fluttering of the heart and shortness of breath. When lying down at night I was almost afraid to go to sleep for fear I would never wake up. When I arose in the morning I would feel a little better, but as soon as I started to work my heart would start fluttering, my head would become dizzy, faint weak spells would come over me and I seemed as if black objects were before my eyes. I began to grow weaker every day until I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. When the box was half gone I could feel that they had done me good and by the time it was finished I was in excellent health and would advise all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles to try them."

The Talbot Anniversary.

The anniversary of the foundation of the Talbot settlement has been celebrated in an adequate manner. The life and work of Colonel Talbot constitute one of the most important chapters in Canadian history, and the present commemoration is creditable to the good people of St. Thomas and district, who are the immediate beneficiaries of his labors. The names of many of his contemporaries, who played their parts on the more conspicuous stage of public life, are more familiar to the present generation, but there are few who have contributed more enduringly to the upbuilding of the country or have a greater claim on public gratitude. Colonel Talbot must have been a man of uncommon mold. In exiling himself in the backwoods of Canada he renounced everything that would make life attractive to the ordinary youth. He belonged to a noble family, and his rank and station gave him access to the polished society of the old land, from which, from all accounts, he was fitted to adorn. In the army he had risen to a lieutenant-colonelcy at the age of 22. He enjoyed the favor of powerful patrons and a successful career seemed assured to him. From 1791 to 1794 he had served as confidential secretary to Sir John Graves Simcoe, governor of Upper Canada, and had accompanied him in his journeys through this portion of the Province. It was then that Talbot formed the design of founding a settlement in the wilderness and his fancy was taken with the present site of Port Talbot. In 1794, at the age of 23, he returned to Europe and served with his regiment on the continent of Europe for some years, but in this interval he matured the plan which he had conceived in Canada, and in 1803 we find General Simcoe, who had also returned to England, writing to Lord Hobart in support of Talbot's application for a grant of land. That Talbot should voluntarily detach himself from his military prospects and from the refinements of old world civilization to bury himself in the solitude of the back woods, argues strong and original qualities. Simcoe remarks in his letter to Lord Hobart, "I cannot but hope," he says, "that your lordship will be struck with the manhood with which Mr. Talbot (whose situation in life cannot be unknown to your lordship) after having with great credit arrived at the rank of lieutenant-colonel, has preferred the incessant and active employment which he has undertaken, and that under your lordship's patronage may lead to the highest public advantage." It is interesting to note that Simcoe was dubious over the prospect of procuring settlers direct from Great Britain for the Talbot reservation. The tide of emigration flowed to the United States and the British Government could not prevent it, but he suggested that much of his emigration might ultimately find its way to Upper Canada through the United States. Referring to Talbot's scheme he added:

"I beg to consider it as an object of the greatest national importance, and that will speedily fulfil the idea with which I undertook the administration of that Government, under my Lord Grenville's auspices, of elevating this valuable part of his majesty's dominions from the degrading situation of a petty factory to be a powerful support and protection to the British Empire. In some instances such a plan in the infancy of the Government had great success, as I had the honor of pointing out to your lordship, and Mr. Talbot from habit, observation and nature, in my judgment, is perfectly well suited to give it a wider extent."

In this Simcoe showed a prophetic vision, and no pioneer contributed more to the realization of his ideal than did Colonel Talbot, for whom he conceived the highest admiration during their association in the Province. Lord Hobart sanctioned Talbot's application, and the young officer arrived at the site of Port Talbot on May 21, 1803. There he erected his primitive abode 60 miles from the nearest habitation. The land placed at his disposal amounted to 518,000 acres, lying in 28 townships. The records tell that no settlers began to come until 1809. In 1828 he writes to Lord Bathurst:

"After 23 years entirely devoted to the improvement of the western districts of the Province and establishing on their lands about 20,000 souls, without any expense for superintendence to the Government or the persons immediately benefited, but on the contrary, at a sacrifice of $20,000 in rendering them comfortable, I find myself entirely straitened, and now wholly without capital."

In response to this appeal he received an allowance of £400 per annum, which he continued to receive by the wise and vigorous administration of the great trust reposed in him by the crown. He exercised his enormous powers in a spirit of justice and humanity, and it has never been charged against him that he abused his position for his private advantage. Beneath his pride, and his austere and peremptory manner, lay a real tenderness of heart. He was the friend and protector of the poor and deserving settlers, though it needed a stern will and a strong hand to deal with the turbulent elements which often confronted him, and to successfully execute his enormous undertaking.

London should not forget its debt to Col. Talbot, and it is satisfactory to know that the city has been so worthily represented at the celebration. The following from Ermatinger's biography of Col. Talbot, published in 1859, will serve to show what this community owes to his policy:

"The town of London was surveyed and laid out in lots in the year 1818, partly by Col. Burwell, and the lots were mostly given out to actual settlers by Col. Talbot, and the condition of settlement duties being performed, and a house built thereon. The fulfillment of these conditions was closely watched by the colonel, and as the town grew, he was continually pestered by persons desirous of speculating on the lots. At this time the site of London was generally known as The River, from its being situated between two arms or branches of the River Thames, which unite at the entrance of the town from the west. London is built on the table land, stretching several miles east from the Forks. The streets are laid out at right angles, and the principal ones are at least a mile long. Twenty years ago there was not a respectable house in the town. It now contains long ranges of handsome brick buildings and a population of 10,000 souls. It is central to a large extent of well-settled country, and all the leading roads, east, west, north and south, are made to pass right through it. For many years London had been made the county town, and the roads leading to it were traveled with difficulty. From Hamilton the stage took frequently three days. The distance is now traveled in 12 hours. From St. Thomas to London, 18 miles, was sometimes a hard day's march, the heavy stage coaches are now forced through in two hours. From almost any part of the Talbot settlement, the traveler may go in 24 hours to Toronto with ease. It was then four hard days' work. Such has been the progress of improvement, and the facilities of traveling. The Great Western Railroad has been a great benefit to the town of London, which will make it a place of great resort, and some of its more sanguine inhabitants fancy that when the Thames is made navigable, so that steamboats can navigate its waters up to the town, it may rival its great namesake in old England. This is too much to expect, but its progress has been surprising, and a few feet of ground now costs as much as would have purchased the whole town at the time Col. Talbot located it. Contrary to London with the village of Port Stanley, the principal ship we see at once the whole effect of his wise plan of not allowing the lots to be bought up by one or more speculators. Those who drew lots in London had to improve and build houses on them, whereas the land at Port Stanley was all in the hands of one individual, and its long stagnant condition is the effect of monopoly. London is now a large, flourishing town, and will soon be a city, while Port Stanley is yet only a village."

VICTORIA DAY DOINGS

Kingston and Brockville Make Preparations for Big Celebration.

Kingston, Ont., May 25.—This city was quite stirred yesterday, hundreds of outsiders having arrived here in anticipation of the Victoria Day celebration today. The Fifth Royal Scots, of Montreal, are the city's honored guests, the first Highland regiment to be seen here in the past five years. They reached the city at an early hour in the afternoon. There was a big church parade, the forces marching from the market square to the cricket field, where Rev. Major J. L. Starr conducted a drum-head service. There were thousands out to see the event. Yesterday morning the Sons of England attended St. George's Cathedral, and the St. Andrew's Cadets attended St. Andrew's Church.

Some 500 visitors from New York points arrived Saturday night. They are chiefly homecoming. During the day the street cars ran and were well patronized. It is said that a flat will be asked for from the Attorney-General to fight the company's case. The company says its franchise from the city calls for such service.

With fair weather Kingston will have one of the biggest celebrations it has had in years. Brockville, Ont., May 25.—The Victoria Rifles, eight companies and eleven men of the medical corps, with two bands, arrived here from Montreal early Sunday morning, and will participate in the big celebration today. The regiment was escorted to the armory, where they were welcomed by the city. The visitors, accompanied by No. 6 Company of the Forty-first Regiment, attended divine service in St. Peter's Church, after which they marched to the armory where a good dinner had been provided for them. The afternoon was spent in seeing the town. Today sport will begin at 1:30, with a military parade, finishing it at the fair grounds where a review will take place. There will be also lacrosse and baseball matches and other sports.

A FISHING TRAGEDY

Ottawa Man Falls From Boom and Is Drowned.

Ottawa, May 25.—John Biehler, a bricklayer, aged 25 years, was drowned in the Ottawa River yesterday. He, with two companions, started on a fishing trip, and took a Hull electric car to a point halfway between Ottawa and Aylmer. Here they went out on a boom to a house on the Ottawa River. Improvement Company's pier to borrow a boat. Biehler slipped off the boom and fell into the swift water. His companions made an effort to save him, but the current was too swift, it being a continuation of the Dr. Cheneau bridge, about three miles above the Chaudiere Falls. The body was recovered at 6:30 o'clock and brought to Ottawa.

Run Down by Train.

Ottawa, May 25.—Ferdinand Potvin, the 8-year-old son of Joseph Potvin, Preston street, was killed on Saturday afternoon by the C. P. R. passenger train. The little chap, with two companions, was out "bird-nesting," and just as the train was approaching they ran across the track to join his companions. The engineer saw his peril, and put on the emergency brakes, but he succeeded in saving the child, and the little fellow was struck. He was taken to the Protestant Hospital, but died in two hours.

VESUVIUS MOUNT IN UGLY MOOD

Graphic Pen Picture of the Volcano When Belching Fire and Lava.

Naples, May 25.—Fortunately for Naples and the surrounding country, the recent violent spasms of Mount Vesuvius fell short of expectations, and the threatened eruption resulted only in the distribution of a second distance of light showers of ashes and the dissemination of considerable sulphurous smoke. A letter writer, who visited the scene, pictures it vividly. He had climbed to what is known as the "smoke platform," beyond which his guides would not venture.

"We were here surrounded," he says, "by immense cliffs of columns of dense smoke and steam, which shot up from cracks in the earth and rose in long spirals to lose themselves in the clouds above. The explosions from the volcano became more rapid, following each other, indeed, so rapidly as to resemble continual musketry fire. From the crater above us a perfect mountain of smoke arose from time to time, spreading itself out like a pine tree and falling back fanwise towards Pompeii. With this there came a dense shower of fire balls, stones, and scoria, shot up straight into the air and then rolling down the mountain sides in thousands of flaming fragments. At intervals of 4 to 4 minutes a low rumbling announced a new outbreak. An enormous 'pine tree' of smoke was sent 1,200 feet up into the air, fell back on the mountain top in millions of little curls of smoke. One of my companions told me that the density of this explosion could only be accounted for by a landslide of a small part of the crater."

The correspondent then describes how a fortnight before his ascent Vesuvius had begun to rumble and throw showers of fire. For many days later the explosions became like great thunderclaps, and the ashes changed to incandescent lava, which was thrown up to a great height and then fell into the crater, the upper parts of which it has now completely filled. These spouts of lava were terribly beautiful to see, and the top of the mountain looked as if it were crowned with long rays of fire. Between the lava came showers of stones and the rumbling and explosions became so violent that it was feared that a new and serious phase of the eruption was beginning. But gradually the noise and the showers diminished, till they suddenly increased again with great violence. The guides, who are accustomed to the volcano, say that nothing is to be feared from the present eruption comparable with what happened in 1800, when the old railway station was broken by a large stone from the crater. No foreigners or unauthorized persons, however, are allowed to go up than the lower zone of the volcano.

A CHICAGO RAID

Bucketshop Keepers Charged With Gigantic Swindling.

Chicago, May 25.—George T. Sullivan, charged with conducting a bucketshop and swindling patrons, and a large force of employees were arrested Saturday. Sullivan showed papers to the police, but they were ignored. Sullivan's office was surrounded and many tried to escape from windows only to find themselves in the arms of the police. Hundreds of people witnessed the raid.

Thousands of persons all over the country are believed to have invested their money in grain, cotton, coffee and provision futures through this firm. The concern occupies an entire lower floor at the above number, and forty workmen are employed as bookkeepers and stenographers. The police claim that within two weeks Sullivan has secured $50,000. The concern has leased from Mrs. Plon, Chicago, Cleveland, Council Bluffs, (Altona, Akron, O., and Burlington Ia. The police confiscated all books and instruments cut the wires and placed men in charge of the place.

A Quebec Road Tie-Up.

Quebec, May 23.—A large number of workmen are at present engaged in the construction of the bridge across the St. Maurice River, near Grand Mere, a few miles above the Northern Railway, which was destroyed by fire a short time ago. The engineers in charge do not expect to have the work completed for traffic until the 10th of June. In the meantime all trains and other business of the road from Hawkesbury to Quebec is retarded.

Sympathy

Is a good thing for the young husband to give the young wife. But sympathy will not do a lot of her nervousness or lift her from the plane of her health where alone the wife and mother can find happiness.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription meets every womanly want and need. It tranquilizes the nerves, restores the appetite and induces refreshing sleep. Its use prevents to maternity makes the baby's advent practically painless and gives the mother abundant nutrition for her child. "Favorite Prescription" is a woman's medicine and has no equal as a cure for woman's ailments. It regularizes, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Accept no substitute for "Favorite Prescription." No other medicine is "just as good" for women's ailments. It affords me great pleasure to be able to say a few words in regard to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and "Golden Medical Discovery." I was tempted to try these medicines after seeing the effect upon my mother. At an early age of married life I was greatly bothered with painful periods, also a troublesome drain which rendered me weak and unfit for work of any kind. I became so that there was nothing left of me but skin and bone. My husband became alarmed and got me a bottle of "Favorite Prescription." I saw the wonderful effects of that one he got two more, and I used those to there was no more pain, and I began to gain in flesh very rapidly.

RENEWAL OF AN OLD TURF FEUD

Two American Racing Kings Again at Loggerheads On the Big Tracks.

MAGISTRATE TOOK BIG RACE. New York, May 25.—Before a crowd of 35,000 persons, August Belmont's Magistrate won the sixth annual steeplechase at Morris Park Saturday. The big son of Hastings—Lady Margaret, was an outsider in the betting, closing at 15 to 1. Right on the heels of the favorite, came the second choice, Foxhall P. Keene's Palmbeaver, with the favorite, Leonidas, a neck away. The National Steeplechase stakes is worth $13,985, of which $10,247 went to the winner. The start was good and the race was free from interference. The Grand National steeplechase, also one of the features of the day was won in a driving finish by Phlox held at 10 to 1 in the betting. Land of Clover, another outsider, finished second, with the favorite Lavator, third.

A DRIVING FINISH. Cincinnati, May 25.—The Marchants' stake for 3-year-olds and upwards was the attraction at Latonia Saturday. The field in the stake was made up mostly of selling players, with St. Hera, the choice at 10 to 1, and the second choice, Pourquoi Pas, Senior, and St. Hera, the first named won the decision by half a length. Rainland, the odds on favorite, was beaten in the second race easily by Mizzen Mast, a 10 to 1 shot.

TURF FEUD RENEWED. New York, May 23.—The old turf feud between William C. Whitney and James R. Keene, engendered by the rough riding of "Red" Sloane on Ballyhoo Bey's back in the Futurity the year the Keene colts, Tommy Atkins and Olympian, were sent to the stud, was renewed here today by the running of the Ladies' stakes, which Girdle, the Whitney filly, won, beating Keene's Stolen Moments. The Keene party complained bitterly of the race that Burns, Girdle's jockey, had deliberately fouled Stolen Moments shortly after the start. No charges were made, but the stewards' decision was easily discernible in the Keene camp at the club house. Last fall Foxhall P. Keene charged Burns with having used Girdle as an interference stall in the Saratoga Special, running to let the Whitney colt Irish Lad beat Keene's Dazzling. It was said that the present trouble between Whitneys and Keenes so far as racing interests are concerned.

MERE GALLOP FOR THE MAJOR. St. Louis, Mo., May 23.—The weather was warm and track fast at the fair meeting today. The favorite, Major Pelham, won the Kindergarten stake for 2-year-olds. He led the field to the head of the stretch by six lengths and in the last furlong he was 12 lengths before the wire was reached.

FIRST IN HANDICAP. Chicago, May 23.—Judge Himes, winner of the Kentucky Derby and a prospect candidate for the American Derby, was an easy winner today of the $10,000 Hawthorne Handicap, the chief attraction of the day. The opening day, Judge Himes won the post time, 20 to 1, and the favorite, Favonius, also quoted 20 to 1, finished second, and the third favorite, Little Scout, was third. The favorite, Judge Himes, was four lengths ahead of Favonius in the large field was sent away after about ten minutes' delay at the post. They rounded the first turn well bunched, and Judge Himes led the pack. He easily maintained his advantage and raced down the back stretch two lengths ahead, the other contenders still well bunched. Judge Himes won the race by rounding the far turn, and struck the straightaway for home about three lengths to the good. He was running easily while the others were beginning to show the effect of chasing him on the heavy and holding track. From the time the stretch was reached there was no doubt of the result. Judge Himes was winning by a comfortable margin, by about eight lengths, with Favonius second, three lengths ahead of Little Scout. It is reported that C. R. Ellison, owner of Judge Himes, won $12,000 in the future books on his colt's victory.

HEARTLESS CHINAMEN Place Dying Man in Coffin and Give Him to Undertaker.

Toronto, May 25.—A most extraordinary event occurred at an undertaking establishment, 465 College street, Friday night. A party of Chinamen brought in a coffin containing a live Chinaman, saying, "You keep him, he die here, we no wantee." The undertaker summoned Dr. Starr, who felt the man's pulse, pronounced him alive and ordered him to be put to bed, but before the doctor left the man died. An inquest on Saturday showed death had resulted from liver trouble and an abscess on one lung. The man's name was Won King Toi.

Warships a Target.

Paris, May 25.—One of the most daring experiments in naval warfare is being carried out at Brest within the next few months. This is nothing less than the destruction of a fleet of warships by a battery of new warships.

The late fall and winter months offer the best opportunity for fighting the tent caterpillar. The eggs then form masses on the twigs, which can be easily detected and scraped off. Every nest destroyed means about 200 larvae caterpillars to prey upon the trees next summer. A report that John D. Rockefeller had said he would pay a million dollars for a new kind of a deadly digestive apparatus, has resulted in deluging the Standard Oil millionaire with thousands of letters.

MARKET SLUMP IN MONTREAL

The Recent Break in Prices Worst in Many Years.

It is Reported That Hundreds of Investors and Speculators Were Ruined.

Montreal, Que., May 25.—In the panic which prevailed on the Montreal stock market on Thursday, values slumped as they have never slumped for many years. The heavy selling movement demoralized the market and hundreds of holders were called upon for more margins. In the majority of cases these were not forthcoming and the bad break resulted. Thousands of shares of all the stocks were thrown on the market by frightened holders and sold at panic prices. Pandemonium reigned on the stock exchange. The public inclosure was jammed by hundreds of people who saw their fortunes wiped out in a twinkling.

Dominion Coal and Dominion Steel issues, which have been such speculative favorites, were among the worst sufferers. Dominion Coal sold down to 18, Dominion Steel common dropped to 13 and the preferred had a record drop to 40. The tractions and miscellaneous stocks also suffered. The selling broke recent records, over 25,000 shares being thrown on the market. For months past the market has undergone depression and gradually declining prices, but it was not until this week that it broke away and began its descent in dead earnest. Rumors of labor troubles, the difficulties of the Dominion Coal Company and tight money began to exert their influences, and when the market once gave way nothing seemed to stop it. The previous breaks of last fall and the disappointing markets of the winter all tended to seriously undermine the financial resources of many followers of the market.

BIG RAILWAY PROJECT

From Chicago to Paris by Siberia—Alaskan Railways.

Paris, May 25.—From New York to Paris by rail, without change of cars, sounds like a startling proposition. It means from Chicago to Berlin, from St. Louis to Vienna, from Philadelphia to Peking and from San Francisco to Rome for freight, as well as passenger—the direct route, all rail. It means the shifting of the world's commercial axis from the fuzel Canal to Bering's Straits, with the broad populations of America and Russia to replace the treacherous empty ocean.

KILLED FIRST SCHOLAR

A Looping the Loop School That Didn't Last Long.

Paris, May 25.—The Paris public has been crazy over looping the loop, and the view of the high salary drawn by the only performer doing the act—an American—a Parisian decided there would be money in opening up a school to teach young men to do the feat. The difficulty was that the first scholar of the loop school was promptly killed, and Schram, the promoter of the enterprise, found himself arrested for manslaughter through contributory negligence. The cyclist killed was Albert Mennegris, 19 years old. The school has been suspended.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

[By Special Wire to H. C. Becker.]
New York, May 23.—The chief topic of discussion in today's market was the labor situation in Chicago. There is undoubtedly a distinct feeling of unrest among the railroad employees. Earnest endeavors are being made to avert a strike, but the feeling is so strong that the railroad officials that the concessions already made are sufficiently liberal and that further increases in wages must be necessary to result in averting a strike. The pressure to increase wages is being made by the railroad officials, who are making the Pennsylvania Railroad has been an unfavorable impression, this being evidenced by the fact that Pennsylvania today lost all of the gain which was made after the announcement in re-writing. The steel stocks were under pressure all day, the result of the selling being that the pressure was a decided slackening in the market. What a fine thing soap washing is for the makers of linens, cottons and the like! How it keeps their business! Clothes used up quickly; others must be bought. Pearlina washes so that clothes last longer. Instead of rubbing the garment away by main strength PEARLINE has mercilessly scrubbed the dirt. Think of the saving to clothes in a year!

Pearline means Economy

THE DEAREST THING

"Perhaps, I was, but then, see what I have to try me now. My love for a little child is ever a reproach, and because of an old man's jealousy I dare not speak civilly to a man without being misjudged. Oh, I hate him, I wish he were dead!"

Dr. Pyne looked shocked and Lucy said: "Don't utter such bitter words, Bethel. They belie your better nature and might be used against you."

"Let them; I care not. I speak the truth. As to my better nature, I don't believe I have a better nature. It died a sudden death some time, when my trouble came to me first."

The dark, flushed face and large yearning eyes, which gazed so sorrowfully into the blazing fire, told Dr. Pyne with pity. A noble nature stunted by misfortune, he thought, a tender woman heart-hardened by the world which seemed to her a cruel enemy, he laid his hand on her head, saying:

"Poor child, I know you are wretched, but do not think it would be better for you both if you parted with the child? Say, you let her remain with your mother till she is old enough to go to school and so end your husband's jealousy and suspicion about her."

Bethel pressed her lips to the pretty, flushed face of the child, saying:

"No, never will I desert the charge given to me by heaven; no matter how ill I may discharge my other duties, this one at least shall be marked with a white stone."

CHAPTER XV.

A Sin of Omission.

"Do you still keep all your gay company at the Manor, dear, although Lord Luffton is breaking up so fast?"

"Of course, mother; why should we not? It does not interfere with him. He is quiet enough in his own room, and Margery is forever sitting by him. Lady Leigh, too, spends all her evenings in his room—I believe she is trying to induce him to tell everything away from me; I heard a whisper of it one day when I went suddenly in, but she cannot. He made his will directly we were married and bequeathed everything to me save a few legacies."

"But he may make another will, honey."

"He could scarcely do that without my knowing it, but I should not care what he did. I am tired of being a fine lady. I was far happier in my profession. If anything happened to him I'd go back to it directly. The excitement keeps me from thinking so much of Dan. Dear Dan! Oh, mother, how slowly the years creep on that keep him from me!"

The mother looked up at the dark, discontented face and thought it well that Dan did not return while the old lord lived.

Bethel, with all her moody savage fits, was a dear, good daughter. The old mother never lacked anything that careful, loving foresight could provide for her. Her little home was always bright and cheerful, and Bethel's best and happiest hours were spent there.

Life at Luffton was getting worse each day. Husband and wife were further apart than ever, and Bethel's reckless disregard for Mrs. Grundy, had fallen into a foolish way of allowing Brinley's love-making to amuse her. She did not care for his constant bidding her lover to depart, but her bidding was so kindly given that he took it as leave to stay, and so planted daily in Margery's lone heart new thorns.

Dr. Pyne looked haggard and wretched. He had long since buried his love-dream deep down in his inner life, and it angered him to see Bethel take life and love so lightly as she did. He was wounded, too, by the remarks he heard on every side breathing ill of her he loved. Every day he thought he would return to his work, then fear for Bethel kept him back. He felt she was not to be trusted alone with all her enemies about her, and the worst enemy—herself—unguarded. She felt so wretched just now that she turned to anyone who drew her thoughts out of their dull, dead level and away from that longing for Dan.

The last few days Lord Luffton had been so seriously ill as to keep his main room. Bethel had been unusually attentive to him, so had poor Margery. The doctors declared it was breaking up of the system through old age, and the collapse was accelerated by heart disease of long standing; therefore the most judicious nursing was necessary.

He did not seem to care for anyone but Bethel. To attend him, and she with unusual patience accepted to all his whims. Dr. Pyne suggested to her husband that she should have a qualified nurse to assist her, and he very readily agreed to so reasonable a request. So that to Bethel only fell the lighter task.

One morning the nurse, feeling dreadfully tired, asked if someone would take her place for an hour to allow her to get some rest. Bethel appeared to take it, but she was really so tired that she had to take her breakfast in her husband's room. She felt really sorry for him, and they had been wonderfully well together some time, so as she entered the room in her pretty pink flannel wrapper with all her hair unbound, she bent over the sick bed sadly.

It seemed hard in the full flush of her health to have to be so hard on so old and worn a creature, but she had many hours of pain.

"Never too wise to attend you, my queen; but, Bethel, I feel strange this morning. My heart is right up in my throat, and aches."

Bethel arranged the pillows, smoothed them, and then went on her quest for refreshments.

Coming to the landing she looked down into the hall and remembered that it was still very early, and the names of the servants would be up. There she thought of Lucy and the nursery fire, which was always lighted at 5 for Bethel to have her worship that child. Bethel went quickly toward the nursery and found, as she expected, Lucy getting up.

There was a good fire, and the tea and toast were quickly made. The old mother was taking it out of the room, but she woke up with a cry of delight, stretching her pretty pink arms, and saying: "Do you worship that child, you do, I will be so very good."

Bethel could not listen to that little voice unmoved, so with a little gesture of her hand she said: "You are a child up on her strong young arm and went off to the sick-room."

"What have you got there?" asked Lord Luffton, who was sitting up in bed. "The prettiest pet in Christendom," said Bethel setting the child down at the foot of the bed. "And she has no evil ending, and she is so constant in bidding her lover to depart, but her bidding was so kindly given that he took it as leave to stay, and so planted daily in Margery's lone heart new thorns."

THESSALON, DYMENT HORSE, CAPTURES THE KING'S PLATE

Same Stable Also Takes Second Prize in the Big Event.

Fly-in-Amber, Favorite, Broke an Ankle and Was Shot.

Beck's Horse Ran Fourth—The Day Saw a Veritable Slaughter of Favorites.

Thessalon, one of the Dymont string, captured the blue ribbon event of the Canadian turf at Toronto on Saturday afternoon, with Nesto, of the same stable, second; Golden Crest, owned by H. C. Osborne, Toronto, third, and Adam Beck's Hawkins fourth. For the first time in several years the coveted King's plate did not go to either the Seagram or Hendrie stable. The race was marred by a deplorable accident, which resulted in the death of Fly-in-Amber, one of the Seagram string, and which was looked upon as a sure winner of the plate. Fly-in-Amber broke her ankle in the course of the race and was afterwards shot.

The opening day of the Ontario Jockey Club's races saw a veritable slaughter of the favorites, Bob Alone, in the third race, being the only first choice to finish in front of the rest, event Seagram and Hendrie ran outside the money.

Long shots began scoring early. Shrine, from across the line, defeated the favorite, Claude, right off the reel. The first choice won the steeplechase, with John Ruskin dangerous at the finish. He stood up with a green rider and rewarded a lot of his place money better. In the third race, R. F. Myers' Bank Street, at 10 to 1, scored handily, beating the favorite, Dubious, who was disqualified, the honor going to Seagram's Scotch Plume, J. I. Mc. second and Sky Blue third.

Next came the King's plate, and again the throng went wrong. There was a long-drawn breath as the bugle sounded for the parade. They came out after a rest of fifteen minutes for the great Canadian race of the year. They paraded in the order of the Dymont string, with Thessalon, an orange and blue, and Mr. Davies' Farmer's, a canary and black. Then the Dymont string, with Thessalon, an orange and blue, and Mr. Davies' Farmer's, a canary and black. Then the Dymont string, with Thessalon, an orange and blue, and Mr. Davies' Farmer's, a canary and black.

Thessalon was first to show in the bunch, with Pickens, Nesto, Golden Crest, Thessalon, Marston Moor, Farmer's, Poe, Deseronto, Perfect Dream following the Ottawa top weight being Jack at the post. Pickens, the cheering throng in the stand the first time, Thessalon was leading, the place he held to the finish. Marston Moor was next and then Nesto, Farmer's, Poe, Maple Sugar, and Deseronto, and Perfect Dream, with Golden Crest, War Medal, Whitehead, Hawkins and Jack Canuck close behind.

FLY-IN-AMBER STOPS. The favorite faltered, and the cry went up: "Fly-in-Amber has broken down!" And so it was. Seagram's horse stopped in her tracks, allowing the rest to draw away. Simms dismounted and went to the field, and that was as far as Fly-in-Amber went in the King's Plate race.

Going around the clubhouse turn, the field began to string out, with Nesto moving in front of Pickens, and the two leaders drawing away from the bunch. Thus they raced along the back stretch, the space between Thessalon and Jack Canuck measuring fully a sixteenth of a mile. They gradually began to spread out still more going around the lower turn, the Dymont pair at every stride showing what they were making of the race doubly sure. Here Golden Crest emerged from the bunch, and passing the stand made certain of third money. Hawkins was a nose ahead of Pickens, but the latter was in fourth position. The others straggled in.

N. Dymont ascended the steps into the judges' stand and was first congratulated by the excellent referee, error-General. His son, A. E. Dymont, M. P., followed him, and as he walked up the steps was greeted with a rousing cheer from the crowd. The Dymonts were unanimous in congratulating the trainer, John Dymont, jun.

FAVORITE SHOT. Just then a shot rang out down the stretch. It was a policeman putting a bullet through the head of the prostrate Fly-in-Amber, whose ankle had been broken. After a few kicks the favorite was no more.

The beginning of operations in the betting ring seemed novel. Many expected Seagram's rule on odds-on favorite, but two to one could be had against the three horses in many books. The faithful following, however, took all that was left, and when the bugle blew the best obtainable was 4 to 1 against the three. The Hendrie pair opened at 4, but extended to 5 to 1. Cardigan has been played, and backed from four to three. The wise people got down heavily on the Dymont pair, and from 7 to 2 they were backed down to 2 to 1. Golden Crest was a favorite, and very few bets were placed on Mr. Osborne's candidate.

Outsiders kept up the winning call in the sixth and seventh, Basuto and Zautchre cashing, each at 10 to 1, both handily.

SHARP PAINS IN THE KIDNEYS. Another Severe and Painful Case of Kidney Disease Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. Amos Carter, Melbourne, Middlesex county, Ont., writes: "I was for over six months troubled with very sharp pains in the region of my kidneys; the spasms lasted for half an hour at a time and were most distressing. I tried many remedies, but they did me no good. I commenced taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after taking two boxes, I had not only relief, but I was cured. I had not only relief, but I was cured. I had not only relief, but I was cured."

Carelessness in Dress. Many wealthy men affect carelessness in dress, and it may truly be said that they can afford to do anything, but they are the very men who require that their employees shall dress so well that the public will imagine they are well paid. The first impression made by a man in business life is the most important. When he enters the presence of another man he studies him no less than he is being studied in turn. Each unconsciously forms an opinion. The importance of making that first impression a favorable one cannot be overestimated. It helps toward the object to be gained. The nicely-groomed, clean-cut man, dressed in good taste, and carrying himself with that confident air of gentility which is inseparable from good attire, feels sure of his ground, and can talk with the man who is his superior in a business sense, without displaying those many little evidences of uncouthness which creep out in one's dress, speech and manner. If you have an important part to play in your business life, remember that you must dress up to it. The shabby and the shiftless, the unshaven and the unrefined cannot rise above the mediocre. They are the men who fill the "want" columns of newspapers, and who ply those callings of uncouthness which creep out in one's dress, speech and manner.
