A Great Intrigue,

—OR, THE—

Mistress of Darracourt.

CHAPTER XXXII.

He got up at last, feeling sick and dizzy, and went to find Mr. Doyle.

"Hello!" exclaimed that gentleman, at sight of Harry's face. "What's the matter?"

"I've heard bad news," said Harry. "I must ask you to let me off duty for a day or two."

"A day or two? Why, man, you are going to be married the day after tomorrow!" exclaimed Mr. Doyle, staring at him.

Harry put his hand to his brow.

"I had forgotten that—"

"Forgotten?"

"But I will try to get back in time. I must go. I must! Tell Miss Verneer"—he stopped. What message could he leave for her? "No, tell her nothing; just say I have heard bad news, and that I have had to go into the country. Ask her not to think too badly of me for leaving her so suddenly and just now, but to believe that the business I am going on is far more important even than our marriage."

"Sakes alive, lad, what is it?" ejaculated Doyle.

"I cannot tell you! Don't ask me!" said poor Harry. "You can trust me, Doyle."

"I'd trust you with everything I had in the world, and all I could borrow from my friends," was the characteristic reply. "But I don't like to see you like this, lad; you'll knock yourself up, Harry, for a thousand!"

"I should go mad if I stayed here and let this business slip," said Harry. "Good-by, dear friend! I'm in sore trouble, but no one—not even you—can help me!"

Mr. Doyle wrung his hot hand and, with trustful delicacy, turned away and left him.

Harry went into the house and hastily packed a portmanteau, and in a quarter of an hour was being driven to the station.

With what intention? He had none, no fixed plan whatever. The sole feeling that possessed him was a burning desire to go to Darracourt; to meet Lucille, the marquis, face to face and clear himself, at least in her eyes of the load of shame which, all unknown to him, had been cast upon him.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Meanwhile things were thickening at the Court. Mr. Sinclair was having a very good time, indeed, so good a time that he was not at all anxious to receive the five and twenty thousand pounds.

He had received a short note from Marie saying that she was abroad, and until she came back and he could lay his fortune at her feet, he was quite content that the marquis should remain his debtor, and that he, Mr. Sinclair, should lord it at the Court.

His presence there was a mystery to every one. The servants were almost in a state of mutiny; Mrs. Dalton was amazed and astounded at the marquis possessing such a man for a friend and permitting him to come into the presence of his wife. But Lucille said nothing. She scarcely ever exchanged a word with the marquis, and would not bring herself to ask him why he suffered such a creature as Sinclair to remain at the Court. Nearly all her time was passed among the poor, and but for them her life would have been unendurable.

There was not a cottage on the estate but had felt the sunshine of her presence. The children would run up to her and cling about her when she appeared in the village, and the rector declared that her influence was so great that if he wanted an argument to reform a drunken man, or to bring two squabbling neighbors together, he had only to tell them that Lady Marie would be ashamed of them.

In this daily ministrations Lucille found, if not happiness, at least peace. In a word she could only forget herself and the bitter-sweet past by living for others; but sometimes, when she entered a cottage and saw the happy young wife, with her husband by her side and the children crowding round her, the halo of mutual love shining like an aureole about them, her heart ached, and often the tears would rise to her eyes. This might have been her joyous fate if she had been a peasant's daughter and Harry Herne had been true to himself and her. Instead of which she was mated to a man she loathed, and he was flying, hiding from the justice before which she had cast herself as a sacrifice to shield him.

Not only at the Court, but in the village, Mr. Sinclair was petting himself. Not content with lording it under the marquis' own roof, he had lately taken to dropping in at the "Merle Arms," and swaggering there; and his favorite amusement of an evening was to collect a group of the worst characters in the place around him, and while he "stood treat," hold forth about his "old friend, the marquis." Sometimes, when he was in a good humor, that is, when he had drunk two or three glasses of hot brandy and water, he would sing the yodels, as he called them, a song, and then the company would rattle their mugs and glasses on the table, and stand and roar, and Mr. Sinclair would be perfectly happy.

One night the marquis stole out, almost like a thief, and wandering aimlessly on, with his pale face down upon his breast, found himself within sound of the inn, and, hearing Mr. Sinclair's voice, crept up to the window and listened.

He could see into the room through a vacant space in the curtain, and had a good view of Mr. Sinclair seated on a table, with a glass of steaming brandy and water in one hand and one of the marquis' Havanas in the other.

Mr. Sinclair had just finished a song, and the applause was enthusiastic.

"Splendid, ain't it!" exclaimed an old poucher, with one eye. "Dang my buttons, mister, if I had a voice like that, I'd make a fortune!"

Antiseptics In Australian Blue Gum

Proves a Cure For Bronchial Catarrh.

BAD COLD IN THE HEAD, THROAT WEAKNESS AND CATARRH CURED QUICKLY.

Medicated Air A Marvel!

Catarrh is far superior to any internal medicine.

Its relief is almost instantaneous—just takes long enough to breathe its healing vapor into the lungs to give wonderful soothing relief.

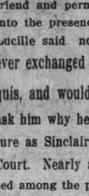

Catarrh goes right to the finest cells in the lungs, carrying healing, soothing balsams to the places that are tainted with Catarrhal inflammation. A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes—a sore throat is healed and restored in an hour or two—chronic bronchitis is soothed away and quickly disappears—catarrh of long standing is invariably cured because Catarrh kills the germs that cause the trouble.

As a cure for Asthma and a preventative of Gripe every doctor is delighted with Catarrh. One eminent throat specialist says if Catarrh is used two or three times each day you will never suffer from any disease of the head, throat, nose or lungs. This is good news to many of our readers who must require a safe, sure and permanent cure for their colds and winter ills. Every good druggist sells Catarrh, large outfit $1.00; small size 50c; trial size, 25c.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JOSEPH HAM, R. F. D. 1, Box 22, Shamrock, Missouri.

If you want special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (Confidential) Lynn, Mass.

"Oh, you would, would you?" retorted Mr. Sinclair, cocking his hat on one side and eyeing the man with a knowing leer. "You'd make your fortune, would you? Yes, I dare say you would. But I've no call to make mine; I've got one already, gentlemen!"

"Ay, ay, mister, glad to hear it!" came in a chorus.

"Yes," resumed Sinclair, sticking his legs up and eyeing his patent leather boots admiringly—"yes, I've got a mine I can dip into whenever I like. A regular gold mine. Want to know where it is, I suppose?"

"Ostralia, I spect?" hazarded some one.

"Australia be hanged!" retorted Mr. Sinclair. "It's nearer home than that, I can tell you!" and he winked.

"Here, Polly, fill up again; glasses all round. Australia's too far for me, gents; I like my gold mine handy, and I've got it. If you don't believe me, ask my friend, the marquis!" and he cast a leer round.

The marquis saw the men exchange glances, heard Mr. Sinclair start another song, then, white and livid, retraced his steps to the Court. At whatever cost, Mr. Sinclair must be got rid of.

He would go that night and ask Lucille for the money. She might question him—and if she pressed him hard, he thought, setting his teeth, he would tell her!

With his slow, stealthy step he went up the great stairs and into the corridor to Lucille's rooms. The boudoir door was unlocked, and he entered and looked round. He had not set foot within it since their return to the Court, and he felt strange and embarrassed. With a muttered curse he flung himself down upon a settee and gave himself a minute or two to get up sufficient courage to go into the next room and make his request.

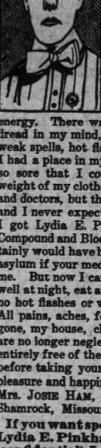

Silence reigned over the great house; no sound came from Lucille's room. He waited five minutes perhaps, then rose and walked toward the door. As he did so, his eye rested upon Lucille's writing desk; the key stood in it, and the sight of it created an idea that made him start and crimson. He went to the door of the bedroom, and listened intently for a moment or two, then stealing on tiptoe, approached the desk and opened it. Then he shut the lid down, and stood with Lucille's check-book in his hand. Still he hesitated, but at last, with a silent laugh, he opened the book, cut out a slip and foll, and filling in the former for five and twenty thousand pounds, signed it with Lucille's name.

Then he returned the check-book to its place, and creeping downstairs, went into the hall and awaited Mr. Sinclair. He had not long to wait; before he heard that gentleman's uncertain step coming up the stone steps.

Krupps the Backbone of the German Armies.

(London Daily Mail.)

The present has as yet brought no great figure among the German armies in the field. Von Moitte has yet to prove himself the peer of his famous ancestor, Von Kluck and Von Hindenburg, efficient generals though they may be, have displayed no pre-eminent qualities such as would range them beside their great forbears, Blumenthal and von der Tann. Yet there is one German name that since the outbreak of the war—and for many years past wherever the German army has been mentioned—has been constantly on men's lips. That is Krupp's.

Over-anxious as men are in the first flush of relief after a period of acute suspense, people are already wondering how far the world famous Krupp works at Essen are distant from the line of advance of the Allied armies. If airmen could sally out and destroy the vast hive of industry which has given Germany her mighty siege guns, her deadly field pieces, her numerous quick-firers!

Krupp's has been called the Army and Navy store of the nation. Essen is Krupp's. Krupp's is Essen. The erstwhile little Westphalian town has become one gigantic factory dominated by the genius of this one family whose three generations, built up the greatest cannon and armor industry the world has ever seen. Looking down on the town from one of the pleasant wooded heights on which Alfred Krupp planted the colonies for aged or disabled veterans of industry, one sees a forest of tall chimneys and dozens of huge lofty workshops marshalled like forts all around the habitations of men. On a nearer approach one discovers that some sixty factories make up this gigantic organization. Forty miles of standard railways link them together and carry their products abroad to the great world, and thirty miles of narrow lines are required as auxiliary for the shops.

ARMY CORPS OF WORKMEN.

Forty thousand men, with 4,000 officials, make up the staff of this maze of factories and workshops in normal times. One can well believe how the staff has been increased in these anguishing days of war, when every German great and small realizes that the future of his empire depends largely on the number and power of guns which Krupp's can place at the disposal of the armies of Germany and her Austrian ally. Besides this army corps of workmen at Essen, Krupp's have 700,000 miners digging the earth for coal in the firm's German collieries; 15,000 hands at the rolling mills of Annen and Gruson and the blast furnaces of Rhlnehausen, Duisburg, Neulied and Engers, about 7,000 workmen at the firm's shipbuilding yard, the Germania at Kiel; and 5,000 ore miners in Spain. It is symptomatic of the immense importance attached by the German general staff to the continuance of work at Krupp's at the highest pressure that the general commanding the Rhine district expressly refrained from calling up the Landstrum in order that the great national work may proceed unimpeded in the Rhenish industrial region where Krupp's is the leading concern.

The private hotel maintained by the firm at Essen for the accommodation of its foreign visitors is characteristic of the international character of the business done by Krupp's. Here, in days of peace one meets representatives of every civilized nation sent by their governments to this international arsenal to purchase the arms of war or the implements of peace. For half the Krupp works at Essen are devoted to what in normal times seem to be the peaceful work of commerce but what in war time is an indispensable adjunct to the armies in the field. All that can be made of steel for railways is constructed here—wheels, axles, engine parts, and rails. At Essen the German liners, now the murderous commerce destroyers, of the Atlantic and Pacific, and Indian Oceans, receive the huge casings for steamport and stem and crankshafts, and are furnished with plates and frames. Fine steel for tools, the spades and picks of troops entrenching themselves, and a dozen other varieties proceed from Essen.

THE VEIL OF SECRECY.

But the forefinger, however impeccable his recommendations and references, only sees as much of Krupp's as the firm will let him. Foreign military attaches, entranced at the exquisite courtesy which is the rule of this famous house, have seen the high hopes built upon the warmth of welcome dashed to the ground when it comes to seeing over the workshops. They are hurried past here and hurried past there, and finally leave with a vague sense of vastness and method, but conscious of having signally failed to penetrate into the secrets of the concern. A good example of the secrecy wherewith Krupp's manage to envelop their affairs is seen in the huge siege guns, the calibre of which rumor puts as high as 16 inches, with which the Germans battered down the forts of Liège and Namur.

Though it is a joint stock company in which practically all the shares are owned by Frau Krupp von Bohlen and Halbach, the only child of the late Alfred Krupp, the third proprietor and her husband, the present managing director of the works, Krupp's is regarded by every patriotic German as a national possession. While Krupp's exists Germany will stand. That is the firm belief of every member of this nation in arms.

Sulphate of Ammonia.

St. John's Gas Light Company.
Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works, and I found 20.5 per cent. of NITROGEN, Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manure.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Yours truly,
D. JAMES DAVIES, B.S.C. F.C.S.,
Analyst and Assayer.

Veau Gregg.

Red Meikee says:
He's six feet, one inch and a half of Boston's Red Sox pitchin' staff, this guy Sylvanus Gregg. His wind-up is a wondrous sight. To beat him when he's goin' right they've gotta shake a leg. In Spokane Veau first toed the slab. If I've been right in keepin' tab, an' that was nineteen-nine. Next year in Portland's uniform he took the coast league fans by storm an' had 'em at his shrine.

He pitched so many shutout games they hung on him this name of names, "The Portland Plasterer." Next Spring he took his whitewash brush an' went to Cleveland with a rush. He kicked up quite a stir. His big left arm was plenty strong to hid the knights o' swat along all 'round Ban Johnson's wheel. His jackknife wind-up, crossfire shoot an' all his steam an' curves to boot made good right off the reel.

He starred in Napanid three straight years. This season though, ol' Veau appears to've gone clear of his feud. The team went bad an' Veau went worse. His arm seemed always in a hearse when it was next to need. Bill Carrigan was sweet an' Veau an' Birny's patience got so lean the two fixed up a trade. With Boston's Sox Sylvanus may get goin' right again some day to keep the rep he's made.

Chief of German General Staff Superseded.

London, Oct. 5.—News reached here to-night that Lieut-General Holnith von Moitte has been superseded by General Vaights-Rhetz, as chief of the German General Staff.

General von Moitte is a nephew of the great strategist of the name, who engineered the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 and died in 1891. At the funeral in that year the Kaiser told Major von Moitte, as he then was, that he would be promoted to the rank of personal aide de camp. He was promoted to be Major-General in 1899 and appointed commander of the First Infantry Brigade of the Guards at Potsdam, and he became Lieutenant-General in 1902.

On January 1, 1908, General von Moitte assumed the office of chief of the General Staff, in succession to Count Schlieffen. It was common knowledge at that time that von Moitte did not consider himself qualified for so high an honor, and strove hard to avoid it, even declining the office on two occasions, but the Imperial was not to be thwarted.

General von Moitte has the reputation of being a serious, hard working soldier, as taciturn and silent as the more illustrious namesake, and a man who has done perhaps more to bring the German army to the fighting pitch than any other of his colleagues.

Of General Vaights-Rhetz, who succeeds General von Moitte, very little can be gathered, even from German reference books. His name is not even mentioned in "Wer Was." His father, however, was a great soldier, who was born in 1809, and rose to high rank in the Ministry for War. He commanded a division in 1870-1871, and afterwards was appointed Governor-General of Hanover. He died in 1877, and had an infantry regiment named after him.

Thus the new chief of staff may be described as a dark horse, and it remains to be seen whether he has inherited his father's ability, and whether he is a better man than the one he has displaced.

The military expert of the Standard, commenting on the removal of General von Moitte, says:
"If this is true, it is news indeed, for it will constitute evidence of serious panic in high places. Even in minor affairs of the world, it is not often that the policy known as 'swapping horses while crossing a stream' is adopted."

"There must be something very gravely wrong indeed if the Germans find it necessary to get rid of the man who originated and directed the whole of the strategy of their campaign and that at a vitally critical moment."

"At the same time one can understand that dissatisfaction is felt in high quarters with von Moitte's work, which has often been of kind calculated to make his uncle of famous memory turn in his grave, but then we do not know how many of the mistakes were due to von Moitte's bad judgment and how many to interference with his work by the Emperor or his Camarilla."

"One cannot, for instance, believe that von Moitte of his own initiative and free will withdrew troops from France at a moment when they were urgently needed to secure a decisive result in that area of war. Having withdrawn them, he cannot either imagine von Moitte sending them on a useless errand to East Prussia when their presence in Galicia might have saved the Austrian army from disaster."

Terms of Peace Which Germany Hoped to Exact.
The Antwerp correspondent of the London Express says: I am able to give, on the indirect authority of no less a personage than Marshal von der Goltz, military governor for the time being of the province of Brabant, the terms on which Germany would be prepared to allow France to maintain her independence as the result of a complete German victory.
It is true that these terms were laid down some weeks before the outbreak of war, and that now, in consequence of the "serious inconvenience" to which the Allies have put Germany, her terms—when she becomes victorious—are to be far more exacting; but that they represent what Germany regards as "most generous terms of peace" cannot be doubted.
THE TERMS.
The German conditions are as follows:
1.—France to hand over to Germany all her colonial possessions, and especially Algeria, Senegal, and the vast Indo-Chinese Empire.
2.—In France itself the fortresses of Belfort, as well as the town of Montbelliard, to become German, together with a long strip of French territory in the department of the Meurthe et Moselle, extending from Longuyon in the north to St. Die in the south, and comprising the towns of Raon l'Etape, Lunéville, Thioncourt, and Conflans. This district is rich in iron ore, and contains numerous prosperous blast furnaces and iron works. Germany is well supplied with coal mines but has an insufficiency of iron ore. She therefore considers it indispensable to acquire this wealthy iron-producing district, in which German capitalists have for years past acquired large interests.
3.—France to reduce her army to a maximum of 200,000 men for a period of twenty years, and not to build any forts along the eastern border.
4.—A special treaty of commerce to be entered into between Germany and France.
5.—France to pay over to Germany a war indemnity of twenty milliards of francs, £800,000,000. As a guarantee for the payment of this huge sum, the German imperial authorities to have control of the French Customs receipts at the five chief French seaports, and German troops to occupy the departments of the Meurthe et Moselle, the Marne, the Aube (in which is included the champagne district) until two-thirds of the war indemnity shall have been paid in gold.
These conditions were laid down with dogmatic precision by Marshal von der Goltz in an after dinner conversation which he had with a gentleman who then occupied a high diplomatic post in one of the Berlin Legations, but has since been transferred to another capital. This gentleman entertained a high opinion of Marshal von der Goltz, and was on terms of intimacy with him.—Montreal Star.

Estimate German Army at 4,800,000
Without Allowing for Losses, Swiss Put Force Under Arms at That Figure.
London, Oct. 3.—According to a Central News despatch from Berne, Swiss military men estimate that Germany now has actually under arms twenty-seven army corps of her regular troops and an equal number of reserves. A German army corps includes about 50,000 men on a war footing. Of these twenty-four are in France, six in Belgium, thirteen in East Prussia and eleven between Thor and Cracow.
There are in addition, the despatch adds, 1,500,000 men probably of the Landstrum and the volunteers serving in the interior, while 600,000 fresh recruits are reported to be in training sufficiently advanced for them to be ready for service in November.
Here and There.
EARL OF DEVON.—The Earl of Devon left Coachman's Cove at 7.30 p.m. yesterday, going north.

A NEW THEATRE.—A building on Hutchings Street has been taken over by Mr. J. Rossley, manager of the Star Theatre, and will be remodelled for theatrical purposes. Mr. Rossley is importing a new machine and will open the new theatre during the winter.
People are doing more reading to-day than ever before, and it is very important, to those who wear glasses that they should be properly fitted. If you have any trouble or are in doubt, go to TRAFNELL, the Eye-sight Specialist.—sept11 FOGOTA SAILS.—The S.S. Fogota, Capt. Dalton, sailed for the northward at noon to-day, taking a full freight and the following passengers in saloon:—Mrs. White, W. Blundon, E. B. Rowe, Moses Lockyer, Arthur Carter, E. White, Miss Blundon, and 12 in second class.
DIED.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR GALICIA.
VENICE, To-day.
Several battalions of troops have left Pola for Galicia in the past few days to fill the gaps in the Austrian forces.
2,000 INTERNED.
THE HAGUE, To-day.
The total number of interned Belgian and English soldiers enroute to Northern Holland is estimated at 2,000, exclusive of the wounded, who are being treated there in the cities near the Belgian border. The number of wounded has not yet been ascertained. Other soldiers have been interned but their number is still unreported.
TWO BOMBS ON OSTEND.
OSTEND, To-day.
A German aviator dropped two bombs on Ostend to-day; neither exploded.
RUSSIANS POSITION.
LONDON, To-day.
A despatch to the Central News from Rome says a telegram from Petrograd to the Tribune, states that no Germans are in the Provinces of Suwalki and Lamsa, Russian Poland, and that the Russian army continues its advance in East Prussia, that the entire districts of Lyck is now occupied by the forces of Emperor Nicholas. In addition the despatch says that the Russians are maintaining their positions in Hungary, Bukovina and Transylvania.

GERMAN STORY ABOUT POLAND.
LONDON, To-day.
The Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent sends the following German official communication concerning events in the eastern theatre of War: "After their expulsion from East Prussia, the Russian armies were pursued across the frontier. The centre of the German military operations is now in Poland. The whole of Poland, West of the Vistula, is now in German possession, the Russians occupying only Warsaw. During our retreat to East Prussian frontier our troops now here were not defeated but on the contrary repulsed any attacks of Russians."
BLAMES CHURCHILL.
LONDON, To-day.
The Morning Post editorial to-day severely attacks Churchill for what it describes the costly blunder in sending a small force of Marines to Antwerp. The newspaper expresses the belief that the British losses are greater than admitted and contends that if it was impossible to send a large military force to Antwerp, none at all should have been sent, and the Belgians should have been permitted to surrender without bombardment, as they would have done, but for British advice, which only resulted in loss of life and hampering the retirement of retreating Belgian army.

Old Perlican Notes.

A few days ago when the S. S. Prospero came from the north we received a visit from Rev. J. K. Curtis, B. A. On Saturday night last he gave us a very interesting lecture in the Methodist Church, and at the end of the lecture he pleased the people very much by showing them some very interesting picture slides. On account of the death of our Minister, Mr. Curtis occupied the pulpit on Sunday morning, and after sympathizing with us, gave us a very interesting sermon. Mr. Curtis is connected with the Sunday schools of Canada and Newfoundland.

The funeral of our late Pastor took place on Friday last, and the solemnity of the occasion reigned throughout the whole community. The following ministers were present: Revs. E. P. Ward, Blount, Galkrodger and Pitt. Each of the ministers took his part in the preaching service, and a very large gathering of people from this place and Grate's Cove was present, which showed that our late Pastor was beloved by all.

We had another visit from the S. S. Prospero on Wednesday, and there was quite a few passengers arrived by her, one of the passengers was acting sergt. March. He had been to the city for three or four days; his business there was to safely conduct an insane girl to the Lunatic Asylum. The girl belongs to Grate's Cove. While the acting sergeant was at the city he had the privilege of wishing good-bye to his son, Carl, who is one of our Volunteers that have gone to the front.

The berry picking season is practically over now, and it has not been an extra good one, but if it had been fine, warm weather, the season would have been a very good one. The people around here are not idle yet, because as soon as the berry picking season is over, potato digging is started; all the gardens around here now are dotted with men, women and children digging potatoes.

Three of our schooners left for the city yesterday: Rambler, Capt. Rodgers; C. W. G., Captain Rodgers; and the Stetico, Captain Button, each of them has a load of dry fish.

The telegraph office is very much frequented here since the war began, which shows that the people here are very much interested in the war news.

Some of the fishermen here have set their herring nets, and are obtaining fair catches of herring, which no doubt will be very palatable this winter.

Captain T. Strong arrived here this morning in his schooner from St. John's with a load of provisions.

High Prices of Provisions

Caused Riot — One Killed, Many Wounded.

By yesterday's mail the Board of Trade received the subjoined letter from Oporto, dated Sept. 25th, sent by Messrs. Linto and Costa:—

"Since we last wrote the demand has been very poor. Prices were already very high for this market before the war commenced but now, owing to the fall in exchange they have had to be raised to such an extent in order to realize the sterling required, that they are quite beyond the reach of the people and sales are in consequence very difficult and slow. At this time of year an improvement usually takes place, owing to the vintage but this year there is no animation whatever. Prospects for the sale of stocks on hand and cargoes to arrive, are very doubtful. The exchange which touched 3 1/2 D, is now quoted at from 35 to 38 D, nominal, and at this rate prices cannot be made to attract buyers or consumers. We cannot see any reason to expect an improvement in the exchange unless the Portuguese Government makes some arrangement to regulate it, and this is considered unlikely. Therefore, unless other markets can be found to pay the prices demanded by shippers, we fear they will have to accept lower prices here. The high prices of coffee, rice and sugar led to an attack by a mob on some stores on Friday night (18th inst.), considerable damage being done. Firing took place and one person was killed and many wounded. We were obliged to ask the authorities for protection for our stores. A second attempt was checked in time, the mob being dispersed by the Municipal Guards. We are now able to buy 90 day drafts on London so that there is no longer any difficulty in making remittances in this way, but it is difficult to obtain drafts on sight except for very small amounts."

Schooner Lost.

Last evening Messrs. Monroe and Co. received word to the effect that the schooner Nightingale was lost recently at Windsor's Harbour, while on her way to Safe Harbour, B.B., from the Labrador. The schooner was owned by Wm. Sturge.

One Dose and You Will Feel Better.

We are able to produce letters from all parts of Newfoundland which highly recommend the wonderful results derived from using this preparation called Prescription "A."

It is for sale in nearly every outport from the leading business places. Why are you too tired to do anything? A feeling of distress after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headaches. You feel more tired when rising in the morning than you were retiring at night. Your sleep is disturbed and you feel as if you are going to suffocate and afraid to go to sleep again.

You have to be careful of what you eat for your breakfast. Why go on suffering like this when you can be cured by obtaining a bottle of Stafford's Prescription "A" — small size, 25c.; postage, 5c. extra. Large size, 50c.; postage, 10c. extra. Stafford's Liniment and Phoratox Cough Mixture are still in great demand.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The K. E. Brigade, in charge of Lieut.-Colonel James, took a tramp to Carbonar last evening, and attended service at St. James' Church. They returned to town at 11 o'clock at night.

The Road Board have men employed putting gravel and beach on the side walks of Water Street. This will be a great improvement when the coating is properly settled down.

Another very necessary improvement is that being done on the north side of Long Hill. In the spring, when water begins to pour down the side drain, there is generally a tear up of the street at the junction of Long Hill and Harvey Street. The Board are now putting 2-inch planks along each side of the drain. This will no doubt be an improvement, but concrete would be cheaper in the long run and better for the present.

Allies Planted Mines

In Trenches Under Enemy, Then Pressed Button.

Paris, Oct. 8.—The report which has just reached Paris of the blowing up of the German redoubt north of Soissons gives the following details: The Germans were so strongly entrenched that the French and British had been unable to dislodge them. Attack after attack was made, but the invaders mowed down the soldiers of the coalition forces.

Finally French and British soldiers dug entrenchments a couple of hundred yards distant from the German lines under the protection of a hot fire. Under the direction of British engineers, soldiers set to work and dug deep tunnels underneath the German earthworks.

The tunnels were filled with dynamite with electric contacts, so that it could be exploded by pressing a button. The French and British then retired and charges were set off. Every German in the trenches was killed.

Mr. Ashbourne, who has been in the city on business the past few days, returns to Twillingate by this evening's train.

Portia Returns.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. J. Kean, returned from the westward last evening, bringing the following passengers: Mrs. J. Hallett, Miss L. J. Tulk, Rev. A. E. Tulk, Jas. F. Bancroft, Theo. Jackman, P. J. McCormack, Geo. Hewitt and 22 in steerage. The Portia reports that the fishery on the S. W. coast is almost over. Bad weather and a lack of bait is a drawback to the fishery. The herring fishery has commenced at Bonne Bay and Bay of Islands and the outlook for a successful voyage is bright.

Three Reel War Feature.

The three reel war feature presented at the Crescent Picture Palace last night is pronounced by the patrons of that popular picture house one of the best war productions of the year, "A House Divided." It is well worth seeing and those who have not seen it should not miss the last opportunity to-night.

The comedy subjects are also of a first class kind, especially "Going for Father," it is one of the best comedies we have seen in a long while.

Mr. Frederick Knights sang a very fine ballad: "Good Bye, My Love, Good Bye," and had to respond to repeated encores. The same programme will be repeated to-night and we guarantee a first class hour's enjoyment to all who attend.

On Wednesday "The Tramp Reporter," a two reel feature featuring Edwin August will be shown.

Unconscious Egotism.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The most remarkable thing about some people's egotism is their naive unconsciousness of it. We were talking about an inexpensive make of automobiles the other day—the kind in which sensible middle-class folk delight and snobbish folks are afraid to appear. One was running it down and another defending it. Madame of the grand manner came to the rescue of the defending party. "It is a good car," she stated authoritatively. "Why I wouldn't mind having a car like that myself." And she beamed upon us with the consciousness of having forever removed the stigma of cheapness and undesirability from that car.

Yet I am sure she was absolutely unconscious of egotism, utterly insensible to the fact that she had said in tone and manner, "Even I, who am superior to the common run, would not mind owning that kind of a car, therefore, anyone else should be proud to have one."

Again, we were listening to a beginner on the flute. He played a single tune or two with considerable spirit but several mistakes and apologized for his performance. "Never mind," said the naive egotist, "I don't think I could do so well." As if that at once covered the performer with glory and honor! As if that was what he wanted to hear! What he wanted to be told was that he did the thing well, not that he did it ill but need not mind, because even "I" (who, by the way, is not at all musical) could do no better.

Another manifestation of this naive variety of egotism appears when the naive egotist shows you a picture of some group scene in which he is included. He never pauses to question whether the likeness of himself is your one absorbing interest in the picture. He assumes that as a matter of course and either asks you to indulge in the pleasure of picking him out, or thrusting an arm over your shoulder, points to the hallowed spot and says proudly, "That's I," or more likely, "That's me."

The completeness with which a man has learned to exclude the personal from his conversation is one of the sure hall-marks of his education in the broader sense of that word. When a man tells lengthy stories of which he himself is the hero you may know that he isn't really educated, though he may have been through half a dozen colleges. The anecdote about one's self need not be absolutely excluded from conversation, but it must possess two requirements to be admitted, —it must be short and the point must be on the raconteur.

To each of us, by the nature of things, the great I-am is the center of the universe. That is inevitable and there is nothing wrong about it, but if we want to avoid friction with our neighbor's universe, we must remember he has a perfectly satisfactory center for his solar system and not try to force him to adopt our center.

Red Cameron

Cut some rather fat ham or bacon into slices, and fry in a nice brown; lay them aside to keep warm. Then mix together equal quantities of potatoes and cabbage or any vegetable left from dinner, and fry in the fat left from the ham. Serve with equal quantities of the mixture on the bacon. Season to taste.

A Thought for the Times

THE WAR—CHAPTER XVIII.
I. C. MORRIS.

It is generally admitted that the result of this war will change the geography of the map of Europe. Of this there cannot be much doubt; but this is not all, for other changes than these of the map of Europe must surely follow. The issues at stake in this war are too great to pass away without leaving in their trail the impress of their existence.

The Western Hemisphere will have its changes as well as Europe, both in North and South America, and the trend of these changes will be to consolidate those powers which have long been antagonistic to each other. A better condition of government will be adopted by South America, and the cause of the disputes and revolutions which of late have devastated Mexico will be amended.

These reforms were coming, even before this war broke out; but they will be hastened now and ratified perhaps sooner than they otherwise would have been. South America, though but a new country when compared to Europe, has had quite a disaster and revolution enough, and the lessons she has learned since January last should certainly tend to open her eyes to what is for her welfare; and the present European war should also incite her to adopt a better mode of government.

But the changes which mostly concern us are those of more northern latitudes, for North America, as well as South, will be affected by the result of this war. There are aspects in which the whole world is being affected, and will be affected; but our own share in the whirlpool is what we wish to write of in this chapter. Like South America, the change was coming to us, but now it is being hastened, and the question is in the air, and whether we wish it or not, or whether we believe it or not, does not make much difference, the result is approaching and the ratification of the question is nearer than ever before—it is the question which politicians call Confederation.

But confederation is not the subject of which this article treats, although there is a sameness in it. The position which we take to-day is that of the Imperialist. This implies the Empire—the Empire at its best, the Empire at its greatest, the Empire East and West, an Empire larger than any other dominion, and greater than any other power.

The Empire we say is great, but she can be greater, and she will be greater. She is the stronger already because of the loyalty manifested since the outbreak of this war; but stronger though the Empire be, it is not without its weak spots, and it is in the discovery of these that the nation will establish its strength. The real effect of this war should open our eyes to what we before could not see, and it should show us wherein we may "lengthen our cords and strengthen our stakes." It should show us the value of Newfoundland from a naval standpoint, and as the Gibraltar of the St. Lawrence, and it should also show us that to be of the greatest good to the Empire, the interests of British North America must not be estranged. These results will develop themselves, and if men will look at them from a patriotic and imperialistic standpoint they will be adjusted on their proper merits, and not upon the mere merits of partisanship. It will not be a question of rounding off the Dominion of Canada, nor will it be for the purpose of gratifying the ambitions of any Canadian statesman, that these things will be considered. No, none of these. We have had those sort of things quite long enough. The unifying of the Empire, and the consolidation of British North America, is the next great question after this war, and it will be found that this will be confirmed by imperial counsels, and therefore will be above all local or colonial smallness. It is only from such a standpoint as this that a proper union can take place between the Dominion of Canada and the other British North American possessions, including the British West Indies and probably St. Pierre. To accomplish this right will be the duty of future statesmen, and it is statesmen that will be required, and not hot-headed partisans.

The changes of the war will be many, but if the right men be at the helm, and due precautions taken, then not only will British North America be consolidated in its government, but its commercial interests will be advanced fifty per cent. America on the whole stands to gain much by the advantages which will accrue from this war; and in an especial manner should Canada share in these benefits, but none should reap a greater harvest than our own country. We have not yet got to where we should be, but we will get there, and whether it be near or far, or whether it be by war or by arbitration, or by a universal peace, the best days of Newfoundland are yet to come, nor can any power stay their approach. We have always believed in Newfoundland, and our faith in her resources, and in the future, is stronger to-day than ever before.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hanson Fuesle

An Abrupt Departure

Challoner, in the meantime, had paid the boat-house keeper for the damage to the snagged, but by this time recovered canoe, and had at the same time made a straight-forward statement of the circumstances under which the mishap had occurred. The story spread rapidly, was the talk of the Inn for a day or two, and then was forgotten amid the new excitement furnished by a tennis tournament which in turn had laid hold of the guests' attention.

Meanwhile, however, Marian had been contriving to keep out of the way of Challoner, slipping away for ramblings by herself, or pleading work in her room. Besides, she was certain that some little talk was current, growing out of the fact that she had been seen a good deal in the company of this married man. In justice, not only to herself, but to him, she had resolved that much as she disliked the idea of foregoing this fascinating companionship, it would be for the best to do so.

"I'm sorry that I've made such an abrupt nuisance of myself," he said to her at last, "as to make you contrive to keep out of my way."

"Why, you've done nothing of the sort," she exclaimed.

"You deny my first allegation, but admit the second," he smiled. "I'm sorry I've ceased to interest you, Miss Winthrop."

"You haven't," she said. "And what's more," she added steadily, "you know you haven't."

He laughed delightedly. "Good," he said. "Then tell me what's worrying you," he continued seriously. "People are talking."

"Let them. Friendship is not listed in the criminal statutes, is it? I know, of course, that there's an absurd unwritten law in the book of ridiculous conventions that a married man should not see or even admit the existence of women in general."

"I am thinking of Mrs. Challoner, your wife," said Marian. "She wouldn't thank me for monopolizing your time and attention, even during her absence abroad."

"You're too generous."

"I've been too selfish."

"What's all this I hear about people talking? What are they saying?"

"One woman has informed me that you're married."

"And what did you say?"

"I told her what a charming woman your wife is, and how devoted you are to her."

"I'm very glad that's understood. I'm glad you understand that I am genuinely devoted to Mrs. Challoner. This being true, what possible objection can there be to our friendship—what intrinsic objection?"

"The objection that in a little place like this, anybody's affairs are everybody's business. Who knows what distorted and incredible stories may reach Mrs. Challoner's ears and cause her unnecessary disturbance?"

"I don't know but you're 'right,' agreed Challoner. Then he added abruptly, "By the way, I am leaving for New York to-morrow morning. It is important that I return there."

"So soon?" demanded Marian, surprised.

"Yes. Shall you be going back soon? Let me know when you return. I'd like to take you to see some of the new plays."

"To-morrow—Marian Makes Ready to Follow.

DEATH OF MURAT 1815. One of the leading characters of Napoleon's court and camp. He commenced life as a waiter, but afterwards enlisted in the French Army, where his presence and daring attracted the notice of Napoleon, who appointed him on his staff. In 1808 Murat was made King of the Two Sicilies, and in attempting to escape from Corsica after the fall of Napoleon, he was captured and shot.
SIR HENRY IRVING died 1905, aged 87. Great English actor, whose Shakespearean productions at the Lyceum were given with an attention to art in every detail, previously unknown on the British stage. About his acting there was a singular magnetic quality which compelled the sympathy of the spectator. He died suddenly after performing Becket in Tennyson's play and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

TO CANADA'S DEPARTING SOLDIERS.
(By Henry J. Kilbourn.)
O the pipers lead them, lead them far,
They crowd so fast to war,
And a lightning breaks on the cannon's track
But the cheers of the British are carried back—
(They come so fast to the war).
Then roll this song each regiment strong,
Down Canada's mighty river;
For God and the King and the Merrie Old Land
And a Peace to last forever.
O the regiments throng and throng and throng—
"His Honor calls them along,
For the hero band of a brave little land
In the face of millions made their stand,
But they shall not stand alone!
Then roll this song, each regiment strong,
Down Canada's mighty river,
For God and the King, and a brave little land,
And a Peace to last forever.
Then sail ye, sons of England all,
For the judgment trumpets call:
Ye shall end the age-long reign of the sword
Ere Christ's birth-night, by the strength of the Lord.
In the age-long Reign of Love,
Then roll this song, each regiment strong,
Down Canada's mighty river,
For God and the King and the peace to be—
A Peace to last forever.

Reid Will Be Tried In Montreal.

After a private sitting before Judge Lanctot, which lasted the whole of yesterday afternoon and a considerable part of this morning, it was decided to release Robert H. Reid, New York financier, on bail. Mr. Reid appeared before Judge St. Cyr yesterday on a charge of obtaining $750,000 worth of stock from John McMartin by false pretences, and was arrested later on a second charge, that of presenting a forged note for $100,000 at Halifax. It was also decided to have the Halifax charges heard in Montreal before Judge St. Cyr.

The circumstances lead to what is acknowledged by lawyers to be one of the prettiest legal tangles ever aired in a Montreal Court.

Detective Callaghan, of Halifax, arrived yesterday with a warrant, signed by his chief of police ordering Reid's arrest. To be valid in Montreal, the warrant had to be signed by a local magistrate. Callaghan, was taken before Judge Lanctot, who was not informed of the identity of the accused, who at that moment was being tried in the adjoining court room on the other charge. Judge Lanctot accordingly signed the warrant, unaware of the complications that would ensue, since he did not know that Reid was already committed for trial in Montreal. As soon as Reid left the Court room the Halifax man placed him under arrest, and he was taken over to detective headquarters, where he had to spend the night, as the bail he had given for his freedom during his trial on the Montreal charge, did not give him immunity from the warrant from Halifax.

The whole of yesterday afternoon was spent by Mr. Reid and H. Elliott, K.C., and N. K. Laffamme, K.C., his counsel before Judge Lanctot, while the lawyers argued with L. T. Marechal, K.C., counsel for McMartin, who laid the first charge, as to the disposal of the complaint from Halifax, which was made by the Job Co., a large firm dealing in general stores and fishery supplies.

It was pointed out to the judge by all three lawyers that the presentation of the $100,000 note to the Job Company was connected with the other charge of false pretences made by McMartin, millionaire owner of the Larose mine, who did not long ago. They argued that the two cases could be tried together.

Detective Callaghan, of Halifax, in the meantime, was unwilling to lose the man whom he considered his prisoner, although the lawyers were arguing over the point as to whether he was a prisoner or no. Finally, it was decided this morning that a recent statute provided a solution of the difficulty, which would allow Reid his liberty, and at the same time keep him in Montreal. By virtue of the statute in question, another province, while, actually under arrest, on another charge, may be tried in the district where he is under arrest if there are witnesses who are to be heard in the second charge residing in that district. As there are several people in Montreal who are to be called upon to testify in the matter, Judge St. Cyr will have the powers of a Nova Scotia judge delegated to him, and will be entitled to hear the case. —Montreal Star, Oct. 8.

Killed at Vermont U.S.A.

A message received in the city yesterday conveys the sad intelligence of the death of Mr. John Power, formerly of this city, who was killed in Vermont, U.S.A., on Saturday last. No particulars as to the manner of death have been forwarded. The message was received by Mr. James Power, of the firm of Parker & Monroe, a cousin of the deceased. Jack Power, as he was familiarly called, was a resident of the States for the last thirty years, and held an important position with the firm of Jordan Marsh & Co. He visited this city some twelve years ago with the Old Home Week Committee. His good mother resides at Boston. Messrs. James, John, of the Singer Co., and Richard Power, stonemason, this city, are first cousins of the deceased.

Address

From the Church Women's Association of Belleoram, to the Rev. Arthur E. Tuik, B.A., Rector of the Parish of Belleoram:

Rev. and Dear Sir,—With feelings of great regret we learnt some time ago of your having resigned the Rectorship of the Parish of Belleoram. And now, the time having arrived for your departure from us, we unanimously avail ourselves of the occasion as a fitting opportunity to present you with a few words conveying our kindly respect for you and our deep and sincere appreciation of your great and lively interest always taken in the humble endeavours of our Association as well as in all other matters pertaining to the church and church work.

Our labors for the Church have ever been lightened by your kindly words of cheer and encouragement, and that with the knowledge that the proceeds of our work would be wisely and judiciously handled by you in the best interest of the church we all love, ever incited us on to greater endeavours. True, our greatest achievements have been very insignificant indeed, but however little they have appeared in our eyes, we have always been pleased to find that you have thought them worthy of your hearty commendation.

We also wish to inform you how much we have appreciated the annual services held in the church in our behalf, and the kindly words of wisdom and advice delivered to us here.

And, in conclusion, we respectfully ask your acceptance of the accompanying purse as a small tangible evidence of our esteem and regard for you, with our hearty and best wishes for your future happiness and prosperity.

Yours very respectfully,
Mrs. Betsy Cluett, President; Mrs. Martha Dicks, Vice-President; Mrs. Emily J. Dicks, Asst. Vice-President; Mrs. Mary A. Dicks, Treasurer; Mrs. Cecilia Kearley, Asst. Treasurer; Mrs. Emily Keeping, Doorkeeper; Mrs. Martha Keeping, Secretary.

Magic "Nerviline" Cures Toothache, Earache.

IT RELIEVES EVERY EXTERNAL PAIN.

Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Tight Chest and Hoarseness.

It's when sickness come at night, when you are far from the druggist or the doctor, that's when you need Nerviline most. Experienced mothers are never without it. One of the children may have toothache. Without Nerviline—a sleepless night for the entire household. With Nerviline the pain is relieved quickly. It may be earache, perhaps a stiff neck, or one of the kiddies coughing with a bad chest cold. Nothing can give quicker results than vigorous rubbing with this old-time family remedy. Nerviline is too useful, too valuable to be without. For lumbago, lame back, sciatica or neuralgia there is no liniment with half of Nerviline's power to penetrate and ease the pain. As a family safeguard, as something to ward off sickness and to cure the minor ills that will occur in every family, to cure pain anywhere, you can find nothing to compare with old-time Nerviline, which for forty years has been the most widely used family remedy in the Dominion. The most economical size is the large 50c. family size bottle, small trial size 25c. All dealers sell Nerviline.

Farewell Week of THE FOUR BRITISH BELLES.

On Saturday the four British Belles will finish their engagement at the Rossley Theatre after one of the most successful vaudeville turns ever seen here. Last night there was a good big house again. Everybody is loud in their praise of those clever girls. Every night there will be a change of act; there are many requests for Miss Webster to appear as the Ragged Newspaper Boy who sang the beautiful pathetic ballad on losing his pal; also the beautiful Scotch song: "Sing us a song of Bonnie Scotland. Miss Crank gave a splendid tamborine dance last night. Miss Era and Gracie Keen sisters, in a dainty Irish song and dance; the sisters Keen are two handsome ladies with grace in every movement. The pictures were up to the Rossley high-water mark of perfection, for they are the best that are made, and one can't have better than the best. The musical selections rendered by Mrs. Nurse were also very appropriate and delightful.

Lame Duck in Port.

The British steamer Waltham, Captain Hocken, put into port this morning in a damaged condition. The ship was bound to Portismouth, England, from Mobile with a large cargo of timber, principally Pitch Pine and was fifteen days out.

Boisterous weather was met at sea a few days ago. The cargo shifted and the cargo became difficult to manage. To make matters worse the deck of the vessel started and Capt. Hocken decided to bring his ship here for repairs. The Furness Withy Co. are the agents for the Waltham, which leaves here again to-night for her destination, after having repairs made to her rudder and getting her cargo adjusted.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—(Official.)

To our left the engagements of cavalry are continuing in the neighborhood of La Bassée, Estaires and Kazebruck. Between Arras and Oise the enemy attempted several attacks which completely failed, especially between Lassigny and Roye. In the centre we have slightly progressed on the heights overlooking the right bank of the Aisne, north of Soissons, east and southeast of Verdun. To our right in the Vosges the enemy made a night attack which failed. Some success is noted in the region of Ban de Supt, north of St. Die. The flag taken yesterday belonged to the sixth infantry regiment. A brigade of marine sharpshooters were engaged all day of the 9th and during that night against the German forces, with the result that the latter were repulsed with heavy German losses estimated at two hundred killed, thirty-nine wounded and one missing. Yesterday two German aeroplanes threw twenty bombs on Paris. One fell on the roof of Notre Dame during High Mass, but did not explode; another struck near the Bank of France, and a third on Montmartre Boulevard. This morning a German aeroplane started another raid and threw a bomb which fell between two trains, but did not explode. Measures have been taken to put a stop to these raids.

Belgium.—According to late information from Antwerp, the Germans are only occupying yet the suburbs of the town. The 24 forts of both banks of the River Escalut (Schelde) are resisting energetically.

Russia.—The battle is still raging on the frontier of eastern Prussia, northwest of Lyck, but the Germans have been compelled to retreat and are destroying the bridges as they fall back. In Eastern Poland, between Ewangorod and Sandomer, engagements and artillery duels are going on, the enemy's columns reaching up to the Vistula.

FRENCH OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—This official statement was given out to-night: "There is nothing in particular to report. Violent attacks have occurred along the front. We have gained ground at some points, and have not lost any at any place."

OPTIMISTIC OPINIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The British-Belgian troops, who retired from Antwerp before the German occupation, with the exception of those who are now interned on

Dutch soil, as the result of having had to cross the border, have been swallowed up as completely as if they had been buried underneath the ruined forts. For military reasons their positions and the area of hostilities in Belgium must remain obscure until the turn of events bring them sharply to the fore again, as was the case when, after the fall of Antwerp, the British public learned for the first time that the British forces had assisted the garrison. Optimistic as always the British press, besides contending that Antwerp is of no importance to Germany as a naval base, finds solace in the argument that the release of the Allied troops there more than counter-balance the troops which Germany will send from that point. COL. Frederick Maude, retired army officer and author of several standard military books, writing to to-day's Evening Standard, says: "This morning finds the Belgians with five-sixths of the British contingent perfectly ready to renew the fight, with their supplies and reinforcements from overseas, amply safeguarded. After despatching the necessary garrison for Antwerp, losses and so forth, it is exceedingly improbable that the Germans have more than 60 thousand men to follow them, which gives us a clear gain of forty thousand to our left wing, without counting reinforcements which we shall pick up on the way."

DOMINION GIFTS.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Official Press Bureau to-night announced that the British War Office had decided that the $285,000 which the women of Canada had subscribed and transmitted through the Duchess of Connaught for Hospital purposes, shall be devoted as follows: The War Office will utilize $125,000 in the purchase of motor ambulance cars half the machines to be used in France the other half in this country; and the balance of the sum subscribed will be used in equipping a Naval Hospital, with one hundred beds, to be known as the Canadian Women's Hospital. It is also announced that the War Office had accepted the offer made by Australia to send over another light horse brigade with a field ambulance corps.

RUSSIANS FORCED TO RETREAT.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The finger of the censor having twisted the tourniquet on all sources of news from Belgium, just now, perhaps the most potentially important scene of fighting in the great war the British people were forced to content themselves to-day with an official communication from Paris. Even closer analysis of this showed no marked change in the situation favoring either side. From the East some tidings come in of a reversal, in the form of despatches both from Vienna and Petrograd, indicating that the Austrian army at Przemysl, so often reported surrounded, hopelessly outclassed, and on the very verge of surrender had, with the aid of reinforcements, turned the Russians and forced them to retreat. The first news of this character, during the morning from the Austrian capital, followed later in the day by what purports to be a Petrograd admission that the Russians had abandoned the siege of Przemysl for strategical reasons, with the object of drawing up a new line against the Austro-German army at other points in Galicia. Whatever be the truth of the situation, the Russians have been claiming a unbroken series of victories in their sweep through Galicia, and the coincidence in to-day's despatches, supplemented as they were by more circumstantial accounts from Vienna of a vigorous Austro-German offensive, seemed to presage important news.

HOPES FOR ROUMANIAN AID.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 12.—An official statement given out to-day expressed the belief that the death on Saturday of King Charles of Roumania, removes an obstacle to the turning of Roumania to the cause of the Allies, to which end recent Russian diplomatic efforts were unavailing. It is said further that the sympathies of the Roumanian people, who

In the past have shown that they were opposed to the championing of Prussia by the late King, will now assert themselves. Consequently according to Russian authorities, Roumania will give every assistance to Russia by furnishing provisions and transporting troops for Germany.

ABANDONED SIEGE OF PRZEMYSL.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—A despatch from Rome says that a message from Petrograd states that the Russians have abandoned the siege of Przemysl in Austrian Galicia, in order to put themselves in a strategic position to meet the Austro-German army.

VAGUE REPORTS.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—An official communication from Paris indicates how the left wing is stretching daily and nightly further west and north, and will soon reach the coast if the opposing sides continue throwing out cavalry in an endeavor to outflank or break through. The Allies make no claim to victory. The afternoon statement opens with the remark that these cavalry operations continue as far north and west as Hazebrouck, a point hardly more than a good day's walk from Calais. When the Allies claimed yesterday that they had driven the Germans from Aire, London learned for the first time that the Germans had made so much progress west from Amantieres, which they reached last week. Presumably the allies still hold the ground they claim to have regained, but the Germans are throwing more men westward and putting up a hard fight. The communication does not make plain which side holds the town nearest the coast. At nowhere along the battle line do the Allies say they have made any progress except at the centre on the right bank of the Aisne below Soissons. At two other points, notably between Arras and the Oise and on the right of the Vosges, it is said, German attacks have been repulsed. The paragraph near the end of the official communication saying it is understood the Germans are occupying only suburbs of Antwerp, while 24 forts along the Scheldt still are holding out, has been received in London with considerable surprise and skepticism. In view of the announcement of the British War Office that the city had been occupied by the Germans and unanimous accounts from correspondents to the same effect, together with the Berlin official statement that the invaders took virtual possession of the city. Probably stirred by the bomb dropping exploits of German air craft over Paris, London seems to be prepared for such visitors. Official notice has been served persons living near the mouth of the Thames that they should be ready to seek their cellars at the first sound of firing, as there will be no time to spread news in any more formal way. Recruiting through Britain, particularly in London, has been booming since the fall of Antwerp, the talk of the Germans, advancing from there to Ostend having seemingly brought the war closer home to the people. The whereabouts of the Belgian Queen is still matter of conjecture, and the same vagueness surrounds the King's reported wounds.

GERMANS BUILT WALL OF STEEL AROUND THEIR ENGINEERS.

WHILE THEY WORKED. Antwerp, Oct. 8.—The crossing of the River Nethe by the Germans was one of the most spectacular episodes of the present war. The Germans first tried to build pontoon bridges under the protection of their heavy artillery. The Belgians pushed their guns forward and frustrated six separate attempts in which the Germans clustered their heavy field artillery at one point and simply built a wall of steel projectiles around their engineers. The latter hurriedly threw four sets of pontoons into place, and then two German divisions were rushed across and carried the Belgian positions at the point of the bayonet.

AUSTRALIAN TROOPS GIVEN GREAT SEND-OFF.

Melbourne, Oct. 7.—Another remarkable demonstration took place in Sydney to-day, when the New South Wales portion of the first expeditionary force paraded the city streets. Business was entirely suspended, all the main thoroughfares were decorated, and private employers allowed their workmen special leave to enable them to cheer the troops. It is estimated over 100,000 people witnessed the march.

RUSSIAN CRUISER SUNK.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 13.—The official communication issued yesterday announces that on October 11th, the Russian armored cruiser Pallada was torpedoed in the Baltic Sea by a German submarine and sank with all her crew. The text of the communication which was made public by the Marine Department, follows: "Oct. 10.—German submarines sighted in the Baltic Sea. Same day in early morning, submarines attacked cruiser Admiral Makarov, which had stopped to search a suspected barque flying a commercial flag of the Netherlands. The submarine enemy launched several torpedoes, which luckily missed the mark, and caused no damage to the cruiser. October 11th at 2 o'clock in the afternoon submarines of enemy again attacked our cruisers Bayan and Pallada which were patrolling the Baltic, and although cruisers opened in time a very strong fire, one of the submarines succeeded in launching torpedoes against Pallada, whereupon an explosion resulted and cruiser sank with all her crew."

BOSTON 'BRAVES' VICTORS.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—The Boston Braves won the third game in the World's Series Baseball Game this afternoon, with a score of 5 to 4. At the end of the ninth, teams were tied, 2 to 2. In the tenth, both teams scored 2; no score in the 11th; in the twelfth, Boston scored 1 to Philadelphia's nothing, thus winning the game.

The Mateless Woman.

(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.) After all this slaughter of marriageable men in Europe, what is to become of Europe's marriageable women? Unable to find husbands or the chance of self-support in countries at once depleted and impoverished, multitudes of them will flock to America. Cheer up! For Europe this means a solution for perhaps the direst of post-bellum problems. For America it promises to restore the sex balance in immigration and to abolish the servant girl question. Both sides of the sea there will resound a long and grateful amen!

Sheer white materials may be made into charming, inexpensive gowns by etching before making up. A morning glory design is excellent.

Game Results in a Draw.

The opening game of the second round of the inter-collegiate series was played between the Methodist and Bishop Field College teams yesterday afternoon, and resulted in a draw, both teams securing four goals each.

The weather conditions were unfavourable for a good exhibition, a strong breeze making it difficult to keep the ball under control. The game opened with the B. F. C. boys defending the western goal. Having the wind in their favour, they managed to keep the ball down field, though their opponents' made some good dashes for the Pelldian goal. The play was rather one-sided all through, and when the teams crossed the line the B. F. C. boys had 4 goals to their credit, their opponents failing to find the net.

Upon changing ends, the Methodists put forth their mettle, and after some good combination scored their first goal within ten minutes of the start.

The B. F. C. team then assumed the defensive, but despite their exertions No. 2 goal was landed safely from a well placed corner kick. The excitement gradually increased and some one on the fence said that the Pelldians were rattled. White was speaking the third goal was landed for the Methodists, and the supporters of their team rent most with applause. Play continued most interesting during the remainder of the game, the Pelldians working like Trojans to check the advances of their opponents. Shortly before full time the equalizer was landed, and was followed by a period of excitement during which the small boy was unable to contain himself. The Methodists worked hard during the four minutes that remained, but owing to the high wind they were unable to keep the ball under control, and no further scoring was done when the game finished the score was 4 goals each.

Mr. W. J. Higgins refereed the game and the line up was as follows:—

Methodist College.—Grant, goal; Curtis, Butler, backs; Stick, Sellers, Halfyard, halves; Mews, Watts, Trapnell, Forbes, Stick, forwards.

B. F. C.—Parsons, goal; Caldwell, Constable, backs; Jerrett, Hunt, Tilley, halves; White, Bishop, Wilson, Williams, LeMessurier, forwards.

The table now stands:—S. B. C., 4 points; Meth. College, 2 points; B. F. C., 1 point.

On to-morrow afternoon the St. Bon's and Methodists will be the players and an interesting game is expected.

India's Loyal Princes.

NO LACK OF MEN, AND MANY LACS OF RUPEES.

The Kaiser, it is said, counted upon an uprising of India's forces when he declared war against Great Britain, for had his spies not told him that the natives were seething with discontent against British rule? Never was a monarch more woefully misled and mistaken, for with one accord the rulers of the native States in India, his sixteen-year-old grandson, Sir Pertab is one of the most popular rulers in India, and for many years was an intimate friend of Queen Victoria, to whom he wrote constantly, giving her his views upon current Indian affairs of importance.

The Maharajah of Baroda, who has placed his troops and resources at the disposal of the British Government, is one of the most powerful of Indian rulers, as well as one of the wealthiest. His forefathers fought against us in the Indian Mutiny, but the Maharajah is proud and eager to be on our side to-day. He rules over a State larger than Wales, and has an income which is said to be more than £2,000,000 a year.

Another familiar Prince is the Maharajah of Mysore, who has placed fifty lacs of rupees (about £230,000) at the disposal of the Indian Government for expenditure in connection with an Expeditionary Force. His State contains nearly 6,000,000 Hindus, who contribute the flower of our Indian Army, and he is one of those Indian rulers entitled to the Imperial salute of twenty-one guns.

The Maharajah of Gwalior, in addition to sharing the expenses of the hospital ship, the idea of which originated with himself and the Begum of Bhopal, has offered to place large sums of money at the disposal of the Government of India and to provide horses as remounts.

This Indian Prince, however, has in the past given many evidences of his loyalty and generosity. It was he who gave £2,000 to King George to be distributed among charitable institutions in commemoration of the Coronation. He accompanied the British Expedition to China eleven years ago, and presented on that occasion a hospital ship for the accommodation of the wounded. He is one of the most energetic and enlightened rulers of India.

Mention of the Begum of Bhopal recalls a visit which she paid to this country two or three years ago, when she was presented to King George and Queen Mary. She reigns over a territory of 7,000 square miles, consisting of about 1,000,000 inhabitants. She is an extremely accomplished woman, with an intense admiration for all things English, and is beloved by all her subjects.

Another potent ruler is the Maharajah of Patiala, who is also on his way to the front. Patiala has a splendid record of loyalty behind him, for in 1857, when practically the whole of Hindustan had revolted against the British, and the Sikhs were wavering, the Rajah of that day, with only one attendant, rode into the nearest British station and placed at the disposal of the Government not only his fighting men but the whole of his treasury.—Til Bits.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

SIR PERCY SCOTT

On Submarines and Battleships.

"The functions of a vessel of war were:

(1) To attack ships that come to bombard our ports.

(2) To attack ships that come to blockade us.

(3) To attack ships conveying a landing party.

(4) To attack the enemy's fleet.

"The submarine renders 1, 2 and 3 impossible, as no man of war will dare to come even within sight of a coast that is adequately protected by submarines; therefore the functions of a battleship as regards 1, 2 and 3 both defensively and offensively, have disappeared.

"The fourth function of a battleship is to attack an enemy's fleet; but there will be no fleet to attack, as it will not be safe for a fleet to put to sea. This has been demonstrated in all recent manoeuvres both at home and abroad, where submarines have been employed, and the demonstration should have made us realize that, now that submarines have come on, battleships are of no use either for offensive or defensive purposes; and, consequently, building any more in 1914 will be a misuse of money subscribed by the citizens for the defence of the Empire.

"In war time the scouting aeroplanes will always be high above on the lookout, and the submarines in constant readiness as are the engines of a fire station. If an enemy is sighted the siren sounds, and the launch of a flotilla of submarines will be slipped. Whether it be night or day, fine or rough, they must go out to search for their quarry—if they find her she is doomed, and they give no quarter; they cannot board her and take her as a prize, as in the olden days; they only wait until she sinks, then return home without even knowing the number of human beings that they have sent to the bottom of the ocean. Will any battleship expose herself to such a dread certainty of destruction? I say, No."

When serving any kind of hard fruit, pour over a little boiling water instead of cold; the fruit will cook in half the time, and so save gas. If the sugar is added when the fruit is cold, much less sugar will be required.

Mention should also be made of the Maharajah of Patiala, who is also on his way to the front. Patiala has a splendid record of loyalty behind him, for in 1857, when practically the whole of Hindustan had revolted against the British, and the Sikhs were wavering, the Rajah of that day, with only one attendant, rode into the nearest British station and placed at the disposal of the Government not only his fighting men but the whole of his treasury.—Til Bits.

Somebody in your family has an obstinate cough or a bad throat or chest cold that has been hanging on and refuses to yield to treatment, get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex and make it into 16 ounces of cough syrup, and watch that cough vanish.

Pour the 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 64 cents, and gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of the most effective remedy, at a saving of 8¢. A day's use will usually overcome severe cough. Easily prepared in 15 minutes—full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste. Children like it.

It's really remarkable how promptly and easily it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. A splendid remedy for bronchitis, winter coughs, bronchial catarrh and whooping cough.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in gualacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for 2½ ounces of Pinex, and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction goes with this remedy, or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Redmond Asks Reconciliation Over Home Rule.

London, Oct. 5.—John E. Redmond, the Irish leader, in making recruiting speeches at Westford yesterday, eloquently appealed for a reconciliation on the Home Rule question. He said: "The Opposition leader in Parliament (the Opposition leader in Parliament) by gentleness and by reason. I pray with all my heart and soul that out of this terrible war one blessed result will come for Ireland and that is that as Irishmen go on fighting side by side, Catholics by Protestants and north of Ireland Irish by south of Ireland Irishmen, it may prove to be a sign of the future unity of our Irish nation.

"German domination would mean the loss of all the liberties we have won. I will put it quite plainly, as General Botha (the South African Premier) did in his speech. Are you for Britain and her colonies or are you on the side of Germany?"

"Believe me, we cannot remain aloof. The war has come upon us and we must make our choice. The only choice of honor, of safety, and of statesmanship is to defend the Empire's liberties against their declared enemy."

Whipping Austria.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Slwash."

Whipping Austria has been the pastime of European nations for one thousand years. No country stands so low in the International Cannonball League. France, Italy, Sardinia, Prussia, Spain, Turkey and the Netherlands have all beaten it in the last two centuries. It has been the hoodoo of nations. Whenever it has allied itself with its neighbours, the war has failed. When it has stood on the side lines the allies have won and have divided the spoils.

Napoleon took delight in fighting Austria. It rested and refreshed him after his severer battles. He changed the map of Austria so often that the map makers issued extras like yellow journals and he helped himself to 90,000,000 florins and a new queen at one swoop. France and Sardinia beat it in 1859. Prussia whipped it in a practice war in 1866 before tackling France. From the Dark Ages to the middle of the last century the sound of pain and anger in the European concert meant that someone was taking something away from Austria.

And yet Austria is larger than ever. This is partly because whenever a slice of territory was carved off by one nation several other jealous nations made it give up another slice in exchange. No nation could afford to let any other nation grab too much. And so Austria throughout history has been a depository for territory which no one else wanted at the time. It has owned Italy, Holland, Alsace, Servia, Bavaria and Switzerland at one time or another—until someone else needed them.

If Austria loses again it will go on the operating table once more, while Italy, Servia and Russia stand over it and mark out upon the unhappy patient the parts they desire to slice off. If Austria wins, she may get back Servia, Montenegro and Venice. But win or lose, her map will be changed. It always is. An unbroken precedent requires that a treaty of peace in Europe must be accomplished by a revision of Austria to make the balance of power hang true.

To make potato soup take a dry, clean goblet, and put into it 1½ ounces salt butter. When it melts a little add two Spanish onions, pared and cut down. Stir onions and butter, but do not allow onions to brown. When they have stewed in this way for ten minutes, add boiling water, sufficient for soup. Have, then, a dozen potatoes pared and cut very thin, and put these in also. Boil for two or three hours.

How to Grow Hair.

The French are now placing on the market a preparation containing the extract from Henne leaves, which is having a phenomenal sale.

This preparation is called Salvia and is being sold with a guarantee to cure dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being daintily perfumed, Salvia makes a most pleasant dressing. Sold by your druggist. A large, generous bottle for 50 cents.

The Unhappy Warrior.

I'm not a Happy Warrior; I don't find scrapping pleasant, and no one could be sorer when I find trouble present. I do not think it glorious or sporting to ride, and rant around, demanding someone's hide. I'm fond of peace and quiet, I hope to spend my life, afar from mixups, riots, afar from foolish strife. I'd do my stunt laborious, and draw my humble wage, and those who think war glorious may grind their swords and rage. I'd spend my lifetime happily, good friends with men and kings; alas, some neighbors, scurrilously insist on mixing things. Because I treat them smilingly they think I have no spunk; I greet them so beguilingly they climb upon my trunk. They'd fain assault and batter me, because it's safe, they say, they'd punch my head and scatter me to make a holiday. And then I sweat them mightily, and lacerate their hair, and black their eyes so vitally they wish they were not there. (War's garments are not wearable, while peace remains in sight; but, gee wh! I am terrible, if folks must have a fight! Some countries are like me, I guess, they seem so meek and mild, until you prod them—then, I guess you'll see them running wild!

I am terrible, if folks must have a fight! Some countries are like me, I guess, they seem so meek and mild, until you prod them—then, I guess you'll see them running wild!

one's hide. I'm fond of peace and quiet, I hope to spend my life, afar from mixups, riots, afar from foolish strife. I'd do my stunt laborious, and draw my humble wage, and those who think war glorious may grind their swords and rage. I'd spend my lifetime happily, good friends with men and kings; alas, some neighbors, scurrilously insist on mixing things. Because I treat them smilingly they think I have no spunk; I greet them so beguilingly they climb upon my trunk. They'd fain assault and batter me, because it's safe, they say, they'd punch my head and scatter me to make a holiday. And then I sweat them mightily, and lacerate their hair, and black their eyes so vitally they wish they were not there. (War's garments are not wearable, while peace remains in sight; but, gee wh! MACKINTOSH Fibre Steel Studded Tyres.

An all-rubber tyre is unsuitable for our roads. Look at the cars of those who have been motoring here for years, and what do you see? Why, Steel Studded Tyres.

But steel studs in leather do not wear well, the leather cracks with the wet and heat, the studs work in through the tyre and puncture the inner tube.

This is where the Mackintosh Patent Tyre scores, the studs are embedded in fibre which is not affected by wet or heat, it does not crack, and the studs do not work inside the cover, and the fibre is puncture-proof. A car wearing these Tyres last year and this has not had a single puncture, and every cover has given over 4,000 miles of running before wearing out.

A new shipment just in, call and see them.
