora, pheasants for his aunt.

Sydney, overjoyed at her prize, buried herself in its fascinating pages, and at the evening's end thanked the giver most expressively.

"You must read it yourself, Mr. Villiers, to know what I have been enjoying," she said.

"Why, I know as much of the subject as of the Homeric bards! Plainly nothing!"

"Oh! but it makes you like it if you will but begin."

"Then, will you teach me?"

Gravely, "Yes, if you wish."

"Then I am sure to like it."

"Precisely what I say."

"With a difference," said Mr. Rupert, in lowered voice, "which some time I must explain to you."

"But not now," replied Sydney, most unsuspecting still, "for I have read myself sleepy. Good-night. And I don't know when I've enjoyed a Christmas evening so much. I have to thank you for it." And she bestowed on Mr. Rupert a full beam of gratitude as she held the door open for him.

Leonora had gone to bed an hour before. Watching another girl's love affair was very stupid work. Mrs. Alwyn alone was left to mark the words and smile.

"Well?" she said, questioning her nephew with a glance as he came back to the hearth-rug.

"Well, Aunt Helen," he said, "I feel very much your debtor. It won't be my fault if Sydney is not my wife long before next Christmas-time."

Mr. Slattery's Lecture.
Before one of the largest audiences that ever greeted any lecturer J. L. Slattery, Esq., delivered a stirring, able and eloquent discourse at the B. I. S. Club Rooms on Tuesday night, in aid of the Sealing Disaster Fund. His subject was the momentous question of Home Rule and in this the learned lecturer was perfectly at home. He was introduced by Mr. J. C. Pippy, the chairman, who referred to the terrible disaster which at present is uppermost in everyone's mind, and for which the proceeds of the lecture are to be devoted. For over an hour the audience was treated to an exposition of the subject, most entertaining in matter, astounding in wealth of detail and eloquent in delivery. The lecturer touched on all the vital points of the question in a most masterly and forcible manner. The sentiment prevailing on the subject, the economic conditions of Ireland, the falsity of some prevailing opinions, the remarkable success and executive ability of Irishmen abroad, were a few of the points touched on. The numerous quotations from well known public men and the statistics which were never boring, showed the vast amount of trouble and research taken on the subject. There was not one in the whole audience that could not feel, but that he heard the very best from a man who had not alone a thorough grasp of the subject, but very high literary ability. If such a lecture were published it would give to the people here the whole reason for Home Rule in a nut shell. The best compliment that could be paid to the lecturer is to say that his lecture is worth white listening to a second time. Any lecture by Mr. Slattery after this is sure to be well attended. A vote of thanks was proposed by Rev. Bro. Kennedy, who referred to the happy coincidence that the lecture was delivered on the day that the Home Rule Bill had passed the critical period. He said that the time was near when some gifted Irishmen would be able to write the epitaph of Robert Emmet, which the great patriot had forbidden to be written till Ireland had emerged as a nation once again. The audience showed their appreciation in long and hearty applause. The Chairman in tendering Mr. Slattery the vote of thanks, referred to the vast influence which Irishmen have wielded in the world's affairs and said that such a people deserved Home Rule and Ireland prosper under it. The lecture closed with "A Nation Once Again," and the National Anthem, played by the lecturer's nephew, Mr. John Slattery.

A Matrimonial Miracle.

By RUTH CAMERON.

In the United States one marriage out of every twelve is such a complete failure that it ends in the divorce court.

When you remind people of that fact, they exclaim in horror and amazement. They seem to forget a fact which is much more amazing. Namely, that eleven out of every twelve marriages are comparatively successful.

When you think it over doesn't that seem the more remarkable fact to you? It does to me.

A young woman came to me the other day to ask if I knew of any place where she could get a pleasant room.

"Why I thought you had an unusually comfortable room where you are," I said.

"So I have," she conceded, "and I'm perfectly satisfied with the room. But I'm sick to death of the people in the house. You know I've been there four years, and that's too long. They're pleasant people enough, but they've just got on my nerves."

Again, a young man who had an excellent position as a private secretary has recently taken less pay in another man's employ.

"I'm doing it for two reasons," he explained. "One is that I think I have a better chance of rising in my present position, and the other is that I couldn't stand Mr. R. any longer on any terms. I never used to think I had any nerves, but in the last two years he has showed me that I have. He's got some of the most trying tricks that a man ever had. I didn't mind them at first, but after I'd stood them for about two years they began to get my goat. Gee whiz, how I pity his wife!"

Two young women who had always been great friends went away on a long vacation together. They had a very pleasant vacation and yet—"I think next time I'll go alone," one of them told me. Lucy is a dear and I like her as much as ever, but I can't have the freedom I have alone. Of course when there are two people each has to give up and compromise, and it's hard when you've been used to having your own way. Besides, to tell you the truth, Lucy is just the least bit wearing when you are with her all the time. Of course I don't doubt she feels the same way about me.

One more little incident and then I'm through. When an English butler who had worked fourteen years in one family and always seemed satisfied, gave notice, his employer asked him why he left.

"Well, sir," said the butler, "I didn't mean to tell you but as long as you ask and have to know, sir, it's just this: I'm so blamed sick of your whiskers, sir, that I can't stand it any longer."

Now think it over.

Marriage is the closest, the least elastic and the most protracted of all human relationships.

If all these people find these comparatively loose relationships a strain and a burden, what of marriage?

Am I forgetting all about love, you ask me? Not at all, my friend. On the contrary I'm moved to do love new honour, since marital love and its ultimate form, glorified friendship, has a goodly share in bringing about this modern miracle—that eleven out of twelve marriages are comparatively successful.

Windows should never be washed while the sun is shining on them or they will be clouded and streaked.

Fish scales are easily removed if hot water is poured over them until the scales curl, then scrape quickly.

To remove the smell of fish from cooking vessels wash them with soap and vinegar, then scour with scalding vinegar.

The white-fleshed fish, such as halibut, cod, flounder and white fish are more easily digested than other varieties.

When stoves are about to be put away for the summer, apply kerosene to them with a rag. This will prevent rust.

Eating onions before retiring is said to insure more restful sleep. Onions also clear the complexion and produce energy.

A good polish for patent leather shoes is one part linseed oil and two parts cream, well mixed. Apply with a bit of soft flannel.

Yeast cakes will keep fresh for a week if the tin foil is removed and the cakes are covered in a cup of salt water and put into a cool place.

To remove water spots on a dress, dampen in lukewarm water. Place a blotter over warm spots on the wrong side and press with a warm iron.

Household Notes.

Keep a covered pail in the kitchen or the shed for scraps.

A little minced ham added to the omelet makes a savory change.

Small sweet peppers are excellent mixed with celery in a potato salad.

If the lamp wick is too large for the burner, try drawing a few threads.

Vegetables which grow under the ground should be cooked with the lid on.

Breaded veal served with tomato sauce and spaghetti makes a delicious dish.

Clean nickel and silver pieces with ammonia applied with a flannel cloth. Black stockings should be rinsed in blue water to give them a good color.

Let potatoes lie in cold water a little while before paring if you want them to be white.

If a little zinc is burned in the stove, it will prevent soot from forming in the chimney.

Discolored gilt frames can be brightened if rubbed with a sponge dipped in turpentine.

Try adding a little chopped parsley to the mashed potatoes; it gives them a delicious flavour.

When mixing pie crust or baking powder biscuits they will be much lighter if a fork is used.

Spring Remedies

"This is the time," the doctors say, "when people need our bitters; the sunny languid, vernal day is hard on human criteria. They're always feeling tired and stale, their blood is thick and sluggish, and so they ought to blow their kale for pills and potions druggish. "And, being told we're in a plight, we swallow dope in rivers, to get our kidneys acting right, and jack up rusty livers. We pour down tea of saffras, as ordered by the sawbones, and chewing predigested grass, we exercise our Jawbones. We swallow pints of purple pills, and fool with costly drenches, to drive away imagined-ills and pipe-dream aches and wrenches. And if we'd only take the spade, and dig the fertile gumbo, the ghost of sickness would be laid, and we'd be strong as Jumbo. Of perfect health, that precious boon, we'd have refreshing glimpses, if we would toil each afternoon out where the jimson jimpases. There's medicine in azure skies, and sunshine is a wonder; more cures are wrought by exercise than by all bottled thunder. So let's forsake the closed up room, and hoe weeds-cockle-burris, where elder-berry bushes bloom, and junorberries flourish.

HANS WAGNER.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old-Swash."

Hans Wagner, one of the world's greatest swat soloists, resides in Pittsburgh during the overheated season, but is very well known in seven other American cities where he is as welcome as smallpox.

Wagner is one of the greatest musicians the world has ever known. There are people who sneer at his musical ability and claim that a namesake of his, Richard Wagner, who died some years ago, produced far greater music. This is preposterous, however. Richard Wagner never lifted more than four or five thousand people at a sitting and it took three and four hours of incessant playing to do this; whereas Hans Wagner, by one single exquisite quadruple bass-lump, has brought thirty thousand people to their feet and has sent them home happier men and women.

Wagner produces his music with a common hickory baseball bat. In his leisure moments he plays short-stop for the Pittsburgh team. He is a stout, short man with large, wide-branching legs and a pair of hands that are as grabby as an oil trust. If the regular army were to shoot a three-inch shell at Wagner while he was shortstopping, he would knock it down with one hand, pick it up with the other and shoot it to first before it had time to explode.

Wagner is an old man, as base ball players go, and has been batting around Pittsburgh for a good many years. Sometimes he bats .400 and sometimes only .300, but he always bats enough to make himself a great pest in New York, Chicago and elsewhere. Wagneritis is a common and very distressing disease among young pitchers, and most of them have suffered from it at one time or another.

Mr. Wagner is a poor conversationalist and rarely attempts to tell an anecdote how far the latter has descended from the Ape family. He does most of his talking with his bat. There are few things more eloquent than a balanced hickory remark by this eminent gentleman with the bases full and the enemy only one run ahead.

The Nickel's Charity.

TWO DAYS' RECEIPTS.
Manager Kieley has decided to give the entire gross receipts of Easter Monday and Tuesday to the Sealers' Disaster Fund. The Nickel has never been behind in its acts of kindness and charity, and this is but another of many. Easter Monday is the Nickel's best day, so it will be seen that this popular house of entertainment is giving of its best. The Nickel which has been closed for two months has been thoroughly renovated, and is now better than ever before. The programme for Monday is the biggest and best ever presented here. Mr. Walter McCarthy, a son of Newfoundland, who has made a name for himself abroad, will appear, and Miss Etta Gardner, the popular rag-time singer, will be heard again. Joe Ross, the drum artist, has also returned. No one should miss the opening show. It is all for charity. Let patrons roll up a fine sum; it will all be needed by the widows and orphans.

At the Crescent.

"The Beaton Path," a thrilling story in three reels of 3,000 feet long takes also an hour to present. It is the big feature that will open the Easter season at the Crescent Picture Palace on next Monday and Tuesday. This remarkable subject commands the interest and attention of the audience from the start to the finish. It is truly a wonderful production and a revelation in the movie world. Read to-morrow's Herald for a synopsis of the plot which runs through the story and which is acted by many of the best known actors in the profession to-day; also particulars of the other picture and song by a vocalist direct from the Orpheum Theatre, Montreal. Admission: Evenings, 10 cents; Afternoons, 5 cents.

THE GREATER QUESTION.

At this season of the year for Farmers with up-to-date ideas is, what are the best means to use to get the best returns from the land.

Fertilizers must be used liberally if large returns are looked for. There are several good chemical fertilizers which may be recommended, but Sulphate of Ammonia has been proved to give the best returns, and is the most valuable and economical source of Nitrogen for agricultural purposes.

For vegetables, grass, and all leafy crops, about one and a half cwt. per acre is the best quantity to use, and this should be applied weekly, as well as making it's growth, as well as before sowing the seed.

If a liquid mixture is preferred, a 1/2 oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water should be used, and applied once a week for a month. This quantity should not be exceeded.

It is a good plan to reduce the Sulphate to a fine powder, and mix with four or more times its own bulk, for the purpose of diluting the manure, which is very powerful.

For potatoes the following mixture is strongly recommended:—
40 lbs. Superphosphate,
26 lbs. Fine bone meal,
10 lbs. Carbonate of Magnesia,
15 lbs. Sulphate of Potash,
21 lbs. SULPHATE OF AMMONIA.

1 cwt.
Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to 43 square yards.

The use of Carbonate of Magnesia, in conjunction with Sulphate of Ammonia is of great importance in potato culture.

For turnips use the following:—
66 lbs. Superphosphate,
13 lbs. Fine bone meal,
13 lbs. Sulphate of Potash,
20 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia.

1 cwt.
Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to square yards.

Sulphate of Ammonia of excellent quality is now made by the St. John's Gas Light Company and may be obtained on very reasonable terms.

Full particulars may be obtained at the Gas Works, or at the Board of Trade Building. Ask for special booklet on the use of Sulphate. It will be found of great value in securing the heaviest crops.

At the R. C. Cathedral.

Last night, Office of Tenebrae was celebrated. Rt. Rev. Mons. Roche presided, assisted by Dr. Greene and Rev. Fr. Sheehan, as chanters. The first lamentation was sung by Rev. Fr. Conway, the second by Dr. Greene and the third by the Altar boys. Tonight at evening prayers, there will be Office of Tenebrae and a sermon by Fr. Sears. To-morrow morning there will be mass of the Resurrection, Stations of the Cross in the afternoon and at 7.30 Office of Tenebrae and a sermon from Dr. Kitchin.

Stephano Home.

The s.s. Stephano, Capt. A. Kean, arrived from the northern seaboard at 5.30 p.m. yesterday. She has 21,000 seats. It will be remembered the Stephano figured in the rescue of the Newfoundland's men. Approached by newspaper men, Capt. Kean stoutly refused to speak on the disaster and preferred to keep silent and say nothing until called upon to give his evidence at the enquiry.

Evening Telegram. W. J. HERDER, Proprietor. W. F. LLOYD, Editor. THURSDAY, April 9th, 1914.

Sympathy and Aid. It is now nine days since the Southern Cross was reported in the vicinity of Cape Pine on her way home. The Kyle has been out searching since Saturday morning and the Fiona has been out on the same quest. Up to the time of writing she has not been reported, and few people have any belief that she is still afloat. Many seafaring men believe she foundered on the fatal 31st, the day of the storm which cut off the Newfoundland's crew from their ship. The only wreckage of the Southern Cross is found in the meantime, we must cling to the hope that she is still afloat. The fact that there were 173 souls afloat in her has caused terrible anxiety not only to their relatives, but to the community. If we have to cope with this situation as well as that of the Newfoundland, it means some 250 breadwinners have been swept away out of a population of less than 250,000. In other words one in every 1,000 of those to be supported. Reckoning 50,000 male breadwinners in the community, the loss will amount to one in every 20. This is an awful economic loss to the community at large, not to speak of those thousand or so, on whom the loss will fall directly. The only hopeful sign is the widespread sympathy which has been evoked, and the generous way in which those whose hearts have been touched are sending in subscriptions to enable those in charge of relief to cope with the situation.

Mr. Redstone Passes Away. Messrs. Marshall Bros. received a cablegram to-day apprising them of the death of their buyer, Mr. W. J. Redstone, a well known figure in St. John's. Mr. Redstone went to the American markets while the late Mr. William Marshall visited the English markets to purchase goods for their firm. Following the death of the late Mr. Redstone crossed to London and recently left the Motherland on the way home. He left Liverpool on the R.M.S. Tunisian and the day after sailing was stricken with jaundice coupled with an attack of rheumatism which he had been suffering from in the early part of the winter. On arrival at London he collapsed at the Hotel he was in and was immediately removed to the Infirmary under the care of specialists, doctors and nurses. At five o'clock last evening he became critically ill and never recovered. Mr. J. Sumerville, of the firm of G. M. Barr's, was present during the dying moments of his companion and friend. The remains will be embalmed and forwarded here for interment. Deceased was 46 years old, and was 26 years in the employ of Marshall Bros., 12 years of which he was buyer. He is survived by a widow and seven children and in addition to a very large circle of friends. In the general sincere and widespread sympathy that will go out, the Telegram unites.

This Date in History. APRIL 9. Full Moon—10th. Days Past—98 To Come—266. Holy Thursday. FRANCIS BACON died 1626, aged 65. "The wisest, brightest, meanest of mankind," really died in disgrace, having in 1621 been accused of bribery and corruption, heavily fined and forbidden to enter court. But he is best remembered by his many works that he has written of which the best known and most widely read are his "Essays."

NATIONAL GALLERY opened 1838 in London. Erected then at a cost of £96,000 it has since been enlarged. There are now about 1,650 pictures there. ROSETTI died 1882, aged 54. The son of Gabriele Rossetti, an exiled Italian who settled in London in 1824. Dante produced a great number of pictures remarkable for their extreme beauty of drawing, splendour of colouring, and poetic force. He also distinguished himself as a poet.

APRIL 10. Good Friday. Days Past—99 To Come—265. WILLIAM HAZLITT born 1778. This essayist and dramatic critic was persuaded by Coleridge to publish his works and his first book "An essay on the Principle of Human Action" was published in 1805. Up to the time of his death he was a most prolific writer.

GENERAL BOOTH born 1829. The late General is one of the outstanding personalities of the century, and his exceptional capacity for organization in the Army by which he successfully reclaimed and uplifted fallen humanity was remarkable. FATHER DAMIEN died 1889, aged 49. The Belgian missionary to Honolulu who gave his life for the lepers there. He bore the Cross indeed and it is eminently fitting that the anniversary of his death this year should fall on the day we celebrate Christ's crucifixion. He, as well as Christ, showed the "greater love, by which they laid down their lives for their friends."

The sin of the whole world is essentially the sin of Judas—Men do not believe their Christ; but they sell Him. —Ruskin.

The Newfoundland Disaster Enquiry Before Judge Knight

TO MR. WARREN, K.C.—Tuff was in charge. The master watches usually take extra food. I have been out five springs. First time as master watch.

TO MR. LLOYD.—The prog I took with me from the Newfoundland consisted of 1 lb. of oatmeal, nearly a pound of meat, 10 or 12 cakes of expansion biscuit. Two day's grub for expansion biscuit. As a rule the steward packs the master watches' food bag. When the group turned back the sky was heavy, not much wind. I did not hear what we were to do if weather came on. I was not frost-bitten. I did not see any other crew men were scattered.

Alfred Hayward (sworn).—I belong to Newfoundland crew. Before I left ship on Tuesday, I heard no one say where we were going. We followed the master watch. Sky was overcast, but it was fine when we started. After three miles some turned back. I don't know why they turned back. There was no weather on. Sky looked thick and heavy. The captain of the Bellaventure told us to come aboard to get a mug up. There was a little spot of seals to the S.W. After the mug-up he told us to get overboard. It was snowing then, pretty thick, could see no distance ahead; wind was freshening. None of men to my knowledge objected to going, or said anything about staying aboard. I did not stop to kill seals. The second hand said we had better get aboard our ship. This was before 2 p.m. On Wednesday we sighted the Bellaventure about 11.30 a.m. On Thursday morning, I had 6 cakes of hard bread on Tuesday morning, that was all. I helped myself. I am 35. I have been going to the ice 15 springs.

TO MR. WARREN, K.C.—I was never out all night before.
TO MR. LLOYD.—I don't know why I only ate two cakes of the six. The rest I gave to my comrades. I brought back half a cake on board. I heard no talk of staying on board of Stephano if the weather became bad. I did not hear Tuff say anything about a chance of passing a night on the ice.

Thomas Ryan (sworn).—I belong to Turk's Cove, T.B. I was in Newfoundland. I know we were going to Stephano. I heard our second hand say all hands overboard on the starboard side. Some of the men said they were going for seals 2 miles to S.W. I heard no one raise any objection to leave the Stephano. We went half a mile S.W. and found some seals. The weather was getting worse. Our master watches and second hand consulted together and we started for Newfoundland. On Thursday morning there were 26 on our ship. All hands had grub. I had 6 cakes of biscuit. I gave a few crumbs to some friends. Some gave to me.

TO MR. WARREN, K.C.—This is my first spring out. All I troubled about after leaving the Stephano was to get on with chums and master watches.

TO MR. LLOYD.—I know John Conway, of Turk's Cove and Azarial Mills, of New Perlican. They were among those who turned back. I was bossman's mate on board and treated like an officer. We had a hash containing meat, potatoes and turnips, which is the same as that payable on ordinary printed matter, viz.: One Cent per every two ounces or fraction thereof.
The public will please take notice that in future all such insufficiently prepaid Newspaper packets will be marked for taxation before despatch in accordance with Article 11 of the detailed Regulation for the Execution of the Postal Union Convention of Rome.

not see Tuff on the bridge of the Stephano. I did not see him talking to Capt. A. Keen. The talk on the ice after we struck the seals was that we would soon have to get aboard as the weather was coming on. I wore some knitted inside underclothing. I am 32 years old and unmarried.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The hearing was resumed at 3 p.m. JOSEPH RENDELL (Sworn), examined by Hutchings K.C.—I belong to Bonavista Harbour, was one of Newfoundland's crew this year, an ordinary hand, was in Arthur Moulant's watch. Before leaving the ship on Tuesday last I understood we were going towards the Stephano. It was fine with sky overcast. About half way about 20 of our crew returned, don't know why. I was fine. Reached the Stephano at 11.30. Capt. A. Keen told us to come aboard and get a mug up. She was steaming towards us as we approached her. Before we boarded her it was snowing a little, and after our mug up the snow fell thicker, not much wind, could not see far, perhaps 3 or 4 miles. Could not see our ship. Capt. Keen told us there were a few seals about S. W. and he had steamed in that direction about two miles while we were below. Capt. Keen told our crew to get over on the ice, and we started S. W. the Stephano slowed and steamed away from us. I don't know whether any of our men objected to leave her, I heard none, nor did I hear any express a desire to remain. I went with our second hand and his crew about 1/2 a mile and waited for the other men to come up. We then went about S. E. don't know at whose suggestion, took it for granted it was the second hand. The weather was much worse then, snowing hard, blowing heavy and drifting, kept on until about dusk, then divided into three groups and prepared shelter for the night. Remained on the pan till Wednesday morning, then shifted to another pan, weather still bad, until the afternoon, when it cleared and we saw the Bellaventure. Our Master Watch left to go to her and did not return to our pan. I stayed on the pan until Thursday morning, and then went towards the Bellaventure. I think 11 or 12 were dead on our pan when I left it. On the way to the Bellaventure met some of her crew, who helped me aboard about 11 or 12 o'clock. I don't know if all our men were supplied with food before leaving our ship on Tuesday. I had nine cakes of bread myself. Could have had more if I liked. The men were all clad in usual way, with overalls and jumpers. Am 35 years old, this was my third year at sealishery.

TO DR. LLOYD.—I did not hear the second hand tell our men to get over the starboard side. We got over starboard side; don't know why; don't know if it was on account of the weather. The starboard side was the lee side. The Stephano was stopped so that we could cross her bow. I was only slightly frostbitten on one cheek. I wore heavy fleecelined underclothes.

TO WARREN, K.C.—It was snowing when I came on the Stephano's deck. Capt. Keen took us on board to give us a mug-up and to put us down among the seals. I heard Capt. Keen say to get over the starboard side. He was then on the bridge.

TO DR. LLOYD.—I saw Tuff on the bridge with Capt. Keen; but he was not near him. They were not talking when I saw them.

ARTHUR ABBOTT (sworn), examined by Hutchings, K.C.—I belong to Bonavista Harbour; was one of the Newfoundland's crew this spring in Arthur Moulant's watch. We left our ship on Tuesday, March 31st, in the morning, and went to the S. S. Stephano. It was a good morning when we left, with sky overcast. About half way a number of our men turned back, don't know why, but thought they were afraid of the weather. Sky was heavy then, but no snow. Just before we got on board the Stephano snow began to fall; this was about 11 o'clock. Capt. Keen told us to come aboard and get something to eat. We went below and had a mug-up, were not long, and then came on deck. The weather was on then, getting real thick; could not see more than half mile; not much wind. The Capt. told us there were some seals to the S.W. and he brought us about a couple of miles toward them while we were below. Capt. Keen told us to get out on starboard side. Our second hand got out with the crowd. I did not see him on deck. We went around bow of steamer. Heard no one object to leaving the Stephano. Went half mile further S. W. some stopped killing seals. I went on with the rest about 400 yards. Stopped then for short time. Then the second hand said we would have to try and go towards our ship. Did not hear him say anything about being out all night. We travelled till nightfall in what we thought was direction of our ship, then divided up into three groups, and rigged a shelter for the night. I was on the pan with Moulant's men until Thursday morning. On Wednesday afternoon saw Bellaventure. Arthur Moulant started for her, but did not return to us. On Thursday the survivors started for the Bellaventure. I think there was about 25 dead men on our pan, am not sure, as I was blind. I was unable to go with the rest, and stayed until picked up. I had seven cakes of bread when I left our ship; could have got more if I wanted it; gave away a couple of cakes to others. I wore woollen wove underclothing, not extra heavy.

TO WARREN, K.C.—Am thirty years old. This is my third spring to the ice.

TO DR. LLOYD.—Was not near enough the men who turned back on Tuesday to hear what they said. Did not hear any one object to leave the Stephano; don't think any of our men wanted to stay on board. We wanted to get after the seals, by direction of our second hand. I heard the second hand and master watches talking about returning to our ship just before we started for her.

THOMAS GROVES (sworn) examined by Hutchings, K.C.—I belong to Bonavista, was an ordinary hand in Newfoundland this year in Arthur Moulant's watch. Our crew left to go to the Stephano on Tuesday. Did not know we were going when we started. Weather fairly good, could see the sun, sky slightly overcast. About half way some of our men turned back, don't know why. There was nothing then falling, but sky was heavy. I went on with the rest, and it began to snow a little just before reaching the Stephano. Capt. A. Keen told us to come on board and get a mug-up, which we did. On board the Stephano I heard nothing about seals to the S. W. After the mug-up it was snowing fast, blowing hard. Capt. Keen told our crew to get over on the starboard side, and we all got over. No one objected to go, that I know of. Don't know if any wanted to stay on board. Did not see our second hand until we gathered together to take our course for our own ship. We crossed the bow of the Stephano and went S.W. about half a mile; some men stopped to kill seals. I went on with the rest about 400 yards and I stayed there until after consultation, the second hand decided to walk towards the Newfoundland, and we kept on until between 5 and 6 o'clock, when we divided into three groups for purpose of shelter for the night. I was with Arthur Moulant's crew until Thursday morning about 10 o'clock. On Wednesday p.m. we saw the Bellaventure and Moulant started for her, but did not return. I with others went towards her Thursday morning. There were 20 or more dead men on our pan when we left. On the way we were met by some of the Bellaventure's crew, who helped us aboard about 11 o'clock.

TO DR. LLOYD.—I saw Capt. Keen on bridge of Stephano, did not see our second hand on board after we got up on deck. From the Stephano the seals lay S. W. to the windward. The wind was S. E. It was not too windy to get out on the port side. I wore flannel shirt and woollen drawers.

TO WARREN, K.C.—Often hear Captains tell which side to get over. Have been twenty springs to the ice, and am 45 years old.

TO THE JUDGE.—I kept moving constantly from Tuesday night until Thursday a.m. Just at dawn, when I stopped a minute or two and fell. I saw I was lying across three dead dead bodies, and jumped up again and kept going until I got aboard the Bellaventure. It is not unusual for men to be out all night at the ice. I was out all night once before, when I was with Capt. Jacob Keen.

THE CAPTAIN'S STATEMENT.

WESTBURY KEAN (examined by Hutchings, K.C.)—I am master of the S.S. Newfoundland and prosecuted the sealishery in her this year. I cleared from Westville on March 12th with a crew of about 186. The position of the ship on Tuesday, March 31st, was about 45 miles S.E. by S. of the Funks. The weather that morning at 7 a.m. was beautifully fine. The sky was not absolutely clear, but the barometer was 'fair.' The Stephano bore from us about N. N. W. about four miles. The Florizel was east of her, the Bonaventure in to the westward, the Bellaventure to the south where it was a bit hazy. I could only see the latter at times. On the previous day I received a sign from the Stephano that there was a patch of seals near her, and our ship was working towards the Stephano until we got jammed and could go no further, so on Tuesday morning I called the second hand and said, 'Isn't this hard that we're so near these seals and can't get there now,' and he replied, 'Sure, Captain, it's no trouble to walk there now,' which was just what I wanted him to say. I said, 'Now, then, George, you go down and lead the crowd and make right for the Stephano, and from that you'll be able to know exactly where the seals are, and fine out all from father. I can't give you any order as to what you will do when you get there. I leave it all with you.' I said this because of his experience and judgement. I then went on deck and ordered all hands out. I said get ready and follow your master watches and they all went away. I said to Tuff in the barrel, 'Now, George, in case you get in the seals and are panning for any length of time, you reckon on the Stephano for the night and not us.' I said nothing about the weather that I remember of. I might or might not, but I have an idea that I did. We are always telling the master watches in case of weather to make for the nearest ship if they can't find their own. The men left our ship about 7 a.m. and went towards the Stephano. Twenty-nine returned about 1 o'clock. One said, 'We didn't see anything to go on for,' another said, 'We saw the crowd ahead pinnacing,' which means no seals; another said, 'The first crowd got a good distance ahead we saw the weather coming on, and saw nothing to go on for.' I said, 'Well boys, you had a right to follow your master watch. If a master watch had come back I would have blamed him and not you; the crowd that went ahead got on board the Stephano an hour ago.' I saw them go aboard. Now I said the case is just this: if the seals are there the men on the Stephano are working in them now, and you are here doing nothing. One man said he did not understand from anyone where he had to go or do. I told him his duty was to follow his master watch, who had the orders. I told them it was not a hard walk, and that they should have gone on, as long as your master watches went. In fact as long as your master watches goes on you go with them, and when he comes back you come back with him, and then he will be responsible not you. I also told them I have no objection in case anything happened to a man, such as falling in or injuring a limb to see that man return with two or three others to keep him company; or when you are ordered. (Continued from 7th page.)

deped to go in the morning. If any man is not equal to the work, all you have to do is to let me know and I will only be too glad to let him remain. I then went in the cabin. Afterwards one of my men, I think the bosun, came to me and said these men feel pretty bad; they didn't understand what they were supposed to do, and wouldn't have wished it for anything. When these men got back to the ship it was pretty thick snow, could not see Stephano, could see a man about half a mile. During the afternoon it gradually got worse, and at night was a terrible storm. None of the men that reached the Stephano came back that day. I had no anxiety about them. I was sure they were aboard some other ship, as there was ships where I sent them. Storm continued bad until 3 p.m. Wednesday, when it cleared a little, but blew hard. The ice where we were gave a little, but not enough for us to get under way. Even then I had no anxiety about the men. At times I could see the Stephano or Florizel sometimes between the snow squalls, was not sure which, bearing N. by E. To the south I saw a ship which I thought was the Diana, it was clearer to leeward and I could see with the glass better. The wind was N.W., a gale. I think I saw the Bellaventure about N. W. by N. from us. Later on just before sunset, the snow cleared off, and I recognized the Stephano as the first one seen. She was further east than on Tuesday, perhaps two or more miles, this might have been caused by winding ice. It was clear enough on Wednesday to see signals from Stephano, but not to distinguish correctly. I felt sure my men were on board, and was making good headway towards the Stephano, and expected to reach her in an hour, so did not think of trying to signal. We did not reach that evening and worked all night through ice until 2 a.m. Thursday, when we were jammed, I think we were then a mile and a half from the Stephano. When we got that close I was expecting to see her come out and give me my men, but then if the seals are there they would keep my men till daylight and put them out, which seemed a reason why she did not come towards me. Other reasons for her not coming occurred, one was that the seals may have laid towards the Florizel and my men might be on her. I began to get fidgety about my men that night as to what ship they were on board, and I thought of making some signals with lights, but if I made such distress signals, some of the other ships would think we were in distress, would send men to find out what was the matter, or send my whole crew, and if some of them fell in the water and met with accident, I would be blamed, as it would be dangerous on the ice at that time of night.

NIGHT SESSION.
After tea the examination of Captain Westbury Kean was continued as follows:
I made no night signals for the reason given. My men might have been safe and I would be risking other lives for no purpose. Before it was well light I was in the barrel spying what was going on, expecting to see all hands on deck ready to get out for seals. Only a very few men were seen. I then cast my glass around the horizon, and suddenly caught sight of the men walking towards my ship. Right then it occurred to me what had happened, that my men had got adrift and I knew what must have occurred. I don't remember what I did for some time after being paralyzed with fright, but called Mr. Green and the steward and told them what I had seen. The men appeared to be about two miles distant, some were lagging behind showing signs of fatigue. I went to the hold called out the crew and dis-

it-must-be Bournil

Proved by independent scientific investigation to have a Body-Building Power of 10 to 20 times the amount taken there is no recognized signal of distress amongst the men, we sometimes put two flags on top of each other to indicate positions.

To Dr. Lloyd.—Have been master of the Newfoundland four years, sixteen springs to the ice. Am 29 years old. I had no wireless on board. We had it on board four years ago. The next year we had the apparatus but no operator as he could not connect with us owing to some accident. The apparatus was taken out previous to last spring. I don't think my advice was asked as to removing the apparatus, but cannot say for certain. It was mentioned to me: In conversation with Mr. A. J. Harvey, I told him the apparatus worked well and praised it. I don't remember no distinct expression. I had always spoken in the highest terms of recommendation and was very sorry when it was removed. If I had had the Marconi system I feel confident that not one life would have been lost, because I would have known exactly when my men got on the Stephano, when they were put on the seals, that they were walking towards my ship. I would have known whether they were on any other ships, and other crews could have helped locate them if they were adrift. I would have had enquiries whether they were on board my ship. The ordinary Toronto weather forecast might or might not be useful. If I knew a storm was due I would try to get my men in before it came. If I received the weather report that a storm was due, I would direct my men to look out for it, but I would not plead guilty to the charge of keeping my men on board when they were seals because Toronto predicted a storm even for that day. We rely on our glass, and our eyes. The glass is the safest guide at the sealfishery. I have the barometer logged on this trip. It was kept by the navigator, Mr. Green. I watched the barometer frequently. It was second nature to me. I have never known a captain to keep his men from panning seals that were near by, on account of the glass being low, but would always warn the men and take stricter precautions about getting the men aboard. From Monday till Tuesday the barometer was fair and showed no exceptional conditions. I cannot say whether there was a gradual rise or fall during the night. I saw no noticeable change.
The hearing adjourned at 10 p.m. until 10 this morning.

PROCEEDINGS WERE RESUMED AT 10 A.M.
CAPT. WESTBURY KEAN (continued).—To Dr. Lloyd.—The signal from my father on Monday conveyed the information that seals were near the Stephano. I did not reply, the fact of my men leaving was signal enough. Second hand was in charge with full power to exercise his judgment as to the time they were to stay away. I did not see my men leave the Stephano, it was slightly snowing. I did not know my men had left the Stephano. I expected they had. Did not see the Stephano that day afterwards, nor any other steamer. I did not expect my men back that night. I thought they would board one of the ships in the vicinity where they were working seals.
To Mr. Warren, K.C.—I think the man who left the main body on Tuesday returned because they got faint hearted at not seeing any seals, the impression was not created on my mind that they came back because the weather looked bad. The Stephano was moving slowly on Tuesday morning. I saw her crew out as I thought. Those I saw were not far from her. I judged her to be a mile from us. Our men took about four hours and a half to reach the Stephano, the ship was moving and increasing the distance for our men, the waiting was not good. My second hand thought a mile an hour would be about what they walked. I waited for Tull to offer to lead the men, because it was not his duty usually. The signal between myself and my father was only one word: "seals." I blew my whistle until I assumed that all who returned from the morning crowd were aboard. I did not blow it at night. It would not have been heard far owing to the storm. The Newfoundland's horn is about the same as on other wooden ships. If I had known my men were on the ice I would have blown the whistle. I would have tried to make a fire. I absolutely relied on my belief that my men were on another ship. It didn't occur to me that my men would leave their work early and come back to me, because I saw other men panning and thought my men would do the same. I saw other men panning at midday. My second-hand told me that the men stopped the Stephano had gone six miles away, and thought it wiser to return to the ship. I did not know the Stephano had gone away, or I would have expected my men back. I can recall looking at the barometer during the storm, just after tea, Tuesday night, when I said to Mr. Green "What's all this fuss about, meaning the storm, the glass doesn't show for it." The glass did not show any marked change. The glass is not always correct, sometimes it gives warning and sometimes otherwise. At Labrador we often get a low glass with no storm locally, and we sometimes have a storm locally which the glass does not indicate. It is the practice for men to carry food when they leave the ship for work. I know no regulation or order requiring them to take food, they are expected to look out for themselves. Frequently careless fellows will not provide for themselves. If we see such we call them back and see they have food. I have heard that a good many who were lost had not food enough to last them. The food is carried in a canvas bag, many men carry a tin containing liniment at their belt. The best food for the ice is hard bread. Properly provided men carry a stringed bag containing a mixture of oatmeal, raisins and sugar, a mixture that is very nourishing. I think men ought not to go out without such provision. It is difficult to force men to provide themselves, they are often very careless. (To be continued.)

OTTAWA, April 8.—When Parliament met this afternoon Premier Borden announced he had been in communication with Mr. Bennett, Acting Premier of Newfoundland, in respect of recent disaster which had caused great loss of life, which now seemed to be even greater than was at first apprehended, as small hopes were held out as to the fate of the Southern Cross. He had extended the sympathy of the Canadian Government and Canada's people, and on behalf of the Government had given practical evidence of Canadian sympathy by a grant to assist families of lost. He would accordingly ask Parliament for a grant of $10,000 for the purpose. The action of the Government in this matter is worthy of commendation, commented Sir Wilfred Laurier, and will have the hearty support of this side of the House.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and the bridal party were photographed, after which they were to Donovans, where the honeymoon will be spent. These arrived from Bay of Islands by yesterday's train Inspector Bartlett in charge of a prisoner named Nelson, resting on the guilty party and he was captured later at Deer Lake. A word to those who wear "Twenty-five cent Glasses." Do you realize that by so doing, you virtually admit that twenty-five cents is the value you place upon God's greatest gift to you? There is no law to prevent you from injuring your eyes by using such glasses excepting, perhaps, the law of common sense. Of course you don't know why cheap glasses play such havoc with your eyes, and health generally, nor does the man who sells them to you know. An eyesight specialist can tell you, and if you would interest yourself to the extent of asking him to explain, you would never look through a pair of them. Anything more perfect or beautiful than the human eye would be impossible for man to conceive. Then, why, when physical aid is needed, to enable it to perform its functions with greater ease, do you use cheap glasses or submit yourself to persons of questionable ability to suit you? When your eye-ey out for assistance, go to H. Trapnell, the Eyesight Specialist who will faithfully examine them and give you none but the best quality glasses if glasses are needed at all. Thousands are ready to testify to the great benefit received at his hands.—mar18,eod,tf

The Message of the Crucifixion to Us To-Day.

REV. DR. JONES,
Carboacar.

The tragedy of Calvary brings to us to-day the message of a two-fold duty—of love, namely, towards our fellowman, and of cheerful acquiescence in the allotments of Divine Providence. The Passion, culminating on the heights of Golgotha, was a record of love expressing itself in painful obedience—even unto death.

REV. JAMES WILSON,
Flat Island.

"We preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling block, and unto the Greeks foolishness; but unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God." "Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men; and the weakness of God is stronger than men."

What was done in the apostolic times was owned of God in the salvation of men and women; and when this preaching Christ as the great sacrifice for sinners, has been faithfully preached since that time the same kind of Divine approval has taken place. The great need of the church of Christ to-day is the prayer of faith in God, to power upon the whole of His Zion the spirit of wrestling, until she finds the same power came down upon her as came down at the day of Pentecost. So may it be.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hesson Fuesste

Marian Overhears Things

The crisp vitality of the morning filled Marian with a feeling of physical and mental fitness as she beamed a street car, regretting that she had not found a seat. The engagement at the dentist's room had been so crowded that she had to forego the walk she had planned. The car was not crowded and she fortunately found a seat. The course of the car was lined on every hand by rows of pleasant homes. Momentary glimpses of the cross-town streets revealed further rows upon rows of dwellings. Through upon rows of windows, she could see some of the trees dancing upon the hearths. Through others she saw children at play. At many a curb stood motor cars, their chauffeurs waiting to transport contented wives to the shopping district. Contented? Were they after all contented? She questioned it. Surface impressions no longer deceived her. The hating events had deepened her perception that looked deeper than mere showy surfaces. Cynicism had begun to color her views, and as the car hurried on, she saw visions of tragedy in every home that flashed into sight. But, as in most women, this mood was brief. It was followed by the feeling that untoward circumstances had cheated her out of the finest thing in life. Now the houses seemed to mock and laugh at her. Every home here like an embodied triumph. In the myriads of homes that rose on every hand were incorporated those of her own. In that game of chance she had failed completely. Defeated in her struggle with circumstances she had backed out of the game. Voluntarily she had given up the thing that calls for insistent and clear vision to every woman. She had hardly started, before she had quit. Might she not, with greater patience, endurance, and strength of purpose, have won? She cast the bitter question out of her mind and tried to think of other things. Presently words and phrases of the conversation of two women in the seat beside her began drifting to her ears. They were discussing an approaching party. The question of invitations was uppermost.

"How about Emily?" asked one of the women.
"I've been thinking about her," was the reply. "But of course I can't invite her. It's a pity she got mixed up in all this divorce business. She's been dropped all along the line. Didn't Mrs. Jenkins, her best friend, it was supposed, leave her out when she sent invitations to her reception? It struck me as being a shame at the time, but what can you do? Emily's private affairs are nothing to me, to be sure, but I've got to think of appearances."
"But it seems so cruel," put in the other. "What woman wouldn't have divorced that husband of hers. Why, he's a rake! The testimony at the trial was the limit. I'm surprised that it ever got into the papers."
"Lots of husbands are more or less of rakes," was the sage reply. "The crime doesn't consist so much of being a rake, as it does of being found out. Personally, I think Emily used very poor judgment in telling everything she knew in court."
"Why not? It was the truth."
"Oh, of course, my dear. But what a pity that she couldn't have justified divorce proceedings on some less unpleasant grounds. The trouble with Emily is that she's too honest. She's as honest as a child. Her idea was to let the world know candidly and fully why she insisted on breaking up this home, but for my part, I couldn't see the sense of it. I'm afraid she has ruined herself socially, unless she should happen to marry someone with a mint of money. And I don't believe she's clever enough to do anything like that. To my mind, the average divorce is perfectly absurd. It's nothing short of a display of unmitigated egotism. Women ought to know that men aren't angels. They have no business being astonished and angry when they discover that their husbands are like men in general."
Marian got out of the car wondering whether "unmitigated egotism" had been the reason back of her own divorce.
To be continued to-morrow.

The conversation of the two women drifted to her ears.

A Permanent Fund.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Allow me through your columns to express my amazement that any opposition to the formation of a permanent Marine Disasters' Fund, should be raised by any person, and especially by some leaders of men in this Colony.

The hazardous calling which many of our people have to follow, where in many cases they have literally to play with death, in order to support their families, makes it imperative that such a fund should be in existence. It is criminal that such a fund is not in being. Here we are taking things easy, until a big calamity befalls us, and then every one is wrought into a fever of activity, and the hat is passed around and funds are collected to meet the requirements of the present catastrophe only without a thought at all for the future. Witness the Regulus, the Erna, and now the awful calamity that has befallen us.

Besides the time it will take to get the funds collected, quite a considerable time must elapse before the distribution will be able to begin, as until the amount collected is known it will be impossible to figure with any exactness, the amounts each survivor will receive.

Another point which is lost sight of entirely in this community is when the loss of one seaman occurs, and how often do such losses occur?

In such cases no public meetings are called, and beyond a passing expression of regret that so-and-so has been cut off in his prime, etc., etc., no provision is made for his survivors, (his widow and children, in the case may be), and the only reason if it can be called a reason, is that he faced the grim reaper alone and was not accompanied in the sad journey by forty or fifty of his companions.

That this is true, every person who runs may read, and that the survivors of a single individual suffers as much and needs as much aid, as if the breadwinner was lost with a crowd, is equally true. Now it is impracticable if not impossible to make separate collections for the many losses which annually occur, and which unfortunately are bound to occur in the future, and it is here where the permanent fund would be of great avail. It should not be hard to start this fund and once started contributions would continually pour into it from different sources. Concerts would be held on all the Red Cross Furness and Allan Lines, coming to Newfoundland; on all the Reid Boats, Bowring Bros. Coastal Ships, and the collections be forwarded to the Treasurer in St. John's. A special Sunday could be set apart all over the Island in all the churches and a collection taken up annually in aid of this fund. Several other ways would crop up to aid this work, and after a few years quite a large sum would be accumulated to meet a calamity like the present one, a calamity which the writer prays will be long delayed in our Island Home.

Best Money He Ever Spent.

WAS WHAT C. HANSEN PAID FOR DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Had Been Ailing for Six or Seven Years when He Took a Neighbor's Advice and Found a Complete Cure.
Mona, Man., April 8. (Special).—Mr. Cornelius Hansen, well known and highly respected here, is telling his friends of his simple but complete cure from a protracted illness. The facts in brief are: He had Kidney Disease; he took Dodd's Kidney Pills; they cured him. But let Mr. Hansen tell his own story:
"I was troubled with my Kidneys for six or seven years," he says. "My back was so sore I couldn't get out of bed in the mornings. I tried medicines, but they did me no good. Then I met a neighbour, and he advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. He said he had used them in his family for a long time and they were a great medicine."
"I bought six boxes of them, and by the time I had taken three of them I was feeling better. Now I am quite well, and I think the best money I ever spent in my life was what I paid for Dodd's Kidney Pills."
Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They simply cure sick Kidneys. But they do all that is claimed for them.

Here and There.

ANOTHER STEAMER ENGAGED.—The Red Cross Company have chartered the s.s. Formand to make a trip to Halifax and this port, leaving New York on April 13th.

BEOTHIC TAKES BODIES.—The s.s. Beothic is now rebunkering at Harvey's coastal wharf and will sail to-morrow for the north, bringing the bodies of the sealers who met their death at the icefields.

DAMAGE TO SEALERS.—All the steel sealing steamers were damaged more or less this spring, owing to contact with heavy ice. Some of the ships had as high as 100 rivets removed from the plates. The Florizel had her steering gear thrown out of kilter during the voyage. All the steamers will be repaired within the next two months.

MRS. H. E. GREAVES.
Last night Mrs. Emma Gladley, wife of Mr. Harry E. Greaves, of the National Stores, passed away after a short illness. She was the youngest daughter of the late Joseph Woods, proprietor of a newspaper in the city a half century ago. She was an active and energetic church worker. She is survived by a husband, two sons, two daughters and one brother. To the bereaved family we extend our sincere sympathy.

We beg to announce for this week our display of latest Evening Gowns, and Bridge and Afternoon Frocks. These are copies of French Model Gowns, in lovely shades and designs; no two alike. We give below a description of one Gown, but they must be seen for their elegance to be fully appreciated.

This model is of rich, heavy Ivory Crepe-de-Chine. Waist has folded Chiffon vest caught with tiny cut crystals; sleeves are of Chiffon draped entirely with exquisite lace, waist is veiled with lace, has wide crushed girdle and is finished at corsage with a cluster of shaded Mauve roses and a long rope of pearl and crystal beads. The skirt is in straight clinging lines, and has a double peplum of lace, held in place at back by drape and flat bow of Crepe-de-Chine. This Gown is a very beautiful one in its perfect lines and drapings.

THE EASTERN TRUST COMPANY.

The business of the The Eastern Trust Company is to administer Trusts. In this work it specializes, and it does so other. But its kind of trust is foreign to its scope or beyond its power to administer efficiently.

The Eastern Trust Company never speculates. It invests. It depends for its prosperity upon the efficiency of its management of its clients' business and upon the security of its investments.

The Eastern Trust Company executes the office of executor or administrator with unexampled efficiency, and its usefulness in this field is becoming rapidly more availed of.

For instance—In St. John, New Brunswick, where it has quite lately established a branch, the estate of James Ready, of Fairville, which has been sworn to under $651,300.00, is being administered by The Eastern Trust Company as one of the joint executors of Mr. Ready's will.

In Halifax, Nova Scotia, again, The Eastern Trust Company has just been chosen to administer the estate of Captain William Fleming, which is valued at more than half a million dollars.

The Company now administers many estates which its value amount to several millions of dollars. Particulars will appear in later advertisements.

The Eastern Trust Company can execute this function of executor or administrator as efficiently in Newfoundland as it can in Nova Scotia, Quebec, or New Brunswick.

The Eastern Trust Company requires commodious offices at Water Street. Apply to
