The Adulteration of Food

The Sun and Telegraph newspapers are at present engaged in a controversy concerning the effect the National Policy has had on Canadian shipping. The Sun puts the following questions to its opponent:

(1) Is not the decline in Canadian shipbuilding in late years due to the decline in freight rates throughout the world's (2) Does not a revival in the world's freight rates revive shipbuilding?

(3) Do the freight rates of the world depend upon the Canadian tariff'.

(4) Has there not been something of a revival in Canadian shipbuilding since the beginning of last year!

(5) Is this due to any change in the Canadian shipbuilding since the beginning of last year!

(5) Is this due to any change in the Canadian tariff'.

And the Telegraph answers:

Canadian tariff?

And the Telegraph answers:

(1) In late years there has been a revival in freight rates. 4

(2) The revival of the freight rates has stimulated British shipbuilding, but its effect upon Canadian shipbuilding is very slight, if at all apparent.

(3) The Canadian tariff, as an obstruction to trade, no doubt slightly affects the general freight rates.

(4) The official statement in the trade and navigation returns for the fiscal year 1888 shows that vessels measuring 22,698 tons were built in Canada that year. The like returns for the fiscal year of 1889 show 28, 1895 tons built. This is "semething of a trevival" (!)

More Retallation.

The latest phase in the retalitory tactics of the United States against Canada, is the attempt now being made by that government to stop the passage of freight landing at American ports, and going in bond to Canadian markets over American railroads. This would, it is true, greatly inconvenience Canadian commerce in some respects, the satisfaction the Republic would experience by so doing, is inappreciable to the loss of revenue to the railroads of the New England States which yearly carry an encormous tonnage of bonded freight to the Dominion. Besides interferance to the railroad interests, the business of both the Eastern and Western States would also suffer greatly; so great is the human system. It is forbidden in the human system. It is forbiddy by man, nor is it found in the human system. It is forbiddy so, now have a division of the policy of the product and the special policy of the product and the

It is not their declared intention, however, to form a farmers' party, but to force their ideas on the old organizations. From the programme thus presented it is evident, that it is against economical, not policital, conditions of oppression that the farmers are rebelling. Still it is not less evident that the political change must precede the economical.

The government of the United States has decided to abolish the old fashioned brakes and couplers on all railways running under its management, and will in the future use only attornatic contrivances. I NOW TAKE GREAT PLEASURE IN OFFERING MY "Climax" Wood Furnace to every one desirous of obtaining a first class Heating Apparatus at a moderate cost. This Furnace has been thoroughly tested throughout the New England States and has given perfect satisfaction, besides a large number of them have been in use in the Maritime Provinces for the past two years and from the experience of those using them, I do not hesitate

Far Superior to any Furnace in the Market.

The fire BOX is made wholly in one piece and heavily corrugated; thus giving it great strength and a large heat radiating surface. The RADIATOR is of cast iron in the latter of the strength and a large heat radiating surface. The RADIATOR is of cast iron in the latter of the strength and the latter of the Box, so that smoke cannot possibly escape into the heated rooms, as is the case with many of the Wood Furnaces in use. An examination of most of the Wood Furnaces in use, will reveal to you the fact that they are all more or less warped and cracked with one or two seasons wear, and cases exist where the so called cheap Furnaces have proved useless and had to be renewed within the space of one year.

I WARRANT THE "CLIMAX" to lay ronger than any two Furnaces of other makes, give more heat with less quantity of fuel and so very compact that it can be set up in many places where other Furnaces could not possibly be placed.

The price has been reduced which gives the "CLIMAX" the preference far be fore all others. Estimates furnished and every Furnace put in Warranted

Stock Notes.—Mr. Bliss Anderson's Clydesdale stallion, Lord Clyde arrived home. On Saturday last, after a very successful season in the vicinity of Bangor, Maine. He has thrown some excellent stock in that vicinity, and it may be said to be a pity that the services of such an animal are not more appreciated and in greater demand at home. Our heavy horses will stand considerable improvements, and the presence of a stallion of this popular breed in the place would prove a valuable factor in improving our stock.—Mr. J. J. OUR UNCLE BILL.

Any one who visited Mr. Norris at his fine place on the Hudson would be sure to notice, after a while, an old man who wandered about the place dressed all summer in a white shirt and linen vest and trousers and a fisherman's hat, and all winter in a woolen dressing gown. He was a meek, tall, bald old man, and people at first took him for a superannuated servant; but, finally, his nice linen, neat hands, and a certain well-bred tone of voice, if by any chance they heard him speak, made them ask:

"Who is that?"

If they enquired of Miss Belle, the lover sat beside old Uncle Bill on the banks of the pretty stream, and walked together as far as the little gate and at a hospital, and too' me to her house. She nursed me back to the rouse. She nursed me back to tolerable health, and was very good to me. Then, sweet angel, she died. She thought that being in a hospital meant poverty. I was paying fifty dollars a week there. I have a fort-tune that even Mr. Norris would respect, but seeing what he was, I took as fancy that I'd find out what his surely would have had other views for his youngest daughter.

And so, one day, as the two, having met accidentally on the road, were largely and that I was sick and at a hospital, and too' me to house. She nursed me back to tolerable health, and was very good to me. Then, sweet angel, she died. She thought that being in a hospital meant poverty. I was paying fifty dollars a week there. I have a fort-tune that even Mr. Norris would respect, but seeing what he was, I took as fancy that I'd find out what his surely would have had other views for his youngest daughter.

And so, one day, as the two, having met accidentally on the road, were the place as Uncle Bill, a poor relation, I wasn't wanted; even at the table I was despised by all but Phemie. She had a far towards the frigid north.

And so, one day, as the two, having well-bear a first took him for a superannuated seven in the following pasage from the Prose that I'd find out what his was despised by all but Phemie. She had a his little room with his meals, and sat with him while he ate them; who saw that he had the newspaper and his pipe; who had fixed that little, out-of-the-way place with a pretty carpet, the way place with a pretty carpet, the way place with a pretty carpet, book shelves, a student's lamp, lots of pretty ornaments in worsted and silk; who never received her monthly allowance without, buying something for him.

Mr. Norris stared at him, lifted his double eye-glass, and said steruly:

I have one daughter who is a credit of her without, buying something for him.

His pretty, snow white shirts were her gift, and she saw that they were received her monthly allowance without, buying something for him.
