FIGURES DO LIE.

Prices are only Relative

REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.

They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build.

They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.

They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money."

If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.

You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large.

REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.

We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.

We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one.

REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.

Stella Mordant: —OR— The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"Mary is ill, I am sorry to say," said Lord Hatherley, sadly. "I am afraid she caught a chill waiting for me at the station last night. I lost my train, and she came to meet me. But I can only think of this dreadful tragedy; and, Ralph, I—I hope you had not expressed your opinion before the servants. You are a magistrate, you know, and you and I, and our fellow-magistrates, will have to examine the accused."

"He'll get short shift from me," said Ralph, with a bravado which his white face and bloodshot eyes seriously discounted. "I've been told that he was found bending over the body, that he admitted that the knife—blood-stained—was his—"

"Yes—yes! But where is the motive? I'm informed that the young man only arrived in Raton with Edward Bryan last evening."

Ralph rose, dropping his serviette and nearly overturning his chair. "What's that got to do with it?" he demanded, impatiently. "The evidence—the evidence, points to his guilt, and it's the evidence you and I and the other magistrates have to consider. When does the examination take place?"

"To-morrow morning," replied Lord Hatherley, with a sigh. "It is the first case of murder I have had to consider, and—and I don't like it. As you say, the evidence is against the accused, and yet—How did he come to be in the wood, and why did he murder, in the cruellest of ways, a woman whom he could not have known?"

Ralph shrugged his shoulders. It seemed to him that luck was flowing his way. With Parkins to swear an alibi, with evidence to prove that this unknown man was not only found near the body, but had admitted the ownership of the knife, he—Ralph—was safe.

"That's for a jury to decide," he said, with an assumed indifference. "What you and I and the other magistrates have to do is our duty. Can I see Mary if I come over?"

He put the question as casually as he could, but his voice quavered somewhat.

Lord Hatherley shook his head. "She is keeping to her own room, Ralph, and I don't think she is well enough to see you."

Ralph nodded.

"Folks say I'm sad,
I'm really glad,"
Sad Iron cried with glee,
"Although I'm 'flat,'
I'm bright at that,
Old Dutch has polished me."

"All right," he said. "But just tell her that I am sure this fellow who has been arrested is guilty, and that I'll see justice is done."

CHAPTER XXXIX.
Stella eluded her captor on the night of the murder. Her foot was less painful—thanks to poor Nita's care—but she was restless and feverish, and her snatches of sleep were disturbed by dreams. She dreamt of Rath and of Lord Lisle, fancied that she was once again drifting in the boat that was bearing her away from the island, and that she could see Rath standing on the shore with outstretched hands, and heard his voice calling to her in accents of despair.

She was awakened from one of these dreams by a knocking at the door, and thinking it was Nita, she called "Come in!" and, to her surprise, the landlady entered. The woman seemed in a great state of agitation, and stood beside the bed as if she were scarcely capable of speech. "What is the matter, Mrs. Sewell? Is it time to get up?" Stella asked, sitting up in bed and pushing the hair from her face, flushed with sleep.

"No, miss—that is—it's early; but— Oh, miss! I couldn't keep away from telling you any longer! Something dreadful has happened. Poor Madame Nita—"

Stella sprang out of bed, her injured foot quite forgotten.

"Oh, what is it? Is she ill? Let me go to her!" and she snatched at her clothes. The landlady fought with her agitation.

"Go to her, miss! Oh, dear, dear! Don't be frightened, miss. I meant to break it to you, but I don't know how!"

"What is it?" asked Stella, proceeding hurriedly with her dressing. "Is she ill—very ill? Whatever it is, I must go to her. Oh, I am so sorry. Oh, please tell me at once!"—for the landlady had burst into tears.

"She's—she's dead, miss!" she sobbed.

Stella went white, and staggered. "Dead! Oh, you cannot mean it! She was quite well last night when she went to the theatre. Dead!"

"Yes, miss. And that ain't the worst. The poor thing came by her death unfairly. She—she was murdered last night!"

Stella struggled against the shock and the deadly faintness it caused, and sank on to the bed, her hands clasped tightly. It was so hard to realize that the woman who had been so good to her; whom she had seen so only a few hours ago in full possession of health and strength, should be dead!

"Tell me—" she began, chokingly. "Oh, poor woman! Murdered! Oh, there must be some mistake—some cruel mistake! She cannot—cannot be dead!"

"It's true, miss. The police have seen her already."

"The police?"

"Yes, miss. They've searched the rooms, and one of 'em's in the sitting-room now; and I—I couldn't help coming to you."

"Help me—help me dress," said Stella, brokenly, for her hands shook so that she could not hold her clothes.

"When—where?"

"It was last night, in Raton Wood," said the landlady in a hushed voice. "Don't take on so, miss—for Stella was crying bitterly. 'The poor soul's at rest, anyway; and I don't think she was happy, for all her being so famous and celebrated. She's at rest'

Are you "Nervy"?

Do you "jump" at a sudden sound? Do you have headaches or neuralgia? Are you irritable? Are you depressed? Are you troubled with sleeplessness? If so, you need a short course of "Wingarnis" (the Wine of Life). There is nothing so good as "Wingarnis" for re-vitalising the nerves—nothing so prompt in giving them new life. "Wingarnis" possesses the great advantage of getting right to the root of nerve troubles, and by means of an enriched blood supply to give new vitality and new life to the whole nervous system. That is why over 10,000 Doctors recommend "Wingarnis."

and out of her troubles, whatever they were. She was murdered in Raton Wood—stabbed to death. It was a man, and they've got him, the brute, thank God!"

"But—but who—why did he do it?" asked Stella, with horror in her face and voice.

The landlady shook her head. "The police wouldn't answer any questions; but I hear from the talk that's going round that he's a stranger. But, of course, he must have known Madame. You see, miss, ladies in her profession lead strange kind of lives, and you can't tell what mystery was connected with her."

Instantly there flashed across Stella's mind the story Nita had told her of her husband, the man who had deserted her, the man whom Nita had thought she had seen from the window two days ago; but Stella said nothing, and Mrs. Sewell went on:—

"There's a policeman in plain clothes, a detective, miss, and another gentleman—a Mr. Workley—in the sitting-room, and they want to see you."

"To see me?" said Stella, shrinkingly; then she said, quietly: "I will come at once; please tell them. Where—where—"

She could not finish her sentence, but Mrs. Sewell understood, and replied in a hushed voice:

"At the inn, in Raton village. I'll go and tell them you're coming, miss."

Stella finished dressing and went into the sitting-room. Workley and the detective who had just arrived from the county town were standing by the table upon which were the contents of some of Nita's travelling-boxes and a small heap of letters and other belongings of hers. Workley's face was white to the lips, his eyes glistened with a fierce and dogged determination; and both men scanned her sharply and keenly.

"This is the young lady who has been lodging with Madame," said the landlady, nervously.

The detective bowed and drew a chair forward, but Stella stood, gripping the edge of the table with her hand.

"Sorry to disturb you so early, miss," said the detective. "You've heard the news—very dreadful news!—and I'm sure you will be ready to help us with any information regarding the deceased. Will you tell me your name?"

Stella told him.

"Will you tell what you know of the deceased? I ought to say that this gentleman, Mr. Workley, is deeply interested—"

Stella looked at Workley with pity and commiseration in her beautiful eyes, and Workley bowed his head for a moment.

"—And he will be grateful to you if you can help us clear up this mystery."

"I know—she told me," faltered Stella.

Workley made a gesture with his hand. "I—I loved her," he said, huskily. "She was married, I know, but her husband deserted her. I did not know whether he was alive or dead—I was trying to find out. If she had been free—I—we should have married—" but—but she was not certain it was he."

Workley started and looked at the detective keenly.

"Did you see him, miss—the man she thought was her husband?"

"No," said Stella.

"It's plain enough," exclaimed Workley, hoarsely. "It was her husband. She must have found the villain and met him that night, and he enticed her into meeting him again, and—oh, it is plain enough, the scoundrel!"

Stella sank into the chair and covered her face with her hands.

"I think you're wrong in your surmise, Mr. Workley," said the detective. "The prisoner only arrived in Raton yesterday evening."

"So they say," said Workley, doggedly; "but it's her husband, right enough."

"Is that all you can tell us, miss?" asked the detective.

Stella inclined her head.

"Thank you. May I ask you to tell me one thing that you have told us, until the examination to-morrow. I am afraid we shall have to trouble you to attend. Will you remain here—in this house?"

"Yes," faltered Stella. Where else could she go?"

"Quite so. I think, if I might make a suggestion, that I wouldn't see anyone until after the examination. People are so curious, and will bother you with questions."

"I will see no one," said Stella. "But may I go to—to her?"

The detective shook his head. "I don't think—I would, miss. She—she was badly hurt—and No, miss; I understand what you feel; but I think you'd like to remember her as you saw her last."

Quick Help for Strains and Sprains Wonderful Relief in One Hour

Rare Herb and Root Extracts in this Liniment Give it Marvelous Power.

RUB ON NERVILINE.
You'll be astonished at the rapid pain relieving action of "Nerviline." Its effectiveness is due to its remarkable penetrating power—it strikes deep, sinks to the very core of the trouble.

Nerviline is stronger, many times stronger, than ordinary liniments, and it's not greasy, ill-smelling or disagreeable. Every drop rubs in, bringing comfort and healing wherever applied.

You would scarcely believe how it will relieve a sprain, how it takes out lameness, how it soothes and eases a bruise.

Thousands say no liniment is half so useful in the home. This must be so, because Nerviline is a safe remedy—you can rub it on even a child with fine results.

Just you keep Nerviline on hand—it's a panacea for the aches, pains and slight ills of the whole family. One bottle will keep the doctor's bill small, and can be depended on to cure rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, sciatica, toothache, pleurisy strains or swelling. Wherever there is a pain rub on Nerviline; it will always cure.

The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical; trial size 25c. Sold everywhere by dealers.

At the City Hall.

The Chairman, Messrs. Ayre, McNamara, Bradshaw, Mully, McGrath and Withers were present at last night's meeting of the Civic Commission.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries replied to the Board's request concerning the dredging of the basin near the public wharf, Job's Bridge. The Minister explained that the work would occupy at least two months and the dredge cannot undertake the work. He further stated that the wharf was originally intended as landing places for small boats and not for schooners of heavy draught.

J. M. Kent, K.C., wrote again calling the Board's attention to the late at the rear of T. & M. Winter's premises. The Solicitor will be asked to report.

J. P. Blackwood wrote asking for definite information concerning Miss Knight's property on Leslie Street. The Engineer will report as early as possible.

Blackwood, for the Trustees of Cochrane St. Church, asked for the surrender of the property on Flavin Street, promised May 1st. The Solicitor will be instructed to have the tenant now on the property removed.

An application from Francis Woods was granted. Blackwood asked that the Council attend to the matter of the McLoughlin property. The Board will visit the place with the Premier next week.

The citizens of the north side of Quill Vidi presented a largely signed petition for extension of water and sewerage. The Engineer will report.

The Atlas Preservative Co., New York, wrote saying that a shipment of Tomate oil was made by the Florizel, the order having arrived too late to forward by the Stephano.

Ayre & Sons, Ltd., wrote the Board saying that a shipment of copper wire ordered some time ago was lost and that the order had been duplicated by cable.

Patrik J. Summers submitted plan of proposed dwelling on Signal Hill Road. Referred to the Engineer.

Mrs. Simmonds' application to erect a store on Pennywell-Road was also referred to the Engineer, who will examine the site.

The Standard Mfg. Co. submitted plans of proposed addition to their property. The plans were approved. Messrs. Callahan and Mills were awarded tenders for plumbing under the Small Homes Act.

Levi Froude, who had previously applied for permission to erect a dwelling on a site off Pleasant Street, wrote that he now intended to erect his building off Hamilton Avenue. The Engineer will enquire into the 'new site.

With the passing of pay rolls, adoption of reports and other routine business, the meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock.

THE THOUGHTS

MANNERS.
When you speak of a gentleman you naturally think first of his gentle ways and polite manners. You think of his courteous bearing to those whom he meets, and his graciousness to all. He may not be a great personage in mind or means; he may never have heard of Chesterfield or Dante or been able to buy a new suit every year, but the very pleasantness of him attracts you. Of course there are manners which are very much on the surface and plainly "put on." There are some that are sickly attentive. They are attentive for a purpose and of course generally overdo it. Your true gentleman is rather quiet than boisterous and forces his attentions on no one. He is above everything considerate for others.

A walk up and down Water Street and a visit to the many stores reveal a fact that a map's makers are no longer tested to the full behind the counter.

Generally speaking, it is impossible not to say that gentlemenly manners are in the majority. But that there are ungentlemanly and perhaps ungentlemanly is unfortunately true. The number of this class is small but it is quite enough to taint a certain dry goods shop where I have gone in and come out again without being served, yet I could see a small group discussing behind a pile of blankets.

It is very trying also to shop when the clerk who is serving you insists upon carrying on his conversation with a fellow-clerk at the same time. It is absolutely rude.

It costs little to be polite, even if it is only outwardly, and no matter how hard the conditions are under which clerks labour, the customer is grateful for any attention and has every right to expect it.

THE CLERK'S LOT.
And having said this I am all ready to sympathize with the lot of the clerk. I feel for him when a lady comes in and persisting on seeing almost everything in the shop, buys a reel of cotton; I feel for him when one customer after another without stop; I feel for him when he has to try to keep up a certain stock of a miserable salary and is expected to render efficient service. It seems to me also too rigid a rule that clerks are not allowed to sit down in business hours. I dare say it makes the clerks steal away sometimes to get a rest somewhere.

GIRL EMPLOYEES.
And I dare say that perhaps one of the main causes of bad service in many of the stores is not so much the independent, and if they were not in homes, could not exist at all. It is to see if girls are employed and on the face of it give as good service as men; why they should not get as good a salary as a man. Surely if they did not give good service they would not be employed, and why then should such an advantage be taken of their sex and their honest labour be half paid for? By employing a girl, a man acknowledges he is not acknowledging her right to be paid for it? Why should she be expected to live on half a man gets a salary or even less?

I confess that I cannot figure out in the majority of cases why a woman's work should be rated in money so much inferior to man's. It reacts too on the man's value. If a man employs a lot of girls at $3.00 per week, these girls are really taking the place of men, and if men are taken on they are rated lower because it is possible to get girls so much cheaper.

I don't know that I advocate whole sale employment of girls, but I can't find any objection to their being independent especially in spheres for which they are best fitted. And that

The Small Investors.

The British Government has taken a leaf out of the book of French finance with advantage. For a long time it has been the settled policy of France to encourage the small French investor to put his money in Government Funds, and this practice has had a notable effect on French thrift, which is the most marked of any nation on earth.

WENT BACK FOR GLASSES; CAPTURED A WHOLE TRENCH.

London, June 16.—In an address at University College, last night, Professor J. H. Morgan told a remarkable story of the winning of the Victoria Cross.

A young subaltern had a pair of binoculars of which he was very proud, and he bored everybody by exhibiting them. The subaltern and others in the trenches were on one occasion driven back by the Germans and went into the support trenches. Suddenly the subaltern cried: "Good God," and ran back to the trench they had left, which was then in possession of the enemy.

A sergeant who followed him came back shortly afterward to the commanding officer and said: "He has captured the trench, sir."

The commanding officer obtained some support and went to the trench, where he found the subaltern, with a revolver in each hand, standing before a whole row of Germans who had laid down their rifles and were holding up their hands.

The commanding officer afterward said to him: "You will probably get the V. C. for that, but it was a very foolish thing to do to try and recapture a trench single-handed."

"But," replied the subaltern, "I went back for my binoculars."

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, June 25.—The French Government has checked. Also desperate fighting on the front, captured positions being organized. About 700 prisoners were taken in the Ficht region on the 14th.

The Russian Government has announced the attempted German advance in the direction of Sevastopol and the capture of the Dnieper, the enemy suffering enormous losses. On the left bank of the Dnieper, the Austrians were pushed, losing about 1,750 prisoners. The Italian report is satisfactory.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, June 25.—On Lorraine the enemy pressed on two different occasions, endeavored to retake positions he had lost. In the Vosges two German infantry attacks were checked by artillery and infantry fire. The German forces were delivered against our troops at Reischackerkopf after a violent artillery bombardment. German tanks yesterday threw five bombs on the Sanatorium at Zyducoete without doing any real damage.

ITALIAN PROGRESS.

UDINE, Italy, June 25.—Slowly, owing to the difficult mountain warfare, but steadily with grim determination, Italian forces are advancing both from the north along the Fella Valley, and from the south through the Predil Pass towards Tarvis, which is the pivot of the classical roads along which every great invasion of Austria into Italy has occurred. From Javotta, which is about five thousand feet high, heavy artillery of the Italians has been sweeping the valley in as far as Plezzo which lies four miles away in a direct line. Big guns dominate the whole valley of the per Isonzo River and threaten it all fort.

SUBMARINE OFFICER HONOURED.

LONDON, June 25.—It is officially announced that the Victoria Cross has been awarded to Lieut.-Commander Smith, for taking a submarine in the Straits of Messina and sinking a Turkish transport and a gunboat. Two officers of the submarine were awarded the Distinguished Service Cross each, and the crew received Distinguished Service Medals.

MAIL FOR NEUTRALS.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—No protest will be made by the States against the awarding of American mails passing through neutral belligerents' territory for the purpose of delivering mail to the United States. Since the beginning of the war, mail messages have been sent through their territory, and here take the position that it would seem to be subject to the risks. Postmaster General Burleson has ordered that the mail to be sent by ships which do not stop at the ports of the belligerents.

SALVAGING THE TUNISIA.

LONDON, June 25.—Arrangements were made for salvaging the steamer Tunisia which was torpedoed off Lowestoft, Wednesday last by a German submarine. After being hit, the Tunisia was beached nearby and the crew landed.

N. Y. CONSUL RETIRES.

NEW YORK, To-Day. Sir Courtenay Walter Bennett, British Consul-General at New York since 1901, is retiring on a pension, having attained the age limit, after nearly forty years' service, fourteen of which he spent in the States.

ADDRESS FOR HALDANE. LONDON, To-Day. A movement is afoot to present an address to Lord Haldane, expressing appreciation of his services to the country and party.

STEAMER CAPSIZED. HALIFAX, To-Day. The Dominion Coal Co.'s steamer Cabot, commanded by Capt. Linthlop, and bound from Charlottetown, P. E. I., for Sydney, turned over at 11 o'clock on Thursday night off Prince Edward coast and went to the bottom. All the hands were saved. Her water ballast tank burst at 10 o'clock. In an hour she was on her port beam ends and sank. The captain and crew took to two boats and after twelve hours they were picked up and landed at Hastings.

JUST TOLD OF VENIZELOS VICTORY. LONDON, To-Day. The Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company says King Constantine of Greece, who has been seriously ill for some time, is improved so greatly in health that he has been informed of the victory of Eleutherios Venizelos, former Premier, at the recent national elections. The king expressed a keen desire to leave his sick bed before Parliament convenes. His physicians are said to be hopeful that he may not do so.

H. M. S. ORAMA AT CALLAO. LONDON, To-Day. The British auxiliary cruiser Orama arrived here yesterday for the mail and possible orders. She departed last night.

YALE'S DAY. NEW LONDON, Conn., To-Day. For the first time in years Yale University crews swept the river at the annual regatta with Harvard, and to-night Eli Alumni and under graduates are cheering their crews and Coach Guy Nickalls until the din is deafening.

WILL RECEIVE FOREIGN APPLICATIONS. LONDON, To-Day. It is officially announced that the Bank of England is prepared to receive applications for the new war loan from abroad. It is stipulated that telegraphic advice from foreign applicants must be received by the Bank.

CLAIM THEY HAVE PUNISHED THE AUSTRO-GERMAN FORCES THERE, and that by pushing up reinforcements, they have compelled them to retreat across the river. Berlin admits this reverse, but the Austrian communication says the Teutonic attack there is making progress. North of this area and still further north, over the frontier of Poland, the Austro-German advance is sweeping forward. Whatever the outcome of the struggle along the Dneister, the Russian armies have met with such reverses that the belief of military experts, from the standpoint of the Allies is that the Western theatre, seems the only quarter which holds the possibility of a decisive action during the summer.

THE FRENCH and German claims relative to the fighting on the Western front are widely at variance. Military observers believe that the French still have their eyes on Lille with its factories and railroad lines, and advance the theory recurrent by the persistent attacks week in and week out along virtually the same section of the German front, proves this.

Though meeting with the hardest resistance on the Dneister, the initiative in the East still rests with the Austro-Germans. Few military writers can hazard a guess at what their next move will be. It is argued that the situation in the west may at any moment become pressing. Germany and Austria may be forced to be content with having recovered Galicia and broken the Russian offensive without seeking further to humiliate her this time.

TURKS WITHDRAWING. LONDON, To-Day. A despatch from Rome states that the Turks have evacuated Adrianople and withdrawn to Chatalja lines. In view of the fact that previous despatches from that end had told of the Turks strengthening Adrianople, the foregoing must be accepted with reserve.

CYCLONE DEVASTATES TOWN. REDCLIFFE, To-Day. Damage estimated at half a million was done here early last evening by a cyclone which wrecked a large part of the town. Two lives were lost and ten injured. The cyclone seemed to strike the whole town, and in all directions buildings were blown down, roofs lifted, telephone poles blown over, and when the storm had subsided the town was almost totally wrecked.

NOT TO TALK ANNEXATION. LONDON, To-Day. The Amsterdam correspondent of the Morning Post says German newspapers have been ordered by the Government to abstain from discussion of any plans for the eventual annexation of Belgium by Germany.

"OUR TURN WILL COME." LONDON, To-Day. In Flanders we have made provisions for defence, however great the attack. Our numbers there are adequate for any task. Our turn will come, spoke Walter Ruman, President of the Board of Trade, in an address at West Hartlepool. We are learning now, Rumanian added, how to deal with the submarine menace. It is truer now than when the attempt was made in April that we have enough explosives for our own use. We are also overcoming our shortage in munitions.

11.00 A.M. BLEW UP AMMUNITION DEPOT. LONDON, To-Day. Bombs dropped by British aviators near Roulers, Belgium, caused an explosion at a large ammunition depot, also resulted in the killing of 50 German soldiers, who were loading an ammunition train.

COMMITTED SUICIDE. TOKIO, To-Day. Major Nakajima and Captain Hashimoto, Japanese officers fighting with the Russian army at Lemberg, committed Hari Karl, when the Galician capital fell, rather than suffer what they considered the dishonor of being made prisoners, according to official advices received from Petrograd.

PREPARING FOR ADVANCE ON WARSAW. LONDON, To-Day. A Central News despatch from Amsterdam, says several trains, loaded with heavy guns, have left Essen for the German front near the Rhine River in Poland, where it is believed they will be used in the advance against Warsaw.

2.15 P.M. ROMANIA AT WAR WITHIN A WEEK. NEW YORK, To-Day. A special to the American from Rome, says the Balkans are about to meet with such reverses that the European conflict, according to information of the most trustworthy sort received here to-day in diplomatic circles. Within a week, it is declared, Roumania will be at war. Her first act will be an attack upon the rear flank of the Austro-Germans in Galicia. Roumania will make an excuse for entering the conflict the demand for cession of Transylvania, which will unquestionably be refused by Austria-Hungary. It is declared here that the Roumanian envoy at Vienna has already been instructed to demand the cession of Transylvania, the consequence of foreign countries which would give valuable information to the Austrians. The majority of these correspondents have now gone to Zurich.

"ONE OF H.M.S.'S" SANK HUN SUBMARINE. LONDON, June 21. The official statement published by the British Government yesterday that the German submarine U-29, commanded by Capt. Otto Weddigen, was destroyed two months ago, was sunk by "one of His Majesty's ships." This belated announcement apparently was issued at this time to dispose of the report current in Germany, that the U-29 was rammed by a British tank steamer, flying the Swedish flag.

follow the Pope's initiative in future for the exchange of war prisoners or for other proposals in connection with the war, unless firmly assured that the Pope's attitude is not influenced by Austria. Cardinal Gasquet, Abbot of Benedictines, has been received in audience by the Pope. An English Cardinal protested against the interview with Cardinal Gasquet. The Envoy of Allies also urged the Pope to retract the interview. It is considered likely that the Pope will issue encyclical deploring the methods of war employed by the Germans.

OCCUPY ALBANIAN PORT. ROME, To-Day. Montenegrin troops, it is reported, occupied the Albanian port of San Giovanni de Medua on Adriatic Sea.

Emperor in Rage AT DEMANDS TO CEDE TERRITORY. Paris, June 21.—The news reaches Paris from Vienna that Emperor Francis Joseph is again being implored by Count Andrassy and German diplomats to give up territory to the threatening neutrals without making them fight for it.

The aged Emperor is harked by the military party, after his refusal to specifically satisfy the Italian claims, and they are now stiffening his back to insist on appeals to give Bukovina to Roumania and accord Home Rule to Transylvania.

Count Andrassy called at the Schoenbrunn castle last week and, it is said, fell upon his knees and implored the Emperor to give up Bukovina to save Hungary from a Roumanian invasion.

Emperor Francis Joseph burst into a rage and cried: "No one shall decree to me to dismember my empire without a blow. I defied Italy, and I will defy Roumania if necessary. Let events take their course, let the fortunes of arms decide this and every other question affecting Austria's honor. No one shall say that Francis Joseph ever cravenly yielded to the rapacity of covetous neighbors in Austria's hour of trial."

Foundation of Cunard's Fame. The Cunard line has always been a favourite. Probably there are few people who know of one of the soundest grounds for that feeling. In the Crimean War, when we were in the ridiculous position of having to face the possibility of raising reinforcements from France on the ground that we could not find transports, Clarence took Graham aside at a Cabinet meeting and begged him to sound the mercantile marine. At the next meeting Graham was able to report that Mr. Cunard had guaranteed transports for 8,000 men at once, and had refused to discuss terms, saying that these could be settled by arbitration after the war. "What is Mr. Cunard's Christian name?" asked Palmerston. "Samuel," said Graham. "Sir Samuel," said Palmerston, and kept the implied promise when he became Premier.

CANADA'S PROPORTION. At times we are tempted to boast of the part Canada is playing in the conflict, and of the number of men we have sent to the front. The Ottawa Journal, in commenting on this, says: "Great Britain is training one man out of every fourteen of her population, but Canada is training one man out of every fifty-three of hers." We certainly have nothing to boast about.—Journal of Commerce.

CORRESPONDENTS MUST QUIT. Geneva, via Paris, June 21.—News-paper correspondents who have been sending from Chiasso stories concerning the developments of the Italian campaign have been requested to leave the frontier, the Italian Government believing that they were so situated as to be in a position to send out news despatches to foreign countries which would give valuable information to the Austrians. The majority of these correspondents have now gone to Zurich.

If Head Aches And Your Ears Buzz You Surely Have Catarrh

It doesn't matter how long you have suffered, or how often you have failed to get relief—even though Catarrh may affect every organ in your body, you can be permanently cured by inhaling the soothing vapor of Catarrh-ozone. A few breaths through Catarrh-ozone Inhaler clears the plegm out of the throat and stops your cough. The nostrils are cleansed of offensive mucous discharge, and sneezing and sniffing stop at once. Partial loss of hearing and headache (very common symptoms of catarrh) are quickly cured, and in a short time every trace of catarrh disappears. Nothing can be simpler or more pleasant than Catarrh-ozone. It's healing piney vapor sends a warm cleansing sensation through all the air passages in the head and throat, and makes you feel better in half a minute. "My ears buzzed by the hour and I had frightful head noises," writes J. P. Purdy, from Port Huron. "Catarrh fairly filled my whole head and throat. I got relief mighty fast when I tried Catarrh-ozone; it hit the spot instantly. You bet Catarrh-ozone has cured me and I simply swear by it." Get the complete $1.00 outfit; it does the trick in a hurry—never fails; small size 50c.; trial or sample size 25c., sold by all dealers everywhere.

Question.

It is very easy to abuse and criticize, especially by irresponsible people who, as a rule, know nothing about the real merits and demerits of the object of their attack. No department in the public war service has met with such violent vituperation as that of the Censor. People are given to complain that the Censor withholds information from the public which would stir them up to greater enthusiasm in case of successes, and to more grim determination to bring Germany down to her knees in case of those temporary reverses which must take place from time to time.

It must be remembered, however, that this country is literally saturated with spies, Germans and pro-Germans, which are not confined to any one nationality, and that there are numerous sources through which every scrap of information that can be of the slightest utility to the enemy is freely conveyed to them. These facts show that the office of Censor and the suppression of information are two most important factors at the present time.

Further, the German General Staff employ a staff of experts to study carefully all enemy newspapers and point out the very smallest assertions which may bear in any way upon the conduct of the war.

Again, their manipulation of a great part of the Press in America is unbounded, and anything whatsoever that may be detrimental to our interests or to those of our Army in the field and our Navy would be made the most of. Therefore, it is manifestly important that they receive no help in this direction from us.

It has been said that there is too much censoring of soldiers' letters. But the most disastrous results might accrue from an apparently innocent statement in correspondence. For instance, a private sent home to his people a letter which appeared in one of the daily papers, and was headed with his regimental number, the name of his regiment, no town or place mentioned, but just simply giving the address of the British Expeditionary Force.

In this letter he told his parents that his regiment was in very comfortable quarters in a town somewhere in France, quite close to a picturesque old church, and a stream running through the town, where they went every morning for a dip. On Forgiving Our Rivals.

RUTH CAMERON

"And so Miss Margaret is going to buy an automobile. Well, I hope she'll never have cause to regret it."
"Miss Margaret" The tone of the speaker's voice, especially the tone in which she said was an unmistakable contradiction of her words. She didn't hope Miss Margaret wouldn't have cause for regret. On the contrary!

"Miss Margaret" is the daughter of a neighbor. She is a highly successful young business woman of about the same age as the speaker's daughter, and formerly a school friend. The latter, as you may already suspect, is not a successful young business woman. And that is why her mother speaks with spiteful emphasis of Miss Margaret and charitable hopes for the worst.

As Bad As the Fury of a Woman Scorned.
Hell may hold no fury to be compared with that of the woman scorned, but earth holds another resentment at least as intense, and that is the resentment of failure for success.

When you can see no good in anything a certain person does—
When you find your lip curling and a tone of sarcasm creeping into your voice as you speak of him—
When you feel depressed and resentful at hearing of his good fortune—
Look out!

Or rather, look in! Search your heart and see if you are not letting this deadly nightshade among emotions get root within it.

Full It Up By the Roots.
If you find it there, either make up your mind that you are willing to have it choke out such good and gracious growths as justice, friendliness and generous admiration, or set your teeth and pull it out by the roots.
The bitterness of many a humble to which is born with an embittered heart is not in its own humility, not in its own deprivations, but in some one else's grandeur, someone else's possessions. And this is especially true when the someone else is one who has once been a neighbor, a schoolmate or a co-worker.
"I do admire Lucille," someone said to me the other day about a girl who has married money. "She is so generous and nice to all her old friends. She is continually inviting them to her home or taking them out in her machine."

Easier to Forgive Failure Than Success.
Now without doubt Lucille is better than the snobs who desert their old friends in their struggle for advancement. And yet it does not seem to me that the virtue Lucille shows is such a difficult one. She has a lovely home and a stunning auto. The old friends whom she entertains cannot help envying and admiring, and envy and admiration make a pleasant atmosphere for their object.

I do not think Lucille's virtue is comparable to that of the man or woman who can keep on friendly terms with a successful rival, or carrying a chip on his shoulder, can praise his successes and never seek to detract from them, and can even keep from harboring any feeling of resentment. That is surely "a task for all a man has of fortitude and delicacy."

Question—Do you think a girl is of age to do what she chooses at eight-

Antipon in Canada.

SPREADING THE FAME OF THE GREAT BRITISH SPECIFIC FOR RAPID FAT-REDUCTION.

The burden of obesity is so distressing and so unimproving, and is generally so difficult to get rid of with any degree of permanency, that the introduction to Canada of the famous British Specific Antipon will be welcome in many quarters. The preparation is not unknown here already, but the obstacles in the way of its supply to the general public were necessarily great. All difficulties are now removed.

Ere the important discovery of Antipon the treatments usually employed for the reduction of weight included starvation, dietary rules, sweating and purging, together with mineral dragging. All these things are weakening in the extreme, and when obstinately persisted in, ruinous to the constitution. Antipon is diametrically opposed to such drastic methods.

To expel the superfluous fatty matter from the system is all very well, but the body must be amply nourished at the same time. Now, Antipon not only rapidly eliminates the excess of fat, but overcomes the unfortunate tendency to "run to fat." Ample wholesome food therefore becomes Antipon's strength-giving ally, and there is no need to dread that the extra nourishment taken will bring about a re-development of excessive fatty tissue.

Every dose of Antipon is a sure step in the direction of the recovery of beauty of form and vigorous nervous energy.

The decrease of weight is not a tedious process. Within twenty-four hours of the first dose there is a reduction varying, according to individual conditions, between 50 to 75 lb. The scales will be the unerring recorder. The daily decrease is eminently satisfactory. When normal weight and symmetrical proportions are regained the treatment is no longer necessary.

Antipon contains only the most harmless vegetable substances in solution, the liquid being in appearance like a light red wine. It is palatable, refreshing and slightly tart, and never occasions any unpleasant reactionary effects.
Antipon can be obtained at all drug stores, from stock or order, or in case of any difficulty a large case will be forwarded direct from the Antipon Laboratories, Store Street, London, W.C. Eng., carriage paid, on receipt of remittance for 5 dolls. 11c.

Durango's Captain

WAS IN STEAMER MOBILE WHICH WAS DESTROYED BY SUBMARINE.

The Furness liner Durango is expected to get away from Halifax some time this afternoon. Capt. Fortune is now temporarily master of that ship, replacing Capt. Chambers, who is well known on the Newfoundland route and is now on a well earned vacation. Capt. Fortune was last in command of the ill-fated s.s. Mobile, which was torpedoed off the coast of Scotland recently. Commenting on an interview with the captain on an exchange says: "The ship was sunk on April 26th off the island of Lewis, Scotland, by one of the most modern of German's underwater craft. She was a very large and powerful submarine," said Capt. Fortune, "and had a speed of twenty-two knots, far more than my ship could attain." He would not say where the Mobile was bound at the time nor where she was from. The steamer, which belongs to the Furness Line, was on Admiralty service and was used as a transport, though she had no troops on board when the submarine encountered her. The Mobile was about thirty miles off the north coast of Scotland and the officers were at lunch when a submarine dove in sight across her bows, although some distance away. An officer of the submarine ordered the crew of the Mobile to leave their ship and, as there was no other course of action open to them, they did so. The boats were lowered and put away from the Mobile.

Capt. Fortune and the men in his lifeboat were then ordered to go alongside the submarine and were taken on board. The Germans placed bombs in the boat and rowed it over to the Mobile. They clambered up the ship's sides and placed the explosives in her holds. The lifeboat was then rowed back to the submarine and Captain Fortune and his men were told to get back again. This they did. The bombs on the ship exploded and the submarine disappeared.

The lifeboats, which contained 24 men all told, then set out for the distant shore. By rowing and the use of the sails they made land safely. Captain Fortune says that he could not make out the number of the submarine but that she was very long and evidently one of the latest that Germany has produced.

The Mobile was a ship of 1,165 tons net.

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT.—The wedding of Mr. M. J. Knight, of the General Post Office, to Miss E. Meadus, will take place on Wednesday next, June 30th, at 7.30 p.m., at 26 Scott Street.—adv.

PIT PROP STEAMERS.—The S. S. Norburn, Atabara and Othello are now awaiting to get north to load prop. They are bound to Lewisporte, N. W. Arm, Green Bay, and Goose Bay, Clode Sound.

Strength and Vitality are combined in the invigorating tonic Ferrovim, which is very beneficial for Anemic women and children. Large bottles, $1.00.

BELLAVENTURE OFF.—The S. S. Bellaventure sailed again last evening for North Sydney to load coals. Returning she will get ready for her cruise to Hudson Bay waters, under charter to the Canadian Government.

CITY'S HEALTH.—Within the past week ten cases of diphtheria were reported in the city limits to the Public Health Office, and one patient died from the disease. There are now in hospital 29 diphtheria patients, 1 scarlet fever and 1 typhoid.

The Canadian Climate is good enough for anybody, even those with weak lungs. The first sign of a cold or cough should, however, receive prompt treatment with Allen's Cough Balsam.

WESLEY SUNDAY SCHOOL.—The Rev. Dr. Morton and Rev. P. R. Matthews, B.A., former Pastors in the Methodist Churches, West Circuit, are now temporarily master of that service in Wesley Church to-morrow afternoon, and short addresses may be expected from them. C. R. Steer, Esq., will preside.

HOME'S REPORT.—The S. S. Home which arrived at Lewisporte at 5 p.m. yesterday reports having made all ports of call in Green Bay. The captain reports the bay full of ice and says that fog was experienced during the whole trip. Up to date there has been no sign of codfish on that section of the coast but salmon are reported fairly plentiful.

PERSONAL.—Mr. A. Cecil Sinnott, of Heart's Content, Newfoundland, who is visiting town for a week, the guest of his uncle, Mr. Bren. L. Hennessy, of the cable staff, is receiving the congratulations of his many friends on having captured the first prize of fifty dollars, which was given for music by "St. Ann's" College, Charlottetown. It must be remembered that all the leading English newspapers find their way to Germany, as those of Germany do here. Further, the German General Staff employ a staff of experts to study carefully all enemy newspapers and point out the very smallest assertions which may bear in any way upon the conduct of the war.

Our New Sea Lords Two Good Seamen.

Admiral Sir Henry Bradwardine Jackson, who has just succeeded Lord Fisher, as First Sea Lord and virtual director of the King's Navy, is one of Lord Fisher's men and was intimately associated with that great officer in his notable naval reforms.

He is sixty years of age and has never courted publicity, so that he is little known outside his profession, where, however, he has a high reputation as a scientist and as a strategist. He is a quiet, modest, silent man who knows how to keep secrets and who has the art of getting his own way without fuss or argument.

Before attaining flag rank his service lay among the specialists. He was prominent in the torpedo branch, which has given the nation so many brilliant officers. He commanded the Vulcan, a ship of a peculiar type built to carry about with her a number of small torpedo-boats, after he had commanded the torpedo school ship Defiance at Devonport, the sister of the Vernon at Portsmouth. He specially distinguished himself as an electrician.

In 1902 he came to the Admiralty as Assistant-Director of Torpedoes. In the previous year he had been nominated a Fellow of the Royal Society for his splendid work in the development of wireless telegraphy. In which department his inventions were numerous, and were all placed at the disposal of the nation. In 1905 he became Controller of the Admiralty, an office which carries with it the duty of supervising the construction of ships and their design. His term will be for ever famous in that he witnessed the commencement of the Dreadnought, which was laid down in October of that year.

He left the Admiralty in 1908 for a brief period of command in the Mediterranean, where he took charge of the Sixth Cruiser Squadron. The force under his orders consisted of only four armoured cruisers, but this was the only fleet he ever commanded in normal circumstances, though in the naval manoeuvres of 1912, when the theme set was the defence of the British coast against a German attack, he commanded the Seventh Squadron, with his flag in the Illustrations. The years before the war he may be said to have spent in the study of its strategical and tactical problems. He commanded the Royal Naval War College from 1911 to 1913, and in 1913 became Chief of the War Staff, the department which exists to prepare plans for war in peace and in war to direct the operations, under the First Sea Lord.

A second appointment to the Admiralty has been made of an adviser who, though not technically a Sea Lord, will in virtual fact be one of the Board which controls the Royal Navy. This adviser is Admiral of the Fleet Sir Arthur Knyvet Wilson, better known to past generations of naval officers as "Tug" Wilson. Sir Arthur is seventy-three, and he has held important office at the Admiralty and served perhaps longer in command of large fleets than any living officer in our Navy.

He was First Sea Lord from 1909 to 1912, when Mr. Churchill somewhat brusquely retired him, offering him a Peerage which was declined. Between 1901 and 1907 he commanded our most important fleets and obtained an immense reputation as a tactician. Indeed he was always said to be the finest officer at handling a large fleet to be found in any European Navy, though he himself modestly rated Admiral von Kester of the German Fleet higher. He is famous like Molke for his silence, and he was never known to waste a word. His courage is of the most undaunted. At El Teb, one of the battles in the Sudan which seem to lie in so infinitely remote a past, he won the V. C. by his magnificent gallantry.

He has, it has been said, "an iron mind, a terrible courage, and a resistless will. He is stern with all, but on none is he so hard as on himself." It fell to the writer long years ago to sail more than once in his flagship and watch him at his work. He was indefatigable, being constantly on the bridge. He combined with his daring admirable caution. Thus on one occasion he was making a sweep with a large fleet, in which he was second in command, round the west coast of Ireland, in order to run into Lough Swilly, passing through a very powerful blockading fleet. His senior in command proposed to pass twenty miles west of Mizzen Head, the Irish signal station which was in the enemy's territory. He would take no risks. He signalled to his senior proposing to raise the distance to thirty or thirty-five miles so that the fleet might be certain of not being sighted; his wise counsel prevailed.

On that occasion with a large fleet he ran through the midst of the enemy on a wild and dangerous coast in wild weather—continuous sea, fog and drizzle and strong wind—in conditions so bad that for hours it was scarcely possible to see more than a ship's length ahead. That was the kind of work in which he rejoiced, and he trained his captains to perform it.

He is a man who does not know the meaning of the word "self." Of his personal interests he has been supremely careless; to serve his country well and uphold the fame of the Navy, has been the goal of his life.—Daily Mail.

Explosives We Daren't Make.

A Bluebottle Crawling on Iodide of Nitrogen Will Send It Off.

Explosives are solids, which, under certain conditions, suddenly change into heated gas occupying many times the original space of the solids.

Ordinary gunpowder, when fired, turns into gas, of which the volume is four thousand times as great as that of the powder. No wonder the bullet in front of it leaves the muzzle of the rifle in a hurry.

To-day there are scores, even hundreds, of different sorts of explosives known to science. Some, such as lydite, require a very considerable shock to explode them. Others, such as nitro-glycerine, are fearfully dangerous to handle, for a few extra degrees of warmth or a very slight jar is sufficient to turn them instantly into gas.

Of the latter type there is nothing quite so unstable as iodide of nitrogen. It has to be made in alcohol. When allowed to dry it appears as a brown powder, and so unstable is this powder that a touch with a feather will set it off. The experiment has been tried of leaving a few grains upon a table mixed with a few grains of sugar. The first bluebottle that flew on the table and began to crawl among the grains caused an explosion.

The mere jarring of the air by a loud shout or a heavy footstep is sufficient to detonate iodide of nitrogen, and it need hardly be added that no one in their senses would attempt to make this terrible stuff. To do so in any quantity would be equivalent to committing suicide.

"Goes Off" in a Warm Room.

Nitro-glycerine is not so dangerous as this iodide, but at a temperature of only a hundred degrees—that is, very little more than the warmth of the human body—it begins to decompose.

Tons of nitro-glycerine are turned out every day, for it is the explosive from which gun cotton is made. But all the mixing vats are artificially cooled by coils of cold-water pipes.

The cleaner nitro-glycerine is made, the less the danger. Consequently it undergoes any number of washings before it is fit for use. In the earlier days of its manufacture, nitro-glycerine waste water was allowed to run away through open drains, or into streams. It was not realized that this waste constituted a source of danger until, one day, a flash of lightning, striking the ground near a factory, which was soaked with this compound, caused a fearful explosion. A cavity twenty feet deep was blown in the earth, and the factory, itself, although fully 200 yards away, was practically demolished.

Lydite is, as we have already said, a very stable compound. It can be hammered or burned in the open without danger, and it requires a fulminate or more powerful explosive to set it off. Lead picrate is the usual agent employed.

Lydite Mustn't be Near Steel.

But here is an odd point about lydite. It must not be left in contact with iron or steel. If this is done the picric acid combines with iron rust to form a very dangerous compound. Consequently, all shells used to contain lydite are first carefully tinned on the inside.

Lydite is six times more powerful in its action than nitro-glycerine, and nitro-glycerine, in its turn, is eight times more powerful than the same weight of the old-fashioned black gunpowder.

Ordinary gunpowder explodes upwards. Gun cotton and dynamite exert their force in a downward direction, and consequently are far more valuable for blasting purposes.

If you take a fern leaf, lay it on a flat piece of steel, and on top of the leaf place carefully a small quantity of gun cotton. If the gun cotton be now exploded you will find a perfect outline of the leaf printed delicately on the slab of steel, thus proving that the explosion has been in a downward direction.

Each shot fired in the present war requires three different explosives. First, the detonator for the firing charge; secondly, the firing charge itself, which is usually gun cotton; thirdly, the shell explosive, lydite or some similar substance.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

"Is it correct or not for a gentleman to remove his hat while in a cab with a lady, also who should take precedence when entering a theatre?" queried Jack.

"He should not remove his hat in a cab while with a lady and in a theatre if there is an usher it is correct for the lady to lead her escort," his father informed him.

"Let Him Now Speak"

In the course of the wedding ceremony the minister asks that if anyone knows any just cause or impediment why the marriage should not proceed—"let him now speak."

Is this invitation treated as seriously as it should be?

Bishop Potter says that no man should be allowed to marry without having a reasonable amount of life assurance, and he is undoubtedly right.

The Canada Life has considered this very obligation on the groom's part and has a special policy for his needs, the Continuous Income Contract, under which the beneficiary is absolutely assured a monthly income for life.

Let us send you booklet No. 283, fully explaining this splendid policy.

Terrific Explosion by Gasoline Gas.

CAPT. PETIPAS' MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

(Western Star.)

The escape of Capt. Joseph N. Petipas, of Summerside, Bay of Islands, from instant death at the time of the explosion on board of his schooner Triton, last Thursday evening, is a marvel.

Capt. Petipas and his crew reached Curling by Saturday evening's train, when they were interviewed by the Western Star.

They sailed for Halifax in the schr. Triton, on Monday, 15th inst., with a cargo of bulked and barreled herring. On Wednesday he ran into a heavy breeze from the south-west, and put into Codroy for the night. He sailed from there the next morning, and when about ten miles north-west of Cape Ray, noticing that the vessel had been leaking considerably, Capt. Petipas went below to try and discover the leak. He struck a match to aid him in his search, when a tremendous explosion occurred the concussion of which hurled Capt. Petipas up through the companion way. The quarter was blown out, two beams broken off as though they were but matchwood, two plank torn from the main deck, the vessel shook from stem to stern, and was set on fire.

Capt. Petipas was rendered unconscious for a while. His left hand was badly bruised and he was considerably burned about the face and head. All the rest of the crew, however, escaped without injury.

Fearing other explosions, the crew left the vessel in the ship's boat and stood by. After a while they again boarded the craft and put out the fire. They then worked her in shore to North-West Cove, where they anchored her in seventeen fathoms of water. It was now after dark and they proceeded to Codroy for the night.

Next morning they went back to the craft to see what could be done in the way of salvaging the cargo and vessel, but found that she had been taken possession of by men from the vicinity and towed to shore.

The Triton was fitted with a gasoline engine auxiliary power, but the engine had not been used since last fall. There was no gasoline on board of the vessel at the time of the mishap, which, some authorities believe, occurred with mystery. The explosion is thought, however, to have been due to gas from gasoline, which may have settled in the bottom of the vessel from last year. The gasoline gas being much heavier than air, would settle down in the bottom of a vessel for ages, unless forced out by a current of air.

Novel Entertainment.

We hear that a novel entertainment will be given in aid of the Cots for the Wounded, on the afternoon of July 14th, in the grounds of the residence of Mr. Browning, Virginia, King's Bridge Road. It will take the form of a garden sale of children's smocked dresses and plain work, and a pastoral play: "On Zephyr's Wings," to be played on the open air natural stage amongst the trees. The sale is in the hands of the Avalon Nursing Division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, and the play is under the direction of the talented artist, Mrs. Chater. We sincerely wish them a brilliant afternoon for their novel entertainment.

CHILDREN'S MATINEE AT ROSSLEY'S.

There were a good many disappointed patrons of Rossley's last night, those who could not get in as the crowd was too great, for there could not be found standing room. The Sisters Martin again got first prize for their performance in costume; Mr. Mark Leonard, for dancing; and Mr. Molloy third, for singing; the other ladies were not so fortunate. Mr. and Mrs. Rossley received a perfect ovation when Mr. Rossley announced the closing down to allow them to take a holiday. Mrs. Rossley has worked very hard, and though she will enjoy a long rest she intends writing up two good comedies, one entitled "That Face at the Window," the other "When Mary Ellen Watches," both pure fun and very laughable. Mr. and Mrs. Rossley are held in high esteem by the people of St. John's for their ability as performers and generosity, and every one wishes them good luck and a pleasant holiday which is well earned.

GREAT PROGRAMME AT THE NICKEL.

The week end bill at the Nickel Theatre last evening was one of the finest ever given there. Everybody was delighted. The singing of Forbes Law Duguid was immense, it was the best yet. If you were unable to go yesterday be sure and attend this evening. Saturday night is always a good time to attend this popular house. The pictures were very favorably commented on last night, and all were delighted with them.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

There was a very good house last night at the popular little Theatre, and all enjoyed the first class performance. The two little singers were loudly applauded for their patriotic song which they sang in good style. There is always a good, refined show at the Nickel, and the pictures and good music, with clever little singers at "Ours."

"A FIRST CLASS PICTURE SHOW"

Was the favorable comment of all who attended the Crescent Picture Palace yesterday; there are five excellent pictures including a two reel Vitaphone masterpiece "Brandenburg Last Ride." This picture abounds in beautiful photography and contains some exciting scenes. The best juvenile play featured; "The Grate Imperial Circus" is also included in this program. This bill is being repeated to-day and should be seen by everybody. The Crescent management have made one price, 5 cents for afternoon and night.

THE CHASM.

Is a beautiful two reel Essayist production and it was greatly appreciated when shown at the popular British yesterday. A most interesting and unusual story, splendidly portrayed. The remainder of the programme was up to the usual high standard for which the Theatre has become noted. The drama "A Burglar's Sacrifice" is a very strong piece of work and the "pathetic story" is very well told. The photoplay "Real Things in Cowboys" is most interesting both from an entertaining and educational point of view as it gives a good insight regarding the life of the average cowboy. The comedies are "screams." Arthur, Priceman Cameron and one of his peculiar songs "rounds up" a pleasant and profitable evening's entertainment.

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE.

FRIDAY, 25th.

College Board of Governors met at 2.30 p.m. At 4 p.m. the Conference reassembled to receive the report of the Committee. The Executive presented a very favorable report. The College, like all other institutions of the kind, has suffered somewhat through the outbreak of the war. The total number of scholars in all grades were as follows:

London Matriculation	18
Associate	18
Intermediate	31
Preliminary	36
Primary	27
Total	115

Mr. Thorpe, V.P. resigns his position at the end of the present term and returns to England. Misses Marston and Lyman have also presented their resignations.

Dr. Fenwick presented the Report of the College Home. This year the expenditure is within the income. Only one case of withdrawal was made necessary through ill-health.

EVENING SESSION.

Dr. Chown, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church occupied the chair. After the usual devotional exercises, Dr. Chown gave a short introductory address. He expressed his appreciation of the opportunity of visiting Newfoundland this year. He had been slated for a visit to the Old Country, but owing to the present difficulties of transport the Executive Board persuaded him to defer his visit to a more peaceable time. This left him free for a while, an advantage which he seized to visit Newfoundland. He referred to the fact that there were some faces now absent which were present during a former visit, viz., Hon. J. S. Pitts, Hon. J. B. Ayre, Rev. J. M. Moore and others. Dr. Chown then made mention of the healthy condition of our General Missionary Fund. In spite of the many demands made upon the Methodist people during the past year, they did not reduce their missionary givings, but in some cases extended the amounts given during former years.

The Report on Temperance and Moral Reform, was then presented and adopted.

Prohibition Resolution:

RESOLVED, that this Conference places on record its appreciation of the opportunity provided for the first time in our history for enabling the people of Newfoundland to settle the problem of the liquor traffic. That this Conference stands for prohibition in this program. That it pledges itself to co-operate with any other temperance organization seeking this end.

Dr. Moore, Secretary of the Temperance organization of the church, was then introduced by the General Superintendent, and described as the Commander-in-Chief of the Temperance Forces of "Candid and Newfoundland." Dr. Moore accounted himself happy in having this opportunity of speaking to a Newfoundland audience at this time of our temperance activity. He made some patriotic references to the old Union Jack and spoke of it as the emblem of "honor" where it is the cause of "liberty." He urged for political liberty, it should stand for social and moral liberty. It protected the weak politically, it should protect the weaker brother against liquor traffic. Why not abolish it if it is a national peril? British honor demands that we destroy everything that festers the weaker brother. We must urge individual abstinence and total prohibition. Abstinence is better for the nation on economic lines. "Nearly all great railway companies of the North American Continent make total abstinence a condition of remaining in their employ. Total abstinence makes for endurance. Dr. Moore spoke about his meeting with Commander Peary in Sydney just prior to a banquet in New York, and presented him with the original flask of whiskey with the seal unbroken. Dr. Moore also referred to the statement which Lord Roberts made to him when that General was visiting Canada. Lord Roberts taking his hand said, "Temperance is a great work. Give me an army of teetotalers and I will lead them over any obstacle. Boys writing home from the firing line in Flanders stated that those who succumbed to exposure in the trenches were invariably those who took the rations of rum that were handed out."

On investigation by the speaker into 10 drinking families and 10 abstaining families, the following results were obtained: In the former out of a total of 45 children and grand-children, 11 were below normal mentality, 23 physically, 3 were hard and 13 were prostitutes. In the second family there were no criminals, but many judges, ministers of the Crown and leading professional men. In Alberta a great fight is being put up for total prohibition. In Saskatchewan total prohibition will be in force in less than a year. Dr. Moore urged the people to be energetic and not too sure of the outcome—fight to win—banish the bar with all its attendant evils.

Session closed by Benediction by the Superintendent.

THIS MORNING'S SESSION.

9.30-11 a.m. occupied with committees. 11 a.m. Conference reassembled to receive report from the various committees. At the noon hour Dr. Bland again addressed the Conference. This afternoon at 4 o'clock the Conference attended the Garden Party at Government House.

The Value of Our Own Spiritual Possessions.

Our Disappointments.
This War Has Brought Home to Us, as Nothing Ever Did Before, a Sense of the Value of Our Own Spiritual Possessions.

"We may find our consolation today, amid the anguish of loss and the sorrow for friendships parted and ideals shattered, in fixing our eyes on the guiding principles of our national ideal, seeking in the dangers and distresses of the moment new strength to carry into effect the principles by which our nation—or shall we say our great Commonwealth of nations—lives and has its being, new incentives to enrich our national life and character.

"We have to make it worthy both of the opportunities and of the privileged position that have been given us and of the great and glorious examples that we have inherited from those who have made England what it is.

Our Inheritance.
"Winds blow and Waters roll Strength to the brave and Power and Deity. Yet in themselves are nothing! One decree Spoke laws to them, and said that by the Soul of the Nations shall be great and free.

"It is in this spirit that as a united people we must maintain that concentrated and organised effort—with all our powers—which alone can establish our victory; and our victory, we are convinced, is the victory of freedom."

"No easy hopes or lies Shall bring us to our goal, But iron sacrifice Of body, will and soul; There is but one task for all, For each one life to give, Who stands if Freedom fall? Who dies if England live?"

So writes Mr. P. E. Matheson in one of the Oxford Pamphlets on "National Ideals" (3d.), in which he shows that Freedom and Justice are the qualities most characteristic of our life and conscience as a nation.

Our Diffidence.
He finely points out that this war has brought home to us, as nothing ever did before, a sense of the value of our own spiritual possessions, and as one reads his high appeal, one realises that our social ills are due to the fact that we have not completely lived up to and realised to the full those spiritual possessions, which are our national inheritance.

"Munitions of war," says Mr. Matheson. "But we need the weapons of the spirit as well as bread for our soldiers and ammunition for our guns. As Englishmen we are all at some disadvantage when we are called upon to state our ideals. Our native inclination is to do the right thing and make no fuss. We gain by this, and we lose.

"We gain something in that cheerful and undefeatable spirit which has been so splendidly displayed on many fields in this war, not 'sicklied o'er by the pale cast of thought,' we gain in freshness, in elasticity of mind, in initiative and enterprise. We do not take ourselves too seriously. One result of this is that our enemies call us hypocrites when we do on occasion state a principle, and careless-minded and decadent when we refuse to wear our heart upon our sleeve.

"But there is some loss on the other side. We have been too little in the habit of thinking things out. We have often omitted to ask ourselves or to teach our children what our national inheritance means and what England stands for in the world. We have rejoiced in the wide range of our possessions and the invincible ubiquity of our feet, but we have given far too little thought to the movements of the world at large and to international politics. That is not likely to happen again for some time after this war.

The Real Freedom.
"We are beginning to learn that freedom must be interpreted in a large sense if it is to satisfy the cravings of the spirit. It is a century since Wordsworth wrote

"It is not to be thought of that the Flood Of British freedom, which to the open Sea Of the world's praise from dark antiquity Hath flowed 'with pomp of waters unwithstood,' Roused though it be full often to a mood Which spurns the check of salutary bands— That this most famous Stream in Bogs and Sands Should perish and to evil and to good Be lost for ever.

"Wordsworth had seen the triumph and the disappointments of the French Revolution—the overthrow of barriers, but an overthrow which paved the way for the vast uncompromising militarism which in his great poems on Napoleon he was now eloquently combating. Freedom to him was something positive, vital, intolerant of absolute rule, rooted in character.

"It was the kind of liberty which Milton says: 'Unless your liberty, which is of such a kind as arms can neither procure nor take away, which alone is the fruit of piety, of justice, of temperance and unadulterated virtue, shall have taken deep root in your minds and hearts, there will not long be wanting one who will snatch from you by treachery what you have acquired by arms.'

"We, like Wordsworth, have had our times of disappointment as we watched the movements of enfranchisement in our own country; our Reform Bills have not accomplished all that was sometimes hoped of them; but nevertheless, if a large view be taken of their bearing on national life, we content that on the whole and in the main they have promoted that atmosphere of free life which is the indispensable condition of national well-being.

Freedom, then, regarded from this point of view, means the securing to each citizen of the opportunity of living a free life; not a life of 'unchartered freedom,' but a life which gives scope to his natural powers and which makes wise thinking, honest work, and good conduct possible for his achievement: a life which is not limited to personal well-being, but which recognizes a larger whole that has claims upon it, in return for the free conditions, the vital atmosphere which the State supplies. It is in this sense that Justice, our second principle of national life, is complementary to Freedom.

English Qualities.
"These great principles, which are the vital springs of sound political life, Freedom and Justice, are valuable only if they afford the basis of a sound national character.

"The eighty years since the Reform Bill have seen such vast social changes that the English world of today is immensely different from that of Peel and Palmerston; and yet throughout that period it would be true to say that a certain type of English character remains.

"Independence, a love of fair play, gentleness to the weak and helpless and wronged, a power of tough resistance to oppression or tyranny, a loathing of intrigue, a love of plain dealing—these are the qualities we associate with the Englishman of our choice.

Two Lessons Not Learnt.
"We have not yet learnt two great lessons," adds Mr. Matheson. "(1) In the adjustment of industrial conditions, as of all human relations, we need to apply the highest capacity of mind and character. This is all the more necessary because the invention of limited liability companies has removed some of the more human relations between employer and employee, which naturally arose when all businesses were under private management.

"(2) That no business can succeed without vital co-operation among all who take part in it. This is one among the problems which await us in time of peace. In the meantime, all of us have to think of nothing but how we can provide what is needed for the life-and-death struggle in which we are engaged.

"We must not merely learn to meet each occasion as it arises; magnificent as may be our power of improvisation, it cannot in the long run take the place of foresight and considered preparation. We must face our tasks with clearer vision; we must be less wasteful of our resources, material and moral, less hand-to-mouth in our policy, and more deliberately devote ourselves to strengthening and deepening our national character and training our people of all classes to understand our national ideal and to be able to defend it from attack.

Building a Common Life.
"What we seek to secure as the fundamental principles of our State life are freedom and justice, and on this foundation our ideal is to build a common life, strong and various, rich in the interplay and co-operation of all sorts and conditions of men, with adequate material resources and the possibility for all men of thought and imagination.

"How is this great enterprise to be confirmed and inspired? Many forces must co-operate. For many of us the strongest motive will be religious. They will find their impulse in the spirit of social service, and the personal sense of co-operation with a divine Master in a society of kindred spirits strengthened and inspired by common faith and worship.

"If the religious motive appeals to most of us, it will appeal in various forms, and it rests with each man to see to it that his religious sympathies stretch beyond the bounds of his own church and society, and that his religion may never be used to divide or to disperse the forces which work for the character and well-being of the nation.

The Roots of English Character.
"Let us turn to other influences. The English character is rooted in history and tradition; it is rooted also in local associations—the beauty of English fields, the glories of sea and sky, and the charm of ancient buildings. Let us remember that it lies with us to guard these beauties: not to be Huns in our own country—to defend it from outward dishonor and disfigurement.

All That England Stands For.
"In the master-poets of England—in the rich pagentry and noble passion of Shakespeare in the austere organ-voice of Milton, in the national sonnets of Wordsworth, in Tennyson's great 'Ode on the Duke of Wellington'—you will find inspiration for the principles of which you have been reminded. You will find them in what all true Englishmen cherish as part of their ideal—a sense of the dignity of human life and of the gravity of its issues, a passionate love of our country and of all the subtle associations that its history and landscape call up, a conviction that no nation can thrive on tyranny, and an abiding belief in the invincible spirit of man—

Thy friends are exultations, agonies And love and Man's unconquerable mind.

"This war has brought home to us as nothing ever did before, a sense of the value of our own spiritual possessions. As we have seen our young men go forth, radiant in the glory of willing service, to do battle for our great cause, as our hearts have thrilled with mingled sorrow and pride at their death, we have gained a deeper sense of all that England stands for."

How Sickly Women May Get Health

If they could only be made to see that half their ills are caused by impure blood, it wouldn't take long to cure them with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Truly a wonderful medicine that invigorates, strengthens, renews. Every tired, worn out, woman that tries Dr. Hamilton's Pills will improve rapidly, will have better color, increased appetite and better digestion.

No better rebuilding tonic can be found than Dr. Hamilton's Pills which are safe, mild and health giving. For forty years Dr. Hamilton's Pills have been America's most valued family medicine, 25c. per box at all dealers.

WHAT A HIGH EXPLOSIVE IS.

The shell question for our Army in France concerns the supply—not of shrapnel but of shell containing high explosive. These high-explosive shells are strong steel cases with a fuse, usually placed in the base. The charge employed may be either lydite—which is a preparation of picric acid—or tri-nitrotoluol.

The metal in the shell is fairly thick. The explosion is very violent, and has a thoroughly destructive effect upon anything near the point where the shell explodes—Concrete, walls, entanglements, steel shields for the trenches or for guns. The French and Germans use these shells to prepare the way for assaults on hostile trenches, demolishing with them all obstacles.

Shrapnel are quite different projectiles, and are serviceable against infantry in the open or lightly entrenched. They are thin steel cases containing a very small charge of low or moderate power explosive, which opens the cases and liberates a large number of bullets in them. These cover an oval area as they scatter and kill unprotected men. Shrapnel are useless against fortified positions, strongly built houses, or deep and well-planned entrenchments.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggist's."

Zylex, 50c. a box; Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake. Zylex, London.
