Civil War in the South.

The civil war that has a'ready caused so much bloodshed in Louisiana, and so disastrously interrupted the industrial pursuits of the people of that State, arose from a dispute as to the result of the last mouth, caused a split in the ranks of the dominant party, the Republicans, and inited with the Democrats in the nomination of McEnery for Governor, the bargain being that Warmouth should be sent to the U. S. Senate. He and his sent to the U.S. Senate. He and his November 1st. party claim that they carried the election by 10,000 majority, and the Republicans claim that their candidate, Kellogg, was fairly elected. Special Telegram to the Tribune. Movements in Fredericton. FREDERICTON, May 10.

Saturday morning at 9 a. m. the Celestial City was notified that part of the Kincardinshire colonists would arrive by the steamer David Weston. Their arrival being sooner than was expected, necessary arrangements for their reception had not commenced. The County Court House was soon swept out and properly dusted, tables put up and the room properly seated. At 6.10 p. m. the steamer came in sight, and in a few minutes she was made fast at her wharf, which was densely crowded at an early hour with eager watchers, at least 300 being present.
