In consequence of threatening language used toward him by one of the residents of the village, Father Placide Desrosiers, parish priest of St. Pierre aux Liens, has laid information and a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Charles Tessier, a painter. The language Tessier used toward the priest was "To-night I will place my dagger into your heart." Father Desrosiers has been actively engaged in the temperance campaign.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

If there is one inalienable right of childhood it seems to me it's the right to all the sleep it needs, even when that happens to be more than it thinks it wants.

And for that reason nothing makes me more indignant than to see a sleep-headed little kiddie being hauled around on the cars or streets at night and deprived of its right to sleep by the very people who ought to be the most zealous guardians of that right.

In the theatre car on which I came last night there were three of them—one lucky in being small enough to sleep, a troubled, cramped, intermittent sleeper, nothing like what he should have been having in his crib at home, but still a sleeper. One little girl five or six years old, leaning uncomfortably against her mother's arm and occasionally lifting her head to ask, fretfully: "Aren't we most there, mamma?" The third, a boy of eight or nine, less obviously suffering from sleeplessness, to be sure, but an even more pathetic sight than the other two, because he had beneath his eyes the deep circles that showed that he was all too well accustomed to such hours.

I don't suppose the society with a long name, that abbreviates to S. P. C. C., would be considered exactly justified in stepping in in cases like those, but I wish it were.

I wish there could be a law prohibiting parents from keeping children under ten out after eight o'clock at night, unless they could show that such a proceeding was absolutely necessary.

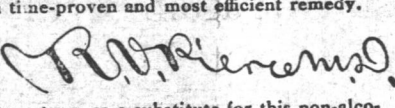

It is as cruel to children to bring them up without a full allowance of sleep as without sufficient food.

One of the saddest sights in a big

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early age, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of known composition not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

A little kerosene added to the water used for washing windows greatly lessens the labor and improves the appearance of the window.

When ironing with gas, place two rods side by side, then put one more on top of each. This will heat four irons on one burner.

A few peas added to the dish of creamed chicken, lobster, or shrimps are as pleasing to the eye as they are satisfying to the palate.

In using the rind of a lemon for flavoring, remember that it is only the outer or yellow part of the rind that holds the essential oil.

The simplest thing for removing limes from hands or white goods is household ammonia, which converts the sodine into iodide of ammonia.

Use two pieces of glass and two pictures placed back to back in pass-partouting. Fasten the hangers to the cardboard between the two pictures.

Put a receipt for making plasters on your medicine chest door, it will be convenient in case someone unaccustomed to making them has to do so.

A drop of oil of cloves on the tongue takes away the sense of taste for a moment, and disagreeable medicine can be given without any trouble.

If a pancake griddle must be kept hot for late comers, slip it into the oven, close the door, and when the griddle is needed again it is hot.

A tablespoonful of Epson's salts, added to one-half gallon of cold water thoroughly dissolved and poured over plant roots will hasten their growth wonderfully.

Instead of just heating butter and sugar together for hard sauce stir into it one-half cup of whipped cream and the white of an egg, beaten very light.

When a white enamel vessel has become discolored, simply fill the vessel with water and add a teaspoonful of fluoride of lime. Let boil a few minutes.

The best frosting for cakes is made by simply mashing five or six dark red strawberries and mixing with confectioners' sugar until stiff enough to spread.

Put a cupful of Indian meal, half a cupful of white flour and three tablespoonfuls of powdered borax into a paper bag and shake any article that needs cleaning.

In removing spots put a thick pad of cheesecloth or some other material underneath the spot to absorb the dirty cleansing liquid that soaks through the garment.

A wire clothesline can be cleaned perfectly by rubbing with a woolen cloth saturated with coal oil and afterwards with the same cloth liberally sprinkled with cleansing powder.

Union suits dried on a coat hanger and with the tape about the neck drawn up slightly will not draw out of shape about the neck as they do

A Young Woman—Scarcely Thirty—Seemed to be Dying on Her Feet.

DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS CURED

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of the system and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again and all my color, spirits, vigor and health of former days have returned to stay."

when hung on the line by the shoulders.

Take any old discarded toothbrush to blacken shoes with paste blacking. It is better than anything sold on the market for getting into cracks where just is bound to collect.

When a cork falls into the vinegar bottle, to get it out tie a nail on the loop of a string so that it will not float, and it will be easy to get the string into place under the cork.

Interest in the Paper Supply.

New York, May 2.—Arthur Spurgeon, J. P., president of the British International Society of Journalists, and general manager for Cassell and Co., Ltd., publishers of London, who was a passenger on board the Carmania, which arrived from Liverpool yesterday, said that well bound books at a low price had come to stay and were causing publishers on the other side much concern.

"I know that the question of paper supply in this country is a grave one," he continued, "and I expect to look into the matter when I go to Canada. On the other side there is much speculation as to the value of the immense plant of Lord Northcliffe in Newfoundland, and articles on the subject were read with much interest."

Third $50,000 Prize Offered by Daily Mail.

London, May 3.—The third $50,000 aviation prize offered by the London Daily Mail, was announced to-day, it being for a flight from London to Paris.

Following the winning of the Mail's $50,000 prize for a London to Manchester flight by Louis Paulhan, the Mail announced a similar prize for another flight within England, which will probably be a round trip flight between London and Edinburgh.

The enthusiasm aroused by the discussion of a London to Paris aerial trip has been such, however, that the Mail has added this third prize.

WHEN THAT COLD COMES!

How is it to be cured? This method is simplicity itself: Rub the chest and throat vigorously with Nerviline—rub it in good and deep, lots of rubbing can't do any harm. Then put some Nerviline in water and use it as a gargle; this will ease the cough, cut out the phlegm, assist in breaking up the cold quickly. There is no telling how quickly Nerviline breaks up a hard racking cough, eases a tight chest, relieves a pleuritic pain. Why, there isn't another liniment with half the power, the penetrative qualities, the honest merit that has made Nerviline the most popular American household liniment. A large 50c. bottle of Nerviline cures ills of the whole family—and makes the doctor's bill small.

Lost Newfoundland Found.

The unfortunate young Newfoundland man named William Francis, who was reported missing at McGivney Junction, N.B., in these columns, was found Sunday night wandering in the forest. Chief of Police Gallagher, of Fredericton, assisted by a number of railway construction men, discovered the demented young man far in the interior. He was sent here in charge of his cousin, George Pyke, who will accompany the unfortunate boy to his home in Burin, Nfld.—Ex.

maits and accredited ministers, all of whom, in the presence of His Majesty for counsel on international affairs.

It has been aptly remarked by some of those King Edwardians, the diplomat among kings and a king among diplomats. To give one single concrete fact in connection with this stirring tribute to his sagacity, I have only to mention the name of France. When he ascended the throne the French nation was at enmity with England. King Edward, the maker of peace among all nations, met with suspicion. But what a change has been wrought! How different things are to-day! France is one of the warmest admirers of the British nation, and in recent years has on more than one occasion displayed the friendliest attachment and affection towards the person of King Edward, the maker of peace among all nations.

"Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God." If the ordinary peacemaker is thus much more one in such a kingly exalted position, it is no secret that our own vexing French diplomats. To give one single concrete fact, the unostentatious way mainly through the hand of the personality of the King. He has made peace for us.

R. C. CATHEDRAL.

His Grace the Archbishop ascended the pulpit in the Cathedral after Vespers last evening and read the following panegyric on the late King Edward VII.

The news of the death, unexpected as it was, of our late King Edward VII. threw the whole community into consternation and grief.—The personal sentiments aroused by this great National loss, and the character and intensity according to the circumstances and dispositions of individuals, but speaking here from this pulpit on behalf of our Catholic people and expressing as I may presume to be the feelings of our Catholic citizens as a body, I am sure I may say that our hearts are those of deep sorrow for the National loss and condolence with the members of the Royal Household who though exalted in rank and placed so high as it were from the general population, yet on an occasion like this, when the pale messenger of death knocks at the door without respect for the "Castles of Kings and the haunts of nobles," are mustered to a moment come down to the level of ordinary humanity, and the humbles in the land may presume without danger to resent the National loss, and to offer a sincere expression of sympathy and condolence.

The Catholic Church has ever and always impressed on her children the great maxims of peace, loyalty, and obedience to lawful Sovereigns. She takes as her motto the words of the Apostle (Romans XIII, 1) "Let every soul be subject to the High Powers; for there is no power except from God, and those that are, are ordained of God." The Prince is God's minister, therefore, subject of necessity, not only for wrath but also for conscience sake.

Again the Catechism of the Council of Trent (De Regimine Principum) which is the manual and guide of our Moral teaching expatiates upon the words of the Apostle:—"The reverence which we owe to Kings and Sovereigns is referred to God, for this high degree of dignity commands the veneration of men because it partakes in a measure of the power of God."

Therefore in honoring the King we are venerating the Divine Providence which has confided to him the care of the public welfare and which use him as an instrument.

But beside these broad principles of morality and economy there are other things which we must remember why we should lament the death of Edward VII.

He was a good, just King. He was a man of great intelligence, of singleness of mind and temperance. Among the Nations of the world he exercised a great and powerful influence. He was a man of peace, and his ways in the interests of peace and harmony; and so marked was the effect of his diplomatic action that he is known to us as "The Peacemaker." He was a man of great energy and vigor, and his name is forever associated with the title of "The Conqueror," and so forth with other titles which we have loved to adorn his name.

We, as Catholics, have every reason to revere his memory. It is through his name that we have obtained the smallest of his merits, and the commencement of his reign he was forced by the exigencies of his position to make on oath that vile and unchristianlike promise to avoid in the future the savage times of persecution, and religious bigotry, that he publicly expressed his abhorrence of the Act which was a Christian's curse, and that all through his too short reign he endeavored to atone for it by showing every kindness and friendliness towards his Catholic subjects. One act of his which stands out in bold relief, and in sharp contrast with the conduct of certain other public men, was his great respect and personal esteem for the Pope. He was a man of peace and friendship for the Head of Our Church, Our Holy Father the Pope. He did not for a moment pretend to dictate to the Pope on what conditions he would consent to honor His Holiness with his presence. He did not question the etiquette of the Vatican Palace or refuse to comply with the rules of the Pope's Court; on the contrary he forestalled the slightest wish of the Holy Father and thus avoided the feelings of the aged Pontiff when he felt it an honor and a privilege to visit in his country and a privilege to visit in his country and a privilege to visit in his country.

ST. MARY'S—REV. H. UPHILL.

The Rector, Mr. Uphill, preached a fine sermon eulogizing the greatness of the late King Edward. The congregation were much affected, especially as he showed how Edward had won the title of Edward the Peacemaker.

ST. MICHAEL'S—REV. JAS. BELL.

At the evening service Rev. James Bell took as his text, "Blessed are the Peacemakers." The preacher dwelt on the suddenness of the call, and the sad, startling intelligence which attended the death of King Edward. "But yesterday the word of King Edward the Peacemaker might have stood against the world. Now lies he there a corpse, in death's cold embrace."

In ten years he has revolutionized the diplomatic relations of England with European powers by unravelling the tangled skein of peace and petty jealousies. At the beginning of his glorious reign the headquarters of the world's grandest empire stood, as it were, in "splendid isolation," but soon after his accession by his constant, magnetic personality and charming courtesy, she gradually rose to her rightful place, pre-eminent among the nations until she became the centre of the mightiest forces for maintaining and preserving the peace of the world. Not only so, but she has become the rendezvous of reigning monarchs, ruling heads, royal princes, foreign potentates, state diplo-memory of our deceased Sovereign was more than a passing claim to commendation and reverence. He was the first of Britain's Sovereigns who ever set foot upon the shores of Newfoundland and Newfoundland was the first spot of the New World on which the future Sovereign of England stood on terra firma. That very spot on which nearly four hundred years previously the brave Mariner of Bristol landed from their frail caravel and claimed for the Crown of England the great Western World. And now, my dear people, he has passed off the letting scene of this world, as far as the world is concerned, it is, as he is reported to have said in his dying moments, "It is all over." The great unknown Eternity commences. He goes before the Tribunal of the all-wise Judge who "knows the secrets of many hearts" (Gen. xxviii, 15).

There his merits and demerits will be weighed without respect or partiality, and we can privately pray for the eternal repose of his soul. The Catholic Church while acknowledging in all their fitness the virtues and merits of departed souls, does not however immediately canonize them and place them at once in the category of the "Blessed." She recognizes that nothing but the longest and most arduous path into that heavenly kingdom, and not until the soul has been purified "so as by fire," and the last farthing of debt paid, shall the final reward be granted, and so she never ceases to pray for the souls departed, for we know not whether we are worthy of the bliss of heaven, and we know not when we shall be there.

GOWER STREET.

Rev. W. D. Dunn who was the preacher in Gower Street Church at the evening service preached an excellent sermon appropriate to the occasion, taking his text from the 1st Book of Samuel, 24 chap. 2nd verse. "I said indeed that thy House and the house of thy father, should walk before Me for ever." The rev. preacher debated on the text so as to make it most applicable to the deceased King, and showed how the law referred to was exemplified in the life of Joseph from the time he was sold into Egypt by his brothers till he became the ruler in that land. He did the best that he foresaw under all circumstances and accepted humbly the ruling of Divine Providence. He showed a spirit of manly resistance that enabled him to overcome himself, to his country and his God. He thus showed his fitness for the highest office in the State. The same principle that actuated Joseph should be found in every true man in every walk of life. The attendance at this sermon was very large, as well as at the morning service when the "Dead March in Saul" was played by Mr. King, the organist.

COCHRANE STREET.

At this church the regular services of the day were conducted by the Rev. Chas. Hackett, and also by the Rev. A. M. Bamford, but it was that special reference was made to the death of the King.

The address was fittingly entrusted to the Rev. Dr. Cooperthwaite, whose years and mature judgment added much to the impressiveness of the occasion. The Rev. Dr. paid a touching tribute to His late Majesty, and showed the great responsibility that was vested in him, and how faithfully he bore it. His Majesty's influence was vast, and while yet a King, he was in all, a man. His personality was a marked feature of his reign, and his subjects seemed to know him as their friend. In his death the nation has sustained a severe bereavement, and the world has lost one of its best rulers. To the Royal Household the suddenness of the blow had intensified its sorrow—a sorrow too deep to be dwelt upon at length.

His Majesty was also a man of literary tastes and poetic inclinations. When asked what hymn he liked of all in modern times he replied that Newman's, "Lead Kindly Light," was to him a favourite. The speaker then read the hymn, and closed his address by a feeling reference to the last sentiments of the King, as expressed in the words, "Well, it is all over, and I think I have done my duty."

The choral portion of the service was in keeping with the occasion, both in Anthem and Solo. In the Anthem there was volume, and with harmony; and a climax that seemed to lift every heart above the things of daily life. The solo, "Angels ever bright and fair," was rendered by Miss Herder, and was one of that talented lady's best efforts in the use of her gift of song.

The congregation was a large one and as the gathering rose, and with thoughtful men listened to notes of "The Dead March in Saul," we felt within ourselves that when the call comes to us, we like our late King, would desire to be able to say, "I think I have done my duty."

SALVATION ARMY.

LT.-COL. BEES, at the 2nd Citadel, preached from Jeremiah, 14th chap. 9th verse: "Leave Us Not," Jeremiah asked to have a helper in the hour of trouble. We as of the British Empire need the presence of the Almighty to guide us in trouble and sorrow. Our great King Edward, now deceased, was a great power and help in the world. He was trusted by foreign nations and beloved by all his subjects. He was a true friend of the poor as evidenced in the Prince of Wales Hospital in London. General Booth had been encouraged and given helpful recognition by King Edward who entertained him at Buckingham Palace, and did many other acts of kindness to him. In the death of the King the Army had lost a true friend. Tender references were made by the Lt.-Col. to the bereaved Royal Family. "The Dead March in Saul" was played.

ST. ANDREWS.

Rev. Mr. Strathie preached at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. He referred to the great National bereavement in a few heartfelt words and offered prayer for the Queen and the Royal Family. He eulogized the late King and showed in a few words why he was accorded to the title of Peacemaker. His wonderful personality caused him to be believed as a man as well as honored as a King. His wisdom and kindness were exercised for good at all times in national affairs. At the offering Mr. Mawer, the organist, rendered Chopin's Funeral March and the choir sang "Now the laborer's task is o'er." After the Ben action (the congregation remained standing during the playing of the Dead March in Saul. The service on the whole was most impressive. A memorial service will be held at a later date.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Rev. J. Thackeray preached at the evening service a sermon having special reference to the death of the King. He reviewed the life of Edward VII. since his accession to the Throne and showed that his health ever since the acute illness of 1902 had been a subject of keen interest to all the people of the Empire. His illness on that occasion wrung every heart with grief. The crisis passed and the King recovered, but he never regained himself more than ever to his subjects by the manner in which he bore his sufferings and resigned himself to God's will. Last Friday night the whole Empire was again thrilled with the news that flashed across the wires that the King was dying. But the deep sorrow was purified and exalted by the report of his heroic submission and resignation to the will of God as suggested in his last words, "It is all over, but I think I have done my duty." And so the Peacemaker breathed his last, but divine Providence writes to shine through the life of his successor, George the Fifth, and need to realize even more brilliant achievements. "I feel your prayers now," said the preacher, "for the bereaved Queen and her children. They need them more than ever. They need all bow before the will of God and believe that He doth all things well, the best of us." At the conclusion of the service Mr. Thackeray read the following rendered "What are these?" by Stanger, and "Now the laborer's task is o'er." The Dead March was also played.

C. E. CATHEDRAL—CANON WHITE.

Canon White preached on the passing of the King. A common sorrow pervades the Empire. The death of the King has touched all hearts. The blow has fallen at a time when his guiding hand upon the helm of State seemed to be prime necessity. In the homeland it must be to many, who are entrusted with vast responsibilities, an hour fraught with tremendous strain. Men have long known and acknowledged how fertile in resource, how ripe in wisdom, how sane in judgment, how clear in vision their Sovereign has been. To realize that a life so pregnant with all that made for the nation's welfare has been swiftly borne down in death, is to experience a sense of disaster which words cannot express.

To-day people are looking back across the years to the time when the King, whom God had restored to us from the jaws of death, was crowned in the presence of his people, who had asked him from God, and who believed that God had been gracious to their prayers. Since that day there has gathered round his throne and person a depth of personal feeling for the person of the Sovereign—not of a deity only, but personally, out of respect and affection for a great and noble monarch.

Just now it is difficult to imagine that the death of any other Sovereign could have caused such widespread, such universal sorrow. Millions outside his own realm rightly regarded him as the arbiter of their destinies. To-day they are experiencing a profound sense of loss—in short, a personal bereavement. And amongst other emotions which the King's passing will stir, a wealth of sympathy for the widowed Queen will be reverently tendered; for her charming personality has impressed itself upon the hearts of the people in whose sorrow she has always shared, and for whose welfare she has always given her very best. And now that an all-wise Providence has touched the Royal home with a great bereavement—a loyal people who have learnt to love her will claim the privilege of being allowed to improve the old of God the Comforter to sustain her, and her household in their trial hour. "It has been well said, "From the very poignancy of our grief, the very intensity of our sense of loss, we are drawn to draw a strength and an inspiration for the days to come. He has not spent in vain, honest, thoughtful prayer for him, for those upon whom the highest good of those over whom he was set. If we could think it came to nothing after all, then indeed it would be heartbreaking now—a gloom without relieving gleam. But we have not so learned our Christian faith, and in these years of faithful service to God and man comes the inspiring call to follow onward on the like path-way, for it is worth while. And our hopes and aspirations take shape at such an hour in larger and expectant prayer for him, for those upon whom the Providence of God has fallen, the splendid heritage of so immeasurable a trust, so boundless an opportunity. We have been thinking—is it not so?—in reverent thankfulness upon the answer given for years to the prayers offered for the Sovereign who has reigned in all our hearts. Be that memory an inspiration now. The loyalty with which every heart in the Empire is to-day aglow can speak in no other way so helpfully, so hopefully, so confidently, when it speaks in prayer. We look backward to-day with aching, yes, but with profoundly thankful hearts; and we look outward and onward, too. "They will go from strength to strength, until unto the God of Gods appeareth every one of them in Zion."

ST. THOMAS—CANON DUNFIELD.

The church was draped in black. An appropriate music was played, and at the close of the service the congregation stood while the strains of the Dead March in Saul came forth from the organ. Canon Dunfield took as his text, "Know ye not that he is a prince and a great man fallen this day?" In touching words he preached a most affecting funeral oration. He referred to the sudden, startling and sad news which had almost struck the nation dumb with sorrow. A Prince had fallen in Israel. A great man had passed away.

Although some had misgivings when King Edward ascended the Throne, especially as the times were difficult and full of trouble, it was soon felt that a wise, good and great King was seated on the Throne. A King of old

KING GEORGE PROCLAIMED.

His Excellency the Governor Addresses the People and Reads the Proclamation from the Steps of Colonial Building.

People of Newfoundland.— You have attended here to-day in answer to my summons on what is without doubt, one of the greatest occasions in the lives of every one of us, the occasion of the Proclamation of the accession of our King—the King of Great Britain and Ireland and of our vast Empire.

Before proceeding to the duty which lies before me it will I am sure be in accordance with your wishes that I should allude to the grievous calamity which has befallen us, in common with all the countries and peoples of the Empire, in the loss of our King, King Edward the VII.

It is little more than nine years ago that we found ourselves mourning for the death of our late Queen Victoria, whose great and glorious reign is still fresh in the memory and the hearts of most of us.

It seemed almost impossible to us at that time, in the midst of our grief, to realise that Her Successor could fill the great gap which was created by Her death.

Only nine years have passed since that time and can one of us say to-day, or think to-day that Her Successor King Edward has not to the full sustained Her great name and traditions, and that He has not stamped on the hearts of His people a sense of His grand individuality, of His real power, of His strong common sense, of His sterling honesty, of His marvellous tact as a ruler, and of His boundless love for the country over which He ruled.

The spread of education and the march of progress has caused a new order of things in the world, and the old doctrine of the Divine right of Kings is now held by all as a gospel of truth, as in the days of our forefathers.

The searching light of criticism is flashed into the doings of even the greatest, and journalism and modern science make the verdict known to all.

And what is the verdict of the world? or more correctly what was that verdict but a few short days ago when our King was alive among us and in the enjoyment as we hope of many long and happy years? Ask England, or Scotland, or Ireland, or Wales, Ireland may have strong views and strong methods in her political life, but did we ever hear of one single Irishman who either said or thought one word adverse to our King. I will venture to say that in all the four countries he was equally beloved, equally honoured and equally understood.

Ask our colonies whether those enjoying self government or those under Crown Colony administration. Ask the millions of India, ask whom you will under the free flag of our Empire, and you will be told, and truly told, that the name of the King was a name to conjure with, and that the name of King Edward was a name to call forth a chorus of love, and of honour and of appreciation of his great powers of administration.

But go outside the Empire. Go to our great neighbours the citizens of the United States and seek their opinion, and I will venture without undue presumption to say that they, a shrewd hard headed people not swayed by passion or led by sentiment, but speaking as men to men, would with one full consent as we say in our proclamation to-day of tongue and voice tell us that we had a King of whom we might most justly feel proud, and whom they delighted to honour.

Go to France and if current assertion be right you would have found Edward the Seventh of England to be the most popular man in France.

Ask Europe and who is there that will not tell you that of all the voices which swayed the policy of the nations the strongest, the wisest, and the most truly effective was the voice of our King.

His was no muffled fist and no persuasive manner. His power lay in the fact that he was a real man, foreseeing to a degree granted to few, judicial in mind, honest in intent, fair to all and true to his country.

The loss caused to His loyal and loving subjects is grievous, beyond the powers of any words of mine to convey, the loss to the world is great and will be felt by every land. His whole reigning life was devoted to the peace of the world, and to the betterment of his country.

And of His Queen, and Our Queen, what shall we say?

Some of us are old enough to remember the beautiful Danish Princess who came to us forty seven years ago, and her triumphal drive through London as she entered England as the promised wife of our Prince of Wales. As she captivated all our hearts then, so she has held them through all these years intervening years.

Her marvellous beauty, her gracious carriage, her sweet recognition of all those with whom she came in contact, whether of the rich or of the poorest, has made her the object of a love rarely won by a Princess from her people.

Only a few weeks ago the King generously sent to us here the very beautiful pictures of himself and Queen Alexandra which you have most of us seen.

It will be a lasting pleasure to us now to have these memorials of King Edward in his pride of Kingship, and Queen Alexandra in her wondrous beauty against which it would seem that even time itself can make no inroad.

The King is dead. His Queen a widow.

Over the King we mourn, not only as a people for their ruler, but as men and women for one whom they have loved and honoured.

To His Queen we humbly tender the heartfelt sympathy of a people far separated by distance but closely united with Her in Her sorrow and we pray that God may comfort Her in the burden of trouble which has come upon Her.

Yes—the King is dead, but the

His Most Gracious Majesty King George V.

Throne lives; and it is well for us to recollect that.

The Throne is the embodiment of the free institutions which we enjoy, and the centre round which our Empire so happily progresses.

The loyalty felt to the Throne by every part of the Empire is so complete and is founded on so thorough a consciousness of its useful purpose, its dignity, its justice and its right, that it is as lasting as it is real.

To the Throne and Person of King George our full measure of loyalty and of service will be given, not as a service of duty, but as a service of love in the well founded belief that he, too, like the great King and the great Queen who have preceded him, will guard our liberties, cherish our institutions, will do right and justice and will maintain unblemished and untarnished the magnificent heritage to which he has succeeded by birth and by right, and to which we, his faithful and loyal subjects, proclaim and acclaim him to-day.

PROCLAMATION.

Marmaduke George Winter, President of the Board of Trade, do hereby with one full voice and consent of tongue and heart publish and proclaim that the High and Mighty Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert is now by the death of our late Sovereign of happy and glorious memory, become our only lawful and rightful Liege Lord, George V, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India, Supreme Lord in and over the Island of Newfoundland and its dependencies, to whom we do acknowledge all faith and constant obedience with all hearty and humble, be-coming God by whom Kings and Queens do reign to bless the Royal Prince George V, with long and happy years to reign over us.

HAIL TO THE KING.

At noon to-day from the Parliament Building His Excellency the Governor proclaimed Prince George, by the Grace of God, King of the United Kingdom and Ireland and of the Dominions beyond the Seas, under the title of George the Fifth. Proclamations in similar terms to the one issued to-day in St. John's will be read in all the towns of the United Kingdom and the capitals of the States of the Empire, and in the Crown Colonies and Dependencies. The original proclamation was read at St. James' Palace at 2 p.m. on Saturday. These proceedings were in accordance with ancient usage. The Lords, Spiritual and Temporal, of the realm, members of the late King's Privy Council, gentlemen of quality, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and citizens are present.

The King's Privy Council is then sworn, and the new King issues a proclamation continuing in office all who were "duly and lawfully possessed of or fully invested in any office, place, or employment, civil or military," within the dominions of the Crown.

The Crown now devolves regularly, orderly and peacefully. The parliamentary title which recognizes the old principle of the hereditary right of the eldest son with certain reservation and conditions has done away with irregularity and turmoil which often marked the devolution of the Crown. Now we have no wars of the Roses, no contests of dynasties for the kingship, no civil war to settle who shall reign over us. The law settles automatically a question which might tear the Kingdom asunder. Now the rule is, the King never dies. The Throne is never vacant. When one august occupant of the Throne passes away another instantly takes his place. This method has its advantages over a Republic, even where the Presidency is settled by election, for there is always the chance that when the Head of the State is settled by party, one half of the nation will be inimical to the elected Head. Fortunately indeed has the British Empire been in her late rulers. Of the late King we may state in corroboration of what we wrote on Saturday of his popularity, that Mr. Stead in a recent issue of the "Review of Reviews" stated:—

"There was a curious paragraph in the papers some time ago reporting the proceedings of a small revolutionary meeting in London. One of the speakers promised his cronies that the Social Republic would soon be proclaimed in England, and when that day comes, he added, we shall elect Albert Edward as our first President. A monarch who commands such universal respect as to have the nomination at the hands of the Reds for the presidency of the British Social Revolutionary Republic is more than 'His most gracious.'"

With Edward's devotion to duty inspiring George and his Reges, with Britons at home and over the seas true to themselves, they will acclaim George for Britons everywhere.

KING EDWARD'S OBSEQUIES. Body Will Lie in State at Westminster Hall--Funeral on the 20th--The Royal Mausoleum--King George's First Official Speech.

LONDON, May 8. The tomb of Edward the Seventh will be beneath the Memorial Chapel at Windsor where the body of his eldest son, the Duke of Clarence, has a sepulchre. The funeral will probably be held on May 20th. Before the funeral it has practically been decided that the body of the King will lie in state in Westminster Hall, under the House of Parliament, which was last the scene of a similar ceremony when for two days and nights a constant stream of citizens filed past the coffin of the great Commoner Gladstone. Before being taken to Westminster the body will lie in state in the Throne Room at Buckingham Palace. The King's casket will be fashioned out of oak grown in the Royal forest at Windsor. It will first be lowered to the vault beneath the Chapel floor of St. James' Chapel, Windsor Castle. Afterward when the permanent resting place has been prepared it will be removed to Albert Chapel. Queen Alexandra and King George conferred with various officials of the State and the household concerning the funeral arrangements to-day, after holding service in the Royal Chapel at Buckingham, which the King always attended when he resided there. The date of the burial was fixed for May 20th, although it may be May 18th. The members of the Royal family would prefer there should be no lying in state, but it was represented to them that the wishes of the people were so strongly for this that they were willing to waive their personal inclinations. King Edward still lies in the bed where he died clothed only in night clothes, while his hands are crossed on his breast. Queen Alexandra visits the chamber frequently, appearing greatly worn and tired. King George and Queen Mary spent most of the day with her. After church the family again looked upon the body for a few minutes. An impressive incident this afternoon illustrated Queen Alexandra's desire to show consideration for British subjects of every class. General Booth sent a message that the Salvation Army wished to show honor to Edward the Seventh by holding a service before the Palace, and Queen Alexandra gave her permission. At four o'clock a large band wearing red jer-

The World Mourns.

BERLIN, May 7. Following the announcement of the death of King Edward all of the engagements of Emperor William for the next two days were cancelled. The Emperor, who was at Weisbaden, determined to start for Berlin to-day and will arrive here to-morrow. It is assumed that it is a certainty that the Emperor will attend the funeral. PARIS, May 7. Nowhere in Europe has the passing of King Edward created deeper emotion than in France, where he was gratefully acknowledged as the principal artisan in the present diplomatic combinations for the preservation of the peace of Europe. The French Government intends to express its grief in a most marked fashion. Premier Briand and others of the Cabinet personally called upon the British Ambassador early to-day to express their condolences, and as soon as Foreign Minister Pichon, who is absent from the city, reaches Paris, an extraordinary mission will be appointed to attend the funeral. Former President Loubet, whose exchange of visits with King Edward in 1903, resulted in the Anglo-French entente, probably will head the mission. Most of the French papers appear with black borders to-day and their editorials sound a sermon note of grief which may be summed up in the words of the Matin, which says: "England has lost a great King, the world a great figure and a great friend."

Ten Thousand Newfoundlanders Acclaim George King!

The scene in the area in front of the Colonial Building this forenoon is one that will never be forgotten by the thousands that gathered there. Squads from the Church Lads' Guide, Catholic Cadet Corps, Methodist Guards and Nid. Highlanders marched from their respective armories down Military Road shortly before noon and under the direction of their officers drew up in the square near the Colonial Building. A detachment from the city police force under the day, Sir Ralph Williams. Having finished the reading of the Proclamation His Excellency then called upon the children to sing the National Anthem. The Pope has telegraphed his condolences to the Premier and Foreign Minister. The Chamber of Deputies adjourned to-day as a sign of mourning.

Supreme Court. At the opening of the Court on Saturday morning, the chief justice ordered an adjournment in the following terms: "Since the Court adjourned yesterday, the King has passed away. To-day sorrow pervades the world. In common with our fellow subjects throughout the Empire, we mourn the great loss our nation has sustained. The reign now brought to a close will be memorable in history, chiefly because of the King's achievements in promoting the peace of nations. By us in this colony it must ever be gratefully remembered in that it lifted from Newfoundland the burden of foreign territorial claims and left the island wholly British. It was the statesmanship of King Edward in promoting the Entente Cordiale with France, which rendered possible our release from grievances under which the colony had suffered for well nigh two centuries. As a mark of respect to His late Majesty, the Court adjourns."

FOOD FOR A YEAR. Meat, 300 lbs. Milk, 240 qts. Butter, 100 lbs. Vegetables, 500 lbs. This represents a fair ration for a man for a year. But some people eat and eat and grow thinner. This means a defective digestion and unsuitable food. A large size bottle of Scott's Emulsion equals in nourishing properties ten pounds of meat. Your Physician can tell you how it does it. "A Delightful Pastime" is the verdict of those who have purchased a Columbia Zither. It is a very fine zither, graceful in shape, and in every way a charming musical instrument. It is finished in polished black ebony, the same as a fine piano. Makes a beautiful gift for holiday or birthday. In a few short evenings you can learn to play the Columbia Zither with facility and ease. The lower notes are tuned in groups of chords. The higher notes render the air while the chords produce the accompaniment. For sale by Arthur B. Walker, Sole Agent for Newfoundland and Maritime Provinces. One month's free lessons at the studio, 13 New Gover Street (Albion House). Note: Toy zithers and small autoharps cost less, but the Columbia Zither excels in size and durability, combines the tone qualities of the guitar and mandolin. Can only be obtained from Arthur B. Walker who imports direct from factory in U. S. A., and has handled them exclusively since 1899. Call and secure one now and get instructed for one month free of charge. Autoharps put in perfect tune for 10c. Polio: strings, etc., at New York prices. A few piano folios 50 per cent off--adv't. may 9.

Narrowly Escaped Drowning.

As Mr. John Dawe, son of Capt. A. Dawe of Bay Roberts was out for a boat sail on Saturday afternoon, he narrowly escaped losing his life, and for a long while after rescue was unconscious, and is since pretty ill. The wind blew in fitful gusts; the ballast was not properly arranged in her and when one heavy squall struck the sail she went over so far that the sprays coming in filled the boat and she sank under Mr. Dawe in 15 fathoms of water almost before he could realize what had happened. The man was left struggling in the water, but fortunately some oars floated away from the boat as she went down, and came so near Mr. Dawe that he was enabled to grasp them, and these floated him. A man named French, of Coley's Point, witnessed the accident and jumped into a boat and rowed with might and main to the rescue. He was just in the nick of time, for Dawe when he reached him was unconscious and was holding mechanically. Getting him into his boat, French, with great presence of mind, got Dawe across his knees and succeeded in making him vomit large quantities of water which he had swallowed. He then rowed him ashore and Dr. Pritchard and Alkinson succeeded after much trouble in resuscitating Mr. Dawe. An effort will be made to get the boat from the bottom.

WESLEY CHURCH.

The West End Church was most tastefully draped in black for the deceased Sovereign. At both services, morning by the Rev. J. Banford and evening by the Rev. J. K. Curtis, B. A., reference was made to the lamented death of King Edward. At the close of a short but eloquent eulogy of the deceased Sovereign, the preacher said he would speak at great length at the Memorial Service. The organist played the "Dead March" at both services and the choir rendered suitable hymns for the occasion.
