Zowie! But this gets the ears. And a good many were frozen last night, to say nothing of the numbers of people who went to work this morning with an enlarged nose. Cheeks were also frozen and at least a few railway men suffered frost-bitten fingers.

It was fourteen degrees below zero during the night. The thermometor at the official weather observatory in South London, said so. Those who live in the north end of the city, however, claim that it was at least 40 below in that part of the city. The severe cold was followed by an east wind this morning, and rumor has it that every coal man wore a smile a yard long.

Climbed Rapidly.

Last night was the coldest in two years, but the mercury rose rapidly this morning, and by eight o'clock had reached six above the zero mark. It continued to climb until this afternoon. On the fifth of February, 1918, the thermometor registered 21 degrees below zero, and not since then has London experienced as severe weather as last night. The coldest recorded in January of that year was eleven below, this point being reached on the 20th of the month.

At no time during last winter did the thermometer at the official observatory drop below the zero mark. It reached zero on the 12th of January last year, which was the coldest of the winter, while in February, usually looked to as the coldest in January in several years, according to the old-timers, some of whom now admit that their prophecy for an open winter is "all shot."

The severe cold did not seriously interfere with railway traffic, as the majority of trains were no later than usual today. The wind was drifting the snow onto the rails on the London, Huron & Bruce branch of the G. T. R. and as a result the morning train to Wingham was cancelled today. A train came down from that town this morning, which was only an hour late.

This story is not written by a pessimist, neither is it unfolded for the purpose of cheering up the coal dealers. But the truth of the matter is that the barometer indicates a further drop in temperature, and the Ontario One Train Cancelled. drop in temperature, and the Ontario weather bureau promises strong winds and colder weather for tomorrow.

Mrs. Sarah Probyn was given $900 damages against Wesley Harrison in the verdict read this morning at the courthouse by Judge R. M. Meredith, chief justice of the common pleas. Mrs. Probyn asked for $5,000 damages, claiming that her husband had died as a result of injuries sustained when Arthur Harrison, driving his father's motor car, had crashed with the mail cart Probyn was driving on the night of March 13, 1918.

The case went to the jury last night, and a sealed verdict was rendered at a late hour.

Today the judge and jury are occupied with a criminal case, that of Benjamin West, a Nissouri Township farmer, who is charged with a serious offence against a 16-year-old girl, who went to his house on June 5 last asking for donations to the Salvation Army. [Special to The Advertiser.] Windsor, Jan. 20 .- "Unless a different spirit is shown toward the Assumption College, I, as president, will favor its removal from Sandwich to London," said Rev. Officials of the college offered to furnish an outlet for the alley, but this was objected to by W. A. Gillans, who owns the adjoining piece of land.

Mr. Gillans claimed the closing of the alley would lessen the value of his land.

On a promise from Father Muckle that the college would stand all ex-penses if a lawsuit should occur a mo-tion was passed closing the alley. INFLUENZA SPREADING IN CHICAGO: DISEASE IS OF A MILDER TYPE

The Ottaway line is the heaviest sufferer, as the time between cars on that line is now 18 minutes, according to the engineer.

the city to follow in the footsteps of the factories and hold winter picnics in the Y. M. C. A. Building on Wellington street, the industrial work of the "Y" is being extended to cover the churches as well. Each of the denominations will have a Saturday night reserved for it.

The same line of amusements will be carried out by the young people of the churches as is being staged from week to week by the employees of the different factories. Each floor of the building will add something to the amusements of the guests, and every feature of the "Y" will be thrown open for their use. Each Saturday night will introduce some different novelty into the program.

Every denomination is taking the work up enthusiastically and nearly every one has committees appointed at work on definite arrangements.

The Anglicans are sending representatives from each of the churches to the "Y" tomorrow night to make arrangements for their picnic which, in all probabilities, will be held on February 14, in the form of a huge Valentine party. On Thursday night the Methodists are holding a committee meeting in the "Y" for all their churches. The Baptists and the Congregationalists are lined up also.

WITH RUSSIA GETS

FAVORABLE COMMENT

LONDON. Jan. 19.—In diplomatic and commercial circles here the scheme for an exchange of goods with the Russian co-operative societies was much more favorably received today, after consideration, than when the announcement was first made. It is candidly admitted that the first news of the decision came as a great surprise, attended by misgivings, but anxiety over the plan is diminishing as the situation is further canvassed.

One pertinent question is being asked, however, whether or not the Bolsheviki might seize raw materials which it was intended to ship out in which case the exporters would be forced to dea! with the Reds, who might be unwilling to allow certain goods, which the Austrian people are represented as needing sadly, to enter. One diplomat familiar with Russia said today that if Russia had machinery, particularly agricultural machinery, which would give the people willing to work a chance to do so, it would mean much in morale, now crushed by fear of the Bolsheviki.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels emphasized that Admiral Sims was not commander-in-chief of the American naval forces overseas, and that throughout the war he was subordinate to Admiral Mayo, as commander of the Atlantic fleet, and to Admiral Benson, chief of naval operations. Mr. King devoted much of his address to an account of his recent tour of the Maritime Provinces, and to a consideration of the farmers' movement throughout the Dominion, which he regarded as a species of Liberalism. He declared that there was no danger of a farmers' political movement in the Maritime Provinces, giving his view that the farmers there were quite the Maritime Provinces, giving his view that the farmers there were quite content with the political program of the Liberal party. As to Ontario and the West, it was his opinion that the movement there would in the end harmonize with the Liberal doctrines of the tariff and reciprocity with the United States.

He stated that owing to the pressure of work and the approach of another parliamentary session he had been compelled to postpone his original intention of making a tour of the West until after the conclusion of the next session.

Later in the afternoon Mr. King met the Women's Liberal Club and in the evening the Young Men's Liberal Club, leaving by the 10 o'clock train for Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—In spite of the fact that the Government has of late tightened up its immigration restrictions and that only two classes of immigrants have been encouraged to enter, namely, agriculturists and household help, the movement to the Dominion during the first eight months of the current fiscal year has been very considerable and shows signs of improvement.

The financial qualification for artisan classes has just been increased, and each individual incomer of that avocation must have in his possession $250 in cash, with $150 for every member of a family over 18 years of age.

During the eight months of the present fiscal year a total of $1,420 immigrants came to Canada. Of these 47,585 came from Great Britain, including 36,513 English, 523 Welsh, 8,412 Scotch and 2,137 Irish. From the United States there came 38,721. To Fight Film ENTAL SCIENCE has proved that the great tooth wrecker is a slimy film. You can feel it with your tongue. Most tooth troubles are caused by it. It clings to the teeth, enters the crevices, hardens and stays. And teeth will discolor and decay where that film stays, however much you brush them. That is why millions of tooth brush users fail to save their teeth.

That film is what discolors — not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Scientists have for years sought ways to combat that film, but the methods proved inadequate. Then one man, after extensive research, applied activated pepsin—a digestant—to the film. And many clinical tests seem to clearly prove that he solved this great film problem

We ask you to see for yourself. This pepsin method is employed in Pepsodent, and we offer a 10-Day Tube. See what it does when you use it. See the results in ten days. It will show you a way to clean your teeth as you never have cleaned them before.

See How They Glisten

Analysis shows that the film is albuminous. Pepsin digests albumin. The object in Pepsodent is to dissolve the film, then to constantly combat it. But pepsin alone is inert. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful

But pepsin alone is mert. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmitute to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed forbidden.

Now a harmless, activating method has been found. And that method, used in Pepsodent, makes efficient pepsin possible.

Able authorities have proved Pepsodent by convincing clinical tests.

It has been adopted, and is now endorsed, by leading dentists everywhere. It does what nothing else has done, and everyone should use it.

We urge you to prove it yourself. Ask us for a 10-Day Tube.

There is nothing like bending exercises taking long walks, or chopping wood to keep the liver and bowels active, but most folks take their exercise in an easy chair. Such folks need Cascarets, else they suffer from sick headache, sour, acid stomach, indigestion, colds and are miserable. But don't stay bilious or constipated. Feel splendid always by taking Cascarets occasionally. They act without griping or inconvenience. They never sicken you like Calomel, Salts, Oil

Don't lose your teeth from Pyorrhoea or Riggs' Disease. It's unnecessary now. There is no reason why every-body cannot have good firm teeth and body cannot have good firm teeth and healthy gums and be free of the humiliation of sore, diseased gums and unsightly, decaying teeth.

You needn't have your teeth pulled or wear false ones. Simply go to Standard Drug Company or Taylor Drug Company, or any live local druggist, and ask for one ounce of Epithol—remember the rame, E-P-I-T-H-O-L, and use it as directed.

This is the prescription of a famous New York dentist, and it seems to work like magic on loose teeth and sore, tender, inflamed, receding, shrunken, spongy, bleeding or pus-discharging gums. Teeth tighten and the gums grow sound and healthy, and the bleeding pus discharge soon stops. Both dentists and users are amazed at the wonderful improvement it brings so quickly.

MACHINE GUN CORPS

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—Freight rate increases on the National Railway system are predicted as a result of a conference of officials of the system and the department of railways, which has been in progress here for some days. The primary purpose of the conference was to discuss and revise the estimates for the coming fiscal year. The guestion of prospective revenues is naturally of importance in such consideration and increased rates are in continuous and increased rates are in continuous and increased rates are in continuous and in the face of strong opposition, especially from the West. Such schedules as were thereby created will manifestly expire with the war measures on the official proclamation of peace.

The reason for the increase, namely, increased cost of materials, coal, wages etc., exist today in probably greater force than when the increase was ordered. In fact, it is anticipated that increases larger than those last made tion and increased rates are in con-templation.

The last increase in rates, both freight and passenger, was ordered by the Gov-ernment under the war measures act,

SIMS HURLS A BOMB.

Rear-Admiral Sims, who was commander of the American overseas naval forces throughout the period of America's participation, has made a sensational statement before a Congressiona! investigating committee, in which he charges that despite his clamorous demand for speedy action in fighting the submarines, months of time were wasted by the United States naval department, and that his repeated and urgent calls for aid found Washington listless. His most startling disclosure was that a "high official" told him "not to let the British pull the wool over his eyes," and that the United States "would as soon fight the British as the Germans." Sims' record before and during the war indicate that he is not a man who would lightly make sensational accusations. It will be for the American people to discover whether the hampering action or lack of action at Washington was due to inefficiency or to a settled policy such as the parting instructions to Sims might indicate. Possibly the statement credited to a high official was personal, not governmental, but it is to be noted that according to Sims' carefully-prepared charges it was many months before he could get assistance that even approached adequacy. Was this dangerous delay, then, due to the error of trying to run the naval campaign from a desk at Washington, or from the administration taking only a half-hearted

It is clear, however, that Sims did not have the free hand necessary for effectual co-operation with the allied fleets. Few of the actual facts of the naval campaign were permitted to reach the public, while the allied and American sailors were waging the life-or-death struggle with the U-boats, but it was generally supposed that British and Eastern Atlantic waters were swarming with American destroyers, subs and U-boat chasers. Now, we learn from Admiral Sims, that for several months of this critical period the American navy was represented by a handful of destroyers. That this small fleet dd gallant service we know on the testimony of the highest British command, but it is shown by Sims' expose that it was the British sailors and British ships that during those black statement he shows that England did her own plucking with very little outside assistance.

Two things are clear, if Sims' charges are corrects either the United States navy department was grossly mismanaged, or some power- rioting declares that the mob which attempted ful influence was deliberately hampering Admiral Sims as he attempted to do his bit. The , charges are so grave that undoubtedly a searching investigation will be made of the navy department's war policies and organization.

WORLD HISTORY.

Internationalists like Mr. H. G. Wells are making a strong plea for the teaching of world history in the schools. It is contended that the best way to general human good-will and peace is to develop mutual knowledge among the various peoples by the study everywhere of universal history, written in a spirit of brotherhood and fairness, with comprehensiveness and comprehension.

Hitherto history teaching has had for a main aim the fostering of patriotism, a very good aim, but not far-reaching enough. In the millennium of peace that we hope to enter upon, national history must broaden into racial history. Green transformed the handbook of English history from drum-and-trumpet to popular and social lines. H. G. Wells proposes a step further, and is publishing his own "Story of Life and Mankind" as a sample of the sort of history that he wants everyone to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest, in order to equip himself for internationalism and intelligent. hearty support of the League of Nations. Mr. Wells has had the assistance of several of England's greatest scholars in the preparation of his work. It is said that the demand for the parts of this book, as they come out every fortnight in England, is immense.

In such a narrative we may expect energy and wit, as well as enlightened and proportioned treatment of material. It will be a generous-minded story of all the peoples, and also of all the classes. Even yet in our histories there is too little record of the life of the toilers throughout the ages. Special monographs have appeared in great numbers of late, most of them dull, but some of them interesting, on guilds, arts and crafts, farm laborers, village life, amusements, and social movements in history, but all this matter has yet to find its proportionate and organic place in the matter of a general narrative. This can best be effected by an international treatment.

In Russia the Bolshevik educational authorities are making use of history and literature to stimulate the international mode of thinking. Village libraries have been set up, with subsidized editions of the world's classics, all the children are taught general history as well as the constitution of the Russian Republic, and for the benefit of those adults who cannot or will not read, the casual citizen or man on the street, billboards are covered with educational posters, pictures driving home the Bolshevik reading of history. Some of the pictures run in series, to enforce upon the half-converted some sense that Bolshevism or soviet government and communism must be taken as the inevitable culmination of the whole movement of history. The Russians are teaching their philosophy of history as Canadian posters taught investment in Victory Bonds.

It will be necessary for our boys and girls to learn the history of the world, not only for culture's sake, or for the sake of world peace and good-will, but to meet the new educated Russia a generation hence, on any equal footing of broad equipment. Canada is going to have a good deal to do with Russia, as we hope and believe. Perhaps if American schools had taught a better brand of history, the Senate at Washington would have shown a spirit less narrow and a more lively sympathy for the League of Nations, to which in time all nations will have to delegate a part of their sovereignty, if the cause of humanity and peace for which we have fought is to prevail.

FOR PORTLAND'S BENEFIT?

Unless the Government intends to spend stupendous sums in switching the Grand Trunk lines across the State of Maine, so that they will run to a Canadian port, Portland, which is now the Atlantic port of the system, will have to be greatly developed in order to handle the increased business as a part of the National system, and the money for this purpose must come from the pockets of the Canadian public. Commenting on this the Halifax Recorder makes some points worth considering:

Portland, Maine, has a good harbor, and with proper modern facilities it would be a great port. The people of the United States, having a mighty export and import traffic, should develop Portland, and we in the Maritime Provinces will wish them all goood luck

But that is, or should be, essentially an American enterprise. It is not our business. Our business is Canada. The people of the Maritime Provinces have a right to the development of their great winter ports. The avowed policy of both Liberals and Conservatives has long been, in national transportation matters, the expansion of Canadian ports-Canadian trade for Canadian railways and seaports. There is on the public records pledge after pledge that our great ports would nationalized-that is developed at Federal expense-because their value to the trade of the whole country makes their equapment and expansion a proper charge upon general revenue.

Members of Parliament from the Maritime Provinces must demand from the Government an explicit and binding declaration of policy in these matters. The country must know-before the projected Grand Trunk purchase can be discussed intelligently-whether or not Government's intention is to divert Canadian traffic to a foreign port at the immediate or ultimate expense of the open harbors of the Maritime Provinces. Now is the time to have a clear and fuil understanding—before the country is com-mitted to the expenditure of another dollar to add more railway mileage to the Government

It is worth remembering at this time that many of the railway officials in the Government's employ-in Canada's employ-are, or were, American citizens. While they may be competent rallwaymen, it is highly improbable that they think along all-Canadian lines. Canadian public men should keep that in mind. Government ownership is in itself of less in-Canadian national transportation. The Government's statements in the House regarding the use of Portland have been neither frank nor reassuring.

GERMANY IN BAD CASE.

The cables from Germany during the past week indicate that the internal condition of the months of 1917 defeated the submarines and German Republic is much more serious than prevented Germany winning the war. Sims is generally supposed. The rioting at Berlin says he was warned against "plucking Eng- was of a nature that makes very real the posland's chestnuts out of the fire." From his sibility of the Government being overthrown. Martial law has been proclaimed throughout the greater part of the country, and Noske has used his rifles and machine guns frequently and ruthlessly. An eyewitness of the Berlin to storm the Reichstag must have numbered close to fifty thousand persons of all classes. sexes and ages. The Reds may have engineered the demonstration, but it seems clear that with a vast section of the German public the present Government is unpopular. The great danger to Germany and to the rest of Europe is that the Red element may secure the control and guidance of this great army of the discontented. Were Germany suddenly to go Red it might very easily throw all Western Europe into a dreadful state of chaos and anarchy.

OFF THE EARTH.

[Cleveland Plaindealer.] When the Germans began working their atrocity gun at St. Gobain, scientists said it was quite impossible for any gun to shoot seventy miles. They said no gun could give an unitial kick powerful enough to carry a shell from St. Gobain to Paris. Someone offered a fanciful suggestion that the projectile might carry with it some kind of a device to kick it along after it got started. It was not explained just how such a traveling kicker could be made to work, and the discussion soon ended with the discovery that the Germans had done the impossible, and had indeed fabricated a gun that could shoot seventy miles by the power of one explosive impulse.

Perhaps the atrocity gun of St. Gobain inspired the American professor Goddard of Clark College with the idea of shooting the moon. Perhaps the fanciful and erroneous suggestion of a series of kicks to keep the shell going gave the American his inspiration for a colossal rocket to be impelled by kick after kick on its upward course. Whatever the source of Professor Goddard's idea, he has developed it to a stage of plausibility. Give a rocket a powerful initial impulse, and provide a mechanism for a series of subsequent impulses, and there is no law of physics or common sense to prevent projectile from shooting out beyond the earth's gravitational pull. Aim it in the general direction of the moon, and it must hit the mark, for once it has escaped the earth's pull the moon's pull seize it, and the last part of its journey will be no more than a rapid fall to the lunar surface. There is no water or air on the moon, and so, there is no life on the moon's surface. Certainly there can be no life as the inhabitants of the mundane planet understand it. If there are moon men they must be weird, lungless creatures Probably no one on the moon will be surprised when Professor Goddard's missile dents a lunar mountain. t will not be taken as an act of war, and the earth will not be bombarded in reprisal.

But there will be plenty of people on the earth who will be surprised if the professor's dream comes true. It would mark man's first physical communication with worlds beyond his own. And with this as a beginning, who can tell how far we might not shoot in the centuries to come? Mars is the next step, and beyond Mars are untold myriads of worlds to conquer. One obvious difficulty in the shooting a star instead of the moon or Mars is that it would require a good many dozens of billions of years for the most active rocket to reach its destination, and the people of the earth might forget all about the experiment before its completion.

THERE IS A VALE. [Henry David Thoreau.]
There is a vale which none hath seen,
Where foot of man hath never been. Such as here lives with toil and strife An anxious and a sinful life. There every virtue has its birth, Ere it descends upon the earth, And thither every deed returns Which in the generous bosom burns

There love is warm and youth is young, And poetry is yet unsung. For Virtue still adventures there, And freely breathes her native air. You still may hear its vesper bell, And ever, if you hearken well, And tread of high-souled men go by, Their thoughts conversing with the sky.

THAT'S ALL RIGHT, BUT-

[Kingston British Whig.] Young men and women become teachers as means of earning their living. There is a nobility in their calling, and an attraction about teaching. But they cannot live on nobility nor by devotion alone. Disagreeable things, like board bills and coal bills and rent, must be paid. And to meet these payments larger salaries are urgently needed.

NEW HOCKING NOVEL. "The Everlasting Arms," by Joseph Hocking, author of "Follow the Gleam," "All for a Scrap of Paper," "Dearer Than Life," etc. Price, $1.50.

Toronto: Hodder & Stoughton. Faversham, the hero of the story, finds himself heir to immense wealth and a beautiful estate at Wendover in England. Count Romanoff, the villain of the plot, has resolved to wreck Faversham's life in revenge for his unrequited love for Faversham's mother, who rejects the count for a poor scholar. Faversham does not know this, and as Romanoff has saved his life after a shipwreck, he welcomes him to his home. In the story Romanoff puts three great temptations in his way. Through the aid of his mother (who appears several times in visible form, though dead since Faversham's infancy, and also through the presence and influence of Beatrice Stanmore, a pure and charming girl, who lives in the vicinity of Wendover, Faversham, though sorely tempted, resists all three temptations After having triumphed in these temptations, Faversham receives word that he is once more owner of the Wendover estate. He returns, but his joy is overshadowed by the belief that Beatrice Stanmore is soon to be married. He is overjoyed to find her still free. He tells her of his love, and is accepted. She walks with him to his restored home, and as they approach the threshold the figure of his mother is visible to them for an instant with her hands outstretched in benediction. It is a story of intense interest, and a vindical tion of the final triumph of good over evil. While not advocating spiritualism, the book is a demonstration of the belief that visibly, as well as invisibly, our departed loved ones come to us in time of need and render help and guidance. The story has all the charm and virility which characterize Joseph

"HOT TOMALES." [McMaster University Monthly.]

The street vendor appears to be indigenous in some form to every clime, and especially to the warm Southern States, where he may pursue his occupation uninterrupted throughout the entire year. During the warmer periods of the summer season he appears as the agent for ice cream-tiny penny sticks of it wrapped in tissue paper and kept on ice until sold-pushing his cart along the street and attracting attention by means of a shrill whistle. Becoming more prosperous, he buys a dilapidated old horse, and rigs up a covered wagon with which he may drive from place to place in the city to supply the shifting crowds of workers and pleasureseekers with peanuts, popcorn and candy. But most unique of all is that characteristically Southern vendor of "hot tomales." He never appears in the daylight when the other vendors are plying their trade, but always reserves his wares until evening. Regularly at about 9:30 his shrill whistle is heard far off down the street, followed by his strong tenor voice advertising "Hot tomales, hot tomales, hot toma-a-a-a-les!" Soon he appears at close range carrying in his hand a little stove-lantern combination upon which the tomales are being cooked. One evening, overcome by curiosity, we stifled the conscientious objections which were obvious from a sanitary viewpoint, and purchased three tomales. We found them to be indeed a strange and wonder ful combination. The cob had evidently been removed from an ear of corn, leaving the green hu very nearly intact. Then the cavity had been filled with a mixture of cornmeal, small pleces of pork. and various other ingredients, including red pepper With a heroic expenditure of energy worthy better cause, we each managed to consume one tomale. They proved to be moist and quite palatable, but very hot—not only from the heat of the fine stove, but more especially from the red pepper, of which there seemed to be an unnecessarily lavish amount used. Among the Southerners they are considered a delicacy, and have a wide sale, but somehow we could never summon sufficient courage 230 DUNDAS STREET. to attempt to eat another hot tomale.

IN VICTORIA PARK.

There's something infinitely cheering in the fact that someone trusts you, even though it's only a little grey squirrel on the way to its treetop home the park.

Yesterday, as I was ploughing through one of the many Victoria paths drifted with snow, a tiny grey-furred stranger confronted me and boldly stopped Sanitary Conditions Very Bad to gaze, in curiosity I suppose. Whether every passerby is subjected to the same insolent inspection I do not know. It may have been that I was a most curious individual in the eyes of the squirrel-world, but I chose to interpret the incident as an indication of perfect trust on the part of the little creature ho, had he been living in some distant woods, would have fied away in terror

His bright little eyes "took me in" from head to foot as I drew still nearer to his stopping place, and then just as I was almost on top of him, leisurely passed on, springing into a nearby tree,

For the rest of my walk, there was a delightfully helpless sort of feeling in my throat. The little thing had trusted me absolutely, and I couldn't forget it, not until a few hours later, when a suspicious business associate, by a diplomatically worded question, meant to "feel me out." Somebody again didn't trust me, and after all it was only human.

THE PRANKS OF IMP

They called him imp, and, indeed, that was the very best name for him, for he was a mischievous and saucy little puppy. How he did delight in playing pranks. It was necessary to keep 'most everything out of sight, for it was Imp's main delight to carry things away, or chew up anything he found.

"Where's mother's slippers, where's the baby's doll, where's the left shoe of Daddy's Sunday boots?" That was the cry when Imp first came. Of course, the naughty puppy had carried them away somewhere. Sometimes they were easily found, but more often a long hunt had to be made before they were herought to light, and then what a long hunt had to be made before they were brought to light, and then what a commotion there would be. Gone were the bows of mother's slippers, all chewed was the face of baby's doll, and sharp little teeth had made scratches on Daddy's shiny new boots. Now, Imp learned it was unwise to anger his kind master and mistress, and he did not like to make the baby cry, so after he had been spanked a number of times, he directed his pranks elsewhere. Old Tim, the buildog next door, was just the kind of a goodnatured dog to play pranks on, so Imp started in. First of all, he learned that Tim did not like to have his tail chewed, and straightway set to work to pit the old fellow's tender on the very learned that the old fellow's tender on the very learned to the old fellow's tender on the very learned to the old fellow's tender on the very learned to the plant the old fellow's tender on the very learned to the plant the old fellow's tender on the very learned to the plant the old fellow's tender on the very learned to the plant the old fellow's tender on the very learned to the plant the old fellow's tender on the very learned to the plant the old fellow's tender on the very learned to the plant the old fellow's tender on the very learned to the very lea chewed, and straightway set to work to nip the old fellow's tender spot. Next he discovered that ears were nice things to chew, and much to Old Tim's discomfort, attacked the ears with as much joy as he had attacked the harmless old dog's tail. Poor old Tim! He was much too good-natured to take his own part when such a little dog was bothering him, so Imp was permitted to act disgracefully without any interference. But doing things that did not seem to annow was much for Jan.

covery-Tim buried bones. When no covery—Tim buried bones. When no-body was looking one fine afternoon, Imp stole into Tim's backyard and as quickly as possible dug up the biggest bone he could find. What a prize it was! But prizes like that were heavy, was! But prizes like that were heavy, and it took all Imp's strength to lift it from Tim's storehouse. A sound at the front yard where Tim was last seen sleeping, caused the pup to hurry. It was hard work, and by the time the pup had carried the bone a few feet he was ired. Where could he bury it? The open well at his feet suggested an idea. Tim was coming. In his fright Imp leaned too far over the well and down he went.

Gurgle! Gurgle! Gurgle! What a mouthful of water and what a soaking the pup got. The well was deep, but at first Imp did not realize his danger. Around and around he went, shaking the water from his mouth and eyes. Soon he tired. Then he became frightened. Was he going to drown?

"Woof, woof," It was Tim leaning over the well.

"Save me, save me" cried Imp.

In the twinkling of an eye the old dog disappeared. In a minute he was back again with a rope in his mouth. He held onto one end and pushed the other down to Imp. Imp grasped it between his teeth and hung on. His play with Tim's tail had taught him that trick. The next thing he knew he was pulled out of the well, cold and dripping. How grateful he was to his rescuer.

I am not a grandmother—am 45 years old—and have lived on a farm all my life up to one year ago, and the first year we were married my husband borrowed $100 and put in a quantity of oats, and in the fall we threshed 1,000 bushels. We sold the oats at 15c a bushel, and it took over 700 bushels to pay that $100, and that same year I drove to Windsor, 23 miles, and sold first-class butter for 13c, and had to take one-half trade for it, and we were just as happy as we are it, and we were just as happy as we are today. The Indoor Baseball League held forth at the Armories last night before a big crown of fans, which is increasing to the gratification of the league officials. With increasing salaries to ball players, it may not be such a far cry to the day when every player, good and bad or worse, will have a private secretary of his own just like Ruth. It won't be a question of not being able to afford one. The game has seen many changes, starting with club trainers, club secretaries, club advisers, private advisers to pretty near every position on the team, and now Ruth has a private secretary himself. He would have had a press agent, too, only the papers of the country collectively press-agented with the fame that his good hickory laid the foundation for. PRESTON, Jan. 19.—A large crowd saw Preston go down to defeat in the fastest O. H. A. Junior hockey game here in years. The locals scored the first goal on a neat combination play. Stratford scored a little later on during a scramble in front of the nets. Berger, the star defence man, was heavily checked all the time, Stratford's last tallies being made on neat combination plays. For the locals Clark on defence, played a wonderful game, while the whole forward line played a strong game all through, especially in backchecking. Flegg in goal for Preston, put up one of the best games of his life, and saved the situation several times, The penalties were: For the locals one, and for Stratford, four. Harry Maloney and his rink of Royal City curlers successfully defended the Carew cup this afternoon, defeating a strong rink from Napanee by four shots, the final score being 19 to 15. The local rink got away to a good lead, scoring nine shots in the first five ends before the visitors became accustomed to the ice. After that they made things interesting and outscored their opponents. On the twelfth end they secured six shots, which put them very much in the running, but the lead was too high to overcome. SHORT OF BREATH Could Hardly Walk Without Resting.

When you go to a physician to be examined for any heart trouble one of the first questions he asks is: "Are ou short of breath?"

Now, when the heart becomes affected there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of opression and anxiety.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung Mil-burn's Heart and Nerve Pills are just the remedy you require. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mr. Stephen Crouse, East Clifford N. S., writes: "I suffered for five years with heart trouble. I could hardly walk from the house to the barn without resting as I used to get so short of breath. Doctors could not help me. My wife told me to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I felt better after taking them; three boxes made me quite well. I am now helping my son to work the farm, and can truthfully say I feel like a different man."

"The Open Door" is without doubt one of the greatest mystery dramas ever filmed. It is the story of a man who assumed the responsibilities for a crime committed by another, and voluntarily went to Sing Sing and served a fifteen-year sentence in order that his daughter might have the good things of life that he was unable to give her. He entered into an agreement with the man who was guilty that upon his release he should be paid $25,000, and should reclaim his daughter, who, during his incarceration was should are desired and eared for as the daughter. $25,000, and should rectain his daughter, who, during his incarceration was educated and cared for as the daughter of another.

It was a truly hopeful sign to see the different denominations represented as they were at the "Gipsy Smith" meetings, and with what success those meetings were attended. There was no complaint about the seats being hard, even though they did lack the usual uphoistery. One Methodist clergyman agreed with me that there was too much church and too little Christianity. There is really no one to blame, but because one church has a certain height of steeple, another, when building, feels in duty bound to build theirs a little higher. It is highly gratifying that the Christian people are beginning to think more of what the building stands for than the building itself.
