CHAPTER XXXVI

"The question is," said June critically, looking out of the window to the street where a fine drizzle of rain was falling, "does one, or does one not, wear one's best hat to go out and meet the one and only man one has ever loved?" She turned round and looked at Esther with a little nod. "That's grammar, though you may not think it my dear," she said.

Esther laughed.

"I should say one does wear one's best hat," she said decidedly. "Especially seeing what a very charming hat it is."

She leaned her elbows on the table and looked at June admiringly. "How long is it since you saw the great and only?" she asked.

"I saw him some rapid counting on her white fingers.

"Nineteen hours exactly," she said. "But it seems like fifty! Theatrical died with joy when his note came at breakfast-time." She looked at Esther wistfully. "You don't know how lovely it is to have some one of your very own," she said with unwonted sentimentality.

Esther averted her eyes.

"I envy you," she said quietly. "But you'll be late if you stand rhapsodizing here—be off!"

June bent and kissed her.

"I shan't be long—he's only asked me for lunch. . . ."

Esther smiled.

When Choosing the Material for a washable Frock for the growing child—

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabric in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy lather in an instant. Greatly reduces the cleaning foam through and through the solid texture—then rise in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

Packets (two sticks) may be obtained everywhere.

about my business and Esther?"

"Leave the one to look after the other," he said promptly.

She shook her head.

"I couldn't—I should hate to leave Esther alone; if only she could be married too!"

"Well—and her a husband. What about Mellows?" he suggested jokingly.

June's face sobered.

"Oh—Micky!" she said. She was not sure if she was justified in telling Rochester that Micky had once cared for Esther. "I thought he was practically engaged to Marie Deland," she said doubtfully.

Rochester gave an exclamation.

"That reminds me," he said. "There seems to have been a bit of a row at the Hoopers' dance last night. . . . I wasn't there—but I heard some fellows at the club talking it over just now. Do you know a man named Ashton?"

June smiled indignantly.

"De I not!"

"Well, if you don't like him, you'll be pleased to hear that Micky knocked him into the middle of next week," Rochester said calmly.

June's eyes gleamed.

"Never! Well, I'm delighted to hear it! What was it about?"

Rochester shrugged his shoulders.

"Oh, they were gossiping about some woman, as far as I could make out—a woman Micky had been rather friendly with from what I gathered—they didn't mention her name, but—"

He hesitated. "I've forgotten the name, but I think it was a petticoat shop."

"Glad!" said June sharply.

"Yes, that was it! What do you know about it?"

"Nothing—go on! What were they saying?"

"That she'd been to Paris with Mellows, and Mellows overheard it, and there was a bit of a fight, and Mellows said that the girl was his wife."

June gasped.

Rochester looked rather uncomfortable.

"It's only club talk," he said deprecatingly. "Paris say it's all lies."

June pushed back her chair; her brain was in a whirl; she stared at Rochester with dazed eyes.

"Of course you're mad, quite mad!" she said calmly. "Or I am! Which is it?"

My dear man, the girl Micky went to Paris with Mellows—"

He broke off before the anger in June's eyes.

"If you speak about Esther in that tone of voice again, I shall hate you for ever," she said furiously. "If you must know the truth, I'll tell it to you, and another time I'll don't judge people till you've heard both sides of the question," and she promptly proceeded to tell him the whole story of her meeting with Esther, and all that had happened since.

Rochester listened quietly, but when she had finished, he said—

"Micky ought to have finished that skunk last night, if he cares for Miss Shepstone."

"Oh, but I don't think he does now," June struck in sadly. "He hasn't been near her since they came back from Paris, and every one says that Marie Deland—"

"And when Miss Shepstone gets to hear what happened last night!" Rochester asked dryly.

"Oh, but she won't—she doesn't know anybody who would tell her, except you or me," June said positively.

"And of course she must never know," she never liked Micky, though why?" She shrugged her shoulders. "Have you seen him to-day?" she asked.

CHAPTER I.
ENTER THE HEROINE.

The scene was magnificent and in all ways impressive.

Imagine a deep valley, lying between a range of hills, high and ragged enough to be called mountains. A braving stream in spite of its size, flows through the valley fields, spars of grass, and broken by boulders of granite. It was an evening in March, heavy rain was falling, masses of clouds were scudding across the sky and capping the hills with mist; against the general blackness came, every now and then, spots of whirling, white sea-gulls. An intense solitude brooded over the scene, as intense a silence, broken only by the screech of the gulls.

Reading this description one would naturally imagine that it applied to some wild and almost unknown region in the Rockies; but this remote and solitary place was but a bare two hundred miles from London, and a busy market town lay within seven miles of it on the other side of a

added to adorable pattern

The same rich quality and lustrous finish of "Holmes & Edwards" silverware can be secured in all table appointments such as tea spoons, cake dishes, bread trays, casseroles, etc.

THE refreshingly new, exclusive patterns and the gleaming lustre of "Holmes & Edwards" silverware add an air of distinction and brilliance—make any table-setting more sumptuous and inviting.

Old-time craftsmanlike hand-burnishing gives "Holmes & Edwards" a sparkle—a mirror-like sheen—that flashes richly beneath the glowing lights. No other silverplate gleams so brightly. And apart from this rich lustre, hand-burnishing gives to "Holmes & Edwards" silverplate extra wearing quality.

Moreover, this beautiful product of the silversmith's art is protected at the wear points.

In "Holmes & Edwards" SILVER INLAIN blocks of solid silver are sunk and fused in before plating on the back of the pieces most often used—just where friction causes wear.

In "Holmes & Edwards" SUPER-PLATE these points are protected by an extra heavy deposit of pure silver.

To those seeking gifts for the June Bride or tokens for wedding anniversaries, no more welcome, lasting or fascinating choice could be desired than a selection of exclusive "Holmes & Edwards" pieces—the highest quality silverware made.

Esquimo Effects Escape.
LEFT MONTREAL IN CUSTODY LAST JULY TO FACE NORTH—KEN TRAIL.

THE PAS, Man., April 27.—(Canadian Press).—Oungwak, the Eskimo murderer, who to secure a wife, killed two of his fellow tribesmen, has escaped from the Mounted Police at Chesterfield Inlet and is now at large in the Arctic region, according to word brought here by trappers.

Oungwak was brought out to civilization a year ago to stand trial for the murder, but was ordered back to the scene of his crime to be tried where the witnesses were more easily available.

The Eskimo was arrested near the shores of Hudson Bay, and in order to bring him to trial at Chesterfield Inlet, near where the crime is said to have been committed, it was necessary to bring him to Montreal, and thence by the Hudson Bay Company steamer Nascopie to Fort Churchill, 400 miles from the Inlet. In charge of Sergeant Douglas, of the Mounted Police, and three other officers, Oungwak arrived in Montreal on the evening of July 12 last, and was taken on board the Nascopie, which sailed for the north two days later—Montreal Star.

It will be remembered that the Nascopie with this prisoner on board part into St. John's during the latter part of July, 1920 for coal supplies and water.

Never throw away your sour cream. Delicious pie crust may be made with it.

THE SPEAKER

The man who wants to make a speech in front of all towns in which we dwell; he stalks along the lonely beach, and lingers in the sylvan dell; for years I've tried in vain to reach a place where he won't come and yell. He speaks and will not be denied, wherever there is standing room; his mouth is ever yawning wide, and multiplies the public gloom, and when a delegate has died, he talks a circle round the tomb. I see him on a soapbox stand, and hear him howl until he's hoarse, predicting that our native land will be the home of all that's coarse, unless the government is canned, and Russian notions put in force. I hear his wordy thunders sweep beneath the fretted state-house dome; I meet him on the rolling deep, I see him everywhere I roam; and if the dog should be asleep he'd even invade my humble home. The chronic speaker seldom knows enough to last him over night; he hasn't coined the stately prose of sages who have deigned to write; his shallow stream of language flows without a saying thought in sight. If he'd but quit when he is done, we might forgive him now and then, but when his works begin to run there is no end and no "amen"; he strashes chestnuts by the ton, then thrashes them all o'er again.

Supreme Council Reach Complete Agreement.

Six Day Ultimatum For Germany--British Steamers Will Bunker at Rotterdam--Crown Forces and Irish Civilians Wage Fierce Battle.

GERMANY'S BILL. LONDON, May 3. The Supreme Council reached a complete agreement this afternoon on the substance of the ultimatum to be sent to Germany by the Reparations Commission, not later than May 6. The ultimatum expires six days later. The draft Committee is busy to-night completing the document, which will be finally passed at another meeting of the Council to-morrow and then handed to the Reparations Commission, which has been called from Paris, and which will forward the ultimatum to the Berlin Government. The ultimatum will be in accordance with the Treaty of Versailles. The total sum which Germany will be called upon to pay has been increased to $150,000,000, plus the sum due Belgium on account of her debts to the Allies. Under a bonding scheme to guarantee the payment of $100,000,000 annually, a 25 per cent.

per cent. on German exports for the purpose of providing a fund to pay interest on the Bonds held in reserve. The interest on any Bonds paid off will continue for the purpose of the sinking fund. It is calculated that these Bonds will be redeemed within 27 years from the date of issue. In no case, according to the scheme, will Germany be paying more than five per cent. interest and one per cent. sinking fund on a total debt of $4,750,000,000. These amounts are to be a charge on German Customs or any other revenue that the Reparations Commission is prepared to accept. The Reparations Commission will receive the Bonds and apportion them among the Allies in accordance with the Brussels agreement. Each power will dispose of them, or hold them, as it pleases. The Allied Supreme Council decided to-day to invite the United States to send representatives as members of the Supreme Council and also to be represented on the Reparations Commission and Council of Ambassadors.

BUNKERING WITH GERMAN COAL. MONTREAL, May 3. Instead of taking bunker coal for the round trip here, the usual practice when there are coal strikes in Britain, some of the British steamers will take bunker coal at Rotterdam for the west bound trip. It is said to-day, the cost of the coal, it is said, is being written off the German indemnity.

FARRELL'S STATEMENT DEMAND-ED. LONDON, May 3. The British Government has sent no message to Sinn Fein "by anybody or authorized anybody to open negotiations in its behalf." Austen Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons to-day. The statement was made in answer to a question concerning the activities of John J. Farrell, former Lord Mayor of Dublin, who stated that a peace offer had been made to the Irish Government.

U. S. IMMIGRATION BILL. WASHINGTON, May 3. The Senate to-day passed the Emergency Immigration Bill, fixing the admission of aliens to three per cent. of each nationality resident in the United States in 1910. The Bill is effective for fourteen months, beginning fifteen days after its enactment.

JEWISH CASUALTIES. WARSAW, May 3. Jewish newspapers estimate that there were five hundred casualties among Jewish Socialists on Sunday, resulting from clashes with police. Polish newspapers estimate that about twenty persons were hurt during the day.

BATTLE IN IRELAND. LIMERICK, May 3. In a five hour battle last evening near Gallybally between 150 civilians and Crown Forces, six civilians were killed and fourteen others wounded. It was officially announced to-day. Two soldiers were wounded, one of them seriously.

DISASTROUS STEAMSHIP FIRE. SEATTLE, May 3. Nine persons are believed to have lost their lives in the burning yesterday of the Japanese steamship Tokuyo Maru off Cape Mears, Oregon.

DE VALERA'S APPEAL. DUBLIN, May 3. The proclamation for elections in the Southern and Northern Districts of Ireland will be signed to-morrow and the clerk for the Crown will immediately issue writs. It was announced in Dublin on Tuesday. Eamon De Valera to-day issued a manifesto to the Irish people appealing to them to rally to the Republic standard at the coming elections. "By an overwhelming choice of Republican candidates at the elections in 1912 you made known your will in a manner unmistakable," he said. "De Valera appeals to the electors to confirm the authority granted to the Irish Republican Government in 1912 to strengthen the hands of the Government."

TO CONSULT WITH U. S. LONDON, May 3. The Allied Supreme Council to-day decided to take no naval action against Germany without consulting the United States.

SILENTA DISTURBANCES. LONDON, May 3. As a result of the disorders in Upper Silesia, the Inter-Allied Commission, last night, declared a State of Siege on several Urban and Rural Districts, says Reuter's despatch from Berlin. Report says the French occupied several towns after ousting armed Polish insurgents. Destruction of railway bridges is reported, and two are said to have been killed at Tarnowis during fighting with French cavalry.

Unsolved Mysteries of the Sea.

ALLIES UNANIMOUS. LONDON, May 3. Nine days remain for Germany to inform the Entente of her intentions relative to the payment of reparations and five guarantees for the execution of her promises. She must deal directly with the Allies. It was believed here to-day, as Charles E. Hughes, United States Secretary of State, was deemed to have closed "the door to Washington." In the note he sent to the German Capital, late last night. The sum of 6,000,000,000 pounds was fixed yesterday as the principal of the German reparation debt. Pending a reply from Berlin, France and Great Britain will be preparing coercive measures. Upwards of 150,000 men of the class of 1919 have been called to the French colors. The Times asserts that the Allies are believed to be unanimous on all main points.

URGENT RENEWAL OF NEGOTIATIONS.

AMSTERDAM, May 3. The International Federation of Labor to-day published a statement demanding the immediate re-opening of negotiations between Germany and the Allies on the basis of the latest German proposals concerning reparations.

Grenfell Meeting at Philadelphia.

Quaker City Turns Out En Masse. On April 22nd the great Academy of Music was filled when Henry G. Bryant, who discovered the great Falls of Labrador in 1882 and has since made three visits to Labrador, presided at the Grenfell meeting. He spoke of the work that he had watched during these years with greatest appreciation.

Captain Robert A. Bartlett, late commander of Admiral Peary's ship "Roosevelt," came down from New York especially to introduce Dr. Grenfell. He spoke of the first years of his life in the Arctic. The man was sitting in a chair, and leaning back in a most natural position, with all the freshness of life in his attitude and expression. No clues were obtainable in explanation of the mystery.

There is another that took place in West Indian waters, and it rivals the weirdest supernatural occurrence on land. A Dutch liner for Caracas fell in with a tramp steamer, which plainly was not under control and without a crew. On the Hollanders having boarded her, the only living thing encountered was a great retriever, and it seemed at first to be mad with terror, but in time calmed down, whining, on hearing human voices and seeing friendly faces. Steam was yet

Unsolved Mysteries of the Sea.

Steam has robbed the sea of much of its romance, and wireless telegraphy has annihilated the stretches of ocean. But the ocean's mysteriousness, maybe, the dreamers wonder that none has witnessed and told, yet which appear to occur, still remain. One of the latest ships of unsolved mystery is a trading schooner. She was picked up by a United States steamer in the Mid-Pacific, drifting before the trade wind. She was sound and seaworthy, and apparently had not encountered any bad weather, but neither of her boats on board her, and neither of her boats were missing. All was in order, including the captain's papers and cash-box, and the trade-room and liquor cases were undisturbed. In her deck-house, where a lamp had burned itself out, lay an Australian journal many months old, and it had a spot or two of dried blood on it; and there, too, a parrot lay dead in its cage. What had become of the crew is one of the unsolved mysteries of the sea.

There are a number of like instances on record, and, doubtless, many more that have escaped attention. Such a mystery is not confined to any particular one of the Seven Seas. The oceans of the world have similar instances. In the Barents Sea, south of Spitzbergen, a whaler out of Peterhead, Scotland, sighted an odd-looking "devilfish" with running gear and standing rigging broken and flying loose, canvas in tatters, and hull battered and weather-worn. Her boats were gone. When she was boarded it was seen she had been built in the early years of last century, and had been icebound for years; ice and snow encumbered her decks and hatchways. In the main cabin lay there on the floor the body of a young and beautiful woman, perfectly preserved by the "ice" sitting near her, and not far from the ashes of the long-dead fire, was the corpse of a young man, still holding in his hands the flint and steel, which it appeared to be yet striking. In a cabin off the cuddy was another body, embalmed by the Arctic. The man was sitting in a chair, and leaning back in a most natural position, with all the freshness of life in his attitude and expression. No clues were obtainable in explanation of the mystery.

In 1911-12 the captain of the French sailing-ship, "Emilie Galline," reported a strange mystery ship. When rounding the Horn his vessel encountered a field of icebergs, and while groping her way into open water she passed a gigantic berg to starboard which carried on its pinnacled summit 120 feet in the air, a large three-masted sailing ship, partly dismantled but otherwise intact. No human beings were on the berg, and her boats did not appear to have been launched. What sudden tragedy and mystery of the sea were behind this vessel's story? Equally mysterious is a case that was reported from the South China Sea. A steamer of the Messageries Maritimes fell in with a large Chinese junk with all her mat sails set, and making her course at her own sweet will. From the way in which she was yawing about, suspicions were aroused on board the Frenchman, and a boat put off to her. Not a person was found on board her, dead or alive, though it was very plain by the personal effects, clothing, etc. she had been crewed.

It was at first supposed that this was the work of pirates, but that this suggestion was wrong lay proved by the fact that her cargo, a rather valuable one of silks and other commodities, had not been broken into, nor had large sums of money been touched. There were no signs of bloodshed or of any violent fight. All was just as if the crew and passengers were lying invisible. Only on the foredeck, near the hatchway, lay a large knife with a jade handle, on which was carved the hideous face of some demon. As the weather was threatening no attempt was made to tow the derelict. Her cargo was transferred and she was set on fire.

The classic instance is, of course, that of the "Mara Celeste," a well-manned and well-found brig with, all told, twenty of a crew, including the captain's wife and little daughter, she set sail from Boston for the Mediterranean. Six weeks later she was picked up, all sails set, off Gibraltar with not a soul in her, and no boats missing. The cabin's breakfast was still on the table. Like the others, the mystery of her is not to be solved.—Saturday Night, Toronto.

These Eternal Meals

"WHAT to get for dinner? What to get for supper?" To-day, to-morrow, next day, every day in the week.

This is woman's problem and the source of almost endless worry.

True, there are times when most women take a pleasure and pride in cooking and baking, but when you are not feeling up to the mark it does get on your nerves and become a real worry—a nerve-exhausting worry.

Since meals are essential to life, the old problem of "what to eat" must endure, but need not be a worry when your nerves are set right.

It is when you are tired—nerve tired—that such things become a source of worry. There is nothing like Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to combat this condition.

It is because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is such a help under these very conditions that it has come to be relied upon by the great majority of Canadian women. Headaches, sleeplessness, tired, depressed feelings, lack of energy are some of the accompanying symptoms.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, etc. is sold by all dealers, or GERALD S. BOYLE, Agent, St. John's.

In the boilers though shut off from the engines; in the galley where the breakfast for the fore-cabin, and the officers' mess-room; in the charthouse a panholder lay stuck between the pages of the logbook, the ink on its nib not yet quite dry. There were no signs of great disorder, of storm, or fight; but two lifeboats and the skiff were missing. What had become of her entire crew? Why was the dog so frightened? Another instance in recent years is that of "J. Hopkins," out of Savannah, U.S.A., for St. Thomas's. One morning a settler living on the west side of Anegada, the British Virgin Island group, saw that a sailing vessel had taken the ground on Horse-Shoe Reef, and gave the alarm. On the Anegadans having put out to her, it was found she was the "J. Hopkins" and had no crew. All sail was set, the fire in the caboose was burning; in the skipper's cabin a pipe lay on the table and a half-emptied tumblerful of rum and water. Above and below deck everything was in order and in its proper place, save that one of the two boats were gone. Where was her crew?

What had happened has never been explained. It is possible, though, that on the calm setting in the boat had been lowered with all hands aboard to tow the ship, that somehow the small craft had parted company, and, caught in the grip of one of the many currents running strong in that locality, had taken the men to a terrible death of thirst and madness.

In 1911-12 the captain of the French sailing-ship, "Emilie Galline," reported a strange mystery ship. When rounding the Horn his vessel encountered a field of icebergs, and while groping her way into open water she passed a gigantic berg to starboard which carried on its pinnacled summit 120 feet in the air, a large three-masted sailing ship, partly dismantled but otherwise intact. Brings Friend's Body From the Wilds.

Garrying out the last wishes of his partner and brother-in-law, Ward E. Brown, who died April 6, from pneumonia, in their prospectory, about near Clear Water Lake, 150 miles north of Sioux Lookout, Ont., T. Barker has taken the body to bury it beside the dead man's wife at Plaisance, near Grand Rapids, Michigan. With the body of his friend encased in several thicknesses of tarpsaulin and strapped to a board, Barker started out alone on the long trail of more than 150 miles into civilization. He covered the distance in eleven days by canoe, dog-team and toboggan. After part of the journey had been accomplished he took an Indian in company. Their route lay through absolute wilderness, and sometimes they had to cut down trees to get the body through. They were in the far north prospecting for gold.

An Amazing Agreement.

Under the agreement entered into between the Government of Newfoundland and the Dominion Iron and Steel and the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Companies the following stipulations are made:

(1) An export tax of twenty-five cents per ton for 20 years, from January 1, 1921, on all ore shipped to Nova Scotia.

(2) Free exportation to all other countries other than the Dominion of Canada.

It is a cause for wonder why an export tax is fastened upon ore shipped to Nova Scotia only, or why such an absurd penal claim—as that which follows is inserted, as though the framers of the draft agreement considered this as an after thought, and the eminent Counsel looking after the interests of Newfoundland also saw eye to eye with them:

"In any year that the shipments to Nova Scotia amount to one million tons, there shall be no tax on the ore shipped to any other place in Canada."

The whole agreement as published leads one into a maze and does not make any attempt to secure for Newfoundland any privileges whatever. It is a clear give-away to the Companies operating on Bell Island, and all the eggs have been deliberately placed in their basket.

Let Newfoundlanders ask themselves why there should be a tax placed upon ore from Bell Island shipped to Nova Scotia, a British province, while there is to be free trade in this article of commerce with all the rest of the world? Germany, Britain's whilom enemy, and incidentally the enemy of the universe outside her own possessions, is permitted to receive any quantity of iron ore from Bell Island, without restriction, which same ore may be turned into war munitions to be ultimately used against Britain.

Have we forgotten our prime duty to those Newfoundlanders who fought and died that the dragon of German conquest should be destroyed and the imposition of German kultur prevented. Yet now a patriotic (?) Government places in the hands of an implacable foreman a weapon wherewith to retaliate eventually for the defeat which that country suffered.

Shipwrecked Crew Home. The crew of the E. Harris, Ltd. bark, Quince, have returned home after a voyage of 100 days. The vessel was wrecked on the coast of Nova Scotia, and the crew were rescued by the U.S. Navy. The vessel was carrying a cargo of iron ore, and the crew were stranded on a small island for several days before being rescued.

Antes has Newfoundland that the exports to Nova Scotia in any year, providing the agreement goes through—which Providence and the Opposition foretold—will come up to the expressed conditions. We have "other parts of the world" quite contiguous to our coast. There is a portion of France not an hour's sail from our main-land, and what is there in the agreement to prevent the Bell Island Corporations from exporting cargoes to St. Pierre and taking clearance there, subsequently changing their papers at the French port and routing such cargoes on to Cape Breton, by arrangement. There is nothing in the agreement to prohibit this, neither is any provision made for such a contingency. Yet it can be accomplished. Sentiments of honor should play no part in making terms of commerce. Agreements relating to exports of natural products should be made strictly with an eye to business, and there should be no loopholes left whereby either the first or second party can crawl through. This amazing agreement demands the scrutinizing care of the Opposition in the House, the members of which should not let it go through until they are perfectly satisfied that the interests of Newfoundland are thoroughly safeguarded.

Editorial Note.

We have been asked by Hon. M. P. Gibbs, K.C., to state that he had no knowledge whatever of the Bell Island Ore Tax Agreement, and did not see the Bill until published in the newspapers. Neither had he anything to do with the drafting or examination on behalf of the Government. We make this explanation in justice to Mr. Gibbs, the reference to whom in our leading article of yesterday, may have caused a misapprehension on the part of readers.

Served in Navy.

Bert Noel, of Harbor Grace, Nfld., has gone from North Sydney to Vancouver, where he takes a position as first mate with a steamer commanded by his brother, Captain Lewis Noel. Captain Noel spent five years in the British navy during the war, his activities being confined to work in the English Channel and the North Sea. He had several encounters with German submarines, but managed to escape without injury. Halifax Herald, April 26th.

Graduating Recital.

A Graduating Recital was given at the Fawcett Memorial Hall, Sackville, N.B., on April 29th, by Miss R. Alice Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Woods of this city. Recitation in Miss Woods' specialty, and she was assisted by Miss Kathryn Thompson, soprano and her brother, Mr. John Woods, baritone. The programme consisted of seven numbers, four of which were rendered by Miss Woods, two by Miss Thompson and one by Mr. Woods. It is probable that this talented young lady will repeat her recital here during the coming season.

Stolen Car Recovered.

Machine Considerably Damaged. The motor car which was stolen from Sir Michael Cashin, and found near Nash's Holyrood, was brought to town yesterday evening under its own power, after quite a lot of temporary repairs had been effected. The machine is considerably damaged, caused by its leaving the road and striking a stump of bushes. The headlights, radiator, dasher and steering gear are the parts that received the most damage, and it will cost a considerable sum to have repairs effected.

Outport Nurses.

Lady Harris entertained at Government House on Monday afternoon, the members of the Outport Nursing Committee and a few friends interested in the work to which God-speed to the two nurses just arrived from England who were on the eve of their departure to their districts. Hon. Dr. Campbell, Chairman, and the Rev. Dr. Jones besides Lady Harris, represented the Committee and there were also present amongst others Mrs. Campbell, Dr. and Mrs. C. Macpherson, Lady Crosbie, with Nurse Smith and Nurse Casement who happened to be on leave from their districts. The Rev. Dr. Jones made a brief and appropriate address welcoming the two new nurses, and also complimenting Nurse Smith and Nurse Casement on their successful work. Much interest and amusement was caused by the announcement that Nurse Casement at Kona, Hawaii had been called in to do a desperate need, and had subsequently operated upon her with chloroform to the great delight and satisfaction of the owners. Of the new nurses, Nurse Harvey is already on her way to Joe Batt's Arm, while Nurse Grimley leaves in a day or two for the north west coast near Fort Saunders.

L. S. P. U. Decide

TO WORK COASTAL BOATS. The L.S.P.U. met last night at the Union Hall, Victoria Street, when the matter of handling the coastal boats and the work of any firm not offering reduced wages was discussed. President Flavin occupied the Chair, and read communications from the Minister of Shipping and several other people, offering to pay the old scale of wages if the men would handle their work. After a discussion of the matter it was decided that work with these firms would resume this morning.

The Title of Black Rod.

"Black Rod" derives his title from the fact that this is his badge of office. His duties are to maintain order in the Lords; he can take into custody any peer guilty of a breach of privilege, and he summons the "faithful Commons" to the Upper House whenever their presence is required. He is also Chief Gentleman Usher to the King, and the Door Keeper of the Chapter of the Garter; he is also a member of the Order.

The Labor Situation.

The Union men who had been on strike since Monday last, resumed work on the S.S. Fortia, which is loading for the Westward. The men also went to work discharging schooner cargoes of coal for Messrs. Hyman, Darby and Morey, the employers of labor on reduction in wage. At practically every other waterfront premises there is no work being done by Union men. At an East End mercantile premises the office hands and others around the place donated overall this forenoon and proceeded to launch loading a vessel with fish for market. Yesterday at an uptown mercantile premises the owner, his son and a number of permanent employees, did good work unloading fish from a schooner. Generally there is no change on either side with regard to the positions taken. The Longshoremen evidently are waiting "till next week, when three or more steamers are due.

L'Envoi of the Suffrage.

When the Suffrage Petition is granted And the feminine vote has been won, When the oldest woman has voted And the youngest woman is old, We shall rest, and faith we shall send. Sit down for a moment or two; Till the militant leaders of Fashion Shall set us to work anew. Then those that can vote shall be happy; They shall sit in a golden booth And register what their sex is. Without regard for the truth; They shall have real ballots to vote with. Thought of course, made pretty and small; They shall vote three or four times over, And never be noticed at all. And only the woman shall count votes And only the woman shall sort; And no one shall care if they're surplus. And no one shall care if they're short. But each in her very best bonnet, And each in a separate pen shall vote just as she has a mind to for the law that will be then.—CAROLYN WELLES. Curtis for plaintiff, asks leave to withdraw the appeal. Leave to withdraw was granted on payment of costs. Robert G. Reid vs. Sir W. D. Reid. This is a motion for an order to void or set aside. Howley, K.C., for plaintiff, is heard in support of motion. L. E. Emerson is heard against the motion.

The Washing Cap.

"The Washing Cap," the operetta which is being presented this evening by the pupils of Bishop Spencer College at the Casino, is a production which is well worth seeing. The dramatic talent shown by the very young performers is amazing and the staging is very good indeed. Many of those who saw the operetta in December are going again to-night to renew their acquaintance with it, and this alone speaks well for the excellence of the performance. There is a fine vein of comedy running through the operetta and the audience is bound to be greatly pleased with every part of it. The C.L.B. Band is assisting at to-night's performance.

Coal Dropped.

The schooner Harry and Ferns with a cargo of screened coal is now discharging at Marshall's wharf. The coal is selling at $18.50 per ton sent home, a reduction of $1.50 on the ruling price. This cargo is pressed which at Sydney cost 35 cents more than run of mine. It is not unlikely that further reductions will take place during next week.

Marine Firemen Meet.

The Firemen's Union held a meeting in the E.S.P.U. Hall last night. President R. Scobie occupied the chair. Matters in connection with the Union scale of wages were discussed and consideration also given to the firemen of the S.S. Sulu, who signed on yesterday at $40 per month. Only one of these men belonged to the Union, and he will be dealt with upon his return to port. It was decided at the meeting that a reorganization of the body should take place, and in future only competent men would be taken in the ranks.

A Big Plate of Home Made ICE CREAM.

This Freezer is small, but it will make two quarts of Ice Cream, enough for quite a large family. It weighs only 2 1/2 lbs., and may be kept on the pantry shelf. It saves ice, for it requires about half as much as a freezer with a wooden tub. It can be placed in an ordinary refrigerator after the cream is frozen.

This saves ice and time and labor in packing.

Two Quart Sizes, $2.00 each.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

DEFAULTING PAYMENT.

PARIS, May 4. The Reparations Commission has addressed a letter to the German War Burdens Commission, recapitulating correspondence with regard to the obligation, resting upon Germany, to pay an equivalent of twenty billion gold marks before May 1. The letter says that Germany, in default to the extent of at least twelve billion marks.

A STRIKE APPEAL.

LONDON, May 4. An appeal to the whole labor movement to support miners was issued last night by a joint committee of the Parliamentary Labor Party, National Labor Party, Executive and Parliamentary Committee of Trade Union Congress.

CAUSE OF PREPLEXITY.

LONDON, May 3. Financial clauses to be included in the Allied ultimatum to Germany caused the Supreme Allied Council great perplexity to-day. There were wide differences of opinion relative to German guarantees. Prince Sapieha, Polish Foreign Minister, has arrived here in connection with a decision incident to the determination of the frontier between Poland and Germany in Upper Silesia.

TROUBLE BREWING.

ATHENS, May 3. Serious conflicts have occurred between Albanians and Greeks at Coriza, a city on the border between Macedonia and Albania. Eleven Greeks are reported to have been killed and wounded. Greek newspapers say the disturbance was due to French and Italian influence, and it is said the Greek Government considers sending an army to occupy the disturbed area.

THE RESCUE SHIP.

SEATTLE, May 3. United States army transport Buford was to-night steaming down Puget Sound for Seattle, bearing on board sixty five passengers and members of the crew of the Japanese steamer Tokuy Maru, rescued when that steamer burned off Oregon Coast last night, with a possible loss of eight lives. Twenty six survivors were confined to Buford's Hospital suffering from exposure. One member of Maru's crew died in a lifeboat, while being taken to the Buford, and seven others, menaced by the advancing flames, leaped into the ocean and it is believed were drowned.

HOPEFUL SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, May 3. A conference to be held to-morrow, of all parties to the Marine Labor Controversy, is under consideration, according to Chairman Benson of the Shipping Board to-night. Secretary of Labor Davis has been in charge of the Government's efforts to end the controversy since yesterday, and the situation now looks very hopeful.

OPTIMISM EXPRESSED.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 3. Optimism over progress of strikes to enforce demands for a forty four hour week job-in-job and book printing offices throughout the country, was expressed by International Typographical Union officials here to-day. Strike reports received from one hundred and twenty five local Unions show four thousand five hundred men out. J. W. Hayes Secretary said. The whole number of men affected by the strike will be a few less than a thousand he estimated.

AGREEMENT REACHED.

LONDON, May 3. Sir Eric Geddes, Minister of Transportation, announces to-day that Government had reached an agreement with railway, for which it would pay fifty one million pounds sterling in complete satisfaction of all claims growing out of war time agreements. The Government's liabilities were originally put at one hundred and fifty six million pounds sterling.

MORE DAYLIGHT SAVING.

LONDON, May 3. Extension of daylight saving time in Great Britain to two hours instead of one hour, as at present, is forecasted in an announcement in the London Gazette this evening. The order for setting clocks forward has not been issued, but it is expected, as a measure for coal conservation as a result of mine strike.

NEW OFFER BY GERMANY.

LONDON, May 4. A new German offer to the Allies was telegraphed Tuesday from Berlin to the German Ambassador at Paris, for communication to Reparations Commission, according to a statement ascribed by the London Times to good authorities. Terms of the offer are not known, but it is presumed they are approximate to acceptance of Allies decisions at Paris on January Twenty ninth.

NOT OVER BRIGHT.

WASHINGTON, May 3. Reports from all districts to Shipping Board, to-day, indicate said, indicating as far as the ship movement was concerned that the situation was generally satisfactory. In New York, officials said, some difficulty was being experienced as strikers were picketing boat recruiting offices, and in Baltimore.

Votes for Women.

The petition with respect to the enfranchisement of women will be presented this afternoon in the House of Assembly by the Minister of Justice and, we understand, will be seconded by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. The ladies interested in the suffrage movement will attend the session on force and will occupy the gallery from which point of vantage they will be enabled to criticize the "mere men" in whose hands lies the power of giving them the right to vote. We venture to add that we wouldn't like to be in the shoes of the junior member for Trinity this afternoon, no, not for a great deal!

It Lasts as Long as the Building

Once walls and ceilings are perfected with Beaver Board, you have finished with them for good. They will last as long as the building.

Joined with ease and simplicity of use and with beauty and charm of result, this quality makes Beaver Board the logical material for all walls and ceilings.

No more soiled wall paper. No more cracked and falling plaster. But walls and ceilings which meet the most modern ideas of home decoration.

Beaver Board is quickly nailed to old walls or to new partitions. No muss or litter. No waiting for plaster to dry.

The result is sure—provided genuine Beaver Board is used with the Beaver Quality trade-mark plainly printed on the back of every panel. This trade-mark of good building material is also on Vulcanite Roofing—an insurance of better roofs. Beaver Board and Vulcanite Roofing are sold by lumber and building material dealers.

BEAVER BOARD
FOR BETTER WALLS & CEILINGS

BEAVER QUALITY

BOARD

This Mark Insures the Result

Think It Over.

Do your ceilings now with Beaver Board.

About nine dollars worth of Beaver Board will do your ceiling.

You wouldn't object to paying $9 or even twice as much for a nice rug for your floor.

Even the best rug will be worn out after five or ten years, but a Beaver Board ceiling will last as long as your house.

A Beaver Board ceiling won't crack like plaster, and won't show unsightly seams like pitch pine. A Beaver Board ceiling is worth looking at.

If you want draught-proof--dust proof--easily-cleaned--attractive walls, do them with Beaver Board.

Beaver Boards can be had 32 inches and 48 inches wide and 8, 9, 10 and 12 feet long. The only tools required to work with Beaver Board are a hammer and saw.

Any intelligent carpenter will tell you "Beaver Board is BETTER than ordinary Wall Board."

On the back of every genuine Beaver Board you'll find the BEAVER QUALITY trade mark. Take care to look for it. Don't accept imitations.

Carpentier Has Boosted Boxing

New York.—W. B. "Bat" Masterson, writing in the Morning Telegraph, says: "Old 'Campagner' who contributed a column or two to the Winning Post, one of London's leading sporting publications, says Georges Carpentier is blowing tribute in one of his recent articles in the Winning Post. Old 'Campagner' avows that he'll have as much as a 'Poney' ($25) on the European champion if he wins the Dempsey for the World's Heavyweight Championship. In his appreciation, to the French champion Old 'Campagner' says: 'I have thought fit to write about Carpentier, because during the past few days I have seen much of him. I am not sufficient of a 'rubbish' merchant to ask you to believe that he is near to being invincible; were I disposed I could trot out the names of many of our fellows of another day who would probably have bested him in quick sticks, but I have never happened across a pugilist during the all too many years I have been associated with the game who lives by fighting, with a personality so rare.

"At Antree, recently, I could not help remarking as I saw Carpentier in Lord Derby's box, how mighty different these days he from those which have gone. If anybody had come along and said that a pugilist would be invited to be of such a party as that, which included the King and Queen, you would have recommended to him a course of brain scraping.

"Yet Carpentier, professional fighting man though he is, was not out of his place at the National, and such is his personality and his great good sense, that it came to be accepted as a matter of course that he would be asked to spar at Knowsley, before their Majesties, and all the distinguished guests of Lord Derby.

"There is no denying it that possible world's champion, or just a good average scrap.—I personally think he is ever so much more Carpentier has done more for boxing than any other man in history. He has never missed a single opportunity to prove that a pugilist is a human being. When one comes to consider his early youth (he was at work before he was in his teens pleased to earn five francs a match), it is really wonderful how he has acquired the polish, the tact and the learning he has. "Be his boxing and-fighting ability what it might, I shall always say of the Frenchman that he is a living example of what even a pugilist can be—a man in the best and highest sense. As did the King at Knowsley. I wish him luck in all that he does and attempts to do."

The Contagion of Fear.

One firm finds itself making smaller profits for a time, so cuts down its staff. Immediately some other firm, disturbed by this evidence of business falling off either in its own line or some other, follows suit, and, having a bigger staff, discharges more. The contagion continues to spread, and yet others fall into line and reduce the number of employees. As a result times grow harder rather than less hard. The dismissed employees cease to be effective factors in buying, and still other lines of business feel the depression. At the same time there is no visible retrenchment in the extravagance of the employers' living. The full weight seems to fall on the employee, who, having nothing but his employment, has taken from him "even that which he hath." Much of this condition is caused by unreasoning fear, the things that kills the soul, destroys community of feeling, makes men selfish, willing and anxious to trample others under foot to maintain their own hold on the good things of life. Prierer than poverty itself is the fear of poverty. It is time that hope and courage supplanted fear and that employers retain their employees even though it mean self-denial and retrenchment.—Halifax Echo.

(c) Upon ore shipped to any part of Canada above one million tons, and upon all ore shipped elsewhere than to Canada, no duty shall be payable, except on certain details by the Companies.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—The more I study the contract between the Government and the Bell Island Companies, the more amazed I become. It gives much and gets nothing, in reality. Its draftsmanship is execrable. Upon its face it bears marks of having been framed by the companies themselves, with the object of disguising its true meaning.

"WITHOUT RESTRICTION."
By Section 1 the Government agrees that for twenty years the export tax on Ore to Nova Scotia shall be 25c. per ton, and that "the exportation of said Ore shall be made without restriction during the said period." This latter part may have a sinister meaning. Suppose a restriction becomes necessary for war purposes, to prevent Germany, for instance, getting Ore; if the Legislature were to impose such a restriction, would not the companies have an action for damages against the Colony. It seems so to me. Or suppose the Colony became part of the Dominion of Canada, and an export duty to Nova Scotia thereby became unlawful, would not the Colony be restrained by the Contract from imposing the tax of 25c. per ton as a "royalty." Or yet again, suppose the Companies failed to supply the Colony with coal for its needs, would not this Contract disable the Colony from bringing the companies to terms, as Sir John Crosbie once did. I think, by threatening to stop exportation of ore.

BEWARE OF GERMANY.
By Section 2, the Government undertakes that the export of Iron Ore to all the world, except Canada, shall be free from duty; that is to say, that Germany, the great competitor with British speaking people shall obtain interest, and should be sold at slightly above production cost.

WHAT DOES THE COLONY GET?
Now that I have mentioned the outstanding gifts by the Colony to the Company, I turn to the enquiry—What has the Company undertaken to do for the Colony? Section 2, sub-section (a) provides that the Company shall before the 1st day of January, 1926, expend $3,000,000 in the Colony "in improvements and extension of plant and equipment, and the development of mines at Bell Island." It is stipulated that if the Dominion Company develop the Colinet water powers, and build a coal depot at St. John's, the sum spent on those two works shall be included in the $3,000,000. What lack of accurate draftsmanship is here exhibited! The "development of mines" is constantly taking place by mining, and "extension of plant" is necessary as the mining goes on. The provision as to the three millions, therefore, amounts to nothing more than this—that the Companies shall expend on labour and materials at Bell Island not less than $2,000,000 in five years and not even that amount, if the Colinet water powers are developed, and a coal depot constructed at St. John's. What does the provision for a coal depot here amount to? How large a depot? What is it to cost? What kind of coal is it to supply? What quantity of coal is to be provided in the depot? To allow the Companies to build a coal depot at St. John's would be to place the monopoly of the coal business in the hands of those Companies. They will supply under the cost to other dealers. Their ore boats will cut under other shipping in freights. By modern machinery in the depot they will destroy almost the need of labour. By the use of motor lorries they will make ordinary cartage unnecessary. The provision for a coal depot here by the Companies is a handing over to those Companies of a very valuable privilege which, if exercised, will destroy a very large percentage of the carrying trade and of the labour given in St. John's, and all this may be done with a very inferior quality of coal, because the Companies can send what kind of coal they like to the depot, and they can prevent competition by anybody here by their control of the coal supply.

RESERVE "WHITE COAL."
Before the Great War, ore was sent from Bell Island to Germany. That War has deprived Germany of Alsace-Lorraine, and probably of Upper Silesia also, where she formerly got most of her iron ore. As a result, Germany may very largely be dependent on supplies from Bell Island. Has the blood of the Colony's sons been spent for this end? Are we anxious to promote such a treason as to give the ore free even of duty? By the provision not to impose "restrictions" on the export, the Colony may ever put in force the Act to enable the Government to prohibit exports passed for this very purpose at the request of the British Government.

In Section 6, the Dominion Company is given "the water power rights" of the Colinet River, and it is provided that the Company shall have a period of three years to commence the development, and a further two years to complete the same, and thereafter shall pay a tax on the horse power developed, subject to forfeiture for the non-performance of the conditions. But what does the undertaking to "commence" amount to, and what is the "development" which is to take place? What is a commencement? How much development? No care has been taken to ascertain the maximum capacity of the River, and there is no provision that the maximum shall be developed. I have already pointed out the exceeding great value of this River as a producer of light, heat and power, and in this way as a competitor of the Companies in the supply of coal. To give such a possible producer of light, heat and power to a Coal Company is to give such a Company a monopoly of one of the necessities of life in the Colony. Competition should be promoted, not monopoly. No river power capable of producing electricity in large quantity should be given to anybody, least of all to a Coal Company. The power should be developed in the public interest, and should be sold at slightly above production cost.

NO PENALTY IMPOSED.
Section 2 (a) provides for an expenditure of $3,000,000 in five years, of which not less than $500,000 shall be in each of the five years, but while the penalty is imposed that if the whole amount is not expended in the five years, a duty of ten cents per ton shall be payable on ore exported elsewhere than to Nova Scotia, as penalty is imposed for not making the annual expenditure provided for. That is to say, for four years the Companies while making no part of the proposed expenditure may export without paying duty, and then escape all penalty by making the total expenditure in the last year, or, at the worst, if making no part of the expenditure at any time, may save the interest for five years on back duties.

PROMISE AGAINST REALITY.
Section 2, Sub-section (b) provides: If the Companies by the 1st January, 1926, shall not have given notice of intention to erect a smelting plant, they shall be liable thereafter to pay 10c. per ton on ore exported elsewhere than to Nova Scotia; and

Section 2, Sub-section (c) provides: If the Companies shall not have erected the smelting plant by the 1st January, 1928, the Companies shall be liable to pay the said duty; and

Section 2, Sub-section (d), provides: Despite failure to give notice, or to erect a smelting plant, the Companies may at any time within twenty years erect the plant, and escape liability to pay duty thereafter.

The net results of these three provisions is, that (1) during the next seven years failure to erect a smelting plant shall not of itself impose any penalty upon the Companies; and (2) that the implied provision to erect such a plant, never enforceable upon the Companies, is used as an inducement to secure the right to pay 10c. per ton less on ore exported elsewhere than when to Nova Scotia. The Colony gets a promise, a shadow; the Companies get remission of taxation, a reality.

LEFT TO GUESS WORK.
In Section 2, (d), it is provided: At any time after 1st January, 1926, the Companies may give notice of intention to erect a smelting plant, and be thereafter free of duty for two years upon ore exported elsewhere than to Nova Scotia, provided that if within two years after the date of the notice the plant has not been erected, a duty of 10c. per ton on such exports shall be collectable. It is not said, but conclusively implied, that if the plant be erected, no duty on ore thereafter shall be collectable. It is one of the stupidities of the contract that this, if meant, is left to obvious implication, instead of being affirmatively specified, and it is a still greater stupidity that this may be the implied result even though the expenditure of $3,000,000 provided for by Section 2 (a) has not been made, a result which one would guess was not intended.

SMUGGLED VIA ST. PIERRE.
And finally, Mr. Editor, I wish to draw attention particularly to this fact—that all the ore destined for Nova Scotia may be exported to St. Pierre, and from that place taken on to Nova Scotia, without liability to the payment of tax provided for ore intended for Nova Scotia, because St. Pierre, which lies on the very track of the ore from Bell Island and Sydney, is not a part of the Dominion of Canada. There is nothing in the contract to prevent an arrangement by the Companies with St. Pierre for the calling of passing steamers, and their departure to Sydney. In certain events the Companies might become liable years afterwards to pay 10c. per ton upon ore exported to St. Pierre, but the happening of these events is so extreme that the Companies might never become liable to pay anything whatever.

GENERAL REMARKS.
In all my life I have never read a document so amazingly full of blunders and uncertainty. Regarded merely as a piece of draftsmanship, it is discreditable to all concerned in it for the Colony. Regarded in its greater aspects, it is one of the most dangerous propositions that has ever been placed before the Legislature.

The Supreme Court, by a majority, has just decided that a contract made by the Government with the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, in 1910, relating to Bell Island Ore, does not mean what the Company says it means. The Chief Justice agreed with the Company's contention. This illustrates in its case such contracts as the one now before the Assembly should be made. I understand that the Premier and the Attorney General were not in the Colony when this contract was made. Their responsibility for it, therefore, is in the present, and as lawyers they will see the force of my objections. Aside from the principles involved, the contract is unspcakably bad. If principles are ultimately assented to, surely they can be plainly, simply and accurately expressed. I urge, therefore, that the pending contract be withdrawn, and a creditably drafted one be substituted.

Yours truly,
ALFRED B. MORINE.

Fish Inspector McGrath's Report
An Interesting Document.

[Copy]

St. John's, August 31st, 1920.

The Hon. William F. Coaker, Acting Premier and Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Sir—In accordance with instructions received from your Department, I left the city on the 25th July last. My tour of inspection commenced at St. Lawrence and finished at Port aux Basques. All the places where cod-fishing is carried on between St. Lawrence and Port aux Basques were visited by me, and inspection and examination of the flakes and stages as well as the methods of curing fish were made by me. I may say, taking all circumstances into consideration, I found conditions generally satisfactory.

At all places visited by me, I found the fishermen as a body very favourable to the standardization of cod-fish; very many of them stating that it should have been in force years ago. The fishermen evinced the desire not alone of understanding the regulations, but also a willingness to co-operate in the carrying out of them. The same may be said of the Planter and the Exporter, all of whom expressed a desire to assist and co-operate in the work.

For some time past the bulk of the fish caught on the section of the coast referred to were not properly split, due no doubt, to the catering of the American market. Very little of this is now seen, and fish are properly split and care and attention in the washing and making up the part of those making it.

At St. Lawrence, I found the fish were split, properly, well washed and given the proper quantity of salt. At Grand Bank I found one vessel loading the "Nordica." The fish was not up to the standard, and the loading was stopped by me for a while. Mr. Forsey, the owner, agreed with me that it was not up to the required standard. At the request of some fishermen I hired a dory and visited Grand Beach. There were about twenty fishermen there. The fish they caught were well cured. I pointed out to them the minimum size fish for No. 1 standard, and stated that fish of this kind, no matter how well cured, had heretofore been called "Mackerel."

My next visit was English Harbour. There I found conditions good, and the people desirous of co-operating in the making of good fish. At Harbour Breton the regulations were explained by me to the fishermen, and I pointed out to them that the fish were required to be split down to the tail, washed from the knife, and not given too much salt. When I pointed to them what was necessary to be done, they all expressed their willingness to comply with the regulations.

I also visited Great Harbour, Dawson's Cove, and found conditions very good.

The next place visited by me was Gaultois, at which place a vessel was loaded. The fish was of very good quality. At Passthrough I culled some fish for the fishermen and showed them the difference between the standards. The stages there were clean and well looked after.

At Burgeo I found merchants and fishermen equally desirous of aiding in the work.

When I visited Rose Blanche there was a vessel loading, and the Inspector was conscientiously performing his duties.

Burnt Islands was my next port of call. The winter catch of fish here may be classed as No. 2. The spring fish, however, was very good.

From thence I arrived at Port aux Basques, and then went down the shore, and inspected things generally. I found no complaints in relation to the regulations during my tour along the coast. I distributed the literature given me by the Department. At some places I found that the fishermen gave their fish too much sun "on the face,"—spread it too often and do not work it often enough in piles on the flakes,—this has the effect of bringing the salt out, making the "face" of the fish look rough and old looking.

At Grand Bank the fish caught by basking vessels is of a superior quality, but owing to improper handling do not realize the price it should. The manner of handling fish there is:—The fish is brought in at Grand Bank, washed out, conveyed to the beach in box cars, and there spread on the hot stones. No air can get under the fish, which is necessary for proper curing. When put in bulk, there are no coverings placed over the fish, and it is thus left exposed to all kinds of weather. It should not be a difficult matter to provide suitable flakes on the beach for proper drying of the fish. I would recommend that this be done, and that coverings erected in the manner of a tent, about five feet high composed of material which does not become expensive, but with an additional outer covering, so as to afford an air space which would prevent the hot sun from injuring the fish.

The fish shipped at Grand Bank as CONSTIPATION not only causes the generation of poisons, which are carried through the system by the blood and attack it from within, but also by thus lowering the general stamina makes the weakened system an easier prey to harmful germs from without.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Without forcing or irritating, it softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system.

It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

No. 1, is not of that quality. There was too much salt used in the curing, and the manner in which it is dried on the beach renders it next to impossible to really qualify it as No. 1 standard. With improved methods in the curing of fish at Grand Bank, I see no reason why it should not be amongst the best exported from the country.

In regard to the winter fishery conducted off Burgeo and other nearby places, the fish caught, in my opinion, can be cured so as to make it No. 1 quality. Although being thin and inferior the cure can be considerably improved. The fish caught in these waters during the winter season should be the subject of investigation by the Department. The depth at which they are caught would indicate that during the winter season the water at the lower depth must be of a warmer temperature than towards the surface. Fish caught during the summer in that locality is usually caught at the depth of "one line," while in winter two to two and one-half lines are used. Why the fish should be found during the winter in such quantities on this section of the coast and no other, presents a field worthy of investigation.

There is not the slightest doubt that the fishermen generally have begun to realize the importance of proper curing and the standardization of fish, and if a united effort be made in this direction splendid results will be brought about and the country will be the gainer thereby.

Respectfully submitted,

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

GETTING BACK TO SLEEP.

Speaking of insomnia on one of my former letters, a friend writes that she is troubled in the following way:

"I do not have any difficulty to speak of in getting to sleep," she says, "but after I have slept a few hours I wake up and all the king's men won't get me back to sleep again. Do you know anything can do?"

I am sure that I know one thing that can help herget by not going to bed. The reason I am so positive about this is that I am a fellow sufferer. On the rare occasions when I am troubled with insomnia it comes that way. I almost never have any trouble getting to sleep. A body which has never been so tired that it "drags" its mind out to sleep. But by and by that body gets rested and then my mind, if there is anything troubling it, is apt to wake it up.

Don't Let Your Mind Get Started.

"And the minute it gets me waked up, I find my mind turning back to the problem, or grief, or anxiety that is the cause of the trouble. And right here is the time to help oneself if one is going to."

Don't let your mind get started on that problem. If you do, it's all off with sleep until you can get your mind off again, and it is twice as hard to get it off as to keep it off in the first place.

Catch Hold of the Tail of a Dream.

The very best way to get back to sleep in my experience is to recall with sleep until you can get your mind off again, and it is twice as hard to get it off as to keep it off in the first place.

One voice there is which flatters not for gain. One voice which never speaks to cause us pain. Nor seeks to tell the world how much it knows.

Yet if it tell us we have done our best, Have kept the faith and labored to be true, We can lie down at night in peace to rest. Nor mind what others say or think or do.

If but this eye which reads our inmost thoughts See no dishonor in the stand we take; If but this voice can praise the fight we've fought, We need not heed the storm that critics make.

If we but live with Conscience as our guide, We rob the colder critics of their sitting; If but that voice of us can speak in pride, We need not heed the barbs which others fling.

If it can say we've truly done our best, And call our motives worthy, Though we fail, We then can turn our faces to the west, Scorning the lesser critics who assail.

Blazing Highways Through Carelessness.

A strange accident occurred near Stroud, in Gloucestershire, on May 4, 1912, while the roads were being tar-sprayed. The boiling of the tar was in progress when the tank suddenly boiled over, the tar caught fire, and in a few minutes was ablaze. No lives were lost, but the horse attached to the machine was badly burned. A similar accident occurred at Hackney Wick twelve years previous. Very heavy rain had caused the naphtha tanks at some large chemical works to overflow, and as the drains were incapable of carrying away the enormous volume of water which lay in White Hart Lane to a depth of no less than two feet, the naphtha floating on the top of the flood gave off a deadly explosive vapour. Three men who realized the danger, rushed from house to house, warning the inhabitants not to strike matches or leave any naked lights about. But, as often happens, the warning was disregarded by someone, for a lighted match was thrown down into the deadly flood, and the whole thoroughfare flashed into a sheet of flame. The fronts of eleven houses were totally wrecked, screams and wild cries from injured people rent the smoke-filled air. The naphtha soon burnt out but the houses were ablaze. Commander Wells and his firemen were soon on the spot, but it took some hours' hard work to extinguish the fire in such a number of houses. It was afterwards found that two persons carried out were dead, while six others were badly injured. Among the latter was one of the men who had done their best to prevent the disaster by giving warning.

Nova Scotia Historical Celebration.

The Historical Association of Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia, announces through its President, Mr. L. W. Baxter, a triple celebration of historic events of interest and importance in the old fort at Annapolis Royal, on Wednesday, August 31st, 1921. On that day tablets will be unveiled commemorating (1) the tercentenary of the Charter of New Scotland—1621; (2) the bicentenary of the establishment of British Civil Courts in Canada—1721, and (3) Judge Halliburton's arrival in Annapolis Royal—1821. These tablets are to be presented to the Nation, and erected at Fort Anne, now a Canadian National Park, for safekeeping and as the most appropriate place to receive them.

Number one will be presented by the Premier of Nova Scotia, and another speaker representing the Provincial Government; number two by the Chief Justice of Nova Scotia, the President of the Canadian Bar Association and other representatives of the Bench and Bar, and number three by the Vice-President of the Historical Association of Annapolis Royal. Following these proceedings there will be afternoon tea for invited guests, and in the evening an open meeting of the Historical Societies, at which papers will be read, and speeches made, bearing on the day's events. The following morning, September 1st, visitors will be given facilities for seeing the surrounding country and the Fort and Museum, and possibly there will be other attractions. The Chairman of the general committee of management is Mr. F. C. Whitman, Annapolis-Royal, N.S., to whom enquiries should be addressed, regarding accommodations, etc. The date originally named, August 5th, has been changed to August 31st, to suit the convenience of the Canadian Bar Association, whose President and a large deputation of members will attend the celebration.—Ex.

Preparing for Eventualities.

Macaulay's well known lines about the traveller from New Zealand standing on a broken arch of London Bridge surveying the ruins of St. Paul's have evidently created something of an impression at last. Buried deep within the foundations of the new Bush building in London, wrapped in waterproof covers and placed in a sealed concrete chamber, the builders have deposited a safety razor, a cotton reel, a bottle of pickles, a mail order catalogue, some patent medicines, a typewriter, a sewing machine, a railroad folder, a modern picture machine and film, a model airplane and modern submarine and other articles representative of the times. The archaeological explorer in years to come will not be without his reward when he reaches this particular ruin. It is only fair to add, however, that the incentive for this action came, not from Macaulay's lines, but from British scientists who predict that the British Isles will be a desert waste in A.D. 4,000.—Sydney Record.

Down To Earth Again!

We are happy indeed to be able to point with pride to the new low price levels offered throughout our entire Store. We swallowed big losses, cleared our old stocks, replaced them with new Spring and Summer Merchandise, bought in a declining market, and then in some cases at big concessions. Here are quoted the biggest Bargains you've seen since before the war, and our Store is continually crowded with customers taking liberal advantage of these offers.

Electrocuting Whales.

The denizens of the deep have another enemy to face. Electrocuting has been adopted in whaling, off the coast of Labrador, the current being transmitted through the line and harpoon. A bit almost anywhere in the body, so long as the harpoon penetrates the blubber that surrounds the flesh of the animal is sufficient for the electricity to do its work. The whale when struck leaps into the air, drops back into the water, and floats on its back. If the system could be adapted to some of our political land sharks the country might be happier for the experiment.

Dempsey Begins Solid Training.

New York.—(Canadian Press).—Champion Jack Dempsey has begun formal training at Summit, New Jersey, for his match with Georges Carpentier in Jersey City, July 2nd. Discarding his haphazard open air play schedule, he did both road work and sparring, and will hereafter work on a regular daily schedule. Following a short walk and sun on the roads about his quarters, he boxed eight rounds with two of his sparring partners. In the first set he faced Joe Benjamin for four rounds and then took on Jimmy Darcy for a similar number.

From now on Dempsey will gradually increase the amount of work he will do daily until he is following the regular routine which prevailed when he prepared for his contest with Jesse Willard.

Kid Norfolk and other lightweight weights will join the camp within the next few days.

LONDON GOSSIP.

PRINCES AS PUBLIC SPEAKERS.

LONDON, April 7th, 1921. As all our young princes are largely regarded by organisers of public movement as oratorical assets, much speculation exists among them as to whether the King's third son, Prince Henry, who came of age last week, will take rank in the first class of popular appealers with the Prince of Wales, or in the second and more sedate class with the Duke of York. One of the earliest of the Duke of York's appearances as a public speaker was when he was constrained by the enthusiasm shown of the Stock Exchange, at a gathering nearly two years ago, to make an unprepared speech in addition to that of the Heir-Apparent. He has a hesitancy of tone which has prevented him from as yet developing into the very ready and agreeable orator the Prince of Wales has become. The latter has not all the elegant flow of resounding speech which marked the oratory of Charles I, though that was in agreeable contrast with the pedantic pompous and prosy harangues of his father, James I. The next good Royal speaker was the Prince Consort, Queen Victoria's husband, who was scholarly, though laboured as was his fourth son, Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany. His eldest, the late King Edward, was blunt, somewhat husky, but agreeable to listen to; while his third, the Duke of Connaught, happily, still with us, is manly, straightforward, and appealing, as he especially showed in his addresses in the course of his recent Imperial mission in India, which but for the exercise of the diplomat tact, would have been fraught with danger to continued good relationships.

THE HEIR-APPARENT AS ORATOR.

Of somewhat different type is King George, who always gives the impression of having deeply thought out his words before speaking, and of not being quite sure how they will be received; but the Heir-Apparent goes another way to work. I have been told by a friend of his that his full-dress speeches are carefully prepared, and he then sets himself to the task of turning them into the semi-colloquial style befitting a man of seven-and-twenty. It is only when thoroughly satisfied that the sentences sound like himself, that he attempts to memorize them, and even then, as his intimates know, he is apt to interpolate on the spur of the moment some fresh phrase which instantly appeals to an alert audience. This spontaneity is the chief cause of his success and all who have had the pleasure of listening to him in his more joyous speeches will trust that it will never be dimmed. A story of his very young years illustrates that in this respect the boy was father to the man. It is said that while the King was still Prince of

RAILWAYS AND DEMOBILISATION.

While the public has heard a great deal of the admirable arrangements and work of the British railways in carrying troops from this country to the various fighting fronts not so much has been said about the elaborate arrangements for bringing the men back on demobilisation. Though that work was not carried out under the stress of war requirements, it was nevertheless of great importance, and was planned as to be completed with smoothness and efficiency. Realisation of the fact may be gathered from one of the chapters in Mr. Edwin A. Pratt's new book on the part of British railways in the Great War. The War Office were determined that demobilisation should be made in good time, and it was in October, 1917, or more than a year before the Armistice, that the Railway Executive Committee were invited to begin their preparations for the conveyance of demobilised men. The plan which was selected was based on the principle of demobilisation taking place, not from regimental depots, but according to the location of the town or district in which each man either lived or desired to take up his residence. This involved much organisation, but it meant the saving of a great amount of railway travel. Twenty dispersal stations were provided for the United Kingdom, and the railway companies laid themselves out to carry 40,000 soldiers per day if required. That task was never fully imposed on them, as various difficulties and delays apart from the railways arose from time to time, and the War Office changed their plans, some respects causing extra difficulties.

HECTIC WALL PAPERS.

The craze for black wall papers and dull colours among those who seek for original schemes of decoration is dead, and in its place has come some of the most frenzied colour schemes imported during the last six weeks from Paris. I have been shown some papers of such dazzling hue and such riotous patterns that I could not believe that anyone would dare put them on his walls, but I was told that they are selling as fast as they can be brought over. There is one popular pattern, which is covered with whirls and targets, like huge dinner plates, two feet in diameter, in the most vivid hues of orange, green and red. Another is of the deepest, most brilliant orange, and

DYING HARD.

The past died hard in London. Its last fleeting breath still provides propulsion for Victorian hansom and a slender means of subsistence to Jesus who have seen more prosperous days. But the end is in sight, and in anticipation of it an urgent appeal is being issued on behalf of the vehicular stalwarts. Years ago the "growler" with its precarious pile of springs and leather, was a familiar sight in the streets of the Metropolis. It was as much a feature of Dickensian London as frock-coats and crinolines. But these ancient glories are dissolving ignominiously in petrol. The taxi has superseded its more leisurely and insecure brother, after a fierce conflict, the ancient cab-horse disputing every foot of the way with characteristic obstinacy. A year or two ago, however, the crowning insult of placing a growler in a museum in London disheartened the equine stoutheart; and it has since been shambling resignedly into oblivion. For awhile it plied with some success at stations where war-time demand exceeded supply. Even to-day it manages to persuade an occasional indulgent fare to put himself at the mercy of the sober, wheezy hulk behind it for the sake of auld lang syne. But the request for patronage is a swan-song. Hence the appeal for funds to secure a quiet burial.

STAR-LIT BEDROOMS.

Parents of children who are frightened when left alone in the dark might follow the example of a Westminister doctor, who nursed me his newly-decorated night nursery this afternoon. The walls have been distempered mauve, which, he says, is the most restful colour. But this mauve is darker at the bottom of the walls than at

Has Done a Great Work for Joseph Richard, He Says

Sherbrooke Man After Suffering 14 Years Feels Fine All The Time Since Taking Tanlac.

"I had stomach trouble so bad that for years I ate no solid food, but since taking Tanlac I eat beefsteak, vegetables and sweets without having the slightest distress afterwards," said Joseph Richard, 41 Convent St., Sherbrooke.

"My stomach trouble began fourteen years ago and from that time up until I took Tanlac I didn't know a well day. To make bad matters worse about five years ago rheumatism got me in its clutches, and my right arm, and leg and also my right side hurt me so bad I got little rest day or night. I had to lay off work for days at a time and even when I was able to get out I hobbled around on my left leg, as I couldn't bear my weight on my right foot.

"Tanlac was what I needed. It put my stomach in first-class condition and completely knocked out the rheumatism. I am a well and strong man to-day, eating, sleeping and working better than I have in fifteen years. Not only that, but I feel fine all the time, full of life and brimful of energy. It certainly did a great work for me."

WOMEN STUDENTS FROM ABROAD.

The medieval scholar fully realised the advantage in studying at foreign universities, but until recently women scholars in most countries have had to be content if they could graduate in their own lands and then take up a profession. Nowadays, however, they are keen to study conditions in foreign universities and their international interest is developing. There are altogether in this country about three hundred women graduates from overseas dominions or foreign countries, Scandinavia, Holland, America, Czechoslovakia, and so on, who are taking post-graduate courses at our universities. Indeed, the number of those who are attending lectures at Oxford or Cambridge is a pretty heavy strain on the accommodation. Many of them, instead of staying for two years and taking their degrees, are content with a one year's stay. Many are earnest students and others are having an entertaining as well as studious time. Girton and Newham, are now anxious to establish travelling scholarships so that their past students may take post-graduate courses at foreign universities, but they have not yet raised the funds required. It would need a fund of £2,000, or yearly contributions of £200 to maintain a student, say, in France or Italy, or Scan-

CIVIL AVIATION IN GERMANY.

In view of the reports that have been appearing of the great progress of civil aviation in Germany, in the construction of big types of passenger-carrying aeroplanes and so on, I am told that the position there, roughly, is that the Germans have now something over a hundred machines working on regular services between the big cities. The Inter-Allied Commission, which at present controls aviation in Germany, will not, under the terms of the treaty, allow the Germans to carry on flights outside their own country. Machines for civil use have to be licensed by the Commission, and licenses have been given both to converted military aeroplanes and to some post-war types. Some of the new big machines have been banned by the Commission on the ground that they would be too dangerous if returned to military use. This was the case, I believe, with the big monoplane with four engines inserted into the edge of the plane which was built recently at the zeppelin works. It had a speed of 112 miles an hour and carried 18 passengers.

Mr. John Crosbie Castigates Government—Member For Port de Grave Delivers Striking Address.

Continuing Sir John took exception to the Premier's remarks about backing the fish regulations when he was the man who removed them in the absence of Hon. Mr. Coaker. With reference to the Union and the strike now on, Sir John said he had never asked them to reduce wages. The Sun had been loaded and had gone on her voyage, and she would be loaded again under similar circumstances. He saw no reason why steamers should be held up if owners were prepared to pay. Those who play fair should be played fair by. He was prepared to employ several men if he were not interfered with. He pitied those who were inclined to pay, but were not allowed to. He then referred back to the fish question and asked Hon. Mr. Coaker if he had received any message from Lt. Col. Bernard concerning the Consols.

Hon. Minister of Marine and Fisheries informed him that he had received a message which advised that the Italian Government would allow fish to enter. Upon being asked if it was his intention to have any inspectors at work this year and if he had any idea of enforcing standardization in the merchants' stores, the Minister replied in the negative.

At this juncture Sir John moved the adjournment of the debate and has the floor at 11 this morning and presented His Excellency with the Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne, and met again for business at 2 o'clock.

House a few days previously with the best intentions, but it seemed that he could not even ask a question without having the Prime Minister flying across at him. He, personally, would not give the best that was in him, but it little or much, to improve the situation or help the country until the Prime Minister gets out. They would never get him whilst the present Prime Minister held his position. No supplies were being given out, although the town is full of men looking for them, some of whom would pay $200 cash to get an advance of another $100 in supplies. Not a man on the Government side knew whether the Government had a policy or not. There was just as much responsibility on the head of each individual member as there was on the Executive heads.
