The Bread and Butter Miss.

PART II.

A hope not destined to be fulfilled. For though Maisie wrote home to 'papa' the morning after Mrs. Englewood's dance, earnestly begging for leave to return to the country at once instead of going on to her next visit, and assuring him that she felt she could never be happy in fashionable society, never be happy anywhere, indeed, away from him and everything she cared for, papa was inexorable. It was natural she should be homesick at first, he replied; natural, and indeed unavoidable, that she should feel strange and lonely; and as she well knew, she could not possibly long more to be with him again, than he longed to have her; but there were all the reasons she knew full well why she should stay in town as had been arranged; the very reasons which had made him say she must remain. Her own good sense would show her the soundness of his motives, and she must behave like his own brave Maisie. And the girl never knew what this letter had cost her invalid father, nor how he shrank from opposing her wishes. 'She set off so cheerfully,' he said to himself, 'and she has only been there three days. And she seemed rather to have enjoyed her first dinner party and the concert, or whatever it was, that Gertrude Englewood took her to. What can have happened at the evening party? She dances well, I know; and she is not the sort of girl to expect or care much about ball-room admiration.' Poor man! it was, so far, a disappointment to him. He would have liked to get a merry, happy letter that morning as he sat at his solitary breakfast. For he had no fear, no shadow of a fear, that his Maisie's heart ever could be turned. 'I have guarded against any dangers of that kind for her, at least,' he said to himself, 'provided I have not gone too far and made her too sober-minded. But no; after all, it is erring on the safe side—considering everything.' Three or four evenings after Mrs. Englewood's dance Despard found himself at a musical party. He was in his own milieu this time, and proportionately affable—with the cool, condescending affability which was the nearest approach to making himself agreeable that he recognised. He had been smiled at by the beauty of the evening, much to his enjoyment, and he had been, but did not remain many minutes by her side; he had been all but abjectly entreated by the most important of the dowagers, a very great lady indeed, in every sense of the word, to promise his assistance at her intended theatricals; he had, in short, received the appreciation which was due to him, and was now resting on his ears, comfortably installed in an easy chair, debating within himself whether it was worth while to give Mrs. Belmont a fright by grossing her pretty daughter, and thus causing to retire from her side in the sulks Sir Henry Gayburn, to whom the girl was talking.

A LOG FLOATS WITH THE CURRENT

Would you rather be the log—inert, powerless, without will, without purpose, or swift-flowing, vigorous—the pulse of life urging constantly onward?

VITALITY OR INERTIA HEALTH OR DISEASE

Health gives one the spirit of the current. Your duty to your family—to yourself, is to keep nerves nourished, blood pure, muscles strong.

Scott's Emulsion is like sea-air—bracing, invigorating, giving out tonic-life and health.

ALL DRUGGISTS 11-49

For Sir Henry was rich, and was known to be looking out for a wife, and Despard had long since been erased from the maternal list of desirable possibilities.

'Shall I?' he was saying to himself as he lay back with a smile, when a voice beside him made him look up. It was that of the son of the house, a friend of his own; the young man seemed annoyed and perplexed.

'Norreys! oh, do me a good turn, will you? I have to look after the lady who has just been singing, and my mother is fussing about a girl who has been sitting all the evening alone. She's a stranger. Will you be so awfully good as to take her down for an ice or something?'

Despard looked a round. He could scarcely refuse a request so couched, but he was far from pleased.

'Where is she? Who is she?' he asked, beginning languidly to show signs of moving.

'There—over by the window—that girl in black,' his friend replied. 'Who she is I can't say. My mother told me her name was Florde. Come along, and I'll introduce you, that's a good fellow.'

Despard by this time had risen to his feet.

'Upon my soul!' he ejaculated. But Mr. Leslie was in too great a hurry to notice the unusual emphasis with which he spoke.

And in half a second he found himself standing in front of the girl, who, the last time they met, had aroused in him such unwonted emotions.

'Florde,' murmured young Leslie, 'may I introduce Mr. Norreys?' and then Mr. Leslie turned on his heel and disappeared.

Despard stood there perfectly grave. He would hazard no remark; he waited for her.

She looked up but there was no smile on her face—only the calm self-composedness which it seemed to him he knew so well. How was it so? Had he met her before in some former existence? Why did all about her seem at once strange and yet familiar? He had never experienced the like before.

These thoughts, scarcely thought's indeed—flickered through his brain as he looked at her. They served one purpose at least, they prevented his feeling or looking awkward, could such a state of things have been conceived possible.

Seeing that he was not going to speak, remembering, perhaps, that if he remembered the last words she had honoured him with, he could scarcely be expected to do so, she at last opened her lips.

'That,' she said quietly, slightly inclining her head in the direction where young Leslie had stood, 'was under the circumstances, unnecessary.'

'He did not know,' said Despard. 'I suppose not; though I don't know. Perhaps you told him you had forgotten my name.'

'No,' he replied, 'I did not. It would not have been true.'

She smiled very slightly. 'There is no dancing to-night she said. 'May I ask—?' and she hesitated.

'Why I ventured to disturb you?' he interrupted. 'I was requested to take you downstairs for an ice or whatever you may prefer to that. The fact did not originate with me, I assure you.'

'Do you mean by that that you will not take me downstairs?' she said, smiling again as she got up from her seat. 'I should like an ice very much.'

Despard bowed without speaking, and offered her his arm.

But when he had piloted her through the crowd, and she was standing quietly with her ice, he broke the silence.

'Miss Florde,' he began, 'as the fates have again forced me on your notice, I should like to ask you a question.' She raised her eyes inquiringly. No—he had not exaggerated their beauty.

'I should like to know the meaning of the strange words you honoured me with as I was leaving Mrs. Englewood's the other evening. I do not think you have forgotten them.'

'No,' she replied, 'I have not forgotten them, and I meant them, and I still mean them. But I will not talk about them or explain anything,' she said.

'There was nothing the least flippant in her tone—only quiet determination. But Despard, watching keenly, saw that her lips quivered a little as she spoke.

In Wages or Profit

Health, sooner or later, shows its value. No man can expect to go very far or very fast toward success—no woman either—who suffers from the headaches, the sour stomach and poor digestion, the unpleasant breath and the good-for-nothing feelings which result from constipation and biliousness. Pay Big Dividends

The directions with every box are very valuable—especially to women. Sold everywhere, in boxes, 25c.

'Then shall we go upstairs again?' proposed Miss Florde. Mr. Norreys acquiesced. But he had laid his plans, and he was a more diplomatic adversary than Miss Florde was prepared to cope with.

'I finished reading the book we were speaking of the other evening,' he began in a matter-of-fact voice; 'I mean—and he named the book. 'At least I fancy it was you I was discussing it with. The last volume falls off greatly.'

'Oh, do you think so?' said the girl in a tone of half-indignant disappointment, falling blindly into the trap. 'On the contrary, I felt that the last volume made amends for all that was unsatisfactory in the others. You see by it what he was driving at all the time, and that the persiflage and apparent cynicism were only means to an end. I do hate cynicism—it is so easy, and such a little makes such a great effect.'

Something in her tone made Despard feel irritated. 'Is she hitting at me again?' he thought. And the idea threw him, in his turn, off his guard.

The natural result was that both forgot themselves in the interest of the discussion. And Despard, when he, as it were, awoke to the realisation of this, took care not to throw away the advantage he had gained. He drew her out, he talked as he but seldom exerted himself to do, and when, at the end of half-an-hour or so, an elderly lady, whom he knew by name only, was seen approaching them, and Miss Florde sprang to her feet, exclaiming:

'Have you been looking for me? I hope not'—he smiled quietly as he prepared to withdraw—he had succeeded!

'Good-night, Mr. Norreys,' said Maisie simply. 'Two evenings ago she would not say good-night at all,' he thought. But he made no attempt to do more, than bow quietly.

'You are very—cold, grim—no, I don't know what to call it, Maisie's dear,' said the lady, her cousin and present chaperone, as they drove away, 'in your manner to men; and that man in particular—Despard Norreys. It is not often he is so civil to any girl.'

'I detest all men—all young men,' replied Maisie irritably.

'But, my dear, you should be commonly civil. And he had been giving himself, for him, unusual trouble to entertain you.' 'Can he know about her? Oh, no, it is impossible,' she added to herself.

Miss Florde closed her lips firmly. But in a moment or two opened them again.

'Cousin Agnes,' she said, half smiling. 'If I had not been what you call "commonly civil," would he have gone on talking to me? On the contrary, I am sadly afraid I was far too civil.'

'My dear child,' ejaculated her cousin, 'what do you mean?'

'Oh,' said Maisie, 'I don't know. Never mind the silly things I say, I like being with you, Cousin Agnes, but I don't like London. I am much happier at home in the country.'

'But, my dear child, when I saw you at home a few months ago you were looking forward with pleasure to coming. What has changed you? What has disappointed you?'

'I am not suited for anything but a quiet country life—that is all,' said Miss Florde.

'But, then, Maisie, afterwards, you know, you will have to come to town and have a house of your own and all that sort of thing. It is necessary for you to see something of the world to prepare you for—'

'Afterwards isn't now, Cousin Agnes. And I am doing my best, as papa wished,' said the girl wearily. 'Do let us talk of something else. Really sometimes I do wish I were any one but myself.'

'Maisie,' said her cousin reproachfully, 'you know, dear, that isn't right. You must take the care and responsibilities of a position like yours along with the advantages and privileges of it.'

'I know,' Miss Florde replied meekly enough; 'but, Cousin Agnes, do tell me who was that very funny-looking man with the long fluffy beard whom you were talking to for some time.'

'Oh, that, my dear, was Count Dalmiani, the celebrated so-and-so, and once launched in her description Cousin Agnes left Maisie in peace.

Two days later came the afternoon of Lady Valence's garden party. It was one of the garden parties to which 'every-body' went—Despard Norreys for one, as a matter of course. He had got more gratification and less annoyance out of his second meeting with Miss Florde; for he flattered himself he knew how to manage her now—'that little girl in black, who thinks herself so wonderfully wise, forsooth!' Yet the sting was there still; the very persistence with which he repeated to himself that he had mastered her showed it. His thoughts recurred to her more than they were in the habit of doing to any one or anything but his own immediate concerns. Out of curiosity, merely, no doubt; curiosity increased by the apparent improbability of satisfying it. For no one seemed to know anything about her. She might have dropped from the skies. He had indeed some difficulty in recalling her personality to the two or three people to whom he applied for information.

'A girl in black—at the Leslies' musical party? Why, my dear fellow, there were probably a dozen girls in black there. There usually is a good sprinkling of black frocks at evening parties,' said one of the knowers of everybody whom he had selected to honor with his inquiries. 'What was there remarkable about her? There must have been something remarkable about her.'

The side seam may be finished with a band cuff at the wrist or in shorter length, with a shaped cuff. The Pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. It requires 5 yards of 44 inch material for the 36 inch size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

Suitable materials for any of these patterns can be procured from AYRE & SONS, Ltd. Samples on request. Mention pattern number. Mail orders promptly attended to.

9171—A COMFORTABLE SCHOOL DRESS FOR MOTHER'S GIRL.

Girls' One Piece Dress with Long Shoulder, and with Long or Shorter Sleeve.

Plaid woolen was used for this model in pretty green and brown tones. Green velvet forms the decoration on collar, belt and cuffs. The front is closed at the side, a good and practical feature of this model. The collar may be finished with deep "smoke" back or in shorter round edge. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 3 1/4 yards of 36 inch material for the 8 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

ARE YOUR HANDS ROUGH & CHAPPED?

One thorough application of Zam-Buk at night will bring ease by morning. Zam-Buk stops the smarting, heals the cracks and makes the hands smooth.

Mrs. A. F. Phillips, of Ayer's Cliff, Que., says: "I suffered terribly from chapped hands. Sometimes I almost cried with the pain and smarting. Zam-Buk was recommended and it gave me ease almost as soon as applied. Now my hands are quite smooth."

Address all applications for samples and retail orders to T. McMURDO & CO., St. John's, Nfld.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

The other day I heard a man complaining very bitterly because a newspaper, which had published an untrue story about him on its first page, and had been forced by him to retract, had buried the retraction in a very obscure corner of one of the inside pages. Probably less than one in ten of the people who read the original story, he pointed out, would see the retraction.

Everyone who listened to his complaint rallied with him against the injustice of the newspaper. And yet, I doubt if there was one among them who had not done the same thing at one time or another.

Suppose you loan your best umbrella to a friend of yours, telling him at the time that you are particularly fond of it because it is the last present which your father gave you. Your friend at first protests against taking it at all, but finally accepts it, assuring you upon his honor that it shall come back to you the very next day.

The umbrella does not return the next day, nor for many days thereafter. When B. comes up for discussion in a group of your friends, you see yourself justified in telling the incident and making some pretty strong animadversions on B's character. Just after this, B. appears bringing the umbrella, and explains, with a sincerity and contrition which leave no room for doubt of him, that he was called out of town early the next morning on most important business, that he turned the umbrella over to his sister with strict instructions to carry it to you personally, that her little boy was taken ill that very day and taken by her to an out-of-town hospital, that the umbrella was naturally overlooked in the confusion, and that his very first act on returning to town was to bring it to you. Of course, you accept his explanations with protestations that you knew something unexpected must have happened, that you felt sure your umbrella was perfectly safe in his possession, and—rather incompatibly—that you really hadn't thought of the matter at all. And, of course, you change your harsh estimate of B. and thereafter make no more animadversions on his lack of courtesy when he chances to be discussed in your presence. But tell me this—do you go to all those people before whom you told the story of the umbrella, and repeat to them B's explanations, and apologize for having judged him too hastily and harshly? I fear not. I very much suspect that you publish your retraction away down in some obscure corner of the inside pages of your conversation.

They say that if you give a lie a five minutes headstart, the truth will hardly catch up with it in a hundred years. Probably this is because we seldom bother to tell the common-place truth to so many people as the more picturesque lie.

We all make mistakes in our estimates of people occasionally. We can't help that. We all express to others our mistaken opinions once in a while. Being human, I don't suppose we can help that. But if we truly want to be just and square—and a love of the "square deal" is supposed to be a strong American characteristic—we can try to give our retraction as wide publicity as our original story, and if any way possible, in the same quarters.

Fads and Fashions.

This is to be a fower year in the realm of the small folks. Nothing could be more appropriate to adorn the frocks of little girls than garlands of roses or festoons of forget-me-nots. Sashes remain in good standing among fashionable accessories of the summer gown, and by way of trimming there is a wide offering in cluny laces, in the val variety and in flat venetian.

ASK YOURSELF THESE QUESTIONS

And find out if you have kidney disorders—Also make this test. Have you pains in the back over the kidneys? Have you urinary disorders? Do you suffer from severe headaches, dizziness or defective eyesight? Is the skin dry and harsh? Are you falling in health and strength and suffering from rheumatic pains or swelling of the limbs? These are a few of the symptoms of kidney disease, and here is the test. If the urine after standing for twenty-four hours is cloudy, milky or has particles floating about in it, or if there is a sediment in the bottom of the vessel, your kidneys are diseased.

There is no time to lose in beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney Pills. tulle in combination with black gowns. At a distance this has a startling effect as of an exaggerated declatage; but it is decidedly becoming, because the faintly flushed tulle is much softer against the neck and arms than the white or cream tones.

The materials for blouses that have first choice include satin, changeable taffeta, chiffon and chiffon, cloth, crepe de chine, various pongee weaves, voile, palm and fancy net. It is to be a great lace and embroidery year, and consequently these garnitures will be greatly employed on the blouses.

The revival of the Russian blouse is emphasized in certain of the suits, that show the belted feature raised a little in the back, in recognition of the youthful effect of the empire line, and completed with three-quarter sleeves rather wide at the hem and an odd fachu collar fastened well down at the waist line.

Young Married Woman Burned to Death.

Sydney, March 7.—A terrible accident occurred at Grace Bay last night, which resulted in the death this morning of Mrs. James Campbell. Mrs. Campbell, who resides at McLeod's Crossing, was calling at a neighbor's house, a Mrs. Gouthro, and was rocking a cradle placed near the fire, her back being to the fire. In some manner her clothing caught from the stove and in a second she was a mass of flames. In her frenzy she ran out into the snow and threw herself into it. But the fire was only put out by several persons who ran to her assistance, attracted by her screams. She was carried back to her own home nearby, where it was found on examination by the physician that she had received fatal injuries, her back being fearfully burned and the hair totally burned from her head. She lived in terrible agony about seven hours. Mrs. Campbell was married only about six months, and is survived by a husband.

BOVRIL IS ALL BEEF.

Questions we are often asked.

Q.—What is the sediment at the bottom of a cup of Bovril? A.—That is a valuable portion of the nourishment, and should never be left. Q.—Are you serious when you say that Bovril is more nourishing than ordinary Meat Extract or Home-made Beef Tea? A.—Certainly! and we have for years offered large rewards to anyone who can prove the contrary. Q.—But can you prove your statement? A.—Yes—from the pen of Baron Liebig himself, who told the world that the man who managed to get the nourishing, as well as the stimulating properties of Beef in a liquid form, would produce something far better than Liebig's Extract, and would be a public benefactor. Q.—And you have done this? A.—Yes. By a special process, the entire nutritious constituents of prime ox beef are separately treated, pulverized and added to specially-prepared Meat Extract, and what is Bovril. Don't experiment with artificial imitations of dubious quality (which are dear at any price) when such a tried and proven nutritious food-beverage "made in England" is within your reach.

Defying the People.

The attitude of the leader of the so-called People's Party in reference to the petition of the people who have asked that the General Election be held this Fall, is simply one of defiance. Not only is the reasonable request turned down without the courtesy of a consideration, but he arrogates to himself not only the constitutional functions of a Prime Minister, but those of His Excellency the Governor, whose province it will be to decide whether he will accept the unconstitutional advice which the Prime Minister is apparently prepared to tender to the effect that His Excellency shall put himself into a position of being unable to call a Parliament together between June 1st and December of 1913, no matter what crisis may arise in that interval.

Rev. T. Godden Dies Suddenly.

We learn as we are about to go to press that the Rev. Thomas Godden, of Harbor Grace, the retired Church of England clergyman, died suddenly there this morning. Mr. Godden graduated B. A. at Bishop's College, Lennoxville, and was ordained as a Deacon in the Quebec Diocese in 1882, and was raised to the priesthood in 1883 in the Diocese of Montreal. He spent most of his ministerial life in Canada. Returning here in 1889 he had charge of Harbor Grace South in 1899-1900, and from that date to 1903 he was the incumbent of Briggs. In 1903 he retired from active work, and has lived in retirement at Harbor Grace ever since. His death was entirely unexpected, as no words of his illness were contained in letters which arrived in the city two days ago. The news of his sudden demise was received this afternoon by his nephew, the Rev. G. R. Godden, M.A., Rector of St. Thomas's Church. To his family, relatives and friends the Evening Telegram extends sympathy.

Heavy Thunder and Lightning.

Arrivals by the Millertown express say that on Wednesday evening about 7.30 at Bishop's Falls and neighbourhood a heavy electrical storm began and lasted till midnight. The storm was ushered in with sleet and later rain fell in torrents until Thursday morning. The thunder was very heavy and the lightning was the most vivid seen there for years. There was some lightning visible in St. John's early Thursday morning.

Aged Man Stricken Suddenly.

At 9.30 this morning an aged man named Patrick Byrne, night watchman at Mr. Colin Campbell's premises, was suddenly stricken with paralysis in both legs and collapsed on King's Road. The old man was witnessed by passers by lying prone on the street, and Messrs. Peckham and Lush, who were unable to procure a sleigh, took him in their arms and brought him to his house on Mullock Street.

Train Notes.

The shore train arrived at 12.45 today. The express which left here last evening left Gumbo at 11.20 a.m. today. Rotary No. 2 left Bishop's Falls at 12.30 p.m. today to clear the Top-salls. The Bonavista train clearing that station at 1.00 p.m. today, left for St. John's Harbor to-day. The snow on the tracks was much this heavy.

Personal.

Mr. H. D. Reid, who has been in the Old Country since last December, will arrive here by the Bruce. Mr. Thos. E. Tiple, who has been many years with the Reid Nfd. Co. as operator, leaves by the Bruce for Ontario where he takes a position with the C. P. R. SERMON ON CHURCH UNION. - Rev. F. R. Matthews will preach at the service at Wesley Church on Sunday night. He will speak on a most important theme at the present moment, that of Church Union, and a very eloquent and interesting discourse is expected. The congregation should attend early as seats will no doubt be at a premium.

Balfour's Motion Was Defeated.

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-Day. Balfour's motion for the rejection of the Minimum Wage Bill was defeated in the Commons last night by a majority of 123, and the Government bill passed second reading. The Laborites and Nationalists voted with the Government. The debate on the bill was of an interesting character and served to dissipate the alarm created by the announcement that the Unionists intended to oppose the passage of the measure. Now it is evident that the Conservative leaders had no idea of opposing the Government but merely to wash their hands of all responsibility for the bill, and had no wish to assume office themselves. The debate showed the Labor leaders to be in a more reasonable mood. Although they tabled a number of amendments, one for inclusion in their schedule of minimum wage, it is believed they now will be satisfied with that, if the Government will be willing to concede the inclusion of 5 shillings and 2 shillings minimum. Altogether the tension has been greatly relaxed. The debate may be carried into next week, and it would not be surprising if the Government's original program was carried out and the bill become law on Saturday. Grey denied that the bill would create trouble in future. New circumstances have arisen, the door has been opened in regard to minimum wage which could not be closed again. It would not make trade struggles easier, to avoid by facing it. Within a few weeks, perhaps days, they should be dealing not with causes but with the terrible consequences of a strike, was the way the Government had introduced the bill. Bruce, Labor member, said that if the Government would not amend bill to include the whole mines schedule, they would at least amend it to include their irreducible minimum of 5 shillings for men and 2 shillings for boys, so that when the miners went before the district boards they would be assured of some definite basis of settlement. Unless, as now hoped, miners resume work at the beginning of the week, dislocation of trade and distress will be become unprecendented. Every day sees further curtailment of business in the railway services. The Great Eastern Railway will begin to cut down next week. The Big Tramway Co. serving London suburbs, has given employees notice that if the strike continues it will not be able to run any cars after the end of the month. From all great industrial districts come cries of increasing destitution intensified by cold weather and northern counties snow and ice. Ports are congested, and idle shipping. Estimated tonnage amounting to 100,000, is lying idle at Southampton Docks.

Seaman on The Portia Drowned.

Almost every day brings its fatality on land or at sea, and last night Capt. T. Fitzpatrick, of the s.s. Portia, at Burin, sent the following message to Mr. J. S. Mann: "Peter Mullett, of Odegin, seaman, was drowned here this evening, and Ambrose King had his leg broken by mail boat blowing foul of promontory. Mullett was rescued after ten minutes but did not survive." Judging from the tenor of the message it is believed that the unfortunate man Mullett fell overboard while the ship was berthing at Burin, and after being in the water for ten minutes was rescued but was exhausted from struggling and finally succumbed. The man King, referred to as having his leg broken, was also a seaman on the ship and is being brought on here for hospital. Mullett, whose remains are being brought along tomorrow evening by the Portia, joined the ship last April and was a fine robust and able seaman. Deceased belonged to Odegin but lived on the South Side, near the Mill Bridge. He was 45 years of age, married, and leaves to mourn him a wife and seven children, the eldest of which is an apprentice at the Reid Nfd. Co.'s machine shops. This morning Mr. Mann communicated with Rev. Fr. Kelly, of St. Patrick's, acquainting the cleric with the fatality, and the gentleman conveyed the sad intelligence to the heartbroken wife of the deceased. General sympathy is expressed for the bereaved family, in which the Telegram joins.

The Mails Returning.

The mails intended for points along the Bonavista Branch which went forward by the express to Millertown, came back by the accommodation train to-day and will be sent forward by the St. John's. The train could not get down over the Bonavista Branch owing to the snow on the line. A mail for Trinity will also go along on the ship and 50 bags in all will go forward.

COMING FOR THE NICKEL. -Arrangements have been made, we are informed, to-day, for the engagement of two fine vocalists, who will be featured at the re-opening of the Nickel Theatre on Easter Monday. One of these is an English Tenor, named John Keely, who is said to be in a class by himself, and carries a repertoire of all the old time favorites, while the other, Harry B. LeRoy, is a Baritone vocalist. They will undoubtedly sustain the excellent musical reputation which the Nickel Theatre has established.

MISS ALICE MACKENZIE COMING. -Comedienne Star of the "Alaskan" will visit this city. -Mr. J. P. Kieley, manager of the Nickel and Casino Theatres, was surprised by cable last night that his efforts to secure the services of Miss Alice MacKenzie the clever novelty vocalist, for the opening of the Casino Theatre Easter week, had been successful, and that she would leave New York for this city on Sunday next. Miss MacKenzie is considered one of the finest soprano vocalists in musical comedy, possesses a wardrobe of most attractive costumes and has a charming personality. She was featured with decided success in the original production of "The Alaskan," where she scored her greatest hit in her rendition of "The Moth and the Bumble Bee." Miss MacKenzie is a graduate of the Conservatory of Music, Franklin, Nebraska.

Fra Diavolo of Asia Minor.

Dies in Desperate Struggle With a Large Military Detachment—Brigand Who Played Golf—Exciting Pages From the Life of a Dumas Hero of the Present Day.

The famous terror-inspiring brigand and Tebakirdjall, the King of the Anatolian Mountains, the ferocious, bloodthirsty Fra Diavolo of Asia Minor, has recently ceased to exist. He fell, with a few of his faithful, in a desperate struggle with a large military detachment headed by Capt. Rusdidi Bey. This struggle was fought on very unequal terms—four brigands against more than a hundred well armed soldiers.

Tebakirdjall's career, which has exercised over many a mysterious fascination, was full of thrilling incidents. It was a career of sword and fire of blood and murder, of unspeakable recklessness, coupled with chivalrous hardihood. Tebakirdjall was very often exceedingly compassionate and generous.

His death was encompassed in a thrilling manner. There is a custom among the brigands of the Near East either to kill themselves or to be killed by a fellow-brigand rather than fall into the hands of the authorities alive. Tebakirdjall had a special blood friend, Mehmed by name, who followed him in all his dangerous, bloody exploits like a slave. When both were captured by Capt. Rusdidi, the Ottoman Fra Diavolo reminded Mehmed of the custom, sanctioned by tradition and usage, and of the mutual vows. Mehmed did not hesitate one moment, and, with a sturdy well balanced blow of his Damascus blade, cut off the head of his leader, whom he had loved more than his own self, and then pierced his own heart with a dagger. The dead bodies of the brigands were brought in triumph, with song and dancing, to the Governor of Smyrna.

Brigand's Father Slain.

Young Mehmed (Tebakirdjall's Christian name) had a father of extraordinary piety, named Ahmed, whom he loved with the passionate devotion of a violent, impetuous nature. Once upon a time Ahmed quarreled with an Ottoman official an Albanian by nationality, and was killed by him. This cruel loss filled the youth with an ardent thirst for revenge. His merciless aim of retribution was first of all directed against Albanians. He began to hate them with a fierce hatred. The mere sight of an Albanian was sufficient to put him into uncontrollable rage.

His first victim was the murderer of his father. He saw now for the first time human blood upon his quivering hands. The scent of it began ferocity, which knew no bounds, no restraint, no mercy. It was the beginning of atrocities that eclipsed all the previous terrible records of brigandage by their unheard of cruelty and recklessness, and this in Turkey, which is the country of brigandage par excellence.

After his first murder he flew into the mountains, and soon began his regular, formidable highwayman career. At that time Kiamil Pasha was Governor of Smyrna, our brigand's birthplace. True to his vows, he shortly afterwards commenced to kill the Albanians wherever and whenever he met them. More than 400 of them, it was said, fell victims to his ever-increasing bloodthirstiness at that time alone.

Soon the news of his terrible exploits spread throughout the whole of the Ottoman Empire. People began to tremble at his name, and those in authority who had spurned his appeal to avenge his father, fled before the news of his approach.

Pious Brigand.

He was pious withal. All the brigands of the Near East are pious. Our Fra Diavolo never omitted to visit the mosque to perform every day the five ablutions prescribed by the Koran, and to pray with all the fervour of a true believing Islamite. On one occasion he worshipped with cloths of human blood clinging to his brigand cloak which he had no time to wash off in his eager desire to please Allah. The Creator of the world, the brigand thought, would disregard the spilt blood of a hateful enemy, but would never forgive the omission of prayer.

His attitude toward women was of an exquisitely chivalrous character. He is said never to have in any way molested representatives of the fair sex. His politeness and gallantry towards them were genuine and were supposed to have been due to the influence of his sister, a quiet, gentle countrywoman. In all quarters of the Near East he had women who were devoted to him in the highest degree, and were always ready to serve him however dangerous might be the task. It was mostly due to these self-sacrificing services of women that Tebakirdjall was able to elude, for so many years, all the attempts of the authorities to capture him. Women used to hide him for weeks in their houses, supply him with food, keep him well informed of all the movements of his numerous persecutors, and guide him through secret paths near dangerous neighbourhoods.

He always repaid them royally. Many a peasant girl owes her rich dowry exclusively to his generosity, and many a Turkish rake lies permanently buried in forlorn places of the Anatolian forests death being due to the brigand's indignation at their outrages on innocent women.

A rich notable of Smyrna, Abdurrahman Bey by name, a giant in stature and strength, had once boasted that if he could meet Tebakirdjall face to face he would bind him, bring him on a special steamer to Constantinople, and put him in iron fetters at the very feet of the Pasha. The same night Fra Diavolo appeared in the bedroom of the notable and quietly said, "I have heard of your boast, and I have come to punish you for your impudence." The utter discomfiture of Abdurrahman can easily be imagined. The sudden mysterious appearance of the brigand completely paralyzed him and he forgot his intention.

"You need not fear, however, for your life," continued Tebakirdjall, "I shall not kill you. I intend only taking away a little memento in proof of my having been here. I had promised, namely, to my fellow-companions, to bring them your right ear upon which you carry such a beautiful and costly ring, as they thought it would be quite impossible for me to penetrate into your sleeping chamber. If you please, then!" Whereupon Tebakirdjall produced a huge revolver and a tiny lancet. He had no difficulty in performing the little, cruel operation, and was able to show the ghastly trophy of his extraordinary hardihood to his comrades the very same night.

A man who knew the Ottoman-Fra Diavolo personally describes him to me as an individual of very small stature, but with a powerful chest and arm muscles, the sight of which would have greatly delighted Sandow. He played golf, and enjoyed a game of football. He had small, piercing eyes and a wonderful memory. He always carried a Martini rifle, which he held between his legs when taking his meals. He spoke very little.

Always on the move, he was least expected. Once he aimed at any one with his gun, death was sure to follow. He never missed. He used to visit in disguise the most populated thoroughfares of Smyrna. On several occasions he managed to dine with the officers who had been sent out with large detachments, to capture him, so skilled was he in concealing his identity.—Constantinople Correspondence London Chronicle.

Why Not be Well and Strong

When weak and run down DR CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will help you back to health.

This letter tells of two women who have proven this.

Mrs. D. Stott, Cobourg, Ont., writes: "After recovering from typhoid fever I was left in a very low state of health. I was weak, nervous and not fit to do any work. A friend of mine, Mrs. G. M. Brown, had used DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD and told me that it benefited her wonderfully. I took courage and began the use of the medicine. After taking the first box I began to feel an improvement in health and now after using four boxes I am completely cured. I now feel like myself once more and believe that I can attribute the cure to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Life is too short to spend weeks or months dragging out a miserable existence of weakness and suffering. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures by forming new rich blood and building up the system. You can depend on it to benefit you. Send a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edinboro Macor & Co., Toronto.

Good Bye, Sir Edward!

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir,—If there is any person so out of touch with popular sentiment as to doubt the fact that the Morris gang are feeling keenly their insecure position, he need only to have been present in the House of Assembly this afternoon when Sir Robert Bond presented a batch of petitions from all over the island asking for a General Election next Fall to be awakened. Those petitions speak volumes of how the people of this country regret ever having put in power the present gang of grabbers.

To an observant onlooker the faces of the different members on the Government side of the House presented pictures of tragic significance. At the first alarm there was a general flutter of excitement, which after a while gave place to poorly affected attitude of indifference which could not for a moment deceive the observer. The attitude of pretended unconcern finally settled into one of profound alarm. This hunted-like look remained till long after Sir Robert had resumed his seat. Whilst petition after petition, to the number of 21, followed each other, one could notice the mousetache of Sir Edward Morris droop lower and lower; even that doughty warrior completely lost control of himself, and when he rose, to refer to the subject matter of the petitions, he could scarcely articulate. I have never seen a strong man so utterly unnerved. Like a bolt from the blue the conviction seemed suddenly to have struck him, that he is no longer wanted.

Following the 21 petitions spoken of Sir Robert presented 24 others on various matters. Did the numerous petitioners ask for Sanatoria, or railroads, or ponies or peat cutters? Oh, no. Did they ask for Solling paper, or the Mackintosh Receipt? Not at all. They asked for what the country needs first of all. They asked for lighthouses, wharves, breakwaters, telegraph and telephone extension. They asked for roads and bridges and water supplies. This is a fishing country, a fisherman's country, and all that appertains to the fishing industry, should receive first consideration. Sir Edward has not time or inclination either for that matter for looking after the practical, he is too much engrossed in fads and fancies. Well, he has had his chance to make good. He could not deliver the goods, so he must go, to make room for one who can.

GOOSE SEALING. — Three schrs. of Channel, belonging to Messrs. Pike and Gillam, of that place, left there yesterday for the Gulf to prosecute the seal fishery. Two of the vessels during the past couple of "years" secured good fares in the Gulf and it is hoped they will do as well this. The vessels are rather late in starting on the hunt this season, but this was caused by stormy weather preventing preparations in fitting out.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere

Hr. Grace Notes.

After several mild days we were treated to a little more winter weather this morning.

W. A. Munn, Esq., who had been in town for a few days this week, returned to his home at St. John's yesterday.

It is a pity the Erna failed to reach port in time to be made ready for the sealers. The company will stand to lose considerably, and so will Harbor Grace. Our sealing fleet for this year is only two wooden ships, but we hope they will bring in full loads, which while being manufactured will help many of our people to earn a few dollars, badly needed at this time after a hard winter.

The young girls of St. Andrew's Church reformed their sewing class on Tuesday last. They intend to work hard and to give their friends a pleasant time at a sale and sociable shortly after Easter.

At the sociable in the new C. of E. High School on Monday last the sum of $74.00 was realized. A very enjoyable evening was spent. The ladies in charge are to be congratulated on their success, financially and otherwise.

To-day, March 21st, is the anniversary of the terrible Greenland disaster, when 48 brave fellows were frozen to death on the ice. It was in 1898.

A man who was asked by a house-keeper the other day to get some mussels, said he was very sorry but they were all gone off. "They didn't stay long this year, ma'am."

The lads of King Edward Brigade are contemplating a trip to St. John's the coming summer. They have organized a camp fund, and their friends are doing their part to help them. It is the intention to have the boys march around the bay and return by train, of course after "taking

Mrs. R. Medd, St. Ansburn, Ont. lady, tells this interesting story of how she conquered her ancient enemy Rheumatism.

"I have been a great sufferer from Rheumatism for a great many years. I have used different medicines but they have never done me much good. "We picked up a sample bottle of your liniment at our gate and I used it and to my surprise it relieved me wonderfully. We secured two bottles from our store-keeper and I must tell you I relieved the pain, and I would not be without it now."

Most Interesting Lecture.

Rev. D. O'Callaghan lectured last night in the T. A. Hall before a large and appreciative audience, taking as his subject "Home Rule for Ireland." A subject which at the present moment is of absorbing interest to Irishmen and their descendants the world over and even of which other peoples take very considerable interest.

Mr. W. J. Higgins acted as Chairman and introduced the lecturer in a brief but eloquent speech.

As was anticipated Father O'Callaghan treated the subject in a very masterful manner, showing how conversant he is with the movement which he showed was favoured by the people of the four provinces with the exception of a minority in Ulster. He had lived amongst these latter people to whom he paid a tribute for fair mindedness and integrity, but whom he showed were misled by demagogues. He traced the progress of the agitation for Home Rule from the days of Butt, Parnell, Biggar and other patriotic Irishmen down to the present time and predicted that soon the English Parliament would confer on the people of Ireland this great boon. He scouted the idea of Ireland's design being separation and exemplified the loyalty of Ireland to Throne and Empire even while burdened with oppression, and cited the Crimean and Boer Wars as instances of the fealty of her sons. He also demonstrated that Ireland merely asked control of her domestic affairs and that the granting of this would greatly strengthen the Empire.

Vocal selections were rendered during the evening by Miss Mollie Fitzpatrick and Mr. M. McCarthy. A hearty vote of thanks proposed by Mr. T. Walsh and seconded by Mr. R. Power was accorded the rev. lecturer.

IN THE ASSEMBLY.

The Petitions of the Fishermen's Protective Union.

Sir Robert Bond Presents Fifty

When the House of Assembly met yesterday afternoon the Leader of the Opposition, Sir Robert Bond, presented a large number of petitions which caused quite a flutter in the Government. In presenting the first of the series, Sir Robert said it was a petition of more than ordinary importance inasmuch as it emanated from the Officers and Members of the Fishermen's Protective Union of Newfoundland, established in various districts of the Colony for mutual aid and benefit. The Union consisted of several thousands of intelligent and influential citizens, and their prayer should therefore commend itself to the best consideration of the Government and of the House. The petitioners approached the House in a general election held in this Colony in the early part of November, 1912, and set forth that they "are aware of the fact that the life of the present Parliament expires under Statute by efflux of time, in June, 1913, and that the present members may hold their seats until the above date, but in the language of the Statute, 'no longer.'" They protest against an extension of the period of administration which they as Electors conferred upon the Government, and they set forth very concisely their reasons for so doing. It is perfectly clear that they view with alarm the enormous expenditure of the Government, and especially the outlay in connection with the building of branch lines of railway. They also pray that no new loan will be introduced until the people of the country have had an opportunity to pronounce upon the enormous amount of money involved in carrying out the system of Branch Railways. With regard to Sir Robert, to the holding of an election in November, 1912, that is a matter entirely in the hands of the present Government and their supporters, for their period of office will not expire until 1st June, 1913. But as to whether the present Government shall continue to hold office after that date, or whether there shall be an election in the Spring of 1913, is a matter for His Excellency the Governor alone to decide. What he (Sir Robert) had contended in regard to the building of the Branch Railways and other lavish and unjustifiable expenditure was confirmed by the petitioners, and he would ask for the petition to be read by the Clerk of the House for its information.

PETITION.
To the Honourable the House of Assembly of Newfoundland.
The prayer of the undersigned Officers and Members of the Fishermen's charge of $4,000,000 to the public debt and an annual interest charge of ($140,000) One Hundred and Forty Thousand Dollars.

In Sir Edward's speech he used the following language: "The estimate of the five branches would be two hundred and fifty miles altogether. It may be a little more, it may be a little less. The cost of $15,000 per mile would be about $4,000,000 in round figures. The interest on this will be One Hundred and Forty Thousand Dollars per year when the Contracts have been completed."

We are now alarmed to find that when the Branch Railways to Bonaville and Trepassey are completed with their terminals, fences, extras and right of way, that the $4,000,000 will be exhausted.

We believe from the speeches delivered by Sir Edward Morris at the opening of the Bavin Agricultural Exhibition and other Ministers of the Crown at the ceremony of turning the first sod of the Trepassey Branch, that it is contemplated to enter into new and larger contracts with the REID NEWFOUNDLAND COMPANY.

We have evidence of this design in the proposed extension of the Fortin Bay line because as his leader, the House of Assembly it was merely a short line from the Trunk Railway to the proposed extension of the Fortin Bay line, and it is now proposed by Sir Edward Morris and outlined in his speech at Grand Bank to extend it along the western shore of Placentia Bay and connecting every settlement in Burin District. This railway is to have a concrete deep-water pier, or dock, at Grand Bank for a terminus, and also there is to be constructed a concrete pier at Fortune.

If this policy, as outlined by the Hon. Sir P. Morris is carried out it means that from Eight to Nine Million Dollars more will be paid over by the Government to the Reid-Newfoundland Company within the next four or five years. It can only have one ending and that will be the killing of Newfoundland, and its wealth we feel that we are in conscience bound to solemnly protest against these enormous expenditures, because we believe that it will entail serious consequences to the Colony.

In view of the possible danger ahead of our beloved Country, and in this unparalleled reckless expenditure we humbly beg that the following requests be granted:—

(1) That the General Election be held in November, 1912.

(2) That no new Loan Bill be introduced until the people decide upon the enormous expenditure involved in this extended Branch Railway System.

(3) That no new Railway work be even under existing Contracts be undertaken without proper surveys being submitted to the Legislature.

(4) That a sum of money be placed in this year's estimates to cover the cost of a General Election in November, 1912.

The petition was signed by Martin Phillips and others of Twillingate; Sir Robert Bond presented exactly similar petitions from Reuben LeDrew and others of Pilley's Island; Robert Evans and others of Northern Harbour; George T. Normore and others of Port Anson; Leander Russell and others of Leading Tickle; Edward J. Richards and others of Pike's Arm; Alfred Hussey and others of Moncton's Harbour; Simeon Côté and others of Comfort Cove, all in the District of Twillingate. Also one from Robert Boone and others of Pike's Beach in the District of Port de Grave; also one from Garland Cloutier and others of Catalina; Thomas Sparks and others of Sibley's Cove; Arthur Hiscock and others of Hant's Harbour; William Harris and others of New Melbourne; Samuel Aday and others of Hant's Harbour, all in the District of Trinity Bay. Also one from Robert Harris and others of Newman's Cove; Eliot Greening and others of Musgrave Town; John Riley and others of St. Brendan's; Joseph Keasa and others of Shalloway Cove; Albert Howe and others of Brooklyn, all in the District of Bonaville. Sir Robert said that having been asked by the Union to present their prayer in this House he did so with great Special Evening Telegram.

TWILLINGATE, Yesterday.

After three or four days' notice to the citizens of Twillingate, some 40 persons attended a public meeting at the Court House last night, to consider Messrs. Reid's gifts of Sanatoria. Practically no interest prevailed in favor of the Contractors bestowing proposed gifts. The meeting was regarded as a dismal failure. It is generally regarded that the Messrs. Reid are not pursuing the wisest course in the interest of humanity. What our laboring classes need first is better travelling, better sanitary conditions on steamboats and station houses, and better accommodations for laborers engaged the island over, thereby preventing many causes that call for Sanatoria. Heaven demands prevention before cure. No Government could accept such gifts from their Contractor without placing themselves under the greatest obligations to the donors. The small attendance is sufficient proof that our people are not favorable to the Contractors' gifts. At the meeting barely a majority attending adopted a vote of thanks to the Messrs. Reid, and a small committee in favor of same was appointed to draft resolutions. Please remember the attendance, not 50 out of a population of over 4,000. The stand that Sir Robert Bond took in this regard is heartily endorsed.

pleasure, giving the same his earnest support, and hoping that the Government would take it into serious consideration and meet the desire of these petitioners.

He also presented and supported twenty-five other petitions from the officers and members of the Fishermen's Protective Union in the same districts on the subject of public works, telegraph and telephone extension, public wharves, main line roads and other works, all of which were received and referred to the several departments to which they relate.

The Premier, Sir Edward Morris, in speaking to the motion said that the parties who signed the petitions were desirous of entering into the same statements therein in respect to his railway policy, and to what he had said in Burin District. That the people had given him a mandate to build the railway branch lines and the Government would go on with the work, and that when they again appeared to the Legislature it would be a policy of still further railway extension. That the person who was responsible for getting up these petitions would have a rude awakening, and that the petitioners could make up their minds that there would be no General Election until the Fall of 1913.

The Fishermen's Protective Union of Newfoundland will now understand what they have to expect at the hands of the "People's Party" and its leader. They intend to carry on the same mad course of extravagance, to scatter the public money as they please to serve party interests, and to hold on to office until they are forced out. We warned the people at the last election of what the consequences would be if the present political party was returned to power. Our warning was not heeded, and the consequences are now being experienced. A bitter experience it will be before it ends.

Might Have Perished.

About 7:30 last evening some boys who happened to go down on Rendell's wharf, in the West End, found a man who has no home lying under an upturned door in some nastily which he had placed there to serve as a bed.

The man was under the influence of drink and Const. O'Keefe who was apprised took him to the police station. It was a fortunate thing for the man that he was discovered or he might have certainly perished had he remained where he was found from cold and exposure.

Stafford's Liniment.

Numerous testimonials have been received in reference to "Stafford's Liniment." Below we publish a few of them:—

"I have used almost two bottles of your Liniment, and must say it is all you claim it to be."

"I have used your Liniment and have found it to be the best Liniment ever used."

"We have used your Liniment in our home and find that it is as represented."

"I can highly recommend your Queen of Liniments. My mother has been an invalid for 2 years, she praises it more than any other remedy she ever used."

"We are after using a great many bottles of your Liniment in our family and selling dozens. We find it to be the best, and everyone uses it, say the same."

The above Testimonials are the exact words copied from letters which we have in our possession, and can be seen by calling at our Drug Store, Theatre Hill, —mar22,12

Steadfast Mission Band.

A large audience, well filling the hall, assembled last night to hear the Cantata "The Spirit of the Wood," given by the above Mission Band of (Seeham) Street Church. The Band is under the presidency of Mrs. Alice Marshall, and the musical rendition was in charge of Miss Woods, and both are to be congratulated upon the success of last evening's entertainment. The grouping of the Band on the platform with variegated colors of the screens and the dresses was very pleasing and effective. The singing of the children was sweet, being in good time and tune, and the choruses were pretty and striking. The story of the piece was that a number of children celebrated their holiday in the country and were visited by the Spirit of the Wood, who sometimes appears to mortals. The Spirit gladly adds to the enjoyment of the children, at the same time teaching them that trees and flowers should be treated kindly. The children in turn entertained the Spirit and her attendants with songs and recitations. The various parts of the Cantata, which were in dialogue form, were very well and clearly spoken, and the audience followed the story with interest. The soloists were Misses News, Vincent, Tucker, Bowden and Oke, and all gave very pleasing renditions of their pieces. Miss Marguerite Parsons represented the Spirit of the Wood, and acted her part splendidly. Little Jean Parsons, who took the part of Tomtit, quite captivated the audience, and her naive manner induced hearty laughter and prolonged applause. The preparation of the Cantata must have taken some labour, which, however, was well repaid by the attendance of such a large audience and the evident interest in the proceedings manifested by them. Seeham Street Mission Band has added another laurel to the many which they have won in the past.

FRIDAY, March 22, 1912.

At this time of year, when coughs and colds are so prevalent, especially among children, we would draw attention to the merits of our Baby Cough Syrup, the dose of which, however, is so graduated as to suit children of all ages: It is a mild expectorant, it cannot harm the youngest child. Baby Cough Syrup is certainly more valuable and safer for young children than ordinary general cough mixtures, most of which are unsuitable for them. Price 25c. a bottle.

You will soon be wanting some disinfectant to put your cellar, back-yard, etc. in sanitary condition. One of the best as well as the simplest things of this kind is Kretol. A twenty-five cent bottle diluted according to directions will put your premises in a clean and sanitary state, destroy all noxious matter, and combat all foul odors. Price 25c. a bottle.

A Veteran's Opinion.

Messrs. Bowring Bros. yesterday had a letter from an old veteran seaman named S. T. Newman of Boyd's Cove, Green Bay, in which he states that for 18 years past he has always given a forecast as to the whereabouts of the seals about the coast. He says he is wrong in his calculations. In his letter he states that "on March 15th the seals should be located 40 miles E.N.E. of this place (Boyd's Cove), and on the 17th 50 miles to the E.S.E. If the fleet started E.N.E. they had a good chance of getting to the fishery well struck by the 18th. The fishery will not be a good one." He further expressed the opinion that the foe will be broken up early this year, and that the seals will take to the water earlier than usual. Asked about the man, a Water Street business man who knows him says that he is a very intelligent fisherman and that he has known him to make accurate forecasts of the seal-fishery.

Letter from Old Ireland.

By the Rappahannock's mail Const. P. Devine, of the city force, was surprised to get a letter from a young lady of Cork City, Ireland, named Ada B. Edwards, who is employed in the Chambers of Commerce there. She sent accompanying the missive a large bunch of Irish shamrocks with the roots attached and a quantity of wild ivy. She saw Mr. Devine's name in the columns of the Evening Telegram which is read everywhere, and asks the officer to send her some old stamps of a special issue. Needless to say Const. Devine will gladly accede to the request of his fair correspondent.

The man who firmly takes his stand upon the corner of the street to tell us how to save the land, with arguments as good as wheat, should have the documents to show that he owes nothing at the store; for men who won't pay what they owe don't interest us any more. Before he starts with his wordy strife about our national despair, he should convince us that his wife and kids have decent things to wear. Before he burlesques through his hat, before he platform planks he yells, he surely should persuade us that who helps us make the wheels go round, has got a right to talk a while, and we will listen to the sound. But no one cares to hear the wails of some cheap scribe who thinks he's wise, who shakes the welkin up and fells to keep his larder stocked with pies. The men who have the right to talk, the men who work, the men who win, are never standing on the walk dispensing music of the chim. So when you see a jay arise to show the sekin full of holes, just ask him how he's fixed for pies, and Sunday clothes and soap and coals.

LONDON, March 21.

The gravity of the crisis, which Mr. Balfour characterized as passing in magnitude anything hitherto experienced, was reflected at the Second Reading of the Minimum Wage Bill this afternoon. The House was crowded. Asquith moved the reading. Balfour followed, moving its rejection. The country, he said, was witnessing the new, strange and portentous spectacle of a single organization acting within its legal powers, threatening and paralyzing the whole trade of the country. The leaders showed no desire to offer their powers with consideration or mercy. Has there, he asked, ever been an American Trust which has used or misused its powers given it by law to the detriment of private interests and general trade to such an extent as we are now witnessing? Cries of "Yes" came from the Labour benches. Balfour recognized the earnestness of Asquith's efforts, but said that there had never been a graver case of a government deceiving itself and the Commons. The Government defended its Bill on the ground of abnormal conditions in some mines, but this was merely to save the face of Ministers, who had hastened, under threat, to yield to conditions laid down by the miners. He complained that the Government had sanctioned the tearing up of agreements without protest, and declared there was no justification for them attempting to force this colossal revolution through the Commons in less than a week. He concluded by saying that even if the Government were defeated, there would be no dissolution, as it was impossible to add the confusion of an election to the horrors of a strike. Although the Unionist party intended to test the matter, they would therefore do their best to see that the policy of the Government had its chance. From this it appears clear that the Unionists will not obstruct the Committee stage and that the Lords will pass the Bill. Premier Asquith claimed that the Government held an absolutely even balance between the disputants. He had tried by every persuasion and argument to bring the parties to agreement, but having failed, they could not allow the population to starve. A minimum wage bill was a necessary preliminary to any further steps.

They resent appointments by the Board of Trade, as proposed, claiming they would be biased.

That Appalling Disaster at N. S. Mines.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Thanks to a merciful Providence, it is seldom that we are called upon to perform such a sad duty, or to report such an appalling affair as that which terminated at the Roman Catholic Cemetery to-day when the mortal remains of Sebastian and William Farrell were laid to rest to await the final call.
A gloom has been cast over the whole settlement since Monday last when the sad tidings were received that these two poor brothers in the very bloom of manhood had met a cruel and tragic death while working in No. 4 colliery of North Sydney mines. Never in the history of this settlement was there such universal sorrow shown or such keen sympathy felt as that which goes out from every heart to the poor bereaved widowed mother, brother and sister, who are left in the throes of grief over this unfortunate affair. The circumstances surrounding their death are extremely sad, and are as follows:
On Friday evening upon returning from work they were heard to mention that a piece of stone in the roof of their room was loosened and looked dangerous, and when advised by friends not to go down on Saturday, they expressed the belief that this place would be timbered and secured during the night shift. Evidently this was neglected, and when these poor fellows went down Saturday, that treacherous destroyer of so many of our countrymen (and which is appropriately known as "bad ground") like some cruel, unrelenting but cowardly monster of death, was hovering there as if waiting for the fatal opportunity to blot out the lives of its victims. Presumably without warning, the fall occurred, striking the elder brother, Sebastian, on the shoulders, crushing him to the ground; and a portion falling on William, he too fell beneath that persistent slayer of man. In that awful moment the last agonizing cry of his brother reached him. "I am dying; take the ground off me." In a vain endeavor to respond to the call of a dying brother, he struggled to extricate himself from the jagged, murderous weight that had broken and now tore the vital organs in the lower region of his poor mangled body. Wounded unto death, but with characteristic self-sacrifice, he struggled along for a space of two hundred yards before meeting some one to render aid to Sebastian. But alas! too late, the grim reaper had done his work, and when five willing hands removed that fatal stone, the poor fellow's lifeless body was found.
William was at once tenderly conveyed to the Harbor Hospital, suffering intensely, where all possible was done for him but without any hope of preserving life. He lingered in this hopeless condition until 6 o'clock Sunday morning, when his agonies were relieved and his spirit passed out to the great beyond fortified with the rites of his church. His friends were at his bedside to the last, and though the torture of approaching death racked his body as the vital spark was fast fading, his thoughts reverted back to home and mother, repeating, "My poor brother is killed and I am dying. What will poor mother do?" In his nature a sad but faithful touch of human nature which appeals to every heart.
Sebastian, who was 28 years of age, worked in Sydney mines for the last six years. The most unfortunate aspect of William's death was the fact of his having worked in the States for four years, coming home to see his mother and relatives last spring. After that he worked on Bell Island for some months, joining his brother at Sydney about six months ago. He was 24 years of age. Both possessed that happy disposition which enabled them to make friends of all whom they came in contact, and many a tear was shed as their caskets were laid side by side in one grave. Many a silent prayer was offered for their souls' repose by the great concourse of friends and mourners as their bodies were left to the lonely solitude of the cemetery.
A very impressive but consoling discourse was delivered by the Rev. J. J. Coady, P.P., in the Chapel, after which he called on Mrs. Farrell to offer condolence and endeavour to console the grief-stricken mother, with whom the whole community sincerely sympathizes.
It has been Mrs. Farrell's sad lot to taste the cup of bereavement and sorrow in its worst form on more than this occasion. Her first husband, John Nugent, met death in Bett's Cove mines 35 years ago in precisely the same way, when along with his brother, Richard Nugent, he was instantaneously killed by a fall of ground, leaving her a widow with one son, Bernard, who is now married and residing in New York. Eleven years ago another blow fell when her much loved daughter, Mary Joe, was called to her reward; and five years later her late husband, Wm. Farrell, a well known and experienced miner, died, leaving her again a widow, but with the consoling influence in the home of three sons and one daughter, the two eldest sons being the victims in this terrible affair.

A remarkable coincidence in these deaths is that her daughter was buried on the 9th of March, 1901; her late husband's funeral took place on the 9th of March, 1907; and this accident, the greatest of all, occurred on the 9th of the present month.
Being conscious of the futility of our words assuaging the bitter pangs of grief that such a calamity inflicts, we commend the bereaved ones to Him who is the soother of all sorrows however great.
When we share a great affliction And our lives seem wrapt in gloom, Let the Christian's faith console us. We shall meet beyond the tomb; Then this world with all its trials Shall no more inflict its pain; We shall share a glad reunion And our loved ones meet again. With thanks for publication, I am, Sincerely yours, R. H. Kelligrews, March 9, '12.

THE BANK.

By HOWARD L. RANN.
The bank is a philanthropic institution which confers a favor upon society by borrowing people's money at 3 per cent and loaning it out at 7. The banker is a man who is paid a large salary for telling wabbly business enterprises where the jumping-off spot is located. Banks are built of marble and manganese steel, in order to prevent somebody who needs a little ready money from reaching in with a bottle of nitro-glycerine, and foundering himself with the cash in hand. In spite of this precaution, every once in a while some bank cashier is backed up against the adding machine, and requested to translate the time lock from the original Hebrew, while coarse men in pea jackets carry away everything in sight but the overdrafts. The banks have built up a flourishing and profitable industry, pursued with ceaseless energy by a certain class of citizens, who go through a steel vault

There's SOLID Comfort IN A CUP OF TEA.

Well, that depends.

And it all depends upon the quality of the tea. If the Tea is flat and flavorless—no comfort.

But—if it has a deep golden brown color in the cup,

And—a fine, rich, satisfying flavor,

Then, you are sure of your solid comfort.

OLD HOME TEA combines a deep, golden brown color with a fine, rich, satisfying flavor, and full body in the liquor.

If you steep Old Home Tea carefully and according to directions enclosed in each packet you will surely get solid comfort and rare enjoyment.
