Prince George Succeeds to Greek Throne.

Constantine Abdicated Without Reservation --- Anti-Monarchists Want Venizelos and a Republic --- Anglo-Turkish War Temporarily Averted --- Revolution in Greek Navy Assumes Large Proportions.

TINO UNRESERVEDLY ABDICATES
LONDON, Sept. 27. A Central News despatch from Athens, timed 8.30 this morning, says King Constantine has signed an abdication decree without reservation.

CROWN PRINCE GEORGE SUCCEEDS TINO.
ATHENS, Sept. 27. Crown Prince George will take the oath as King this afternoon at the Palace before members of the retiring Cabinet.

RIOTING IN ATHENS, FORMER MINISTER WOUNDED.
ATHENS, Sept. 27. King Constantine, bowing to the will of the army and navy, has abdicated, the Crown Prince George, who married Princess Elizabeth of Roumania, becomes King of Greece. "Until the people say they want me no more I shall hold my throne," the King declared last night to the Associated Press Correspondent. "He accepts the voice of the people. The revolutionary army is marching on Athens and will reach the capital tonight. Three hundred army officers visited the King to-day and urged the formation of a military cabinet. They were ready they said to put themselves at the head of the people to combat the revolutionists, maintain order and defend the King. A street demonstration by prominent citizens acclaimed Venizelos and the Republic. There was some rioting and former Minister of Agriculture Sideris was wounded.

BELIEVED KEMALIST REPLY UNACCEPTABLE.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 27. Unofficially it is forecasted here that the Kemalists reply to the Allied note will be unacceptable to the Allies because the Nationalists insist upon the use of the Straits for transporting troops to Thrace before beginning the peace conference.

KEMALISTS GIVE WAY IS LATER REPORT.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 27. Possible war between Great Britain and Turkey was at least temporarily avoided this afternoon by an eleventh hour declaration of the Kemalists that they would respect the neutrality of the Straits pending an armistice con-

REVOLUTIONISTS IN FORCE.
ATHENS, Sept. 27. The Revolutionists, who have landed at Cape Sunium on the Peninsula, southeast of Athens, have naval airplanes, two warships, and nine destroyers. General Papoulas has been sent to try and check them while martial law has been proclaimed in the capital. General Koutzias has instructed the garrison here to adhere to the revolutionist movement.

U.S. DESTROYERS FOR CONSTANTINOPLE.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. Secretary Denby to-day ordered two destroyer divisions comprising twelve destroyers to proceed as "early as possible from Norfolk to Constantinople" in response to a request from Rear Admiral Mark Bristol, United States High Commissioner at Constantinople, that they be sent "for the protection of American interests."

BELIEVE RUSSIA WILL PARTICIPATE.
LONDON, Sept. 27. The participation of the Russian government in the Near East conference is considered probable in British official circles, since it is now realized that it would be best for all concerned as Russia is vitally interested in the future of the Straits.

IN CRITICAL CONDITION FROM EXPOSURE.
NORTH SYDNEY, Sept. 28. Walter Norman, aged 21, a native of Bay Roberts, Newfoundland, is in a very critical condition at Hamilton Hospital here, due to exhaustion caused by lack of proper food and exposure. He was found last night in an unused shack at Indian Beach where he had been sleeping for the past month. It is stated he had no food since Saturday. Norman had little employment since April.

ROYAL ENGAGEMENT ANNULLED.
COPENHAGEN, Sept. 27. It will be officially announced to-morrow that Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark and Princess Olga, niece of King Constantine of Greece, have by mutual agreement annulled their engagement.

RURAL ROUTE NO. 1, MASCOUCHE, QUEBEC.
The Mirard's Lintment People, Sirs—I feel that I should be doing a wrong if I neglected to write you. I have had four tumors growing on my head for years. I had them cut off by a surgeon about fifteen years ago but they grew again till about three months ago I had one as large and shaped like a lady's thumb, on the very place where my hair should be parted, and it was getting so embarrassing in public that it was a constant worry to me. About three months ago I got a bottle of your lintment for another purpose and saw on the label good for tumors. Well I tried it and kept it for exactly two months, with the result that it has entirely removed all trace of the tumor, and were it not that they had been cut, fifteen years ago, no mark would have been seen. I have not been asked for this testimonial and you can use it as you see fit.

(Signed) FRED C. ROBINSON, F.S.—I am a farmer and intend using Mirard's Lintment on a mare for a strained tendon, and am hoping for some results.

Beautiful and Talented Star in "Man of the Forest."

AT THE NICKEL THEATRE TOMORROW.

Claire Adams is rapidly becoming the screen's greatest emotional actress. If you doubt, or if you have not seen her recently, her role in "The Man of the Forest," Benj. B. Hampton's great photoplay of the novel by Zane Grey, which you can see at the Nickel Theatre to-morrow, is positive proof. Moreover, she is growing more screenly beautiful and graceful than ever before.

The talent is there in her portrayal of "Helen Raynor" in "The Man of the Forest"—brought out, broadened and strengthened by a polish and sureness of technique that marks Miss Adams' progress from her first picture. Sincerity is her motto and the keynote of her acting, and this sincerity, combined with that inborn inspirational fire, make Miss Adams climb to fame one of the most meteor-like in record.

She is introduced to us in "The Man of the Forest" as a little Missouri music-teacher, but at the very opening of the story Fate waves a magic wand, and she goes to Arizona—modern Arizona, but a fairland of adventure, love and romance. There's a big, strong, most strangely fascinating hero with whom she falls in love, a sister she has to protect, and several villains who plot against her one way or another—and not a dull moment from the time of her arrival until the moment of her great happiness in the end.

Oh, The Monster!

Miss Mildly, a very earnest parishioner, encountered in the street a youth named James, who was very untidy in his attire.

"James," she said, "I gave your father the money last Saturday to buy you a coat. How is it that you are not wearing it, you naughty boy?" James looked sheepish. "E put it on a 'orse, mum," he confessed.

Miss Mildly's expression reflected disgust and horror. "Put it on a horse!" she exclaimed. "Oh, the inhuman action! Surely he should have considered your comfort before that of an animal!"

Liquid in Gems.

It was a wonderful sapphire, so it is said, that led the celebrated Dr. Sorby to the discovery of the nature of the liquid sometimes found enclosed in the cavities of crystals.

The gem in question contained a tube-shaped cavity a quarter of an inch long and an eighteenth of an inch in diameter, which was so regular in its bore that it served, by means of the liquid partially filling it, for a thermometer. The contained liquid half filled the bore at 50 degrees Fahrenheit, and completely filled it at 80 degrees. A study of the rate of expansion of the liquid led to the conclusion that it must be carbonic acid.—Washington Star.

The Rarest Rug in The Universe.

WOULD NOT SELL FOR $10 AT AUCTION, BUT IS TOO PRECIOUS TO BE MOVED.

A rug that is dated is more valuable than one that is not, and because our knowledge of early weaving is so meagre, the earlier the dating the more valuable the rug. A date subsequent to 1850 does not add much to the worth of a rug, while a date in the 18th century might double it; a 17th century date would be sure to do so, and if we could find another rug of the 16th century, earlier than the Ardabil Mosque carpet, its value over an undated piece of equal merit in other respects might easily be threefold.

Inscriptions add to the value of a rug in proportion as they give information concerning the place or character of the weaver, but as most inscriptions are merely verses, from the Koran or more often from some Persian poet, we do not often get much help from that source.

More important still as a source of historical information is the character of the design. To the practiced eye it can be a tale unfolded, and sometimes elevate an ordinary looking rug to a peak of eminence. For example, there is in the Kaiser Friedrich Museum in Berlin, a little rug that would not get a bid of $10 if displayed for sale in the window of a New York department store. Yet it is beyond price and the museum authorities even refused to allow it to be loaned to the Metropolitan Museum, the risk of the voyage being thought to be far too great to be incurred for such a precious price.

It is an ugly little bruch, but it is perhaps the earliest piece of pile weaving out of Asia. Moreover, its design connects it with Chinese patterns and symbols of the 12th century. Mongolian color schemes of the 13th, Caucasian weavings of the 14th, and Italian paintings of the 15th. Rarity and historical interest, alone endow this rug with superlative value.—Arts & Decoration.

What Do You Think of a Fluid

That will draw roaches and ants out of every hole, crack, or crevice before, killing them and not poison food?

That will kill bugs instantly and not leave an unpleasant odor?

That will knock flies off the wall and not harm paint or paper?

That will keep the bedroom, kitchen, or veranda clear of flies, mosquitoes, etc. for several hours after a few sprays?

That will take fear off a dog and not harm the dog?

That will destroy chicken lice without any injury to your stock?

That applied in small quantities to the exposed parts of the body will insure you from Mosquito bites?

That as a general disinfectant is stronger than the ordinary carbolic solution.

THAT FLUID IS SAN-O-SPRAY.

No insect can live where San-O-Spray is used. Yet San-O-Spray is non-poisonous to human beings and can be used with perfect safety in pantry, kitchen, dining room and cellars, moreover San-O-Spray has an agreeable and delightful odor, removing all "fetid or unpleasant odors." In addition San-O-Spray is a disinfectant and germicide. Keeps the home sanitary and free from infectious diseases.

Bulgarian Premier Forces a General European Upheaval.

SOFIA, Bulgaria. Alexander Stamboulsky, since his advent to power as Bulgaria's peasant-premier, has been furnishing Europe with no little amusement by the unceremonious and defiant way he has been treating King Boris, and by his indifferent attitude toward the ever present question of reparations. Not long ago he told the king that if he did not do the bidding of the masses, he might find himself without a throne and in the midst of a Republic. He added a warning that young Boris must not keep his eye on both sides of the fence; that he could give his support only to one party, and that party the group in power. The stalwart Agrarian leader also has given voice to equally novel expressions on various questions of the day. "My enemies," he says "ask the King to throw me over. But that would not be in conformity with constitutional usage. And then they do not know the King. I have him well trained. We are going to amalgamate the Agrarians, Radicals and Social Democrats for the elections of 1924, unless I am assassinated in the meantime.

REPARATIONS ARE HUMBBUG.
"I like the Bulgarian Communists," Stamboulsky declares, "because they support me without any engagement on my part, which is convenient for me. The Communists are practical people, and they will shortly become a party fit to govern. They are forgetting their principles more and more, and they know how to accommodate themselves to circumstances. They know how to talk so as to please people." The Premier says he does not care a snap about reparations. "Reparations are humbug. My connections abroad are much stronger and more numerous than were those of King Ferdinand. Ferdinand knew only crowned heads of no importance while I am on intimate terms with the ruling politicians of the whole world. There is no danger. Nobody will touch Bulgaria. I have got promises. And when we have come to an understanding with Kristo Rakovski, Commissary in the Ukraine, the Soviets will not abandon us." Mr. Stamboulsky has voiced a warning as to the future. "Even should nothing else happen," he declares, "there will be a general mix-up before long. Russia is persistently preparing a debacle which is inevitable. We shall plunge into this upheaval too, and something is sure to come out of it. Wait and see."

Steel Airplanes Weigh Less Than Wooden Ones.

Great Britain possesses an all-steel airplane, a distinct departure in aerial construction. Except for its canvas wings the entire machine is built of steel. Nevertheless, it is 4 per cent lighter than a wooden airplane of the same dimensions. The claim is made that this machine shows a great advance over German airplanes constructed of aluminum alloy which is said to lack the strength of British steel. It is equipped with two Napier 1,000 horsepower engines. Although designed as a fast long distance bomber, it is said to be easy to maneuver as a little fighting scout. This is because of its steel construction, which permits the grouping of all weights. Advantages claimed for all steel airplanes are greater strength, increased load carrying capacity, ease of manufacturing in large quantities, and the fact that they are less vulnerable to bullets and shrapnel while flying, and also they are virtually fireproof.

The Growth of Glass.

HISTORY DOES NOT STATE WHO INVENTED THIS NECESSARY OF EVERYDAY LIFE.

When you admire yourself in a mirror, break a window-pane, or put on your spectacles, do you ever think about the history of that indispensable substance—glass? It is believed to have been first "worked" in Egypt about 1550 B.C. so that it is not exactly a new ideal. The simpler process of "blowing" glass did not appear until 100 B.C. Two hundred years later we find the Romans using glass extensively and establishing centres for its manufacture. Glass articles have been found in the old catacombs.

Nero is said to have given the equivalent of £50,000 for two special glass cups, thus beating even present-day prices for rare glassware. When the lost city of Pompeii was excavated, windows of glass were found in some of the houses. From the Romans, the art of glass-making spread all over Europe, Limoges and Chartres becoming famous glassware centres in France. About the year 1180 glass was introduced into England from France; and later, French experts crossed to England and taught their methods. France also seems to have taken the lead in the manufacture of plate and mirror glass.

Bottles and Biscoulers.
Damascus, Aleppo, Cairo, and Alexandria became noted centres for glass-making, and the industry was established in Venice before the Thirteenth Century.

In England, glass monopolies were soon established. Sir R. Mansell holding the monopoly in this country from 1518-1553. The first bottle factory in England dates from about 1571, and the first English plate-glass works from 1674, this being at Lambeth. In the middle of the Eighteenth Century cut glass was introduced, and the art spread throughout Europe. The great glass centres at that time were London, Stourbridge, and Whittington in England, and Waterford in Ireland.

It was not until the Nineteenth Century that lighthouse and optical glasses were made. Then came the machinery era, which took the place of the old glass handcraft. The Glass-Sellers' Company—one of the old City companies—still remains to remind us of the days when glass-making machinery was unknown, and the work was both costly and arduous.

To-day the great centre of glass manufacture in Britain is St. Helen's, Lancashire, whence glass finds its way to most British, and many foreign, homes. It is something no home can be without.

HOTEL BILLS ARE HUGE.
SYDNEY, N.S.W.—Senator Pearce attended the Washington Limitation of Armaments Conference as the retail representative. Upon his return he presented a bill of expenses amounting to approximately $42,500. Some senators thought this was high, but the commonwealth Treasurer, Mr. Bruce, came forward as one with experience of hotel bills in the United States, and declared one could not live in a Washington hotel for $250 a week unless one had no meals.

The After Effects of Diphtheria Were Paralysis

(Thursday's Health Talk No. 2)
(By Dr. W. H. MacPherson, D.C., Ph.C.)
Diphtheria in itself is very dangerous but when its victim is bedfast for a long period, there may be a further result of the weakness and relaxation, some spinal displacements resulting in after-effects as bad as the disease. In one such case the victim became practically paralyzed after the disease had been cleared from her system.

When there is displacement of spinal joints, there is a narrowing of the spinal nerve opening which comes between all joints of the spine, and a pressure of the spinal bone on soft spinal nerve tissue which results in interference with the transmission of mental impulses. When this pressure is severe it results in paralysis. When it is only slight, the result is weakness and disease. Chiropractic spinal adjustments restore the alignment of spinal joints and remove the nerve pressure which is the cause of disease.

PARALYSIS AFTER DIPHTHERIA OVERCOME.

"We are the parents of Miss Leota Rhodes. From August 8 to mid-October we were quarantined for diphtheria. In this period our daughter was given 30,000 units of anti-toxin and after getting up was apparently all right for a time and then she began losing her strength and use of her legs until she was completely paralyzed. The physician said she would be that way for life. The chiropractor gave her fifteen adjustments and she began to walk a step or two at a time. She continued for a long time and now she is able to walk and work about the house and is doing fine in every way."—Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Rhodes, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement no. 13357.

How Icebergs Grow.

IT TAKES 100 YEARS FOR ONE TO FORM.

To those who have set eyes on that dread enemy of the seafaring man, the mighty iceberg, it seems impossible that this huge object is the child of the softly falling snowflakes.

But the snow has to fall for many years for an iceberg to form high up on some frozen mountain side.

A hundred years is a rough estimate for the time it takes to form one of these colossal giants of the north, and in that time layer after layer of snow has fallen until the very weight compresses the bottom flakes into clear blue ice.

The mind of man cannot imagine the weight of this ice, but it is so terrific that the solid ice slowly slides down over the rough rocks in the form of glaciers and so at last reaches the sea.

Its Own Executioner.

Here, as the ice projects farther and farther into the water the pressure underneath snaps off huge lumps which float away as icebergs.

The weight of some of the bigger icebergs is as much as 2,000,000,000 tons and they tower to a height of over 1,000 feet above the waves.

Years ago sailors viewed an iceberg with superstitious dread, for these mighty masses would be seen churning their silent way through the sea right in the teeth of a gale and against sea currents.

But the explanation is simple. An iceberg floats with seven-eighths of its mass below the surface. This huge bulk will be immersed in a current of water flowing southward, which has a far greater hold on it than the mere surface streams and wind.

An iceberg has one great and curious feature; it is its own executioner and from the moment it sets sail it is gradually dying.

As the sun's rays strike it, the surface is continually melting, and pours off in rushing streams.

This water, which is fresh, is lighter than the salt sea water, and so floats on the surface, wrapping round the berg like a warm blanket.

This has the effect of making the ice melt still more quickly, for fresh water is more readily warmed than salt, and so aids in the general destruction.

Saved by an Iceberg.

A half-melted iceberg is much more dangerous to passing ships than a new one, for, due to the melting, the centre of balance is gradually altered, and the berg may suddenly lurch over and crush a ship near by.

Ships avoid bergs as they would the plague, but on one famous occasion a ship actually sought help from one.

The skipper, Dr. Kane, an American, who had gone in search of the lost Franklin Expedition, ran out of fuel many miles from land. A drifting iceberg gave him the chance that he craved for. He hitched his ship to it and was towed for many miles in the teeth of wind and wave and in the comparative calm of the iceberg's wake.

Drug Traffickers Devise Novel Delivery System.

LONDON.—Scotland Yard is conducting an intensive campaign against West End drug traffickers whose activities of late are said to have greatly increased. Some of the methods used in delivering drugs to the purchaser are described in a recent report.

"Fourth lamp-post on the right," a trafficker whispers in the ear of a cocaine victim. He passes down the street, and with the aid of chewing gum fixes a little white packet on the fourth lamp-post. The purchaser follows at a discreet distance and removes the packet. Another trafficker drops rolled omnibus tickets on the pavement. He is followed by a string of clients who pick up the tickets, which of course contain cocaine.

Another trafficker keeps the drug in the turned-up ends of his trousers. He advises his customer where he will walk, and as he goes along he stoops as if to fasten his boot-lace. In reality he is placing a packet of cocaine on a doorstep, whence a customer picks it up.

Two men can travel faster than four, but the larger number is necessary in case one climber should break down, when another can be sent back with him, leaving two to try for the peak.

A curious fact brought to light by last year's preliminary work, is that the tower slopes of the giant mountain are fairly well populated. There are monasteries 15,000 feet up, and higher still, solitary hermits were found living in caves and supporting life on a daily ration of a few dried barley kernels.

To these Tibetans, perched upon the roof of the world, life from the cradle to the grave resolves itself into one continuous struggle for existence. Sunstroke and Frostbite Together. Everything is frozen solid for six or eight months in the year, and even during the height of summer, though the sun is burningly hot, the cold in the shade is so intense that it is quite possible for a man to suffer from sunstroke and frostbite at one and the same time.

In such a climate, to wash oneself is so difficult—not to say dangerous—that the natives mostly dispense of the practice altogether.

Instead, they smear their faces with a mixture of grease and soot, which serves the double purpose of killing off vermin and protecting the skin against the biting winds and the terrible cold.

The ground being constantly frozen, it is impossible for the Tibetans to bury their dead. In each village are a couple of men who act as human butchers.

Starvation in the Ossa District.

OSSA, Republic of Bashkir.—Grain is being eaten in this region by the hungry population even before it ripens, according to American Relief Administration inspectors. The Sarapul and Ossa districts were not officially declared within the famine areas until this spring, and since the A.R.A. has established many feeding stations in an effort to relieve the situation. Out of a population of 300,000 in these districts, A.R.A. inspectors estimate, that at the present time there is an average of one hundred deaths a day from starvation. Since last Fall it is figured that 31,000 persons died from lack of food in these parts.

The mind of man cannot imagine the weight of this ice, but it is so terrific that the solid ice slowly slides down over the rough rocks in the form of glaciers and so at last reaches the sea.

Sleep-Walking Extraordinary.

An extraordinary case of sleep-walking is reported from Fleet, Lincolnshire. A Norfolk man was cycling through the country, and arriving at Holbeck close upon midnight, was unable to find lodgings. Placing his bicycle against a gate, he lay down exhausted by the roadside and went to sleep. On awakening he could not find his machine. He aroused the village constable and learned that he had walked to Fleet, two miles away, in his sleep. The bicycle was later found where he had left it at Holbeck.

Where People Don't Wash.

ABOUT THE MOUNT EVEREST EXPEDITION, AND THE PEOPLE THEY MEET.

Can Everest be climbed? Such is the question that this summer will probably see answered one way or the other, for an expedition is even now on its way, to try to plant the Union Jack on the summit of the world's highest mountain, more than 29,000 feet above sea level.

Last year's expedition was merely a preliminary one, its object being to find the best route up the mountain, but no attempt being made to climb to the top.

Even so, the explorers suffered many hardships, and one of them died. At 28,000 feet, the highest point reached, the breathing became difficult, and the slightest exertion called for a strong effort of will.

Whether man is physically capable of enduring the strain of climbing amongst snow and ice 6,000 feet high or still remains to be seen, and neither Col. Howard Bury nor Mr. G. H. Leigh-Mallory—whose book, "Mount Everest: The Reconnaissance, 1921," has just been published—is very hopeful of success.

They have discovered what they believe to be a practicable route to the summit, but they both think that the difficulties in the way may well prove insuperable.

CL.B. MAKE PRESENTATION TO DEPARTING COMRADES.

Mr. George Martin, a member of the C.L.B. Band, and Rex Field, who are leaving shortly for the United States were tendered a grand farewell at the C.L.B. Gymnasium last night. About 200 young people attended and spent a most enjoyable time dancing to music supplied by the C.L.B. Band. During the evening Pandmaster Morris, on behalf of the C.L.B. Band, presented Mr. Martin with a handsome silver ring, and in doing so referred to the splendid service rendered by Mr. Martin to the band. Mr. Martin thanked the band for their splendid gift. He spoke of the pleasure it was to him to have been associated with such an organization and hoped that the future of the band would be as successful as had been the past. After an excellent supper was served dancing was resumed and at its conclusion the company presented the two guests with a purse of good wishes. Messrs. Martin and Field responded suitably and then with the singing of Auld Lang Syne, and Jolly Good Fellows, the gathering dispersed.

Labrador School.

PUPILS WERE SOLD.

The sale of books worked by pupils of the Labrador Public School, took place yesterday afternoon at Cannon Wood Hall, under the supervision of the Ladies' of St. Thomas' Parish. The sale was largely attended and stalls and tea tables were well patronized. A concert was held in the evening, after which the rector of the parish, Rev. E. C. Earp, introduced Rev. Henry Gordon, of the Labrador Missionary service, and Mrs. Gordon. Mr. Earp referred to the good work "artwright" Gordon had done among the Labrador people and wished him many years to carry on. On rising to address the audience, Mrs. Gordon received an ovation. In telling language she described the lives of the girls and young women of Labrador. Mrs. Gordon has done a world of good, teaching the fundamental principles of hygiene, and imparting useful knowledge to the young people. A special work was teaching the young people to play and to derive full benefit from the vigor and bloom of youth. A sad feature of the Labrador is the age at which the girls marry and assume the burdens and cares of family life. The girls are married just as they are coming into womanhood, and before they realize what lies before them. The idea is to fit them out to bear their burdens properly and so occupy their positions in life with a proper knowledge of their duties. Mr. Gordon then spoke, and in choice language he outlined the work of the Labrador Public School. The idea had originated with Mr. Kirby, his predecessor. Shortly after Mr. Gordon took over the work the school was partly changed into an orphanage owing to the ravages of Spanish influenza. Dr. Padden and he spent the summer of 1919 collecting the funds to enlarge it. In Nov. 1920 the school again started with about 20 children which rapidly increased to 43. The results obtained have been highly satisfactory. Rev. Mr. Gordon's idea is not to over-educate the children, but to inspire them with proper ideals, so that they may be fitted to fulfill their destinies in their own land. The people of Labrador are greatly interested in the school and the work, and give considerable help. Concluding his address Mr. Gordon thanked the Women's Home Missionary Society for the help they had given him. He hopes to return in a year or so and resume his labor on Labrador. The addresses by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon were heard with rapt attention and when they were concluded the audience applauded vigorously.

Money in Old Clothes Business.

MAN OF THE HOUSE THOUGHT SO AS HE REGAINED TREASURES.

The old clothes man looked at the worn suit of clothes. "Fifty cents," he repeated firmly.
The lady of the house capitulated. The old clothes man with his best air of discouragement extracted the coin from his pocket and shuffled away with the suit on his arm.
The lady of the house called after him. "Here is a real good straw hat, and I'll let you have it for ten cents."
The old clothes man slowly retraced his footsteps. He carefully examined the hat, which was of last year's vintage, was somewhat out of shape and had an air of good fellowship. The dealer tried it on. It didn't fit him very well, but it was comfortable.
"I'll take it," he said sadly.
Ten minutes later the front door slammed, and the man of the house, his face red and breathing heavily, entered the room. A familiar suit of worn clothes hung from one arm, and an old wide-brimmed straw hat, just as familiar, was clasped under the other.
"What?" gasped the lady. "I just sold them not five minutes ago."
"Of course you did, my dear," said the man of the house, "and I bought 'em back. This is the most comfortable cutting suit I have, and as for the hat, say I wouldn't take $10 for it. It always brings me luck when I go fishing and saves my nose and neck from sunburn. Gosh! I'm glad I saw him. He was driving down the alley at a good clip, but I recognized the hat he was wearing. I had to run to catch him."
"So you bought them back," said the lady cleverly seeing the point.
"Three dollars for the suit and a dollar for the hat," replied the man of the house cheerfully, "and I consider 'em cheap at the price. How much did you charge him?"
The other was temporarily speechless. A dime slipped from her hand and rolled to the feet of her husband. He looked at the coin understandingly.
"There must be money in the old clothes business," he remarked, as he left the room, preparing to hide his treasures in a good safe place secure from moths and robbers and wives. "But some folks make more at it than others."—Chicago News.

The Dignity of a Dialect.

SOME GOOD WORDS AND IDIOMS
WE HAVE LOST.

(By Keighley Snowden, in John O'London's Weekly.)

No lover of pure English assumes nowadays that the dialects are degraded forms of it, but they are neglected by too many writers as if they were. It is easy to see the signs of this neglect in a writer's style. One knows, too, that other old models are neglected with the folk-speech. The common result is a loss of strength. Good English is clean and telling. I do not plead for a revival of dead words, but year by year living words of great value are displaced by words less virile and characteristic, and true idioms forgotten. This is deplorable.

Bad Cess to You.

The dignity of dialect is due to age and sincerity. When, in the North, we say that a man is "drucken" or "fused," we are not mispronouncing "drunken" and "afraid," but using old Norse words. Cess, for assessment, was Spenser's word for his "View of the State of Ireland," and, as one finds it meaning also parish relief, the phrase "Bad cess to you" may be understood, perhaps, in countries as far apart as Devonshire and Lancashire they talk of "Cater Cousins," quarter cousins, meaning good friends. Well, you find this in "The Merchant of Venice." "His master and he are scarce cater cousins." In the ordinary dictionary, you will not find casing to mean skinning, but it is a dialect, and in "All's Well" Shakespeare uses the word too: "We'll make you some sport with the fox ere we case him." In Yorkshire and elsewhere, vinegar is allegor, which is ale plus algre—sour ale; and this appears both in Johnson and a 16th century cookery book. Indeed, every dialect word is much older than current English.

Some Yorkshire Words.

Dr. Joseph Wright's "Dictionary of Dialects" is a book in which I love to browse. It is inspiring. What makes it so is not however, the occurrence of words that have dropped out of literary use, and are merely curious, but the frequency of a strong, simple expression that needs no explaining. Such are heart-hold, heart-bound, and heart-grace, common in North Yorkshire. They denote the sincerity of those who use them, as well as that of their speech. What fine words, full of meaning are house-pride, blue-need bone-bad, hard earnest, dew-cup (the morning beer of harvestmen), hearth-faced (unshaven), daisy-quilt (over modest graves in Ireland), hen-hearted, hair-sore, a dandily mad, and the like, most of which I found in one search.

Origin of Dud.

The quaint words with a sound that gives their meaning a fascinating. A blunder or a confusion is a baffle; faltered means entangled clearly; a thump is unmistakably a loud, hollow sound; a cushie a gentle sliding down. Is there a more expressive word than dud, which lately became common? In most dictionaries you may look in vain for its derivation. They connect it with old clothes. But here is reported from Scotland in the example "He's a soft dud," and from Cumberland. "Thoo wad mak two of our Mary, and she's become a dud." It first meant a rag, then became a term of contempt, and so described a harmless shell.

There is life in such words, wild flowers that now and then find their way into the garden and are welcomed. To carry on is Yorkshire. It has meant to take up work after an illness. Not long since disgruntle came up from Scotland. The slang word flapper, though looked upon as slang, seems to be the Northumberland flap, a girl who does not settle down to her work, a young gadabout. One sees cricket derived by learned authorities from the Anglo-Saxon crice, a staff or crutch, though the game is not known to have been played before 1598. But a cricket was a three-legged stool, as it still is in a score of our counties; and what seems likely is that the word came handy for the three stumps now called a wicket. Names are often given facetiously, and the stool itself may have been called a cricket from the Norman word for a little horse, cricket.

Crage Money.

But, if curious words like these may at any time come into general use, so may any word that has life and dignity. The garden is not fenced, though pedants would have it so. Like a landscape garden, it breaks into the wild. Words stray in and put, and so one finds in the wild now-days words like bondager, crage money, and cheeny. Bondager is a relic of the feudal system; in Kirkcudbright and Northumberland there are still tenants who give service as part of their rent. Crage money, the Presbyterian term for church rates, was fashioned in the days of wax shot. Cheeny (Cheyne Walk) is old china, and survives in the same ground as cater cousin. Then gavelock, the northern word for a crowbar, in the only near case of a spear turned "pruning-hook" cataline was a spear in Old English. Constenters, important people once, are now judges at a bell-ringing match in the West Riding.

Baby Bunting.

What a favourite Baby Bunting still is! We only do not know that this pretty dower was first wild, and meant a thickset little fellow, as it does to-day in Northamptonshire. But we have lost Spenser's "brown winter with charmed eyebrows"; it lives only on the falls, where breeze weather is bleak and sharp and a brume hargainer keen. In the wild places life is tenacious. You may hear someone say, when children make a racket, "What's all that chey-chasing?" even down in Cornwall.

Good as many an old word is, old idioms are more of a help to anyone who would write English well. Dr. Wright has recorded these abundantly, and we should be grateful. Why do we no longer say that we will bear a patience in hand, for instance? To give it attention is less energetic. And what energy runs in the Aberdeenshire phrase, "the head hurry of the work"! Men praise the compactness of Latin, and Latin may be compact in skilful hands; but it has nothing much better than our proverbs. "As many heads, so many wits" beats Quot homines tot sententiae by a syllable.

Conquering a Disease THOUGHT TO BE INCURABLE.

For thousands of years up to quite recently, the disease known as rabies in dogs, and as hydrophobia in human beings, was regarded as incurable. "Dread of water"—is a rule caused by the bite of a mad dog. It does not appear in all those bitten, but when once it shows itself it is almost always fatal.

It was this that induced a French scientist, Louis Pasteur, in the year 1880, to try to discover a means of combating the dread complaint.

He began by inoculating a rabbit with poisonous matter, or virus, taken from the spinal column of a mad dog. The rabbit developed rabies and died.

The virus from this rabbit, when injected into a second rabbit, also caused death, but less quickly; and so on from rabbit to rabbit, the virus becoming less and less powerful, until, finally, at about the twelfth rabbit, it had no effect whatever.

Pasteur's next step was to inject into a healthy dog a strong dose of virus taken from a mad animal, and then start giving it daily injections of the virus from the different rabbits beginning with that from the twelfth rabbit, and working backwards to that obtained from the first rabbit, which was, of course, of maximum strength.

Nothing happened. The dog, which should in the ordinary course have gone raving mad because of the first dose of virus, remained perfectly healthy.

Identical experiments with other dogs produced like results. In no single case did any of the animals so treated go mad. They had been protected by the graduated doses of virus. In theory the same thing ought to happen in the case of human beings. In practice, however, it might be otherwise.

Pasteur's responsibility was a terrible one. For not everybody bitten by a rabid dog develops hydrophobia, and if he injected his hydrophobia virus into a patient, and the patient subsequently developed the disease and died, it might be said that he developed it because of the injections, and a criminal prosecution might easily follow.

After five years' patient experimenting with animals, however, Pasteur decided to face the responsibility. On July 6th, 1885, a wounded child, Joseph Meister by name, was brought to his surgery.

The little lad, writes L. Descour in "Pastor and his Work," had been shockingly torn and mauled by his father's dog, which had gone suddenly mad. The boy had been dragged from under the rabid animal, bitten in no fewer than fourteen places on the hand, legs and thighs.

As the poor little fellow was almost inevitably doomed to a horrible death unless something were done to avert it, Pasteur, with the consent of his parents, started inoculating him with the rabies virus, increasing the strength of the injections until finally he gave him an injection of the strongest possible virus. At the same time a like injection was administered to a rabbit and a dog.

Both animals developed rabies and died. But Joseph Meister, having been rendered immune by graduated doses of virus, suffered no ill effects, and actually escaped the dreaded hydrophobia.

The most terrible disease known to medical science had been conquered.

Some Monuments to Animals.

HOMER KINGSELY.

Our friends the Japanese are convinced that animals have souls and a welfare. At the close of the war with China they consecrated with much religious pomp and ceremony a magnificent monument, erected at a cost of forty thousand dollars, at Tokio, to the memory of their horses lost in the campaign, while in 1905 grand funeral services were held at Miyagi for the horses killed in the war with Russia.

In the presence of the whole people, the royal family and the military, prayers were said by the clergy of the Buddhist and Shinto rites for the welfare and repose of the spirits of the horses that had given their lives in the services of the country. Offerings of wheat and oats were placed on a large altar, and then the ranking general present delivered a memorial address while the troops stood at attention. He told of the bravery of the horses, the number that had fallen, he solemnly thanked their spirits—that is to say, their souls—in the name of the emperor, of the army, and of the nation for the assistance which they had afforded to their human comrades in gaining the victory from the Russians.

There is no doubt that Alexander the Great entertained belief in the hereafter of horses. For not content with entombing his favorite charger, Bucephalus, killed under him at the battle of Hydaspes, in a splendid mausoleum, he actually founded and built, as a lasting memorial to him, the city of Bucephala, which became one of the most important and densely populated of the cities of the East. George's—who have visited St. George's chapel at Windsor, where so many of the members of the reigning house of England lie at rest, are aware that among its illustrious dead there are the remains of a pet monkey. It belonged to the Countess of Lincoln, wife of Queen Elizabeth's lord high admiral. It did not survive its mistress, and lies beside her in the beautiful tomb in the Lincoln Chapel of St. George's—a tomb surmounted by the recumbent figures of the Earl and of his consort, the feet of the latter being pressed against the stone figure of the ape.

The Old's horse, Babieca, was, in recent years, entombed before the gates of the Temple Monastery at Valencia, in Spain, and two elms were planted to adorn the site.

It was in the same spirit, undoubtedly, that Frederick the Great erected one of the most beautiful Lutheran churches in Prussian Poland, a magnificent edifice in white stone, which age has failed to damage, as a memorial to his favorite charger, killed beneath him at the battle of Kunersdorf—a horse to which on several occasions he had owed his life. It is said that the horse lies entombed within the precincts of the church.

An Anxious Question.

Here's a very good story from the pen of the Right Rev. Sir David Hunter Blair. A man's death was wrongly announced in the papers.

The next morning his friend was surprised to hear his voice over the telephone. "Did you see the announcement of my death?" asked the voice. "Yes," said the friend, nervously. "Where are you speaking from?"

Venezuela's Pearls.

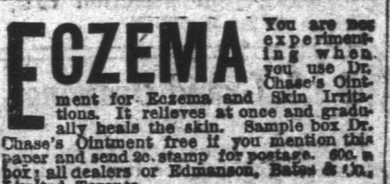

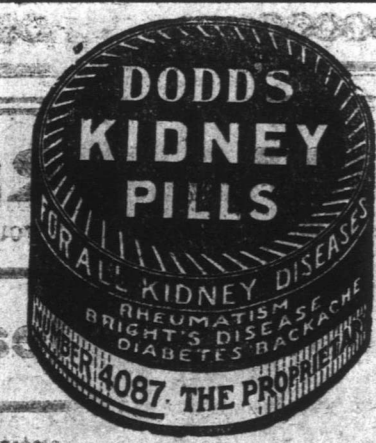

The island of Margarita, off the coast of Venezuela, is one of the most celebrated centres of pearl fishery. The Spaniards, in the days of Columbus, found the natives of Margarita and the neighboring mainland decked out with pearls, and the pearl-producing systems of that locality have never since been surpassed.

Many of Frenchmen enjoys a concession from the Venezuelan government to fish for pearls with diving apparatus.—Washington Star.

Archbishop of Sweden Ascribes War to Fear.

Stockholm.—Nathan Soderblom, Archbishop of Sweden, who is going to the United States next year, in an address before the assembly at the World Congress of Churches which has just been held in Copenhagen, made an appeal to all creeds and congregations to unite in restoring peace throughout the world. Representatives of nearly every Christian church and creed were present. "The world is infested with the two microbes of hate and fear," the Bishop said, "but we are grossly ignorant of how to turn our inherited curse into a blessing." He denounced those servants of Christianity who pause to ask about party or creed when there is a question of saving perishing humanity. The churches must stop theorizing and begin to take definite action in the cause of peace.

WELL, WELL, WELL! HERE'S THE ESSAY I WROTE WHEN I GRADUATED FROM HIGH SCHOOL! IT SEEMS LIKE ONLY YESTERDAY THAT I READ IT AT THE GRADUATION EXERCISES AND GOT THE BIG HAND OF THE EVENING!

MUTT, I WAS LOOKING THROUGH MY TRUNK AND I FOUND MY GRADUATION ESSAY. WE CHOSE OUR OWN SUBJECTS TO WRITE ABOUT AND I CHOSE THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

AN ODD SUBJECT, BUT I'D LIKE TO HEAR YOU READ IT!

THE SANDWICH ISLANDS ARE LOCATED IN THE PACIFIC OCEAN AND THE PRINCIPLE INDUSTRY IS THE MANUFACTURE OF SANDWICHES. THE ISLANDS WERE DISCOVERED BY CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS.

WHEN CHRIS LANDED HE NOTICED A FAT HOG STANDING BETWEEN TWO BREAD-FRUIT TREES, AND HE SAID TO HIS PRESS AGENT: "SOME SANDWICHES, EH, KID? HENCE THE NAME SANDWICH ISLANDS."

"Puss, Puss!"

SOME CURIOUS FACTS ABOUT OUR FELINE FRIENDS.

It is most remarkable that, whilst some notable men, including Lord Roberts, have had a great aversion to cats, others have had a particular liking for them.

Cardinal Wolsey always held intercourse with a cat by his side, and Cardinal Richelieu used to keep several kittens in his room. Chateaubriand, Victor Hugo, and Edgar Allan Poe have been amongst the great lovers of cats. Even the great Mahomet is said to have cut off a portion of his robe because he wished to get up without disturbing the cat which was asleep on it!

From the earliest times, cats have given rise to many queer superstitions and beliefs. They have frequently been regarded as supernatural animals. The chariot of the mythical Freya was driven by cats, and Holda was supposed to have a bodyguard of maidens mounted on cats. The domestic cat has been regarded for hundreds of years as a weather prophet.

Sailors are very superstitious regarding cats. To throw a cat overboard means an invitation to bad weather, and when a ship's cat is trampled, heavy gales are foretold.

Washing Days and Weather. In the Middle Ages cats connected with witches were called witch-cats. These were credited with a great liking for beer. One old countryman is said to have waited up one night to catch the stealer of his beer, and on seeing some cats approach, he called them around and suddenly soused them with boiling beer which he was brewing. In the morning his wife's scalded face is said to have betrayed to him that she was the culprit.

On the Continent also, cats have given rise to many superstitions. In Holland a wet wedding-day means that the bride has forgotten to feed the cat. In Germany, we are told, the peasants who desire fine weather for their washing-day, must pay special attention to the needs of the cat.

Cats are supposed to have been first domesticated by the Egyptians; but the Greeks and Romans do not seem to have cared much for them.

It is not generally known that wild cats are still found in parts of Scotland and are extremely fierce. They make their homes in rocks and hollow trees. At one time they were found all over England, but, like snakes, they have not been seen in Ireland.

The Author of Sandford and Merton.

Thomas Day, the author of "Sandford and Merton," who died on September 28, had pronounced views on the marriage question. Coming under the influence of Rousseau's books he decided to carry out his philosophy in the ideal education of his future wife. He went to the Orphan Asylum at Shrewsbury and chose a flax-haired girl whom he called Sabrina. Then he went to the Foundling Hospital in London and chose a brunette, whom he called Lucretia. These two girls he took to France to educate on the reverse principles to acquire strength of body and mind. He undertook to choose one of these girls for his wife after paying for their apprenticeship to some trade, or falling in love with either of them suitable to become his wife. Day promised to settle upon them a marriage portion of £500. In France the girls caught small-pox, during which their guardian nursed them. He also saved their lives in a boat accident. Returning to London Lucretia was apprenticed to a milliner in Ludgate Hill and was married later to a well-to-do tradesman. Day gave her the promised marriage portion. Sabrina was reserved for a further trial, but could not pass the tests to become Mrs. Day. She fainted when melting wax was dropped on her arm, and when Day fired a pistol loaded with imaginary ball, she was startled and fainted. Eventually she married one of Day's friends, a barrister and received her promised marriage portion. On her husband dying, a pension of £30 a year was given to her. After refusals by ladies who would not conform to the Spartan conditions expected by Thomas Day, a lady at-

Unlucky to Walk Under a Ladder.

A good deal of scholarship has been expended upon this question, and many different explanations have been learnedly worked out. Here are a few—

Criminals in former days were hanged by being thrown off a ladder, which also was associated with the headman's scaffold, and therefore acquired a general association of bad luck.

Again it has been suggested that by passing under a ladder, you go "behind bars," the prison association being obviously "unlucky."

The ladder, too, has a legendary connection with the Crucifixion; the story goes that as a ladder was erected to bring down the Body for burial, the Devil went underneath and tried to push it over, and so to go under a ladder is to associate oneself with the Evil One.

Commonplace indeed to these possible "explanations" is the plain man's idea that, while passing under a ladder, bad luck may come in the shape of a falling paint-pot!

Two Sailors Sacrificed to Save Submarine Crew.

STOCKHOLM. Two men were sacrificed from a submarine under singular circumstances during the recent Swedish coastal fleet manoeuvres. They were really sacrificed to ensure the safety of the whole crew.

The submarine Illern, it appears, fired a torpedo at a movable target and then came to surface in order to see the effect produced. Four of the crew came on deck, but trouble suddenly occurred in the ballast tanks, and the commander immediately closed the hatch and submerged, leaving the four to their own resources. Three of the men were washed off the deck, but the fourth clung to the submarine's periscope. The submarine rose again quickly and this man was rescued. Two of the men in the water, including the son of Admiral Ancararona, were caught in the wash of the battleship Sverige and drowned. The other man was picked up by a naval cutter. It is reported that the entire crew of the submarine would probably have been lost if the commander had failed to submerge immediately the trouble was discovered.

B.I.S. Grand Drawing.

The B.I.S. Grand Drawing will take place without fail the last week in October. It is felt advisable to postpone it to this date because of the difficulty in collecting the stubs. Those holding stubs are advised to hand them in immediately to the Secretary in order that everything might be in readiness for the Drawing. It is suggested to those of the public who have not as yet invested, to procure their tickets immediately, as there is only a limited supply on hand.

Secretary.

Newspapers and Cats.

In July the Montreal-Star published an effective cartoon labeled "The Inhumanity of Man." It showed a black cat sitting sad and forlorn, but still expectant, on the steps of a deserted dwelling. This was made the subject of a half-column editorial in the influential Republican of Springfield, Mass., in which occurs the comment: "The mere thought, without graphic illustration, is enough to convict of inhumanity any person who leaves a household pet to run the risk of starvation in a city neighborhood where it has limited opportunity to prey upon rodents or other animals by which it might feed itself. The cat is a domesticated animal and must not be treated as a wild creature."

That two such well-known newspapers have a good word to say for the cat goes far to offset the attacks on this animal that have appeared, from time to time, in certain less substantial papers which do not have an enviable reputation for publishing "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth."—Our Dumb Animals.

Rest Improves a Razor.

Looked at through a microscope, the edge of a razor is seen to consist of a number of tiny saw-like teeth. These constitute its sharpness. The metal of these teeth—with, of course, the rest of the blade—is composed, scientifically speaking, of infinitesimal molecules, each lying in a perfectly definite arrangement. This arrangement is disturbed by prolonged use, and we say that the metal has "become tired."

What really happens is that the molecules at the top of the teeth are lying "any way," and therefore won't cut. We have then to shave with the bottom of the teeth, when we say that the razor "pulls."

Stropping is an attempt to restore the arrangement of the molecules, but when even this fails, a week or so's rest will work wonders, particularly if the razor be laid north and south. The magnetic pull rearranges the metal of the molecules, and our razor's teeth again in order, once more "cuts."

Salt Herring Standardized by Law.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT STEPS IN TO IMPROVE CURE AND PACKING OF HERRING.

The following regulations for the curing and packing of dry salted herring and the standardization of the container in which same are expected were adopted by order-in-council, July 24th last, and will become effective October 1. They apply to British Columbia waters to which this branch of the industry is confined.

Water to be Drained From Fish.
1. Any water that may have accumulated amongst the fresh fish in a boat or scow shall be allowed to drain away when the fish are being discharged therefrom and before salting takes place.

Method of Salting.
2. The fresh fish shall be thoroughly salted into tanks or other watertight receptacles in such a manner as will permit of each fish coming in contact with the salt. All fish shall be sound and they shall be salted within twenty-four hours after being taken from the sea. If the tanks or other receptacles stand in the open when filled, they shall be covered and protected from rain and snow.

Length of Time Fish to Remain in Salt.
3. Fish taken on the west coast of Vancouver Island from the beginning of the fall season up to the end of the first week in December, shall remain in salt for a period of not less than five days of twenty-four hours each. Fish taken on the west coast of Vancouver Island after the first week in December and all fish taken on the east coast, shall remain in salt for a period of not less than four days of twenty-four hours each before being boxed for shipment. All fish boxed for shipment shall be sound, thorough cured, and in good condition.

Size of Boxes.
4. Boxes for shipment of dry salted herring to the Orient shall be forty-two inches long, twenty-four and one-half inches wide, and fourteen inches deep, outside measurements. The side, top and bottom shall consist of good sound board one inch in thickness. The boxes shall be strongly made and well nailed.

Packing, Filling of Boxes and Marks.
5. The fish, on removal from the tanks shall be well drained of pickle, firmly packed in the boxes and sprinkled with salt. Each box shall be filled to its utmost capacity with fish at the time of shipment. A mark or number shall be plainly marked on each box to indicate the packer of the fish.

Time and Place of Inspection.
6. The fish, at the place of curing and packing, shall be subject to inspection during the process of discharging from the boats or scows, and thereafter until they are boxed for shipment. The boxes also shall be subject to inspection at the same time and place.

Shipments May be Detained.
7. An inspector may detain for the time necessary to complete his inspection any shipment in respect of which he has reasonable grounds for believing that the boxes or fish are not such as the regulations require.

Certificate of Inspection.
8. If an inspector is satisfied, after inspection, that the fish and boxes are such as the regulations require, he shall furnish the packer with a formal certificate of inspection, and no shipment shall leave the packer's place without such certificate.

Fish or Boxes Below Standard.
9. If an inspector finds after inspection, that either fish or boxes are not such as the regulations require, he shall state in his certificate wherein the fish or boxes fail to comply with the requirements, and the packer of such fish shall be liable to the penalty provided by subsection 2 of section 11 of the Act (as amended 1920).

Re Inspection on Appeal.
10. In the event of a packer or owner appealing against the decision of an inspector, and of another inspection being ordered, the inspector who carries out the second inspection shall proceed in such a manner as will thoroughly satisfy him as to whether the fish or boxes comply with the regulations.

It Never Touched Him.
It is said that when Constantine was Emperor of Rome some gossip came to him with the distressing news that the people were stoning his statue in the public square. He listened quietly to his informers, and then, shrugging his shoulders, said, "I don't feel it."

So, when anyone comes to you with a tale of gossip, telling of the cruel things that so-and-so said about you, pay no attention to them. Gossip can not hurt you, the reality of you; the truth of your being is beyond their reach. That is immune to all slander and gossip and lies. These people are just throwing stones at your glory, your status which stands in the public square of public opinion.

The New Novel. By James Oliver Curwood. Never has Mr. Curwood written a more virile, gripping or swiftly moving story than 'The Country Beyond,' in which he tells of the love of Jolly Roger, the outlaw for Neds the 'foster-girl' of Jed Hawkins and of their enforced separation through the tracking down of Jolly Roger by Cassidy of the Royal North West Mounted Police. 'The Country Beyond' which is packed with thrills is one of the most spacious and fascinating stories that has yet come from the pen of this brilliant writer. Price $1.50. Garrett Byrne, Bookseller and Stationer.

Cap Comfort! The Kusy-Peak Cap enters the portals. It caresses the brow, won't bind, won't pinch. Cap Elegance! England sends forth her quota. Eighty dozen. 'English tweeds?' You can't mistake them. An elegant ruggedness fashioned on the looser sturdier lines that is unmistakably English. Never have we had such variety. Such patterns!—such prices! They're all two dollars.

WILL THEY WEAR FAT AGAIN? I wonder if they will ever be plump again. You know who they are. The people we mean when we talk about what they say or what they are wearing. So now I wonder if they will wear fat again. Will the pendulum ever swing the other way and shall we stop admiring slimmest and subtle undulations and once again admire plumpness and well marked curves. 'Nice And Plump.' I suppose it surprises the fatter to know that there ever was a day when slimmest was not extravagantly admired, when people spoke of 'nice and plump,' when banting had not been heard of, and when people we now call slim and graceful were referred to as skintny or bony. But there was. Well I remember them for reasons I will not further elucidate, but will leave you to guess at. In those days a fine figure of a woman never weighed less than 150, and often well over that. So long as a woman had a well marked waist and did not degenerate into the 'meal bag' class, she was considered to have a good figure no matter what she tipped the scales at. People never talked about getting fat unless they were approaching 200 and three chins. Double chins were not admired but they were not feared as they are to-day. Prosperous men of 40 or 50 expected to have stomachs. That was a hall mark, as it were, of their prosperity. The Anti Fat Adds. If you want to get a perfect idea of the contrast between the two ages get hold of an old magazine of 15 or 20 years ago and look at the anti fat adds. Behold the person they picture as too fat. One wonders why such a person should have been willing to get rid of any of her pounds because it seems as if she could have made fabulous money exhibiting in a circus. And then turn to the modern magazine and its 'you can weigh what you should' advertisement. And the lady who weighs what she shouldn't has what would have been called a perfect figure in the old days. There is no question but what we have gone to extremes in our admiration of slenderness. And there is also no question but what every extreme of fashion is almost surely compensated by the opposite extreme. Is this going to happen in the matter of fat? It doesn't seem conceivable, does it?

Card Party and Dance. ENJOYABLE EVENING AT COLUMBUS HALL. Last evening at the Columbus Hall a most enjoyable card party and dance, in which over 50 couples participated, was held under the auspices of the Columbus Ladies' Association, assisted by the House Committee. The winners of the card tournament were Miss Josephine Foley and Mr. M. J. Mulcahey. Following an appetizing supper, prepared by Mrs. McGrath, dancing was indulged in until an early hour this morning. The Majestic Orchestra supplied the music.

Just Folks. BY EDGAR A. GUEST. FOR TO-DAY. From dawn to dusk I would be true, Glad in the tasks I find to do, Glad that the strength I mine to bear Whatever comes of toil and care. I would not spall this with hate, Nor to the stranger bar my gate, And when these hours have run their course Let me not view them with remorse. Let me be watchful of my tongue Let careless speech from it be hung, Let all that I shall speak to-day Spread happiness along my way. I pray these eyes of mine shall see The beauty of each vine and tree, The smiles of friends, my neighbour's worth, And all the glories of the earth. Lord, as I start the toll of day This is the humble prayer I pray: Help me to keep my honor bright, Let me be unashamed at night.

Cooking by Oil. OIL STOVES ARE GOOD IF YOU KNOW HOW TO MANAGE THEM. In the warm days many households do without the kitchen range, except, perhaps, once a week, and manage for the other six days with an oil stove. Oil stoves are very convenient if they are looked after properly; but the slightest neglect means unpleasant smells, and constant trouble. The safe plan is to let the oil stove be one person's charge; if several attend to it something is sure to go wrong before very long. Stoves are of two kinds—those with wicks and those without, the former being the more common. Each class needs its own particular treatment. To take the former first. Whatever shape the wick, never cut it. Raise it just above the burner, and rub along the top with a piece of newspaper to remove the charred spot. In this way you get a much more even surface, free from 'horns,' than by using scissors. And rubbing is not nearly so wasteful. Newspaper is Better Than Rag. Keep the reservoir fairly full of oil, if it is allowed to get too empty, the wick chafes and becomes spotty. Always wipe the reservoir outside after filling, otherwise there will be a small flame when you light up, to say nothing of the oil you will get on your fingers. Newspaper is better than rag for this: it removes the oil more thoroughly. It always pays to use the best oil. Keep every part scrupulously clean, and see that the air-holes do not become clogged with oily dust. In a wickless stove, the most important thing is to keep the hole through which the gas passes quite clear. Prick it out before use, for the tiniest flake of soot will prevent the gas rising properly. Starting a Wickless Stove. Do not fill the reservoir more than two-thirds full of oil, otherwise the gas will not have sufficient room to generate, and the oil will spurt out of the gas-hole. Keep a small brush handy—an old toothbrush will do—for cleaning the holes round the top of the burner. There is no necessity to fill the spirit cup right to the brim in order to start the stove, especially if it is in regular use; about two-thirds is enough. If you tighten the tap when the spirit is half-burnt, the gas will light itself. Begin to pump as soon as the spirit flame gives its final flicker, and pump until you get a clear blue flame from the gas. This will mean working the handle in and out about a dozen times. Hold the stove firmly while doing so.

Obituary. MR. TIMOTHY HAWCO. On Friday evening, Sept. 22nd, there passed away at Duff, Holyrood, an old and respected resident, Mr. Timothy Hawco in the 76th year of his age. Deceased was born in Chapel's Cove, but migrated to Duff at the beginning of railway construction in Newfoundland. He was a typical fisherman, hardy, robust and independent, but he gave up the fishery, as many others did then, and took to railroading, and for almost a quarter of a century he worked as Section Foreman on the Newfoundland Northern and Western Railway and later with the Reid Nfld. Co. until old age and infirmity forced his retirement from his chosen avocation. Recently he was stricken with an incurable trouble that a course of treatment at the General Hospital, St. John's failed to combat. His condition was not unknown to him, but with heroic fortitude he resisted the attacks of the disease until resistance became no longer possible, and was roadbuilding under the Motor Association but two days before his death, when symptoms of his summons came upon him. His funeral took place on Sunday evening last, from his late home at Duff to the South Side cemetery. Large numbers flocked from the neighbouring places to attend the funeral obsequies. The Star of the Sea Association of Holyrood attended in the procession, singing the last tribute of respect to their deceased brother member. The funeral service was conducted at the graveside by the Rev. Pastor and Spiritual Director, Father Finn, and the remains of an old-time and worthy member of the Association were committed to the earth. The sympathy of the community go to the widow and family of the late Mr. Timothy Hawco, and may the mercy of God rest upon his soul.—COM. Holyrood, Sept. 27, 1922.

Diamond Jubilee Celebration. MANY PRELATES WILL ATTEND. Montreal, Que.—(By Canadian Press.)—The Apostolic Delegate, six archbishops, and twelve bishops will attend the two days celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of the dedication of St. Patrick's Church on Sunday and Monday, October 15 and 16. Seven of the visiting prelates will come from the United States, and it is expected that many others formerly associated with St. Patrick's from all parts of the continent will attend the festival. The celebration will include a pilgrimage to the graves of the dead Sulpicians at the Montreal College Grounds, Sherbrooke St., West. An announcement of the pilgrimage says: "The Sulpicians having been from their origin in charge of spiritual direction of the Irish and English-speaking Catholics of Montreal, it is only fitting that tribute be paid to the mercy of illustrious dead priests of that order." Another feature of the festival will be the celebration of Pontifical Mass at St. Patrick's at 11 o'clock on the morning of Sunday, and a solemn Pontifical Mass of Requiem on the morning of Monday. The Sunday morning ceremony will be the chief function of celebration, solemn Pontifical High Mass being sung by His Excellency the Most Reverend Peter de Maria, Apostolic Delegate. The Jubilee sermon will be delivered by Bishop Gauthier, Apostolic Administrator. After the mass on Sunday, His Excellency the Delegate, Bishop Gauthier, the archbishops, bishops, and clergy will be the guests of Father McShane at dinner. There will be a banquet at the Windsor Hotel on Monday night at seven o'clock when one of the guests will be Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, the Lieutenant-Governor. The visiting clergy and a large representation of the laity will be present. DISTINGUISHED COMPANY. Among the archbishops and bishops who have accepted invitations to be present at the Diamond Jubilee are: His Excellency, Most Rev. Peter de Maria, Apostolic Delegate; Bishop Gauthier, D.D., Apostolic Administrator; Most Rev. Nell McNeill, D.D., Archbishop of Toronto; Most Rev. James J. Peer and Vicar do Not Agree.

LONDON.—It would appear to be the fate of Boy Scouts the world over to have to listen to good advice from their elders. In England the boys take it good humoredly and patiently as all in the day's work. But recently a group of Scouts must have been perplexed, as well as amused, when the good advice from two speakers did not in the least agree. They had come to Bedford to attend church. The Vicar, the Rev. A. O. Cheney, addressed them. He warned them against smoking as "a dirty and disgusting habit." He told them to keep the Sabbath day holy and not to go about "making a noise and disturbing the villagers." (The boys had marched to church headed by bugles and drums.) Nor, he said, should anything be done on Sunday which entailed extra work for anyone. (The villagers had agreed to entertain the visiting scouts to tea.) The Vicar said he never entertained anyone on Sundays; people should start at home on Sunday and help along the activities of the Church.

LORD AMPHILL'S ADVICE.
After the service Lord Amphil got his turn at the boys. He said that smoking had been helpful to some of the greatest men in the world. One of the wisest philosophers used to smoke like a chimney. But, of course, it wouldn't be right for small boys to smoke. He always entertained his friends on Sunday, he said. He honored God by going to church Sunday morning, but afterward he sometimes did a bit of carpentry. The idea of Sunday, he told the boys, was that it should be a day of rest which meant abstention from ordinary work. Annual labor on Sundays rested him rather more than anything else because, during the week, he had to attend a good many meetings in hot stuffy rooms. So long as they did not disturb the peace of their villages, they need have no compunctions in turning out on Sunday to pay a friendly compliment to a new troop. One of the grownups suggested that the Peer and the Parson should hold a public discussion on the subject, the proceeds to be divided equally between the Church and the Scouts.

School Boys a Menace to Egyptian Politics.

CAIRO, Egypt.—The inauguration of a strict policy by the Egyptian government to deal with the fanatical enthusiasm of the school boy politicians is regarded by all the native papers as a necessity of the hour, if the Egyptian political and educational structures are to be saved from disruption. The students in the universities and high schools of the country who came forward last year and joined in street demonstrations to help win political freedom for Egypt have now developed a new movement which seems to be a general revolt against all existing customs that conflict with their own personal aggrandisement. The students, convinced of their power, have turned their energies to eliminating examinations. Their political slogan a year ago was: "We do not want the English." To-day they are shouting: "We want no more examinations." And they are keen enough to plan a campaign which will use politics as a lever to make easier their classroom work. The elections for members of the new Parliament are set for October. The students aim to see that only candidates who heed their demands are returned to both houses. Their election cries are now being tried out in this wise: "Vote for Mahmud Bey and no examinations." Following of Zashouli Pasha are taking advantage of this attitude of boyishness and are showering upon them all kinds of promises in return for votes at the coming elections.

Rifle Shooting Contest

STIMULATE ACTUAL WARFARE.

ALDERSHOT.—The complaint in many of rifle shooting contests, not without reason, that they afford little practice in marksmanship under conditions that approximate those of actual warfare, and that proficiency in the kind of shooting that prizes is not the sort of shooting that is most needed for war battles. To meet this criticism the Company Cup competition was devised. The first underlying the competition is that an outpost of nine men, under a non-commissioned officer, is suddenly attacked by an equal number of hostile forces represented by nine to ten discs, which appear over the top of a trench 200 yards away. The outpost opens fire and when a disc is hit it disappears. But more of the enemy is constantly arriving, three more discs appearing every ten seconds during the minute the contest is being waged. When the number of discs in view exceeds that of the outpost, the whole team is put out of action. The team with the fewer number of discs exposed at the end of the minute wins. It is a most interesting method of competition, and it has attracted a large number of entries.

Have You Seen the JEWETT CAR?

THE JEWETT IS PAIGE BUILT.

The new Jewett is of Paige conception, designed and built by Paige engineers and mechanics in the Paige shops. From its Paige origin the Jewett inherits those unmistakable marks of Quality, characterizing the work of a group of men, who for ten years past, have been building the fine six-cylinder cars, bearing the Paige monogram.

Let us demonstrate to you its remarkable power and quality—5 passenger touring—$2200; Sedan $2850.

A PROMINENT AMERICAN MILLIONAIRE SAYS:

"Early in my business career I made it a rigid rule to invest a third of my net yearly income in Life Insurance. Now, at age 55, and with an estate of a few million dollars, I can truthfully say that the third I invested each year in Life Insurance to-day constitutes the greater and best part of my estate."

YOU need more Life Insurance NOW. Let us "fit" you with the proper kind of Policy.
