TERRIBLE DISASTER ON ATLANTIC OCEAN---200 LIVES ARE LOST

Steamer Volturno Bound For New York Caught Fire--- Wireless Call Was Heard First by Carmania--- Five Hundred Persons Are Rescued

[Canadian Press Despatch.] FISHGUARD, Oct. 11.—Fire in a raging storm in mid-Atlantic on Thursday destroyed the liner Volturno on her voyage from Rotterdam to New York, and, according to wireless reports, caused the death by burning or drowning of at least 130 and possibly 236 of her passengers and crew, while ten other liners called by wireless to the rescue, were standing by impotent to avert the tragedy owing to the mountainous seas.

Again the wireless played a leading part in the drama, and by its means and the heroism of the successors who responded to its call, the lives of 521 on board the Volturno were saved. The Volturno was owned by the Canadian Northern Steamships Company, but had been chartered to the Uranium Line. Officials of the latter company declared this morning that those aboard comprised 24 cabin and 530 steerage passengers with a crew of 993, making a total of 657. The wireless despatch received from the Carmania said that 521 had been saved, and 236 had lost their lives, which makes a total of 757 or just 100 more than the number given by the company.

stop next Monday. It is believed that the steamer carried 24 cabin passengers, 530 steerage passengers and a crew of 993 men. The wireless reports say that 521 persons were saved, making 200 persons unaccounted for thus far. Captain Barrow of the Carmania received the distress call of the Volturno when 78 miles distant, in latitude 48.25 north, longitude 34.33 west. The Carmania crowded on full steam and with extra stokers made over twenty knots an hour in the teeth of the gale.

Waves Were High. The gale moderated slightly towards night and each of the succeeding ships as soon as it was possible for her to do so, put out boats from their davits and lowered them to the sea. The waves, however, were so high that although the small craft made some progress in the direction of the Volturno, it was impossible for them to get alongside, and they returned to their ships, in most cases doing this with the greatest difficulty owing to the overwhelming seas and the darkness of the night.

When the Carmania reached the vicinity of the Volturno at noon the forward end of the distressed vessel was burning fiercely. The flaming ship was at the same time rolling heavily while her propellers were fouled with boats tackle used in lowering her six life boats. It was learned by the Captain of the Carmania that only two out of the six life boats had succeeded in getting away from the Volturno. The other four crowded from stem to stern with passengers and members of the crew had been smashed against the side of the vessel and all their occupants thrown into the sea and drowned. In spite of the terrific gale raging when she arrived near the Volturno, the Captain of the Carmania had no hesitation in proceeding to the rescue. This was effected with much difficulty for even on the lee side of the Carmania the sea was terribly rough, and it was only by extraordinary efforts that the small craft was prevented from being smashed or capsized as she left the side of the ship. The Carmania's lifeboat in charge of Officer Gardner, made a gallant but futile attempt to get alongside the doomed Volturno. After two hours' battle with the waves during which the lifeboat lost all but three of her oars, the rest being broken or torn from the hands of the crew, First Officer Gardner returned to the Carmania which he succeeded in making without loss of life or broken limbs among the members of his boat's crew. Captain Barrow of the Carmania then manoeuvred his big vessel within a hundred feet of the Volturno's stern.

lifelift was located by means of the searchlight a short distance away tossed about by the sea. He was rescued, but only after one of the sailors of the Carmania had been lowered into the water with a life line which he placed around the waist of the exhausted floating man. Other cries were heard but these gradually died away and no further bodies or swimming people were seen. About midnight a ray of hope came, for it was seen that the flames were not making much headway aft of the engine room or the after bulkhead of the Volturno. By daybreak the Volturno was still floating with her great human cargo huddled in masses on her poop. The sea had moderated considerably and a flotilla of boats gathered round the stern of the Volturno.

Foreigners On Board--- Cargo Non-Combustible

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The Uranium Line was without direct information concerning the loss of the Steamer Volturno up to 9 o'clock this morning. They stated that, according to their information, she had on board 24 cabin passengers, 278 steerage passengers for New York and 262 for Halifax, and a crew of 93 men. They had received from Rotterdam a list of 46 of the cabin passengers, the list follows: Rubin Reimer, aged 20 for New York; Marrianna Mrzygost, aged 17, for Lackawanna; Jossel Farber, aged 15, for New York; John Krug, aged 32 for New York; Frieda Krug, aged 29 for New York; Hinda Friedman, aged 19; Esther Kaplan, aged 18; Hedwig Eberle, aged 48; Carl Tepper, aged 45; Hode Tepper, aged 16; Berl Tepper, aged 14; Emma Tepper, aged 9; Tarze Tepper, aged 9; Leibe Saban, aged 54; Michael Saban, aged 47; Amanda Anton, aged 11. zzz Of the steerage passengers bound for Halifax, 210 were adults, 41 were children and 10 infants. Only one passenger was booked for Halifax.

fax. Of the steerage passengers bound for New York 212 were adults, 33 children and 3 infants. The total number of young children and babies aboard was 87. The Volturno was commanded by Captain Inch, who has been five years in the service of the Uranium Line. The Volturno was built by Fairfield and Company at Glasgow in 1909. She was 340 feet long with a 43 foot beam. Her gross tonnage was 2581; net 2208. On this voyage she carried a cargo of 897 tons, consisting of non-combustible chemicals, manufactured cotton goods, mineral waters and liquors. When Edward O. Thomas, general manager of the line's office here, and Carl G. Foreman, general passenger agent reached their desks shortly after 9 o'clock this morning they found the offices besieged by reporters but were without any advice whatsoever. They sent a cablegram to their general agent at Halifax asking if he had received any word of the disaster and at 9:30 were waiting for a reply.

Total Passengers 757, Total Number Saved 511

[Canadian Press Despatch.] LIVERPOOL, Oct. 11.—Captain Barr's official report of the disaster sent to the offices of the Cunard Line here was timed on board the Carmania at 6:30 this morning. It says: "The Volturno was abandoned on account of fire on Friday, October 10 in latitude 48.25 north, longitude 34.33 west. All the survivors were taken off. The following is the list of those saved on board the ten assisting steamers: "Carmania 1, Latouraine 40, Mnneapolis 30, Rapphannock 19, Car 102, Nagansett 20, Devonian 59, Kroonland 90, Grosser Kurier 105, Seydlitz 36. Total 521." The figures given above make a total of only 511, but it is not known here whether one of the items or the total is correct. There has evidently been an error in wireless transmission. Captain Barr's report continues: "An incomplete list of those saved is on board the Carmania. I will forward it from Queenstown. Advice have been received from the purser of Volturno that the original numbers on board that vessel when she sailed were 24 cabin passengers, 530 steerage passengers and 93 crew men, making a total of 757." In this case, also, the figures and the total do not tally. Captain Barr continues: "The crew of the Volturno was saved by the Kroonland, the captain, the chief, second, third and fifth engineers and two telegraphers by the Narragansett the bakers and a steerage steward by the Car, the purser and the surgeon by the Grosser Kurier. Nineteen of the names have not been received by me."

NEW FEATURES AT SANITARIUM

Meeting of the Board of Governors Was Held on Friday.

Several important steps were taken which will increase the accommodation at the Brant Sanitarium, at the meeting of the board held yesterday afternoon in the board room at the institution. The buildings and grounds committee submitted a plan for an emergency cottage which would accommodate two patients. This would assist in relieving the congestion. The building, it was intimated, would cost $100. The board instructed the building committee to proceed at once to have the building constructed by day labor under the supervision of Mr. Cole.

Cooler Weather Said To Be Coming

According to the reports issued from that uncanny abode where the Weatherman reigns, Eastern Canada's Indian summer is likely to terminate this week. Yesterday, he says, while it was warm in Ontario and the eastern Provinces, it was cool in the west. Rain fell last night in Manitoba, and there was a light fall of snow in Saskatchewan.

In Toronto the thermometer registered 57 degrees in the morning and 79 degrees in the early afternoon. The probabilities for the east to-day are strong wind, warm and showery, and it is expected to be cool tomorrow.

According to some reports a cyclone has been raging out west. Some of the wires of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company are down, but no details of any damage are to hand.

Bound for Canada. FISHGUARD, Oct. 11.—The emigrants on board the Volturno were composed of Russians, Balts, Poles and a few Germans. Most of them were bound for Canada.

Few royal sisters have played such great and beneficial parts on the world's stage as those shown in the above picture. Brought up in the simplest and most natural of fashions by their father, King Christian IX. of Denmark, two of them have wielded great power as consorts in two of the mightiest empires in the world, England and Russia.

The riding has been Liberal since Confederation, the last time by 40 majority. The Courier will bulletin the outcome the moment the result is ascertained.

Fierce Blaze At Caledonia

[Canadian Press Despatch.] CALEDONIA, Ont., Oct. 11.—Thousands of dollars' damage was done this morning by a blaze which broke out in the big store house near the Grand Trunk tracks, which was occupied by the Alabastine Company, and the other half by the Schirra Milling Company. The former Company had fifty thousand barrels of cement goods stored there and a lot of valuable machinery. This is practically an entire loss. It is believed that most of the grain stored by the Milling Company will also be a loss. The damage is only partly covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

RAILWAY ROUTE INTO PORT DOVER

It Has Not Been Refused by Dominion Railway Board.

In scarce head lines, a local paper announced last night that the Lake Erie and Northern route into Port Dover had not been approved by the Dominion Railway Board. As a matter of fact the board granted two weeks to the railway and property owners to get together whereby the right of way could be moved from St. Patrick St. to the rear of the houses along St. Patrick's street. Mr. Kellett in reply to objections raised by a Port Dover resident offered to purchase the private right of way at a certain figure in order to have the tracks removed from the street. This the resident who raised the objection said he could do and he was given two weeks in which to do it. If he fails within that time, the railway will adhere to the street.

A recent interview by a lady is given regarding Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the poetess.

A Pretty Wedding. The sun shone forth his golden showers Wednesday to verify the old adage, "Blessed is the bride that the sun shines on," and he was lavish in his benediction to be sure and turned October into mid-summer for the occasion. Early in the afternoon, motors, whips and horses bedecked with white favors, led by white winged Cupid told the old happy story that "all was going merry as a marriage bell."

HAMBURG, Oct. 11.—Empor Wilhelm yesterday ordered from Max Oertz, the well-known yacht builder of this city, a new schooner to replace his present yacht Meteor, and her success will have an important bearing on the question whether Germany will challenge for the America's Cup with a cutter designed by Oertz.

The new schooner for the empor is to be built at the Krupp works at Kiel, and probably will have less water line than her predecessor which was forced to concede heavy time allowances to her competitors.

The empor has the fullest confidence in the ability of Max Oertz, and ordered the new boat without waiting for the launching of the new yacht under construction by Herreshoff for Robert E. Tod, of the New York Yacht Club.

THE PANAMA CANAL

Not our neighbors alone, but also the civilized world at large, will have cause for admiration and congratulation over the achievement of that remarkable triumph, the Panama Canal.

As is generally well known, the Isthmus of Panama has hitherto stood as a barrier between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. Traversed by a chain of mountains it seemed to present insuperable difficulties, but once more man has triumphed over the apparently impossible.

As early as 1528 the idea of a canal across the isthmus was entertained but was dropped for political reasons. Philip II, ordering that it should not be resumed on pain of death. From time to time during the last century, French, American and English engineers made repeated surveys and De Lesseps who planned and completed the Suez Canal, tackled the job, but after an enormous expenditure of money the enterprise went into liquidation. Finally Uncle Sam took the job up on his own account and as usual he has finally got there.

The stupendous nature of the task not alone consisted of the overcoming of vast physical obstacles but also involved the establishment of elaborate sanitation methods as hitherto men had dropped off by the thousands like flies. A system was successfully devised and formed in a minor sense another great triumph.

Looked at from the merely material standpoint as far as Canada is concerned, the new route is going to mean very much and especially so to Vancouver and all other western coast points.

Meanwhile Johnny Canuck, like John Bull, and all the rest, will heartily extend the glad hand to Uncle Sam.

LAURIE'S RACE APPEALS

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been a very active figure in connection with the bye-election fight for the Dominion House in Chateaugay, Quebec.

As usual he has resorted to the race cry.

Speaking at St. Martine he said, (Toronto Globe report):

"Sir Wilfrid pointed out that he had lost popularity on the navy question through the campaign of falsehood and misrepresentation, 15 seats having been gained by the Conservatives in Quebec.

"But it is not the first time in my life that I have risked my popularity to do my duty," said he. "When one loses the applause of the people it is well that one's conscience should applaud. I am of your race, but I am not a leader of the French-Canadians, but I am a leader of Canadians."

Do you notice that gentle insinuation, "I am of your race."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier according to Grit speakers and Grit papers, never brings his nationality to bear in the Province of Quebec; oh, my, no; certainly not.

As a matter of fact he has in this regard, during all his political life, been one of the most flagrant and persistent of sinners.

He wouldn't have been chosen Liberal leader in the first place except for the fact that he was a French-Canadian and he knows it. He wouldn't have won in 1896 except for his compatriots in Quebec and he equally well knows that. Hence, the reason that in about every address in that province he takes occasion to make the remark that he is one of their origin.

Can you imagine a Gladstone, or a Disraeli, or a Balfour, or an Asquith resorting to like chicanery?

The Six Nations Indians have been celebrating the semi-centennial of the laying of the corner stone of their Council House. In 1863 they numbered 2,635 and now they have reached a total of 4,108 or an increase of 75 per cent. It's the only known case of the kind on this continent and speaks well for Canadian treatment of her former allies.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has done more active personal work in the constituency of Chateaugay where a bye-election is taking place to-day than he has for many years in any one riding, not even excepting places where he has run himself. It has always gone Liberal since Confederation, and the white plumed knight must be scared, indeed to get on the stump and canvass in the way he has. As usual his main stock in trade has been "It's true I am of your race," and complaints that his opponents continue to attack him because of his race and his religion. Those are attacks which he conjures up himself in order to arouse the very feelings which he claims should not be stirred up.

The gift was accepted and was greatly appreciated by the board. Citizens in general have reason to be proud of the noble work being done by the "Busy Bees."

The building committee was authorized to make a number of minor changes and additions to the main building. The committee was also instructed to prepare plans and estimates of the cost of an ice house.

The board decided to at once take steps to have sleeping pavilions erected, one for the men and one for the women, in which the incipient cases will be accommodated.

The board walked over the grounds for the purpose of preparing a comprehensive scheme for the laying out of the grounds and for the location of buildings that will be erected from time to time.

A letter of thanks was directed to be sent to Mr James Nightingale for keeping the sanitarium supplied with ice under great difficulties since the opening of the institution to the present time without expense to the board.

A number of accounts were ordered paid.

Those present were Vice-President C. Cook, Mayor Hartman, Warden Kendrick, Drs. Ashton and Frank, and Messrs Cole, Gould and Watts.

The third Mayoralty contest in which Mr. Henry engaged was with Mr. C. B. Heyd after Scarfe resigned. It was even a warmer fight than the other one and proceeded on political lines. Mr. Henry was feared by local Reformers as a big political factor on the Conservative side and orders went forth for the faithful to draw their nickers. They drew 'em all right, but Mr. Henry won out once more by a narrow margin. A congratulatory dinner arranged by Mr. L. F. Heyd to celebrate his brother's victory did not take place. In addition to general and municipal affairs, Mr. Henry was very active in many other directions—President of the Conservative Association, President of St. Andrews Society, President of the Caledonia Society, President of South Brant Agricultural Society, director of the Young Ladies College, Elder of Zion Church and so on. He was frequently urged to run for both the Dominion and Ontario Houses, but could not see his way clear to accept until 1906, when he accepted the nomination to run against Mr. William Paterson, who had held South Brant continuously since 1872. The nomination proceedings took place in the old Corinthian Hall on George Street, and were most enthusiastic. When Mr. Henry announced his acceptance the applause of the delegates was so great that a Union Jack in rear of the platform had the upper tack loosened and the emblem partially dropped. Everybody noticed the incident but the after speakers made no reference to it until Chief A. G. Smith (the "Iron Horse") had voted was called upon and he opened by saying, "Mr. Henry, our candidate, is so popular that even the Union Jack automatically dipped in his honor, the moment he announced that he would make the fight." The Chief made a great hit with the crowd in connection with this apt turn he gave the matter and incidentally it may be remarked that he was afterwards fired by the Laurier Government as interpreter of the Six Nations Indians, because he had taken part in meetings. It was during this campaign that Sir Charles Tupper, then Premier, and over

Reminiscences of Brant

By An "Old Timer" Chapter VI.

One of the most notable figures of Brantford public life was Mr. Robert Henry for years now, of Windsor, but still held dear to the memory of countless Brantfordites. He was born in Perthshire, Scotland on Nov. 30th, 1844, and will consequently be sixty nine years old this year. His father, John Henry, and his mother, Jane Dow, were both Scotch, and in 1853 the family migrated to Canada. Mr. McEwen of this city, father of Mr. Martin McEwen, coming over in the same vessel. Mr. Henry, sr., was a fine type of man, and was a contractor, having had a prominent part in connection with the erection of Brantford's present post office. He and his wife were of the good old sturdy Scotch school. The subject of this sketch completed his education in the Brantford public schools until he was twelve years of age, when he entered the stationery and news store of Andrew Hudson. At one time he used to be a paper boy for "The Courier." Mr. Henry was with Mr. Hudson three years and then entered the grocery business of R. C. Allen. In 1869 he became associated with Mr. Charles Watts, a leading wholesale grocer in the Province and when Mr. Watts died in 1871 he became a partner with his son, Mr. Alfred Watts, recently deceased.

(House Furnishers)

87-89 Colborne St. Brantford

seventy years of age, came to Brantford in his special car to be one of the speakers at a meeting in the Drill Hall. He was met at the Grand Trunk depot by a deputation of leading Conservatives and was as jaunty as could be. Just as the party were leaving for the meeting place, a local bank manager arrived and asked Mr. Henry to introduce him to Sir Charles, as he had a communication to convey of great importance. He and the Premier stepped back to the end of the car and were in conversation for some time. When Sir Charles stepped forward again he made the remark that he had received some information which had greatly upset him. The nature of the disclosure was of course never divulged, but it was enough to greatly disturb the veteran, who later delivered the worst speech of his long career. The hall included a big delegation of Paterson supporters who sat in a body, and every time Tupper used the term "My friend Sir Wilfrid" interrupted him with three cheers for Laurier. They wouldn't let him get past that name. Dr. Montague, who was the next speaker, made the remark that he would use Laurier's name without any interruption, and he did. After the usual opening, he dwelt upon the patriotism of Canadians and led up to the fact that at the then recent time of Riel's second rebellion, the sons of the artisan, the farmer, the magnate, and of all classes, had willingly gone to the front on behalf of the Dominion. He continued: "I only heard of one prominent man who said that had he been on the banks of the Saskatchewan, he would have used his musket against those brave boys. Shall I tell you his name (pause) Laurier, Laurier, Laurier. Why don't you cheer now?" That settled it, and in the next meeting next day the local Grit organ used the head line "Saved by Montague." The doctor has always regarded the speech he made on this occasion as the best of his notable career. Mr. Henry won the fight by a little less than 100 majority, and the good Grits went to bed early that night while the Tories jubilated. The Conservative Government went out, however, and had it not been for that, it is an open secret that Sir Charles would have offered Mr. Henry a seat in his Cabinet. As a platform speaker, Mr. Henry was and is, at his best when interrupted. His famous "stand up, sir" to any one trying to heckle him, will be remembered by old timers. Then he generally gives the disturbing one a large sized Roland for his would-be Oliver. He is a man of most agreeable disposition, and marked generosity. No matter whether Grit or Tory, anyone in distress always received his ready assistance, and that without any ulterior motive. Although for some time a resident of Windsor, his business office brings him here where he is always heartily welcomed by a host of admirers.

Reference has been made in the above to Hon. Mr. Paterson, and perhaps this is about as suitable a place as any to refer to his public career. He also is of Scotch parentage, and was 74 years of age in September last. His parents both died when he was young, and he was brought up in Caledonia, in the County of Haldimand. In 1854, he came to Brantford, and was clerk with Mr. Ignatius Cocksbutt until 1863, when he went into the bakery and confectionery business with the late Mr. Henry B. Leeming. He retired in 1876 to become Collector of Customs at this port, and Mr. Paterson continued the business alone until he took his son, William, into partnership. Mr. Paterson also got into public life in early years. He was elected a member of the town council of Brantford in 1868, when he was 27 years of age; became deputy mayor for the next three years; and mayor in 1872. In the last named year, a general election took place for the Dominion House. Sir Francis Hincks was the candidate on the Conservative side, and "young" Paterson was chosen as the Liberal standard bearer.

er. Paterson won, and from that time on he held the seat, eighteen years of the period in Opposition, until he met with a reverse at the hands of Mr. Henry. He and Hon. James Haggart for many years were the only two members elected in 1872 who continued to hold their seats election after election, and Mr. Paterson was heard to remark once that he used to think in the early days that if John took his boots off he would show a cloven hoof, and he had the idea that Haggart probably felt the same regarding him. In later life they used to hunt for each other on the reassembling of the House after an election for a handshaking. Such are the softening effects of long political association, even if at first you don't like the other fellow. Mr. Paterson was offered the portfolio of Minister of Customs by Laurier and North Gray was opened to give him a seat. Later he represented North Brant. He held the portfolio until the defeat of himself and the Government in 1911. As a speaker, Mr. Paterson proved himself at his best on the stump, and his services were in great demand by his party in that regard. His big voice—he was once credited with tearing a hole in the old drill hall roof by reason of it—had great carrying power, and he also possessed excellent touches of humor and keen inventiveness. He has now withdrawn from public life and is living in Pickering.

Synagogue Is Being Planned By The Jews Of Brantford

Realizing that their work in this city has now advanced to such a stage where it is impossible for them to do without a synagogue, a place to worship, to hold their Sunday School classes and other religious meetings, any longer, the members of the Jewish nationality in Brantford have recently inaugurated a movement to raise by way of subscription, sufficient funds to erect a building of that nature in this city. It is planned that $15,000 will be the amount required and an active campaign for the raising of this amount will be commenced at once. At the present time there are about 50 Jewish families in Brantford. The members of these families have already contributed generously towards the fund, but owing to their limited numbers it is impossible for them to raise the entire amount. Those in charge of the campaign therefore have issued an appeal to all other nationalities in the city to help the good work along by their contributions and it is expected that within the next few weeks the invitation will be responded to generously and willingly by those who have the interests of their fellow citizens at heart. The Courier understands that as soon as sufficient funds have been secured to start the work, a suitable site will be secured and the work of construction commenced. It is felt that with the building of a synagogue, the good work carried on by the Hebrews, work among the poor, the sick and the strangers, may be carried on with even greater success than in the past and for this reason those behind the movement, hope that they will receive the united support of all other religious people in the city. Contributions will be received by the treasurer, Mr. B. Zipper, 45 Colborne St., also by Philip Shear, Chairman of the Jewish Building Committee.

$50,000 FOR NEW SCHOOL, CITY BOUNDARY QUESTION

Two Matters of Importance Taken Up at the Finance Committee Meeting Last Night.

A deputation from the Public school board, including Dr. Ashton, Dr. Dalachy and M. E. B. Cutcliffe waited upon the finance committee of the City Council last night in reference to the securing of funds for the new East Ward school. The deputation prevailed upon the committee to have a by-law to raise $50,000 put through the council; it being agreed that this sum would put the school board through. The original request was for $60,000, but the finance committee thought the amount was too high.

The aldermen also took up the question of enlarging the city boundaries and will report at the City Council on Monday night that if the ratepayers of any outlying sections desire to come into the city, they may do so on the same basis of taxation as ratepayers already within the city have. As taxes are lower in the township, even without certain privileges enjoyed by those in the City of Brantford, it is unlikely that there will be any great demand for annexation.

NOT WORRYING

Local Hotelkeepers Say They Are Paying High License Now.

Local hotelkeepers are not worrying over the likelihood of the license fees being raised in this city. They point out that they are now contributing $500 annually in the straight license fee, and the five per cent tax on bar receipts makes their annual contribution to the government reach the four figure mark. In fact each hotel in the city averages $75 to $125 per month on its five per cent tax of the government alone.

A Mandamus

Will be Asked for by J.R. Layton of Paris.

Mr. J. R. Layton, who was recently officially read out by resolution of the office of Deputy Reeve of Paris Council, proposed to bring on proceedings for a new election. Mr. Layton, as a result of the resolution, is no longer a member of the Brant County Council. "Legally," said Mr. Layton, no fault can be found with the resolution, but it was most ungenerous. I had notified my fellow members that I would not be home during the summer. Other members through illness and otherwise have been absent for protracted periods and have been treated with courtesy. I propose to ask for a mandamus for a new election."

A Close Call. An accident was narrowly averted at the corner of Market and Dalhousie streets last night shortly after 10 o'clock. A young lad named Cecil Cousden, who resides at 216 Chatham Street was turning the corner on his wheel when it skidded and he fell on the pavement right in front of an automobile in charge of Mr. Limberg, Pearl St. Fortunately the lad laid flat on the pavement and the car passed over him but did not touch him or damage the bicycle. It was a very narrow escape.

Hit The Wagon. While proceeding west on Colborne St. this morning about 8:30 Mr. Norman Willis's delivery outfit figured in a mishap. The outfit was in charge of William Russell and was turning around another conveyance when a street railway car number 36 hit the wagon tearing the rear portion of the box from the springs and throwing the horse to the sidewalk. The driver jumped, undoubtedly saving himself from injury. P. C. Smith was quickly on the scene and rendered good service.

Small Burglary. During the night some one broke into Darwin's music store on Market street. Access was secured by prying open a window at the side on Chatham street. A lot of small musical merchandise was taken, and an attempt made on the safe. However, they only succeeded in knocking off the top hinges. Quantities of burned matches were found on the floor, and the whole thing presents the appearance of the work of amateurs. Those living above the store heard no noise.

The Townsend and Waterford fall fair was a great success. The exhibits were about double those of last year and the attendance was excellent.

Caledonia Fair. There was a record attendance of some 18,000 people at the Caledonia fair yesterday. It is generally computed that at least 1,000 motors were "packed up" in and around the show grounds. There were cars from as far away as Toronto whilst Hamilton and Brantford contributed hundreds of benzine buggies. The fair itself was a great success the show of horses being especially fine.

Lost His Bag. Charles Rannan, a Brantford traveler, told the police last night that his club bag was stolen from an automobile in front of the Wentworth Arms hotel, between 6:30 and 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Rannan had absolutely no idea as to the identity of the thief and while the police are making an attempt to recover the bag, he admits that they have slight chance of doing this.—Hamilton Spectator.

QUEEN OF HOLLAND OPENING HER PARLIAMENT AT THE HAGUE

On February 3, 1832, Queen Victoria opened the Parliament at The Hague. She was then thirty-three years of age, and the Prince Consort, her husband, was by her side. Lord John Russell was Prime Minister, and the question of the representation of the people played a considerable part in the speech from the throne. That there is on the throne of Holland a Queen of exactly the same age to-day as Queen Victoria was then and also a Prince Consort—subject of interest in all.—Queen Wilhelmina opened a new Parliament on September 16, and the speech from the throne included bills for manhood suffrage and an old age pension. Her Prince Consort is seated on her left.

CYRIL MAUDE.
Cyril Maude has delighted large audiences in Toronto this week. Concerning Mr. Maude, himself, it is only necessary to query why he has never yet made a trans-Atlantic tour. The demand for him has been incessant for years, both in Canada and the United States, but the London favorite declared it impossible to tear himself away from his home surroundings. He is the only one of the great English actors who has not yet been seen in this country. At home he has taken the place of the late Sir Henry Irving in the estimation of the theater-going public, but he is much closer to the affections of his audiences. The average Briton dearly loves a laugh and Maude's double vein of broad and polite comedy is unexcelled in its natural charm. Mr. Maude has brought with him the most extensive repertory which has been seen in any European country. Each one of his productions has the stamp of unequivocal London approval.

GEM THEATRE.

The management have been successful in securing films showing actual scenes of Harry K. Thaw's sojourn in Canada, also pictures of the late Mayor Gaynor (New York) on his farm at St. James, L. I. These up-to-the-minute topical subjects will be presented: Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 15, 16 and 17th.

What is yet to come will be advertised in the amusement columns of the Courier and among the special features may be mentioned, "In the Springtime of Life" from the Pathe Studio, for Monday and Tuesday. This subject is, perhaps, the most beautiful of the many thousands of films released by the companies the world over. It tells the remarkable life history of a young girl whose widowed father places her in the hands of a woman to be cared for and educated. She becomes a famous Opera star and finally, in a scene of stirring excitement in which a great opera house is burned down she finds a husband and her father. It is a story which is unsurpassed and is full of heart throbs. The scenes and beautiful coloring in the production have not been equalled. For Wednesday and Thursday, "A Daughter's Sacrifice" in fifty sensational scenes shows a thrilling feat of high diving, sensa-tional plunge in fire hood from the roof of a great circus. It also depicts a series of circus acts quite out of the ordinary.

That photoplays have come to stay and that they are to be classed with any of the greatest dramatic productions of the day is shown by fact that many of the greatest actors and actresses in England and America are being filmed in their most wonderful successes. When we read that such players as Sir J. Forbes Robertson, the Divine Sarah Bernhardt, Nat Goodwin, Mrs. Fiske, etc. are appearing before the camera we can not help feeling convinced that through the medium of the photoplay coming generations will see all the dramatic sensations played by the world's leading actors.

Where photoplays are ahead of stage plays is that all the scenes in the open air are in natural surroundings and such exciting incidents as fires, aeroplane episodes, railway and automobile adventures and hundreds of others too numerous to mention can be photographed from real life—in stage plays lack of space prevents this.

AT THE APOLLO.

The Apollo, the popular photo play theatre has always been noted for its excellent picture service and perfect projection of same. The management some time ago installed two machines in order to do away with the unpleasant and unnecessary waits, between reels and although this necessarily incurs considerable extra expense, yet it undoubtedly pays for the venture as the patrons are able to see the two and three reel feature without the old time "wait a minute please" to break the thread of the story.

Several features worthy of special mention are booked up for the near future among them being "The Intruder", an excellent Vitagraph portrayal with Maurice Costello in the lead and "King Robert of Sicily" an Essanay spectacular production with an all star cast for next week, and for the first half of the week following, "Dialouge" The "Demon Monk" This startling, sensational and fascinating story is the production of one of Europe's leading studios and created the greatest impression of any play of the season at the Grand Theatre.

Of Interest To Women

Wonderful materials were employed for Miss Sackville-West's wedding gown, including gorgeous brocade in an old Persian design, in natural silk spun direct and real gold.

The gown will be draped with almost priceless family lace, which has been in the possession of the Sackville family since the days of Charles I, when it was worn by the Duchess of Dorset, and it has been utilized since then in decorating the wedding gown of every bride of Knole.

It is of a very early Irish design and deep in colour, and was worn by Lady Sackville at the coronation of the present Czar of Russia. After the wedding the lace went back to the chest of Knole.

A wonderful evening dress made by Reville and Rossiter for the bride's trousseau was fashioned of multi-colored iridescent paillettes in all shapes, specially woven in Persian hues. The effect of the gown at night, when it will be partially veiled with the long wing sleeves of black lace, will be to produce a sensation of mystery and magnetism.

The style of dress to be worn by guests at the wedding of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife on Oct. 15, has now been definitely fixed.

Apparently the ladies are to be present in a sacred building with uncovered heads, which is entirely opposed to the usual practice. Although the ceremony will take place at noon, ladies are requested to wear full evening dress without trains.

No feathers are to be worn, nor veils, but jewelled hair ornaments and tiaras may be used. Full uniform is the regulation for men and all the guests will wear the "Orders" they possess.

The heavy oaken seats in the chapel have been removed and their place will be taken by temporary seats, which will increase the accommodation for 180 persons to about 250.

N. JOUBERT, Esq.

"I heartily recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' to all who suffer from Constipation and the painful consequences—Piles. I am now over 74 years old and suffered for over 20 years with Constipation and Piles. I tried all kinds of remedies, saw the doctors and took their medicines but nothing cured me. About four years ago, I tried 'Fruit-a-tives'—found they were doing me good. Then I procured an additional supply and was much gratified at the wonderful good they did me. After taking four boxes, I felt well—my bowels were regular and the Piles had disappeared. My wife was troubled for three years, with Asthma, and Eczema on the hands, which made her hands almost useless. The doctor gave her several ointments to use, none of which had any effect. He also advised her to use rubber gloves. The effect was marvellous. Her hands are cured and the Asthma has also left her. We both attribute our present good health to 'Fruit-a-tives'."

N. JOUBERT, GRANBY, LIGNE, P.Q.

Whether it was the fine, honest, straightforward face that inspired confidence or the simple language, which rang true as a silver bell, that made so many people think over this letter, is hard to say. But the fact remains that one hundred and eighty-seven persons have written Mr. Joubert to enquire more fully about "Fruit-a-tives". And this delightful old gentleman who is now 74 years old—happy in his release from pain—grateful for his cure—took the time to answer every inquiry. Take his advice and try "Fruit-a-tives".

BENDER HANDS GIANTS SECOND JOLT, WINNING THIRD FOR ATHLETICS

Barry, Schang and Oldring Do the Slugging Which Drives Demaree From the Mound is Fourth, Supplying Bender With Six Runs, Sufficient to Win From Giants by a One Run Margin—Merkle's Homer With Two on Base Featured Game—Marquard Stops Mackmen in Four Innings.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—What promised to be nothing more than a pleasant romp to victory, turned out to be a ball game after all. The Athletics won and now have three victories to one for the Giants. They are only one game away from the world's championship. The score by which they won to-day was 8 to 6, but set in the ebb and flow of fortune the fact that the Mackian sappers had at one time a lead of six runs did not alter the fact that before the game was over it came about that the difference between victory and defeat for the Athletics hung on an occurrence of hair line fineness.

The Giants were six tallies behind and unless when the seventh inning began. In that inning and the next they merged practically all the hitting they did and plucked five runs so abruptly that the question changed from "What will the Athletics win by, to, will the Athletics win?"

Two Great Fielding Plays. A wonderful nab of a line drive from McCormack, Oldring being the one who did the catching, foreclosing on a New York run in the fifth inning. A still more important play was feat of Chief Bender in knocking down a fierce liner from Fletcher's bat in the eighth inning and blighting a rally, which as it was, produced two runs. On the other hand the Giants were not entirely destitute of four leaf clovers in this inning, for a wicked liner by Burns struck squarely on the foul line. Continuing the recital of how the ifs cut in here and there, what took place in this second inning was of important bearing, and this particular succession of events has to do with crimples. Snodgrass started the game, giving way later to Herzog and forcing McGraw back to the combination of talent which he has used most in the series. Snodgrass, by reason of his lameness, failed to get under a fly in the second. The maker of that Texas leaguer was McInnis, and he scored. He scored because Merkle's weak ankle gave out on him as he was about to take a foul from Barry. The result was Merkle dropped the foul. Barry is just the sort of appreciative chap to make the most of such an opportunity. He at once drove a two-bagger to left and scored McInnis.

While on the subject of Barry, it may be mentioned that he was, with his bat, the centre of the Athletics' attacking force. He made three hits and journeyed to the home shrine with three runs. The lower end of the batting order, did the business yesterday. Collins and Baker were in the background. McInnis, Strunk, Barry and Schang, formed a four man combination which bore the brunt of the home team's offensive operations.

Two innings of attacking animation were not enough for the Giants. By that time the Athletics, who did not wait for late stages to show their hand, had driven Demaree to cover and worked in enough of their sharp outbursts of walloping to have a winning supply of runs. The game was won by the American Leaguers in the Fletcher going out quickly. Fletcher was the only one of the three to hit to the ground, and Barry headed him off with lots to spare. For the Athletics Oldring made a hit—swatting safely in the first inning is a fixed custom of his. It was a three bagger that he made. He got his quietest at the plate on a final play by Merkle. The latter made a hard stop over his head of Collins' bounding hit, and threw Oldring out. The latter jumped up snarling. While Demaree was dreamily holding the ball, Collins, who is as hard to pin down as a flea, stole second, and as Baker poled a first ball, in which they did all their batting.

For the fourth time in the series, Mack made no change in his batting front, while McGraw made several. Bender was in better form than on Tuesday, and for six innings held the Giants to scattered hits. In the next two his confidence was considerably rocked, his cock-sureness was taken from him, for two singles, a two-bagger, a three-bagger and a home run went stringing across the landscape in that period. Capt. Danny Murphy ran out on the field, jacked up the surprised Indian, and he settled down and held the Giants safe to the finish.

Got to Demaree in the Fourth. Demaree, under world's series fire for the first time, worked his change of pace to the confusion of the Athletics for three innings. He went about the important assignment with as much calmness as in an ordinary game. He was getting along nicely with his slow curve and injections of speed, using his head to good effect, until the fourth. Then the Athletics, high foul to Shafer no damage was done.

In the second Bender made Burns step away with his last one on the inside, and Burns' noblest effort was a fly to Murphy. Shafer struck out, and took a slash at all three. Murray, after kicking on a called strike was hit. McLean, a handy man with the ash in this series, faced safely to right centre, Strunk and Collins being slow in getting after the poke. Murray ran to third and was there when Merkle lifted a foul. McInnis ran to the Giants' dugout for the catch, and stepped into it, the New York players making way for him.

Marquard really held the Athletics in good style. After he had passed a man with two out in the fifth, Barry and Schang teamed up and pounced on the "Rube" for two hits and two runs. Not a hit was made off him after that, and the only man who reached first on him in the last three innings, was Schang, who walked.

There was more fussing with the umpire than in all the previous games put together. Egan was the target for the growling. Players on both sides grumbled at his rulings, and there were other signs of irritation. All of the pitchers were slow and deliberate in the box. Two or three times Athletic batters stepped out of the box while Marquard was holding the ball, though Marquard didn't stall around a bit more than Bender. Oldring started a wrangle in the sixth inning by stepping out of the box, and Capt. Doyle came in and protested. Whatever may have been the character of Egan's work, the players acted rather childishly all around.

To-day will be another big day in rugby. Hamilton Tigers are going to Ottawa and Montreal comes to Toronto Argo grounds in the Big Four League, while Toronto Varsity and McGill open the Intercollegiate series at R. M. C. and Queens respectively. The enthusiasts in the cities where the games are to be played should witness some clever exhibitions.

McGraw's followers got a couple of chances to holler during yesterday's game. In the 7th and 8th innings the Giants' followers were very much awake, but during the rest of the game, they kept their talking machines closed as tight as the proverbial clam.

On the Agricultural Park this afternoon the Collegiate Rugby team will meet the Maple Leafs once again. Last time these teams met the students put it over the Leafs rather badly, but Art Dunstan's boys claim that there will be a different story to tell to-day.

The hockey season bids fair to get away to a good start on Tuesday evening next, when an organization meeting of the O. H. A. clubs will be held in the new Y.M.C.A. At this meeting reports will be received, officers elected and the hockey rubber started rolling. Just what material the officers have in view for the coming season they are not prepared to say, but it is thought that two teams will be placed on the ice this winter that will be a credit to Brantford. Hockey enthusiasts are urged to turn out to the meeting on Tuesday night in large numbers and it is hoped that they will bring along with them any suggestions which they have to make for the season of 1913-14.

City League hockey also promises to get a "hustle on" next week some time, when it is probable that an organization meeting will be held. Those who know state that there is a bright season ahead of the city league, and somehow or other after a fashion they have, jammed out the hits. Schang got hold of a slow one and broke up the game, for there were men on second and third at the time. A passed ball and a hit by Bender, which was the veriest scratch added a run. Every slip by the Giants was costly, as the fact that a run from a combination of a passed ball and a scratch hit attest.

Barry at first, Schang swung like a gate at two slow curves, but the next one came drifting up with no hook on it, and Schang met it squarely. It raced past Doyle and brought in two pilgrims. Schang went to second on Shafer's throw to the plate, and again the wretch proved costly. Schang moved to third on a passed ball, and Bender's scratch hit to the first base line which Merkle couldn't handle, scored Schang.

Bender didn't come near the plate for Murray in the fifth, and the latter walked. In trying to field McLean's single, Collins kicked it to left, Murray galloping to third. This was the best chance the Giants had had, but they passed it by. Merkle nearly broke his back hitting at a curve, and got none of them. McCormick would have made a hit but for robbery. His liner cleared the infield and brought Oldring in on the run. The latter took the ball all doubled up, and the impetus of his dash carried him toward the infield so fast that Murray hadn't time to divorce himself from third base. With Herzog up, Cooper, who was running for McLean, tried a steal. Schang turned him back with a dream of a heave, and then didn't throw until he had seen that Murray wasn't taking ground. It was a neat bit of craft by the home catcher.

Marquard Struck Out Baker. In the fifth Marquard had the satisfaction of striking out Baker. The home run specialist whiffed just like an ordinary out batter. He missed the third strike just as far and looked just as foolish. Marquard threw out McInnis, but then there opened the one crack in his armor, and just wide enough to mean victory for the Athletics. Strunk drew four balls. Barry rang the bell with another two-bagger. He spun a slanting liner to left, and Burns had the same opportunity that Oldring had on McCormick. He did his best, but the ball went through him as he was lunging for it, and Strunk came to rest on third and Barry on second. They merely halted for breath. Schang singled to centre, and scored his companions.

The Giants, who had been playing in a listless sort of way, came to life in the seventh. Burns made a wobbly hit. He took a half poke and the ball bounced away from the bat. It bounced slowly over Bender's raven thatch and was good for a hit. Shafer filed to Collins, but Murray disfigured the sod in left with a base hit. Right here McLean was sadly missed. His representative, Wilson, struck out, though he evidently thought Egan was wrong in calling the the last one.

Simultaneously with the untimely end of Wilson, Burns and Murray made a double steal, Baker dropping Schang's low throw. Bender didn't seem to think there was much to worry about and pegged away at Merkle until the latter had him in a hole. Merkle thereupon joined the small band of home-run hitters. His drive gave Oldring a chase, struck in front of the bleachers and bounced into them. While the inning was on Egan took time to reproach some chattering Athletics on the bench.

Marquard disposed of the Macks in the seventh on two fouls and a grounder, and in the eighth the Giants made another foray. They had Bender on the grill for a spell. Herzog went after the first pitch and stung a single to left, his first hit of the series. Doyle rapped sharply to Collins, whose throw to second forced Herzog. Fletcher also going over the first, hit it hard enough to split armor plate. Bender stopped it and postponed an examination of his hand until he had thrown to Barry for a force of Doyle. He came near throwing wild and Barry's quickness saved him from an error. Bender then looked at his hand and found it still in working condition. He put a strike over for Burns and Burns put a two-bagger over Baker's head. Fletcher scored easily on Burns' hit and when Shafer tripled to right and scored Burns the Athletic counselors thought things had gone far enough. Dan Murray hurried out and gave Bender a fatherly talk. The chief took head and retired Murray on a grounder to Collins.

Bender Himself Again. Bender was himself again in the ninth. He swung back to his early inning form and New York's ninth consisted of a grounder to Collins from Crandall a fly to Murphy from Merkle, and a foul to Schang from Grant.

Bender was forced by Grant to do a great deal of pitching before the latter succumbed. The second new ball of the inning was tossed to the Chippewa and Grant first took a strike, fouling the next one. Then a ball, then two balls, then a foul. Three balls, then another foul. Schang caught this latter and Grant and his mates were at the end of their resources.

MORE PEOPLE AT FOOTBALL MORE MONEY IN BASEBALL

The publication of the attendance and gate receipts statements from the world's baseball series has occasioned many arguments over the comparison with the popular supports of soccer football in Britain. In reply to several questions in and out of Toronto it may be said:

(1) That the record attendance at a football game was not in England, but in Scotland.

(2) That the occasion was the international between England and Scotland, at Hampden Park, Glasgow on March 23, 1912.

(3) That the attendance was 127,307, and the gate receipts, including the money from all stands and enclosures, amounted to £26,997 15s. or less than $35,000.

(4) That the record attendance in England was 120,008, when Aston Villa and Sunderland played the Cup final at the Crystal Palace, London, April 19 of the present year.

BIG MEETING HELD FOR BEAUTY SPOT

(Continued from Page 8) The property was thought by Ald. McEwen to be too valuable, but there was cheaper land near the canal, which could be utilized.

More Small Parks. The chairman asked if more small parks were needed. Inspector E. E. C. Kilmer was of the opinion that they were. He said there were not enough places for the younger children to play. The school grounds could be used if there was proper supervision.

Sanitary Inspector Glover suggested two more parks—one on Terrace Hill and one on Colborne St. south of Rawdon St.

Grounds for Children. It was suggested by A. Speechley that the E. C. I. campus be thrown open to all children. George Matthews thought all school grounds should be thrown open for use. Principal Foster said the neighbors complained. There was not a swing in the city so far as he knew of.

The suggestion was made that the children be secured for the use of the grounds, and Mr. John Fair did not think the school grounds had a suitable covering.

LABATT'S STOUT

The very best for use in ill-health and convalescence. Awarded Medal and Highest Points in America at World's Fair, 1893. PURE—SOUND—WHOLE SOME. JOHN LABATT, LIMITED, LONDON, CANADA.

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Nationals, is busy with arrangements for the globe-circling tour which he and Charles Comiskey of Chicago, will start directly after the world's series. McGraw has rounded up his full roster of players for the world's circuit against the American League troop. Meyers of New York, and Wings of St. Louis, will be his catchers; Mathewson, Tesreau, Fromme and Hearne, of New York, and Perdne of Boston, pitchers; Merkle of New York, first base; Doyle of New York, second base; Doolan, of Philadelphia, shortstop; Robert of Philadelphia, third base; Lee McGree, of St. Louis, Snodgrass, McCormick and Thorne of New York outfielders. The final personnel of the American League travellers has not yet been announced.

According to the rules which were in vogue last year every major league club is forced to cut down its list of reserve players to thirty-five by October. If that rule is still in vogue what is the St. Louis club going to do with the thirty players which were allotted it by the draft? Hedges had at least twenty players before the draft, and he purchased seven or eight before the draft. In all, he must have something like sixty players on his list now and he must cut down to thirty-five, in which event only a small portion of the new players will ever get a trial.

Charleston and Columbus were the only clubs in the South Atlantic League not to profit by sales of players. Savannah disposed of Pitchers Robertson and Adams to the Cincinnati Nationals; Philadelphia Americans, respectively; McCleskey and Luhrs of Albany go to the Boston Nationals, and Pittsburgh Nationals, Pitcher Grover of Jacksonville, becomes the property of the Detroit Tigers; while Macon sent no less than four players to class A company.

"I must ask you to believe," he said, looking anywhere but at her, "that I do not forget you in the matter. I do not seem to have acted with an utter disregard for your feelings."

"He broke off suddenly, and turning, he stood on the hearth rug with his feet apart, his hands clasped behind his back, his head slightly bowed."

"I drew on the reserve of an old friendship," he said. "You were kind enough to say the other day that you were inclined to me to some extent, and you are inclined to me to a larger extent than you perhaps realize. You owe me fifty years of happiness; fifty years of a life that might have been happy had you decided differently when we were younger. I do not blame you now. I never blamed you. But the debt is there. You know my life you know almost every day of it. You cannot deny the debt. I drew upon that."

"And the white haired woman raised her hand. 'Don't,' she said gently, 'please don't say any more. I know all that your life has been, and why. You did quite right. What is a little trouble to me, a little passing inconvenience, the tattle of a few idle tongues, compared with what Jack's life is to you? I see now that I ought to have acted differently. I ought to have let it take its course. You are right; you always have been right. Jack. There is a sort of consolation in the thought. I like it. I like to think that you were always right and that it was I who was wrong. It condenses my respect for you. We shall get over this somehow.'"

"The young lady," suggested Sir John, "will get over it after the manner of her kind. She will marry some one else, let us hope, before her wedding dress goes out of fashion."

"Without will have to get over it as she may. Her feelings need scarcely be taken into consideration."

Lady Cantourne made a little movement toward the door. There was much to see for much of that women's work which makes wedding the mild, courted ceremony that they are.

"Nothing like blood, sir," he was in the habit of saying, "in horses, dogs and men." And thereafter he usually threw back his shoulders.

The good blood that ran in his veins was astray tonight. The incidents of the day had aroused him from the peacefulness that lies under a weight of years (we have to lift the years one by one and lay them aside before we find it), and Sir John Meredith would have sat very upright in his chair were it not for that carping pain in his back.

He waited for an hour with his eyes almost continually on the clock, but Jack never came. Then he rang the bell.

"Coffee," he said. "I like punctuality, if you please."

Sir John was reading the evening paper, or appearing to read it, although he had not his glasses.

"Oh!," he said, "I am very sorry to hear that. This is a fine case, but the woman with a past has no future."

The short March day was closing in over London with that murky suggestion of hopelessness affected by metropolitan twilight when Jack Meredith presented himself at the door of his father's house.

him and there was a chance of his making a more brilliant match. With a chivalry which was not without a keen shaft of irony father and son allowed this story to pass uncontradicted. Perhaps a few believed it. Perhaps they had foreseen the future. It may have been that they knew that Meredith's life was surrounded by the halo of whatever story she might invent, would be treated with a certain careless nonchalance by the older men, with a respectful avoidance by the younger.

Truly women have the deepest punishment for their sins here on earth, for sooner or later the time will come after the brilliancy of the first triumph, after the less pure satisfaction of the skilled scribe, the time will come when all that they want is an enduring honest love. And it is written that an enduring love cannot, with the best will in the world, be bestowed on an unworthy object.

If a woman wishes to be loved purely she must have a pure heart and no past ready for the recognition of that love. This is a sine qua non. The woman with a past has no future.

The short March day was closing in over London with that murky suggestion of hopelessness affected by metropolitan twilight when Jack Meredith presented himself at the door of his father's house.

In his reception by the servants there was a subtle suggestion of expectation which was not lost on his keen mind. There is no patience like that of expectation in an old heart. Jack Meredith felt vaguely that he had been expected thus, daily, for many months past.

He was shown into the library, and the half form standing there on the hearth rug had not the outline for which he had looked. The battle between old age and stubborn will is long. But old age wins. It never raises the siege. It starves the garrison out.

Sir John Meredith's head seemed to have shrunk. The wig did not fit at the back. His clothes, always bearing the suggestion of emptiness, seemed to hang on ancient given lines as if the creases were well established. The clothes were old. The faithful doctrine of not worth while had set in.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy, Thick. The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyley's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyley's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. Helpful Hints for Those Who Are Willing to Learn allow him to come to see her just once for old time's sake.

CONSTANT DROPPING WEARS AWAY THE STONE

By Martha Wickes

AS FAR back as she could remember, Mollie had adored Ted. When she was ten and he was twelve she had watched as eagerly at the window for his coming as though she were eighteen.

The "far away future date" occurred about a month later when the cousin of Ted's journeying afield dismissed him with the parting denunciation that "he was too unreasonable and conceited for any use." Feeling highly abused, Ted decided to call on Mollie for consolation and in the joy of getting him back on her terms, Mollie forgot all about her vows of eternal renunciation.

It was fortunate for Ted that this remarkable version of the affair never reached the ears of the "girl." Mollie who was not of a gossiping turn of mind, hugged the part of the tale about "Ted's crying for some one else" to her heart and was satisfied. She was sure now that Ted loved her, and in her eagerness to show him the height, depth, breadth and thickness of her love for him she fairly made a door mat of her pretty little self and allowed him to trample upon her afresh.

TED repaid her devotion by becoming suddenly infatuated with a widow five years his senior. For two weary months Mollie went about like a shadow watching, waiting, hoping for the day when Ted should come back to her. This time she made no vows of renunciation. She knew that when the widow finally eloped one night with a married man and obligingly furnished the town with scandal for a month, Ted came limping back to Mollie. The limp was hardly perceptible and lasted only a day or two. During that time, however, Ted's devotion, touched up with just a spice of repentance, was beautiful to behold. Mollie forgave him, of course, and told him she loved him just the same. And Ted said that their "brief separation" he did not mention showing both of them the real meaning of love.

They continued to bask in the "real meaning of love" until Ted happened to cast approving eyes on his father's pretty stenographer and Mollie again went through a fresh torture of excuses, evasions, broken promises and lies that left her sorely shaken, but nursing a new resolution born of her suffering.

WHEN after a season of adoration of his new divinity who returned his love so ardently that she neglected her work, lost her position, and then threatened to sue him for breach of promise, Ted took the old familiar road that led to Mollie. He decided that after all Mollie was the safest. She was pretty, too, and she loved him. She would never bettise him, hit him or threaten him with breach of promise. Perhaps he would ask her to marry him after all. It would be very sweet to make up with her, at any rate.

BUT in place of the soft hands and loving voice of the little girl with whose love, constancy and tenderness he had for years played fast and loose, he was met by a grave-faced, stern-eyed Mollie he had never known. When he left her ten minutes later it was with the consciousness that he had lost something which neither the first widow nor the stenographer could ever have supplied, and he could not wriggle out of the knowledge that he had only himself to blame. But being Ted, a great wave of self-pity arose in his soul and later on, when the first widow saw the stenographer, she wore off effects of his dismissal; but she had only herself to blame. But being Ted, a great wave of self-pity arose in his soul and later on, when the first widow saw the stenographer, she wore off effects of his dismissal; but she had only herself to blame.

As for Mollie, once the deciding step had been taken she discovered that she had been not half so much in love with Ted as in love with love itself.

A HOUSEHOLD ACCOUNT BOOK

Few women like to keep accounts, but almost every housewife sooner or later realizes that she must have some system of her own and, however, peculiar that system may seem to others, it means something to her. Now, there is published a book for this purpose, all ruled and dated with a column headed for each expenditure, rent, groceries, meat, milk, ice, laundry, servants, telephone, carfare, etc., and the date, so that it requires but a few moments each day to put down just where all the money has gone to, and then one knows exactly how her expenses stand each day, thus eliminating all worry over expenditures at the end of the month.

man of such cruelty and sternness as was Sir Hudson Lowe, for his manner toward him caused Napoleon much distress and misery, and it is thought did a great deal toward hastening his end. Napoleon had for years suffered greatly from a stomach trouble which his deep depression and constant chafing at the restraint of any kind did much to increase and cancer of the stomach finally developed from which he later died.

VINCENZO VELA has given us a fine portrait of his subject in the illustration which accompanies this sketch. The wreck of the great Napoleon sits there before us, apparently fading away before our eyes, but the great Napoleon still. The familiar look of his straying across that splendid brow, the pose of the proud head, only seem to be the old Napoleon, the man of action and of force!

Note the relaxed attitude of the drooping figure. The very folds of the rug throw across his knees, the hands, quiet and at rest—what does it all say to you as you gaze upon it? Is it not restraint and peace? If, indeed, the face and attitude of the man who no longer plots and acts, but the Man Who Waits! Who "waits" with that same invincible courage for the last money he is to combat. In this life it is a quiet, impressive study, and one of which you will see many copies in sketch, photograph and other reproductions.

IN all your study of statuary make careful note of one particular thing: The harmonious details of the subject. Had the rug hung across the lap of the side man been laid in its folds—or more disturbed—the harmonic effect would have been a jarring note in the harmonious result of the whole. Train your eye to observe these details and your mind to adjust them in your own perceptions. This will help you to develop into a critic of some value and a student of deeper things.

The Puzzling Question of the Chaperon either of my daughters to go to the theater without my chaperone."

"I think," said I smilingly, "that sometimes they are a necessary evil. And I also think that as a rule most American mothers, especially mothers of moderate means, have rather too lax ideas in this respect."

"That was exactly what I came to consult you about. I must confess that I am rather puzzled about the whole subject. You see until quite recently I have for many years lived rather quietly in the country where we knew everybody and their fathers before them. I allowed my girls to do pretty much as they pleased, and in my young days a girl was supposed to be able to take care of herself after she had been taught how to behave."

"And so although you wanted to do the correct thing, you wonder a little bit why if you were able to take care of your daughters, cannot do the same thing. Well, there are several good and sufficient reasons for the change, in the place of the old world are found more enlightened ideas in these directions. And so it has come to pass that the young girl of to-day in fashionable society is much more carefully hedged about by the proprieties than her mother used to be. Now in this complex society of ours there are certain rules on the subject, that while they are well suited to rich formal people who spend a great deal of time abroad and see the English customs in many ways, would be rather ridiculous among people of moderate means moving in more simple social circles."

"Well, to get down to brass tacks," said my friend whose language is often more picturesque than elegant, "I want to know if you think I should permit

And no matter how many sizes too large they may originally have been, their owner would best keep them on "trees" all winter. If she would wear them comfortably during the following summer.

The girl who wishes to preserve her warm weather wardrobe either for the purpose of again wearing it herself or for the pleasure of bestowing it upon some less fortunately situated friend, will never put away any garment the moment after she takes it off, lest it retain an odor of perspiration. Nor will such a girl permit anything to be permanently stored in the sun and fresh of every atom of dust.

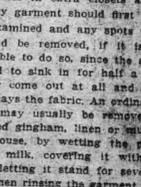

A FEW SUGGESTIONS FOR CANDLES AND LAMPS. Pottery and porcelain vases have openings wide enough to accommodate an oil font and make exceptionally handsome lamps either for the use of oil or electricity. These make much more appropriate and beautiful lamps than are ordinarily seen in shops. The dining-room table is never so beautifully and attractively illuminated as when shaded candles are employed. Candelsticks of silver, glass or porcelain with yellow or rose pink shades hold first place in table decorations. The imitation candle with shade holder attached is much more practical than the real candle. This imitative device of white composition, inside of which the real candle is placed. A spiral arrangement pushes the candle up as it burns away.

The pressed glass candlesticks cost but ten cents apiece, the imitation candles fifty cents, and the little Empire shades, not more than thirty cents, making attractive candle light for any dining-room table at very little cost.

UTILIZING THE PERSIAN PRAYER MAT. A new use for the Persian prayer mat is to make it into a cushion-shaped cushion measuring from three to four feet in length, trimming it under side with heavy upholstery velvet or tapestry brocade. Such cushions are charming when set a few feet from the fireplace of a big library or a living room, and they make lovely seats for a deeply empaneled window. The mats are of the beautiful blended Oriental tones which seem to harmonize with the color scheme of any room.

ELECTRIFIED SCUNCES

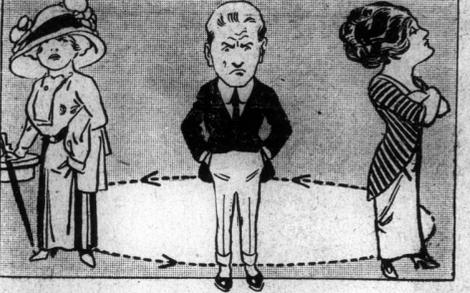

All are not candles that glimmer, white and waxen, from modern sconces. Some of them are hollow tubes of candle shape and appearance, hiding modern electric wiring. And these are so safe, lasting and easily managed that they are rapidly taking the place of the old-fashioned wax tapers. The candle tubes, as they are called, are fitted to sconces of various types—all of them alluring. There is the single light sconce of carved white wood, overlaid with tarlac and gold leaf and supplied with a parchment shade hand-painted in an Italian design. In wood also is a Florentine cup, carved to represent a design in long veined marble, overlaid with green or "moldy" gold, and a half-basket shape in antique ivory shade, overflowing with blue, green, yellow and vermilion flowers. Brass sconces of two branches, in brass, are of a design and show helmeted heads of soldiers. These sconces are painted dull black and against them the yellowed ivory of the electrified candles is most effective. Wrought-iron sconces of genuine old Venetian design are colored with "very white, mingled cleverly with mellow orange, brown, yellow, blue and red. Even more quaint are the Roman designs of a artist's hand, and "wrought-iron" wreathed with pale blue and pink flowers and green-laid china garlands.

NOVELTIES IN SILVER

Among the pretty housekeeping conveniences which the Autumn bride will welcome is an egg-cup set in silver deposited on porcelain. An outfit consists of a half dozen each of long handled spoons and tall tumblers, a lemon plate and fork, a sugar dish and spoon and these separate pieces may be used for luncheon purposes in addition to serving the cup which cheers but does not inebriate. Egg-serving outfits are another novelty. The individual sets consist of a small oval-shaped silver plate standing on end-logs and supporting a silver egg cup and a spoon dish, while in the center a stem for carrying or lifting a contrivance is flanked by salt and pepper spoons. A silver egg-server of the same type with an equipment for two, three or six persons. Individual toast sets also standing on oval plates hold the toast at one end, and the butter dish and knife at the other end. To go underneath the plate is a tiny alcohol lamp, plated silver, which may be placed below the rack only, thus keeping the toast hot while the pat of butter remains cool.

A NEW BOOK-MARKER

A welcome little gift to a man or a woman of any age—providing that it is a person having the reading habit—is the newest thing in book-markers. This is simply a double eight-inch long and two-inch wide strip of pin seal, morocco or alligator leather finished along the side edges with heavy maroon chain stitching, and at its ends with a two-inch cut. The ends of maroon felt. On both the top and bottom strap in letters of gold, silver or ebony is the legend: "Here I Stopped."

The Last Days of Napoleon. (By Vincenzo Vela, in the Musee Versailles, France.)

THE life of Napoleon is so well known to even the average reader that it would be unnecessary to even recount parts of it here. His splendid genius, his splendid mistakes, and his splendid failures, have made him the greatest man of modern times. Historians and other deep thinkers have spent much time in speculation as to the reason for those failures above referred to and various surmises have resulted. Perhaps the one that would appeal to you or me most strongly is that the whole of Napoleon's career was founded upon self!

The victories he piled up were not so much for the honor and glory of France as for the honor and glory of Napoleon. One sees that clearly as one reads the history made by him during those turbulent years of his rise and fall. The story of the career of this great man reads like a romance with a curious thread of psychology running through it like a revealing light. It is notable that a change in his fortunes took place soon after his separation from his consort, Josephine. It seems as though that event were the beginning of his departing glory, which culminated in the disastrous defeat at Waterloo. As one history aptly says, "he seemed to have lost the instinct for victory."

Napoleon's final banishment to St. Helena, an island in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, was the signal for the first long breath of safety the world had been able to take in all the years of his reign. The count paid by France in the death of her sons was appalling beyond words. Surrounded by this atmosphere of defeat, lost ambitions, and sorrow, Napoleon left his beloved France forever, a prisoner of England, aboard an English ship. As a prisoner of war, he was treated with every consideration by England. He was subjected to no restraint while upon the island of St. Helena, had many comforts and even some luxuries. He was permitted to ride freely all over the island and was treated with all the respect due to a general. It is unfortunate that the one who was appointed to be his guardian should have been a
