EVE'S GIFT. The gates were held by an angel, with flaming relentless sword;
And out of their wondrous whiteness—from the Garden of the Lord—Sweet Eve had steppel with trembling, bowed head and anguished eyes,
Into the night of endless life away from Paradise!

She could hear the song of the river, its tender banks between,
She could almost see the sunlight that flashed on its ripples' sheen;
And the seent of a thousand spices filled all sweet Eden's arr.

Never before had the Garden of God been to her eyes so fair.

Never before had bird note such wonder tul beauty sung,
Never before had the lilies such silvery Never before had the lines such silvery censers swung,
Never before were the palm boughs so grand against the skies,
And never again would she enter them,
the Gates of Paradise.

Shut out from their glow and beauty, closed from their glory away,
Only a look she would turn and give, where the heart of Eden lay,
And trembling with passionate longing, she lifted her tear-blind eyes
To the sorrewful face of the angel, at the Gate of Paradise.

Only a breath of the sweetness she craved, one thus lost for aye,
And the angel—bending in pity—broke from its od rous spray
One rose—that shone in whiteness as the light on his gleaming sword,
And threw it wide where she stood—outside—the Gates of Paradise!

The women do all the street leaning, hauling the rubbish in handcarts over the cobble-stones and out upon the hills, unload the boats at the quays, do the gardening, and run the ferries. They take the places of horses and dogs in much of the carrying business, bringing the large and heavy milk-cans from the dairies and dis ributing the milk. In many other parts of Europe it is scarcely better. You can see women in highly civilized coal-pit, at the forge, and in brickvards. In France she fills furnaces, other land; but this is not quite so hard and debasing as work in mines heir shou'der, and do a large part of work on the dikes which hold the sea at bay. In all other laborious occupations they also take a large part, and their coarse and sunburned faces retain their broad and muscular forms a trace of womanly lightness and grace.

Day and Night During an acute attack of Bronchitis, accesseless tickling in the throat, and an exhausting, dry, hacking cough, afflict the sufferer. Sleep is banished, and great prostration follows. This disease is als attended with Hoarseness, and sometimes Loss of Voice. It is liable to become Loss or Voice. It is limite to become chronic, involve the lungs, and terminate fatally. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral affords speedy relief and cure in cases of Bronchitis. It controls the disposition to cough, and induces refreshing sleep.

I have been a practicing physician for twenty-four years, and, for the past twelve, have suffered from annual attacks of Bronchitis. After exhausting all the usual remedies Without Relief, I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It helped me' immediately, and effected a speedy cure.—G. Stoveall, M. D., Carrollton, Miss Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is decidedly the best remedy, within my knowledge, for chronic Bronchitls, and all lung diseases. — M. A. Rust, M. D., South Paris, Me.

S. P. Henderson, Saulsburgh, Penn.

For years I was in a decline. I had weak lungs, and suffered from Bronchitis and Catarrh. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral restored me to health, and I have been for a long time comparatively vigorous. In case of a sudden cold I always resort to the Pectoral, and find speedy relief.—Edward E. Curtis, Rutland, Vt.

Two years ago I suffered from a severt Bronchitis. The physician attending me became fearful that the disease would terminate in Pneumonia. After trying various medicines, without benefit, he finally prescribed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved me at once. I continued to take this medicine a short time, and was cured.—Ernest Colton, Logansport, Ind.

There is a tide in the affairs of man, which taken at the flood leads on to fortune.—This is not a mere poet's dream, but applies in a practical manner to commercial enterprises of all kinds. The unexpected rush of busi. ness that we have had since opening has been such that we feel ourselves obliged to put on extra staff, in order to keep pace with the growing trade.

We beg to call the attention of the readers of THE ACADIAN to the folowing lines which we carry, say DRY GOODS

Glassware and Crockery. and Fancy Groceries, and to give an idea of our position to give satisfaction, we beg to quote from the Western Chronicle of the 22d inst as follows :-

inst as follows:—

"New Store — We gave notice in Saturday's issue of the opening of the large store, formarly occupied by Ja. R. Blanchard, now occupied by Ja. R. Blanchard, now occupied by Ja. R. Blanchard, now occupied by S. E. Hue, with the largest Stock of (Fresh) Dry Goods, Crock eryware, Glassware and Grocerie. The doors of this large shop were opened about 10 o'clock, and was filled all arwith a large number of customers, and the number of desirable orders he has had from outside villages, makes him quite confident that with small profit, and quice confident that with small profit, and quice confident that with small profit, and quice sales, he will soon impress the residents of this town, and also the surrounding neighborhood, that his large Stock has been bought in the best Markets. He would ask that those wishing to purchase. New and Fresh G1364, would give him a call before purchasing elsewhere, as he and his staff will be pleased to show goods, &c. &c. Come ons, come show goods, &c. &c. Come one come all! Having made a personal inspection we recommend our new merchant, S. E. Hue"

We add a few of our prices (but much prefer receiving a call from all intending purchasers of goods, so that they can better judge for themselves),

Oh, happy are the hours of night,
After the toil and heat of day,
When in the starlight clear aed bright
We watch the shadows melt away.

Yes, then it is that poets love To dream of things past long ago,
And round the hills and dales to rove,
While gentle evening breezes blow.

'Tis sweet to hear the bounding deep Rolling along the sandy shore, When all things else are wrapped in sleep And you alone can hear its roar.

'Tis sweet to see it when the stars Reflect wi'hin its crestial blue;
Or when the moon's bright silver bars Ploat on its crest in purest hue.

Ah, yes, the evening hours are dear, And bring us many a happy thought And yet oftimes we shed a tear As sed memories to mind are brought In days the hills we often view
When summer sunbeams fall around,
Are finer when the evening dew
Is watering flowers of the ground.
