of good sense that in times of peace it is well to prepare for war. We might put it in another way and say, in time of Safety prepare for Danger. Take out a FIRE INSURANCE POLICY when there is no apparent danger of FIRE, because the latter will probably come—as it always does—when and where it is least expected. The cost is trivial. British Foreign Secretary is Given Extra Police Protection

Miners Decline to Consider Armstrong's Proposal--Liberals and Labour Criticise the Budget--France May Also Adopt the Gold Standard.

PLOT AGAINST CHAMBERLAIN DISCOVERED.
LONDON, April 29.—Additional guards have been assigned to protect Foreign Secretary Austen Chamberlain. It is reported that a plot against his life has been discovered and the assignment of extra guards is presumably in connection with the alleged plot. The news of additional police protection for British Foreign Secretary, came from official quarters, but there was much reticence in discussing the nature of the supposed plot. It was intimated some of the details were discovered outside of London.

CHURCHILL'S BUDGET CRITICIZED.
LONDON, April 29.—Spokesmen of Liberal and Labour parties launched an attack on Winston Churchill's budget when the House of Commons reassembled to-day.

Philip Snowden, who held the office of Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Labour Government and turned the public purse strings over to Churchill when the Conservatives returned to power, declared it was the worst budget ever introduced. Sir Alfred Mond, who has held numerous high offices in previous Governments, doubted the wisdom of the country's return to the gold standard, saying it would tie the British monetary system to that of the United States and make the London bank rate more subservient to Wall Street than it has been in the past, in order to obtain a purely sentimental result. Both Liberal and Labour spokesmen objected to the reimposition of McKenna's duties and imperial tariffs, while the Conservatives who spoke on the subject thanked Mr. Churchill for reviving them.

REFERRED TO GOVERNMENTS FOR CONSIDERATION.
PARIS, April 29.—The Allied Council of Ambassadors to-day referred to various governments represented in Council the supplementary report of Marshal Foch on Germany's violation of the Treaty of Versailles. Action on the document is thus postponed until members of the Council receive instructions from their chancelleries.

SUGGESTS COLOGNE EVACUATION.
BERLIN, April 29.—In order to bring about staple European conditions the question of the evacuation of the Cologne area by the Allies must be speedily settled, Dr. Hans Luther, German Chancellor, declared in a statement to-day. "For more than three months," he said, "we have waited in vain for reasons held to justify non evacuation."

LABOUR MEMBERS REPORT OF BULGARIA.
LONDON, April 29.—Two members and former members of the British parliament, who visited Sofia, Bulgaria, immediately after the recent bomb explosion in the Cathedral there and remained in Bulgaria to study the situation, to-day again described conditions as they found them. The description was given in a report which declared the existing Bulgarian Government had caused the deaths of thousands of persons and will surely arouse a volcanic upheaval. The report stated life is held cheap in Bulgaria. A distinguished foreign resident said, a murder in the street excites as little attention as a minor street accident in London. Throughout the country power is in the hands of the Koubrat, or Military Officers' League. Already at least 4,000 persons have been put in prison, many hundreds being killed without trial, or after a mere shadow of a trial.

CRISIS RESULT OF PAST CONDITIONS.
OTTAWA, April 29.—This particular crisis is the apex we have reached as the result of conditions which have existed for three and a half years, stated Rev. Dr. M. McAvoy, Superintendent of general relief at Glace Bay, in addressing members of the House of Commons to-day on the situation among the striking miners and their families in the Cape Breton coal area. There are 4,500 returned men in Glace Bay, he said, to whom a layette is only a toy. If relief had not been given, he would have thought of what might have taken place. These men, he contended, naturally expected assistance in their crisis.

MINERS OPPOSED TO ARMSTRONG PROPOSAL.
SYDNEY, April 29.—Reaffirming the contention that the mining industry of Nova Scotia can probably afford to pay better than 1924 rates, and defining the scale of wages as the absolute rock bottom proposal and then only as the rate for interim contract for one year pending investigation of the wage paying capacities of the industry, the Executive of District 36 U.M.W. of America, in a telegram to-day to Premier E. H. Armstrong, decline his recent proposal of ten per cent. reduction for all classifications of mine labor receiving over $4.50 per day. The proposal which constitutes the latest attempt on the part of the Premier to effect a settlement of the wage dispute between the miners and Besco has already been rejected by the Company.

HALIFAX'S NEW MAYOR.
HALIFAX, April 29.—Alderman J. B. Kenny, K.C., was elected Mayor of Halifax to-day by a plurality of 219 votes over Alderman B. W. Russell, K.C.

NEW BUDGET ENCOURAGES CANADIAN TOBACCO.
CHATHAM, Ont., April 29.—Tobacco growing will now become one of the leading industries of the Southeastern part of West Ontario, said ex-Mayor Fred Briscoe, of this city, in commenting on the preference accorded Canadian grown tobacco by the British Government.

TWO KILLED IN EXPLOSION.
MAIDEN, Mass., April 29.—The bodies of two men were found by firemen to-day in the ruins of a building of the Boston Rubber Company's plant here which was wrecked by an explosion this morning. A third victim of the explosion was believed to be dying in hospital. Damage estimated at $75,000 was caused.

FRANCE MUST ALSO ADOPT GOLD STANDARD.
PARIS, April 29.—The establishment of the gold standard by Great Britain will necessitate France taking the same step, in the opinion of the best French financial authorities. Minister of Finance already is studying the question and has intimated it is necessary for the French people to make sacrifices to accomplish return to the gold standard.

VOLUNTEERS NOT FORTHCOMING.
SOFIA, April 29.—The Bulgarian Government is considering calling one of the army classes to the colors as it has been unable to get ten thousand additional volunteers recently authorized by the Council of Ambassadors at Paris to pacify the country.

So Says Toronto Man of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. P. M. Raggatt suffered with rheumatism and found relief after taking half a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills.
Toronto, Ont., April 29.—(Special)—"I am writing to say how wonderful and quick your pills were in arresting and relieving an attack of rheumatism I had a few weeks ago. My occupation, a coal teamster, necessitates me being out late at nights during the severe winter weather. I had an occasion to get on my knees in the snow to put fuel into a basement. Two days later I had to stay at home with rheumatism in both of my knees. I was recommended to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, which I did. The first half box gave me relief and all signs of rheumatism have now gone after taking three boxes. I thank you for being able to give me relief. The recommendation of your Dodd's Kidney Pills came from several other coal teamsters that I work with."
This statement comes from Mr. P. M. Raggatt residing at 223 Woodmount Avenue.

Pleasant Presentation

A very pleasant presentation took place on board S.S. Portia on Friday evening, April 24th, when Charles E. White (Purser) was the recipient of a valuable silver tea service and tray from the officers and men of the combined ships Portia and Prospero on the occasion of his marriage, as a token of their good fellowship and esteem. Mr. White in reply for himself and Mrs. White thanked the donors, and assured them of his deep appreciation of their good wishes and handsome gift.

International Police

(By P. N. R. HILL)

It may be that as a result of the International Police Conference to be held in New York next month something more will be heard of the often repeated suggestion of an international police force. Actually of course such a matter is for Governments to decide, but it is hardly likely that when the police chiefs of the world meet in conference they will neglect to discuss, if only privately, such an important idea.

The project was first put forward by one of the European countries some years ago, but nothing came of it. Since then, however, crime, and by that I mean large scale crime—always excluding murder—has become international rather than national in character. The great financiers are not content to confine their operations to their own countries and similarly the really big crook finds one country too small for his operations.

Things are done on a wholesale scale nowadays: just as there are great commercial corporations so are there criminal organizations with their ramifications all over the world. Just now Canada is alarmed about the discovery of a large number of forged notes on one of its principal banks; the detectives are not looking for the forgers in Canada, but have come to Europe. Montreal is a far cry from London and the Continent, but the investigators know what they are doing. In Spain there is reported to be an organization which on the shortest notice will provide bona fide crooks with passports and the necessary visas for any country.

America is the home of the "big idea" in crime, and in the great cities of the United States there are organizations which, existing by fraud and chicanery, have their branches and agents throughout the world. It is with organizations of this description and the pursuit of a wanted man from one country to another that the proposed International Police would deal.

Presumably it would be composed of detectives of all nations, and their warrants and authority would run in any country. A member of the force would go anywhere in quest of his man and would not be met, as at present, with the hidebound regulations and often fatal delays of national procedure.

Matters the New York conference would undoubtedly discuss next month are the application of wireless to the prevention and detection of crime, with particular reference to the new police code which has been prepared to facilitate rapid communication between the police forces of the world. This perhaps is based on that which is in existence in this country for use with the ordinary telegraph service. Then Scotland Yard's recently introduced system for telegraphic identification by finger-prints will be considered, to say nothing of plans for tightening up the co-operation between police forces and the intensifying of the war against crime.

L. O. O. F. Parade at Clarenville

The officers and members of Caribou Lodge, No. 148, celebrated the 106 Anniversary of our Order on Sunday last, by parading, and attending Divine Service. The route of march extended from Apsey Point, via Shoal Harbor, and on to Clarenville South. The service was held at Shoal Harbor, and the preacher was the Rev. Isaac Davis. From the text, "Have faith in God" the Rev. gentleman prefaced his remarks by saying, in part, that our entrance into life was a matter over which we had no control. Our existence is not a matter of choice, but was forced upon us. It was now not so much a question of "how we came" as that "we are here," and for a purpose. "There is a Divinity which shapes our beginnings, as well as our ends." Our very existence substantiates the fact that we should "Have faith in God." "By Him we live, and move, and have our Being." Going on to the subject of fraternalism the preacher, in choice language, said in substance that people from the beginning felt their sense of insecurity, isolation, and loneliness, and that they, in consequence, banded together in tribes, bands, etc., until we are to-day in possession of Social, Fraternal and Religious institutions that almost link the world in bonds of Brotherhood. Speaking particularly of the Order of the "three links," the Rev. Gentleman fully covered the principles for which it stands. "The three links," Friendship, "what a word to conjure with," "Love" the central link that joins friendship to truth. Its position is central around which all else must revolve. The last link "Truth" is indestructible.

"Truth crushed to earth shall rise again. The eternal years of God are hers, But error, wounded, writhes with pain And dies among his worshippers."

Not only did man find strength in unity, but gradually he learnt the greater lesson, that banded together as brothers, mankind could keep bright the ties of friendship, love, and truth, without which life would always be a burden greater than could be borne. All the great philosophers of the ages stressed the beauty of the fraternal spirit, the blessings of peace and unity, and the pursuit of Truth.

The preacher then discoursed on the great example of brotherhood Christ measured up to the highest principles of brotherhood in his life on earth. "He went about doing good." The key note of His idealistic achievements were made possible by "His Faith in God." "I go about my Father's business." Social, fraternal and Christian institutions have not measured up, though they have rendered valuable service. The vision is for the pure of heart. The utmost service can only be realized by having "Faith in God."

The parade lined up after the conclusion of this most impressive service and headed by the Salvation Army Band of Bonavista under the capable management of Commandant Ebsary, marched on to Clarenville South, and from thence to the Hall, where after the customary expressions of thanks were tendered the members of the Band for their stirring airs, so skillfully rendered, were given by officers of the Order, all dispersed feeling that they had rendered honor and service, to the institution in which we are proud to be a link.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer and His Budget

The Right Honourable Winston Churchill, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, has in his time played many parts. The son of a man of remarkable ability, even if his career was somewhat meteoric, and who for a brief space occupied under the late Lord Salisbury the office held by his son to-day, Winston Churchill has served with distinction as a soldier both under the Spanish and British flags; he has been a noted war correspondent, and is the author of several well known books. During the past twenty-five years he has played a prominent part in politics, first as a Liberal and then as a Conservative, and has filled in turn the offices of Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies (on two occasions), President of the Board of Trade, Home Secretary, First Lord of the Admiralty, Minister of Munitions, Secretary of State for War, Secretary of State for Air, and now as Chancellor of the Exchequer, he has presented a budget which meets apparently with cordial approval.

Strange as it may seem, this man of many talents has been more freely criticised at various times than perhaps any man in public life to-day. He has been spoken of as vacillating, as a free lance, as too prone to act on impulse, and in fact almost everything that he has done or said has brought him under fire, but no one has questioned his remarkable ability.

Without doubt one of the best judges of the Chancellor of the Exchequer is the Earl of Oxford, or as he is better known, Mr. Asquith, under whom he served for many years, and anyone who has read "The Genesis of the War" by the former Prime Minister cannot but be impressed with the very high opinion that he holds of his colleague.

In this book he gives the address delivered in July, 1922, by Mr. Churchill, then First Lord of the Admiralty, to the Committee of Imperial Defence, and the speech shows unmistakably how accurately the First Lord had foreseen the result of the trend of events in Europe.

The naval holiday, proposed by Churchill in 1923, which was heartily approved by America but was treated with derision by Germany, had for its object the prevention of the struggle which events were making inevitable, and it was due to his idea of mobilizing the First, Second, and Third Fleets in home waters in July of 1914 that Britain, at the moment when the flat went forth in the early days of August, was ready and waiting to hold the narrow seas and to defeat any plan of operations by Germany against the British and French coasts.

Two other facts are of significance in referring to his remarkable talents. When the cry of Britain and her Allies in 1917 was for munitions and still more munitions, it was Winston Churchill who was placed in charge of the department whose business it was to see that supplies were available. At the most critical point in the war, and at a time when the situation called for the most delicate handling, owing to the fact that the Allies were under a united command, it was Winston Churchill who was selected for the position of Secretary of State for War. Later no doubt when the events of those days are viewed by the historian from a proper perspective, the part which he played will be given its true value.

From the general expressions of approval which his first Budget has called forth, it is most evident that he has again scored a success, and this time at a most critical period in the economical life of Great Britain. To meet her indebtedness as well as her internal expenses, taxation has been heaped upon the people until the burden has become too heavy for them to bear. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has taken the bold course of reducing taxation, thereby removing the strangle-hold and permitting the country to recover its vitality; he is protecting the natural industries by putting a stop to dumping; he has shown consideration for the aged poor, and his scheme for contributory insurance provides a means whereby the workman can feel assured that, when age or incapacity of some other nature makes it impossible for him to earn a living, he will not have to rely on some demoralizing and humiliating form of charity.

Terra Nova's Cargo

S.S. Terra Nova finished discharging her cargo of seals yesterday afternoon. The following is the specification:—10,718 young harps, 3,922 young hoods, 4,471 bedlamers, 1,894 old harps, 380 old hoods or a total of 38,225. Gross value of cargo, $45,356.27. Less damaged skins $420.00. Net value $42,736.27. Less one full share $242.81. 1/4 for crew $14,164.48. Gross weight, 515 tons, 17 cwt., 2 qrs., 3 lbs.; net weight, 481 tons, 9 cwt., 3 qrs., 2 lbs. The young harps averaged 50 1/2 lbs. The crew of 176 men shared $80.48 each.

The Fracas at Deer Lake

The fracas which occurred at Deer Lake last week and to which brief reference was made in the Telegram, was not as serious in its results as was at first reported. The trouble, it appears, arose when some workmen resented what appeared to them as insulting behavior towards a man and a woman by several French Canadians who had implied to and beaten, and to escape the fury of a fast growing crowd, sought refuge in a store owned by a man named Gaudin. About 850 angry men surrounded the building and threatened to haul it down if the Frenchmen would not come forth. It appears that their demands were not acceded to and the fort was taken by assault. Furnishings and Frenchmen were ejected, some of the former, which included a stove, went out by way of the window. Constable Myers, who arrived on the scene, took charge of the Frenchmen, and with several prominent business men and officials, used all their endeavors to allay the anger of the crowd, some of whom had become very aggressive as the result of imbibing in a keg of "cider," which was unearthed during the disturbance. One of the citizens who tried to quell the disturbance was roughly handled by the mob before quiet was restored. The Frenchmen, after their arrest were taken before the Magistrate and charged with assault. As they were needed on the log drive they were released on bail, to appear later.

Enjoyable Dance

Upwards of 250 people attended a dance in Grenfell Hall last night given by the Ladies' Department of the Grenfell Institute. The dance hall was decorated in colors of red, white and blue, with balloons and Chinese lanterns to the strains of the Prince's Orchestra, the assembly enjoyed themselves thoroughly. A programme of twelve dances with three extras was gone through before midnight and was thoroughly enjoyed. The elimination dance was a special feature. The prize winners were Eric Robertson and Miss Marguerite Murray. The Mission of the Department, Mrs. Fones, was chaperone, assisted by Mrs. Glenning. The ladies of the Department provided the catering. The entire assembly were conveyed by the elevator to the reception room, where everybody was seated on an elaborate spread which was done full justice to by all. The object of the affair was to raise funds for the purchase of a radio set for the Ladies' Department.

There will be NO practice for Cochrane Street Choir this evening.—apr30.11

'Abbu San of Old Japan'

A SPLENDID PERFORMANCE.

The lecture room of Cochrane St. Church contained a large audience last night, which came away much pleased with the performance of "Abbu San of Old Japan," which was staged by the Cochrane Street Girls' Bible Class. Abbu San is a royal princess in old Japan, the only daughter of the Emperor. She is a bright, happy child of nature and beloved by all the ladies of her court except a distant relative, Mist of the Evening, who is jealous of the popularity of the little Princess. Mist of the Evening is engaged to marry the Baron Do and is much incensed when the Princess permits the Baron to dance with her at the royal ball. The next day, two of the court favorites, with whom Mist of the Evening is somewhat unpopular, falsely announce that he has fitted his fiancée and has decided to propose to the Princess. Abbu San herself unconsciously lends color to the story by stating that she is soon to be betrothed, but not saying to whom. Mist of the Evening, furiously jealous, flies to her mother, the legal Duchess Jui-no, who is almost beside herself at the imagined affront offered to her imperial household. She determines to rid her daughter of the Princess who is about to visit the hill country to attend the annual chrysanthemum fête. Abbu San, with her three favorite attendants, sail down the river to the hill country and at the suggestion of the Princess, they intend to compete with the village maids for the honor of being chosen queen of the fête. To do this, Abbu San and two of the maids, dress as peasants. Mist of the Evening, however, does not care to masquerade, and retains her court garments. The convict woman, intent on abducting the Princess, arrives at the fête disguised as a peddler, and seeing only one lady in court garments, she naturally supposes she is the Princess, and abducts Mist of the Evening. In the meantime, the Duchess of Tokyo learns that he is still faithful to her daughter and hurries to the hill country to save the Princess from the hands of the convict woman, and is much concerned when she learns that her own daughter has been the victim. All ends happily, however, as Mist of the Evening is rescued by a valiant porter woman, who, for this, is chosen as Queen of Chrysanthemum Fête.

The comedy is furnished by Miss Dash, an American newspaper writer, and old Aunt Paradise who "don't like dis here old Japan," and longs for "Old Virginia."

The following is the cast of characters:—Madam Masago (Morning Glory), the Manager of the Play, P. Soper; Ogo, her maid of all work, E. Grimes; Porters, P. Moore, D. Tizard; Abbu San, daughter of His Majesty, E. Jardine; The Duchess Fejji-No, second cousin of His Majesty, J. Hopkins; Lady Yu-Girl (Mist of the Evening), her daughter, M. Grimes; O Matsuka San, Maid of honor to the Princess, D. Jardine; Okiku San, Maid of honor to the Princess, D. Matthews; Nasu-No hostess of the "In of Motion Pictures," E. Grimes; Court Ladies, E. Adey, C. Lewis and F. Vey; Miss Henrietta Dash, an American newspaper writer, Mrs. C. F. Garland; Aunt Paradise, a black mammy from "Old Virginia," E. Grimes; Court Ladies, E. Grimes; Peasant Maids, H. LeDrew, M. Butt, H. Soper, P. Spooner, Musical Director, Mrs. Jardine. The costumes were very pretty, whilst the stage settings were of elaborate design and the whole scene was a pretty one. The music was particularly pleasing, being taken from the Mikado, whilst the singing, and spoken parts left nothing to be desired. The performance will be repeated to-night, and deserves a large attendance.

Truckmen's Union Make Most Generous Offer

The St. John's Truckmen's Union held their annual meeting in their hall on Tuesday evening when the financial report, which showed the Union to be in a most satisfactory position, was read and adopted. A discussion took place with reference to the question of carting stone to "Exon," the Church of England Girls' Orphanage, where the Orphanal Club are about to erect a new building, a letter having been received from that organization in connection with the matter. The Union very generously decided that any work of this kind would be performed free, and their action merits the thanks not only of the Club but of the whole community.

Magistrate's Court

A drunk was discharged.
A drunk and disorderly was fined $2.00 or 7 days.

JUVENILE COURT.

A 13-year-old lad, was arraigned before Judge Morris in the Juvenile Court, and pleaded guilty to the following charges:—
(1) Larceny of a key, the property of Miss Taylor on 7th inst.
(2) Larceny from the house of Miss Ettie Taylor, a cash box containing $2.00. The property of Miss Taylor.
(3) Larceny of a key the property of Charles Lester on the 25th.
(4) Larceny of a package containing two prayer books, from the store of George Knowling, Ltd., within the past two weeks, valued $2.00.
(5) Larceny of 1 pair of glasses, valued $1.00, the property of James Baird, Ltd., within the past two weeks.
(6) Larceny from the Royal Stores, Ltd., one pack of playing cards, valued at $1.00, the property of the Royal Stores, Ltd., within the past two weeks.
(7) Larceny of one kit box, from the auction rooms of Mr. Bastow, George Street, also about 4 doz. post cards, valued about $3.00 within the past two weeks.

An eleven-year-old lad, a brother of the accused was also apprehended by the police, but was not charged. Constable Bennett of the Detective Staff who was engaged on the case, told the court that the accused with his brother were found living in a house on George Street, and had no bed to sleep on. Their only means of getting any sleep was after the family would retire, when they would lie down on the kitchen floor, using their overcoats for a mattress. The constable found in a kit box in the possession of the accused most of the stolen articles and the balance was found in possession of the boy's father. The constable also stated that he had described to the father the habits of the boys and the surroundings in which they were living, but stated that the father claimed he had done all he could for them. In the meantime the father was summoned before Court at the instance of Inspector Noseworthy, the Probation Officer, and was charged, in the presence of his sons, with a breach of Sub. Sec. 2, Section 14 of the Children's Act.

The accused pleaded Not Guilty to the charge, and all that he had to say for himself was that after his wife's death he sent the boys to Grand Falls to be looked after by his sister. For some reason or other the boys returned to the city, and he then placed them in boarding houses and paid their board. As to the finding of stolen property in his possession he was unaware of it.

The evidence of a second constable showed that during the months of January and February the boys were unable to set into their home, the father having been out and kept the door locked. The officer also stated that on several nights on returning from his beat, he would find the little chaps lying on his door step, cold and hungry, waiting for the father to return home. On more than one occasion the policeman took pity on the boys, and brought them into his house and gave them food.

Upon hearing the facts strongly condemned the father, and the manner in which he had treated his children. He would not punish the boy who had confessed to the eight larcenies because his father was to blame. The judge read the Children's Act for the accused's benefit, and inflicted a fine of $50.00, and a three months' imprisonment. He was also ordered to sign a bond in the sum of $50.00, and to look after his children in future.

Inspector Noseworthy, the Probation Officer, was given instructions by the Court to see that the order is carried out.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

April 29th.—A dull day and little or no sun to be had anywhere. Indeed, the times are mighty quiet, more so than I have seen them this long time. The House this day hears a petition from St. John's East, presented by the Opposition, and praying that the District do soon have its bye-election to fill the vacant seat there. Sir John Crosbie explains the conditions of the last job at some length, and the debate then continued on the Tariff till late. Abroad to Water Street, and buy me a new hat, cost me $7.50, which I am loath to do, yet am ashamed by my wife into getting it. But Lord, the wretch wears me with the interest she do take in my appearance, and should be content that I do allow her to spend a small fortune on her own clothes, without making me get into debt on my own account. Playing at bridge this night, yet am in no humor for the game and do make the most absurd mistakes, which I make my wife upbraid me unmercifully, nor have I the will nor the energy to answer back.

CITY CLUB.—The Quarterly Meeting of the City Club will be held in the Reading Room, this Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock.—apr30.11

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

LONDON, Apr. 30.
The officials of the Foreign Office, Home Office and Scotland Yard still refuse to discuss the plot against Austen Chamberlain, the Foreign Secretary, which culminated yesterday in the detailing of guards to protect him, beyond admitting the general belief that the plot was of Communist origin. No details were forthcoming. London newspapers print the suggestion that the attack on Mr. Chamberlain was to be part of a general Communist disturbance over Europe, with which the recent troubles in Bulgaria and France and today's attempt to wreck a train on which the President of Estonia was a passenger were connected. It is not expected that disturbances will occur in England as the authorities have doubled their efforts for guarding the airports and centres of possible Communist outbreaks. Heavy guards have been thrown about Mr. Chamberlain's residence and he is followed continuously by Scotland Yard men.

TO DO HIS DUTY LIKE A GOOD GERMAN.
GROSS SCHWUEL, Per Germany, Apr. 30.
Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, President-elect of Germany, never a tentative man, in simple words summed up his conception of his duties as President to a small circle of friends who visited him at his temporary abode here immediately after his conference with Chancellor Luther yesterday. "I will do my duty just as I have done it thus far as a Good German," said the President-elect; "that surely will be the right way."

JARVIS MAKES A STATEMENT.

TORONTO, Apr. 30.
In a statement issued last night Aemilius Jarvis gave an explanation of his connection with the Ontario Government bond purchase transaction, and declared there never was any bargain, understanding or arrangement expressed or implied with Peter Smith, the former Provincial Treasurer, or Andrew Peppi or any other person, that Peter Smith was to receive any share or benefit from the purchase of the succession duty free bonds. Smith was not present at the Ontario Cabinet meeting when the contract was negotiated, he said. Jarvis asked that the statement be given the same prominence as was given those which appeared in the press from time to time during his imprisonment for conspiracy, "in which I have usually been pictured as a plunderer of the public funds, which is not true."

EX-PREMIER ASKED TO FORM A CABINET.

BRUSSELS, Apr. 30.
Baron Charles de Broqueville, ex-Premier, has been asked by King Albert to form a new Belgian Cabinet to succeed that of Premier Theunis, which resigned on April 5.

NEW KNIGHT OF THE GARTER.

LONDON, Apr. 30.
King George has approved the appointment of Viscount Fitz-Alan as Knight of the Garter in succession to the late Marquis Curzon.

'Take My Advice' Scores Again

Another bumper house greeted the talented players in the playlet "Take My Advice" at St. Patrick's Parish Hall last night. The performers were quite at home in their different roles and the whole show went off without a hitch. Between the acts specialties were rendered by Misses Jean Taylor, P. Coughlan and M. Helen; Mrs. H. Small; Messrs. O. Green and R. Redmond, who with the music of the orchestra added much to the general enjoyment. By special request the play is to be repeated to-night, when another large audience will likely be present.

Feldian Re-Union This Evening

This evening members of the Feldian Club will hold their annual dinner in the Sterling Restaurant, when the champion hockey team and the rowing crew will be special guests. Elaborate preparations have been made for the event and the members and their friends are looking forward to a good time.

Lady Cavendish and Sister Dead

London, April 22.—Lady Frederick Cavendish, widow of Lord Cavendish, died at ten o'clock to-night, at her home in Turnbridge. She was 84 years of age. By a strange coincidence, her sister, the Hon. Mrs. Talbot, died at 8.15 o'clock this evening, at Edenbridge, near Turnbridge. Lord Frederick, husband of Lady Cavendish, was assassinated in Phoenix Park, in May, 1892, at the time he was chief secretary for Ireland.

BOREI.
On April 29th, a son to Mr. and Mrs. C. Skanes, Quill Viad Road.
This morning a son to Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fitzgerald, 124 Casey St.

DIED.
Passed peacefully away on April 29th, Gordon Fitzpatrick, beloved child of James and Susan Eagan, aged 4 months; leaves to mourn a sister, 1 brother, friends and relatives. May the sacred Heart of Jesus have mercy on his soul. Funeral took place this morning, at 11 o'clock, from his late residence, 2 Hunt's Lane.

Passed peacefully away on Friday last, April 24th, Mrs. Lavinia Pettie, of Flat Rock, Bay de Verde District, aged 87 years; left to mourn are 4 sons and one daughter. Boston papers please copy.
Wednesday morning, Thos. Nichols, aged 83 years, leaving to mourn two sons and two daughters. Funeral Friday, at 2.30 p.m., from his late residence, No. 35 Mullock Street.

NOTE OF THANKS.—I, J. Scriver and family wish to thank most sincerely the following who were of such great comfort and consolation to them in their sad bereavement; also the large number of friends who sent wreaths to adorn the casket of their devoted wife and mother: W. P. Rogerson, Rev. Joyce, Rev. Young (Fortune), H. Lake (Fortune), Drs. Carnell and Taft, Dr. and Mrs. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. M. O'Rourke, Mr. and Mrs. T. Flood, Mr. and Mrs. A. ## A Chance for the Men to Act

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—May I suggest, through the columns of your paper that now that the women have the vote they will use their influence to improve conditions in the Nursing profession.
At the present time at the General Hospital we have nurses working 12 hours a day—from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. vice versa. This means that a nurse has to be on her feet for at least ten hours per day, and as everybody knows that alone is quite a strain especially for young women ranging, for the most part, from twenty to twenty-five years of age.

But, besides walking around, the nurse does a hard day's work. The patients have to be washed, beds made, and wards swept. Meals have to be served, dressings made and applied, and laundry sorted. Add to these things the number of incidentals and you have the average day's work of a nurse. It is equal to, if not greater than, the amount of work done by an ordinary man.

Most hospitals in other countries have long ago adopted the eight hour day for nurses, and may I suggest that the proper authorities see that that be done here. It is bound to come sooner or later! Why not now?
Even the men have found that twelve hours a day were too long for them, and practically without exception now have an eight hour day.
Is it reasonable to suppose the women, who are not supposed to be able to stand as much as men, can work twelve hours? I do not think so!

I might add, moreover, that a Nurse's work is not over when she comes "off duty." Examinations are held periodically and in connection with these they have to attend lectures which are usually held outside working hours.
Personally I don't see how anybody can do justice to an examination based on lectures given after twelve hours' work.

In closing, I once more ask that those Suffragists, who have so lately gained the right to vote, will support the cause of their sisters.
Thanking you for your space, Mr. Editor, I remain,
Yours sincerely,
VALEO.

Archie Marks Players in Irish Production

"Where The River Shannon Flows," To-Night's Attraction."
The most popular nature of entertainment to St. John's amusement-seekers is something with an Irish touch to it. To-night all will get their hearts' desire in that beautiful Irish romance "Where The River Shannon Flows," played by Archie Marks and her Players in the Casino. Everybody well knows the capability of this talented little lady and in Irish parts she is always at home. With her genuine wit and winsome ways coupled with that natural Irish brogue Miss Marks is in a class all to herself in an Irish production. Mr. Lindsay E. Derrin, the popular versatile actor appears in this play in a role that his many friends will be delighted with. In fact all the members of the company are well set. The plot is a beautiful one of heart interest with a generous sprinkling of good wholesome comedy. A special vaudeville programme of five snappy acts of musical and novelty entertainment. On Saturday afternoon there will be a bumper attraction for the young folks with extra attractions for their benefit. Don't let the children miss this big show on Saturday. The bill for Monday night is a 1924 comedy-drama "A Good For Nothing Husband." This is a recent success which enjoyed a phenomenal run on Broadway. Watch for "The Black Flag."

S. U. F. Catalina.

Last week was gala week for Caribou Lodge, No. 74. On Sunday, April 19th, Divine Service was attended at St. Peter's Church in the morning, when the incumbent Rev. T. W. Upward was the preacher.

On Thursday, St. George's Day, the members accompanied by the Band from Port Union made a complete parade around the harbour embracing East End, Sheppard's Cove and Port Union.

Preparations had been rife for some time anticipating the staging of the play "Quarantined" St. George's night, and long ere 7 o'clock throngs of people were seen hastening towards the Parish Hall. So great was the attendance that even the egress was crowded, and scores of people had to go home unable to get in. The play "Quarantined" was the same as produced by St. Mary's Dramatic Troupe in St. John's in 1921. Our cast of characters was as follows:—

Mrs. Tod Hunter . . . Miss P. M. Haynes
Mr. Tod Hunter . . . F. Haynes
Monte Hay . . . R. G. Haynes
Dorothy May (his fiancée)

Mrs. S. W. Miffin
Kloomp (Dutch maid)

Mrs. S. J. Hefferton
Marie (French maid) . . . Mrs. L. G. Guy
The Policeman . . . S. J. Hefferton

The prologue to the play was a quartette "Murmuring Sea" by Mrs. S. W. Miffin, Miss Hoskins; Messrs. F. and R. Haynes.

A Duet "County Courtship" was interspersed between the second and third acts, and was sung by Mrs. S. J. Hefferton and Frank Haynes. Miss F. G. Guy acted as accompanist and S. J. Hefferton was coach.

To single out any particular player on this occasion would be not only invidious but most difficult as well. Everyone was exceedingly well versed in their respective parts, and each character was faithfully delivered "as though to the manner born." (There was perhaps one exception to the latter statement). The window scene and Grandpa's dancing possibly evoked the greatest amount of applause during the performance.

The consensus of opinion is that it was about the best thing ever staged before a Catalina audience, and, at the request of many in the first night's audience, it was decided to repeat on Friday night. Unfortunately Friday's blizzard hampered our plans, and although we had not the packed hall assured us yet more than 100 persons braved the disagreeable weather to see the adventure of Grandpa.

The receipts on the first night exceeded $100.00, and on the second night totalled nearly $30.00 more. We hope the request made by several that it be repeated on May 25th may be acceded to by the performers, and we have no doubt but that a crowded house will again greet "Grandpa and his friends."

in the front rooms, knows that the strange cat or dog is there, for he sets up a loud, angry barking, which continues until he is let out, when he rushes into the garden to drive away the intruder.

How did he know?

Another friend of mine owns a bulldog. If anybody whom the dog does not know pushes a latchkey into the lock of the front door at any time of the day or night the dog's back instantly bristles and he prepares for attack with threatening growls. But if his master of anybody whom the dog does know pushes in the latchkey the dog's attitude is entirely different. Yet obviously the dog cannot tell by the sound of the key being pushed into the lock whether the person outside is a stranger or a friend.

It would be interesting if somebody could throw a light on this mystery or advance some plausible theory to account for the singular power which dogs seem to possess of becoming aware of what is happening out of their sight.

English Critic Names Fifteen Best Novels

Arthur Symonds, dean of British literary critics, writing in The Forum, says that he was inspired to make a list of the fifteen finest novels in the world's literature by reading a list in The Forum compiled by the American critic, William Lyon Phelps. The two lists differ materially. According to Professor Phelps' count England scored highest with six, France next with four, Russia third with four, America last with two. But according to Mr. Symonds, France takes first place with seven "best," England second with four, while America, Italy, Russia and Spain share third place with only one book apiece. Mr. Symonds singles out the following books: Don Quixote, by Miguel de Cervantes; Gargantua, by Francois Rabelais; Clarissa, Harlowe, by Samuel Richardson; The History of Tom Jones, by Henry Fielding; Gulliver's Travels, by Jonathan Swift; Le Pere Goriot, by Honore de Balzac; Le Rouge et Le Noir, by Stendhal; Salammbô, by Gustave Flaubert; Anna Karenina, by Tolstol; Lavengro, by George Borrow; Made-moiselle de Maupin, by Theophile Gautier; Scarlet Letter, by Nathaniel Hawthorne; Les Diabliques, by Barbey d'Aurevilly; Les Liaisons Dangereuses, by Choderlos de Laclos; and Il Trionfo della Morte, by Gabriele d'Annunzio. How many readers have read all of these books?

Have Dogs Got a Sixth Sense

By BASIL TOZER.

A friend of mine who lives in a third floor flat overlooking a road on the outskirts of London has a terrier whose conduct tends to the belief that dogs possess some sixth sense of which we know nothing.

The windows of his flat are much too high above the floor for any dog to be able to see out of them. All day long a stream of motor and horse-drawn traffic passes along the road below the windows, and the dog pays not the slightest attention. But now and again a horse and cart goes by which, though apparently he can only hear it, stirs him into a paroxysm of fury which lasts until the cart is once more out of hearing.

There may be some reason for his fury which we know nothing about, but how does the dog know, even when the windows are shut, that that particular cart is passing? For invariably it is the same horse and cart which has this effect upon him.

The same problem arises in the case of a dog of my own which lives in the front rooms of my house. At the back there is a garden which cannot be seen from the front; yet the moment a cart or a dog comes into the garden my dog,

Position of Nova Scotia in Union

PREMIER ARMSTRONG GIVES NOTICE OF IMPORTANT RESOLUTION NEXT WEEK.

(Morning Chronicle, April 24.)

A full discussion of Nova Scotia's position in the Union and the conditions which have arisen since Confederation which have prejudicially affected the interests of the Province will take place in the House of Assembly next week, according to a notice given by Premier Armstrong yesterday. The Premier's notice reads as follows:

"I hereby give notice that on a future day, probably Tuesday or Wednesday next, I will move a resolution with respect to certain matters referred to in paragraph 19 of the Speech from the Throne at the opening of this session of the Legislature, of which more formal notice will probably be given later.

Paragraph 19 of the Speech from the Throne, to which Mr. Armstrong's notice refers, was in effect that the Government and Legislature of Nova Scotia had at various times protested by petition to the Crown against the terms of Confederation, as they affected the interests of this Province. The British Government and Parliament, while declining to annul the Union compact, nevertheless recognized that the arrangements respecting taxation and the regulation of trade and fisheries should be so relaxed and modified that the interests of Nova Scotia and of the maritime portion of Canada would not be prejudiced. No action has yet been undertaken by the Federal Government or Parliament to carry out, in their full letter and spirit, the instructions of the British Government in this respect.

LOOSE TALK.

"I'll eat my hat," said Pringle Pratt, "if we don't have bad weather; the wind's increased, it's from the east, the clouds are banked together. The bullfrogs 'sing in swamp and spring, the moon has whiskers on it; the signs are plain, to-night 'twill rain, or I will eat my bonnet." There was no rain to soak the plain, the moon brought cloudless weather, the sun rays beat with frightful heat upon the wilting heather. "Now, Pringle Pratt, pray eat your hat," I said, devoid of passion; "I've walked a mile to see your tile devoured in seemingly fashion. You swore, you did, to eat your lid, if false was your prediction; so now you'll chew your kelly bite, unless you deal in fiction." "The threats I spoke, to eat my toque," he said, "were idle chatter; a man makes vows while he allows such pledges do not matter." Since early youth I've shielded truth from all intruding dangers: "So eat your hat," I said to Pratt, "or we shall meet as strangers. Your duty's plain; if you would gain my niece's hand in marriage, you'll fill your pelt with that old felt, with high and knightly carriage. You made demand for her fair hand with gracious ploy and claver; but if you hedge on any pledge you simply cannot have her." He loved my niece, he knows no peace since my stern words were spoken; he'd not devour that chapeau sour, and two fond hearts were broken.

March, 75,555 cars, were the heaviest since February of last year, when the total was 75,683. Last month's shipments of cars and trucks by G. M. O. manufacturing divisions, moreover, were 94% of the January-February total, whereas March, 1924, figures were only 54% of the previous two months combined.

As April is normally the biggest production month of the year for motor manufacturers, it is probable that current shipments will run over 85,000 cars. If they get up to 87,000 cars and trucks it will mean a new high monthly output record, previous best figure being 86,936 cars in October of 1923, which was the biggest year for both General Motors and the industry as a whole.

These shipping figures forecast some impressive earnings for General Motors before the first half-year is closed. Because Chevrolet did not get into full stride with its new models until February, the second quarter will run considerably ahead of the first three months. The management expects in any event to have all preferred and common dividends in hand before summer opens—which means between $38,500,000 and $39,000,000 net by June 21.

The big volume of business is naturally converting inventories into cash at a tremendous rate, and cash holdings at present approximate $120,000,000, against $88,000,000 at the opening of the year.

Noted Tenor Will Arrive on Monday

ADRIAN DASILVA COMING FROM RIVOLI THEATRE NEW YORK.

Mr. J. P. Kieley has been very fortunate in securing the noted Tenor, Adrian Dasilva who will arrive here on Monday to open a limited engagement at the Nickel Theatre. Mr. Dasilva comes direct from a very successful engagement at the Rivoli Theatre, New York. An attraction of this calibre will be welcomed by all lovers of music, and judging from advance information, we feel sure that this gentleman will satisfy the discriminate taste of St. John's music enthusiasts.

"Wine of Youth," the latest production of that popular film director, King Vidor, begins an engagement to-day at the Nickel Theatre.

It is his first production under the newly formed Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company, and according to reviews in other cities where the picture has shown, it ranks with Vidor's other recent successes, such as "Three Wise Fools," "Wild Oranges," "Happiness" and other productions.

"Wine of Youth," adapted to the screen from Rachel Crothers' stage success, "Mary the Third," is a whimsical story of modern youth, treated for the most part in a light, humorous vein.

It will introduce again to the screen here Eleanor Boardman, the Goldwyn discovery, whose work in "Three Wise Fools," "Sons for Sale," "The Day of Faith" and other pictures, has made her a national favorite.

The supporting cast includes Ben Lyon, William Collier, Jr., Bobby Agnew, William Haines, Eulalie Jensen, Pauline Garon and many others.

On Saturday afternoon, Harold Lloyd's great comedy "Hot Water" will be shown for the children.

Wedding Bells.

HEALEY-O'NEILL.

On the 12th inst a very pretty wedding was solemnized at Holy Innocents Church, Brooklyn, New York, when Miss Kathleen O'Neill was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Geo. Healey. The bride was daintily attired in a dress of bridal crepe trimmed with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Bertha O'Neill. Mr. Vincent Healey, brother of the groom, acted as best man. As the bride entered the church Miss Kathryn Kenny sang "O Promise Me." After the ceremony the Wedding March was played. The reception was held at Brackbridge Hall, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. After supper had been partaken of and a toast proposed for the health of the bride and groom, the guests retired to the ballroom where Miss Isabella Graham presided at the piano and a most enjoyable time was spent, after which the bridal couple motored to Pennsylvania station and boarded the train for Philadelphia, where the honeymoon was spent. On their return they took up residence in Brooklyn where they will in future reside. The presents received were numerous and costly, testifying to the esteem in which the happy couple were held. The Telegram joins in wishing them many years of wedded bliss over the sea of matrimony. The bride is a sister of Supt. O'Neill of the Newfoundland Constabulary.

"Go to Jericho"

When Mark Twain reached Jericho, he said, "I am where my grandmothers has wished me many a time."

It is said that the man of Blackmore, near Chelmsford, was called Jericho, and was one of the country residences of Henry VIII. A common phrase among his courtiers was, "He is gone to Jericho." This explanation does not seem a good one, because to be consigned to Jericho is not usually regarded as pleasurable.

In one of the rhymes of Taylor, the "Water Poet" and friend of Ben Jonson, occur the lines:

There is a proverb and a prayer
That we not to three strange places fall;
From Hull, from Halifax, from H—
'tis thus

From all these three, Good Lord deliver us.

The reason for putting Halifax side by side with Hades is well known. Thieves and tramps avoided Halifax because of its law that whoever committed theft in the liberty of Halifax should be executed on the Halifax gibbet, which was a kind of gallows. Hull may have been dragged in to make three H's.

The most commonly used of the many phrases of this kind consigns a person "to Coventry." To be sent to Coventry when at school, college, or in the Army is a serious matter, because it means that no one will speak to you. Its origin is said to be due to the fact that there was such a feud between the garrison and the citizens of Coventry that a woman seen speaking to a soldier was henceforth taboo.

The programme was rendered as follows: March, Band; recitation, B. Colton; trio, Messrs. Skiving, Cranford and Snow; song, T. Pottles; selection, Band; piano duet, Misses Chase and Grant; song, Miss Driscoll; saw solo, H. Diamond; selection, Band; song, C. Rendell; violin solo, J. Williar; song, Mrs. Pottles; song, H. Chaplin; march, Band.

Advocates Keeping Light Full On

The London Daily Mail has started a campaign among motorists urging them to keep their headlights full on. From numerous trials it is claimed that far fewer accidents occur under these circumstances than when the lights are dimmed or the cars stopped. Opinions of local motorists on this question would be interesting, and might help to solve the problem.

Peculiar Facts and Figures

Canaries were first brought to Europe in the early part of the sixteenth century. In its wild state the canary is green, or greenish yellow tinged with brown. The wild birds have louder and clearer notes than the tame varieties.

Paris and London wireless concerts have been heard clearly at Sarafand, twelve miles north of ancient Tyre. Sarafand is really Zarephath, or Zarepta, where Elijah's widow lived.

The largest library in the world is the Bibliotheque Nationale, Paris, founded by Louis XIV. It contains 1,500,000 volumes, 350,000 pamphlets, 180,000 manuscripts, 300,000 maps and charts, 1,300,000 old gravings and prints, and nearly 150,000 medals and coins.

The world's longest railway platform, the total length of which is 2-175 feet, has been created through the linking up of the Victoria and Exchange stations at Manchester.

Less tobacco is being consumed in this country. In 1920 nearly 1149,000,000 pounds were smoked; in 1923 this quantity had decreased to 132,000,000 pounds.

The largest stone arch in England is at Chester, its span being 200 feet. The centre arch at Southwark Bridge, London, which is of iron, is a 240-foot span.

Two American doctors claim to have developed a system of treating cancer by wireless. The receiver is a sheet of tin suspended over the patient's head, and the doctors say that their radio apparatus has proved beneficial hundreds of miles away from the source of treatment.

CHERBOURG, April 22.—Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine boxer, sailed today on the steamer Flindria for his home in Buenos Aires. Firpo signed an agreement in Paris yesterday to meet the Spanish heavyweight boxer, Paolino, at Balboa, Spain, early in September. Firpo said he will return to Europe in June to commence training.

NEPTUNE REPORTS.—According to a message received from the Neptune last night, no seals were taken during the day, on account of a thick snow storm. A report to the Postal Telegraphs stated the crew were all well. The total catch to date is roughly 125,000.

Why England's Great Cathedrals are Crumbling

Britain's crumbling cathedrals present a problem raised in acute form once more by a new restoration appeal—£10,000 for the repair of the roof and stonework of Wakefield Cathedral. Nearly every cathedral in the land is either being repaired or in vital need of such attention.

Either their foundations are insufficient for the weights they bear; the stoneworks are collapsing under the attack of acids in the atmosphere, or else the roofs are being ruined by dry rot or the death watch beetle.

In the case of Wakefield, Sir Charles Nicholson and Mr. Wrigley, who have thoroughly examined the roof, find that it is a case of dry rot.

The trouble at Lincoln is a series of great cracks in the towers. Hundreds of tons of liquid cement have been poured into them to strengthen the columns, and the work has been so successful that a commission from St. Paul's has visited Lincoln to see how it is done.

At Peterborough the roof had suffered from attacks by the death watch beetle; at Salisbury the insecure foundations threw the spire out of the perpendicular; Winchester is just ending great restoration work rendered necessary by poor foundations; York Minster has had to have its famous Five Sisters window reroofed and cleaned; Elgin, Durham and many others are like the Houses of Parliament—peeling off in flakes owing to the action of the atmosphere.

Professor Laurie, of Edinburgh, has made several tours in England and Scotland for the Office of Works, and has found that sulphur dioxide gas, produced by coal-burning and invading the atmosphere, combines with lime in the stone and forms crystals, which cause the stone to break off in flakes. The flakes are sometimes large pieces of stone an inch thick.

Experiments are now being carried out to find a means of combating the process.

The external beauty of the Houses of Parliament is also threatened with decay, and the deleterious London atmosphere is the chief cause of the trouble.

It plays havoc with the pinnacles, and its baneful effect is becoming so marked that eventually a general scheme of restoration may be rendered necessary to preserve the symmetry of the exterior.

The House opened at 3 p.m.
MR. K. BROWN presented a petition from the residents of Wild Cove on the subject of telephone connection. The petition was supported by his colleagues.
MR. HICKMAN presented a petition on the subject of opening St. John's East Division. Messrs. Halfyard, Scammell, Brown, Ashbourne, Duff and Cashin supported the prayer of the petition.
MR. CAHILL presented a petition from the people of Harbor Main on the subject of a road. Hon. Mr. Woodford supported the petition.
The Council's amendment to the Old Age Pensions Bill was sent back to the Council with the intimation that the amendments cannot be entertained.

QUESTIONS.
THE FINANCE MINISTER laid on the table of the House all correspondence in reference to the four million dollar loan raised in England. The Finance Minister said that when Mr. Hickman had time to look over this correspondence he would demand that the leader table any information which he claimed to have in reference to the matter.

THE LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION replied that he had not made any charges of wrong doing against anybody, but he believed there was a nigger in the woodpile. Mr. Hickman claimed that 60 per cent. of the loan was still on the hands of the underwriters owing to the fact that it was not advertised in sterling instead of dollars and cents. He quoted extracts from the London Times of Feb. 11 and 17th on this matter to show where he got the idea from. Mr. Hickman read a considerable portion of the correspondence tabled and claimed that the Prime Minister must have been misled when he replied to his questions. He thought that he should have had the correspondence sooner.

HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE—Mr. Speaker. In reply to the honorable Leader of the Opposition I would like to first point out in connection with this loan that one of the demands of the Opposition was that the loan should be advertised and tenders called for. I am not prepared to say whether this was the best thing to do or whether it would have been better to have accepted the loan privately. Perhaps in honesty to one's self the best thing would have been to have called tenders as we did. In reference to the correspondence laid on the Table of the House there would have been no object in keeping this correspondence from the Prime Minister, none whatever, and I don't think that the Honourable the Prime Minister would imagine that I had any intention of hiding it from him; but when he asked me if there was any correspondence, I took it for granted that he was all the time talking about correspondence taking place since tenders were being called for, and I said there was not. Since the 20th of August I have been sending cables to the High Commissioner and to Colonel Sullivan trying to boost that loan, and that was all that was possible for the Minister of Finance to do, and then, I think in February, I took the advice of the High Commissioner, which will be found in the correspondence. I believed I was doing it in the best interests of the country and to safeguard the country's rights. The Prime Minister knows that this loan was placed in the hands of agents who were to take care to advertise the loan in Canada, United States and England. It is quite true that the loan was not called for in sterling, but the Finance Minister and the Prime Minister were not going to gamble with exchange on behalf of the people of the country; and though called for in Newfoundland currency it was accepted in sterling when the tenders were opened at the Bank of Montreal in the presence of the Prime Minister, Mr. Gardner, Mr. Bruce and myself. The Leader of the Opposition could have been there if he wanted to. When these tenders were opened, we were negotiating in connection with the purchase of rails in England. It was therefore figured out as to whether we should accept the sterling tender, of which there was only one from the Dominion Securities, Ltd.; and in the interests of the Colony and of Great Britain, we decided to accept that tender, and buy the rails in England, as we would get 3 1/2 per cent for five years from the British Government if we bought the rails and raised the loan in England. We did so feeling confident that what we were doing was in the best interests of the Colony. Why did I send cables since August 20th—why was I sending cables to the High Commissioner? Because I was trying to find out the financial conditions, and the best time to issue the loan on behalf of the Colony. Why did I wait until Feb. 10th or 12th to borrow that money? For only one reason—to save the interest on behalf of the Colony. And it is insinuated here that I was paying the interest from July 1st, 1924. No such thing could possibly happen.

MR. HICKMAN—Pardon me. I would like to explain that I got the information from the Prime Minister, and the correspondence that he gave me, amongst which there was a copy of an advertisement that appeared in the papers, and that advertisement said that the interest was to have been paid from July 1st, 1924.
HON. MINISTER OF FINANCE—That statement shows that the honorable gentleman does not know anything about finance at all. The honorable member should certainly know that the Loan Act called for that loan to be raised from the 1st July, and that the first coupon on the bond would be due on December 31st, 1924, but the Govt. does not issue that coupon. It takes it off before the bond is sold. We ought to be put into a Lunatic Asylum if we started to pay interest on money that we never had. The second coupon on the bond will be due July 1st next, but I have arranged that bonds not already subscribed for shall only have interest paid on them as from January 1st; and the Bank of Montreal has the money now to pay interest for only a month and twenty days. I have had only one object in carrying out that correspondence, that I have tabled, and that was to try and boost the loan, and try to get the best I could for Newfoundland.
Another insinuation has been broadcasted by a crowd of hypocrites. It has been whispered about the lobbies of this House and outside that I had a message from the High Commissioner's Office in London offering a tender for the loan at 99, and that I declined it. Not only that, but the Prime Minister and the Colonial Secretary have been told the same story. Some gentleman told them that the report was about town. It is not true. Why should I care what rumor says about me? There is only one thing that stands before me. It is my conscience and the knowledge that I am doing my best. Long ago I would have sunk into oblivion if lying tongues could have done it; but I am here to-day, and the lying tongues are gone. I have done the best for my country when I have had charge of her financial affairs, and I defy the honorable Leader of the Opposition or any member of this House to prove otherwise. I did not care whether he was a rich man or a poor man, even if he was Sir Edgar Bowring, when he owed a dollar to the Custom House I collected it. And why did I do it? For only one reason. I had taken an oath to His Excellency the Governor to be loyal to the country, and to fill my office in the best interests of this Colony, and I have done so, and I defy contradiction from any man in this House or outside. I will have to

AT THE NICKEL MONDAY.

If you remember "Manslaughter" and "Male and Female," remember "Triumph" is DeMille in the same gorgeous vein. But not even DeMille ever gave you a society romance so brilliantly told, so elaborately filmed.

LONDON, April 28, 1925.
"Your telegram 27th April. Statement came was sent by me offering ninety-nine for loan is incorrect. No tender for loan made through this office."
(Sgd.) HIGH COMMISSIONER.

What further answer do you want than that. Yes, I corresponded with Mr. Sullivan. I sent him messages and I sent them to Mr. Jennings. I sent them, if you like, to the High Commissioner's Office, but as I have already stated, I did it only in the interests of the country, and of the department of Finance, which I represented. I shall have an opportunity before this House closes, perhaps, to throw light on a situation that Newfoundland does not understand. I will soon throw the searchlight on these things, and some who think they can hide away in the shade, will find the light shining very brightly on them, to their discomfort. I admit that I am only human, and I have made mistakes. I know I have made them—I make them every day; but it is only by mistakes that we can learn. Is there a man who is perfect? No, there cannot be. I cannot make mistakes, if so, he has no business here, he should be gone beyond. Mr. Speaker, I regret that I have had to take the stand I have taken this afternoon, but I want to say to my friends who believe in me, and would not hesitate to stake their existence on me to-day, that lying statements made by my enemies are just like water on a duck's back—drops off.

MR. HICKMAN replying, said he did not mean any insinuation against Sir John, and all rumours should not be attributed to him (Mr. Hickman).

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on Supply and Mr. Hickman made some further reference to the loan and the period when the interest is due. Sir John informed him that no interest is due until June, and further that $5,000 had been saved on exchange.
MR. HICKMAN stated that it was a great pleasure to the Opposition and the country generally to learn that the loan was selling at a great deal over par.
MR. CASHIN, replying to Mr. Lake's address, claimed that Mr. Lake was not more independent than himself and referred to his appointment as director of the Power and Paper Co. He, however, pointed out that Mr. Lake was as much entitled to the position as anyone else. The job, he said, was offered to Mr. Lake last year, and if he was not given it, he would cross the floor like himself. Mr. Cashin resented being called a traitor, claiming his position was analogous to that of General Ironsides, who, as an officer was a spy in the German Army for the British Government. He claimed that the Prime Minister's reply to him last night was weak. The speaker read the article signed "Observer," which appeared in the Morning News, and also quoted the editorial which, he claimed, was written to deceive. Mr. Cashin denied he ever tried to induce any member to leave the party, and asked Mr. Moore to bear him out.
MR. MOORE—Mr. Chairman, I am glad that the Hon. member has brought this matter to a head this evening. There has been a lot of whispering and a lot of surmises, both inside and outside of this House, with regard to my relation to this party. As far as the Hon. member himself is concerned he never asked me to leave the party. I did not know what the Leader of the Government was referring to last night when he said Mr. Cashin was using his influence to take members from the party. I knew that for the last three or four weeks Mr. Cashin had grievances with the party, but he always told me to use my own opinion. I will say that for him. With regard to my support of the Monroe Party, I went to the country as a supporter of the Monroe Party and I was returned as a supporter of the Monroe Party. But there seems to be doubt among some members of the Party and amongst some people outside this House with regard to my loyalty to my leader. If my connection with Sir Michael Cashin, which has lasted for fifty years and over, were going to interfere with my allegiance to my party I would give up the Party a thousand times rather than lose the friendship of a man who has stood by me for more than fifty years. Mr. Moore, the Leader of the Government, has many men in this party who are loyal to him but he has none who are more loyal to him than I am.

MR. CASHIN thanked his colleague for exonerating him from that charge and asked the Prime Minister to withdraw the charge.
THE PRIME MINISTER said that he had made no such charge, but had remarked that he had suspicions that Mr. Cashin had tried to induce other members to leave the Party. He accepted the member's denial and withdrew the remark.
MR. CASHIN thanked the Prime Minister and then continued his criticism of the Daily News articles. Before concluding, he asked if the previous or present Government had endeavored, so that they may try and repay us for any little assistance we may have given, to induce the Home Government to pay over to us some of the reparations, which were going to Canada and elsewhere.
MR. GRIMES thought the stand taken by Mr. Cashin was very commendable. Not so that by Mr. Moore who he expected to follow suit. It was a disappointment to hear him pledge his loyalty to Mr. Moore. Mr. Grimes continued the debate on the tariff and pointed out that the duty on clothing was too high. About $300,000 worth of ready made was coming into the country and he claimed that the wealthy people were not affected by the high price of clothing. Sir John took occasion to point out that ready made compare favorably in price here with elsewhere and he exhibited his own suit which he made locally and cost $35.00. Mr. Grimes continued to deal with the question before the chair from the standpoint of the working man until 6.30, when recess was taken.

He added further that he heard that one of our local constables had also been broken up. Mr. Brown recalled how in 1921 he led the strike of laborers at Grand Falls, and concluding said he failed to see where the square deal to all promises were being kept.
MR. ASHBOURNE thought that Mr. Cashin had asserted his independence, and deserved to be congratulated. Speaking on the tariff he would like any member to show where there was a decrease. All had hopes that there would be a reduction. In reference to the tourist traffic he urged that we make a big effort to capitalize our climate, and further not to spend money on roads which might compete with the railway. On the pensions matter the speaker held decided views, and questioned why all should be on a near equal basis. He complained that he had not been consulted on matters relating to his district which he claimed was not a square deal. On the matter of income tax, he said that as he had paid his tax, he hoped that those who had not paid up should be made to do so. In conclusion he urged that the Government use the pruning axe.
MR. CASHIN moved an amendment to the tariff to the effect that the duty be reduced from 65 per cent. to 52 per cent. Mr. Cashin claimed he was not the only rebel in the ranks; and to illustrate he told last year Sir Patrick McGrath, the Prime Minister, the Colonial Secretary and the Minister of Justice were away in Canada. Mr. Morine and Sir John Crosbie collided, and Sir John said that he had fired Mr. Morine out of the Executive. Referring to the News copy as gutter snipe journalism, he in very strong language condemned the writer who had characterized him as a rebel.
MR. HALFYARD supported the amendment moved by Mr. Cashin, and took occasion to congratulate him on his stand in leaving the party in view of the fact that he had three more years in prospect with the Government. He did not know if Mr. Cashin had personal motives, but he was surprised that he was not made a member of the Executive. Speaking on loyalty to a leader, Mr. Halfyard referred to a certain event which eventually put him on the Opposition side of the House. At that time it was a question of principle, and he and his colleagues stood on principle. Mr. Halfyard claimed that business people were taking advantage of the tariff and are marking up their goods. The consumers had not only to pay the increased tariff, but also a profit on the increase. [Mr. Halfyard discussed the question before the chair from every possible angle.
MR. DUFF thought that the importations in consequence of the tariff would show a falling off. He referred then to several of his constituents, whom he claimed had been treated in a dastardly manner by the Government. Also he called attention to the condition of the cable office on Rawlin's Cross which, he thought, needed plenty soap and water.
The Committee rose at 11.45 and reported progress. The remaining orders of the day were deferred, and adjournment was taken until 3 p.m. to-day.

be like my honourable friend Mr. Wain—and use the privilege of the House to defend myself from lying tongues. They have been lying about me for a long time, and they have kept on lying, but they have not been able to keep this chap down. He is still up—and on top—and will be when my traducers are dead. As far as the loan is concerned, I say it was raised honestly, absolutely honestly, every dollar that is coming from that loan is going to the country; and Crosbie will not ask the Colony for five thousand dollars to sign those bonds as other Finance Ministers have done but he will sign them because he thinks it is part of his duty to do so, without being paid a penny extra. Now I have replied to the honorable member and the lying tongues on the street, and to the man who hides behind the doors and round the corner, saying he did this, and he did that, and he robbed the other thing. The only thing I can say to that sort of man is that he does these things himself, and he wishes that other people must do them too. I have taken the trouble to send a cable to the High Commissioner in London to ask him if he ever sent a telegram to me, or to anyone else here saying that anyone ever in London had ever offered through him to take up the Newfoundland loan at 99, and here is his reply for my friends here, and for the lads that have been talking around this town, and in the lobbies of this House. I ask my friend the Colonial Secretary now, sir, to produce the original of this reply to the House. Here is the answer, and if you want further proof, the Hon. Colonial Secretary can show you the original. He sent me this copy this morning, and I will read it to the House:—

Exquisite Eggs

Beauty of colouring no flower has the lovely blue of the egg of the hedge sparrow. Yet the hedge itself is a plain-plumaged bird. On the other hand, that most beautiful of all British birds, the kingfisher, wears a plain white robe, birds that nest in dark places, such as holes in trees or burrows in the ground, lay white eggs. Examples among British birds are the owl, woodpecker, and puffin, as well as the kingfisher. Yet there is no rule in this matter, for many birds that nest in the open lay white eggs, while the redstart, which usually makes its nest in a hollow tree, lays beautiful greenish-blue eggs.

Some eggs are coloured protectively. The ring plover, which nests on an open shingle, beach, lays eggs so similar in colour to the pebbles surrounding them, that it is almost impossible to see them. The eggs of the green plover, laid in a very rough nest on a ploughed field or piece of waste ground, are equally difficult to spot.

There are eggs of which the markings seem purely froakish. The egg of the yellow-hammer is covered with streaky lines almost as if a child had scribbled on it.

Progress

For some unknown reason, our industry does not take kindly to education. There are, of course, sparkling exceptions when individual firms in the business are examined, but in general, we stick by that statement. Assuming that the industrial world can be likened to an army on the march, we look for the fishing industry, and lo! we find it straggling along in the rear, progressing in the right direction principally because there isn't any other place to go. And for that meagre bit of praise, we, editorially speaking, blush.

It is difficult to trace any progress in actual fishing methods, with the exception of the use of motor-driven boats instead of sails or oars. The actual construction of nets, and the methods of operation have changed but slightly in the last thousand years. In more instances the same old lines of distribution are being followed. The average housewife still orders fish on Friday with a resigned air, although, praise be, she is now being taught to separate fish from Friday and how to prepare fish, thanks to the active campaign of the Canadian Fisheries Association and the Government.

After ages of fishing, we still ship our product in any old kind of package, and call the fish by whatever kind of name is applicable. Standardization, adopted in practically every industry of any consequence, is as yet unknown to us.

Now and then a new idea creeps into our field of consciousness, as for instance, the filleting of fish. That good idea was given a cold reception, although now there are as many claimants to the parentage of the idea that the poor thing must be bewildered. We seem, generally speaking, to let the other industries do the leading, and we adopt their methods only after much persuasion and a long lapse of time. Take advertising; any dealer who has even given the slightest bit of thought to the powers of advertising must be acquainted with the methods that put chewing gum, complexion clay, tobacco, and other unecessaries on the map. But look how hard it is for the Canadian Fisheries Association to get the needed support for their good work. They do get aid, but it rarely comes in voluntarily.

Still and all, there are signs that we are inching along in the right direction. Active associations, fisheries colleges, research work by other agencies, a few innovations (albeit at rare intervals), international fisheries commissions, and other co-operative work are favourable signs. If we can quit straggling along picking buttercups, we certainly can get to the head of the procession. Our industry isn't exactly dumb, it is more like the horse that one colored gentleman bought from an equally dusky citizen. Two days after the sale, the new owner accosted the seller with "Say Mose, dat horse you sold me am blind! He can't walk down de street wifout bangin' into chery pole! To which de seller retorted: "Youah crazy, man! Dat horse ain't blind, he just don't give a dam!"—Canadian Fisherman.

An Elephantine Hailstone

We read now and again of record hail storms even in this country, and we hear hailstones compared in size with marbles, pigeons' eggs, and so on.

There are many fairly well-authenticated cases of hailstones weighing half a pound or more, but claims much in excess of these are made. Stones of six or eight pounds were said to have fallen at Namur in 1719, and the missionary, Father Hue, records the fall in Tartary, 1845 of a block of ice as big as a millstone, which took three days to melt.

In May, 1892, a Hungarian village reported the fall of a block of ice 1,100 lbs. in weight; while in the time of Tipoo, a Sultan of Mysore, one as big "as an elephant"—a Jumbo of a stone—is said to have fallen near Seringapatam.

One Hundred Years of Railway

This year will be celebrated the centenary of railways, although it was not until 1825 that the famous tests were made to decide whether the new line between Liverpool and Manchester should be operated by horses, cable, or steam locomotives.

On that occasion Stephenson's famous Rocket settled the question, leaving no doubt in the minds of engineers that here was the motive power of the future. Nevertheless, it is beyond question that on September 27th, 1825, the first public railway for the conveyance of both passengers and goods was opened between Stockton and Darlington.

During this year there is to be a Congress in London of the International Railway Association, and appropriate proceedings in Stockholm, Darlington, and other places. Visitors of last year's British Empire Exhibition had the opportunity of seeing the very engine, George Stephenson's "Locomotive No. 1," which drew the train on that historic occasion. The train consisted of six wagons of coal, one passenger carriage, twenty-one coal trucks fitted with seats, and six more wagons of coal bringing up the rear. It carried 450 passengers, travelled at six miles an hour, and was preceded by a rider on horseback carrying a flag!

THE TEST.
This is the test of a man.
Does he stand to the blow?
Is he willing to go
Just as far as he can
For the right, and not break
When his honor's at stake?

He who has plenty to pay
With a smile what he owes,
But the true splendor glows
In the spirit of him who will say:
"No dollar is mine that I get While I stand 'neath a debt."

A pledged word is easy to keep
When there's little to lose,
But when you must stand up and choose Between hardships and sufferings deep
And the soft way dishonor would take,
It is then that your soul is at stake.

The test of the man is the blow,
The storm and the tempest and strife.
Not the soft, sunny days of his life,
But the length he's willing to go,
And the hardships he'll bear and go through
Because it's the right thing to do.

Proceedings at the Legislative Council

HON. DR. CAMPBELL thought it a pity this Bill had not come up a week ago as then we should not have had such views expressed by the honourable leader of the Government. He seemed to have seen a ghost last night. He (Dr. Campbell) knew what it was for a new Government to come into office with men taking positions with which they were unfamiliar. He was of opinion that bye-elections were a waste of time. He cited cases that had taken place in which members who had just gone through the stress and turmoil of a general election, stood their districts again, when it would have been far more beneficial had they been studying the affairs of their country and getting ready for legislative work, most of which was quite new to them. In the case of Hon. Mr. Monroe and Mr. Winsor it just meant the waste of a month's valuable time. The same might be said of Mr. Bennett and Mr. Russell. What benefit would this be to the District: the same one wins, as a rule the member is elected with an increased majority. With regard to the buying and selling Dr. Campbell thought we were just as honourable in political life as the Canadians. He remembered two men who had crossed over in the Canadian House of Commons, Dr. John Costigan (?) and Mr. McMaster, a friend of the honourable leader of the Government. Such cases, he contended, were as common there as here.

HON. MR. MORINE answered that had Hon. Dr. Campbell been present yesterday afternoon he would have known that he (Hon. Mr. Morine) had not waited until he had seen the so called ghost, as he had then taken the same stand in reference to the matter. With regard to Mr. McMaster, he said, what had been done by him was not to his discredit. He had been in favour of the free trade policy and had crossed over on the matter of tariff. When his party came round to his way of thinking he went back again. Hon. Mr. Morine urged honourable members not to follow the example set by the Mother Country. It would not be considered good for Newfoundland. He thought the electors should have the right to pass judgment on the acts of men who accept office.
HON. DR. MOSDELL supported the remarks of the Hon. Leader of the Government generally, but found fault that the principle be applied to section one. Section one did not hold good for section two.
HON. MR. PRESIDENT thought the different views might be met by an amendment which he suggested and which provided that only those not holding office at the time of a general election should go back for re-election. He stated the reasons for changing the law in England in 1919 was that during the war it had been found necessary to do away with bye-elections as they were injurious to a maintenance of a "win the war" spirit. Then the new government led by Bonar Law put forward the idea to abolish bye-elections for office although. Someone else suggested within two years, and the suggestion was six months, and as a compromise eight months was fixed. It might be remembered that in England 70 or 80 people hold office, which makes it tremendously difficult to carry out bye-elections. In 99 cases out of 100 when candidates go back for re-election after the return of a government the disposition of the people is to re-elect them and give the government a chance. In Newfoundland during the last 40 years he only knew of two cases where Ministers of the Crown were defeated in bye-elections, the cases referred to by Hon. Mr. Morine when he defeated the Receiver General, Mr. Noonan in 1889, and when R. T. McGrath defeated Hon. W. J. I. Donnelly in Placentia in 1899. These elections occurred a year or almost two years after the governments represented were returned to power. The proposition, in his opinion, should not be accomplished as it stood, as it left the door wide open to great evils. He suggested that the Committee rise and that a Select Committee be appointed to consider an amendment.

HON. MR. McNAMARA did not approve of the Bill as it stood, with regard to candidates being re-elected after the return of a party; he took it that they were generally re-elected at the expense of the country. If the Bill were passed it would create a condition of affairs that he had not dreamed of. It would open the door to all kinds of political corruption and fraud. He wished to cite a case which occurred sixty years ago to prove that bye-elections for office were great safeguards. In 1865 when the name Tory and Liberal first came into use and have been used and abused ever since, the Tory party had not sufficient members to carry on the government, and Messrs. Kent, Steer and Casey succeeded from that party. Bye-elections followed, but Kent who contested the East End only escaped defeat by 7 votes at the hands of an ex-doorkeeper of the Assembly; Mr. Shea was overwhelmingly defeated in Ferryland by Kearney, the famous boat builder, and Casey was "snowed under" by Brennan the bone setter in St. John's West. He merely cited this case to prove that bye-elections particularly when deserters from one side or the other accepted offices of emolument were very essential to stable government.

HON. MR. MORINE thanked the last speaker for his very apt illustration, and pointed out that the Hon. the President and Hon. Dr. Campbell missed the point that when bye-elections were held here the candidates went back for the same party and on the same policy on which they were elected. That they were re-elected was no guarantee that the electors would not have resented them if they had changed their coats. In the case of Mr. Noonan he went back representing his own party and the party's policy, and his (Hon. Mr. Morine's) victory was looked upon as a party achievement. If followers on the opposition ranks accepted office under the government and went back for re-election it was not certain they would be returned because they had accepted a government office. The Bill left the door open to corruption in many ways. Either on one side or the other the elected candidate could accept office with the assurance that he did not have to seek re-election for the next four years. The passage of the Bill, as he saw it, would be rampant robbing of the franchise of the people. What we required here was stability of government; we did not want the French or German system of changing around every year. Some people say the Supreme Court on Circuit was a waste of money; the Court did not hear any cases. The reason there were not many cases was the presence of the Court. Its value was in going about. The value of the laws in this country was in the cases they have prevented. Why open the door now to changes and make the system worse. During the past twenty years none knew what side a man was on. One cannot tell to-day what party is Liberal or Tory, the names have changed so often that party lines have ceased.

HON. MR. SHEA considered that a grave mistake would be made if the proposed Bill were to come into effect. It would open the door to the worst kind of corruption, deceit and political immorality. It would affect stable government in this country for all time, and it would be a serious mistake to accept the proposal. If seeking re-election created a hardship then in the interests of sound government the hardship should be borne. He hoped there would be no change in the law, and certainly would not vote for the Bill as it stood.
HON. MR. MILLEY rose to support the Bill. He had passed the Lower House by unanimous vote, and had met the approval of the Government. Seeking re-election after a general election did not appeal to him as reasonable. In the case of Prime Minister Monroe who was elected head of a party at the general election, he was obliged a few months afterwards to go back to his district and ask the people if they really elected him as Prime Minister. Bye-elections along these lines were a waste of time and money, and he was prepared to support the Bill as it stood.
HON. MR. MORINE pointed out that this particular section was not a government bill, had not been considered by the government, and was not introduced by the government. The fact of government members voting for it did not make it a government bill.
HON. MR. BISHOP thought the remarks of Hon. Mr. Morine carried a great deal of force with them, but retorted that he could not see his way clear to rise the Committee. He considered it possible to reach a solution without a division of the House, and agreed with Hon. President that the solution could probably be found by a Select Committee.
The Committee rose and recommended that the Bill be sent to a Select Committee.
THE PRESIDENT moved the following to comprise the Select Committee:—Hons. Mr. Morine, Mr. Bishop, Dr. Campbell, Mr. McNamara, Dr. Mosdell, Mr. Ellis, The President.

By unanimous consent the House resolved into Committee of the Whole on the Bill Respecting Tax on Certain Incomes, Hon. Mr. Murphy in the Chair.
HON. MR. MORINE explained that this Bill was taken bodily from the old income tax bill except in reference to the Bank Tax. Under this Act the tax will be reduced one half roughly.
HON. MR. DAVEY said that there were a number of people living outside of this country who owned mortgages here and who thus received incomes here. Should these people then be exempt from this tax.
HON. MR. MORINE explained that this Act was the same as the old and if such was done a suspension clause would have to be added. However, the Hon. gentleman's point was well taken and should be considered at a later session.
The Committee rose and reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.
The House resolved into Committee of the Whole on the Bill respecting a Tax on goods imported into Newfoundland, Hon. Sir Marmaduke Winter in the Chair.
The Committee reported the Bill without amendment, and it was ordered to be read a third time on to-morrow.
The House then adjourned until to-morrow at 4 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, April 29.
The Council met pursuant to adjournment.
HON. MR. MORINE presented the report of the Select Committee on the Bill entitled "Of Legislative Disabilities and the Vacation of Seats in the House of Assembly." He said that the Committee had been unanimous on two points, (1) in wishing to avoid the expenses and trouble of useless bye-elections, and (2) it not being desirable to create opportunities where by a Government might be kept in power by buying over members. The wording of the amendment, as framed by the committee made it impossible for members to cross over and also did away with the necessity for useless bye-elections. He expressed the hope that the House would be unanimous in passing it.
The report was received by unanimous consent, referred to Committee of the Whole House, Hon. Mr. Steer in the Chair.
The Committee rose and reported the Bill with some amendment, and by unanimous consent the Bill was read a third time and passed, and ordered to be sent to the House of Assembly with a message asking their concurrence in the said amendment.
Bills entitled "An Act Respecting a Tax on Certain Incomes" and "An Act Respecting a Tax on Goods Imported into Newfoundland," were read

Woman Afraid to Eat Anything

"I was afraid to eat because I always had stomach trouble afterwards. Since taking Adlerika I can eat and feel fine." (Signed) Mrs. A. Howard.
ONE spoonful Adlerika removes GAS and often brings surprising relief to the stomach. Stops that full, bloating feeling. Removes old waste matter from intestines and makes you feel happy and cheerful. Excellent for obstinate constipation. Sold by all leading Druggists.

Fads and Fashions

Designers will agree upon fullness at the front.
The fannies at the hips may be only vague or marked.
The evening frock of lace is good in black and colors.
Sleeveless coats of brocade are worn with negligees.
One notes a new trimming interest on the flat bodice.
Capes, both short and long, continue to be of interest.
Fur is used more as an accent or a mere trimming note.
Printed chiffons for evening are gay and vivid of color.
Studied simplicity is a goal often achieved by intricate cut.

Now let me think for just a minute. Maybe I'd better put on my Memory Hat. It's some time since your Uncle Dave went to a May Day Party. Yes, indeed. Perhaps I'll open the window and whistle for Bobbie Redvest. Yes, that's what I'll do as sure as my left foot's asleep in its shoe. I'll hop over to the window in one leg.

"Come in, and sit on my typewriter," I said as this dear little red vested bird answered my whistle. "Tell me what's the first thing to do when you are making plans for a May Day Party?"

"Get a May Pole and a lot of pretty colored ribbons," answered the little bird, cocking his head to one side. "I'll telephone at once to the Big Brown Bear," I answered, and picking up the receiver, I asked Central to give me:

"Winky Pinky Lollypops, Forest Trail; Forty Hops," and the next minute a deep growly voice asked:

"Who is calling Big Brown Bear?
 I've just got up to comb my hair."

"This is Uncle Dave Cory, the Jack Rabbit Man, calling," I answered. "Little Jack Rabbit is going to give a May Day Party. Could you cut a May Pole and set it up?"

"Well, I guess yes three times," answered the nice old bear. "Go ahead, Uncle Dave, and write your story. Don't worry about the details. I'll call up Uncle Lucky and you can depend on me to give the bunny boy a good time."

So, here I go, little boys and girls, without a single worry or doubt, for when my friends in Rabbitland tell me they will do a thing, it's as good as done.

"Now, I'll fly away," said Bobbie Redvest. "I must see Lady Love at once," and away he flew through the open window

"Tip, tap, tippety tap!
 He rapped on the window pane
 Of the little white house in the Bram-big Patch
 As he sang this sweet refrain:

"Bake a dozen Angel Cakes,
 With frosting white and sweet,
 And make some pretty frosting dolls
 With little hands and feet."

"Come in, come in," laughed Lady Love, opening the kitchen door, and in fluttered the red breasted robin to perch on the back of the rocking chair.

"The Big Brown Bear will get the May Pole," he twittered as the little Rabbit jumped up with a bird seed in his paw. Just then the pretty Canary Bird from her golden cage above the red geraniums in the long, green box at the window began to fill the room with music, and Tiny Miss Cricket and the Three Little Grasshoppers to sing in the woodbox by the kitchen stove.

"Oh, I'm so happy," cried the bunny boy. "Won't we have fun at my May Day Party? Will you tell everybody to come, dear Bobbie Redvest? You can fly so quickly here and there and everywhere. Don't forget anybody."

"I won't forget a single one, not even Daddy Longlegs," replied the sweet little bird as he clapped his wings to fly into the next story.

Aperiodic and Untuned Primaries

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

Of late there is a growing tendency then the dielectric. This condenser on the part of radio manufacturers is shunted directly across the primary coil, as we show to the right. Now with a fixed number of turns in the primary, or antenna, coil. By closely coupling this fixed number of turns to the secondary it is possible to get fairly good response over the whole broadcast wave range without resorting to tuning the primary.

Along with this practice has come the name of this "fixed number of turns" primary. Some call it aperiodic and others untuned. We object strenuously. In the first place a circuit is aperiodic only when its resistance is very high relatively to its inductance. Such most certainly is not the case in the fixed number of turns primary coil. In the second place the circuit certainly is a tuned circuit. In our diagram above, we show, at the left, the antenna-primary-ground circuit. Electrically this is equivalent to the condenser-coil combination shown next. The antenna and ground are the two plates of the condenser with the air between.

OVERHEARD ON THE STREET CAR.

Overheard on the street car. Two high school girls are talking:
"Reports camow d e r d a y. Jagetta delinquent?"
"No buds gutter nincompoete."
"G o n n a mny kttup?"
"Sorce hefter."
"You're sedil."
"Lath sawful fertomorer. Gittidum?"
"No bud di shoe worry!"

I read somewhere the other day that some high school is introducing a radio department. If this idea gets through I hope that the course will include classes in broadcasting. For clear enunciation is the qualification above all others necessary for successful transmission over the microphone.

He Has To Really Use His Voice.

The broadcaster has to rely on his voice unaided by personality, gesture, facial expression, or stage presence to get his message across. Everything depends on his diction, his tone, his distinctiveness of utterance, and the expressiveness which he can throw into his voice.

Some such training as that might serve to correct the distressing jargon of the average high school student. I confine my criticism to that class of students because their education along that line is neglected in so many of our higher schools of learning. The grammar schools have reading and declamation as a regular part of the school work, but in most of the higher schools of my acquaintance declamation is not introduced before the junior and senior years and then is con-

Not True Abroad.

That may not be true of all the schools in the country. (I speak only from personal observation) and particularly it does not seem to be true of foreign children. I talked the other day with a boy who had just come to this country from Ireland at the age of 12. He had been educated in the schools of Dublin, and while his speech was marked with a rich brogue, his diction was a delight and his choice of words a striking contrast to the conversation reproduced at the beginning of this chat.

I was talking to a father recently who has taken his boy in hand in this regard. He makes him read aloud one paragraph every night. The boy resents it for he is at the age when he considers criticism an offense to his dignity. He reads the paragraph as he is bid, slowly and distinctly and without stumbling (that is, he does not after two weeks of practice, but he didn't at first); but he is heard to remark sometimes "off stage" that it's all darn silliness.

Clear Thinking And Clear Speaking.

I think he will feel differently some years hence. The boy with the habit of clear distinct utterance has a big advantage over the boy who may be his equal as a scholar, but whose speech is slovenly and whose vocabulary is poverty stricken.

There is a marked relation between clear speech and clear thought. Says Condillac, "By taking the trouble to speak with precision one gains the habit of thinking rightly."

Viewed in this light, the matter of careful speech assumes greater importance than we ordinarily give to it.

Dear Sir.—Please permit me space in your sports columns to speak of boxing. Many boxing fans who have been heard to say "What is the matter with Cook, of the 135-pound class," because Phelan had won by a K.O. Some of them think that Phelan cannot have the punch to give a K.O. Did Haunford, from Grand Falls, have something wrong with him? It would look like every man whom Phelan has fought had something wrong with him.

and that if Phelan had a good man to fight him, he would get a K.O. Van dersteen of H.M.S. Constance did not do it. If these fans think that Phelan or Cook are no good, send someone along to try and beat one of these boxers.

DEMPSEY READY TO FIGHT.

Champion Arrives in New York and Will Sign For Battle At Once.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight, who arrived here to-day, with his wife, the former Estelle Taylor, tonight declared he would postpone his contemplated honeymoon to Europe in order to defend his title against the negro challenger, Harry Wills, providing promoter Tex Rickard would assure him the match could be staged without interference.

"I'm ready to sign to fight Wills the moment they can show me the fight is a go," said the champion. "I am going to talk the matter over with Tex Rickard and if he can assure me the fight can be staged without interference, then the sooner they match us up the better. If he can't see his way clear, then I'm going to Europe with Mrs. Dempsey, and that will mean I am not going to fight this year, at least."

TO YOUNG MEN!

This is specially addressed to the young men who are following the trend of style especially as regards trousers. If you want the bell bottom trousers, with or without cuff, here is the place to get them; we are making and have made recently some splendid examples of this style. This also applies to the straight hanging English trousers hanging free from the hips to the cuff; with plenty of room at knees and bottom.
