STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER XLII.

Five years had elapsed since the marriage of Dolores' fair daughters; and to her they had been years of perfect peace.

The Prince and Princess Colonna divided their time between Italy and England; they had one son and one daughter. At Fielden Manor the family was more numerous; two sturdy little sons and one fair-haired little daughter made the grand old place bright with mirth and amusement.

Lady Allanmore had made one stipulation with her daughters.

"Call your children what you will," she said; "but promise me that you will never name one of them after me. Dolores means 'burden of sorrow,' and I have had to carry mine."

But Gertrude would call her eldest son Carlos after her father, not Karl, lest that should make her mother sad every time she heard it, but Carlos; and he, because of the name he bore, was always her best-beloved child. Then came Harry and little Blythe. They were three beautiful children, and Gertrude was "one of the happiest of wives. There was no London season for her. Once after her marriage, she made her bow before her majesty, after that she had no time for London. Her husband, her children, her mother, her household, her friends, the poor on her estate, completely occupied her time. If she went away for a few days, it seemed as if the whole country had lost its light.

Lady Allanmore continued to live at Seaside, but she was seldom without one or other of her grand-children, and in their youth, she seemed to grow young again herself.

One fine, summer evening, Lord Fielden, who was visiting at Seaside, lighted a cigar and went out with some newspapers; Gertrude took a book, and the two boys. A nurse followed, with little Blythe, without whom the party would have appeared incomplete. They chose a shady avenue, where they seated themselves not far from the late, white monument, which had already grown to be a landmark amongst them. Lord Fielden was soon engrossed in some Eastern news, Lady Fielden in her novels, the boys played at their will. Baby Blythe grew tired, and lay quietly in her nurse's arms. The boys, finding themselves more completely at liberty, began to run races. They were so long absent on one occasion that Gertrude looked up from her her grave is distinct from all others, because it is generally surrounded by rich red roses, and there the passionate, guilty, loving heart is at last at rest.

THIS END.

A QUEEN UNCROWNED

—OR—

THE STORY IN THE LONE INN

CHAPTER I.

"Mercy sakes!" exclaimed the little woman. "Did you ever? Why, I do declare! If that ain't her own blessed self!"

"Her own blessed self!" said the captain, in an undertone, and with a grim smile. "Her own cursed self, you mean—the old hag? How did she know I was here? I believe there's something of the vulture in that old beldame, and that she—admits her prey afar off. By the pricking of my thumbs, some one 'wicked' this way comes! Is here!" he cried as the door opened, and the object of his eulogium stood bolt upright before them.

Jacinto turned, in some curiosity to look at the newcomer, and saw what looked like an old woman, but ought to have been a man, if judged by size. Extremely tall, she lowered up in the apartment, as straight as a cedar of Lebanon, and fully a head over Captain Nick Tempest. She was dressed in gray—all gray, from head to foot. A coarse gray dress, a gray woolen cloak, with a gray hood tied under her chin, and might have passed for a capuchin friar, or a "munk of the Order Gray," only no holy monk, or friar, ever wore such a hard, bitter, evil, upspringing face, such a stern, remorseless mouth, and such a stony, dead, unfeeling eye, as that woman wore. Upright in the door she stood, and scanned Captain Tempest, with folded arms, for full five minutes.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE SLEEPING BABY.

Never an artist has caught it quite And never a painter can set it right, For a sleeping babe on trundle bed Has a charm which a mortal brush can't spread, And touch of the genius of life divine Which can't be told in a printed line.

You know by the smile on that little face, There are angels watching that holy place, And you feel the spirit of wondrous love That has come to her from the heavenly above; And your soul is stirred to its depths by these: The pluck of her cheeks and her dimpled knees.

When our baby sleeps, I can stand and gaze And see the moon beam as it plays So softly there on her countenance; And I think I can hear the faint refrain Which the angels croon to a sleeping child, And to all life's hurts I am reconciled. Sometimes I slip from the throng below And into her room I steal, to know The gentle calm of that lovely scene Where all is gentle and all is clean; And I catch a glimpse of life's inner days, And the beauties there, where the baby sleeps.

PLAIN LANGUAGE.

He came to my accustomed haunt, my seat, and said, "I wish to wed your aunt—I love and sorely need her. And she admits her love for me, her spinsterlike devotion, but to our troth you must agree—this is her silly notion. She says that lacking your consent she will remain a maiden, and so I come, a pleading guest, with hopes and yearnings laden." "My aunt is good and loyal and true, although she is no chicken," I said, "and if she's chosen you, I'll do no idle kicking." But woman is a mystery beyond my penetration, for suitors twelve have bent their knee, and some were men of high degree, and some had stores of plunder, and she rejected every plea, and bade them go to thunder. And some were men of growing fame, with all the world applauding, but from their mellow lovesick gaze she simply knocked the wadding. The rich, the beautiful, the great, have asked my aunt to wed them, and down the gutter and through the grate remorselessly she sped them. And now you tell me she agrees to lead you to the altar; she'll take up with a human cheese, and doesn't grasp or falter. I've known you since you were a kid; if you were sold at auction, ten cents would be my highest bid—but let us say no more about it. If my dear aunt elects to wed, and you're the chosen martyr, I bear my blessings on her head—so to the preacher cart her."

Fashions and Fads.

The Circular apron front is good. The Molded silhouette is in evidence for fall.

Graceful lace tiers are edged with band set fur.

Charming sports hats of cretanes are lined with white.

Badger fringe is a tall trimming note worth marking.

The detachable tunic is a decidedly amusing novelty.

Skirts slightly wider and very decidedly shorter.

An entrancing pearl tassel may finish one's pearl bracelet.

MRS. MISENER'S AGES AND PAINS

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Branchton, Ont.—'When I wrote to you for help my action was mostly declined, and glancing toward the tall woman, was slightly disconcerted to find her needle-like eyes fixed on his face with a gaze of piercing scrutiny.

"Who is this boy you have with you, Nick Tempest?" she exclaimed, in a harsh, discordant voice as she came up, and bending down, seemed piercing the boy through and through with her gleaming eyes.

"Oh! so you have found your tongue, my sweet pet?" said Captain Tempest. "I was afraid you had lost it altogether, which would be an unspeakable pity, you know; for, as the Irish song says, 'you've got an illigant tongue, and easily set a-going.'"

FLIGHT STILL POSTPONED.

REKJAVIK, Aug. 18. Bad weather again prevented the U.S. Army aviators from hopping off on the next leg of their world flight to Greenland. They had intended to attempt the resumption of the flight at 3 o'clock. This morning they made a short trial flight but it is unlikely that they will attempt to hop off today, as an early start is needed because of the few hours of daylight.

LOCATELLI TO CALL AT QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, Aug. 18. Lieut. Locatelli, Italian aviator, who is flying across the Atlantic, will call at Quebec in continuation of his flight to New York, according to advices received here by the Italian Consul. The aviator at last reports was at Rekiavik, Iceland, and will thence fly to Greenland, to Cartwright on the Labrador Coast, and thence up the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Quebec.

BOY ATTACKED BY EAGLE.

CHATHAM, Ont., Aug. 18. To be attacked by a big baldheaded eagle, picked up and carried into the air five feet, then dropped when his clothing gave way, was the experience of Fred Cunningham, aged fourteen, weighing 97 pounds, in a golf course near here. The bird was later killed by a citizen. It measured eight feet from tip to tip of wings. Young Cunningham was severely scratched and clawed while fighting the bird which finally became entangled in a wire fence.

THE MANDALAY RIOTS.

LONDON, Aug. 18. The total casualties in rioting Saturday at Mandalay, Upper Burma, were 2 policemen and two Buddhist priests killed, and 19 persons, including 14 policemen, injured with knife cuts, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Mandalay this morning. Fifty-five other persons were treated at Hospital for minor hurts. The city now is quiet the despatch says. The rioting occurred when the police attempted to clear the tram lines during the progress of a procession through the main streets in connection with a political demonstration led by a Buddhist priest named Okama, known as a staunch advocate of home rule.

OTHER WHITE INDIANS.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 18. Another tribe of White Indians is living on a spur of the Andes Mountain, near the border of Colombia and Venezuela, some 250 miles east of Darien, where Richard O. Marsh discovered his white Indians, according to Ralph Keemele, General Manager of the Wallaceburg, Chatham and Lake Erie Railway, who spent a considerable portion of 1915 exploring South America in an effort to get coal. Mr. Keemele made a personal examination of these Indians which had been captured when small children by natives who happened to be hunting near the district where the whites are supposed to be living. The children have been brought up as slaves in the home of a wealthy Venezuelan.

HUDSON BAY STEAMER LOST.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 18. The motor ship Lady Kindersley, of the Hudson Bay Company, trading in the Arctic, has been lost in Behring Sea, a message received here today from Cordova, Alaska, indicated. No lives were lost it was said.

ONE BODY RECOVERED.

MONTREAL, Aug. 18. One body, that of a woman, so far unidentified, but thought to be one of the six persons who were drowned when a row boat in which they were crossing from Montreal to Boucherville capsized yesterday morning in the St. Lawrence River, was recovered about four miles below the scene of the fatal accident, and is now in the Morgue. An inquest is being held today. The party consisted of five men, and four women. Two of the men and one of the women were rescued by a camper living near.

MATTHEWS IN TORONTO.

TORONTO, Aug. 18. Charles Matthews, Jr., former Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, was remanded in custody for eight days by Magistrate Edmund Jones, when he appeared in the police court to answer the charge of accepting secret commissions while in office. The charge was laid against the former Provincial Treasurer on instructions of Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney General. Bail was refused.

CANADA'S FISHERY RETURNS.

OTTAWA, Aug. 18. Fish valued at $12,500,545 was marketed from Canada's fisheries and canneries in 1923, an official government return announced. This is an increase over 1922 of $705,335. Britain produced nearly half or $59,795,714, which is an increase in that Province of two million over 1922 and of seven millions over 1921. Fisheries production by Provinces next to British Columbia is valued as follows: Nova Scotia, $3,448,335; New Brunswick, $4,548,535; Ontario, $3,159,427; Quebec, $2,100,412; Prince Edward Island, $1,754,980; Manitoba, $1,020,595; Alberta, $438,787; Saskatchewan, $366,642, and the Yukon, $11,375.

LONDON PRESS CRITICISM.

LONDON, Aug. 18. Results of the London Conference are criticized favorably by most of the London morning papers as the beginning of the process of restoring order in Europe. As the Westminster Gazette puts it, "an ugly corner has been turned with perhaps sufficient impetus and a sufficient margin of safety to carry the European nations through the difficult years of readjustment." With the exception of the Labor Party organ, the Herald, the papers withheld from Ramsey MacDonald personal credit for the successful outcome, but he is generally acknowledged that his position and that of his party have been greatly strengthened. There is a tone of great optimism for the future expressed, partly because of the interest shown by the United States in the London meeting. The only disquieting note is sounded by the Daily Mail which under the heading "no more surrender" expressed skepticism as to the advisability of the Allies pledging a loan to Germany. It asserts that the Germans who are said to have hoards of money outside Germany should be called upon to provide the funds for the loan.

HERRIOT GETS AN OVATION.

PARIS, Aug. 18. Premier Herriot came back from London today like a conquering hero. At the Gare St. Lazare he was cheered by a crowd of many thousands as no Premier has been cheered for years. The train which bore the head of the Government back home after his long and arduous work at the International Conference pulled into the station at 6.10 o'clock this evening, but it took him fifteen minutes to get through to the motor car which was waiting for him.

PROSPECTS FAVORABLE TO RATIFICATION.

LONDON, Aug. 18. The programme for launching the Dawes reparation plan, initiated by the delegates to the International Conference which closed here Saturday, now goes before the French Parliament, and German Reichstag for ratification. The prospects are favorable for its adoption by both bodies, according to despatches from the two capitals. The Nationalists in Germany, as was expected, are leading the opposition to the programme, but it is declared they will scarcely go so far as to adopt a parliamentary attitude which would result in the defeat of the Government, the dissolution of the Reichstag and new elections, in which they could not hope to better their position.

FRENCH WILL RATIFY.

PARIS, Aug. 18. Advice is that the French Parliament has practically decided to sustain the foreign policy of Premier Herriot for the time being. There is likely to be extensive deliberation with pointed interpellations, but no determined drive against Mr. Herriot's part in the London Conference is expected. It is hoped that ratifications will be forthcoming within the next few days.

McLAREN'S GRIEF.

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., Aug. 18. When Major Stuart McLaren, the British world flight commander, realized that his plane had been hopelessly damaged after alighting in the surf of Sitkinski Island, off Siberia, and that his attempt to circle the world had been frustrated, he sat on the beach and wept. It was the end of his hopes. His companions on the flight were also bitterly disappointed. This was stated here by Major McLaren in telling in detail the story of the flight, the outstanding incidents of which are already known. Major McLaren paid high tribute to the sportsmanlike conduct of the Americans in aiding him to continue his journey after his crash in Burma, when they rushed a spare plane from Japan and helped to put them together. This action he regarded as a fine illustration of true sportsmanship. Major McLaren thinks it unlikely that he will again attempt to encircle the globe by airplane, believing that such adventure must be backed by greater resources than a private firm provides.

FOG DELAYS SQUADRON.

QUEBEC, Aug. 18. The British special service squadron encircling the world, headed by H.M.S. Hood, is held up by fog today off Big Island, in the St. Lawrence River, 110 miles below Quebec, and the squadron which was due to arrive at Quebec early this afternoon is now scheduled to arrive at 1.30 p.m. tomorrow.

KENNEDY—WOODFORD.
A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized at Holyrood on August 17 by the Rev. W. P. Finn, when Lillian, youngest daughter of Mr. M. J. and Mrs. Kennedy was united in the Bonds of Holy Matrimony to Thomas Woodford, operator at Woodford's Station.
The bride who was handsomely attired in a gown of blue canton crepe, with fawn hat, carrying a bouquet of white carnations, sweet peas and maiden hair fern, was attended by her cousin Genevieve Kennedy who looked equally well in a dress of brown satin with hat to match carrying a bouquet of pink carnations, sweet peas and maiden hair fern. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Michael Wade, operator at Avondale.
To the strains of the wedding march, which was played by the organist, Miss Nellie Flynn, the bride and groom were escorted to the home of the bride's parents where a sumptuous repast was partaken of and the usual toasts honored after which the happy couple entrained for Canada and the United States where the honeymoon will be spent. The presents received were both numerous and costly testifying to the general popularity of the young couple. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome fur coat and to the bride's maid and best man respectively a silver mesh purse and a fountain pen. The Telegram joins with their many friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Woodford many years of wedded bliss and happiness.—COR.

Why Few Escape

Tooth trouble caused by film. Why so many teeth are cloudy. You know how teeth discolor and decay, despite the daily brushing. Dirty teeth and injured teeth become almost universal. Now millions of people use a new method of teeth cleaning. They combat the film—the great enemy of teeth. This is to show you by a free test how much that new way means. How film clouds and ruins teeth. Film is the great tooth enemy—that viscous film you feel. No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats it, so much of it clings and stays. Film becomes discolored, forming dingy coats, which mar the beauty of the teeth. It makes them unclean and unsightly. Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. That is how teeth are ruined. Modern science has discovered Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combant which contains harsh grit.

Smallest New York Store

ONLY TWO FEET WIDE. What is said to be the smallest store in New York City, if not in the world, recently was opened for business by a locksmith, machinist, and electrician. The width of the shop is 24 inches. It is so small that customers cannot enter, and business is transacted through a window in the front door.

Lady Angler Landed

TWO SALMON ON ONE CAST AT WIDOW'S POOL AT NEW-FOUNDLAND. "Jack Pot," in the Sydney Post, who writes so interestingly on angling and sporting matters, tells this story of a lady angler's luck in fishing in the Widow's Pool, in Newfoundland. "Whipping the Widow's Pool on this same stream one morning was a lady angler who hailed from Philadelphia, wife of a multi-millionaire. She boasted of the rod that took first prize at one of the big exhibitions held in Chicago. Hour after hour she cast over the placid surface with never a solitary rise to reward her efforts. "There had been no rain for weeks, and her guide finally advised that salmon were not striking for her, she had better try for sea trout, a school of which was resting at the foot of the rim at the top of the pool. The Gillie affixed a cast to the salmon line, to which he tied a small Silver Doctor and Royal Coachman. Presently the angler struck a splendid fish, which she played up and down stream in an effort to tire and bring to net. "After about fifteen minutes of strenuous labor the quarry showed

MARCONI'S REMARKABLE WORK

Remarkable progress apparently is being made by Marconi and his assistants with the "directed beam" system of radio communication on wave lengths of one to 15 meters. The latest reports indicate that successful telephone communication between England and Argentina has been achieved. On this occasion the Argentine Minister of Agriculture, Dr. Thomas Le Breton, who happened to be in England, spoke with War Minister Justo in Buenos Aires. As soon as Marconi's work has been brought to a successful conclusion, it will be possible to put hundreds of transatlantic radio-telephone channels into operation without interference, and with a fair measure of security.

Lloyd's Latest Comedy Veritable Riot of Fun

AMIDST CONVULSED LAUGHING
AT COMEDIANS' LATEST PICTURE.

Yesterday it looked as though it might become necessary to summon an ambulance to the Nickel Theatre after the first showing of Lloyd's latest feature Pathemedy, "Girl Shy," which will be there for an indefinite run. Some of the patrons were so convulsed and weakened by mirth that a reviewer doubted their ability to reach the open air. Just as you begin to think that there is nothing new in the movies, along comes a Lloyd comedy and immediately life takes on a poster hue again.

For every Lloyd comedy is distinctive from all angles and in all respects except one, and that is laughter. It seems that in each one you find laughs coming more and more rapidly than in the preceding one. And "Girl Shy" is no exception. While Lloyd has successfully undertaken one of the most novel and difficult characterizations he has ever attempted, it is entirely different from any of his predecessors except for the fact that it is even more funny than the other types he has portrayed. Truly this young man with the horn rimmed glasses can lay claim to the title of being America's greatest comedian.

Little Jobyna Raiston, who made such a hit in the last Lloyd Pathemedy, "Why Worry?" is again seen playing opposite Harold, and she gives an excellent account of herself in a rather difficult part. Richard Daniels, the uncle of freckle faced "Mickie" of "Our Gang" fame, is cast as Lloyd's uncle, and helps to win a lot of sympathy for the star. Carlton Griffin completes the cast in the role of a wealthy young idler.

"Girl Shy" as directed by Fred Newmeyer and Sam Taylor from a story by Taylor, Ted Wilde, Tim Whelan and Tommy Gray. The latter also wrote the amusing titles. Miss Marjorie Hutchings again delighted patrons of the Nickel by her excellent renditions. Her three songs had all the charm and vivacity imaginable. The accompaniments were played by Newfoundland's inimitable pianist Prof. P. J. McCarthy.

T. A. Juvenile Society HAD ENJOYABLE OUTING.

The annual outing of the T. A. Juvenile Society took place at Donovans yesterday. Upwards of 300 children went out by special train at 11 a.m. Following their arrival at the grounds various forms of amusement were indulged in, and at 5 o'clock the children were treated to a bountiful spread, provided by the ladies of the Auxiliary, which was heartily partaken of by all. Among those present were the Hon. W. J. Ellis, President; Geo. W. Coughlan, Secretary, and J.J. Spratt, Chairman of the Club. The day was well spent and thoroughly enjoyed. Return to town was made at 8.30 p.m.

At night the older folk participated in a dance, the music being provided by the C.C.C. Band. The programme was an excellent one, and was much enjoyed by the 150 people in attendance. The catering at this end was looked after by Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, of the Hotelry, in their well known style. Return was made to town at one o'clock this morning.

Portugal Cove Garden Party To-Morrow

The parishioners of the R.C. Church at Portugal Cove, are holding their annual Garden Party to-morrow, and as the proceeds of the day are being devoted for the upkeep of the school, it is hoped that large numbers from the city and elsewhere will patronize the affair. A series of boat races have been arranged to take place at Round Pond, at the head of Winsor Lake, and this part of the programme should also prove a big drawing card. The races were very successfully conducted last year, and it is an assured fact that they will be equally as successful to-morrow. Tea and refreshments will be served on the grounds, while the Mount Cashel Band will be in attendance to render all the latest musical hits. Buses will leave Rawlins' Cross at 2 p.m. With a fine day the success of the garden party is assured.

TRINITY

And let us keep as the years depart
The spirit of Youth forever at heart,
And live so long we haven't the grace
To look the Calendar straight in the face.

As in the Ecclesiastical year we observe a sequence of the greater Saints' Day all through the year; and then on All Saints' Day we sum up the minor Saints of home and family life of the year that is all but past; and in happy, holy service we thank God for them, and learn the lessons they are meant to teach. So in our local calendar of the civil year, we are of, and we keep the birthdays of the greater ones of life; yet in Mrs. Pittman's birthday we see, and celebrate more than an isolated private event touching her and there, as it does so many of our people in social, family, and neighbour life. Hence the celebration of it seems to sum up all the other minor birthdays of the year in Trinity; and on that day we meet to do honor to her, we also do honor to ourselves and ours.

Thus on Saturday last, August 9th, in the celebration of Mrs. Pittman's 23rd birthday, we fully realized all this once more. There is only one such person in our midst; only one who for many years has been the glory of our town or village life; only one, wonderful in her God-given and continued physical, and mental powers; wonderful in her quiet, happy influences over others in times of joy, and sorrow; wonderful in her tenderest of sympathy, and practical help in the sick room. The gathering in her home was along the usual lines of other years; confined of necessity, to the members of her family (except two or three privileged friends). There were present five of Mrs. Pittman's children, together with their husbands and wives, respectively; and eleven of her grandchildren; whilst at the same time three of her children, fifteen of her grand-children, and three of her great-grandchildren were absent in the United States, Canada and Newfoundland. To do justice to the abundance of good things provided for the birthday feast, was a task even for so many and whilst our thankfulness was expressed, our great fullness was felt; and speech-making at the end was paly as good as conditions would permit.

The toast of the evening was proposed and spoken to by Rev. Canon Lockyer, as the mouth piece of Mrs. Pittman's absent children; and the wording of it (supplied by Rev. Henry H. Pittman, New York) was as follows:

TO MOTHER.

- The dearest word in every tongue
- is Mother. Well you share it;
- And of all the mothers old and young,
- You best deserve to bear it.

No toast was ever received with greater acceptance, or deeper emotion; no words of a toast were fully expressed more beautiful sentiments; no one was ever more worthy of it all than Mrs. Pittman, and no one could more highly appreciate it. It was responded to by Mrs. Pittman's eldest son, Mr. Nelson Pittman, who had just arrived from Pennsylvania to be present at his mother's birthday; and endorsements were added by Mr. A. Mews, and the other guests in unison. After the dinner, we all caught the spirit of Mrs. Pittman's perpetual youth; and old and young, big and small, joined heartily in such classic games as musical-chairs, pin-point, etc. Later, some very beautiful instrumental music was provided by Mr. and Mrs. A. Mews, for which they have our thanks. Then a cup of coffee brought the most pleasant of evenings to a close, and with a good night to our host, and a "God be with you till we meet again," to Mrs. Pittman, we retired to rest, as "the Sabbath drew near," unable to settle the question—"I wonder whether we shall all be on August 9th, 1925?" As I wandered my way homeward I found myself repeating the words of Browning:

"Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last will be the first,
And so to abide with me!"

REMNISCENCES OF MORIEN, CAPE BRETON

Every now and then—sometimes in my lonely hours through the day, and sometimes in my dreams during the night—my thoughts go back to Cape Breton—to Morien and B. G. Davy, and South Head, and Myra, and, more commonly enough to the outside world yet full of sacred memories to me, roads and paths, rough and rocky, yet because of the thousands of times I went over them, during three years, in connection with the work I loved so well, they constituted sacred ground to me. Then again, there were the men and women—some of them parishioners, with special love for me, and special claims upon me. Some of them citizens with the highest respect for me, and a kindness that of us walked up, and bowed over from their grateful hearts. Many of them God has called to the Rest of Paradise, that rest we so often talked of together—but they all, whether here or in the place of waiting souls, have a place in my memories and in my prayers. One, however, beyond all others, a parishioner who was there to welcome me in 1825; who for 30 odd years afforded me much serious and social pleasure; who was there with a heart full of sorrow, and eyes full of tears—to bid goodbye to Mrs. Lockyer and myself when we left the parish by different ways. One who is still there as I write, lonely and waiting for the summons—to bid me offer the assurance of my frequent thoughts and prayers. He was always affectionately known to me as "Uncle John"; he is so still; and with the knowledge of his appreciation of a story about "the former days," I am taking a liberty, but no risk, of reminiscent into shape. They were interesting and amusing to me years ago; they are equally so to-day; and they will, I believe, awaken happy memories in the persons of Uncle John, and "the boys."

Uncle John was a fisherman's son, and when he was old enough to pull in a haddock or to throw mackerel bait, his father took him with him to the fishing grounds. Fishing in those days was hard work for man and boy, for every appliance was of the most primitive kind. The oars were heavy and the boats were sluggish; the clams were hard to dig; the herring were scarce and they had to be chopped up fine by hand with a hatchet, for mackerel bait. Things all this went along with but little change in Uncle John's boyhood days, and far into his manhood years, without any complaining on his part; yet when he and his own sons began to fish together, many changes had taken place in the fisherman's world, and he became conscious of growing dissatisfaction on the part of his boys, with the primitive methods of prosecuting the fishery. They barked after the motor boat, (of which they had read) and such other modern inventions as would make fishing easier, and life on the whole, more worth living. Uncle John's sympathies were really with "the boys"; but loyalty to the old traditions and the methods of his boyhood days, together with an intense hatred for softness in daily life, forbade his betrayal of these sympathies for a while.

The motor boat was the first of those modern inventions which demanded attention, and which occupied a large place in "the boys'" thoughts by day, and in their dreams by night. Whatever Uncle John thought of this, he said very little of a complimentary nature. When one of his neighbours invested in a motor boat, Uncle John was heard to say: "That fellow has got a darned sight more money than sense; and the old oars and sails will be good enough for me and me boys."

"The boys," however, had already made up their minds in favor of a motor boat for the next summer's fishing; though they thought it wise not to mention it to their father just then. One morning (just after Uncle John had thus declared himself) as he and "the boys" were on their way to the fishing grounds, pulling their best on the old spruce oars against the wind; the neighbor's motor boat was seen coming round the head of the breaker. It quickly overhauled the rowers and it passed them at a good clip, with the men smoking their pipes with languid ease, the intentions of "the boys" were suddenly declared in no uncertain language, and the opinions of Uncle John were indicated by his silence.

He could not understand it, and as he put on a fresh bait, he doubted the dose of dope. Just then a puff of wind blew from stem to stern. "When!" said another, "the deuce is 'then'!" said another, "the deuce is your father using on his bait!" "Mind your own business" said father. "What are you fellows using, and why are you so sly about it?" "Oh! said one of "the boys," "we didn't tell you 'till now, 'till you should make fun of it." Uncle John said nothing at all; but the words set him thinking, and he said to himself "oil of roday! oil of roday! Yes, that's what Ned told me to get; and that's what I went to town to get; and the fool clerk in the store persuaded me that it was Altar of Roses that I wanted. No wonder it cost $1.50 for a tinful full, that it cost all the mackerel from my hook, and that the smell of it gave me away." "Gooh! I won't use any more of it on my bait, but I'll keep it to put on my red handkerchief on Sunday; and when I go to church I will watch the parson, and see if he gets a sniff of it. He's pooty quick to catch on to shtuff like that; and then when he comes down to the house after church, I'll tell him the whole story; and Gooh! Won't he laugh at me for going all the way to town for oil of roday and coming back with Altar of Roses for mackerel bait. Hal Ha! Hal. Me old gurdy frock, and then Newfoundland, mitta' will smell of the darned stuff all the summer. It's on me all right!" but it will be a good story for me to tell the parson, in return for all them funny stories he has told me about those queer fellows in Newfoundland. Gooh! I can't help laughing when I think about it; and I can almost hear Bob, Mac, Ari, and the parson laughing about it now."

There was still another surprise in store for Uncle John in connection with his education in modern fishing appliances. One fine day during the mackerel season as he and "the boys" were fishing three B.M.S. from the "shag-rocks," he detected "the boys" stirring up something on the bait on their hooks. Though he had no idea as to what it was, they were fishing, he realized, from the number of fish they were catching, that they were in possession of some other new fangled notion, and he made up his mind that he would find out what it was. He did not intend to ask "the boys" about it, nor did he intend to let them know that he had noticed their actions. At the same time he outlined a plan of his own, which, if he succeeded in working, would make "the boys" sit up and take notice the next time they went mackerel catching together. He talked it over with neighbor Ned, who told him, that though he was not quite sure as to what "the boys" were using on their bait to attract the mackerel, yet "Salamon Injun" had told him that no respectable fisherman could withstand the attraction of "oil of roday"; and what was good for eels would be equally good for mackerel; and that it could be bought at any drug store. The next day Uncle John told "the boys" that he wasn't going out with them that day; and after they had left for the fishing ground, Uncle John started for the nearest town in which there was a drug store. He did not particularly good at remembering the outlandish names of things in a drug store; so as he went up Hardwood Hill he kept saying aloud—Oil of Roday! Oil of Roday! By the time, however, that he had got to the Sand Bar, and sat down on an old log to fill his pipe, the name of the stuff had entirely slipped his mind, and when he got to the drug store, he had to throw himself at the mercy of the clerk to help him find out what he came for.

The clerk mentioned such things as Castor Oil, Tangle, Moonshine, Mineral Liment, etc., but Uncle John shook his head. At last as the clerk looked at the bottles of perfume on the counter, he said "Altar of roses." "That's it," said Uncle John, "give me a tinful of that." When however, the clerk told him that a tinful would cost about $1.50, Uncle John decided that the mackerel catch would not justify such an expenditure, and he compromised on a small bottle full for $1.50. He kept his secret all night and the next morning he was up, and on the breakfast table and early with his little glass-stemmed bottle in his trousers pocket. He was anxious to begin the day's fishing, and he laughed as he thought of the fancy stunts he was going to show "the boys." By careful maneuvering he secured a position right at the boat. Pretty soon he saw "the boys" at their old tricks, putting something on their bait, with the usual good results. Then, without attracting their attention, he removed the glass stopper from the bottle, and put a few drops of the Altar of roses on his baited hook. "When!" said Uncle John to himself, "that's a beautiful smell, and no respectable mackerel can possibly resist it." Still, however, to Uncle John's disappointment, they did resist it, and "the boys" were hauling in two mackerel to his one.

that they thought necessary; and that he would lay back them up; although he said nothing about it.

Sunday last, and will spend his holidays with his Aunt, Mrs. Fred Morris. Glad to see you Nigel. There should be some love for and appreciation of Trinity in your make up. May you enjoy it to the full.

We were pleased to meet on the Megie last Sunday, Mr. John Moore, son of John and Sally Moore, of the South Side some fifty years ago. Mr. Moore is now in charge of the Stewards Department of the Newfoundland Railway, and (together with his wife and children) is making the round trip to Labrador and return. We were glad to meet them, and to talk over "former times."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pottle and his wife, of St. John's, visited Trinity last Saturday, paid their respects to us, looked up the old church records, and read stories of the Pottles' from 1769, and saw beautiful Trinity from some of its vantage points. Mr. Pottle was born in English Harbor, near Trinity. At an early age he was taken to St. John's where he has lived ever since. Mr. Pottle is a C. L. B. enthusiast. He is an expert wood worker, and the Royal Coat of Arms in the Supreme Court, and the Coat of Arms of the C. L. B. Armoury, St. John's, are beautiful specimens of his work. One of Mr. Pottle's ancestors was Captain George Pottle, of Christ Church, Hants, England, and in the King's Guard, London, in 1761. He eloped with a Miss Jennings, who was an heiress to great wealth, and a lady-in-waiting to Queen Charlotte, wife of King George III. Upon her father's death, King George became her guardian. Mr. Pottle is a lineal descendant of this Capt. George and Mary Pottle, who, after their marriage, came out to Bonavista, Newfoundland, where Mrs. Pottle died, and was buried in 1783. Richard Lockyer, and Mary Pottle, both of Christ Church, Hants, England, came to English Harbor, and were married in Old St. Paul's Church, Trinity, in 1760. This Mary Pottle was a cousin of Captain George and Mary Pottle.

Mr. and Mrs. James Collins, of Montreal, are visiting friends at Dunfield. Mr. Collins was born in Dunfield forty-two years ago. He is a son of Robert Collins, well known and respected merchant of Culivern Bay, and Newcastle and decided I would send for a free sample. I purchased more and in two or three months the pimples disappeared. (Signed) Miss Irene Wagner, Box 281, Hants, Mont., Aug. 27, 1923.

back to their respective homes, and others have begun to come. Mr. William House, Jr., of Grand Falls, is still with us, and so are Mr. and Mrs. House Sr. I am sure they would all like to stay here, but there is nothing to encourage them to do so. In the meantime we are all glad to have them with us for a while. They have a place in our thoughts, and prayers that they may all prove good citizens in those places where they have made their homes.

Mr. Bert Taylor, of St. John's, brother of Mrs. Raffin, is registered at the Garland. He is not a stranger to us, and we are glad to have him with us again. We have invested him with the freedom of the town, and a blank order for all the good air he can use up in the best interests of his health.

Several passengers joined the Propeller for St. John's on Monday last. One was little Jacqueline Lockyer, of the Garland Hotel (who went) with her cousin Miss Louise Gardner, an extended visit to the city.

Rev. Uriah Late, Methodist Minister, and Miss Batson, of English Harbour, were in town on Monday last. We understood Mr. Late is on his way to "Heart's Delight." In other words, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Mews celebrated their tip wedding on Tuesday last; and their friends took advantage of the opportunity to extend congratulations, and to add some useful articles to the kitchen cabinet.

Miss Irene Wagner Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"I was troubled with pimples from the time I was twelve years of age. Some of the pimples were large and ugly, some were small. They were hard and red at first but after the second or third day they turned into a hard and gradually disappeared. They looked so badly that I was disgusted and did not want to go anywhere.

"One day I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and decided I would send for a free sample. I purchased more and in two or three months the pimples disappeared." (Signed) Miss Irene Wagner, Box 281, Hants, Mont., Aug. 27, 1923.

OFFICIAL SYNOPSIS

House resumed at 7:30 p.m.

Hon. P. T. McGrath proposed an amendment to Section 10 of paragraph 23 that the word "day" be stricken out and the word "week" substituted. Which, he added, briefly meant that instead of a bottle a day, a bottle a week only could be produced. He assumed that the object of the Bill was to allow people to receive a reasonable amount in moderate quantities for medicinal family or social uses—and not sufficient for abuse. He felt safe in saying that in advocating a modification of the Prohibition Law men never exceeded the pendulum to swing so far. Mr. Smith, as Secretary of the Moderate Prohibition Movement, had written a letter to the Telegram last week. Hon. Mr. Patrick added, in which he had "rubbed it in" to the extent that he had opposed viciously a motion for a bottle a day, "now, when they were to be carried out, a bottle a day. A message from James D. Mann voted the sentiments expressed in the amendment and he should the opportunity of knowing a number of Roman Catholics. The gentleman had expressed themselves favorable to it. The amount of whisky sent out weekly from the Controller's Department was roughly 100 bottles a week that was 100 per cent he continued, and this met the demands of the outports, city, and stores, and 400 bottles of rum went to the cause of the Island. He said, was more creditable than what one hears or reads of a bottle a day would lead to a much greater output of liquor. He then moved the amendment of a bottle a week as the maximum quantity to be produced.

Mr. Morine explained that the motion referred to did not mean that any person but that it simply limited the amount that one person might buy for his whole family which was a family of seven. He stated that there was no compulsion to purchase a bottle; a phial full or pill might be procured. The bottle was the limit that could be obtained according to the Act. He continued that the cause of the dependence and smuggling was restriction and that the attempt to prohibit reasonable and liberal quantities increased temptation. If you could do away with moonshine and smuggling and enforce Prohibition it would be a different matter. In his mind Sir T. McGrath was the victim of statistics and was always quoting from them but never drew the right morals from them. Sir Patrick had said 50 was a week was the maximum of the Controller's Department but it is well known that much more than that amount was being consumed in the country. Where does it come from? And why all the drunkenness of this was true? It is because smuggling has gone on wholesale, moonshine unchecked and the Government had strong reason for belief that much liquor coming in for treatment is consumed here. He further held that the attempt to prohibit having failed if any restrictions are to be on at all they must be reasonable that 99 p. c. of the people would want to up to the amount which has been offered to the country who had protested against the Bill that there is no compulsion in the Act to force any man to drink any specified amount of liquor; far from it, great care has been taken to provide the Board with power to refuse to sell to drunks and those who are duly covered by prohibition. If we were to adopt the amendment which has been offered it would merely be endorsing another form of prohibition on a smaller scale which the Government was not prepared to do. He could not accept the amendment and asked the House to reject it.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs agreed with the previous speaker that such restriction as a bottle a week would only be a milder form of prohibition and proceeded with first was dependent on the engineers. He confidently believed that when the Gander proposition was decided it would compare favorably with the Humber and other larger industries of the country. All this would depend upon the Bill passing this session of the House and necessary capital might be raised. As it is usual in a Bill of this kind there are certain privileges requested, precedent for which had been established the passing of the "Humber Act". He had fought against the granting of such privileges in past years but the Bills were put through and thus the status for all great engineering in this country has been fixed. We need the labor and employment now just as much as we did in the days of the passing of the Humber and with this in view he could see no reason which would justify them in revisiting in this case concessions that have been given to others. The Government had already settled certain amendments in the original Bill to the expropriation of lands, etc., which slightly modified it in this respect.

The Bill was read a second time and will be committed on to-morrow.

A Bill regarding the disembarking of "Sappers" was read a first, and by consent, a second time, and passed without amendment.

House adjourned until Monday at 3 p.m.

man's choosing his own drink than it did with his own food. We have seen natural signs and it is not because some abuse these rights that they are to be taken away. It is the duty of the state to limit and not to destroy. A State that tries to take away rights from its citizens is doing the opposite to what it should. If we say a man shall have no more than a bottle a week, they will break the law to get it elsewhere, either by smuggling or by pilferage. It is being smuggled here in St. John's every week, and scarcely a vessel or steamer touching our shores but has it on board. This session did not mean everyone was going to get a bottle a day; some could not get one a month. It is not because some people abuse a right, we should take it away from others who do not abuse the privilege. More people die from overeating than from over-drinking. Because one man consumes too much meat and gets sick, should we say to his neighbour you cannot have so much meat because your neighbour got sick. The figures as to corruption quotes are no criticism of the quantity consumed in this country. There are places in the country where you can get champagne and brands of whisky never seen at the Controller's, any amount of it. They take the United States with its records as the greatest drug consuming country in the world. More people are treated there than anywhere else and the use of drugs has increased nearly a thousandfold since Prohibition came into force.

Hon. P. T. McGrath referred the attention of the House to the section regarding special safeguards and said he thought it had been included here because this was the kernel of the Act and the section most likely to be abused.

The amendment being put was lost on division, those appearing in favor, Hon. Mr. Patrick McGrath and W. J. Bills; and against Hon. Sir M. G. Winter, Gibbs, Power, Shea, Storer, Ryan and Morine.

The section as originally in the Bill then passed.

The Committee reported the Bill passed with some amendments and by unanimous consent of the House it was read a third time and passed.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs had intended moving a further section providing that no member of the Government or Legislature might have any dealings with the Board in the purchase or sale or receiving or giving of commissions in connection with the sale of liquor, but thought perhaps this should be provided for under the Legislative Disabilities Act.

Hon. Mr. Morine was much impressed with the idea of such a provision but thought it would be better come under the Act referred to.

Hon. Mr. Gibbs knew if all members of the Government were actuated by the example of the leader of the Government there would be no danger. He understood that gentleman was accepting no patronage whatsoever for his firm, and thought that a splendid example.

On motion of Hon. Mr. Morine and with unanimous consent, the Bill respecting Labrador Railway Extension providing merely for an extension of time for the rights granted under this act, was put through all stages and passed.

Bill respecting the Department of Finance and Customs was read a first, and by consent, a second time.

Hon. Mr. Morine explained that this Bill provided for the appointment of a Deputy Minister of Customs who should act for the whole Island and be separated from the office known as the Assistant Collector of Customs who shall have to do with the affairs of the Port of St. John's.

Bill passed through Committee stage without amendment, and by consent was read a third time, and passed.

The Bill entitled an Act Respecting Certain Retiring Allowances was read a first time.

In moving the second reading Mr. Morine explained that none of the persons, whose names were to be found on the list, had been retired under the present Government, but under the past and previous governments and by Minute of Council. These people had been retired and their successors named and it was the intention of the Government to provide the necessary authority.

The Bill and also the Supplementary Public Service Bill passed through the various stages without amendment.

The Bill entitled an Act to Confirm an Agreement between the Government and the Gander Valley Power & Paper Company, Ltd., was read a first time.

In moving the second reading Mr. Morine stated that the Bill was practically completed before the present Government had come into office. In main provisions it follows the Humber scheme, he added, the distinguishing feature being that it did not ask for endorsement or guarantee from the Government. The Retirees have acquired a large portion of the lands by purchase in Gander Valley and proposed to erect there one mill at the mouth of the river and another farther up. As to which would be proceeded with first was dependent on the engineers. He confidently believed that when the Gander proposition was decided it would compare favorably with the Humber and other larger industries of the country. All this would depend upon the Bill passing this session of the House and necessary capital might be raised. As it is usual in a Bill of this kind there are certain privileges requested, precedent for which had been established the passing of the "Humber Act". He had fought against the granting of such privileges in past years but the Bills were put through and thus the status for all great engineering in this country has been fixed. The Government had already settled certain amendments in the original Bill to the expropriation of lands, etc., which slightly modified it in this respect.

The Bill was read a second time and will be committed on to-morrow.

A Bill regarding the disembarking of "Sappers" was read a first, and by consent, a second time, and passed without amendment.

House adjourned until Monday at 3 p.m.

As it stood was an exact copy of the provision made for the Humber Company. That, he thought, made it difficult to alter, as the company would consider that something was being imposed on the one which had not been imposed on the other. The difficulty in his opinion could be overcome by having proper Customs administration. The materials, he added, meant the plant, tires, tools, machinery, etc., and not things indirectly required. If looseness had occurred, he added the privilege had been violated and the breach would be rather in the proper administration of the Act on the part of the Customs service, than in the altering of the wording of the section.

Mr. Ellis asked if it gave people the privilege of getting what others got should it not be checked?

Mr. Morine stated it could not be improved. The remedy lay in the Customs Department having all these cases examined and if things were gotten in free which should have paid duty, make them pay. He would draw the attention of the Minister to the matter and cause inquiries to be made.

The Committee reported the Bill without amendment, and by consent of the House, it was read a third time and passed.

The House then adjourned until to-morrow (Tuesday) at 10 a.m.
