The Awakening.

Love touched my eyes, and I saw—
I had been blind till then;
The soul of the world had lain hid
Under the mask of men.

Love touched my heart, and I knew
Wondered and understood
All the signs of lovely things.
The hosts of things that are good,
So I discovered them all,
Found them in feeling you,
When Love touched my lips and I saw,
Winked my heart and I knew

There is hope in the world—there is
For all the work of the years;
Hearts that love us, and lips that give
From weeping eyes the tears.

Da

BY MARIE NELSON THURSTON.

Continued.

'You'd better be,' Charley would declare heartily. 'I won't hear of anything being the matter with you, dad.'

'I guess it won't make much difference,' the old man said once wistfully.

Charley turned upon him sharply. 'Look here, dad—is there anything the matter?' he asked anxiously.

The old man braced up instantly. 'Of course not, Charley,' he declared. 'Yet, somehow, was Charley's back turned before he had fallen into the apathy that was creeping so steadily upon him.'

And then, in a day, it was all changed—a day when the old man wandered nervously about the yard, looking up at darkened windows. It was ten o'clock when Charley, his young face white with the pain of the hours, beckoned him upstairs.

'She is coming through all right,' he whispered, 'and dad—look here, I want dad to take it first, nurse.'

The nurse put the bundle with the tiny crumpled red face at one end of it, into the old man's arms.

'It's a girl,' he said. It sounded like a prayer.

'Why dad—how did you know?' Charley cried.

'I know'd it. I just know'd it,' his father answered. His arms had closed about the little bundle as if he had carried it all his life. 'She—she looks like your mother, Charley.'

Charley, dazed, stared down on the crumpled face. 'I don't see how it can look like anybody yet,' he said. 'But the old man was not to be troubled by such trifles.'

blessed little lamb. She is going to have Mary's eyes, Charley. You don't remember—you was too young, I know.'

'Why dad,' Charley said, 'why did I never supposed you cared like this.'

But his father had forgotten even him.

From that day life awoke again for the old man, sweeping in a great tide that carried all the cares of his heart. One might have fancied the two living in some secret world of their own—the old man and the tiny girl—so completely did they seem to content each other. Louise was half jealous, half approving. She was coaxing Charley to take part in the politics of the little city now, and her days were full of the absorbing occupation of making new acquaintances. As she could not yet afford to keep a nursemaid, it was a great convenience to have the old man ready to take the baby off her hands at any hour of the day, and so it came about that as little Louise (she was always Mary to the old man, though he was careful never to call her so before his daughter) began to make engaging experiments in language, 'Daddy' was the first name of her best love.

Little Louise was three years old when her mother's ambitions reached their flowering. Charley was elected mayor of the city. It was a very small city, Charley laughed at his little girl counting his anybody; but not even Louise, great though the achievement seemed to her, could imagine the old man's pride. He talked on it by day to little Mary, and brooded happily over it at night. He had always known Charley would be a great man, but he had not dreamt of anything so great as this.

One day in June Charley came home with a piece of news; he was invited to give the Fourth of July oration at New Alban, a town fifty miles away. Louise and his father were full of excitement over the honor. Louise asked a hundred questions and began planning at once what she should wear. The old man, leaving his seat, rose, and took out a few dollars, laid aside for a talking doll.

'You could save money again if you would buy the one presently on the market,' he said, pointing to a new one that had just come in.

But not even the thought of little Mary could bring healing just then. The old man looked at her in pathetic bewilderment. 'I guess I ain't fully got it through my head yet,' he said.

'But don't you see that you can't, father? There is only one hotel and that would be full because the G. A. R. people are coming down. And Mrs. Jennings only invited us—now don't go and take it hard, father. You will spoil everything!'

The old man drew a gasped breath. '—I won't take it hard,' he promised solemnly. 'I just didn't understand what you were talking about, Charley.'

The old man was unwontedly silent at supper, not that his spouse often at any time, but he usually had some feat of little Mary's to tell Charley about. Charley noticed that he looked white, and did not eat but his father turned it off. It was just the heat he said. He'd be all right to-morrow.

As a matter of fact he did seem much more like himself in the morning, to Louise's relief. She had had a bad hour the night before making it clear to Charley why his father couldn't go. Charley wanted to find a place for him to stay over night; he was really hurt when Louise declared that she didn't think father cared much about it.

'Dad always cares,' he declared.

'But he's getting old,' Louise persisted. 'You don't realize—the crowds start without a bit of breakfast. He might not wake the cook, but partly from anxiety over the time, and partly from fear of detention, he took only cold coffee and bread. A few minutes later he was out in the fresh summer dawn, on his way to hear Charley.

The people around him, amazed at first, were soon watching sympathetically, catching with a crowd's keen instinct, the drama being acted before them. When the colonel, stopping abruptly, said that boy of over forty years ago is here to-day—I've seen him in the audience, and I want the privilege of showing you a hero, who not only stood the fires of battle, but with his hat pulled over his eyes, he was sure that he would escape notice; he would sit so that someone would hide him from Louise.

Slowly at first, and then more and more rapidly, people began to come. By ten o'clock all the seats about him were filled and the park was full of gay crowds. Presently there came the sound of a band; the old man's head went up excitedly; the people about him rose to look and he rose too, peering eagerly between the bobbing heads. The band came first, a company of local militia, then a few straggling lines in the old army blue, and after them the carriages, with the speakers and guests. The old man strained his dim eyes to see. Yes, there was Charley at last—Charley and three other men—two were middle-aged—pleasant, smiling, pompous, but the third with a keen, brown face like an old eagle. The old man sank back on the bench trembling with excitement. His Colonel! He had not seen him for fifty years, and age had done heavy work, but he would have known him anywhere. He would have given all he possessed to grasp his hand once more, but for Charley's sake he must slip away unseen. The excitement ebbed, leaving him weak, but determined. Not for anything life could offer, would he disgrace Charley.

The guests with much settling and unsettling, were finally seated and the exercises began. To Charley's father it was all the idle sound of a summer day till Charley stepped forward. The old man hitched to the edge of the seat and curved one hand over his best ear. In his excitement he pushed his hat back, but instantly pulled it down again with a glance of terror toward Louise. She was looking at Charley and did not see him.

Charley's pleasant voice rang out over the crowd—'Mr. Chairman—patriots and friends—' It was a good speech, not brilliant, but clear and straightforward, with a simple friendliness that captured his audience, so that the applause was general and hearty. The old man thumping his cane excitedly, did not realize that he was carrying it on after everybody else had stopped till his next neighbor angrily told him to quit for heaven's sake. He looked around dazed, but the next moment the world had fallen from him, for the man who stepped forward at the speaker's introduction was his colonel. In a few brief, terse words—the speech of an man whose life lay in deeds not words, he spoke of the significance of the day, its duties and opportunities, then of the men and women whose herculean had left their successors a priceless heritage.

'One such hero,' he went on, 'comes back to my mind this minute, recalled, perhaps, by the name of the speaker to whom we have all listened with so much pleasure. He was a color-bearer in one of my regiments, a boy of twenty-three; and the place was Lookout Mountain.' He went on to describe the terrible charge into which the boy fell wounded, only to rise and plunge struggling on. Twice he fell and twice he struggled in his feet; men called to right and left of him—until he pushed on till above his colors touched the enemy's rampart.

And he fell beneath their shiving folds. As the speaker described the scene, bewilderment, amazement, incredulous joy swept across the old man's face. His hat was pushed back and he leaned forward, following with unconscious comment and gestures, every word.

Becoming Fidgety.

When people get the fidgets they nearly always do something foolish. Judging from the way some leading politicians are acting just now they must have been smitten with either an attack of "cold feet" or the fidgets. Sir Fred Borden, Mr. Wall and Mr. H. H. Wickwire are being advertised to hold public meetings in various parts of the county, and it is understood that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Admiral Borden, of the tin-pot navy, and Hon. Randolph Levesque, the Postmaster General, will be on hand immediately after nomination day.

These noted men, it is expected, will address public meetings at various weak points such as Kentville and Canning. Whether W. E. Ross, K. C., Mr. McMahon and Dr. Covert will also join in the speaking fraternity is somewhat uncertain.

If Mr. Henri Bourassa, of Montreal, who has just returned from a delightful trip to the Eternal City, should also be attracted by the noise and excitement in this county and make a run down this way, we have an idea that all paths leading to the woods would be blocked by anxious politicians falling over one another in a mad desire to reach cover.

Acadia Plays Good Hockey.

The Acadia hockey team played its first game of the season last Saturday night in Evangeline rink, when it lined up against the Truro West End Club. The game resulted in a victory for the college boys, by the score of 3-2. The visiting players put up a good defence game. MacMillan at goal was a regular stonewall. The Acadia team is fast rounding into shape, and will make a hard try to retain the inter-collegiate trophy. Richmond, their speedy rover, is a regular whirlwind.

From the face of Acadia rushed the puck into Truro's territory, where, after two minutes play, Patillo scored from a mix up in front of the goal. Corey soon added another to the score. Truro now got busy and succeeded in landing the puck behind Robinson. Things became interesting and the college boys carried the puck back to Truro's territory, where they bombarded the goal to no avail. About the centre of the half Murray again drew blood for the college. There was no further score this half.

In the second half both teams rushed matters, although Acadia had the advantage. Time after time they hurled the puck at the goal, but it was always turned aside. At last Corey succeeded in netting the puck from a cross shot. Truro now rushed matters into Acadia's territory where Blair succeeded in scoring. After a few more minutes play the game ended. Acadia, 4; Truro, 2. Mr. A. O. Daniels refereed very satisfactorily. The following was the line up:

Truro	Goal	Acadia
MacMillan	Point	Robinson
Crowe	Cover point	Curry
Chipman	Rover	Black
Blair (Capt.)	Center	Richmond
Hopper	Right wing	Patillo
Bryson	Goal	Murray

Baby's Splendid Health.

Mrs. R. Yates, Montreal, Que., writes: "Baby's splendid health was obtained through the use of Baby's Own Tablets. They are a grand medicine for constipation, as their action is easy and does not give baby pain. I would recommend them to all mothers; no one should be without them who have young children in the house." This testimony is similar to thousands of others sent us by grateful mothers. Every mother who has ever used the Tablets for her little ones will tell you they are the very best medicine in the world. They not only cure the ills of the little ones, but they make them grow happy and strong. The Tablets can be given to even the youngest babe with absolute safety; they are sold under the guarantee of a government analyst to contain no opiate or other harmful drug. They cannot possibly do harm—they always do good. Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Letters to the Editor.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ACADIAN.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:—The unusually cold weather we are having this week forces us to fill our furnaces and stoves as full of fuel as we can carry. Naturally our thoughts turn to the increased danger of fire breaking out in our homes though every care be taken.

As one of these anxious householders, would be glad to know that our street hydrants are in good working order. Does any one know whether they are or not?

A hydant is very near my house, but for years I have not known of its being tested. Please let us know if they are all right.

Yours,
ALBERTA OWEN.

RELIGION AND RELIGIONS.

Just now there would appear to be a promise of increasing friction between Protestant and Roman Catholic bodies in Canada. This is being made possible because of certain unwise and highly inflated statements made by men on both sides of the doctrinal barrier, forgetting that there is a religion that is above all religions, and the more we have of it the better for ourselves and all the rest of the world. That Catholics thought they were doing God's service, in the long ago past, when they burned Protestants at the stake, or that Protestants persecuted Catholics those many years ago, is not of any consequence today. And, as to the doctrinal differences among the different religions we must confess ourselves less and less vitally concerned. The modern citizen looks upon these doctrinal controversies as belonging to the past ages, and the modern spirit as a happy outgrowth of such ancient nonsense. We are most of us perfectly content to have any man or any association of men, in bonds secular or religious, think what they like, so long as they do not insist that we shall be compelled to share their thought, and do homage to their particular conception.

The apathy of Canadians as a whole regarding the events so often referred to in our written histories, is a most promising sign of real progress. It reveals the fact that we are living up to date, and are concerning ourselves with the real issues of life. Whatever our creeds, we are seeing that both life and religion are infinitely larger than our creedal statements. And when some men fight over a fraction of life's interests, we think rather of the larger number remaining, (concerning which there is no conflict) and simply spring our shoulders and turn to the real work of life.

Let it be granted that every Church in Canada, whether Christian or otherwise, Protestant or Catholic, has a perfect right to make what claims it will to truth and authority. Let it be granted that every religion in whatever form or name, is just as exclusive as it may seem fit in the limitations of its fellowship; let it accept what honors it may secure in the way of recognition; let it make whatsoever display it chooses of its power and influence. This is a free country, where every man may express himself as he pleases, so long as he infringes upon the rights of no one else. The one thing to remember is that, quite apart from all sectarian religions, there is a religion equally binding upon us all. It concerns itself not with creeds and covenants, with controversies and discussions, or with any kind of absolutism or authorities. It deals only with the common life lived by us all, and with the faithful performance of those tasks of citizenship which are vital to our national existence and prosperity.

Whatever differences there may be in the claims of some religious bodies, and however much some of them may allow themselves to be inflated by the claims or attitude of others, it requires no keeness of perception to see that in practically all else beside religion they are as one. In civic responsibilities, in economic opportunities or deprivation, in political chance and opportunities for improvement, in life in the large, their interests differ not in the least. Religion in reality stands for unity and works for unity. Nature is one, human life is one, religion is one. Hence anything which makes in any degree for disunity is being irreligious in essence, whatever it may be in exterior. Who ever fights over religion has in truth forgotten religion, and is worked up over his own little prejudices. The true and larger religion is based upon human unity.

In this matter, at least, we can yield to the pragmatic tendency of the day. Pragmatism is the philosophical principle which might be expressed in the sentence, "If it works, it is true." In other words, instead of arguing about the authenticity of claims concerning any instrument, put it to work, see what it will do, discover the practical service of the thing. Surely this is the wiser way. Let us talk and dispute less concerning religion, let us work more at religion which makes for the good and gladness of us all. Let us do all that last hard or within our reach, without wasting energy in futile controversies. Let all these various bodies of religious alike engage in the enterprise of putting religion to work in the real world, and quit attempts to force the one upon the other his particular and peculiar belief. If rivalry and competition, let it be to see which can do the most for the good of humanity. This is practical and sensible, and no sane man should mind objection.

We are told that religion is love, and we are often reminded of it. If so, there is abundant need of it in the world to-day. With all our advance in civilization and the claimed triumph of Christianity, there are yet hosts of our fellow men who need our love and brotherly helpfulness.

We have no time to waste if we are willing to perform the full duties of life. What individual, which church, which denomination, which religion, will do the most in 1911, for humanity at large, and for our town in particular. After some discussion, the report was referred back to the Ranger, he to make report of his doings, and return of his collections, as specified in the act.

The Council took recess, reassembling at 2 p. m.

Municipal Council.

The recently elected Municipal Council met at the Court House, Kentville, on Tuesday, January 10, 1911. Councilors elect all present.

Oaths of office were administered by the clerk.

The ballot for the election of Warden being taken, Mr. T. H. Morse, Councilor for Ward 5, was declared elected, receiving fourteen of the sixteen votes cast.

The Warden elect took the chair and briefly addressed the Council.

Coun. W. C. Hamilton was chosen Deputy-Warden.

The office of Municipal Treasurer being vacant through the death of the late Mr. B. H. Dodge, it was moved that Mr. R. C. Dickey be appointed Treasurer.

Coun. Donaldson spoke in favor of an amalgamation of the offices of Clerk and Treasurer.

The Clerk expressed the opinion that amalgamation would be unwise. The two offices, he considered, would, if necessary, act as checks upon each other.

After some discussion the ballot was taken and Mr. Dickey was unanimously elected.

On motion of Coun. Ilseley, the salary was fixed at $200. The amount of bond was later fixed at $50,000.

Coun. Donaldson moved that a committee be named to prepare a resolution expressing the feeling of the Council in reference to the demise of the late treasurer, Mr. B. H. Dodge.

The motion carried and the Warden named Couns. Covert, Donaldson and Foster as members of the Committee.

Coun. Reid said that Mr. George Davis, of Ward 8, had been assessed in that Ward for property in Ward 7, which he owned. This property was also assessed to the tenant in Ward 7. Both Mr. Davis and the tenant had paid the taxes.

After some discussion a resolution was passed that the Collector be instructed to credit the amount overpaid by Mr. Davis as paid on his taxes for 1911.

The report of Mr. H. J. Nelly, Commissioner in re new road at Kingsport Station, easterly from Nelly Road, read. On motion the report was received and adopted, proceedings continued and road established. No damages.

The report of the same Commissioner, in re the celebrated road to Cloud Lake, was also read. This report, which was the second one made by Mr. Nelly, upon this road, shows that appraisers have fixed the damages at $37 as follows: A. D. Mills & Sons, timber, $10; land, $1; Davison Lumber Co., timber, $5; land, $5; Church Ward, $12. The report was adopted, proceedings continued and road established.

A letter was read from the head of the Salvation Army in Halifax, asking aid for the Home in that city. Ordered, that this letter do lie on the table.

Reports were read from Supervisors of Public Grounds, Crown Mills, referring to investigation of complaints regarding encroachments on roads in Ward 13, from Berwick toward 8th St. and south from Waltham's Corner in Waterville. On motion of Councilor Parker no action was taken.

A further report set forth that the Cove Road at Halle Harbor had been re-traced, but that parties were dissatisfied, and Supervisors asked further instructions as regard to same.

Mr. Rosscoe, the Solicitor, said that the Supervisors had wrongly traced the road, making it run on or across one which were bound upon it. It was resolved that the Supervisors make further examination and locate road according to the original survey, thus placing it at the foot of the "less of which it was the base line."

The report and accounts of the Chief Fire Ranger were read. Mr. Rosscoe said that this report was not in accordance with the law, and further, that the law itself was unworkable. After some discussion, the report was referred back to the Ranger, he to make report of his doings, and return of his collections, as specified in the act.

The Council took recess, reassembling at 2 p. m.

Father Morrissey's No. 10 Strengthens Weak Lungs

The person whose air passages, from the nostrils to the innermost cells of the lungs, are lined with vigorous, healthy membrane, can pass unharmed through exposure to cold or wet, or even to the germs of consumption itself.

Under similar exposure one whose air passages are weak at any point, or whose vitality is low, will be almost certain to fall a prey to some form of throat or lung trouble.

Every common cold neglected weakens your defenses at some point. A succession of them leaves you an easy victim for bronchitis, pneumonia or consumption.

Father Morrissey's No. 10 (Lung Tonic) protects you from this danger. It not only stops the cough and drives away the cold, but it repairs the damage done to the delicate membrane, making it as strong or stronger than ever to resist throat or lung diseases.

Being entirely free from opium, morphine or any harmful drug, Father Morrissey's No. 10 is perfectly safe for the youngest or the oldest.

Trial size 25c. Regular size 50c. At your dealer's.

Dr. George Johnson Dead.

George Johnson, D. C. L., M. A., Hon. and Dominion Statistician under both governments, passed away at his home in Grand Pre about noon the 17th inst., in the 73rd year of his age. His health was perfect up to the last of October. After the death of his life-long friend, A. McN. Patterson, on the 28th, he seemed to be depressed. Later there was an attack of acute indigestion from which he only partially recovered, and there was found to be a growth near the pyloric orifice of the stomach. He gradually failed, but suffered no pain, and his mind was clear up to twelve hours before the end. His sister, Mrs. Huestis, and her daughter Annie, his niece, Mrs. Strong, his nephew Ayatou Johnson, and his brother John A. were with him. He left Ottawa in 1904 and came to Grand Pre to live on the old homestead and to care for his brother Dudley, who is now 69 years of age and has been harmlessly insane since he was 21. He improved the old house by building on to it a large wing for a library and a broad veranda across the whole front. Here in his fine library seated in his Morris chair, and surrounded with his books and papers, the genial, kindly doctor could be found at any time reading and writing and enjoying that quiet cum dignitate which he had so well earned. Dr. Johnson was a model citizen. He was interested in and always ready to do his part in all that concerned the welfare and improvement of the community. He was deeply interested in the school and the little children and young people. He knew them all by name and had a smile and a kind word for each. His library was free to all who would come for books, take care of them and return them, and his wonderful knowledge of an almost infinite variety of subjects was equally free to all who came to him, and was given with an exactness that was marvellous. Journalist, author, historian, scientist, theologian, nothing of interest to the human race seemed to escape his omnivorous memory. He was director of the census of 1891 and the author of a number of statistical books and pamphlets which are indispensable to public men in Canada as well as abroad. Dr. Johnson was a Canadian patriot and an imperialist of the Joseph Chamberlain type. Away back in 1860 he advocated with pen and tongue the confederation of the Provinces. He gave valuable assistance to the fathers of Confederation in the inception of the scheme and afterwards worked heroically to complete the union. He was a valued fellow-worker of all the great men, who have since confederated done the nation building and his hands and brain helped on all those great works and measures which have made this country great and prosperous and the wonder of the world. Dr. Johnson was a member of the N. S. Historical Society, an honorary member of the Royal Statistical Society, an honorary member of Canadian Manufacturers Association, and a member of the National Geographic Society. A writer in the Herald says: George Johnson was perhaps the best informed man in the Dominion of Canada. I am inclined to agree with him and would add to that, 'his information was the most exact. Absolute dependence could be placed on George Johnson's facts and figures. The Governors at the suggestion of Pres. Cullen, of Acadia, appointed him Lecturer on Canadian History. His lectures were to begin in February. What a loss his death just at this time has brought to Acadia College and the country. Sad and strange it seems that that wonderful brain throbbing with so much knowledge which the world needs has ceased to think and will be hidden away to-morrow in mother earth. 'What shadows we are and what shadows we pursue.' Dr. Johnson's intellectuality and the strenuous life he lived in the very thick of temptation did not lessen his faith in the bible and religion. As life ebbed and death drew near, his nice words down the 'last words.' The following passages of scripture were quoted again and again: 'I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me.' 'Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee because he trusted in thee.' A great man has passed away. Less than three months ago this community was rich in having two grand old men, and now both are gone. A. McN. Patterson, the 'great teacher' and Dr. George Johnson the 'great Canadian.' Have two men in the whole of Canada who can fill their places? If not, why not? Grand Pre, Jan. 18, '11.

Wolfville Defeats D. B. C. A.

The first game of the W. N. S. Hockey League to be played here, took place on Wednesday night, when Wolfville defeated the D. B. C. A. team by the score of 5-0. The Dartmouth boys played a good defence game, but, as is seen from the score, the home team far surpassed them. Wolfville did not have the same team that played Windsor. Hixon, Spicer and Fraser showed up well in their rushes, and the whole team was in excellent condition. For the visitors J. Patterson figured prominently. From the start Wolfville rushed the puck into Dartmouth's territory. Fraser made a succession of rushes but could not score. After 8 minutes Spicer scored the first goal from a combination rush. Play now centred around the visitors' goal and in two minutes more Christie found the net. The puck now travelled from one end of the ice to the other, and both goals were bombarded. Christie rushed up the ice and shot, but was blocked. Then Fraser made a rush but with no better success. J. Patterson then got the puck and attempted to score, but failed. Near the end of the first half, Spicer carried the puck up the ice and passed to Eaton, who scored the third goal. The half ended with play in the centre ice. From the face off the puck went in to Wolfville territory, but was soon carried back to the other end of the rink. Fraser carried the puck up the ice but lost. Shots now rained against the visitors' and Spicer again scored, time 5 minutes. Play was again carried into Dartmouth's territory and Eagles scored. Back and forth went the puck, and both Fraser and Eaton shot but missed. Spicer was then sent to the 'cooler' for throwing his stick, the only penalty of the game. While he was off Eaton added another to the score. Play still stayed in Dartmouth's territory. By a combination play the visitors carried the puck up the ice, but failed to score. Then followed a tied end number, Bill Christie scored and number seven. Dartmouth tried to get the puck out, but always lost, and just before time was up Spicer added another to the score. The teams lined up as follows: D. B. C. A. Goal Wolfville Anderson W. Spicer Anderson C. Webster Cover J. Stewart H. Fraser J. Patterson R. Spicer Centre D. Patterson (Capt.) B. Eagles R. Wing R. Logan A. Eaton (Capt.) L. Wing R. Morton G. Christie P. Keel J. Ritchie B. Shaw Referee - A. O. Daniels, Timekeepers - W. Nicholson and W. Harris.

Sciatic Rheumatism

Unable to work or sleep - Six years of suffering - Cured by DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD. Mr. Alex. Ethier, Jr., Clarence Creek, Russell Co., Ont., writes: 'My nervous system was down to such an extent that I suffered a great deal from weakness of the nerves and sciatic rheumatism, and at times was like one paralyzed. I could not work, was unable to sleep, and had no appetite. Nothing seemed to build up my nerves until I made use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. After having used about $10.00 worth of this medicine I feel like a new man. I can walk all right, do a great deal of work, have a good appetite and sleep well every night. When you have tired of experiments you can turn to Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food knowing that persistent treatment is bound to be rewarded with lasting beneficial results. AN OPEN LETTER.

From A Baptist Clergyman Telling of Cures Wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Gentlemen.—It has been my intention to write to you for some time, but being busy I have neglected to do so until now.

I am a Baptist minister. Was ordained June 14th, 1887, in Cranberry Baptist Church, Northumberland Co., Ont. I want to tell you in as few words as possible what I know about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was pastor of the Daleville, Quebec, Baptist church in 1891 and again in 1894-95.

While pastor in 1891, the Rev. John King, a former pastor, aged 74, was stricken with paralysis so that he could not help himself. He had to, or did, take a teaspoonful of rhubarb every day to keep his bowels regular.

I thought of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He began taking them and it was not long before he could walk again and his bowels were regular. The paralysis never returned and he died a few years ago practically from old age.

I went from Daleville, Que., to Groton, Vt., as pastor of the Baptist Church in that place. There lived a man about two and a half miles from Groton by the name of Neil McCrea, a Canadian. I heard he was ill, and being a Canadian, I went to see him.

I found him lying in bed. He said he had no pain, but was weak to sit up. His lips were bloodless, in fact he was as white as chalk. I recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and gave him some. He began taking them and in a short time could see blood in the veins of his hands and in the course of a few weeks he was out watching men build a new barn for him, and soon after that he came to Groton to church.

Now, I ought to tell you that the doctor of Groton gave him up. The Ryegate doctor (a doctor in an adjoining town) could not help him and said so. The best doctor in the hospital at Burlington, Vt., came and saw McCrea, but said he could not help him. He did not get any help till Dr. Williams' Pink Pills put him on his feet again.

Later I returned to Daleville, Que., as pastor. A young lady who lived about six miles west of Daleville at a place called Idina, sent for me to come to see her, as she had been a member of my congregation in my former pastorate. I went to see her and found a similar case to that of Mr. McCrea, of Groton, Vt. This girl was so weak she could not sit up.

She appeared to be bloodless. I said to her, "It will cost you $5.00 to have a doctor come out from Lachute to see you, whereas you can get six boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for $2.50." She followed my advice, took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and when some time later I saw her in Lachute, she was as well as ever, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did it all.

I have given you the facts of these three cases which came to my personal notice and I think it only just to other sufferers that these cures should be given the widest publicity. If you wish me to go before a magistrate and take oath to the truth of the things mentioned above, I am preparing to do so. I am at present engaged in evangelistic work, and have therefore no time to present a permanent address. I can, however, refer you to the editor of the Canadian Baptist.

Howard—Did you telephone Mrs. Howard that I would be detained at the office until midnight?

Office Boy—Yes, sir.

'And what did she say?'

'Said she didn't blame you—she had made an engagement to go to the theatre to-night herself.'

Goodbye to Beauty. It is goodbye to beauty when kidney derangement sets in. The skin becomes hard and dry, the hair wastes away and becomes entangled. One cannot be too watchful and the secret way to keep the kidneys, as well as the liver and bowels, healthy and active by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. This cures pure blood and a healthy digestive system.

Margery was playing school with her doll. The class in physiology was reciting.

'Now, children,' she said, 'what are your hands for?'

'To keep clean,' was the prompt reply.

'Yes,' repeated the little teacher, 'hands were given us so we could keep them clean, and member, too.'

'She added, "we must keep our feet clean, "cause there might be an accident."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is a guaranteed cure for all kinds of PILES, whether internal or external. It is a powerful and reliable remedy, and is sold by all druggists.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

A young woman in Vienna, whose hatpin injured a man's eye and caused him to lose the sight of it, offered as a compensation to marry him. The offer was accepted and the match proved a happy one.

Miss Mary's Lover, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Gentlemen.—Last winter I received great benefit from the use of WILKINSON'S LINIMENT in a severe attack of LAG-LEGS, and I can testify that it is a very effective and reliable medicine.

Yours, W. A. HUTCHINSON.
