Legal Decisions.

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the Post Office—whether directed to his name or another's or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the payment.

2. If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay up all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the Post Office, or removing and leaving them uncollected for as prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

POETRY.

The Old, Old Story.

He was one of the fellows

That could drink or leave it alone,

With a fine high scorn for common men

Who were born without back-bone.

"And why," said he, "should a man of strength

Deny himself the use

Of the pleasant gift of the warm red wine,

Because of its weak abode?"

He could quote at a banquet

With a manner half divine,

Or drink a toast to his fair wife

In a sparkling generous wish.

And since this lordly fellow

Could drink or let it alone,

He chose to drink at his own wild will

Till his lips were overthrown.

And the lips of the lass are cold with grief,

And her children shiver and shrink,

For the man who once could leave it alone,

Is a pitiful slave to drink.

SELECT STORY.

Wolfe the Ranger.

CHAPTER XX—Continued.

"It seems too good to be true, that this fairy-like creature belongs to me,"

he murmured.

"It is a shame to hide her in her

cloak, said the marchioness, smiling,

but it has to be done. Come, Wolfe!

If you stand there star-gazing any longer you will be bewitched."

He wrapp'd her up as carefully as if a rough towel would spoil her, and they started.

It would have been counted a long drive by ordinary mortals. Perhaps the marchioness so considered it, but the two lovers it was all too short; for while the old lady drizzled he would lean forward and whisper his love to his darling, and could touch her hand, and now and again raise it to his lips.

They reached Barmister Towers at last, and for a moment or two Constance was rather dazzled by the lights and the stir and excitement. It was her first ball for many years, and she had never been to one so grand a kind

as this.

From an apparently endless line of windows the brilliant lights streamed out upon the night; rows of handsome carriages stood waiting to put down the guests in the avenue, lighted by coun-less colored lamps.

Grooms and footmen in magnificent livery moved to and fro, and strains of music floated out through the great doors thrown open wide.

With a slight quiver that was neither all fear or excitement, but a little of both, Constance entered the vast hall,

made brilliant by throngs of beautiful women in ball-dresses.

A footman took her cloak and that of the marchioness, as well as the mar-quis's fur coat, and they entered the ball-room.

A sudden stir, followed by a significant second or two of silence, announced their entrance, and Constance found herself standing before a tall aristocrat-

-looking lady, who held out her hand to the marchioness and then to Constance with a pleasant smile.

A little dazzled by the lights, Constance was rather pale than red when she entered, but the first words the duchess spoke brought the color back to her face.

"I am very glad to see you, my dear," she said with a nod that was more than friendly. "Wolfe, why do all the bad men get the most charming wives? Do you know?" and she laughingly tapped him on the arm. "There, they are all dying to speak to her! I take her away now; but mind, bring her back to me directly I have finished receiving. You may stay with me if you will, dear?" she added to the marchioness.

With an expression of almost boyish pride the marquis led Constance in to the centre of the room, and there being no dance going on, they were surrounded almost instantly.

The knowledge that the woman he had chosen is universally admired does not tend to lessen a man's love or self-satisfaction, and Wolfe, Marquis of Brakespear, could not fail to have that knowledge that night.

Before half an hour had passed, the verdict upon Constance had been pronounced. She was not only beautiful but charming, and, if she wished or ordered for it, there lay before her a social success which should be phenomenal in its completeness.

Her card would have been filled up to the brim if she had not danced a two or two on her lover's, and the crowd that gathered round her was so formidable that he was obliged for a time perforce to remain outside and look on at her triumph.

Presently, however, he managed to approach her near enough to whisper:

"Is your head quite turned, you vain girl, or have you happened to remember that I am to take you to the duchess?"

She looked up, radiant in her lowlyness, and put her hand upon his arm.

"Well," he said, as they made their way round the crowded room to where the duchess sat amidst the dowagers,

"are you happy and enjoying yourself?"

"Ah, Wolfe," she murmured, "you do not know how good and kind they all are! Happy? Yes!"

He laughed, looking down at her protruding nose.

"Good and kind—you goose!" he reported. "Don't you see that you have made a great hit, and that you are what is called a tremendous success?"

He laughed again. "It is a good thing

I am not jealous. By George! I know

I was going to marry a pretty woman,

but I didn't think that she was going to bloom into a society beauty.

"Come and sit beside me, my dear,"

said her grace, moving her skirts from a chair. "Lady Brakespear has been telling me all about you. I think

Wolfe is a very lucky man—I do indeed.

Duke," and she turned to a stout, elderly gentleman who was standing near, surveying the brilliant crowd with an amiable but rather absent minded air.

"Here is a young lady I want to introduce to you."

The duke trotted forward and bowed.

"Eh?" he said. "Who? Ah, yes!

Wolfe Brakespear's sweetheart. Yes,

yes, of course. How! Very glad to Lawn tennis is just now the popular amusement among the "four hundred."

Mr. E. B. Shaw has leased from Mr. C. A. Patriquin, the shop owned by him, lately vacated by Mr. Regan, and will carry on a general shoe-making business.

Mr. Chas. Strong in addition to his fish business, will in future carry a stock of general groceries. Mr. S. is a hustler and will no doubt get a fair share of the trade. Look for his ad. in the next issue of the ACADIAN.

Rev. P. M. Macdonald, the new pastor of the Presbyterian congregation of Wolfville and Lower Horton, will preach in St. Andrew's church next Sunday, morning and evening, and at Lower Horton in the afternoon.

A public meeting of the Liberal-Conservative party is to be held in Aberdeen this afternoon at 2 o'clock, to be addressed by Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper and others. There will no doubt be a big audience present.

To Let.—The Store lately occupied by myself. Possession given at once. Apply to R. E. Harris.

Miss Lou Brown, who is now in St. Louis, has sent the ACADIAN a number of copies of papers published in that city containing an account of the terrible tornado which recently did so much damage to life and property.

Mr. Wm. Regan, our genial harness-maker, moved into his new quarters last week. He has now a handsome and commodious store, and will be in a better position than ever to attend to the wants of his numerous customers.

Prof. Faville informs the ACADIAN that he has just received advice from England to the effect that owing to droughts and late frosts the apple crop there will probably be a very light one this year. The indications here for a fine crop were never better, and prices will probably be good.

We notice that Messrs. O. D. Harris, J. W. Caldwell and Dr. McKenna have greatly improved the appearance of their properties, which adjoin on Acadia street. A substantial curbing has been placed in front and the grounds neatly laid out and graded. This street is rapidly becoming one of the best in town.

The Nymph on Friday last conveyed Messrs. A. J. Woodman, D. R. Munro, T. L. Harvey and O. D. Harris out to the Basin fishing grounds. The catch was we understand, rather small. A large number of fish were brought to the top of the water, some of which were herculean in their proportions. Mr. Harris had the misfortune to have a hook caught in his hand, which inflated a painful wound.

Room paper at 4 cents per roll at the Wolfville Book Store.

The usual sports, etc., for July let are being arranged for by the W. A. A. A. There are to be bicycle and running races, a cricket match between the Blue Jackets and Wanderers, a pigeon shooting contest, with a grand promenade concert in the evening, the whole to conclude with a display of fireworks. Posters will be out in a few days, with full particulars as to prizes, train-arrangement, and all other information.—Hants Journal.

Money so paid on Monday—Applied to E. B. Crawley, Solicitor, Wolfville, N. S.

Local and Provincial.

The lawn of Geo. W. Borden, Esq., on Acadia street, is a picture of neatness and indicates the greatest care on the part of the owner. Mr. Borden's place is one of the prettiest in town.

Mr. James Leach, the popular D. A. R. driver, was married in Kentville on Wednesday last, to Miss Lizette Lockhart, daughter of late driver George Lockhart, of that town. The ACADIAN extends congratulations.

The brig Evangeline, Gould, Master, which sailed from Kingport for Demersars, April 10, is reported as having arrived May 12. She was loaded with potatoes. She will bring a return cargo to Halifax from Porto Rico.

Messrs. Curry Bros. & Bent, of Bridge-town, have the contract to build a house on Prospect St. for Mr. Wm. Chipman. The work is to be completed by the first of October, when Mr. Chipman, with his family, will remove from Bridgetown here, and take possession. Wolfville is without doubt, the most charming residential town in the Province.

The new Baptist church at Yarmouth was formally opened for public worship on Sunday last. The services were of a very interesting character. We quote the following from the Times:—"The sermon by Rev. E. M. Keirstead, D. D., of Acadia College, from the theme "Christ the builder," was a scholarly and most eloquent discourse, replete with rich thought and apt illustrations and most impressively delivered."

Over 150 different patterns Room Paper to select from, at Wolfville Book Store.

The fire equipment is now located in the room recently fitted up for the purpose in the town building on the school property. The work of preparing the building for its reception has been done under the direction of Councillor Borden, who has done all in his power to make the building convenient for the purpose to which it is to be put. The entrance is on the south side of the building, and any person who recites to ring an alarm will find the arrangement similar to that of the old building. A glass box on the small door holds the key, by which an entrance to the building may be obtained, and the bell rope for giving the alarm is placed directly in front of the door. A light will be kept in the building during the night-time, and glass panels have been put in the door so as to give light to any person who wishes to ring an alarm.

An Old Orchard. This question is confronting many people who are occupying old farms. To arrest old trees from their downward career and restore them to new vigor and fruitfulness would indeed seem impossible. Nevertheless, just this has been done. Many orchards go to decay prematurely. This may result from many or a combination of causes. Trees that have borne large crops of fruit last year are first to fall if not abundantly supplied with the plant food used in the production of crops, while those trees that have little but leaves continue to grow and appear healthy and vigorous. The first old orchards were not properly appreciated and received but little care, hence year after year destructive insects have multiplied and fungi and insects affect the entire orchard. The soil, by continued draft upon the particular substances required by the trees, has become exhausted. This universal wreck and ruin appears on every hand. If such an orchard should fall into our hands, the first aim and purpose would be to effect an entire revolution by renewing the soil with an abundant supply of stable manure and wood ashes spread over the entire surface of the ground, putting but little in contact with the trees. A full and complete change of the tops by re-grafting and putting on new tops, with change of fruit on every tree, should be done, also a thorough cleaning of the trunks of the trees, and the application of a wash composed of lime, crude carbolic acid and strong lye for the destruction of all insect life, and the cleansing and renewing the bark to a smooth, healthy condition. Spray for the destruction of codling moth and scab fungi. This, with frequent and continued ventilation, and a fresh application of fertilizers, until the soil is restored to a high state of fertility, will rejuvenate the old trees. - J. Ames to the Missouri State Horticultural Society.

PAIN'S CERYL COMPOUND CURES THIS PREVALENT AND TERRIBLE TROUBLE.

Testimony of a Lady Who Suffered For Long Years.

Day after day the newspapers give accounts of very sudden deaths from heart disease. The trouble is a prevalent and a common one in this busy and rushing age, but too often lightly regarded by those who experience the symptoms daily. Symptoms may be summed up as follows: the nervous system is usually out of condition; there are sharp pains in the heart; it is impossible to take a long and often a dry irritable cough, and the sufferer is full of gloomy thoughts. In order to cure heart disease, every one of the symptoms must be forever banished. The medicine to cure must possess the virtues and powers to strengthen the entire nervous system. Paine's Ceryl Compound is the only medicine that can build up and tone the nerves and give to the life-stream—the blood—that purity and richness that guarantees freedom from all disease. Hundreds of physicians are prescribing Paine's Ceryl Compound every day for all forms of heart trouble, and their success is marvellous and encouraging. Those who experience all the awful symptoms of heart disease, those who are brought to the verge of the grave by nervous debility, mental depression, sleeplessness, liver and kidney affections, find in Paine's Ceryl Compound a true friend and life-giving agency. Mrs. E. Rankin, of Courtlight, Ont., writes: "With great pleasure I beg to inform you of the good I have received from the use of Paine's Ceryl Compound. For a number of years I have been in very poor health owing to various causes, and lately I was advised to try your medicine. I used three bottles, and have received a world of good. My severe headaches are completely banished, and the heart disease from which I suffered for thirty years, has almost disappeared, and altogether I am vastly improved. I am fully convinced that Paine's Ceryl Compound is all that it is recommended to be."

English bicycle thieves are ingenious. A lady was riding near Sarbiton when a gentleman-looking person called out to her that her tire was out of order and offered to inflate it for her. She accepted his offer, and after remedying the fault he got on the wheel to show her that it was all right, and then rode off with the wheel. Smithers—Hallo, Bromley, where did you get the black eye? been hitting kindling I suppose? Bromley—No, I was fooling with Juggaley. Not a misunderstanding, I hope! Yes, I didn't know he was loaded. James, rearranged his better half, careening, we need a ton of coal; when you pass the dealer will you order it up? Impossible, my dear, responded her encircled spouse. You cannot order it up and pass at the same time. I shall apply for a divorce. He is treating me like a dog and he makes me work like a horse. Well, then, you should make your complaint to the Society for the Protection of Animals, and not to the courts. Joe Cooe—What has become of that stale messenger boy Joke? It seems to have disappeared. Bromley—Some one must have given it to a messenger boy to deliver to the papers. Barber—You say you have been here before? I don't seem to remember your face. Victim—Probably not. It is all healed up now. Paddy—Frankie has the reputation of being a great wit, but for my part, I can't see anything very bright in his writings. Duddy—That's queer.

The Ballot. The ballot is not a mere personal privilege, as so many think. Perhaps the greatest mistake of voters lies around this idea. So many people can rise no higher than their own little selves, and the great interests of a nation may go unsecured for, unless my fame, my horses, my party are well looked after. The ballot is not a mere personal privilege, it is a sacred public trust, involving the gravest responsibilities. Many of us have sat in crowded court rooms at various times and listened to the judge charge the jury before they retired to consult on the evidence brought before them in the proof or disproof of the solemn charge, of which the prisoner at the bar was accused. We know how weighty, well chosen and solemn the words of the judge were, and how solemn the faces of the jury as they retired to their room to deliberate and decide a case of life or death. We do not hesitate to say that each juror is personally and secretly responsible for his part in the verdict. The voter is as responsible for the right use of his ballot as the juror is for his part in the verdict, and just as a full and unbiased investigation of all the facts before him is necessary to the juror's proper performance of his duty, so is an impartial investigation of the great national question at state essential to the voter's right use of the ballot. If a juror were to allow himself to be annoyed by witless ignorance, by prejudice, partisanship, revenge, or anything else that would unfit him for a conscientious consideration of the evidence before him, he would deserve and receive the just execution of good men. He has basely sold a righteous cause and helped in the punishment of an innocent man. It is as criminal for the voter to cast his ballot for the sake of patronage or partisanship, or indeed for any other reason than that of pure conviction. If a man sells his vote for a direct payment in money we do not scruple to call him a scoundrel, and the man who tempted the voter we call a scoundrel doubly dyed. But what moral difference is there between the voter who gets money direct for his vote, and the voter who puts his ballot into the slot without his conscience, let the consideration be what it may? If a candidate for Parliamentary honors offered to buy votes at so much per head to win his election what moral difference is there between him and a person who appeals with all the powerful machinery of party for a partisan vote? How Equal Suffrage Works in Colorado. The San Francisco Examiner lately published letters on woman suffrage from the governor of Colorado and the editors of leading papers. Governor McIntyre said, "The women do take an interest, do enter into the question under discussion and do take the trouble to vote. There are eighty thousand women eligible to vote in Colorado, and about sixty thousand voted at the last election."

William Stapleton, editor Denver Republican, said: "Nothing could induce the intelligent people of this state to revoke that act if they had the power. Women appear to show as much intelligence and to take as deep an interest in political affairs, especially those that affect the general welfare, as men, and their influence is almost entirely cast for right and decency and good government. Everybody admits that their presence in politics and at the polls has a purifying and elevating effect on our political methods, and has compelled the nomination and elevation of a better class of officials than male suffrage ever gave us. No civil effects discernible—benefits innumerable."

Why Women Want the Ballot? The honest will not let her husband, and the American mother can only sit with folded hands and see her boys, yes, and her girls, too, lugged down to prison by the perniculous laws enacted by bad men in high places. Go, ask the saloon-keeper of this land what he thinks of woman suffrage, and his answer will prove to you that the woman who asks for the ballot to day are the mothers staunch and true who would lay down their lives for their children about their knees and count it not dear. It is not the ignorant women, nor the bad women, who care for the ballot; they are too selfish to care, and act until good women can stand beside good men in this matter as they stand side by side in the home will we have reform indeed. - Mrs A. P. Quinn, Evanston, W. Va.

Minards Liniment Cures Garget in Cows.

Scraps for Odd Moments. To-morrow is the day we set to reform.

Money makes us doff our hats to a fool.

Acquaintance—And does your wealthy father-in-law foot all your bills? Count Shaverneck—Well, he kicks at 'em.

"Conductor!" "Yes, sir." "Wouldn't it be great if these car-heaters would stay as cool in summer as they always are in winter?"

Bloozin—I see that the election did not result as you predicted. Jessig—Yes it did. You are not the only one I predicted to.

Minards Liniment Cures Colds, etc. Don't you know it is wrong to fish here on private grounds? Well, sir, the line must be drawn somewhere.

"I wish Prof. Longley would hurry and get his flying machine perfected." "Why?" "I want to visit some of my castles in the air."

Bozin—Jakins will be appreciated as a poet after he is dead; see if he isn't. Rozin—That's not unlikely; he won't write any poetry then.

Minards Liniment Cures Diatomper. Bloozin—I see that the election did not result as you predicted. Jessig—Yes, it did; you're not the only one I predicted to.

"Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "when a man asks for advice, what he really wants is for you to guess his opinion and tell it for him."

The inquisitive one: Did you study your art here or abroad? The Poster Designer: At 1 I wouldn't dare study it. I might spoil my style."

Minards Liniment Cures Diphtheria. Wouldn't you think that the milkman would forget so many odd pints and quarts? Probably he chafes them all up.

Actor—Are there any good situations in that new play of yours? Dramatist—There ought to be. The manager hasn't engaged anybody yet.

"Did you feel nervous and tremble when Bikeligh proposed?" "No, I didn't dare to." "Didn't dare to?" "No; you see, we were riding a tandem at the time."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla requires smaller doses, and is more effective, than other blood medicines.

The Camel says he's a self-made animal, said the Monkey to the Elephant. How did he get that idea into his head? asked the latter. Well, he says he bumps himself.

Mistress—Look here, Jennett; you have brought me two shoes for the same foot. Maid—How strange! This other pair are both for the same foot, too.

Old Subscriber—Editor is sick, eh? What is the matter with him? Office Boy (Rocket City Buzz)—Indi, gence, I reckon Colonel Rawhide came up this mornin' and made him eat his words.

Ayer's Pills are palatable, safe for children, and more effective than any other cathartic.

Assistant—Here is a complaint by a lady against the conductor of car 47. Manager—What is the trouble? Assistant—She says she expressed a doubt whether her six children were all under 5 years old.

But why do you not print a card and deny the accusation? inquired the politician's wife. Dory? I? How did the politician, and using the word a brown or black Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.

Words come from all quarters that the nearest and most satisfactory dye for coloring the beard a brown or black is Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.

Mrs Vixen (placing flowers on the grave of her first husband)—James, I really believe that you are actually sorry that poor George is dead.

Mr Vixen (wiping the tears from his eyes)—Sorry? There is nothing that I regret more than the death of poor George.

Ah, said the good minister, the road may be narrow, but it is straight, and though the world may scatter the tracks of sin and the broken glass of unbelief, the patient soul may go through without a puncture. But, remember, you can't win by a sport. There are no scorches in heaven.

Hemely Lady—Oh, I guess you can fill the place. My husband is an easy man to suit. New Cook (looking at her)—Yes, ma'am, I can readily believe it. Homely Lady (to herself)—Bimago, she should take that for granted, but probably she knows a superior woman like myself would not marry a crank.

B., June 8. - Mr Robert Moore, residing in Indiantown, a suburb of this city, has recently made what is allowed by all who are acquainted with the facts to be a most remarkable recovery. He has been suffering from a serious complaint of the kidneys for over seven years, and during that time has suffered excruciatingly. He has not considered considerably in pocket, having paid large sums for medical advice. Quite recently he happened to read of the many cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and with commendable promptitude made a trial of them, with the result that after taking three boxes of the remedy he was entirely restored to health. She takes a great deal of interest in theatrical matters, and remarked to the young man: "These counter singers are very popular at present. Yes, he replied, nervously. A Decided Hit. The rising young politician had prepared an elaborate speech for the occasion. He rose in response to loud calls for him, and felt in his inside pocket for the manuscript. It was gone. It had dropped through a hole in the bottom. The situation was a terrible one, but the self-possession of the rising young politician did not forsake him. Letting his hand remain in the breast of his coat he looked fearlessly out over the assembly. "My fellow-citizens," he said, "I have no words in which to express my thanks for the honor you have done me in selecting me as one of your standard bearers in this campaign, and I will simply ask you to join me—" He was interrupted by deafening cheers. He had made the orators on the platform heartily joined. The situation was still more terrible. He had intended merely to propose three cheers for the ticket, but the audience had jumped to the conclusion that he was extending an invitation of another kind. Still he did not lose his head. "I see, fellow citizens," he resumed with a serene smile, "you could make yourself heard again, if you understand me, come on!"
