Lord John Manner's amendment to the franchise bill. The amendment was as follows:

Che day and experienced an earthquake shock. Room on the fifth floor of the Palace hotel, and it swayed from side to side more than six inches in the force around Shendy.

To every one's surprise Mr. Parnell abstained from making any utterance upon the amendment, and both he and the entire Irish delegation threw their votes solidly with the government.

Congo. Sir Charles Forster put his previously announced question to the government on the subject. He was supported by a large party following of both conservatives and liberals, who were prepared to force a discussion if the answer of the government proved vasatisfactory. But Mr. Gladstone rose to the occasion by marking in a spirit of markial mainreplying in a spirit of martial main-tenance of English rights, which was enough to satisfy the most enthusiastic of Jingoes. He said that while it was true that Englan', had signed a treaty of alli-ance with Portugal, it was not true that that treaty invested the acceptation had that tre aty involved the acquisition by the latter, government or one foot of Congo territory, The treaty was one in which a English and native rights secured by former treaties were amply protected. In its commercial aspect it gave England an undoubted advantage over all contents. undoubted advantage over all competitors, inasmuch as, although Portugal was allowed inasmuch as, although Portugal was allowed to exact customs dues on the imports of all nations, those of Great Britain and those brought in British ships or ships of British origin, are to be forever put upon the same favorable basis as the goods of Portugal or those imported in Portugese vessels. As for possible Portugese plans for the annaxation of the territory, it would be found that the present English government would brought in British ships or ships of British origin, are to be forever put upon the same favorable basis as the goods of Portugal or those imported in Portugese vessels. As for possible Portugese plans for the annaxation of the territory, it would be found that the present English government would oppose such projects as sternly and as continuously as had ever been done in the mast.

This spirited declaration of the deterhas given great satisfaction, and it is evident that Mr. Gladstone has very adroitly averted the dangerous discussion which would surely have been placed upon him if the government's reply had been in any way yarue or headtating.

In support of a resolution, passed at a popular meeting in Bradford, England, that home lessons should not be compulsory on children under 10 years, Dr. Rabagliati stated that in the last decade deaths from hydrocephalus at the school ages had in creased 20 per cent. This he believed must in part be attributed to educations over-pressure. He also pointed out that cephalitis had increased in the same period y nearly 50 per cent. While he did not hink this could be attributed to the same cause, he begged the school board to take care lest, by forced study, an additional impetus might be given to the causes which were powerfully increasing the mo tality from nervous disorders. The headdress of the Highlanders is not the most expensive of those worn by English troops. and she had followed them to Mrs. Rowell's place once. On the morning of the shooting she went to Mrs. Rowell's door, Hackett had not been home for three nights. She asked Mrs. Rowell's little boy, who was at the door, if Mrs. Allkins, and Hackett ever slept together. The little boy said "Yes, one night, but don't tell anyone." Mrs. Hackett then told of a visit she made to Allkins' studio after thearing this from the boy. She told Allkins about it, and she wondered to herself if Allkins and his wife were really married. Allkins was walking up and down his room nearly wild. His face was bleeding and his eye was black. He and Hackett had had an encounter before she went ett had had an encounter before she went to the studio, and Hackett got the best of it.

The case was given to the jury just before midnight, and they returned the following verdict in substance: "That John Hackett came to his death from peritonitis, which peritonitis may or may not have been caused by a pistol-wound in his right groin, and that there was no evidence to show who infficted the The verdict was no surprise to those who have followed the case. There seems to be a desire on all hands to make the shooting justifiable. The doctors were all on Allkins' side. Allkins was taken back to jail by Policeman Wismer. He has also to answer a charge of shooting his wife.

While there is so much sympathy going the rounds for Allkins, there is one person the rounds for Allkins, there is one person who is as deeply wronged as any one, but who seems to be entirely overlooked. Mrs. Hackett, the widow, is spoken of as a very respectable woman, and her sorrow at the inquest last night was probably as deep-seated as it was perceptible.

THE IRISH IMMIGRANT GIRL.

or death had struck the Irish girl, and For death had struck the Irish girl, and dimmed her azure eyes, So soft and blue, just like the hue of Erin's summer skies.

As she lay tossing on her bed her splendid golden hair
Shone like a halo round her head as she lay dying there.
She knew no more the stranger's face, she knew not where she lay.
But cried aloud for home and friends the weary night and day;
Ah! it would break a heart of stone to hear the maiden's cry,
"Oh, take me back where shamrocks grow and lay me down to die;
Oh, Gerald, darln', where are you, come to my side, asthore,
An' fold your arms around my neck and kiss my lips once more; my lips once more: Why did I lave you, Gerald dear, to come so far away,
And lave you there behind, me love, beyond
the cruel say;
Me eyes are filled with scaldin' tears, me
heart is sad and sore; you and me apart;
Oh, hold me closer—tighter yet—and whisper,
as of yore,
How much you love your colleen bawn, and we shall part no more,
For I can hear the Shannon rush 'mid hedges thick and green.
And Connaught's mountain tops beyond are dressed in living sheen;
And I can hear the thrushes sing amid the hawthorn tree. And I can hear the thrushes sing amid the hawthorn tree.
Where first you took me in your arms and prighted troth with me.
The rose you gave me on that night and twined amid my hair
Is lying safe against my heart: Ah! you can find it there.
It's growing darker, Gerald dear, an' I can see no more, and we must part till morning, love, then kiss me once, as hore;
And when the little birds to God their vesper hymns have sung.
Then you can lead me by the hand the meadows green among.
And you can put a sinal rock wreath about your Kathleen's head;
Then, good-bye, Gerald darlin," the Irish girl was dead.

The trade in herrings is over for this season, and no interest will suffer from the Canadian compulsory inspection until October next, when the new crop of fish arrives, and by that time the difficulty will, doubtless, be adjusted. In the meantime, all danger of the retaliatory measure threatened by Newfoundland being enforced is averted by the course adopted by the doubtless for a bank to accept its for the others than for Mara's, the last has probably now been heard of them. Much has been said of late of "informers" and "bribers,"but the stock-broking "squealer" is a much more detestable animal.

A Dangerous Gift. Recent cable despatches say that Parnell's influence is on the wane, and we know that there is open conflict between him and Davitt. It is said that James Stephen is trying to organise a new party, which will be equally opposed to Parnel on the one hand and to the dynamiters of the other. The main fact which shows itself above the surface is that of opposition to Parnell from several sections of the

His thirty thousand pounds may turn out to have been not merely a dangerous but a fatal gift, as far as his leadership of the Irish cause is concerned. Time will tell, but such is the way the probabilities look at

of the Track. Says the Winnipeg Times:

But without discussing the objectionable features of Chinese immigration, there is an international side to the question that must be considered. For years China was a sealed country to Europeans. Not a port was open to them. In the course of time British bayonets and British bibles thrust down the throats of the Chinese against their will altered this state of affairs. There were fortunes to be made in the wretched opium business, and so the British, bible in one hand and bayonet in the other, compelled the Chinese government to open certain ports. In return for this a treaty was entered into between the Chinese and British governments, the former guaranteeing the right of English ships and English merchants to trade with several Chinese ports; the latter guaranteeing the free immigration of Chinese into Great Britain and her colonies, and this treaty is in force to day, and it does seem that before Canada has the power to restrict Chinese immigration the British government has a right to a word in the matter.

body objects to making this country free to the Chinese, in the same way as China is made free to British subjects. But the trou ble is that the Chinese come to our shores by thousands, taking work and wages and bread from our own people. Those of our race and language who enter China are but law open to question? few in number, and are limited to merchants and their clerks, missionaries and ravelers. None of these classes take work away from Chinese laborers, but on the contrary create work for them, and pay them well for it too. The two cases are not parallel, and it seems astonishing that anybody of common sense should talk as if they were. Give the Chinese exactly the same privileges in our country that we get in theirs; that ought to be fair play and nobody here would object to it. What is objected to is something very different. If five thousand of our people were admitted into Canton, and were there to discovered with a something to the control of the control anybody of common sense should talk as place as many Chinese laborers and mechanics, there would be rebellion and bloodshed immediately. But if the imperial government wants to give China mitted into Canton, and were there to dis-something in return for the privilege of bringing in opium, then let Chinese emi grants go to England, not to Canada. The kind of reception that a few thousand Chinese laborers would get in Sheffield or Manchester may be imagined.

Orator or Statesman.

The Globe the other day had a heading to a cable despatch, intimating that the opposition in the British house of commons en demoralized by Mr. Gladstone's great oratorical effort on the franchise question. This suggests what is undoubtedly one of the peculiar dangers and disabilities of parliamentary government. The greatest orator in debate may not be the wisest statesman in council, but, no matter, if he can persuade parliament his policy will be adopted, and he will be sustained not only where he is right but also where he is wrong. A brilliant speech by Mr. Gladstone on the franchise question may break the force of attacks on his foreign policy, and so enable him to continue doing mischief abroad while doing good and patriotic work at home. It is probably the opinion of not a few that it

Sam. Day, the Birmingham ped., who is to take part in the coming six-day go-asyon-please contest at New York, has been sent over by the Moseley harriers. He is 32 yrs. old, stands 5 ft. 3 in. high, and weighs 128 pounds. He has only three weeks for training. His best performances have been in seventy-two-hour—twelve hours a day—contests. His record at these is 377 miles.

In answer to an interviewer, Wallace Ross said: "I rowed at 165 lbs. I trained harder for my race with Bubear than I ever did before. I was determined to win, and knew I must be as fit as possible to defeat the Englishment to defeat the Englishman, who rows fast and stays well. You can see I am fine What I want to do is to build up a little before commencing to train again."
Wallace also said he rated Bubear as a sculler as about equal to J. A. Ten Eyck.

A meeting of the Mutual lacrosse club was held last night in their rooms, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing season: Pres., W. J. Robinson; vice-pres., J. Parodying Hymns. A local newspaper very properly co onns the parodying of a popular hymn in satirical political article published in a daily paper. But the paper which conmns the parody as "verging on blasis guilty of a worse offence by phemy, is gunty or a notes of parodying in the same number the words of our Saviour, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few." Grip teous, but the laborers are few." Grip turns this into a joke so, "The lucre truly is plenty, but the savings banks are few.'
To parody sacred poetry written by a fel-low-creature is a mild offence indeed compared to getting a laugh out of the words of Jesus Christ. There is sadly too much of this parodying of scripture in Grip and other comic papers. What is Catarrh From the Mail (Canada) Dec. 15.

From the Mait (Canada) Dec, 16,
Catarrh is a mreo-purulent discharge caused by the presence and development of the vegetable parasite ameba in the internal lining membrane of the nose. This parasite is only developed under favorable circumstances, and these are: Morbid state of the blood, as the blighted corpuscle of tubercle, the germ poison of syphilis, mercury, toxemea, from the retention of the effeted matter of the skin, suppressed perspiration, badly ventilated sleeping spartments, and other poisons that are germinated in the blood. These poisons keep the internal lining membrane of the nose in a constant state of irritation, ever ready for the deposit of the seeds of these germs, which spread up the nostrils and down the fauces or back of the throat, causing ulceration of the throat, up the custachian tubes, causing deafness, burrowing in the vocal cords, causing hoarseness; usurping the proper structure of the bronchial tubes, ending in pulmonary consumption and death.

Many attempts have been made to discover a cure for this distressing disease by the use of inhalants and other ingonious devices but one of these treatments can do a particle of good until the parasites are either destroyed or removed from the mucous tissue.

Much time was spent, and much The following is an extract from a letter trouble taken, in endeavoring to devise a written 28th March by a lady lately a resi- plan whereby such control might be secured, without sacrificing considerations, to known Montrealer:—"The weather here is just beautiful—quite like May weather with you. There is not a particle of snow, and some people near us are actually sowing. We have about 30 acres ready for sowing. There is still six yet to backs set. A. (her husband) will sow about the 10th April, while farms around Three Rivers won't be as forward six weeks hence. This is really, without any exaggeration, the most charming climate. We have had spring for the past month, with all doors and windows open, and if the past winter is a specimen we would never wish for a better climate—so little snow and only an occasional day of really cold weather."

Attacked by a Game Cock.
From the Guelph Mercury.

A breeder of fancy game had rather a strange encounter the other day. While admiring the beauty of one of his pullets he gave it an accidental squeeze, causing intended to last for all time to come. Not content with our own opinion, and not willing to relinquish the idea of denominational control, unless compelled to do so, we consulted the best legal talent, not only within but outside the denomination in Toronto, the result being that, having reference to our polity of church independence, and to the existing status of our denominational organization, it was found impossible to carry out the objects in view by means of the desired representative control.

Chief and first among these objects I may mention that every safeguard should may mention that every safeguard should be provided to prevent the means about to be furnished for the erection of the college, as well as those intended to be given as an endowment, being used at any future time for the propagation of any other than the distinctive principles of the regular baptists. Second, that there should be no risk or complication as to the title of the college in any property it might become college in any property it might become possessed of, no question as to the validity of its acts, and no room for disputes, either filling vacancies in the controlling body. It will be observed I do not concern myself at all, as to whether these statements make for or against the arguments of those who are agitating for a change of polity. Baby Coons.

In natural history it is freely stated that raccoons will not breed in captivity. But the contrary has happened in this city. A cooness owned here for over a year past has just presented her proprietor with four coonlings.

Tolled a cart to this lady's door and explained that he was sent by Dr. and Mrs. Russell for the boxes in her charge. Alas, for unsuspecting womanhood? The lady gave up every bit of property entrusted to her by bride and bridegroom. A day or two elapsed without message. Reason of the silence—they had not reached England. The plausible porter was a thief.

The plausible porter was a thief. any antipathy to a self-perpetuating board of trustees. The latter is no new theory, Many institutions of the kind are managed and, I think, well managed in this way. Further, it is well known that there are sources of weakness in the representative system as applied to educational institutions, and that there are in our denomination in Canada elements which must necessity. sarily have enhanced the dangers insepa able from the carrying out of that system under congregational polity. What looms up, in my estimation, far above this and all other considerations, so far as the future of the college is concerned, is the necessity for preserving inviolable the doctrinal standard; and in view of all the new and strange theories that are being constantly advanced in quarters where they are least expected, it may be advisable for the board, of which I am only one member to see of which I am only one member, to consider whether any safeguards in this direction can be devised in addition to those originally provided.

In conclusion, permit me to add, that much as I should regret any disposition to criticise, from an adverse standpoint, an institution which I was fain to believe had then received by the description with een received by the denomination with some measure of enthusiasm, I do not dep-ecate fair discussion of the course that has pursued. All I ask is that it be fair and that my position in reference to it be not misrepresented. Should the result be a feasible suggestion for bringing the college into more immediate and vital connection with the churches, I see no reason for supposing that the board which now controls the institution would deal with the subject otherwise than in a proper spirit.

—Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a real meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite, and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your your system in regular order, and enable you to successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sell it.

Forcing the Season.

"Yes," said the caterer, "business is little dull at present. The entertainmen season is closing, and it is sort of between hay and grass with us. We needn't be idle however, for we can employ our spare time in putting up summer goods."
"Indeed. I didn't know that there was anything in your line that you could manufacture so far in advance."

"Oh, yes; we can put up sandwiches fo summer picnics." The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First, It is perfectly harmless. Second, It saves more than half the labor. Third, It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers.
