

ISABEL ARMSTRONG HOLDS BIG RALLY TONIGHT

London's First Civic Peony Show Is Open Today

WORKERS WILL SUPPORT ISABEL ARMSTRONG AS THE PROBABLE WINNER

An Incident in Liberal Candidate's Committee Room Shows the Swing of Opinion—Everything in Readiness For Tonight's Big Rally in Majestic Theatre.

CANDIDATE AND D. J. McDOUGALL TO SPEAK

Tonight in the Majestic Theatre, Isabel Armstrong, London's Liberal candidate, is holding a meeting open to the public, friend and foe alike. She will be supported by D. J. McDougall, brilliant Liberal orator and former M. P. of Ottawa. Mr. McDougall arrived from Ottawa at noon today.

Isabel Armstrong's action in holding a meeting where the general public may hear her statements, fits in with her open and courageous campaign of the past week. It is this courage and energy which has steadily won the approval of all classes quite as much as the merit of the five points in her platform.

There is no question about the swing of public opinion in Miss Armstrong's favor during the past week. Handicapped by a late start, she has demonstrated remarkable energy and ability, and each day sees new expressions of approval and support offered at her headquarters.

An incident which occurred at her committee rooms in Hyman Hall early this morning is typical of the swing of opinion.

A Recruit From Ward Three.
A Ward Three man presented himself at the table where Miss Armstrong was working.

"You're Miss Isabel Armstrong, aren't you?" said he.

"Yes," replied the Liberal candidate with a smile. "I must admit it."

"Well, I'm from Ward Three, and I've come down here to tell you I'm going to vote for you, and so is my family, because we think Beck's wrong, and we think you're the one with the best chance of beating him."

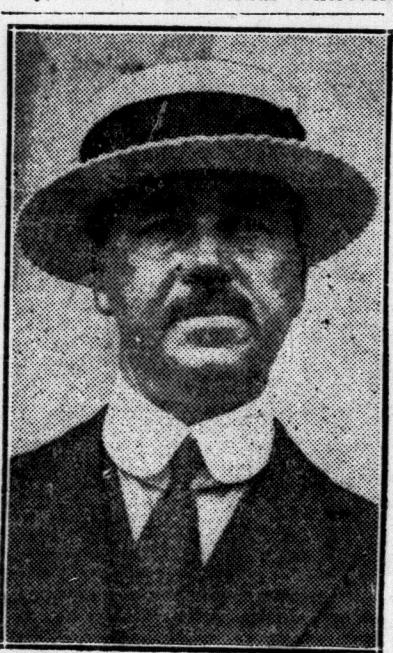

Miss Armstrong thanked him and shook hands.

"You know over in Ward Three," the man explained, "people pretty well gave Beck the election ten days ago. But you've certainly got everyone talking about you now. I was going to vote Stevenson, because the doctor's all right, but we believe up there now that he's had his day, and that you're the one to back if we want to beat Sir Adam."

Five minutes later the new recruit was on his way south again with a list of his neighbors, and "I'll get them all," he promised.

Friends Everywhere.
The same thing seems to be happening all over the city. Whatever instinctive prejudice there was in some people's minds against the idea of a woman candidate has disappeared wherever Isabel Armstrong has been heard—and she has been heard in many places. Her willingness to go anywhere, at any time, and the friendliness and frankness of her arguments have won over scores of sceptics. People feel that she is really one of them and that, without money or preparation, she entered the fight only because she believes she can support principles and laws which will help people in their homes. There is an intelligence and a wholesomeness in Isabel Armstrong's personality, which wins friends wherever she goes. She has been invited back to one big factory, and at every other factory meeting she has held, both men and women have demonstrated their approval before she said good-bye.

Doors Open at Seven.
Tonight's meeting is bound to be a big one. Electric fans have been installed and other arrangements have been completed to make the Majestic the coolest place in the city tonight. Miss Armstrong will outline and explain the five definite points in her platform—the only platform which London's candidates have yet offered—and the public will be given a chance to form a fair opinion. Jared Vining is to act as chairman. The doors will open at seven o'clock and the speakers will appear at eight.

JOHN GUNN RELATES ASPECTS OF POETRY
Kiwans Club Hears Instructive and Amusing Address at Noon Luncheon.

Dealing with his subject, "Versifying As An Art," with an admirable regard for oppressive weather conditions, John Gunn, well-known London lawyer, gave a finely humorous and interesting address at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club at noon today in the Tecumseh House.

Although he pointed out seriously that poetry is one of the fine arts within easy access of all men, and at all times a source of national inspiration, Mr. Gunn recited both great poems and parodies on them, so that his address was both informing and sufficiently diverting to be well-suited for a warm day.

Introduced by the past president, Arthur Ford, Mr. Gunn received a particularly hearty reception.

In the absence of the president, Ewan Hay, Rev. Wm. Beattie was the chairman of the day.

Thrift, Carried To Limit, Lands Three Boys In Court
Hoover Brothers and Chum Had $60 Between Them, But Still Tried To Steal Ride.

Although possessing approximately $60 between them, more than sufficient to pay their rail fare from Windsor to Hamilton, Earl and Layton Hoover and Glen Culp pleaded guilty to trespassing on the C. N. R. and stealing a ride from the Border Cities to London.

The boys told the court they had been working in Detroit, and were beating their way to save their money. Earl Hoover was the pauper of the

THREE MEETINGS ARE HELD AT NOON BY CANDIDATES

Miss Armstrong, in White Factory, Wins Many New Supporters.

MR. DONAHUE TALKS

Urges His Hearers To Vote on Principle of Straight Opposition to O. T. A.

Record-breaking temperatures hold no terrors for Isabel C. Armstrong, Dr. Hugh Stevenson and J. M. Donahue. The three political opponents continued their aggressive battle for votes with added energy this morning, and the mercury will have to climb several degrees higher before it can slow up this trinity of election stalwarts.

Sir Adam, as far as personal solicitation is concerned, will be out of the running until the crucial 26th of the month. He is still suffering from slight indisposition and, in lieu of taking active part in the campaign, his supporters are cleaning up final organization.

Stevenson and Donahue are following one another's trail, and from all appearances the latter is certain to attract a substantial number of the votes from the majority enjoyed by Dr. Hugh last election. Miss Armstrong was cordially received by the employees of George White & Sons at noon today and several assured her of their active support after hearing her summary of the Liberal platform.

Frank McLaughlin, automobile man, and former worker at George White & Sons, introduced the Liberal candidate. He told them what Miss Armstrong stood for, and the candidate followed him with an appeal which took instant effect. As a working man, he declared, she understood the problems of the workman. Her platform could be condensed into a single phrase, "Fair play."

Miss Armstrong's Fair Play.
"Fair play for all classes of the community should be the aim and object of every member of the legislature," she said. When I accepted the Liberal nomination I knew I would be called upon to overcome the natural prejudice which most people have against women candidates. But when my platform was given publicity, my antipathy the electorate might have felt toward a woman candidate was speedily dispelled."

Miss Armstrong outlined her platform. Equal education, better homes, minimum wage, old age insurance, protection for the mentally feeble and other classes she discussed in appealing words. She stated she would not support a re-entrance today discloses what appears to be a perfume sea of fragile petals, shimmering in wave after wave of ivory and cream and rose-tinted masses.

London Peony Exhibition Opens Today In Splendor of Beautiful Flowers

Masses of Exquisite Blooms Bedeck Show Building at Queen's Park—Members of Horticultural Society Labor Hard To Make Event Successful.

At noon today in the Horticultural Building at the fair grounds, London's First Annual Civic Peony Show was officially opened to the public.

Since 5 o'clock this morning, loyal supporters of the Horticultural Society in their attempt to make the 1923 exhibition surpass all previous efforts were at work in the huge building arranging the great masses of bloom.

MR. FERGUSON IS DAMP

Tory papers protest that the Christian Guardian is satisfied with Mr. Ferguson—but The Christian Guardian itself says not—and Ferguson's stand is also Beck's.

The chief argument which Conservative papers and campaigneers have raised in defense of Howard Ferguson is the boast that the Christian Guardian is satisfied with the Tory leader's temperance position.

The Free Press has raised its hands in sorrowful surprise when Mr. Ferguson's temperance evasions have been questioned, and their reply has been: "The Christian Guardian is satisfied—why should the people doubt?"

And Sir Adam Beck, in his reply to the questions of the W. C. T. U., avoided stating personal opinions by saying that he was in agreement with the temperance stand of his leader, Mr. Ferguson, with whom a leading religious journal (the Guardian) is satisfied.

Unfortunately, however, the Christian Guardian itself declares an entirely opposite position. The Christian Guardian, in its issue of last Wednesday, June 20, singles out Howard Ferguson as the political leader whose sincerity is in doubt, and whose anti-O. T. A. tendencies are dangerous.

Referring to Howard Ferguson's persecution of Mr. Raney for his enforcement of the O. T. A., the Christian Guardian on June 20th has this to say:

"In making these savage onslaughts upon Mr. Raney, Mr. Ferguson necessarily leaves himself open to the suspicion that, not for the first time in his history, he has his ear to the ground and HE IS AIMING TO PLEASE, NOT THE MEN WHO PUT THE TEMPERANCE ACT UPON THE STATUTE BOOK, BUT THE MEN WHO HATE IT AND DESIRE ITS REPEAL. To us these vicious attacks upon Mr. Raney look very much like A CHEAP ATTEMPT TO WIN THE APPLAUSE OF THE LIQUOR-LOVING FRATERNITY BY ATTACKING the one man who has been most responsible for the enforcement of the law."

Those are plain and unmistakable words. They effectually strip the sheep's clothing from Mr. Ferguson's back, and they remove the one defense which Tory campaigners have offered for their leader.

AND NOW WHERE DOES SIR ADAM STAND?
Sir Adam's answer to uncomfortable questions has been: "I am with Mr. Ferguson." In his letter to the secretary of the W. C. T. U., dated June 19th, Sir Adam said: "I am in favor of the position taken by Hon. Howard Ferguson, Liberal-Conservative leader, in regard to the O. T. A."

Does Sir Adam mean that he shares and supports the position of the man whom the Christian Guardian says "is aiming to please, not the men who put the temperance act upon the statute book, but the men who hate it and desire its repeal"?—the man who, to quote the Guardian again, is making "a cheap attempt to win the applause of the liquor-loving fraternity"?

Sir Adam's answer can mean nothing else.

THE FACT OF THE SITUATION IS THAT ISABEL ARMSTRONG IS THE ONLY ONE OF LONDON'S CANDIDATES WHO HAS HAD THE COURAGE AND THE CONVICTION TO GIVE TO THE PUBLIC A DEFINITE: "YES! I STAND FOR THE O. T. A."

Isabel Armstrong is the only one of London's candidates who has been honest enough to publish for the public a definite platform, and in that platform is this plank, clear and bold:

"EFFECTIVE PROHIBITION"
"(a) by strengthening the O. T. A."
"(b) by its impartial and clean enforcement."

"On the ground that strict prohibition is in the interests of the health, happiness and economic welfare of the children and the homes of Ontario."

Isabel Armstrong has earned the support of men and women of all classes—from those to whom the temperance question is a vital issue because of her purpose—from everyone else because of her pluck and sincerity.

UNION BANK DEPOSITS EXCEED WITHDRAWALS
Normal Conditions Ensure Despite Substantial Lowering of Rest Account.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Montreal, June 22.—Elaborate arrangements made by the Union Bank in announcing a decrease of its rest account or reserve from $6,000,000 to $1,750,000, resulted in normal conditions at the bank today. An elderly lady appeared twenty minutes before banking hours at the St. James street branch, and through the courtesy of the officials withdrew her savings, which amounted to some hundreds of dollars, ten minutes before the regulation time, 10 o'clock.

Another savings client appeared as the white-haired lady was counting her money and made a substantial deposit. Other depositors followed, and in the first hour of business deposits were well in excess of the usual routine withdrawals.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY REGISTERS EARTH SHOCKS
Associated Press Despatch.
Washington, June 22.—Two series of earth shocks were registered during the night on the seismograph of the Georgetown University here. The first began at 11:08 p.m. and lasted for 20 minutes. It was of slight intensity. The second, which began at 2:12 a.m., continued for two hours and eighteen minutes and was of a pronounced character. Its location was estimated at 4,000 miles from Washington.

ELECTED MAYOR.

Dublin, June 21.—Liberty Hall and the head offices of the Transport Union in Rutland Square, seized by Jim Larkin several days ago, were reoccupied by the executive of the union today without opposition.

ADMIRE PLUCK SHOWN BY LONDON LIBERAL NOMINEE

D. J. McDougall, of Ottawa, Arrives in City For Rally Tonight at Majestic.

QUESTIONS BECK IDEA

Declares Inconsistency in Local Conservative Candidate's Seeking Election.

D. J. McDougall, brilliant platform speaker, and ex-M. L. A. for Ottawa, arrived in the city this morning to deliver an address at the Majestic Theatre this evening in support of Miss Isabel Armstrong's candidature.

Characterizing the plucky action of Miss Armstrong in accepting the Liberal nomination as "one of the really splendid things of this campaign," Mr. McDougall enthusiastically lauded the strenuous fight she is conducting throughout this constituency.

In an interview with The Advertiser this morning, he said: "It is a splendid thing that the women of the province are taking so lively an interest in the forthcoming election. Legislation is just as important to them as it is to men, and it is only right that the women of the province should have their representative in Toronto. It will be a great thing to have a woman of Miss Armstrong's calibre in the house. Miss Armstrong, I understand, has for many years been associated with newspaper work, and in that field made herself acquainted with the many moral and social questions that necessitate having a woman representative in Toronto."

Asked by The Advertiser as to his opinion regarding the bringing of hydro into politics, Mr. McDougall replied:

"I do not understand Sir Adam Beck's idea of going into politics again. Beck himself has always said to keep hydro out of politics, so why does he now want to enter the field himself? Hydro has been managed exceptionally well with Beck out of politics, so what his reason is in entering the field as a candidate I cannot see."

Mr. McDougall said prospects of electing two members in Ottawa were very bright, and he felt quite sure that on Monday evening the Liberals would have a majority over the Conservatives.

Believed To Have Been Drowned at Fort Erie Sunday.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Niagara Falls, June 22.—The bodies of two boys were taken out of the Niagara River, one at Fort Erie and the other this morning. They are believed to be Carmel Scott, ten, and Frank Abiesale, thirteen, of Buffalo, who were drowned at Fort Erie Sunday, June 10.

ELECT ROBERT SMILLIE TO BRITISH PARLIAMENT
Associated Press Despatch.
London, England, June 22.—Robert Smillie, noted Labor leader and president of the Scottish Miners' Federation, has been elected to parliament from the Morpeth division, polling 20,053 votes against 15,087 for Mr. Thornborough, the Liberal candidate. Morpeth is a safe Labor seat, but Smillie's poll is regarded as unusually large. He had previously made eight unsuccessful attempts at election.

LONDON'S YEAR BOOK NOW PLACED ON SALE

Pictures Alone Are Believed Worth "Price of Admission."

What are the six best sellers today? It is safe to assume that one of them is the city of London year book, an annual publication of city activities, general information, etc., to be found on sale in City Clerk Baker's office for the modest fee of 50 cents per copy.

Between 20 and 30 copies have already been sold. It was reported today, while the demand is increasing. It is believed that many of the taxpayers are interested in the fact that all city salaries and wages are to be found in the 1923 edition of this little booklet.

It may yet be necessary to order another supply if the rush is maintained.

"It is a very interesting book," the city authorities assure. It is pointed out that, aside from the pay lists, pictures of Mayor Wenige and ex-Mayor Cameron Wilson are easily worth the price of admission.

ORDER ROGERS TOMBSTONE HAVE LETTERING REMOVED

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, June 22.—The Journal carries the following story from North Bay:

The case of Leo Rogers is apparently still lingering in the lap of justice. This week the parents had a monument erected over the grave of their son, with the words inscribed in large letters, "Our Hero."

The information of this answer to law and justice was brought to the notice of the proper officials, who immediately ordered the police to see that the words were erased. This will be done tomorrow.

DECLARE LABOR MAN PEEVED SO HE JOINED TORY CAMP

LABOR DECLARES BURKE PEEVED SO HE HELPS TORIES

OLD SORE ITCHES

F. D. Burke, secretary of the London Trades and Labor Council, has frankly stated that he cannot support Dr. Hugh Stevenson, the Labor candidate in the present campaign, and that he feels impelled to cast his vote Monday next for Sir Adam Beck, the Tory choice.

But herein hangs a story, relate prominent members of the London Labor Party, the central political body of London.

Secretary Burke's public declaration of yesterday prompts further announcements today from men who have long been recognized as leaders of the political Labor movement in this city—Ald. John Colbert, president of the local street railwaymen's union, and a past president of the London Labor Party; Ald. Frank McKay, past president of the Trades Council and also past president of No. 1 Branch (Individual) of the London Labor Party; Arthur Mould, member of the executive board, and the party candidate at the last federal election, and others.

Sought Standard.
Secretary Burke was not always the "last ditch" supporter of Sir Adam Beck as he professes to be today, assert the leaders of the London Labor Party.

It has been duly recorded, they explain further, that Secretary Burke at one time—in 1919 to be precise—entertained aspirations for the party standard, and went as far as to allow his name to go before the Labor nominating convention; the same convention where Dr. Stevenson was chosen as the candidate to oppose Sir Adam Beck. Secretary Burke and Dr. Stevenson were the two names balloted on, Stevenson winning by an overwhelming majority.

This all happened in 1919, remind Ald. Colbert and Ald. McKay, and they question what has caused Secretary Burke to change his attitude in such a remarkable fashion, and they ask Secretary Burke pointblank: "Is he sore because he did not carry the 1919 nomination?" Secretary Burke has placed himself in a most peculiar position, the political Labor leaders believe. In 1919 he evidently exerted himself in the interests of Dr. Stevenson, and now he publicly announces that he is going to support Sir Adam Beck. What is his reason? they ask.

Same Person.
"F. D. Burke is the same person who allowed his name to go to the nominating convention in 1919," explained Ald. McKay, directing "The Advertiser's" attention to this fact. "Further than that he presided as chairman at one of Dr. Stevenson's mass meetings out on Egerton street. I think it seems peculiar to me that he should now be out supporting the candidate whom he tried to beat and campaign. It would appear to me as though he might be sore because he

ON THE LAST LAP.

The Advertiser this morning caught a group of the horticultural enthusiasts at the fair grounds as failed to carry the nominating convention of that day."

Ald. John Colbert, president of the street railwaymen's union, entertains much the same opinion as Ald. McKay.

"I can recall that Secretary Burke was one of those nominated at the 1919 election. I can remember it quite well. There were several names offered, mine among them, but we withdrew in favor of Dr. Stevenson."

Change of Heart.
"But Secretary Burke allowed his name to go to the convention, and he lost to Dr. Stevenson. What has brought about this change of heart that he is now out supporting the very candidate that he would have opposed himself in 1919. Is it possible that he has been peeved and sore ever since he lost the nomination? If that is the case it showed his calibre all right."

The Labor Party leaders desire to impress that Secretary Burke of the Trades and Labor Council does not represent the views of those workers affiliated with the Labor political movement.

Arthur Mould, prominently identified with that organization, states that Mr. Burke's name was in nomination at the 1919 convention, but to the best of his knowledge he has not been associated with the political body since then.

Ald. McKay states that the trades organization of which Secretary Burke is a member is not now affiliated with the political end of the party.

OPEN TENDERS TONIGHT.

Tenders for the building of the new addition to the Technical School, which was decided on by the advisory vocational committee at their last meeting, will be opened tonight in the Technical School by the committee in special session. The new additions is part of the original plans of the school building, and will add four rooms to the present accommodation. When the matter was discussed, the price was expected to be in the neighborhood of $60,000.

Returning Officer Looks For Keen Election Fight

City Clerk Sam Baker Predicts Closest Contest London Has Known in Years.

Elections are much like horse races in one respect—anything may happen. But if there is any person in town qualified to venture a reasonable forecast of the local event at this moment, it is City Clerk Sam Baker, returning officer for the riding of London.

Mr. Baker has seen them come and go. He has witnessed the fall of the mighty and has watched with interest prospective politicians start with 123 votes in one ward, but come back year after year until they headed the polls in the same section.

In his various official capacities, city clerk, returning officer and so forth, Mr. Baker has been in close touch with all manner of candidates and elections. And it was once his duty, at a majority contest to cast the deciding vote to break a tie for the mayor's chair—and Dr. Stevenson was elected.

"The more I hear and see about the present contest," Mr. Baker reflected this morning, "the more I am inclined to believe sometimes that such a duty may befall me again this time, although I am not seeking it as an outcome."

From what he has observed the past few hours Mr. Baker would not be surprised he says if the present contest proves to be the closest in years, and it would not be unexpected to find all four candidates fairly well bunched.

WILL BUY SCREEN CLOTH FROM AN AMERICAN FIRM
A well-known Londoner, who has a sleeping porch, and who wants to use it in this hot weather, went into a retail store in the city a few days ago, and asked the price of wire screen cloth to inclose his porch. He was quoted 40 cents per lineal foot. This seemed rather high, so on the advice of a friend he wrote to a firm in Chicago, asking quotations on the same quality of wire screen. The American firm offered him the goods at 19 cents per foot.

The Londoner worked out the price of bringing the wire here, and found that after paying all freight and duty charges he would save $7.50. Today he gave the order to the Chicago firm.

TWO CYCLISTS INJURED WHEN MACHINES COLLIDE
Coming together at the corner of Marmora and Hamilton road, two cyclists crashed with a sound that could be heard for yards.

W. H. Howard, 11 Dillabough street, and Fred Kelly, 9 Marmora street, both riding their wheels at a good rate of speed, crashed as each was attempting to make the turn. Both of them suffered cuts and bruises.

Howard having to be taken to his home in a motor. Strange to say, the bicycles were not injured. The collision happened shortly after midday yesterday.

WILL EXTRADITE SIDNEY MURRELL, NOT DEPORT HIM

His Offence So Serious U. S. Authorities Will Exercise Full Care.

IS EXPECTED SOON

The crime for which Sid Murrell is wanted in London is so serious for the U. S. authorities to hand him over without the formality of extradition proceedings, according to Crown Attorney J. C. Elliott.

Referring to the report from California, that if attempts to extradite Murrell fail, the man will be deported, the crown attorney stated he did not see why deportation had not been ordered in the first place. "It is my opinion," said Mr. Elliott, "that the American authorities have had regard to the seriousness of the crime for which Murrell is wanted, the highest on the criminal calendar, and for this reason are making absolutely certain that he will be fairly treated in the States, although it is a foregone conclusion that he will be brought back here to stand trial for murder and robbery, as well as jail breaking."

"Murder, in any country, is the most serious crime that can be committed, and when a man faces trial for having killed one of his fellows, every care and precaution must be taken that he is given a fair chance, as his own life lies in the balance. Of course, we in Canada think it would have been much simpler and more economical to deport Murrell, but I do not think in the face of the evidence that has been submitted, the American government will refuse to order his extradition."

"Another reason that might enter into the question is that when a man is extradited he is handed over to law officers of the country requesting extradition at the point of confinement. On the other hand, deportation requires that he be shipped out of the country into the lair of his birth, but does not specify that he is to be handed over to anyone. He can be put on a train and watched until he is across the border, but once across that imaginary line, unless the Canadian police are waiting for him, he is on his own. No Canadian will cross, he might just as well be a free man, except that he will be hunted unceasingly."

"But," concluded the attorney, "whether extradition is refused or granted, there is not the least doubt that Sid Murrell will stand trial in London on the charges which are hanging over him—and that before very long," he added, as an afterthought.

PROMISED PORTFOLIO.
Canadian Press Despatch, Ottawa, June 22.—J. E. D. Anjou, M. P. for Rimouski, declared at a meeting here last night in the interests of J. A. Pinard, Liberal candidate in East Ottawa, that F. Wellington Hay had said if the Liberals were victorious in the coming elections Mr. Pinard would receive a portfolio.

EXAM QUESTIONS REFLECT EFFECT OF WORLD WAR

History Papers Test Knowledge of London Pupils of Late Conflict.

INCLUDE ECONOMICS

The public school examinations being held this week in London are noteworthy by reason of the effect of the late war, that is noticeable in the questions set in some of the papers in history and composition.

There is also a very modern and up to date side to some of the questions showing that the men who set the papers are abreast of the times. In the modern history paper set for the work of the upper school students are the following:

1. Give an account of the policies and achievements of Bismarck up to the establishment of the German Empire in 1871.

Trace Social Progress.
The effects of modern industrial development and the progress can be traced in the following questions in the same paper.

(a) Describe the important changes which have taken place in India since the mutiny. (b) Trace the development of responsible government in Canada. (c) Discuss one of the following topics in relation to the industrial revolution in England: "Mechanical inventions"; "Changes in social conditions"; "Political results."

The war takes precedence again in these in the same paper. "Describe the origin of the triple alliance and of the entente." Outline the most important military events of the Great War up to and including the battle of the Somme.

This modern history paper set for the upper schools is naturally topical and it would be a condensed education for the average man in the street to be made to work out the answers. Here are questions that should be asked in the rain. (a) Discuss the characteristics of present day literature in England. (b) Discuss the political and economical situation in Germany following the Great War. (c) Discuss the various types of modern socialism.

The English composition for the upper schools includes questions on the possibilities of "the aeroplane in times of peace," "the modern magazine," "developing the possibilities of electricity in the home," and a last question requiring some imagination from the pupil, an essay on "the power of the rain."

which is partitioned by another demanding the use of further imagination, "the story of the rightful duke." As you make it, it might have been told by himself after his return from exile.

Describe Industrial Revolution.
The middle school papers are arranged so as to cover as much of the history as possible. The British history are questions such as, "Give the location of the following: (a) London, (b) Paris, (c) Rome, (d) Paderborn and explain the importance of each in the Great War." Describe the industrial revolution in England in the eighteenth century. (a) Explain how Great Britain became involved in the Great War. (b) Describe the part played by the British fleet in the Great War. (c) What is the league of Nations? Give an account of its chief aims. There is a very topical appeal in this, the last question in the paper.

8. (a) Describe Gladstone's attempt to settle the Irish question. (b) What were the causes of the Crimean war?

(c) Give an account of the Congress of Berlin, 1878.

The Middle School paper on English composition asks for essays on "Safety First in Motoring," the respective thrills in country and city life, and whether municipalities should establish and maintain public places of amusement.

German has its full share of the work set in all the papers, so that when business opens up with "Deutschland" there should be some Canadians who are able to find their way about in the search of the elusive "mark."

The examinations are held in two centres. There are 382 Middle School pupils and 197 Upper School entrants sitting in the Central Collegiate, where School Inspector Greer is in charge. In the South London Collegiate, where George A. Wheable is looking after the work, some 100 boys and girls taking these examinations. The examinations, much to the joy of everyone concerned, came to an end on Wednesday. The weather has been too hot to give the pupils a really fair show on the work. The results are expected to be fully up to the usual high standard.

OFFICES DESERTED, STAFF IS ON PICNIC
London Life's Big Family Is Spending Day at Tashmoo Park.

The offices of the London Life Insurance Company have been deserted this morning, because the entire staff, numbering into the hundreds, have escaped in an ideal manner the heat of the city and are at present enjoying themselves amid the beautiful surroundings of Tashmoo Park on the River St. Clair. The occasion is the company's annual picnic.

The large party left London this morning for Sarnia at 7 o'clock, a time when the air is still pleasant with the cool breezes of the night, and the special was met at Sarnia dock by a chartered steamer, which conveyed the picnicers on their last lap to the scene of the frolic. The special will return to London tonight at 10 o'clock.

WILL BOYCOTT SWISS.
Associated Press Despatch, Moscow, June 22.—As a result of the assassination of Vasil Vorovsky, soviet representative at the Lausanne peace conference, Russia has decided to boycott Switzerland.

TRIBESMEN WORRY SPAIN.
Associated Press Despatch, London, June 22.—Spanish alarm on the Tizazza, Morocco, front report that the tribesmen are again gathering near the Spanish lines, says a Madrid despatch to the Times. The Spaniards continue to reinforce their position around Taflet.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL PRESENTS SERIES OF RESOLUTIONS

Urge Federal Government Pass Bill Making Adultery Crime.

DOCTORS PRESENT

Special to The Advertiser. Halifax, N. S., June 22.—The National Council of Women got away from dull reports this morning and into the more exciting region of resolutions submitted for discussion by the various local councils.

Toronto opened the session with a resolution presented by the local council president, Mrs. J. Wesley Bundy, resolving that the National Council again petition the federal government to have adultery recognized as a criminal offence. Dr. Margaret Patterson made a strong address in seconding the resolution, declaring that such a move as the Chief Constables' Association are looking to the N. C. W. for support in the matter, and that the N. C. W. in the eyes of the world if they regarded this crime in any other way. The motion was passed with one dissenting Halifax voice.

Prominent Women.
The meetings are drawing more prominent Canadian women each day. There are now five doctors of medicine, namely, Dr. Ritchie Englund, Dr. Margaret Patterson, Dr. Glorvill, Mrs. and Dr. E. Brison, head of the Halifax Home for Defective Children; Adam Short, two doctors of law, Dr. Carrie Derrick, of Montreal, and Mrs. Willoughby Cummings of Toronto, while Halifax's own woman doctor of philosophy, Dr. Eliza Ritchie, was the luncheon speaker today, giving a scholarly address on art.

Objectionable films, billboards and printed matter upset the schedule and tranquility of the meeting.

Want Censorship.
Much that was obscene in reading matter was revealed, but effective methods of censorship and suppression seemed lacking. Mrs. Adam Short pinned her faith in the commissioner of customs to ban outside objectionable matter. Mrs. Smillie of Ottawa declared the home was to blame for the morbid appeal which exists for objectionable reading matter.

"If a book is off color there is a great run on it," was Mrs. Atterton Smith's opinion. Dr. Carrie Derrick declared that a close censorship of books and literature other than obscene, was in the hands of the British freedom of speech, and would bring about a reign of oppression such as exists to such an extent in the United States. Home education and the teaching of the facts of life in the homes were advocated by Professor Derrick to bring about a more healthy condition.

VETERANS TO PROTEST SENATE'S ACT ON PENSIONS
Canadian Press Despatch, Vancouver, June 22.—Those in charge of the agenda for the Dominion convention of the G. W. V. A., opening here July 6 have decided to stage a demonstration against the Canadian senate for its action in refusing to assent to the commonsense legislation based on the report of the royal commission which investigated pensions and other matters affecting retired soldiers.

The veterans regard the senate action as playing politics with the health and happiness of ex-service men, and they are a unit, according to reports from all parts of the Dominion, in condemning the action.

PEONY EXHIBIT OPENS IN FLORAL SPLENDOR

and there a blossom of extraordinary size or coloring standing out, have clothed the interior of the Horticultural Building, with practically overwhelming beauty the utmost tenderness. The workers handled them as though each petal were fashioned of Sevres china.

Delightful Atmosphere.
Over all the preparations for the final grand opening there was spread a most delightful atmosphere. Working until 1 o'clock this morning, the members of the Horticultural Society showed not the slightest sign of either fatigue or the oppressive heat. The exhibition hall was kept cool and sweet with perfume, and in the rear building, where the flowers were arranged, proud enthusiasm discounted any momentary discomforts.

At noon the out-of-town registrars were by no means complete. Visitors who took advantage of the noon hour to view the flowers in their first glory were numerous. The Queen's Park gates were flung wide for dozens of motorists, and the easy flow of street car assured a throng of visitors.

Exhibitors have triumphed over the unfavorable weather conditions of the past week. So far, no untoward incidents have hampered progress. The display of peonies is easily the equal of that at the international exhibition last year—the decision of the judges this afternoon may prove it the superior. With a temperature promising to be cooler than that of yesterday, weather conditions are excellent. The one factor which remains to make a complete success of the first annual civic peony show is rousing local support, and this is practically guaranteed.

DISCUSS EVENTS RELATING TO WILL IN DELORME CASE

Bishop Rheame Testifies to Witnessing Document Composed in Boy's Room.

ALTERATIONS MADE

Canadian Press Despatch.
Montreal, June 22.—Events surrounding the making of Raoul Delorme's will were discussed today at a public hearing in the courtroom of the Superior Court when Father Delorme entered the dock for the second day of his trial on the charge of having slain his half brother.

Throughout the hearing, Father Delorme maintained a rapid fire of answers to the questions of the jury, and his counsel, Allyn Tache-reau, K. C., and C. H. Cahane, K. C., between times he scribbled voluminous notes on the thick pad of paper he uses and at times even called aloud to his counsel.

The first witness heard was Bishop Rheame, who, as rector of Ottawa University, had witnessed Raoul Delorme's will in the city of Ottawa on the 12th of May, 1921. The bishop was followed on the stand by Adrien Belanger, the notary in whose care the will was ultimately entrusted. Belanger testified that he had witnessed the application for the will immediately following Raoul's murder.

Bishop Testifies.
According to Bishop Rheame the boy was in his room accompanied by Father Delorme and both appeared to be composing the will together.

The entire testament was subsequently read aloud in the room prior to the witness affixing his signature to it. Later Dr. Renaud of the university was called in also as a witness.

The witness at the request of the prosecution testified toward the prisoner to identify him. As he did so, Father Delorme smiled pleasantly and said:

"Thank you."
Allyn Tacheureau, K. C., senior counsel for Delorme, examined the witness as to the date of the will and the preparation of Raoul's will and the date upon which he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

The first date was February 5,
1921, and the second, February 8,
1921. On the latter date, Delorme and the prisoner visited Raoul in the hospital when slight alterations were made in the will.

Mr. Tacheureau said: "Now if I should prove to you beyond doubt that Father Delorme was in Montreal on Saturday, February 5 and on February 8, 1921, instead of being in Ottawa, would you correct your statements?"

Before the witness could reply,
Mr. Cahane objected and pointed out that should the witness be shown to be mistaken he would undoubtedly correct himself. But it would be necessary to prove the point instead of asking an hypothetical question.
The objection was sustained.

BELIEVES O'CONNOR SHOULD GET REWARD

Question Expected To Be Disposed of at Finance Committee Meeting.

Subject to numerous delays the question as to the payment of the city's $500 reward for "information that led to the arrest and conviction of Leon, the firebug," will be definitely considered at the next regular session of the finance committee.

Mayor Wenig stated today that he could see no reason why this matter could not be dealt with then. He also holds to his opinion that from evidence already submitted by the city police department that the reward should go to the man who O'Connor of the R. C. R.

When the question came before the aldermen at their last meeting it was referred back to the finance committee, the point being raised that an East London barber had laid certain information also. But the mayor does not believe that this will interfere with the award of Sgt. O'Connor.

SUCCESSFUL GARDEN PARTY.

A very successful garden party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M.
G. Angles, 35 Grey street, last evening by the members of the Circle of Home Industry of the Southern Congregational Church. Rev. H. B.
Storey and Miss S. Osborne were joint conveners of the program committee, and the conveners of the various booths were as follows: Home cooking, Mrs. Penne; cold drinks, Mrs.
A. Rumball; lemonade, Mrs. R. Rod-ice; cream, Mrs. W. Hilton; peanuts, Mrs. M. Cardman; candy, Mrs. R. Anderson; Miss E. Parry and Mrs. J.
Hawke. Mrs. W. Powell acted as general convenor of the successful affair. A delightful program of music was supplied by the Harmony
Five during the evening.

The funeral will be held Monday from her late residence. The services will be conducted by the Rev. A. E.
M. Thomson of Centennial Methodist Church, and interment will take place in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Blazing Heat Can't Deter Three of City Candidates

and the workers were only too ready to read their contents.

J. M. Donahue's Meeting.
J. M. Donahue, the "beer and light wine" exponent, declares that if the Liberal candidate has been correctly reported, she "has been unfair in misrepresenting his stand in the present election."

Addressing the employees of the Empire Brass Manufacturing Company at noon today, Mr. Donahue dealt extensively with Miss Armstrong's criticism of his platform.
"I regret that the advent of the Liberal candidate into the local fight has added to the general confusion, and not tended to clear the air," the moderate candidate declared. "And I am extremely sorry that she has been misinterpreting my platform. I have never stood for a return to the open bar. I believe that there is a middle course between total prohibition and the open bar."

"Miss Armstrong has adopted a very unfair attitude if she has been correctly reported. Then she has not attempted to answer my argument that the master minds in science, art, literature and so forth were not rabid prohibitionists. She simply remarks that they were. She simply remarks that she doubts it."

"The continues and says that science will advance. I say I have never will have to advance a great deal because it can eliminate the law of fermentation and insure total prohibition."

Vote For Principle.
"Never mind the candidates in this election. Vote for the principle involved. Do not think of anything but the course of legislation you would like to have during the next four years. If I were to be elected, Sir Adam and I would not be defeated.
They would be vindicated, but the rural districts would be told that they cannot control by legislation the conduct of the cities and towns."

"Both Dr. Stevenson and Sir Adam Beck should have adopted my stand.
I have no quarrel with either of them.
They should have taken my stand.
As far back as April I announced my stand, and the other candidates have had every opportunity to consider and discuss the O. T. A. I would not have been a candidate if one of them had undertaken my platform."

"But I am here today because of the absolute refusal of the other candidates to do this or to give you a definite clear-cut answer as to what they would do with respect to the O.
T. A."

Dead Against O. T. A.
"I stand against the O. T. A. as it is today. I believe that where there is a demand there should be a legiti-mate supply. I do not mind acknowledging that there has been plenty of influence brought to bear upon me from more than one quarter in an effort to have the O. T. A. I would not have been a candidate if one of them had undertaken my platform."

"It has been said that I am in this race to split this vote or that vote—the Labor vote or the Liberal vote. I am not here to split the vote of any one party in particular. I believe that there is only one big issue in this election—the O. T. A. All the parties know this is the issue, but they have dropped it like a hot cake. They are afraid to tackle it."

In conclusion, Mr. Donahue declared he was not standing alone, as there were outspoken men in all the urban centers taking the front in the fight.

Mr. Donahue was fairly well received, although hit was self-evident that but on portion of the audience was supporting him. There was no heckling or obstruction of any nature.

Dr. Stevenson Talks.

Dr. Hugh Stevenson addressed the employees of the McCormick Manufacturing Company during the noon recess today. The meeting took place on the baseball diamond to the east of the factory, and a large crowd of the workers listened attentively to the Labor candidate's speech.

Dr. Stevenson was introduced by William Tite, of the Labor Temple, who stated that not only had Dr.
Stevenson and his colleagues passed labor legislation favorable to the working classes throughout the province, but that the measures which he sponsored were directly beneficial to the workers of London.

In opening his speech the Labor candidate said he was asking for support not on any mythical promise of what he might do for the worker of his family, but on the record of what the Drury government had done for the worker, and what he as a member of that government would like to be able to continue to do.

Dr. Stevenson drew the attention of his listeners to the fact that he was responsible for the stopping of the wholesale firing of motorists without just grounds by the county constables and petty justices of the peace.

He said that no matter what government is in power the highways are,
and will continue to be a necessity, and the expenditure on highways will be a permanent feature of the budget. He said that the government was very moderate when it considered the quality of the roads and the immensity of the undertaking.

Defends Road Costs.
He stated that the expense was justified by the fact that American tourists brought over one billion dollars worth of business to the province in the last year simply because the highway held out the prospect for them to tour the province.

The improved compensations act
he credited to the late government, and said that this is recognized by labor men all over the continent to be one of the most favorable pieces of labor legislation ever passed.

The "widows' pension act and the working of it," he stated, "will in time do away with a lot of the orphan ages throughout the province, and instead of raising children like cattle in herds, most orphans in future will be reared in their own homes, the only proper environment for children."

In speaking of the O. T. A. he mentioned that the old parties are ready to sponsor temperance and that the ground has been broken by the Drury administration.

"The Conservatives," he said, "have not yet said definitely whether they would uphold the O. T. A. as it stands, and the 1918 referendum has proved that the people of the province do not want it in any other form."

JOHN T. ABRAHAM.

WESTERN MEDS ADD NEW HONOR TO THE COLLEGE

Only One Graduate Fails To Pass in All Tests.

STAFF IS ELATED

Although almost 100 doctors of this province who presented themselves for the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons' examinations early in June failed to obtain a license to practice medicine, but one failure is reported of the 24 graduates of Western University Medical School who were examined here. While Western University has always stood high in these examinations, the standard set this year is regarded as a signal honor in view of the fact that thirty per cent of the candidates throughout the province failed on the examination.

While many complete failures are noted in the official report, scores of candidates fell down on one subject only, and these will be allowed to rewrite in their respective subjects at supplemental exams next fall. Such is the case with the lone Western graduate who failed in medicine, and he will be permitted to write a supplemental exam.

Peculiar Feature.
A peculiar feature of the standard set by Western is the fact that the unfortunate student during his medical course, and his failure is attributed to nervousness during oral and written tests conducted by out-of-town examiners.

Members of the medical faculty and those interested in the new Western University Medical School are elated that Western students maintained a standard of almost 96 per cent while the general standard of the 233 candidates was approximately 70 per cent.

Dr. F. R. Clegg of this city, who is an examiner of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, stated today that this year's Western graduates set a standard which has not been approached for years.

Following are the successful doctors whose work on the examination qualifies them to practice medicine in any part of Ontario as fully-fledged doctors: Carmen Mitchell, Lloyd Beatty, Sarnia; Vincent Ambrose Callaghan, London; Lorne Garfield Cargill, Paisley; Douglas

ALDERMAN DOUGLASS
TAKES SHORT HOLIDAY
Ald. Leonard Douglass, chairman of the board of works, has gone up north, where it is cool, for a holiday. Ald.
Peter J. Watt is acting chairman in his stead.

After the election, Ald. Watt is also going away for two or three days when his place will be taken by Ald.
Edmund Hayden.

REPORT BONAR LAW HAS ONLY SHORT TIME TO LIVE
Associated Press Despatch.
Halifax, June 22.—The Halifax

ceived a special cable from London stating that Bonar Law's condition is so serious that doctors give him only a few weeks to live.

WILL DELAY DISCUSSION OF CIVIC EMPLOYEES' PAY
Using one of the mayor's favorite expressions, the city hall employees will "have to keep their shirts on"
for another week or so.

His worship announced today that it would be impossible to get the aldermen in special session tonight to discuss proposed increases in remuneration. The future is hopeful.
"Next week sure," promises the mayor.

LONDON MAN CALLED TO PROVINCIAL BAR

Fergus E. Murphy Joins Ranks of Lawyers at Osgoode Hall.

Fergus Edward Murphy, prominent young Londoner, and son of Major T.
J. Murphy, K.C., and Mrs. Murphy, was called to the bar at Osgoode Hall yesterday, before the Hon. Justice Masten. The earlier years of Mr.
Murphy's career as a student at law were spent with his father's law firm, Murphy, Gunn & Murphy, and during his three years at Osgoode Hall, he studied with the well-known firm of Toronto counsellors, Hellmuth, Cat-nach & Meredith.

POLICE COMMISSIONER

glass from the tail light of his automobile.

"These birds will steal anything they can lay their hands on," commented the chairman disgustedly.

REPORTS SIR ADAM BECK IS MERELY INDISPOSED
Sir Adam Beck is reported to be slightly better today, according to advice from Dr. G. C. Hale, his medical advisor. Dr. Hale said today that he had advised Sir Adam not to take any active part in the campaign as long as this hot weather lasts.
"Sir Adam is not," he stated, "seriously ill, only indisposed." In view of this condition of his chief no plans for meetings have been made by the Conservative headquarters.

Three States In U.S. Shiver While Balance Swelter

Frost in New Mexico Freezes Water in Drinking Troughs—Deaths From Excessive Heat Reported in Michigan.

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, June 22.—Three states experienced unseasonable cold yesterday while other parts of North America sweltered. Relief came this morning to many sections which have been suffering from the heat wave, but in others there will be no break, forecasters say.

Scores of deaths and numerous prostrations have been caused by the hot weather. High temperature records were made in many cities. The most notable contrast was furnished by New Mexico, where a severe frost made it necessary to break ice in watering troughs in some sections so live stock could drink. The mercury dropped to 28 degrees above zero on the Arizona desert. Generally cooler weather was experienced in North Dakota.

In the eastern states more than 43 deaths were recorded from heat.
Factories and schools generally were closed because of the intense heat.
Baltimore and Washington saw the hottest weather in the histories of the two cities when the mercury climbed to 100 degrees.

The heat wave was broken to some extent in New York as falling mercury and rising winds late last night and early today dispelled the torrid weather. A drop of 19 degrees from yesterday's high peak of 93 was reported by the weather bureau this forenoon and brought relief to New York cities' millions.

Detroit reported that the heat wave claimed three victims in Michigan during the last twelve hours, and there were numerous prostrations.

SAYS CITY BENEFITS
BY THE IMMIGRATION Adjutant Smith Declares Salvation Army Brings Out Only Best Types.

The pamphlet entitled "Transplantations," issued by General Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, appealing for $500,000 to assist him in carrying out his scheme of "empire migration work," will, according to Adjutant Smith, head of the immigration department of this city, aid London greatly in securing more of the much-wanted Scotch and English immigrants.

"At the present time," said Adjutant Smith, "we could give work to twice the number of immigrants that came over from the old country. The type of men and women who come over under the Salvation Army are superior, and the people of London and this district realize this."

Already 91 women have come to London this year and have secured positions as domestics in the homes of the city. Three more parties are expected to come the last week in July with about 14 women and 12 children.

Judging from the demand for these immigrants, they are making good in this country, and it is the feeling of the people of this city that General Booth's appeal will be greeted.

The Salvation Army keeps in touch with its charges for a period of four years after they reach here, and in very few cases do the women and children who come out complaining.

Many of the immigrants go to the west, but the greatest demand for this kind of labor is here in Ontario.

The ordinary house fly is reported to be the cleverest of insects, its intelligence surpassing that of the ant and the bee. An authority asserts that it can think 100 times quicker than a man.

Wm. Barber of London Declares Tanlac Is Without An Equal.

William Barber, a well-known capitan living at 237 Horton street, London, Ont., still another of the thousands who have found the Tanlac treatment a safe and sure road back to health, strength and working efficiency, says:

"Tanlac fixed me up in such a shape a year ago that I haven't lost a day from work on account of sickness since. I gained nearly 10 pounds in weight besides, and now I feel better in my life than I do right now. I lost my appetite, got to when I often went all day without a bit of food, and lost a great deal of weight."

"Well, when I got Tanlac I had been able to strike a lick of work for several days, was pale and thin, and my face was broken out with boils.
But Tanlac put me on my feet in a little while, and purified my blood, so I haven't even a pimple on my face since. I can't help talking about Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37,000,000 bottles sold.

West Middlesex Liberal Declares It Public Duty To Defeat U. F. O. Rule

Charles M. Macfie At Komoka Avers Farmers "Played Government"

RAPS LARGE SALARIES

Declares Col. Carmichael Should Have Had Data and Prevented Expense.

Special to The Advertiser. By a Staff Reporter.

Komoka, June 22.—Charles M. Macfie, Liberal candidate for West Middlesex, held a very successful meeting last night, at which he was assisted by Dr. Gilbert Bice of Delaware, president of the West Middlesex Liberal Association, and Alexander Darrach of St. Thomas.

Ex-Reeve Daniel Campbell occupied the chair. Dr. Bice in his address stated that as president of the local Liberal organization he felt proud in having a man of Mr. Macfie's calibre to work for. He stated that although the Liberal candidate was not generally known throughout the riding, this was probably on account of his modesty. He stated that those who knew him were all agreed that he was a man well fitted to represent the riding. He stated that after hearing him speak both Liberals and Conservatives in the riding would see him in with a substantial majority.

Mr. Macfie then took the floor and for an hour and a quarter entertained the audience with a remarkably concise and clear denunciation of the late government, scoring the Drury administration not only on its road policy, but in practically every department of government with the exception of the O. T. A.

He stated that the coming election is a totally different affair to the election of a generation ago. In those days, he explained, there were two parties, one standing for tariff reductions and the other taking a somewhat opposite stand in retaining the tariff in at least an unaltered condition. Today, he pointed out, there are not two parties fighting for supremacy, but four parties, each struggling to obtain the right of expressing their views in the government of the province.

"In West Middlesex, where the U. F. O. is conducting a particularly bitter fight against both of the old parties, it behooves both Liberals and Conservatives to unite in the common interest of defeating the U. F. O. candidate," he declared. "I have experienced the spectacle of a number of men who should know better, in the act of 'playing government,' simply because they were permitted to do so through a political accident."

"With the hope of bringing this farce to a close, the Liberal party appeals to you in this election for your support."

Speaking in general terms he described the Liberal party as an association of individuals who prided themselves on their sound and progressive citizenship. He stated that the U. F. O. had stated that the Liberals and Conservatives had thrown the Drury government overboard. "To this I hope we can add that we most certainly have," he said. "I do not only our privilege but our duty to overthrow a premier who accepts his instructions and dictation from J. J. Morrison or any other single individual outside the members of his own cabinet."

He explained that the Drury Government came into power on the reaction of an overstated extravagance of the old parties. "Drury promised that with the U. F. O. in power this waste would cease," he said. "The people are now in a position to state to just what extent the Farmer Government has tried to economize. The mention of Mr. Drury and economy in the same breath is a joke."

"What have they done toward reducing this pledge of economy?" he asked. "They have economized to the extent that our provincial debt has increased 140 per cent, and if this is economy you have had it in plenty in the last three and a half years."

Speaking of the Drury government and hydro, the speaker pointed out that, as was ordinary, the government was represented by one member on the hydro commission. This member was Col. Carmichael of Collingwood. He explained that Col. Carmichael understood his business the hydro investigation would have been unnecessary, as the member on the commission should have posted himself on hydro affairs and had the data at his finger-tips. Instead of this, a commission had been appointed, which had already cost the province in the neighborhood of $100,000, and, if they are returned to power, will likely be greatly increased, he said.

Speaking of highways, Mr. Macfie asked what the necessity was that prompted the Drury government to make the roads 82 feet in width rather than 66. This alone increased the cost by hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In speaking of the accusations which were formerly hurled at the old party governments, he said that he did not believe that they were terribly amiss. He stated that he knew that they never attained perfection, but held that they legislated to the best of their ability, and always in the face of a purging and balancing opposition. The former governments were infinitely more removed from class, and this, he pointed out, could not be said of the Farmer-Labor government.

Regarding the U. F. O. statement that the opposition had an opportunity to block any expenditures they thought extravagant, Mr. Macfie stated that Drury and his following would be better employed justifying their expenditures than in trying to excuse them on the ground that they got past the house unobstructed.

Explains Embargo. Speaking on Doherty's claim of bringing an end to the British cattle embargo, he said that it was a well-known fact that the British House had promised that the embargo would be removed as far back as 1917. He read an extract from a letter of ex-Premier Lloyd George which clearly stated that through the interference of Doherty and Lord Beaverbrook in an English by-election, the lifting of the embargo was prejudiced and held back until it was granted by the British themselves in their own interests.

The Liberal candidate also touched on the fact that the Drury government had increased the provincial civil service salaries to unprecedented levels.

He said that while the government had promised roads for the good of all the farmers, the fact stands out that the greatest part of the money for highways was spent on the main tourist routes and for paving which would be borne by the municipalities themselves.

"Drury's statements that the 'roads will cost you nothing,' is a farce. The money, no matter how raised, is raised within the province, and the ratepayers in the province must shoulder the expense," he said. In concluding, he stated that the O. T. A. was not an issue in that it was adopted as a mandate from the people and is upheld by all four parties.

Alex. Darrach of St. Thomas then spoke in corroboration of the candidate's speech, and went into some of the minor details of patronage on the part of the Drury regime, and put particular emphasis on the automobile purchase as an instance of preference and extravagance.

He asked for the united support of both parties to the end that this waste must cease through the defeat of the Drury government.

PRESENTS FOUR MEDALS CAPTURED BY LONDONERS

A recital by advanced students of J. Parnell Morris was given last night in Dundas Center Church before a large and appreciative audience. Those taking part were Grace Lillian Needham, Gladys Shildrick, Lily Francis, Lucy McMeenan, Mrs. W. F. Maguire, Margaret McGregor, Helen Garbutt, Annie Ward, Leon Adams, W. G. Morris and Bailey McMurray. A feature was the presentation by Rev. W. E. Millson of the medals won recently at Toronto by Mrs. C. Dixon Reid, Miss Needham, Mr. McMurray and Mr. Adams.

MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER FOR WOMEN.

Women everywhere are trying all kinds of beautifiers, only to find that their effects are transitory. The first requisite of beauty is health. Without it the steps lag, eyes are lustreless, the complexion appears beneath the skin, the complexion becomes sallow, and almost invariably the underlying cause is some ailment peculiar to women. There is a very inexpensive remedy for this condition in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for nearly fifty years has been relieving women from some of the worst forms of female ill. Why not let it restore you to health and beauty and the joys of living?—Advt.

WEST MIDDLESEX W. I. ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR

Appin, June 22.—The district annual meeting of the West Middlesex Women's Institute was held in the new Methodist Church, Kerwood, Wednesday. The morning session was taken up with the reports from the several branches. The district president, Miss A. Walker, No. 3, Mossa, presided. Mrs. J. M. Brunt of Kerwood, secretary-treasurer, gave the financial report, which showed the total receipts for the year to be $13,940.27. Strathroy reported 67 members. Appin 58, Delaware 40, Wardsville 22, Newbury 17, Mount Brydges 30, No. 9, Mossa, 28, Kerwood 36, and Napier 22.

The election of officers for the coming year was then proceeded with. Mrs. John Mackie, past president, was chosen to preside. The election results are as follows: President, Mrs. de Gex, Kerwood; vice-president, Mrs. Dr. Glen, Wardsville; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Brunt, Kerwood; auditors, Mrs. Kerswell and Mrs. Douglas, Strathroy; district representative, Mrs. James Lotan, Appin; financial representative, Mrs. John Macfie.

The meeting adjourned to the schoolroom, where the Kerwood ladies served a banquet for the delegates. The afternoon session was opened by words of welcome from Mrs. Hall, and were replied to by Mrs. Mathews, Delaware. A delightful solo by Mrs. Herman Galbraith, Appin, was followed by the report of a convention in London by the delegates, which was very interesting. Miss Mitchell of No. 9, Mossa, sang sweetly.

Rev. Morehouse, Kerwood, spoke a few words on the duty of women regarding the franchise, urging all to use their might for the right. Miss Armstrong gave a pleasing piano and mouth-organ selection. Miss M. V. Powell delivered a delightful address along the line of citizenship, of the federation, and urged the branches to be loyal to it.

CONDUCT ANNIVERSARY SERVICE AT SOUTHWOLD

Special to The Advertiser. Southwold, June 22.—The anniversary services at Southwold Presbyterian Church on Sunday were a great success. Rev. W. R. McIntosh of London took charge of the service, assisted by the Tempo choir. There was a large turnout to both services. On Tuesday evening a musical entertainment was given by the King Street Presbyterian choir of London. The ladies of the church entertained the choir to a chicken supper.

Had Constipation for Six Months Was Relieved by Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills

A free motion of the bowels daily should be the rule of everyone, then there will be no constipation, sick or bilious spells, heartburn, foul breath, sour stomach, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular, removing the constipation and all its allied troubles.

Mrs. R. C. Hunt, Port George, N. S., writes: "I have been troubled by being constipated for the last six months. My tongue has been terribly coated, so much so that it made my breath bad. I was talking to a friend about it, and she advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, which I did, and now I am perfectly well. My tongue is as smooth as it was before I got that way, and I owe it all to your Pills, of which I only used two vials."

LABOR MEN RESIGN OWING TO MACBRIDE

Delegates Brown and Bowring of Brantford Refuse To Indorse Candidate.

Special to The Advertiser.

Brantford, June 21.—The indorsement of M. M. MacBride as the candidate of the Trades and Labor Council has caused a slight division in that body and resulted in the resignation of Delegates A. G. Brown and Bowring, the former being the president, and the latter for many years its secretary. The resolution of indorse-tion carried nine votes to two.

At the meeting Mr. Bowring moved a protest against Tom Moore, as president of the Trades Congress, writing a letter indorsing one of Brantford's candidates for the Legislature, pointing out that he was not recognized as a labor candidate. This was not sustained, and was followed by a lengthy resolution indorsing the said candidate, introduced by Delegates Crooks and Seigney, and recognizing the candidate's claims to the introduction of much labor legislation.

Mr. Brown ruled that as a matter of precedent and as Mr. MacBride was not a trades unionist, the motion was out of order. Delegate Fisher objected, and the ruling was not sustained. President Brown and Bowring then put in their resignations.

PRIME MINISTER KING GETS HARVARD DEGREE

Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King Is Lauded By Professor Lowell.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Cambridge, Mass., June 22.—The prime minister of Canada, Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, headed the list of recipients of honorary degrees at Harvard University Thursday. President A. L. Lowell conferred on him the degree of doctor of laws. In conferring the degree, President Lowell said:

"William Lyon Mackenzie King, prime minister of Canada, another of our sons who went forth to bring order in the perplexing problems of labor, and who now directs the destiny of our near neighbor and good friend."

Mr. King was graduated from Harvard in 1938 with the M.A. degree. He had previously been graduated from the University of Toronto with the degree of B.A.

FRIDAY, JUNE 22, 1923.

He is Trying to Face Both Ways.

The Christian Guardian, in its issue of June 20, 1923, makes the straight charge that Hon. Howard Ferguson's attacks on the O. T. A. have all the earmarks of an attempt to please the enemies of temperance legislation in Ontario.

A week ago the Christian Guardian seemed to consider that some of Mr. Ferguson's many statements on the O. T. A. were in part satisfactory, and gave him credit for anything he had the courage to say.

Now, however, the course of Mr. Ferguson has been so openly antagonistic to a fair enforcement of the O. T. A. that the Guardian registers its complaint in a way so direct that it cannot be mistaken.

Quoting some of Mr. Ferguson's phrases, where he accused Mr. Raney of hypocrisy, the Guardian proceeds:

"We recognize that some of Mr. Ferguson's virulence may be merely political, and we must make allowance for the fact that we are in the throes of a hot political campaign. . . . In making these savage onslaughts upon Mr. Raney, Mr. Ferguson necessarily leaves himself open to the suspicion that, NOT FOR THE FIRST TIME IN HIS HISTORY, HE HAS HIS EAR TO THE GROUND, AND HE IS AIMING TO PLEASE, NOT THE MEN WHO PUT THE TEMPERANCE ACT UPON THE STATUTE BOOK, BUT THE MEN WHO HATE IT AND DESIRE ITS REPEAL. To us these vicious attacks upon Mr. Raney look very much like a cheap attempt to win the applause of the liquor-loving fraternity by attacking the one man who has been most responsible for the enforcement of the law."

It is of no small significance that the official paper of the Methodist Church should feel it its duty to openly rebuke Mr. Ferguson, and to show that it doubts the sincerity of his utterances when he seeks to speak for the O. T. A. Mr. Ferguson has made a poor job of his attempt at facing both ways.

In sharp contrast to all the floundering of Mr. Ferguson on this question is the plain, straight statement of Miss Armstrong in London, that she is in favor of the O. T. A. Electors have grown weary of utterances that are made with the idea of making easy their dual interpretation.

The Christian Guardian has lost faith in Hon. Howard Ferguson, and so have a great many others.

Farmers as Businessmen.

A correspondent, writing to The Advertiser, claims he stopped shipping to commission houses some time ago because of the unsatisfactory returns. He had no way of checking up the statements sent to him with payments for his produce. He would get a statement showing so much allowed him for produce, so much taken off for freight, cartage, waste and commission, and the balance would be sent him in the form of a check.

"On many of these shipments," he says, "I really lost money," so I decided it would pay me better to change my methods, produce less of the crops that I had been selling to commission houses, and attend to the selling myself nearer home.

"I believe farmers are losing money in the way they sell," he continues. "The next step forward for agriculture in this country is going to be when a number of us come together and form a strong enough company to control our produce until it gets to the consumer. I believe this can best be done by those in certain districts where crops and seasons are much the same, working together. This has a better chance of succeeding than trying to take in too large a district, although the same final means for disposing of the produce could probably be used by many districts. I am convinced that by getting down to a business basis in this way we are going to get farther ahead than by any political action. Political action has only tended to keep farmers apart who need to be working together. We have looked to politicians long enough, and our one big chance now is to look to ourselves as business men."

Our correspondent also claims that by co-operative selling farmers can do much to get away from the present situation in which they have no word in deciding what they shall be paid for produce.

He is not urging that the consumer does not pay enough, but is determined that the man who produces is entitled to get as near as possible to the total amount the consumer pays. And in that contention he is on solid ground.

The Exits Are Always Open.

The suggestion that Ald. Wilson resign in ward two and Mayor Wenige resign also, in order to bring on a contest as to whether a city hall shall be built on the McCormick section of Federal Square, should not be taken too seriously.

The people elected Ald. Wilson at the last voting, and they also elected Mayor Wenige. It is the duty of the city council to go ahead and attend to business.

If Ald. Wilson feels that the building of a new city hall is such an iniquitous thing as to cause him to resign that is entirely his own affair, and he probably knows how to take the proper steps to vacate his seat. Mayor Wenige should not even stop long enough to argue the point with him.

Mr. Nickle Pins on a Badge.

Mr. W. F. Nickle, Conservative member for Kingston, appeared in a Brantford park to speak on behalf of M. M. MacBride, who is posing as an independent.

This last-minute badge pinning by the Conservatives is more laughable than it is convincing.

In the last election they had their own candidate in the field and opposed Mr. MacBride. This year, when many Conservatives feel that Mr. J. W. Shepperson, the Liberal candidate, is the proper man for them to support, Mr. Nickle rushes in and anoints Mr. MacBride as the only acceptable candidate.

It is very doubtful if the Conservative blessing will be noticeable when the ballots are counted.

Too Much Closing of the Eyes.

A prominent woman worker of the London Conservative Association, speaking at Woodstock, "paid a high tribute to Hon. Howard Ferguson for his stand on the temperance question."

Is this not straining a point? It is all very well for Mr. Ferguson, just on the eve of an election, to scamper in behind a temperance policy and appear in dry constituencies as an ardent admirer of such legislation.

These last-minute changes are not taken seriously by the people at large. They can see through them very readily.

Mr. Ferguson has been an unfair critic of the O. T. A. all through. He has made it as hard as possible to secure a fair enforcement of the law. He was behind Mr. Herbert Lennox in charges against the O. T. A. that took up 16 days before the public accounts committee, when the whole list of charges was found to be without foundation. Mr. Ferguson, notwithstanding the fact that 90 per cent of the men employed by the provincial police are returned men, refers to them continually as "thugs," "from the gutters of immorality," etc., despite the fact that the charges before the committee were found to be false.

Only a few months ago in British Columbia Mr. Ferguson made the announcement that he was going to bring out a policy that would please everybody, both dry and wet.

Speaking at Hamilton last winter he said he had no policy on the temperance question, preferring, as he explained, to let the other parties go ahead and show their hands first.

When he started on his election campaign he was not out many miles from shore when he began to take soundings, and his political line showed that attacks on the O. T. A. were not good business with many electors. So he makes a right-about-face, and even goes so far as to claim that he had a great deal to do with the O. T. A. in the first place.

The London woman speaker who appeared on the Woodstock platform and commended Mr. Ferguson "for his stand on the temperance question" must have swallowed pretty hard before those kind words had a chance to come out.

Her view is the view of a Conservative politician and not the view of the average woman who is free enough from political bias to look at a provincial problem and see in it a great moral issue.

Even The Times Gets Emotional.

Something must have happened in the office of the New York Times. As a general thing its editorial page is a model for calm reasoning, dignified terms and informative thought.

But here is how it blazed forth the other day: ". . . In Washington, though not at present, sit two houses of the longest-winded sputters, growlers, howlers, shriekers, wailers, sentimental screamers, inveterate, unwearied, continuous, miscellaneous tongue-lashers that ever made the seas of sound vibrate and toss and heave."

After an editorial writer has seized an axe and smashed in the roof at Washington it will be an awful job to get him to take a stubby lead pencil and go to work again.

With the thermometer trying to blow its head off, it is not easy to think of next winter. Remember, in four months from now you will be poking around in the coal bin and wondering why you left it off so long.

THE PERSECUTION OF FERGUSON.

From the Hamilton Herald (Independent)
Howard Ferguson is making loud complaint that he is being persecuted. The public criticism of his administration of the department of lands and mines as a member of the Hearst government, says the Conservative leader, is persecution, and his enemies are cruel and unfair.

This is not heroic. Nor is it good policy. A brave fighter, with a good cause to defend, welcomes criticism, even unfair criticism, for he knows that by simple statement of the facts he can turn the weapons of his enemies against themselves.

But what Mr. Ferguson calls persecution is merely publicity. His opponents simply state the facts relating to his administration of his department, as brought out by sworn testimony in official investigations, as brought out by the facts. He cannot deny that under his administration the province lost many hundreds of thousands of dollars of revenue through negligent and improvident management of its timber resources—revenue which the Drury government is now recovering. If the statement of facts like this is persecution, then Mr. Ferguson is being persecuted.

REGRET AND SELF-CONDEMNATION.
Against thee, thou only, have I sinned.—Psalm li, 4.
There are two strange and powerful judgments which form themselves in our minds, from time to time, whether we will or no.
The first is the judgment of regret.
"I am sorry that such and such a thing has been done. I wish that I had acted differently. I wish that so and so had not done this."
It is a silent confession that some things are which had better not be, and which need not have been if we and our fellowmen were only a little more wise and true and faithful.
The second is the judgment of condemnation on ourselves or on others.
We can't help feeling "down on" some things because they are base and mean and cruel and unjust.
We despise them because we know we are responsible for them.
We can't be perfect, but at least we need not have been as bad as that.
We are to blame and we know it, because the voice of God speaking in our conscience utters the judgment of condemnation.
To be deaf to this is to be a dead soul.

WHY REST IS BEST AND IN BANISHING "PARESTHESIA"

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

One of the annoying symptoms now and then brought to the attention of every doctor is a "pins and needles" sensation in the hands and feet.

The extremities are numb, or they tingle, or they feel as if insects were crawling over them. Sometimes the sensation is described as a feeling "as if my feet had gone to sleep."

This is a disease or condition apparently suffered more often by women than by men. It is called "paresthesia."

In our bodies are special nerves called the "vasomotor" nerves. They control the blood supply. One set acts to dilate the blood vessels, and another contracts them. If you are embarrassed, your "vaso-dilator" nerves send down a message and the floodgates are opened. As a result your cheeks are flushed and you are blushing. On other occasions you are frightened. Then the "vaso-constrictor" nerves take charge, the blood vessels are contracted and your cheeks turn pale.

Paresthesia is a disorder of the vaso-motor machinery. The delicate power to balance has been disturbed. The hands and fingers and possibly the feet tingle and have abnormal feelings. The skin may be blanched or bluish in appearance.

The attacks come on now and then, appearing at irregular intervals. Putting the hands too much in cold water aggravates.

All disturbances in sensation should give warning to those who overwork or overworry. I think it may be said that such attacks as I have described are purely functional and, if the beginning, certainly, are of no importance.

The nervous system is very delicate and complicated. In its ramifications through the body it is like the telephone system of a great city. It is just as easy for it to get out of order as it is for the telephone system to become disturbed.

The telephone would soon be useless if the operators never slept or rested. So, if you would have a never-failing nervous system, you must have all the sleep you need, and an abundance of rest between times. Lack of sleep will break down the nerves sooner than any other enemy.

Elimination must be perfect. The kidneys and bowels must be active at all times.

No underlying factor of ill-health should be disregarded. Bad teeth or tonsils may be responsible for infections that have detrimental effects upon the nervous system.

Have your eyes examined to be sure the symptom is not merely a reflex.

Answers to Health Questions.
F. C. M. Q.—I am a girl 19 years old and am 4 feet 11 inches tall. Will you please tell me if I will grow any more and if so what exercises will help me?

A.—It is possible that you may grow for a few years yet. Stretching exercises, such as touching the floor with the finger-tips without flexing the knees will help you. If possible have a physical instructor outline a course of exercises for you.

M. C. Q.—Do you consider it advisable to reduce any one part of the body?

A.—No, it is not feasible to try to reduce any one part of the body. If necessary, diet and exercise. Join a gymnasium if possible, and exercise under the direction of the physical supervisor.

J. N. A. Q.—My tongue is coated all the time. Will you please tell me what to do for this?

A.—This condition is usually due to poor intestinal elimination. The only way to overcome this is to change your diet to one of greater elimination and to correct constipation. For further particulars restate your question and inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

J. S. Q.—When walking the balls of my feet are very sore. I have tried wearing arch supports, but they did not prove helpful. Can you tell me what to do for this?

A.—It may be that you have not been wearing the proper supports or shoes. Have your feet examined by an orthopedist and let him advise you regarding treatment.

TO THE EDITOR.

WEST ELGIN POLITICS.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—On June 25 the electors of West Elgin will be called upon to say who will represent them in the coming Legislative Assembly. Mr. Peter G. Cameron has been chosen by the U. F. O. L. P.; Mr. Horton by the Reform party and Mr. McDiarmid by the Conservatives.

It should be the duty of every elector before marking his or her ballot to carefully examine the record of each candidate. If Mr. Cameron, who has represented this constituency for the past four years, has been an efficient, capable and trustworthy servant, then it is the duty of the electors to return him as their representative. If, on the other hand, it can be shown that he has been inefficient, incapable, and a betrayer of the just interests of the people, then it is the duty of the electors to dismiss him and elect one of the other candidates.

In 1919 Mr. Cameron agreed to carry out the platform as laid down by the United Farmers, and laid great stress upon the main plank. "Equal opportunities for all and special privileges for none." Yet, in direct violation of this clause, he voted to pension the civil servants. His reason given was that his conscience told him to.

During the past four years he has drawn from the treasury of this province $8,800, $200 of which was secured by the nefarious means. Right here his conscience and his economy plea came into conflict, and again the prices of farm produce had fallen below the cost of production, was it decent, was it honorable of Mr. Cameron to turn on the highest honor his constituency could bestow upon him into a sordid provision for himself and his dependents?

Mr. Cameron has been a sturdy supporter of the broadening-out policy, a movement, had it carried, would have absorbed the U. F. O. into either of the old parties. He have destroyed its identity. Was not Mr. Cameron behind Mr. Drury in his efforts to wrest the Farmers' Union out of the hands of the United Farmers and make it a government organ to be used for political purposes?

In 1919 he was elected on the plea of economy. He vigorously opposed the extravagant road policy of the Hearst administration, and today we find him standing four square for one of the most extravagant road policies of this or any other country. He maintains that the spurious market for his standing four square for one of the most extravagant road policies of this or any other country. He maintains that the spurious market for his standing four square for one of the most extravagant road policies of this or any other country.

Did Mr. Cameron oppose the Biggs auto truck deal? Did he raise his voice in protest against Mr. Biggs paying $300 a year for a right-of-way across a farm to the Elgin-Glasgow beach where there is some gravel while the same right and privilege was accorded two fishermen at $15 a year, and this within seven miles of Mr. Cameron's home? Did he make any effort whatever to have the ministers and members of his party stand in the famous last-night party prosecuted?

West Elgin is one of the most intelligent electorates in the province and has been represented by some very able men, and it is unlikely that the intelligent electors will return as their representative a back-bench-warmer, a man who for four years has sat as dumb as the mummies taken from the tomb of King Tutankhamen.

Mr. McDiarmid and Mr. Horton are no strangers to the people, both were born and brought up on the Elgin farms and bear the name of being honest and reliable and are men of ability. These are the records of the three candidates, and from which the electors must choose.

VINDEX.

A BIT OF WORLD HISTORY.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—I have noticed that the suggestion of Bolshevism has been introduced into the election campaign once or twice, and as we all wish this election to be fought fair and the best to win, I would ask your permission to try and explain the reason to my way of thinking why Labor has suffered the slur of Bolshevism since the war. If we carry our minds back to 1919 we find the position of the British Empire one of great danger. She came out of the war with a per capita debt greater than the central empires. The value of the pound sterling was very low, and the cost of all the necessities of life were so high as to cause suffering, especially to the middle or professional classes, whose salaries had practically remained stationary during the war. Added to this we find that Great Britain had several armies in Russia, the upkeep of which was costing the taxpayers several million pounds a day. On top of this British statesmen were being urged on all sides to make war on Russia on a large scale, but while Britain was being urged to send millions of men to Russia, and also to police a few other desirable spots in various parts of the world, the other nations who were just as much interested as Britain, were content to do the shouting, while the old anti-British gang continued to sing the old sweet song about Britain's imperial policy, oil wells, etc.

What was the result? A movement was started, not only by the best elements of Labor as represented by the trade unions, but also by the middle classes, as well as the most thoughtful of the upper classes, who realized the danger Britain was in of being annihilated in the great war.

Fashions and PersonalsPort Stanley Moronet
Defends Her Conduct

The Advertiser Encounters Her as She Strolls Along the Board Walk, and Enters Into Conversation.

It was on the board walk at Port Stanley that the Advertiser encountered the moronette. The moronette was perhaps nineteen, and underneath her orchid tulle, her face was pretty and blonde and unmarred by thought. She wore black satin slippers, slightly rubbed at the toes, silk stockings with a high, meretricious glaze, a black cape with a white lining and a blue hat trimmed with a scarf of printed silk. Her make-up had been applied, not well, but much too wisely.

She belonged, quite unmistakably to society's outer circle. She knew nothing of the amusements of the rich. She did not frequent the tea-rooms or country clubs, and she wouldn't have known a masquerade from a symphony. And as she had no means of forming polite friendships, she was compelled, when in search of an evening's amusement, to adopt an expedient that is deplored by the formality of the well-to-do. She was "picked up." Being picked up is one of the privileges of the under-privileged.

The Advertiser and the moronette, finding themselves on the same bench, fell into conversation. And presently two hairless young men in white sweaters sauntered by. One of them surveyed the moronette with a questioning eye, but she had found company and returned the invitation stonily. And that was how the conversation turned to "picking up."

The moronette was untroubled by ideas, but she had a variety of experience. Being picked up wasn't any harm, she pointed out. Often you get a nice fellow and he shows you a good time all evening. If the picker-up proved to be agreeable and suggested meeting you outside the pavilion the following evening, and not inside, which argued too suspicious a thriftiness, he might be promoted to the status of boy friend.

The moronette had no idea of a "boy friend" and she didn't want to be his sister.

"You needn't worry about me, I can take care of myself," she said, not without dignity.

She Meets Critic.

It was some time before this tactical blunder was repaired. The moronette resented solitude. Later she told of having met a college fellow who had bought her a hot-dog, and then had lectured her for her part in the incident and had taken her home. He was evidently an earnest, experimental young man, who had set out for an adventure but had been overtaken by a reluctant respectability. He had urged her to abandon the board walk and standing in the way of sinners, and had congratulated her upon having encountered a gentleman, who was willing to regard the incident as closed. The moronette recited this academic adventure with justifiable indignation. For, after all, was the college fellow to set up a double standard of etiquette? And is a gentleman who buys a lady a hot-dog entitled to take advantage of the fact to criticize her standards of conduct?

"What do you talk about?" asked the Advertiser presently. The moronette stared. "What?" she said. "When you met these young men," explained the Advertiser, "what do you talk about?"

It was clear that the question was a profoundly astounding one. Conversation, it seemed, played no part whatever in these adventures. A young man who sets out to pick up a young woman on the board walk at Port Stanley is not out in search of intellectual companionship.

"Just a lot of hot air," she said presently. Just Color and Jazz. Conversation imposes a strain, and the adventure of picking-up is one of easy tolerances. Sensation and pop-corn, color and jazz, the touch of a sweated arm against a caped shoulder, the make the simple happiness of the picker and the picked alike.

"I and my girl friend used to come down every night last summer," said the moronette. "Gee, I wish the lake would get warm!"

The Advertiser left her sitting on the green bench, watching the lake as gray and inhospitable as October. Poor wistful moronette! Her taste is deplorable, and she undoubtedly constitutes that beginning of a social problem. But romance after all is in her heart. She has a rendezvous with summer at the Port Stanley board walk.

Miss M. Bilyea Gives Recital at Institute Assisted in Attractive Program by Miss G. Roedding and Miss Ruth Tanner.

An enjoyable recital was given at the Institute of Musical Art last night, when Miss Myrtle Bilyea, pupil of Charles F. Percy, appeared in an attractive program, assisted by Miss Gladys Roedding, piano pupil of Thomas Martin, and Miss Ruth Tanner, voice pupil of Miss Topley Thomas. The numbers throughout were artistically rendered to the delight of the audience. The program followed: "Break o' Day" (Sanderson), by Myrtle Bilyea; "Autumn" (Mozzkowsky), by Gladys Roedding; "Angels Guard Thee" (Godard), by Myrtle Bilyea; "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair" (Haydn), by Myrtle Bilyea; "My Heart" (Mignone), by Ruth Tanner; "Mignon" (Thomas), by Myrtle Bilyea; "Starlight" (Macdowell), "March Wind" (Macdowell), by Gladys Roedding; "April Morn'" (Haydn), by Myrtle Bilyea; "How the Whale Got His Little Throat" (Kipling), Ruth Tanner; "Mon coeur s'ouvre a ta voix" (from "Samson et Dalila") (Massenet), by Myrtle Bilyea.

TALBOT STREET LADIES' AID. Talbot Street Baptist Ladies' Aid, spent a very happy afternoon at Springbank Park yesterday, over 60 being present. The tea tables were prettily decorated with pink and white roses, and heavily laden with many good things. The capable committee in charge included Mrs. J. Peol, Mrs. F. Bryant and Mrs. H. Peol.

Zona Gale Says

"One of the Inflections of Life Is Interruption."

One of the inflections of life is interruption. Men and women miss achievement because they cannot withdraw to some center of gravity within which the shocks of daily intercourse with their fellows cannot reach them.

Sometimes the external world seems to plot to turn one from the chosen path, to settle to work and the battle begins: To keep the mind steady while trivial questions are asked and answered, trivial tasks demand to be done, trivial people come and go on trivial errands. It is as though a mischievous purpose momentarily animated the universe.

A long word for such forces is "centrifugal." They cause the mud to fly from the whirling rims of the automobile wheel. But the mud which clings to the hub is safe because it is on near the center. One can learn to dwell in the center rather than on the circumference. Peace is there! From the center, the relative unimportance of much that caused us concern on the circumference is apparent. There is access of new power.

Perched precariously on the circumference of life, we are obsessed by the material interests which are whirling round with us. On the center we calmly make a reappraisal of what we thought worth while coming to us. And there is a vast shrinkage in comparative values! Much that has been striven for is recognized as trivial, mean and cheap.

This center of gravity is often reached in illness or just before death. He values men and women, not for what they have given him, but for what he has been able to give them. For when he is at the center he knows that life is like a circle that goes out through the right and returns to the left.

Once on the center the power of the external world to interrupt is gone. One is no longer whirling on the outermost edge of a swiftly moving wheel. The disorganized personality is knit into a cohesive whole. Trifles come and go, but they cease to trouble. What are the various religions of the world but invitations, variously conceived, to move from circumference to center?

SIGNALING AT THE GUIDE CAMP.

One of the most interesting practical studies in guide work is the signalling. Here are two of the girls attending the provincial leaders' training camp at Huron College giving a demonstration. They are standing—Miss Katharine Rudolf of Toronto, and sitting—Miss May Woodroffe of St. Catharines.

Eyes Are Hidden. New York, June 21.—One of the newest hats here today is a helmet of soft straw, which comes so far over the eyes that it almost rests on the nose. This hat is saved from ugliness by a gracefully rolling brim and a high pyramid of ribbon which stands up at the back.

Gray-Tan Popular. New York, June 21.—There is a pleasing shade of gray now being utilized which is almost a tan. It is known as "field mouse." Shoes and hosiery in this tan-gray have a neat, cool appearance. The shoes often are made of kid, sometimes with a touch of black patent leather to give character to the soft shades.

The competitors in the second round for the Smart cup are: Miss Marion Beck, playing Miss Helen Baker; Mrs. E. H. Nelles, playing Miss Jo Belton; Mrs. G. W. Little, playing Mrs. E. L. Williams, and Mrs. Ronald Harris, playing Mrs. C. H. Hill.

Mrs. Justin of Brampton is a guest with Mrs. J. L. Huffman, Waterloo street. In honor of her guest Mrs. Huffman entertained at the tea house this week. Mrs. Justin is returning to her home Saturday and will be accompanied by Mrs. Huffman's mother, Mrs. McCallum.

Miss Clark of Scotland and Miss Guillon of England, exchange teachers, who have spent the past season teaching in London, accompanied by Miss Dockstader, also of the local teaching staff, are leaving shortly for the coast. Miss Guillon will remain in the west next year, and Miss Clark will return to her home in Scotland in the fall.

Miss Marjorie Jenkins was the guest of honor this week of a miscellaneous shower given at the home of Miss Mildred Pocock, King street, when the hostess entertained the members of Mrs. John Garbutt's class of the Dundas Centre Sunday school. Miss Jenkins received many attractive gifts, and later a dainty supper was served by the hostess.

Several hundred students and teachers of the Normal School enjoyed a garden fete on the lawn of the school yesterday afternoon. William Prendergast, the principal, and the teaching staff were cical, and a series of jolly games were enjoyed. Miss Neville, dean of women, was in charge of the delightful affair.

A charming affair of next week will be the wedding of Miss Laura Stephenson and Major J. J. Shelgrove, which takes place Saturday at St. Andrew's Church. Miss Ruth Stephenson will be her sister's bridesmaid, and Mr. Stuart Webb is acting as best man. Another attendant will be little Miss Isabel Woods of Toronto, who will be flower girl. ### Attractive Garden Fete Is Held At The Beeches

C.E.F. Returned Chapter Gives Successful Garden Party At Home of Col. and Mrs. W. G. Coles.

The spacious grounds at "The Beeches," with lovely old rose gardens, a mass of bloom, quantities of peonies in gorgeous shades, with massive beech trees as a background, made an ideal setting for the garden party given under the auspices of the C.E.F. Returned Chapter, I. O. D. E., for which Col. W. G. Coles and Mrs. Coles graciously loaned their home in London South yesterday afternoon.

Prominent among the guests of the occasion was Miss Isabel Armstrong and Dr. Hugh Stevenson, candidates for the Provincial Legislature, and Mrs. Coles, honorary regent of the chapter, who were becoming good friends, was assisted in receiving the many guests by the regent, Mrs. B. J. Dunlevy, who was wearing a black and white hat; Mrs. Archie Beecher, honorary vice-regent, who wore a mauve frock and white hat; and the general conveners, Mrs. R. G. Collins and Mrs. Frank M. Dowell, the latter wearing a graceful gown of gray, with a gray and rose hat. Mrs. Coles also added a word of welcome.

Tea was served on the terrace at the south side of the house, at small tables, centered with baskets of daisies. The tea table, adorned with daisies, was presided over by Mrs. Allan McColl, Mrs. Frank Butler, Mrs. Thomas Coffey, Mrs. A. A. Campbell, Mrs. B. Smith and Mrs. H. A. McCallum. The daughters of the house, Miss Marian, Miss Kathleen, and Miss Kathleen, wearing a cocoa shade gown, assisted in serving. Also Miss Kathleen, wearing a cocoa shade gown, assisted in serving. Also Miss Kathleen, wearing a cocoa shade gown, assisted in serving.

A charming program was presented, including solos by Miss Marian Beck, who sang in a printed crepe

Grenfell Mission Fete Attracts Many Guests

Pretty Gardens of Mr. and Mrs. George Gillespie, Albert Street, Are Scene of a Happy Gathering Yesterday.

MISS CARRIE BLACKWELL, a popular young bride-elect of next month.

A smart and successful affair of yesterday afternoon was the garden fete given at the home of Mr. George H. Gillespie in Albert street, under the auspices of the local branch of the Grenfell Mission. The many guests were received by the hostess, Mrs. Gillespie, who wore a black and white gown. She was assisted by the president, Mrs. Arthur Little, wearing a becoming gown of navy blue and white, and a large black hat, and the first vice-president, Mrs. Sherwood Fox, who was wearing a white and black gown. The tea table was adorned with pink and white peonies. Assisting in serving were: Misses Jessie Gillespie, Gussie Wilson, Ruth Kingsmill, Marian Beattie and Margaret Harley-Brown. Mrs. W. S. Westland, who was wearing a white and black gown, acted as tea convener.

Miss Minnie Raymond was in charge of a fortune-telling booth, and lovely favors were offered. A sale at a stall convened. Mrs. Shaw-Wood, assisted by Mrs. Archie McPherson, Mrs. H. Soreaton and Miss Marjorie Reid.

TORONTO WOMAN CALLS TO GREET CANDIDATE

President of Home and School Federation Congratulates Miss Armstrong.

Mrs. Newton McTavish, president of the Toronto Home and School Federation, made a special point of visiting the city yesterday to bring her good wishes to Miss Isabel Armstrong, the Liberal candidate. Mrs. McTavish, who by the way is treasurer of the Ontario Women's Liberal Association, brought greetings from that organization, wishing Miss Armstrong every success in her campaign. "The women of Toronto are delighted that a woman of the mental calibre of Miss Armstrong should enter the political field," she said. "And we are all wishing her every success on election day."

Mrs. McTavish was not long after Miss Armstrong came to Toronto that we realized that she had the interest of the children and the home at heart. Proof of this interest was quickly demonstrated when she took an active part in the "Drink More Milk" campaign, inaugurated by the Toronto Child Welfare Council, and taken up by the Home and School Federation. As a result the underprivileged children of the Toronto schools now have a pint of milk given to them each morning and afternoon. We are glad to see that Miss Armstrong is giving other homes such a prominent place on her platform.

Mrs. McTavish, who is the wife of the editor of the Canadian Magazine, is herself, is closely associated with the press women of Toronto. And of Miss Armstrong in this connection, she says: "Miss Armstrong was exceedingly popular with the pressmen and women of Toronto, as she was with many other progressive men and women. When she left Toronto to return to London, the women's organizations lost one of their best friends."

Tommy Enjoys the Despised "Sissy Party" After All.

"Mrs. Parks, may Thomas go to my fresh clothing and shiny pumps and party?"

"Why, yes, Maude. I'm sure Tommy will be pleased to be asked."

Toward supper time Tommy, bearing signs of a well contested game, clattered in. "We got licked, all right. Four runs. Wouldn't get them on us only Pink's arm went bad. Saturday we'll fix them."

"Oh, Tommy," said mother with forced brightness. "You have an invitation to Maude's party. It's Saturday from 2 to 5."

"A sissy party? On Saturday? Not me," hooted Tommy.

"Now Tommy, I accepted that invitation for you and you have to go." Later that afternoon, he was in an ambush. Mother stood firm. "To the party he must go. He must learn to consider the pleasure of others."

"Huh! Shd only Pink's sister. Always butting into our fun. She makes me sick!"

Saturday dawned fair and lovely, but Tommy's face was grumpy. "Now son," said mother rising from the table and speaking briskly. "Step along now. We've a lot to do. Get me ready?" cried Tommy in alarm. "What are you going to do to me?"

"For one thing you have to be bathed, and I expect I shall have to give you a good going over, and you must wear the party all pink and shiny from your bath."

"Don't want to go at all," growled Tommy.

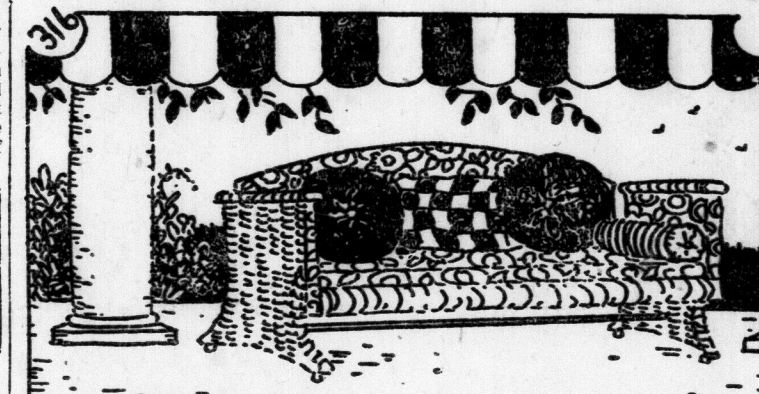

Mother bustled away to lay out the

THE GLIDING SWING.

The ingenuity and the unceasing activity of the manufacturers is a never-ending marvel to me. Not content with turning out the same old articles to which we are so accustomed, they are constantly hunting out new ways of improving all the furniture and equipment of our homes and making these homes more convenient and comfortable.

Have you ever gotten yourself nicely settled in one of the ordinary porch swings—the kind that hangs by ropes from the ceiling—and gotten all "settled" for a long time, only to find that you are reading or napping, and then had some one inadvertently brush against one end of the swing and start it twisting? To my mind, it is a great improvement of the old-fashioned swinging motion. There's only one thing to do then, sit up straight, put your feet on the floor, stop the swing entirely, and then lie cautiously down again.

WEDDINGS

TURNER-TALBOT.

One of the prettiest wedding ceremonies of the bridal month was performed at Croydon Memorial Church on Wednesday, June 20, when Laura, daughter of Mrs. S. E. Talbot, late of Clapham, London, England, became the bride of Herbert Turner, of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon Warner. The bride, who was given away by her mother, looked charming in a gown of white tulle, with lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of orange blossoms and white lilies. The groom wore a tuxedo and carried a sword. The wedding party included the bride's mother, Mrs. Talbot, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Turner. The reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where a large and sumptuous dinner was served. The wedding was a very happy occasion, and the newlyweds departed for their honeymoon trip to Niagara and other points east.

CASEMENT-SAYWELL.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Saywell, 32 Talbot street, St. Thomas, at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, when their youngest daughter, Mamie, was united in marriage to Jack Casement of Windsor. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. Rogers in the presence of about 30 guests. The winsome bride, who was wearing a white tulle gown, was given away by her father. The groom wore a tuxedo and carried a sword. The wedding party included the bride's mother, Mrs. Saywell, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Casement. The reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where a large and sumptuous dinner was served. The wedding was a very happy occasion, and the newlyweds departed for their honeymoon trip to Niagara and other points east.

Curling Iron Kills Hair; Silmerine Improves It

Many a woman loses the silky, fluffy and brilliant appearance of her hair through habitual use of the curling iron. Certainly it can do the hair no good to dry up its natural oil, since the life out of it, making it harsh, brittle and dull. And there's no excuse for that, now that it is known what can be accomplished by the silmerine method. Liquid silmerine really preserves the life, lustre and beauty of the hair, and the curling is perfect a natural beauty and most captivating. If you've never tried it, by all means procure a few ounces from your druggist and apply a little with brush just before doing up your hair. Liquid silmerine is neither sticky nor greasy, but quite pleasant to use.—Adv.

SIMPLE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxide powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply a mixture of dirt and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxide powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clear and in their natural condition.—Adv.

ASK FOR DEPARTMENT OF HOME ECONOMICS

Women's Institutes Wait On Premier King—Mrs. Geo. Edwards Home.

A department of home economics in connection with the Federal Government of Canada is what the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada are working for. A delegation from the Dominion Government, which has just closed session in Fredericton, N.B., waited on Premier King and the minister of agriculture on Monday of this week, suggesting that such a department be organized immediately. The women of the Dominion Government, and according to the convention in Fredericton, N.B., waited on Premier King and the minister of agriculture on Monday of this week, suggesting that such a department be organized immediately.

Mrs. George Edwards of Komoka, president of the Ontario Federation of Women's Institutes, was in the city for a brief period yesterday, and brought this interesting information with her. This energetic institute worker was on her way home from Fredericton after attending the Dominion convention there. She brings with her other interesting news of the accomplishments of the big gathering.

The strains of Lohengrin's "Wedding March," played by Miss Marjorie Robinson, in green canton crepe, the bride entered the drawing-room. Mrs. Cornhill, her uncle, who looked lovely in a gown of white canton crepe over saffron, fashioned in straight lines, with pearl trimmings, and a large white bow at the waist, led the bride to the altar.

The happy couple left on the 5 o'clock train for points east, en route to their home at North Bay.

STEVENSON-LANE.

In the presence of nearly 50 guests, the marriage of Mary Maud, daughter of the late Private J. S. Lane and Mrs. Lane of Chatham township, and Mr. W. H. Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Stevenson of Chatham, was solemnized Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stevenson. The ceremony, which took place in front of a beautiful embankment of palms and June blossoms, arranged in the drawing-room, was performed by the Rev. D. H. Marshall, of First Presbyterian Church, at 6:30 o'clock.

WYLLIE-CROSBY.

A large number of friends as well as invited guests assembled at the Anglican Church, Highgate, Wednesday afternoon, June 20, for the wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Crosby, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Crosby of Highgate, to Mr. W. H. Wyllie, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wyllie of Highgate. The Rev. Hugh G. E. Crosby, brother of the bride, was the officiating clergyman, assisted by the Rev. Mr. W. H. Wyllie, the groom's father, and the Rev. Mr. Powell, rector of the church.

Promptly at 3 o'clock the bride, who was escorted by her father, entered the church. She was met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Mr. Wilson Wyllie, who was groomsmen. The bride's attendants were her sister, Miss Jean Crosby, and a niece, Miss Margaret Crosby, who provided a very winsome ring-bearer.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. H. G. E. Crosby, accompanied by Miss Janet Wyllie, sister of the groom, and a few friends, the ushers were Messrs. Robert Schwartz and Emerick Crosby.

Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, a dainty luncheon was served, after which the happy couple left by motor for London, Toronto and other eastern points, amid much congratulatory and good wishes. After the honeymoon the young couple will take up their residence in London.

The church and home of the bride were very attractively decorated with quantities of peonies, syringas and ferns.

HOLMES-McINTOSH.

At 9 o'clock Wednesday morning the marriage was quietly solemnized of Leah, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. McIntosh, Chatham, to Mr. J. H. Holmes, son of Mrs. Thomas Holmes, Rev. A. S. Orton, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Chatham, performing the ceremony. The bride wore a navy blue and georgette and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Mr. and Mrs. Holmes left on a motor trip to Detroit, Cleveland and points west, and upon their return they will reside in Chatham.

CLARK-OGLETHREE.

At the Methodist parsonage, Dresden, Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock the marriage was solemnized of Hazel, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Oglethree of Dresden, to Alexander Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Clark of Chatham. Rev. Muxworthy was the officiating clergyman. The bride was becomingly adorned in French blue canton crepe with gold lace trimmings, and her flowers were Ophelia roses. After a motor trip to Cleveland and other points, Mr. and Mrs. Clark will reside in Chatham.

MUNRO-TRUAN.

Petrolia, June 21—A pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon in the Methodist Church, Petrolia, when Jessie Sloan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. I CAN AND I CAN'T.

One Mother says:

"A little boy with a habit of whining 'I can't' was helped out of it by a bit of humorous acting. An aunt would inquire: 'How does 'I can't' look?' She would cringe and tremble, and the child thought it a lark to follow suit. Then: 'How does 'I can't' look?' He would square his shoulders and puff out his chest. The effect was magical."

COLBORNE STREET W. M. S.

The meeting of the W. M. S. of Colborne Street Church was held yesterday afternoon with a goodly number present. The president, Mrs. Foster, presided. The business session was held at the home of Mrs. Foster, who took charge of the program, which consisted of an excellent report of the recent convention from the delegate, Mrs. John Hobbie, and a paper read by Mrs. (Dr.) Huffman, and a solo by Mrs. Isaac. It was decided that during the summer months the members should wear light-colored garments, which would be found useful for holiday children of the city.

HONOR BOWELL BRIDE.

The popular bride-to-be, Miss Pearl Wrancher of Bothwell was given a miscellaneous shower by the young ladies of Bothwell. Laidy Day's Ladies Church Tuesday night, Mrs. Alfred Johnston acted as hostess, and the guests numbered 30. Two tiny bridesmaids, Misses Margaret and McDonald, dressed as groom and bride, entered the room to the strains of the wedding march, bringing with them a galaxy of presents. Miss Wrancher, Mrs. Johnston served a dainty luncheon.

Lace Frocks In Vogue.

London, June 21.—The gathering of chic women for the race at Ascot proves the wide vogue today of the lace frocks. Nottingham lace is the favorite, dyed in any desired shade. Broad edgings of lace were fitted to dresses of celine, and there were capes of tulle covered with lace, as well as gold lace edged on parasols.

At the Movies Last Night

"Mr. Billings Spends His Dime."

Movies this week are light-weight summer material, suitable for warm weather. Attractions for the past day or two have centered not so much on the picture as on the pervading sense of coolness. Warmth of any sort, love, anger, or atmosphere, is not an asset.

"Sure Fire Flint."

At Loew's, Johnny Hines has also graduated — from the "Torchy" series into stardom. "Sure Fire Flint" is not exactly an improvement on the former series. Hines has a sprightly, agreeable sort of manner, but most of the laughs are due to the subtleties and the insertion of farce-comedy.

"Pawnticket 210."

In spite of the usual cramped style of the William Fox pictures, Shirley Mason and Robert Agnew do a great deal toward endowing "Pawnticket 210," at the Patricia, with a creditable amount of vivacity.

Built on the stage-play made famous by David Belasco, the picture has a great deal of excellent material, but hampered by the stilted Fox style it has been given in the Fox studios. It might have been made considerably more artistic.

Robert Agnew is having a successful career in the movies. Major on minor roles, he accomplishes with an equal amount of enthusiasm. Not the least attractive feature of "Pawnticket 210" is this engaging young man.

The fairly distinguished cast triumphs over the Fox people and their antiquated methods, with the result that one has a successful picture.

CHAPPLE MEETS U.F.O. CANDIDATE AT DORCHESTER

East Middlesex Liberal Vigorously Attacks Drury Administration.

FREEBORN DEFENDS

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.
Dorchester, June 21.—J. W. Freeborn, U. F. O. candidate for East Middlesex, and R. W. Chapple, Liberal standard-bearer in the riding, held a joint meeting here tonight, at which the political issues of the day were thoroughly discussed. It was agreed by the terms of debate that Mr. Chapple and his supporters should have 20 minutes each in which to state their case, that Mr. Freeborn should follow and that, at the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Chapple or a substitute should have 15 minutes in which to reply.

The late government had been a most extravagant government, Mr. Chapple began. Its revenue had been exceptionally high and it had spent it just "like a bunch of drunken sailors."

The Drury government, he charged, had not helped the man on the back acre. Men in more densely populated rural sections had obtained highways and byways.

He asked for the support of the electors, claiming the Liberals stood for the people, while the farmers stood for the farmers only. He declared the farmer, the businessman and the lawyer were needed in the government.

John Hetherington, formerly prominent in municipal politics, gave a short address. He stated he gave credit to Drury for the way he had handled the famous timber deals of the previous government.

A vote for Frank Boyes was a vote for Howard Ferguson and the timber steal, Mr. Hetherington added.

He advised the voters to be true to themselves and avoid being led away.

Freeborn and Chapple were both honest men, he believed, and he regretted there had not been an amalgamation of Liberals and U.F.O.

Dr. J. P. Rankin of London declared he had attended these meetings because it was the only fun he obtained from his taxes. Dr. Rankin favored a rational, economical and efficient form of government.

When the Drury government went into power it had pledged itself to economy, but had failed in its promise. Dr. Clifford Reason of London declared, "Its financial policy has been a ruinous one." He added, "He declared the government had spent more money on roads than on agriculture."

Would Enforce O. T. A.

The Liberals, Dr. Reason asserted, offered an economical government. He thought it was best that the city should be run on a business basis and the farmer should work together.

The Liberals, he continued, were pledged to maintain the O. T. A. and had a good reason for enforcing it.

Sam Charlton, speaking in aid of Freeborn, stated Mr. Boyes, the Conservative, might be a good man, but stated that he was not a Liberal. Mr. Charlton defended the Drury government and its expenditures, stating the latter was necessary.

Mr. Freeborn congratulated the previous speakers for their efforts and courage. "They have made the best they could out of a bad case."

Every government as far back as he could remember had been charged with being the most extravagant. This time both parties were unkind in condemning the U. F. O. for reckless expenditure.

Mr. Freeborn quoted figures to show the government had left the province in a good financial shape and had treated all with respect.

Hecklers Are Busy.

For the failure of the redistribution bill, he blamed the Conservatives, who blocked it two weeks. Mr. Freeborn discussed the Drury government and its right to re-election from every angle.

Every point from the cattle embargo to the Backus deal were included in his speech. He spoke mildly and at great length, but won the applause of the meeting.

Dr. Reason had some difficulty in replying to the U. F. O. speech by Mr. Freeborn. Several hecklers were exceptionally busy near the close of the meeting. Several times the chairman, Lou Crockett, had to call for order to give Dr. Reason an audience.

Frank Boyes, Conservative candidate, was not in Dorchester last night.

During the campaign he has not met the other candidates on a public platform, although he had been invited to do so several times.

COOLING BREEZES DRAW THROUGHS TO PORT STANLEY

Huron & Erie, D.S.C.R. and St. Peter's Chancel Choir Stage Picnics.

MANY NOVELTIES

As thermometers within the city limits register heat and still more heat, greater numbers of London's population are forsaking the summer pleasures of town and hurrying to the lakeside, where all facilities for keeping as cool as the proverbial cucumber are available.

Although the summer season is just beginning many picnics and private parties gave Port Stanley an extremely busy appearance yesterday, while the number that took shelter in the water was unusually large for this time of year.

Many auto owners took advantage of the fine stretch of highway between London and St. Thomas, and the equally fine gravel road from St. Thomas to Port and during the afternoon visited the lakeside for a plunge or a few hours in the shade, while the afternoon trains were generously filled with pleasure seekers.

Many novelties in the sport events featured the Huron & Erie picnic at Port Stanley yesterday. It was the general belief that the married men would win the tug of war from the bachelors, owing to the greater amount of cornucopia on their side, but the staying powers of the younger men were much to the surprise of the married men.

The single men won by two pulls to nil.

Following is the list of the winners of each of the events:

Kiddies' race, under 5—Bert Spry, Harry Sanham.

Junior race, over 5—Jack Spry, Lawrence Bell.

Chiclet popping contest—R. H. Cronyn, H. Hodgins, H. Grierson.

Shoulder-to-shoulder race—W. Sanham and B. Hunt, W. Simson and T. Russell.

Chasing the pigskins—Miss Dobie, Miss Stanley, Miss Kent.

Selecting a profitable investment—Miss Hogg, Miss Goodland, Miss Gibson.

"A run on the savings wickets"—Miss Hogg, Miss Goodland, Miss Gibson.

"Get there on time" race—Cecil Kemp and Miss Stoneman, Ker Salter, and Miss Gray.

"Advertising Huron & Erie and bringing home the bacon"—Ethel Goodland, Miss Stoneman, Miss Hogg.

Invererie Heights was an alluring spot indeed for the staging of the third annual outing of "P" Unit, department of soldiers' civil re-establishment, London, and the members of the staff turned out in full strength with their friends and families.

A special car on the 1:20 train carried more than 60 picnickers to Port, and shortly after their arrival at the lake the sports were held. At the conclusion of the events, all headed the call of cool Lake Erie, and for two hours bathing and swimming claimed the attention of everyone.

Supper was served on the heights, after which a soft-ball game was staged between two impromptu teams. The winners in the races were:

Men's 3-legged race—W. Leedham and J. Herring, J. Charles and E. Bottoms.

Men's 75-yard dash—R. Warden, W. Leedham.

Ladies' 50-yard dash—Mrs. H. Hutchinson, Miss Boyce.

Ladies' throwing the baseball—Miss Boyce, Miss V. Brazier.

Posterior, Miss Grievy.

Tieing the tie (open)—Mrs. E. Hutchinson and A. P. Todd, Miss R. Tingey and Miss V. Brazier.

Eligement race—Miss V. Brazier and W. Leedham, Miss R. Tingey and R. Warden.

The picnic committee was composed of G. Thomas, G. Newman, R. Warden, Miss P. Graham, and Miss M. Grievy.

Choir Picnic.

For the fine showing they made in the singing competition at the Boys' Hobby Fair, held recently, the boys of St. Peter's chancel choir and the St. Peter's chancel choir and the St. Peter's chancel choir.

A grand outing by Rt. Rev. M. F. Fallon, Bishop of London, and Rt. Rev. Mons. McElwain.

Fifty joyful, ruddy-faced lads boarded their special car at 9:50 in the morning and in a very short time had reached the shore, where a whole day of unlimited pleasure was awaiting them. The day was unmarred by accidents and the Christian Brothers who had charge of the picnic kept the boys entertained with many events and novel stunts, which had been prepared long in advance. All the forenoon was spent in the water, and after the youthful appetites had been satisfied by a bountiful dinner prepared by some of the lads' mothers, a ball game was staged between the choir and the sanctuary boys, the latter winning by 5 to 2.

Water sports featured the afternoon, and several swimming races were conducted, while canoeing was also enjoyed. Supper was served on Invererie Heights, and the lads, somewhat fagged out, but nevertheless contented, left for home at 8:45.

Some of the older folks who aided greatly in giving the boys the good time they had were Brother Stephen, director of the choir; Father Ferguson, Brothers Theobald, Gregory, Anselm, Raymond and Edwin, and Mrs. Kiley, Mrs. Donohue, Mrs. Foxworthy, Mrs. Gillies and Mrs. Meehan.

NEIL McLACHLAN.

Neil McLachlan, a well-known farmer of Alvinston, died on Thursday in St. Joseph's Hospital, aged 68 years. He was a native of Scotland and had resided in this country for many years.

He was survived by two sons, Herbert R. of Aberfeldy and Archibald of Manitoba, and two daughters—Mrs. R. Schamsky and Miss Ruby of New York City.

The funeral service will be held at the Presbyterian Church, where the remains were forwarded from the Oatman Funeral Home to Alvinston, where the funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon.

CHILD BREAKS ARM.

Barbara Allen, little 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Allen, 769 Hellmuth avenue, sustained a fractured right arm last night about 7 o'clock, when in some way she tripped and fell on her arm, breaking it. The unfortunate girl was removed to her home, where she was attended by Dr. Arthur Rankin. Miss Allen is a diligent pupil attending St. George's school, and in a few days would have been writing her examinations but for the untimely accident.

MASONIC SERVICE SUNDAY.

Very Rev. Norman L. Tucker, dean of Huron, will speak Sunday afternoon in Cronyn Memorial Church, where arrangements have been made for special Masonic services. The procession will start at 4 o'clock. All local blue lodge Masons are taking part in the parade. Mr. E. W. G. Quantz and Clarence E. Gilmore are in charge of the musical services, which are to be expected to be unusually fine. The Masons will meet at the Masonic Temple at 3:30, marching from there to the church.

ASKS SETTLEMENT OF FUSS ON U. S. SHIP LIQUOR LAW

Associated Press Despatch.

London, England, June 22.—In a temperately worded editorial reasonably appreciative of the position in which the American administration finds itself on the ship liquor question, the Daily Express today makes a plea for a speedy settlement of the problem.

"If the affair is allowed to continue along present lines," the newspaper says, "we may too easily drift into a veritable state of counter-irritation in which such big words as 'national honor' would be flung about. That would be deplorable and absurd. Common sense could find almost a hundred ways out of the difficulty. It is time to take one of them."

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when congested?" I urge you to try my Laxative Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address: Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 23 Caldwell Building, Toronto, Ont. Do it now!

THE two ailments that people generally regard as of the least importance are in reality the cause of most serious illness and of the greatest proportion of deaths. They are constipation and common colds. Many doctors believe that colds, tonsillitis, a touch of malaria will cause constipation, instead of constipation being their cause. The fact remains that you seldom have a cold without constipation, due to general congestion. The only way to avoid colds is to keep up your vitality. You usually catch cold in the winter if you are run down. Therefore in cold weather exercise more; eat more fatty foods; drink four to six glasses of water a day; keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

You are also less liable to colds if your system is free from the intestinal poisons of constipation, so empty the bowels regularly with a plain vegetable laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin. At the first sign of a cold, take a teaspoonful of Laxative Syrup Pepsin and the congestion will be gone in a few hours. Don't wait until the cold has a grip on you. Mr. R. H. Powell, of Gilbert Plains, Man., considers Laxative Syrup Pepsin the best laxative he ever used, and Mrs. Chas. Lewis, of Winnipeg, Man., uses it effectively for all the small ills of her family, such as constipation, biliousness, headaches, dizziness, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is safe to give to infants, and all children like it. Before you again resort to cold remedies containing narcotics try a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist will supply you, and the cost is less than a cent a dose.

STEVENSON HAD HIS CHANCE

Dr. Stevenson and his friends say he didn't have a chance in the last legislature.

If ever a public man had his chance and failed to make good, that man was Dr. Stevenson.

With the slim majority the Drury government had, Dr. Stevenson, with the help of one or two of his labor colleagues, held the fate of the Drury government in the hollow of his hand.

If Dr. Stevenson had had the courage, the understanding or the interest of the workingmen in London at heart he could have prevented the breaking of the agreement which enabled the street railway to filch $200,000 a year from the pockets of the workers of London.

Dr. Stevenson could have threatened to cross the floor of the House and he could have brought Drury to his knees in short order, because by doing so he could have wrecked Drury's government.

But what did Stevenson do? Whenever the government was in danger he was Johnny-on-the-spot to save Drury from defeat. He let Drury do as he liked with him.

Result is Stevenson has a record of four years of nothing. His accomplishments, all totaled, in the legislature have not resulted in any benefits to London or the workingmen of London.

Yet he whines that he did not have his chance.

Contrast his four years of stupidity and failure with the thirty years of successful service to London of Adam Beck. When Adam Beck went on the hospital board 30 years ago and could not get what he wanted from the council, he ran for mayor. And then he got the reforms wanted by the ratepayers.

All his life Beck has been a go-getter for the people. You never heard him whine that he didn't have his chance. If he didn't have his chance he went out and made it. He had the brain and the will and the driving force to get what he wanted, and always what Beck wanted was something for the people.

Old in service, wise in years, in the sunset of his life, London's grand man has today only one ambition, to bring Hydro, that giant public service to London and the people of Ontario, to its complete development. Adam Beck asks only one favor of the people he has served so long and so faithfully and so well—and that is the opportunity to finish his work for Hydro, and to place it where it will for all time be safe from marauding hands of self-seeking or ignorant politicians, such as now threaten it.

London will give Adam Beck this opportunity. Mind you, if his strength holds out, he will do it any way, in spite of all opposition, but his work will be made infinitely easier if he can do it from a seat in the legislature.

Next Monday when you go to the polls you will mark your ballot for the man who has served you well and truly for thirty years, and only asks to continue his work till the curtain rings down on his long and useful career.

DEATH OF CHILD BRINGS CHARGES OF MANSLAUGHTER

Arrest of John Easton and Otis Kemp, Chatham, Sequel To Auto Crash.

GIVEN $4,000 BAIL

Special to The Advertiser. Chatham, June 22.—John Easton and Otis D. Kemp, two merchants of this city, have been formally charged with manslaughter as the result of the death of little Florence Gregory, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. Harry Gregory, inches avenue, who died as a result of injuries received when cars driven by the two men collided at the corner of Harvey and West streets last week.

Evidence given at the coroner's inquest Wednesday indicated that both cars were traveling at a high rate of speed. Following the evidence given at the inquest and before the verdict of the jury was given Crown Attorney Colonel H. D. Smith had both men arrested and formally charged with manslaughter. They were subsequently released on bail of $4,000. The preliminary hearing of the inquest has been set for next Monday, and all evidence given at the inquest will in all probability be accepted as evidence at the trial.

DRURY IS FED UP WITH ELECTIONEERING

But Will Not Commit Himself To Opinion On Result of Campaign.

Special to The Advertiser. Chatham, June 22.—Cheerful optimism appears to be in evidence among the U. F. O. candidates, but none are so optimistic as Premier Drury, who stopped in the city to rest up Wednesday, following a meeting held in Dresden. When interviewed this morning Premier Drury declared that he had nothing to say to the public. He intimated, however, that he was fed up with the campaign, and was glad to have a few hours respite in Chatham. He would not commit himself by predicting what would happen on Monday next, merely saying that "It is up to the people of the province."

Hon. Manning Doherty was most optimistic regarding the issue. "What's doing along the battle front?" he was asked. "We're going fine," was his cheerful answer. "Lots of hot shot on the other fellow keeps things moving," he declared. "Any machine gun fire?" was the next question. "We've got a little," he answered. "Who's firing the heavy artillery?" "We haven't got much, but we're making a good impression."

WILL PROBE DEATH OF TORONTO WOMAN

Parents of Madeline Russell Believed Deceased Away On Vacation.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, June 22.—Investigation is being conducted by the police into the death of Madeline Russell, aged 25, of Fernanagh avenue, a fling clerk with the Bank of Nova Scotia, who collapsed and died suddenly yesterday afternoon in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Corson, on Manning avenue. Miss Russell obtained leave of absence from the bank on June 12, and told her mother that she was going to Port Dover for a week, but the first intimation that her family had that she was still in the city was when they were informed that she had died in the Corson apartment. Mrs. Corson left Miss Russell alone yesterday when she went to a hair dressing establishment, and when she returned the girl was lying across the kitchen table moaning. She immediately applied cold towels to the girl's head and then summoned a doctor, but when he arrived Miss Russell was beyond aid. She is said to have suffered from heart trouble.

LAMBTON INSTITUTES PLAN LECTURE SERIES

Government Speakers Will Address Members At Special Meetings.

Special to The Advertiser. Watford, June 22.—The Women's Institutes of East Lambton have planned a series of special meetings for this week and next.

Today the annual convention was held at Alvinston in the Presbyterian Church. The special speaker was Mrs. George Edwards, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario.

On Friday a series of special summer meetings opens in the local Methodist Church schoolroom, when Mrs. F. W. Watts of Toronto, special lecturer for the women's department of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, will speak on "First Things First in Institute Work."

The other meetings of the series will be held as follows: Tuesday, June 26, in the town hall, Warwick village; Wednesday, in the Orange Hall, Wroxeter; Thursday at Abernethy; Friday at Thorndale, and Saturday at Forest.

Mrs. F. W. Watts of Toronto will be the special speaker at each of these meetings. Mrs. Watts, in addition to her work as a special lecturer of the women's department, has for several years been an official judge of the Ontario Department of Agriculture to judge ladies' work, fine arts, daily products, etc., at the various fall fairs in the province.

CAMLACHIE LIBERALS HOLD BIG MEETING

W. G. Connolly, Liberal Candidate For East Lambton, Invades U.F.O. Stronghold.

Special to The Advertiser. Watford, June 22.—Wednesday evening W. G. Connolly, B.A., reeve of Watford, and Liberal candidate for the riding of East Lambton, invaded the U. F. O. stronghold of Camlachie and held a most successful meeting. This riding has been represented for the past four years in the Legislature by L. W. Oke, U. F. O. Mr. Oke is again the U. F. O. candidate, and is facing a three-cornered contest with W. G. Connolly, Liberal candidate, and W. R. Dawson, Conservative. Some of the farmers have been quite dissatisfied with Mr. Oke's record in the House, and some of the temperance leaders are dissatisfied because instead of voting for the O. T. A. Mr. Oke paired off when the vote was taken in the House, so it is impossible to predict the result of Monday's voting.

Yesterday evening at Camlachie there were many U. F. O. supporters present who had just returned from the hearing Premier Drury at Petrolia, and Mr. Connolly's straightforward stand on prohibition and the other issues of the election, together with his convincing arguments as to why a Liberal government should be returned, won him many friends. The local workers are convinced that many U. F. O. votes were won for Liberalism as a result of the meeting. Other speakers included Dr. Brown of Camlachie and Mr. J. Norman Newton of Parkhill, and all considered the meeting to be distinctly encouraging to the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Connolly has prepared a letter setting forth the main planks of his platform, which is going out to the voters of the riding as a last minute appeal to rally to the Liberal standard-bearer's support.

With Mayor T. H. Cook of Sarnia for West Lambton and Reeve W. G. Connolly of Watford for East Lambton, this county would be exceptionally well represented in the new Legislature.

Lillian Holt Wrote a Letter The Wash Came Off the Line

WANT AD TIPS

Want Ads Written Like Letters

Ten to one, you have never thought of this way of writing a Want Ad, and it is often a very good way, too. Write your message as though you were writing a letter to possible customers. Confine yourself to the number of words you feel you should use. Put your proposition just as you would express it, writing a letter to another. Then strike out the date line, and hand your copy to the Want Ad department.

A woman who did lace curtains for others in her home laundry followed this procedure. This Want Ad resulted:

"DEAR LADY OF THE HOUSE:

"This is to tell you I do all kinds of lace curtains and draperies. All curtains washed by hand with care, 35c; three pairs for $1. I hope, dear housewives, you will give me a chance to show you how nice I can do your curtains. Will call and deliver. Lillian Holt, 1204 Mariposa St. Phone Champs 56707."

The salutation was run as a head-line.

Now, that was a very easily-written Want Ad, because the advertiser, like most of us, had written letters all her life. Of all forms of literary expression, letters are by far the most natural. One might almost term the letter an instinctive literary form. We write letters as we talk.

And there is another advantage of this method of ad-writing. Besides being easy to use, the method usually results in mighty good Want Ads. Want Ads which are very intimate, personal; which, like a good letter, "get under the skin" of the reader.

This is what the lace curtains Want Ad did. It proved an exceptional puller, and the advertiser adopted it for permanent use, running it every week.

DRURY NEARS END OF REFUTATIONS AT ST. CATHARINES

Premier Defends Commission System and Ignores Tory Criticism.
EXPLAINS ROAD COST

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Catharines, June 21.—Hon. E.
C. Drury wound up his election campaign outside his own riding with a speech to between four and five thousand people in Montebello Park here tonight. Much of his time was spent in refuting in detail the criticisms of financial extravagance which had been leveled against his government.
The premier's voice is beginning to show the strain of the two or three meetings he has been holding every day for the past month. Last week and this week have been particularly strenuous, and the six meetings he plans to address tomorrow and Saturday in Halton will, from present indications, just about finish his voice entirely for public speaking.
The meeting here tonight was his third. In the afternoon he addressed an open-air meeting in the Niagara Falls district at Erie Beach. Then he spoke at a few moments early in the evening at Welland, coming to St. Catharines for the huge gathering in the park, where he spoke for an hour.
"This political campaign is really a projection of the record of the three parties in the House," declared the premier. "Nowhere has there been any mud-slinging by government candidates or any effort to deceive the people. Our candidates have tried only to inform the people and put them in possession of the facts."

Refutes Charges.
"I am going to deal tonight with financial criticisms which have been made against the government. I am not going to touch the Conservative criticisms which are too ridiculous to be considered, but will deal with the list of extravagances which the Liberals came out with in the Globe after I had challenged them.
"The first extravagance they charge is the commissions of inquiry costing more than half a million dollars.
What is our record? Commissions are the only means which the government has of inquiry—cabinet ministers not having the power to take evidence under oath. Our minor commissions cost much less than the

HORTON ATTACKS THE HYDRO POLICY OF GOVERNMENT

West Elgin Liberal Asks Fuller
Distribution of Power.
PREDICT VICTORY

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, June 22.—Speaking in the Engineers' Hall, A. E. Horton, Liberal candidate in West Elgin, declared that the municipalities interested in hydro should have direct representation on the hydro-electric
commission, and that the commission should be kept free from politics.
He regretted the fact that the hydroelectric chairman had accepted the Conservative nomination in London,
and suggested that Sir Adam Beck
come to some understanding with the Conservative leader with respect to radicals before he accepted the nomination. The speaker gave it as his opinion that the whole province
should not have to pay for a project benefiting but a small part of the province.
He advocated a fuller distribution
of hydro in the rural constituencies
of Ontario. This, he continued, would make life more attractive on the farm
and do much to help the young men of the province from emigrating to the United States.

Raps U. F. O. Rule.
The Drury government was strongly criticized for expending sums of money in many directions which could have been avoided. "A business
administration is required," said Mr.
Horton. "Economy should be practiced until it fairly hurts by members of the government." In concluding he declared he stood for progress in

West Elgin Liberal Asks Fuller
Distribution of Power.

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, June 22.—Speaking in
the Engineers' Hall, A. E. Horton, Liberal candidate in West Elgin, declared that the municipalities interested in hydro should have direct representation on the hydro-electric
commission, and that the commission
should be kept free from politics.
He regretted the fact that the hydroelectric chairman had accepted the Conservative nomination in London,
and suggested that Sir Adam Beck
come to some understanding with the Conservative leader with respect to radicals before he accepted the nomination. The speaker gave it as his opinion that the whole province
should not have to pay for a project benefiting but a small part of the province.
He advocated a fuller distribution
of hydro in the rural constituencies
of Ontario. This, he continued, would make life more attractive on the farm
and do much to help the young men
of the province from emigrating to
the United States.

Raps U. F. O. Rule.
The Drury government was strongly criticized for expending sums of money in many directions which
could have been avoided. "A business
administration is required," said Mr.
Horton. "Economy should be practiced
until it fairly hurts by members of the government." In concluding he declared he stood for progress in every line and walk of life, and want-

The Rights of Hydro

MUNICIPALITIES ARE AT STAKE

Premier Drury has clearly stated that Hydro must become an appendage of the party in power. That is, it must come solely under control of the government and the "municipalities have nothing to do with the appointment of the commission," must have no representation whatever on the board.

The Toronto Star, under the same ownership as The London Advertiser, demands that Sir Adam Beck be removed from the chairmanship of Hydro because he has dared to take issue with the Drury Government and become a candidate in this election as a champion of the municipalities, one of the most important of which is London.

Yet on January 8, 1917, the Star in an editorial under the heading "Municipal Control," said:

"Municipal control of power development at Niagara Falls was proposed by the Liberals in the Ontario Legislature. They moved an amendment to the bill for government control, the amendment providing that the municipalities now under agreements with the commission for the supply of power from the Niagara system, and such other municipalities as may hereafter become entitled to receive power from the said system, may acquire the ownership of the power development at Niagara authorized by the act upon terms and conditions similar to those upon which they are acquiring ownership of the transmission lines and distributing systems.

"On New Year's Day nearly all Ontario municipalities to whom the question was submitted voted by large majorities for MU-NICIPAL CONTROL. THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD HEED THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE, AND RETRACE THE STEP WHICH WAS TAKEN BECAUSE OF JEALOUSY OF SIR ADAM BECK."

Why does the Star today completely reverse its position, and that of the Liberal party in 1917, and support the contention of Premier Drury that Hydro shall become a tail to the kite of the party in power?

Why do Drury and the Star threaten to dismiss Sir Adam Beck from the chairmanship of hydro because he dared to demand the rights of the municipalities which the Star in 1917 told the government should be given to them by retracing "the step which was taken because of jealousy of Sir Adam Beck."

There is nothing in reason or equity or fair play to support the preposterous claim of Drury, the Star or The Advertiser that the Government should control the municipalities in their management of hydro.

The government is precisely in the position of a bank which loans money on good security. It is good business and within the rights of a lending bank to safeguard its loan by seeing that the money is used for the purpose for which it is loaned. Beyond that the bank has no right to interfere in the management of the business—has no right to hire and fire the men who run the business.

The government lends money to the municipalities, and the act provides every possible safeguard for the proper use of the money so lent.

But Drury and his supporters want to go further.
They demand that the municipalities shall have nothing to say about the management of their own business. They demand that entire control of hydro shall be in the hands of the government of the day.

Drury talks as though the money loaned to the municipalities was an actual capital expenditure of the government. It is nothing of the sort. It is merely a well-secured, absolutely safeguarded loan.

Adam Beck is opposing the pretensions of Drury,
the Star and The London Advertiser.

Once more, as on many occasions in the past, Adam Beck stands stoutly in the breach as the champion of the municipalities. London will back him to the hilt on June 25—back him with the biggest majority this city ever gave to a public man.

"MIDNIGHT"

A Mystery Story
By OCTAVUS ROY COHEN.

Carroll Keeps a Close Eye Upon the Departures of Society Women For Other Cities

Of course, he was convinced that William Barker knew a great deal about the crime and the events which preceded it. But Barker wouldn't talk—and he, Carroll, had no evidence that enabled him to bluff, to draw Barker out against his will.

The crime seemed to have lost itself in the sleazy cold of the December midnight upon which it was committed. The trails were not blind—there were simply no trails. The circumstances baffled explanation—a lone woman entering an empty taxi-cab, a run to a distant point in the city; the discovery of the woman's disappearance, and in her stead the sight of the dead body of a prominent society woman—that, and the further blind information that the suitcase which the woman had carried was the property of the man whose body was huddled horribly in the taxicab.

The woman, whoever she was, had either been unusually clever or unusually lucky—not a fingerprint nor a scrap of handkerchief. There was absolutely nothing which could serve as a clue in establishing her identity.

And yet, somewhere in the city—a city of 200,000 souls—was the woman who could clear up the mystery. Convinced that she was prominent socially, Carroll kept a close eye upon the departures of society women for other cities. And the public as a whole waited eagerly for her apprehension, for the public was unanimous in the belief that the woman in the taxicab was the person who had ended Warren's life.

The very fact of having nothing definite upon which to work was getting on Carroll's usually equable nerves. He had little to say to Leverage regarding the case, for the simple reason that there was very little which could be said. Leverage, on his part, watched the detective with keen interest, sympathizing with him, and exhibiting implicit confidence, but the men didn't agree upon the correct procedure. Leverage was all for arresting Barker, and charging him for the murder.

But Carroll shook his head.

"It wouldn't get us anywhere, Eric. We couldn't prove him guilty."

"No-o, but that don't make no difference. Of course, the law says a man is innocent until you prove he ain't, but that ain't what the law does. If we arrest this here Mr. William Barker, everybody's going to believe he's guilty until he proves himself innocent."

"And you think he can't do that?"

"No. At least, I'm gambling on this—Barker can't prove himself innocent without telling you he's guilty."

But Carroll refused to arrest the man. He knew that Leverage disapproved, but he also knew that Leverage was sportsman enough to let him handle the case his own way.

On one of his long strolls through the downtown section of the city—daily walks—David Carroll felt a hand on his arm, and heard an eager feminine voice in his ear.

"Gracious goodness! If it isn't the perfectly marvelous Mr. David Carroll!"

Carroll bowed instinctively. Then his lips expanded into the broadest smile he had experienced in 48 hours.

"Miss Evelyn Rogers?"

"You did recognize me, didn't you? How simply splendid! I'm awfully glad to meet you."

"So am I, Miss Rogers."

She dropped her voice confidentially.

"Will you do me a great favor—an enormous favor?"

"Certainly. What is it?"

"It's this. She looked around carefully. I told some of my friends that you were a friend of mine, and they don't believe it. They're over yonder in that ice cream place. Now, what I want you to do for me is to show 'em. I want you to take me over there and buy me an ice cream soda."

Carroll laughed aloud as he took her by the arm and piloted her through the traffic. He asked only one question:

CHAPTER X. A Discovery.

If Evelyn Rogers, amply clad as to fur around the neck, but somewhat underdressed as to lace stockings about the legs, had desired to create a sensation among her friends, she more than succeeded. She preceded Carroll into the place, her eyes glowing proudly, skirted the table at which her friends sat, then stopped abruptly, forcing Carroll to do likewise.

"Mr. Carroll," she said, sweetly, "I want to introduce you to my friends."

She called them by name. "Girls, this is Mr. Carroll, the famous detective!"

Carroll bowed in his most courtly manner, and assured them that he was delighted to make their acquaintance. He insisted that it was always a pleasure to meet any friends of his very dear friend, Miss Rogers.

The girls at the table giggled with embarrassment, and one or two of them made rather pallid attempts at repartee. Then Carroll and the 17-year-old found a table in the very center of the floor, even as a boy recognizing Carroll, appeared at his elbow.

The detective studied the list intently. Apparently there was no subject in the world more vital at that moment than the selection of just the proper concoction. Finally, he looked up and shook his head.

"I can't decide," he announced gravely. "They all sound so good! Walnut banana sundae; strawberry glory; peach Melba; chocolate parfait with whipped cream; and cracked walnuts; elegantine fizz—help me out, please!"

She, too, plunged into the labyrinth of his indecision. Finally, she emerged, smiling.

"Have you ever tasted a chocolate fudge sundae?"

"No-o, I'm afraid not."

"Well, it's just the elegantest thing—vanilla ice cream with hot fudge poured over it, and as soon as they pour the fudge—it's steaming hot, you know—simply scalding—it forms into a sort of candy, and then when they serve it—"

"I fancy you want one, too, don't you?"

"Oh, goodness me, yes! I always eat chocolate fudge sundaes. They're simply scrumptious—but they do take the wind out of eating—that is, after you've swallowed just the right number of calories—the rest don't do you a single particle of good. And besides, ice cream is healthy and certainly there's nothing with more nourishment in it than chocolate—unless it is raisins. I like raisins well enough."

Carroll turned to the boy.

"Two chocolate fudge sundaes," he ordered. "And put a few raisins on one of them."

He found the large eyes of the girl turned upon him adoringly.

"Do you know," she said, "that when I said the other day that you were the most wonderful, the most marvelous man in the world, I didn't even know how wonderful or marvelous you really were?"

"Thanks! And what caused the discovery?"

"The way you acted just now. Why, I'm sure the girls think that you've known me all your life—that we're engaged, or something."

Carroll was a trifle startled.

"Engaged?"

"Why not? You don't look like an old man."

The detective chuckled.

"Nor do I feel like one when I'm with you. You're deliciously refreshing."

"And you are—exquisite! Do you know, when I'm with you, I feel inspired to great deeds—to noble—cr—attainments."

"Really?"

"Uh-huh! Honest to goodness. And did I really help you by what I told you the other day?"

"You certainly did, Miss Rogers. There isn't a doubt of it."

She lowered her voice, and leaned

The CHILDREN'S HOUR

Mrs. Grouse Fools the Little Bears, But Not Wise Mother Bear.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

There's naught on earth nor up above That's greater than a mother's love.

—Old Mother Nature.

Up the Lone Little Path shuffled Mother Bear, and behind her, running from one side to the other, were her three cubs. Safe himself where in an instant he could pop into a hole under a great stump, Peter Rabbit now thought of Mrs. Grouse and her twelve babies. He knew that Mrs. Grouse was safe enough, for she could take to her stout wings. But what about those darling little babies? He knew that they were hiding under the brown leaves on either side of the Lone Little Path, each one flat on the ground and motionless. They would be safe from Mother Bear and the three cubs remained in the Lone Little Path.

But these cubs were running back and forth along the Lone Little Path and poking about in the leaves on either side. If they did that they would be almost sure to find one or more of them with their keen little noses. Even if they didn't find those babies they might step on some of them and kill them. Peter became very much worried. How dreadful it would be to have anything like that happen!

He looked at Mrs. Grouse, and was just in time to see her rise swiftly into the air. Usually when Mrs. Grouse flies she makes a loud whirr with her wings as she rises. She didn't this time. She went into the air almost silently. Straight toward the Bear family she flew, and then as she drew near them swung off to one side and dropped down to the ground. There she began to flutter and flop about as if badly hurt. Of course, this made a loud rustling of the dry leaves on the ground.

Of course, Mrs. Grouse's quick ears instantly caught the sound of those rustling leaves and she turned to look sharply in that direction. The three little Bears started for her, too, and of course they looked. They saw a large, plump bird apparently helpless and badly hurt. Instantly the three little Bears started for her. But Mother Bear didn't. Mother Bear sat up and there was a twinkle in her shrewd little eyes as she watched the three little Bears racing to see which would get to that fluttering bird first.

Such excited little Bears as they were! My, my, such excited little Bears as they were! Mrs. Grouse flopped and fluttered along the ground and acted for all the world as if one wing was broken. First one and then another of the little Bears would jump for her, and each time she barely fluttered out of reach. Mother Bear rumped for side to side as she watched, and it seemed to Peter Rabbit that she was grinning. Certainly she was very much interested, but she made no move to go help the little Bears catch Mrs. Grouse. Once Little Bear actually touched the tail feathers of Mrs. Grouse. "I've got her!" she squealed.

But she hadn't got her. Somehow Mrs. Grouse managed to flop along without losing even one of those tail feathers. The three little Bears got in each other's way. They ran and jumped and did their best to pounce on poor Mrs. Grouse, and time and again it looked as if they must succeed. But always Mrs. Grouse fluttered away.

All the time Mrs. Grouse and the three little Bears were going away from the place where the twelve baby Grouse were hiding. Presently they were out of sight, though Peter could still hear the excited little Bears as they tried to catch Mrs. Grouse. After a while Peter heard the distant roar of stout wings, and a couple of minutes later he caught a glimpse of Mrs. Grouse as she alighted in a tree on the hill above him. She had simply been fooling those little Bears and leading them away from where her babies were. (Copyright, 1923, by T. W. Burgess.)

Is This Heresy?

Dear Miss Grey:—By the time you have finished answering the letters from the Boxites on the subject of politics, you will be in line to run for parliament yourself, and I am sure all the Boxites would vote for "Miss Grey." I would myself, in spite of the fact that I very strongly disbelieve in women candidates for the legislature. Sometimes Miss Grey, I don't even think we ought to have the vote. But then, of course, I answer my own argument by saying that there are really some men who don't deserve a vote. But we've arrived at that stage of grace where we're privileged to cast a ballot, so I suppose we ought to use it to the best of our ability.

I'll be a traitor to my sex, if I say that I think women are prejudiced creatures. They pay a great deal of unnecessary attention to detail, which a man would overlook, arriving directly at the big issue. Somehow or another I think it needs a great deal more "intuition," women's much-valued gift, to arrive at a decision whether a man will make good in public office.

But then, I may be in the wrong. I am not married, and I have had no brothers, so I don't know very much about them. There is one thing I am convinced about. We ought to use our vote to put into office the men for whom we have acknowledged ourselves as loyal to the O. T. A. And that's one reason why I'm rooting for the U.P.O.

I have noticed many new names in the Mail-Box lately, not so many of the old familiar. I wrote myself three or four times before under a different pen-name, which I don't suppose any one would remember now, as it is so long ago. I believe like the letters from the new Boxites, but I like to see also letters from the old members.

JUST MARY ELLEN.

I shouldn't be a bit surprised if a flood of letters come to the Mail-Box about "Just Mary Ellen," accusing her of heresy and all sorts of things, when she declares she doesn't think the women ought to have their vote.

Little Flo's Letter.

Just at present, Lonesome Lue, the Boxites are giving vent to their feelings regarding the coming election, so that space in the Mail-Box column is almost at a premium, but, although I won't be able to print your contributions for perhaps a week or two, I am very glad to have them. It has been hard for me to find suitable poems for those who wrote for them, and these two will fill the gap quite nicely. If one of the Boxites would like to have me forward Lonesome Lue's poems, I am willing to do so. Little Flo's Letter and "Little January" are suitable for little tots' entertainments.

Pieces of Paper.

Has anyone the words of "My Buddy," which they would copy for the 70th Mascot? Your "pieces of paper" are most thankfully received, Mascot, and you may be sure Cynthia Grey refers to them by a name much more significant. Yes, I seem to remember your pen-name—shall we see it a bit oftener in future?

Doherty and England.

Dear Miss Grey:—Just in answer to one of the Boxites who is an ardent supporter evidently of the U. F. O. and, as such, parades the record of a virtuous stretch of government-unemployment, Hon. Manning Doherty is attacking himself on the back for having lifted the cattle embargo. Now then, Miss Grey, the newspaper accounts some time ago, equally as unprejudiced, told me that Hon. Manning Doherty did a great deal more harm than good by "baiting into" (for that's the only term to use) a purely local man, a campaign in England, thereby injuring the cause of the removal of the cattle embargo, as well as depreciating the home-folks regard for the statements of the dominions. Are we to judge all Hon. Manning Doherty's political statements by this one very evident "faux pas"?

"OF THE PEOPLE."

I shall be very glad to publish any answer which those supporters of Mr. Doherty among the Boxites will have to make.

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

A PAID ENTERTAINER.

A bite in the wind said winter was near, and hastening—therefore Lynette likewise hastened. She had still a mile to go—the Murry house stood far outside village bounds. Maybe Fate had set it there—maybe only it rode the wind. Certainly rapid motion changed Lynette from a thing of sprightly prettiness into a glowing beauty. It set damask roses in her oval cheeks, made her eyes diamond-bright, and strange to say did not in the least redden her nose.

Add, too, that with the pace came the grace of unconsciousness, which loosed her inner litherness ordinarily carefully repressed. Aunt Marcia held that a moderate mincing gait was the hall-mark of gentility—under her eagle eye, the girl never dared to let herself go.

Her errand was imperative—command made it so. Madame Marcia might have used the phone in place of sending her niece—but a messenger seemed to her mind more impressive—must be told, she was tired of seeing Lynette look wistfully at her new book, the while she was kept from reading it by things trivial and useless. Not that the older woman was consciously unkind—merely because she resented enviously, all unknowingly she did it, youth's capacity for happy absorption in anything outside itself.

The Murry house sat on top of a gentle rise. Half-way up to it, Lynette paused. My aunt has sent me to mule your uncle—your standing guard against solicitors? checked in her free stride by an argument in knickers and golf hose that suddenly barred her path.

"Don't tell me the bird has flown," she ran on. "If he would be so inconsiderate as to leave himself right now, he can't have been cruel enough to get well all on a sudden."

"No fear—even though he is a tough old bird," Edmund Murry 2nd grinned, staring at Lynette as though she were something strangely new. But she was—this transfigured Lynette had just the accent, vivid, appealing, wilful, wistful, that she had heretofore lacked.

"But I'm afraid it's rather a bad time to go at him—he's in the devil's own humor over something—I think it's the Marsh case. Better state your case to me—and let me be ambassador."

"Ma Cannon said only yesterday," explained Lynette, "Eddy-boy, he could make you believe black was white—and not half true."

"Eddy-boy!" the listener exploded. "I can't say 'damn,' of course—you know what I mean. The deliverance was intuitive—certainly Ma Cannon hasn't ever heard me as an advocate."

"How about a petitioner?" Lynette tantalized.

Young Murry gave her a look of deep injury, then broke out: "I see you want to quarrel with me as to the job of attorney. But you can't do it. Skim milk and a May morning combined have nothing on you for mildness right now. So whether or no it suits you, I shall usher you into the lion's den—and stand guard to make sure you're not at a decision whether to go or not."

"Why so apprehensive?" Lynette asked, her eyes dancing.

Murry grinned. "Uncle Ned is so tired of being milked for her share of those unpronounceable orphans and things, he has sworn a great oath to give the air—nothing else—henceforth and forever to anybody who asks him for even a postage stamp."

"More power to him. I reverse him, actually," Lynette returned, a dancing dimple starting in her right cheek. "I'm so sick of drives, and appeals, and missions and things, I almost wish I were dead—and fully wish the orators and eloquent beggars were completely dumb."

"H-m! Maybe if you tell Marse Edmund that," young Murry began, smiling.

Lynette glared at him, asking: "What must you think of me? Making out for me a pen-name, which I don't mean to corrupt the morals of a fellow-being who sees the light?"

"You're the limit!" young Murry sighed, taking her arm and leading her gently upward. But after a pace or two he dropped it, saying softly: "Walk, please—as you did before you saw me. Talk about the poetry of motion—"

"Shut up! I'm a business person on legitimate errand," Lynette admonished severely. "You're behaving as though you thought I'd come on flirtation bent."

"Well! Aren't you?" Edmund asked, his own eyes twinkling. Lynette made a pass at him with the hazel switch she had so demagogically broken on her way up—and after it all but ran to the half-shut front door.

A gruff "Come in!" rewarded her imperative knock—but there was no gruffness in the face of Judge Murry when he saw his visitor.

"Heaven sent! That's what you are, young woman!" he called, making to rise from his easy chair, but sinking back in it with a frown. "What good wind blew you here, just when I so need entertainment?"

"Enough to pay for it? Pretty hard? I am afraid you must or else get mighty short rations," Lynette countered. Then swiftly she began talking of drives, but with such dancing eyes, such half-laughing lips, that the judge saw instantly that she was masquerading. He listened patiently, his own eyes sparkling. As she fell silent he rummaged in the desk drawer nearest his hand, drew out a silver dollar and held it toward her with the air of an emperor bestowing a province.

"Tell Mme. Marcia how deeply I regret that this is all I can send her at present," he said in his courtliest accent. Lynette giggled—she had gone in unperceptibly. "But you can earn a hundred, for any sort of orphan, by coming here to talk and play chess with me until I'm able to walk again."

"Oh, oh! I'll love being a paid entertainer—and I know exactly the orphan who'll profit," Lynette said. "Me, my own self—I do so want a whole new frock and a hat to go with it. But—Aunt Marcia needn't know I'm earning them until I've gone in debt for my finery—I almost think though she'd rather pay—give me the things—she might flout your cheek at the other women—not one of them has had one above twenty-five."

"Wise child," the judge commented—then, with a keen look: "How old are you, Netty?"

"Sweet and twenty—going on twenty-one," Lynette said.

The judge smiled at her fondly. "Then—Edmund won't have to wait very much longer," he said. "I've held him in leash all the year since he came—knowing Madame Marcia had destined you and your money for a missionary—and I didn't want to start you young people with a fine lusty family row."

"My money!" Lynette gasped. "Judge—what's a joke—have I really truly got any? Aunt Marcia has been kindly enough—but it has hurt so to feel I owed her everything—and could give love in return for it. We are so different."

"There's a trifle of fifty thousand in trust for you—you get the income at one and twenty. The principal is—she is!—the principal of your life, Madame Marcia may have it—she is that curious complex, a devotee and a miser."

"She shan't have it—I know a better use for it," Lynette said softly. "Edmund is 23, in the background started to her saying 'On! Let it go! Lyn—the Murrys can take care of you.'"

Lynette shook her head. "I want to endow something," she said. "What?" asked Edmund 2d. "Swiftly came the answer, 'You—' (Copyright, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Tea Is Not Dear

True, cheap quality teas, those which a year ago sold at about 30c per lb. have doubled in price and more, but our very best quality tea has only advanced 5c per lb., in fact only 2c on a half lb. package.

When you could buy a cheap tea at 25c to 30c per lb., and our best was 85c, the difference must have seemed too great, but now cheap teas are the most expensive you can buy; without saying anything at all about quality.

You will find a half-lb. package of Red Rose Orange Pekoe (ask for it by the full name please, many teas are called Orange Pekoe) will make as many cups of tea as a pound of the cheap tea for which you will pay about 60c. And you will be drinking the best tea you can buy. A tea which you have perhaps looked on as a luxury.

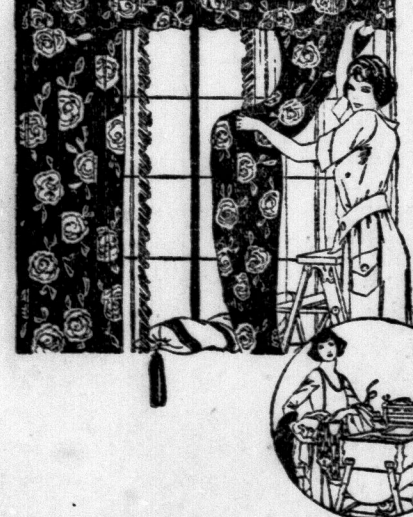

You can't afford now to use the cheap teas, (or at least the teas that were cheap.) They are too expensive.

The very cheapest tea you can buy to-day is Red Rose Orange Pekoe. Instead of buying a pound of cheap tea, pay 45c for a half pound package of Red Rose Orange Pekoe, and you will prove it. You will feel like thanking us for telling you about it.

Red Rose Tea "is good tea"

New Beauty for Dainty Fabrics and much longer wear

The two worries you have in washing fine fabrics, dainty garments, are removed. You can launder them now with full confidence that fabric will not be harmed, or delicate colorings dulled.

Silks, satins, crepes, and dainty, expensive cottons come from the wash with new brilliance and beauty. In thousands of homes women are using PALMOLIVE PRINCESS SOAP FLAKES.

These pure white, crinkly flakes give a wonderful, "whipped cream" lather that dissolves dirt magically.

And save money in two ways: By giving longer wear from fine fabrics; and, being nothing but pure soap, they last longer—cutting soap cost.

You can't find anything better for use in the washing machine—nor, in fact, for all laundry or household use. In handy one-pound packages or bags. Order some today and begin saving next time you wash.

New Stories By O. HENRY

REASONS FOR UNEASINESS.

When Sousa's band was in Houston a week or so ago, Professor Sousa was invited to dine with a prominent citizen who had met him while on a tour to the north.

This gentleman, while a man of high standing and reputation, has made quite a fortune by the closest kind of dealing. His economies in the smallest matters are a fruitful subject of discussion in his neighborhood, and one or two of his acquaintances have gone so far as to call him stingy.

After dinner, Professor Sousa was asked to play upon the piano, of which instrument he is a master, and he did so, performing some lovely Beethoven sonatas and compositions by the best masters.

While playing a beautiful adagio movement in a minor key, the professor caught sight of his host casting uneasy glances out of the window and appearing very restless and worried. Presently the Houston gentleman came over to the piano and touched Professor Sousa on the shoulder.

"Say," he said, "please play something livelier. Give us a jig or a quickstep—something fast and jolly."

"Ah," said the professor, "this sad music affects your spirits, then?"

"No," said the host, "I've got a man in the backyard sawing wood by the day, and he's been keeping time to your music for the last half hour."

APPROPRIATE.

There is an enterprising editor in Chicago who is always successful with his headlines. The other day an obituary poem was sent in on the demise of a youth who had met his fate by blowing in the muzzle of a gun to see if it was loaded. The verses showed up next day, headed all right.

THE ETERNAL QUESTION by Felice Davis

Unexpected Blessings.

Allen—It seems hard to believe that I met you only ten days ago.

Julia—I feel as though I had known you forever.

Allen—When the Martins invited me to dinner to meet you that night I almost refused.

Julia—Why? Did you think I was some awful creature?

Allen—No, but I was afraid that you might be another one of the present-day flapper type.

Julia—Don't you like them?

Allen—I detest them!

Julia—Is that why you're still a bachelor?

Allen—Possibly, but I believe the real reason is because I always think of my mother as the ideal type of woman.

Julia—Tell me about her—what was she like?

Allen—She was the old-fashioned mothering type.

Julia—Wrapped up in her home and her children?

Allen—Yes, she worshipped me—I was the only child.

Julia—How you must miss her!

Allen—I do and I've always been searching for a woman like her.

Julia—Yes—Yes—

Allen—And you are the first woman of her type whom I have met.

Julia—Am I really like her?

Allen—Yes, in your widow's weeds you are almost a picture of her.

Julia—And you want me to—to take her place?

Allen—I want you to preside over my home and be the mother of our children.

Julia—Yes—Yes—and I am sure you will make a perfect father for my children.

Allen—You mean our children, love.

Julia—Yes, my children and our—our children, maybe, dearest.

Allen—Your children?

Julia—Yes, love, being the motherly type of woman that your admire.

Allen—Yes—well?

Julia—Why, of course, I couldn't have lived without children—

Allen—Yes—yes—

Julia—You must see my little family.

Allen—Your—your little family?

Julia—Oh, it's not so little, love.

Allen—N—not so little?

Julia—No—I'll tell you about each one.

Allen—Each one?

Julia—There's Henry, who's just finishing in college, and Willie in prep school.

Allen—? ? ?

Julia—And Kathleen is the oldest girl.

Allen—The—the oldest girl?

Julia—Yes, and Robert's two years younger.

Allen—? ? ?

Julia—And next comes—but it's getting late, love. I'll tell you about the rest tomorrow.

Allen—Yes—yes it's getting awfully late! Good night!

COMMISSION MAY SINK MORE WELLS TO ASSURE SUPPLY

Public Utilities Will Inquire Into Cost of Drilling Expenses.

ADJOURNS SESSIONS
Members of City Body Transact Much Business At Final Meeting.

The public utilities commission yesterday, at their last meeting until September, believing that there is a tremendous reservoir of water in the neighbourhood of the Egerton street test hole that was drilled some time ago, decided, in view of the large amount of water being used by London, to inquire into the expense of drilling two wells at this point. General Manager Buchanan and Jared Vining, chairman of the commission, will consult the Johnston Well Drilling Company today as to the cost of sinking 12-inch wells in this district. The commission expects to be able to get some 800,000 gallons of water a day from two 12-inch wells and to be able to put them down at a less cost than if they put down one larger well. During the last few days the following amounts of water have been used by city firms: The asylum at Pottery, 180,000 gallons; Westminster Hospital, 66,000 gallons; Silverwood's, 113,000 gallons; the London Cold Storage, 63,000 gallons; Byron Sanatorium, where the pump is at present out of order, 20,000 gallons, the total amount pumped by the city being 1,200,000 gallons per day.

The general manager was authorized to purchase a Ford runabout and a one-ton Ford truck to replace two cars that had seen over four years' service, and which have depreciated to their full extent of service, allowing 25 per cent depreciation per annum.

Transformer Needed.
In the electrical department it was agreed that a new transformer was needed in London, and the manager was instructed to arrange for the purchase of another. Dr. George A. Smith, the city playground supervisor, in his report to the commission, stated that he had obtained all the supervisors needed for the playgrounds, and that he had been able to secure a number of very fine men for the work, all very keen and interested in their job.

On Tuesday next the supervisors will meet Dr. Smith for a final lecture on the control of playgrounds. Thames Park is being operated and there are supervisors and a lifeguard on duty. Lifeguards are also on duty at Deane's Mill and at Birk's Flats, where they are teaching swimming, and generally doing the work of the supervisor. Thames Park will be opened officially on July 2 when George A. Carson, the teacher of over 300,000 swimmers, and a swimmer of note, will give an exhibition of swimming and life-saving at the opening ceremonies. Dr. Smith also announced that Walter Fox, the most famous of all Canadian athletes, and an Olympic winner, would be in the city for two weeks in the end of July and would help in training the children for the great athletic meet that will be held in the city on August 4.

The commission in answer to a communication from the city council as to placing gates at the entrance to Victoria Park decided that in their opinion the Park was already made adequately safe by the bylaw which is at present in effect, and that even if they had the price of the gates, these were under the circumstances unnecessary. There was another letter from the city council asking the commission to prohibit cars from driving past the Springbank Zoo as "it is dangerous to life and safety in that particular part of the road."

Adjourns Until September.
The commission in this case came to the conclusion that as they already have a traffic cop of their own on that portion of the road, and that as he is most efficient and diligent on the job, any further action on their part is not necessary. In addition to this the only way in which they could make a one way drive of the zoo road way to continue the boulevard on past the Deer Park, a request that they had made to the council several times without success. The commission adjourned until September.

BISHOP CONFIRMS CLASS AT SEAFORTH

Rt. Rev. David Williams Asserts Creed Basic Need of Christians.

Special to The Advertiser.
Seaforth, June 22.—Impressive confirmation services were held in St. Thomas' Church Wednesday evening, when 20 candidates were received into the church. Right Rev. David Williams, Bishop of Huron, preached a forceful sermon from 2nd Timothy, chapter 1, verse 13: "Hold fast the form of sound words." "The Apostles' Creed," he said, "is a statement upon which the Christian faith has been built. The world today does not take very kindly to creeds. A person's life and not his creed is what counts, they say, but the men who talk in this way talk foolishly. 'You cannot lead a true, consistent life without a creed of some kind. If your life is to have any purpose or method or principle it is bound to have a creed.'"

The rector, Rev. F. H. Brown, was assisted in the services by Rev. A. Naylor of Hensall. Special music was rendered by the choir, assisted by Mr. C. Mitchell.

WILL LAY CORNERSTONE.

U.S. MAY BRING BACK SLACKER FOR TRIAL

Grover Bergdoll Wants First To Be Assured of Impartial Hearing.

Special to The Advertiser.
Kansas City, Mo., June 21.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, notorious war slacker, may be brought back to the United States from Germany to stand trial. When Edwin Bergdoll, Grover's brother was arraigned following the arrest after leaving Leavenworth penitentiary, his attorney, J. D. Shadwater, informed Judge Valkenburg here that Grover would return to the United States in thirty days if "assured of a fair and impartial trial by a civil court."

HARDING WILL OUTLINE INTERNATIONAL POLICY

U.S. President Plans Greater Participation In World Politics.

Special to The Advertiser.
On board President Harding's train, June 22.—President Harding will reveal on his western trip the general outline of a much more comprehensive international program than he has yet disclosed.

Some of Mr. Harding's ideas on world relations may prove more startling and disquieting to the irreconcilables than his world court proposal, on which he will speak tonight in St. Louis in the home state of Senator Reed, bitterest Democrat irreconcilable.

While it is impossible at this time to disclose even broadly the trend of Mr. Harding's program, it can be stated that if even a small portion of it is adopted the United States will play a much more active part in hastening settlement of world problems than it has up to this time.
