We all must bear them. Vain regrets,
Love's longing for some dear, lost face,
Which even sleep cannot forget,
Nor yet the coming years replace;
The disappointment all must know,
When hope's mirage proves a dream,
The finding Marah's waters flow
Where tempting wayside fountains gleat

We all must bear them. Why despair?
The wine-press is not trod alone,
The promise is that He will care
As doth a father for his own,
Our burdens may become our wings,
For underneath His arms will be;
And through our sighing sweetly rings,
"Sufficient is My grace for thee."

Mr. Williams had been for a great many years in India, where money was easily made, and there was plenty of shooting and society to amuse him; but Mrs. Williams had grown so ill that she was obliged to take her baby son home to England, and died there, leaving her child to the care of an old nurse, a good woman called Betty West, un-til his father should come home. But Mr. Williams was too pleas

The greatest inventor that ever lived has established himself in a dell hidden among vagrant mountains in New Jersey wilds. The neighborhood has no inhabitants with the exception of the 200 odd men whom the wizard employs in his incantations. The place is an old deserted mine, once known as Ogden, but the rockabye railroad with balky engines and wheezy, catarrhal cars that meander that way when the wind is not too strong, has christened it Edison. There are buildings all over Edison, large buildings that walk about the premises if you press a button. In fact, they rarely do anything at Edison without pressing a button. But one

Finally the great Edison appeared. He was terribly dirty. He looked, so far as attire is concerned, like a navvy. He was all it? How much more effectively one could to a pre grime and dust. But his face was that of a bright, blue-eyed youth, beautifully blueeyed, and smiling. Not until he took his vile, ash-covered hat off did the gray hair reveal that he is no longer young in years. His face is almost free from wrinkles.

Mr. Edison's hearing has improved very much in the past year, owing, perhaps, to his perfect physical condition. He spoke well and distinctly, and is never, apparently, as much impressed with the wonders he per-forms as are his workmen.

He was asked if ordinary sights and scenes, sists largely in pressing a series of buttons.

And they never think this extraordinary in are very scientific. They release the giant forces of nature and hold them in check the pope in the vatican, or a speech at a mass meeting, could be as effectively handled. "Far more easily," he replied, "that is the least difficult part of the problem. Even now, the spectator could be treated to a per-fect reproduction of Gladstone making a speech in the house of commons. This would be shown of life size, and, so far as the spec tator is concerned, would be the real scen In a recent article on Brain and Nerve Exhaustion, Dr. Wm. M. Baird of New York says.—"It is within the memory of the present generation that insanity was thought to be not a disease, but an abnormal physical condition, a vicious temper or emotion that needed only strong will to control. To-day we are 'quite safe in saying that insanity is indeed only another, and in some respects more serious form of nervous exhaustion." How important then that the nervous system should be kept in a state of health. The victim of nervous disease will find in Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic a remedy peculiarly adapted to his or her condition. It restore the nervous system to a state of health by improving the digestion and enriching the blood, enabling it to rebuild the wasted tissues. Its effect is stimulating and strengthening. It restores the lost energy and health is fully regained. This great remedy is sold by all druggists and dealers at 50 cts. per bottle or six bottles $2.50, and is manufactured only by the Hawker Medicine Co. (Ltd.) St. John, N. B. and New York City. For every word, every gesture of the grand old man, the gestures of each spectator and the sounds made on the occasion would be reproduced exactly. "Is not the mechanism very complicated?"

"Not more so than that of the kinetoscope and the phonograph, and the difficulty now in the way is the adjustment of photographic apparatus in minute fractions of a

"At present, yes. In time, however, it will not. The reproduction of such sights and sounds as those enacted in the opening of congress would be very easy. The spec-tator could sit down in his drawing room or or any particular preparation be necessary.

But, with a grand opera, it would be more difficult. One must exercise great care in securing the assembly. There are myriads of details connected with the tones, the gestures, the dress, the colors, the light and such like. It is proposed to give these with scrupulous fidelity. —A writer in the Country Gentleman expresses the opinion that the price of horses will increase in the course of a year or two. Not nearly so many colts, he says, are being raised as formerly, and as it takes years to bring a colt to be of use, the scarcity may come in a comparatively short time. Another reason for a contemplated shortage in horse flesh, it is contended, lies in the fact that large numbers of horses are now being killed, canned and shipped for human food—one establishment alone consuming 100 horses a day. In other places this is also done. The authorities of one Michigan city recently discovered that from two to six done. The authorities of one Michigan city recently discovered that from two to six horses were being slaughtered every night, the meat salted and dried, then shipped to Chicago as cow beef. As they say it is difficult to tell the difference between canned ox and canned horse, no one can tell just to what extent this industry has developed, but if it is sufficient to affect the horse market, it must certainly be booming.

The Weekly Monitor.

They appear to have had exciting times at Ottawa during a part of last week. Never since those stirring times preceding the resignation of the MoDonald government in November '73, have political circles at the capital been so deeply moved as during last week, when the famous Manitoba school question led to something like a crisis on the government side of the house. As we stated last week the government decided not to attempt any legislation upon that subject during the present session. In announcing this fact in the House, Mr. Foster the leader of the government adide, made a very definite promise that unless the Manitoba government decided in the autumn for the special purpose of passing remedial legislation. Provided the promoter and the meantime, another session of parliament would be called in the autumn for the special purpose of passing remedial legislation. This was promising very much more than many of the supporters of the government are willing to grant, as a large section of the conservative membership of the House is absolutely opposed to any interference with Manitoba. It was a definite promise to give the Roman Catholics of Manitoba all they sak, if they will but wait in patience six months longer. But it seems that even this promise did not attaisfy the French members of the Coloure of the Seeding Cabinet ministers, and the withdrawal from the House of nearly all the French conservative members. For several days the fate of the government hung in the balance, no one being able to predict what minute its defeat might occur. A majority of but five prevented this upon none occasion. At one time it would be reported that the entire cabinet had resigned and account the think, we think, left none disastisfied. At one time it would be reor was about to do so; while at another a olution of parliament and an immediate only means of breaking the dead lock. Finally, after several days of suspense, two of the ministers, Hon. J. A. Ouimet, Minister of Public Works, and Sir A. P. Caron, Post-the ministers, Hon. J. A. Onimet, Minister of Public Works, and Sir A. P. Caron, Postmaster General, withdrew their resignations and went back to their portfolios again. The third one, Hon. A. R. Angers, Minister of Agriculture, however, declined to do so, and his place in the cabinet is about to be filled by another.

Although peace now reigns in government circles it is probable that trouble will again be encountered when next parliament meets, for unless the Manitoba legislature deals with the question, which does not now aseem at all likely, the government will meet with grave difficulties in carrying out its pledge. This question seems to be stronger than one of mere politica. Many of the members on both sides appear to be willing to throw aside all political considerations and vote for or against remedial legislation, regardless of the effect it may have upon the government or party they support. Thus many government supporters have announced their determination of opposing such legislation, while it is stated that every Roman Catholic member of the opposition will support the government in promoting such a measure. The question has, therefore, become, or is fast becoming, one of race and creed rather than one of politics, which makes the situation one that thoughtful men view with a great deal of apprehension. The overthrow of a government or the defeat of a political party is a matter of triffing consequence in comparison with having French and English Roman Catholics and Protestants arrayed against each other throughout the dominion. Roman Catholics and Protestants arrayed against each other throughout the dominion. Against such a condition of things all patriotic citizens will pray to be delivered; and it is therefore greatly to be hoped that the government and legislature of Manitaba will nake such concessions in its present school law as will meet the reasonable wishes the Roman Catholics of that province. -So far as can be judged by reports already to hand, the English elections have resulted in a sweeping victory for the conervative and liberal union government of Lord Salisbury. The most striking instance of the contest is the signal defeat of Sir William Vernon Harcourt in his old constituency of Derby, which he has represented for the past fifteen years. He was the Chancellor of the Exchequer and leader of the House of Commons in the late government, aspiring even to the leadership of the liberal party in place of Lord Rosebery, and ranking easily as one of the ablest men in public life in Great Britain. His defeat was, therefore, wholly unexpected, and if as is stated, it turns out that he fell a victim to the liquor vote, it will serve to make politicians even more timid than they now are about taking advanced ground on the We often hear it stated that if our public men would come out boldly and take adwanced ground on this question they would sweep all before them. Sir William did something of this kind. He made local option one of the prominent planks in the platform of the liberal party, and in consequence he is reported to have lost the support of the entire liquor interest of his con-stituency, with the result of the loss of his seat by an overwhelming majority. Results such as these are by no means beneficial to seat by an overwhelming majority. Results such as these are by no means beneficial to the temperance cause, and tend to point out the wisdom of making haste slowly in the direction of this and other radical reforms.

—The readiness with which the English system of parliamentary government responds to the popular will, and the flexibility of their political methods, have been strikingly shown by what has taken place there within the last few weeks. On Friday, 21st of June, the liberal ministry of Lord Rosebery suffered a defeat in the House of Commons. The next-day the resignation of the ministry was in the hands of Her Majesty. On Monday Lord Saulisbury was summoned to form a government, which he did within two days. Then, after spending a few days in voting supplies and in completing necessary legislation, parliament was prorogued, a dissolution immediately followed, and on Saturday last and Monday of this week the general election took place throughout the three Kingdoms. Thus we have seen one government defeated and a new one installed in office, a prorogation of parliament, a dissolution and a general election all within the short space of three weeks. And all this d a general election all within the short space of three weeks. And all this was because the late government had lost the confidence of the people as was made manifest by the by-elections, and by one adverse vote of the House of Commons. In what other country in the world can public sentiment so quickly bring about a change in the government?

— Boston is a busy city on Saturday afternoon and Saturday night, and to a casual visitor all looks bright and cheerful, but that is only on the surface. Business men will tell you frankly that times are far from what they should be; clerks will tell you that they labor long and hard on small salaries, and working men complain bitterly over the scarcity of employment and the cut rate of wages. Times are undoubtedly better than they were last year at this date, but the outlook for the balance of the summer and fall is not painted in as gandy colors as it was a few short months ago.

Margaretville's Celebration.

Some fifteen hundred people assembled at Margaretville on Friday to celebrate the anniversary of the battle of the Boyne. Margaretville and Torbrook lodges, to the number of some two hundred, assembled at their rooms in the large new hall over the store of J. A. Balcom, and from there formed in procession, marching through the town, headed by the Middleton band.

The Methodist and Baptist Churches held the meetings on the grounds in connection with their places of worship, which were generously patronized and resulted most satisfactorily. Addresses were delivered by Mr. Nowlan, grand master of the order for Annapolis county, and the Rev. J. E. Warner, of Middleton. In the evening the "Spy of Gettysburg" was performed to an audience which completely filled the hall, and in a manner which reflected credit on the performers.

After the entertainment a display of fireworks took place, and brought to a termination a most enjoyable day.

—One of our most successful fruit growers informed us this week that the present indications are that our apple crop this year will be a good one, and the fruit of a most superior quality. The present appearance of the fruit would indicate that the apples this year will be superior in quality to those grown for many years. Many of the varieties, such as Gravenstein, Kings, Golden Russets and Bishop Pippins have set well and promise an abundant yield.

While students, of necessity, begin with "five-finger exercises" they should not be kept at work upon these exclusively for too long a time, writes Thomas a'Becket in a ole article on "The Correct Way to Play a Piano" in the February Ladies' Home Studies in the valuation of note of rhythm, with little melodies for recrea ion as well as instruction, should be used in conjunction with the purely mechanical exercises, which are intended solely for the purpose of acquiring independ rengthening of the fingers. As they are interesting and tend to destroy musical feeling it is a mistake to continue them for a long time with a very young pupil without giving recreative relief. Yet they should, arse, be continued throughout the sical life, for facility and perfecting of technique. The practicing of the scales im presses upon us the various key tonalities, and customs the hand to the fingering necessary to acquire a knowledge of "locality" on the ard. From the scales will grow the arpeggios of the various chords belonging to These should be constantly practiced with a firm, crisp touch, for a gymns ing, a knowledge of the key-board as stated above. In the beginning, play slowly, carefully observing the fingering; increase the speed gradually and be sure to play from the finger joints. The study of suitable "pieces" may begin as soon as the pupil can use the hands properly, and should continue side by side with the scales, finger exercises and other "studies." Their character should be adapted to the mind of the student, as well as to the fingers, and a diversity of style adopted. Leading upward from this the so called "popular"—not trashy—music may be used in connection with the "classical." Let the music be always pure; there is no harm in its being pleasing. The higher grade should predominate but should not exude the other. Opera, even in its best form, is not regarded as occupying the same high plane as the symphony, yet it is enjoyble, and instructs as well as entertains Use all that is good, whether it be a waltz that you are not certain of. Local vs. City Trade.

Many merchants in towns and villages feel very much chagrined and disappointed when they see their fellow townsmen sending daily of meat may be used. In the Interest of the Advertiser. One is glad to find that the appeal of the travelling public for the removal of the landscape killing placard has been largely successful. There is another kind of advertisement hardly less offensive. I point it out in the interest of those who use it. Nothing not let milch cows or young stock into such can be more damaging to an advertised artipasture the first season, because if they recle than making the announcement of it an annoyance. -In choosing picture frames many persons look simply to the effect of the frames upon their walls, and how they will harmonize with their furniture and draperies, forget-ting that the important thing is the picture itself, which requires a suitable setting in order to show its real worth. Certain rules must be strictly followed in framing pictures For instance heavy and ornate bronze and gilt frames should be used only for oil paint ings, the rich colors of which cannot be ex-tinguished by the frames. Etchings and engraving require very simple mountings. A plain narrow gold frame, or one of oak or ebony, with a narrow beading for a molding, is very suitable, white and gilt frames are pretty, but should not be used when the picture has a severe subject. A frame of plain white enamelled wood is appropriate for an etching, which should always have a mat of white water-color paper or cardboard be-tween it and the glass. A monochrome in fed chalk is appropriately mounted in a pol-ished oak frame, with a gold mat. Certain ornamentation is allowable in frames for water-colors. A narrow frame of chased gold surrounding a mat of gold paper, or one of neutral-tinted water color paper is quite

Animal feed is necessary for fowls, if they tain that the people of a town are following are expected to be producers at all seasons their own best interests when they patronize of the year. It is a mistake to make grain their home trade. Every store in the town the principal food for laying hens. The merchants of a town are its backpoultry foods.

The Care of Worn-Out Pastures Assuming that the old pasture has been plowed, enriched, and sown with a good mixture of grass it should be cut in bloom for hay. Nature seems to throw all her energies into the perfection of her seed, the stem being then largely composed of indigestible woody fibre of little feeding value to the stock, while the roots are weakened to the same extent as the new seed is perfected Therefore to cut when the sap is in the stem is to gain a more nutritious food and to leave a root in full vigor of growth. When hay-ing is over, the aftergrowth should be grazed with fattening stock or working horses. Do over the field with chain harrows to distri-Second year.-In spring chain harrow cuttings carted off and given to the stock in the barn, and give to those places only dressing of salt or caustic lime, the latter for preference, in a finely powdered condition. This simple management together with new seeding of poor spots will soon produce as excellent pasture, and moreover will keep it in a good heart and increase its value yearly.

This is the method I have adopted after many years' experience and study in old England, where we take far better care pasture than you do in America.

Conveniences for the Family.

How many farmers' houses are supplied with heat, running water, water closes working farmer and his family than thos residing in the cities and large towns? 'Ther are hundreds of farms especially in the hilly portions of our country which have springs r streams so situated that at a moderate expense the farmer and family might enjoy the same conveniences as his city neighb in fact, I know of many instances where the water from these sources is brought to rough or hydrant in the back yard and left. when with a little more expense it may be taken through the house. Where natural resources do not exist, the deficiency can be supplied by wells and cheap windmills pro-perly arranged. No farmer's wife can pro-perly appreciate the saving of labor, as well as the pleasure and comfort of such conve iences, until she had them and then bee obliged to do without. Wake up, farmers, look over the ground, and see what you can

Boston shipping men predict that the importation of lumber from the maritime provinces this year will almost break the record. Many American vessels have been charted in addition to the big provincial fleet to carry lumber to Boston and New York. No less than thirty-three vessels from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia ports, lumber-laden, sailed into that port in two days last week. Receivers say that not for a long time has so much free lumber arrived steadily at that port. Lumber freights are firm at from $2.35 to $2.55 per thousand to Boston and slightly higher to New York.

The Sin of Fretting.

There is one sin, which it seems to me, is verywhere, and by everybody, underestimated, and quite too much overlooked in valuation of character. It is the sin of fretting. It is as common as air, as speech; so monotone, we do not even observe it. Watch any ordinary coming together of people and see how many minutes it will be before complaining statement of something or other, which most probably every one in the room, or in the car, or the street corner it may be, knew before, and which probably nobody can help. Why say anything about it? It is cold, it is hot, it is dry; somebody has broken an appointment, ill cooked a meal; stupidity or bad faith somewhere has resulted in discomfort. There are plenty of things to fret about. It is simply astonish ing how much annoyance may be found in the course of every day's living, even at the simplest, if one only keeps an eye out on that side of things. Even Holy Writ says we are prone to trouble as sparks to fly up-blue sky above, and the less time they waste on the road, the sooner they will reach it.

Amusing Children.

Have any of the mothers ever tried a sand-ox for the children, asks a writer in The Housekeeper? A box three or four inches leep, full of clean sand, will afford amusement for many an hour. Put in a shady corner at the back porch in summer, or un der a tree, or a sunny corner of the porch in winter. My little boy has played by the nour alone, just out of my window, with his sand in a large tin tray which was originally made to hold my flower-pots in the house in winter. Sometimes he would have a tiny tin scoop or cup, and fill his iron cars with coal, ore or building material, according to his imagination, and draw them on a track Spanish people seem to suffer from the stupidity of some of their servants, if the following story, which appeared in a Madrid journal, is true. It seems that a lady ordered her butler one morning to tell all visitors pound of mustard seed, two tablespoonfuls of ground allspice, two of ground cloves, one cupful grated horseradish and the content of the persons who had called during the day, he mentioned the lady's sister, when his mistress exclaimed: "I tald content of the c
