Happiness Secured AT A Heavy Cost!

CHAPTER XXIV.
IT WAS NOT TO BE.

I dare not go to her yet! Some instinct tells me that she would like to be alone with her trouble—to fight with her great temptation—and conquer it if she can.

And, meantime, unconscious alike of my presence and Addie's departure, the other actor in this miserable little drama remains as she has left him, his anguish-stricken face buried in his hands!

One look at that handsome bowed head, and all the bitterness and resentment in my heart disappear. A strong man in the first agony of a bitter grief—a grief for which, as it seems to me, there is no help either in heaven or earth, is not one to escape my sympathy; and, laying my hand on his shoulder, I force him to meet my eyes.

"Lesley, is it you, child?" he asks, taking my hands in a grasp that makes me wince. "You know my trouble," he presently adds, searching my face with those dangerously fascinating dark eyes of his. "Will you tell me what is to be done? You are a kind-hearted little soul, and you pity me, I know. Won't you talk to Adelaide for me and persuade her—"

"That wrong is right!" I ask, a trifle sarcastically. "Believe me, Ernest, it would be waste of breath. She is right, and you know it as well as I do."

"Right?" is the bitter reply. "Right in striving to ruin her happiness and mine, too, I suppose? Don't be so hard and pitiless. That I did wrong in not taking steps to prove the invalidity of that marriage before I ever spoke to your sister of love, I admit. But if I live I will prove it yet."

"Can it be proved?" I ask, at a loss as to whether it is truth he is telling me, or whether he is striving to deceive me.

"It shall be proved. If she will but be reasonable, everything might be set right yet. It is my darling's scruples, her strained sense of duty, that I fear—that I always have feared," he replies, in a tone of dejection.

"Ah, Lesley, if you did but know all I have suffered, you would pity me! If ever a man paid dearly for a brief infatuation, I have paid dearly for mine."

"Yet you must have loved that woman when you married her," I return.

"Or thought I did," was the reply. "A fallacy that was of remarkably brief duration. From first to last she deceived me. It was under a false name and character both that I first met her. But the fatal step once taken, the veil dropped from my eyes with remarkable rapidity. You have heard the story of that mad marriage, therefore you know how that woman was dragged from my side on our wedding day, arrested on a charge of forgery and fraud—a suspicion of murder!

"That I had been wild and gay, sultrily thoughtless and extravagant, I admit," he goes on. "But surely my follies were heavily punished when I learned that the woman I had married was a notorious adventuress, with whose name and character the papers and police courts were only too familiar.

"In one awful flash of enlightenment, as her real name and identity were revealed to me, I saw the utter shipwreck I had made of my life, and my idiotic infatuation died out on the spot.

"Had anything been wanting to add to my degradation and disenchantment, the glimpse of her antecedents which the trial revealed would have been sufficient.

"My wisest course—I see it all too plainly now—would have been to have taken steps to have had the marriage set aside at the time. But as my name had not transpired in connection with the affair, I shrink from letting the world into my secret. I ought to have repudiated the connection from the first; but, instead of this, when that woman who called herself Maud Lennox came to me at the end of her term of imprisonment, and claimed her right to my name and support, I was glad to purchase her silence at any price.

"Nothing on earth could have induced me to own her as my wife; but from time to time I complied with her demands for money, and, at last, feeling that England was not large enough to hold us both, I offered her a large sum on condition that she would leave it, never to return. Tempted by the money, she closed with my offer; and a few weeks later the ship in which I supposed her to have sailed for Australia was lost at sea.

"With a thrill of pity, of horror, and relief, I read her name in the list of drowned, and once more I began to breathe freely! Once more I felt that I could lift up my head among my fellow men, and look the world in the face without fear or shame. About this time my father died; and, a sadder and a wiser man, I came back to St. John and settled down to the practice that had been his.

"A doubt of my freedom—of that woman's death—never once crossed my mind, until one day, nearly two years later, when a visitor walked into my office, and, on lifting her veil, Maud Lennox, whom I had so long believed to be lying dead at the bottom of the sea, stood before me, sneering at my surprise, taunting my credulity, and fastening upon me once more like the harpy that she was.

"The miserable truth was but too plain. To quiet my suspicions she had permitted me to pay her passage money; but from the first she had never intended to leave the country; and now the bribe I had paid for her silence being gone, she came to me for more.

"If I had loathed and hated her before, I hated her a thousand times more, now that I saw her sunk—degraded as she was—with all the marks of an evil life, and the hideous symptoms of incipient madness in her every word and look. A few months later her malady declared itself, and she was a raving maniac! I had her removed to an asylum, where she remained for some time. By and by reports of her improvement reached me, and later on—supposed to be cured—she came back to the world.

"The improvement was but temporary, however. Her mind was permanently affected, though her symptoms had undergone a complete change; from uncontrollable violence she had sunk into a condition of hopeless melancholy, and in this state she has ever since remained.

"Not knowing what else to do with her, I took the cottage in which she still lives, and engaged Mrs. Martin, who, without knowing what claim her charge can possibly have upon me, has always been faithful to my interest to look after her.

"Until I met Adelaide, the question of the legality or non-legality of that marriage never troubled me. The possibility of my ever wishing to marry again was too far off for that. I did not become a misogynist, as some men might have done under the influence of such an experience as mine; but I did become a convert to that particular school of philosophy of which Thackeray is the head, and according to which all good women are fools, all clever ones female Machiavels!

"Under these circumstances, my temptations to marry again were not great! I detest a pretty, stammering nonentity, however angelic she may be; and of the other sort, I had had enough and to spare! That any woman would ever again have power to touch my heart, hardly to excite a passing interest in my mind, I did not believe possible until my darling came to me that day like a revelation of all that was bright and pure in womanhood.

"I loved her from the beginning! Call me a romantic sentimentalist if you please!" he adds, rising from his seat and pacing the floor impatiently; "but with my very first look into that dear face the thought came to me that I had met my wife!"

"Oh, Ernest, if you had only been free to marry her!" I reply, my heart aching as I think of all he has suffered. "You would have made her very happy, I think, for she loves you so well."

"Free!" he repeats. "I was free! No one in their senses would think of regarding that miserable marriage as binding or legal. What kind of a wife has that woman been to me? What duty or consideration do I owe her? And but for the adverse fate that brought that meddling curate across her path, my darling would have been very happy with me, in spite of everything!" he replies. "I had made arrangements for quitting Hanbury before our marriage was announced; and if I could have got her away before this contretemps happened, all might have been well, in spite of that miserable old story in my past!"

"But it was not to be," I reply; "and thank Heaven that it was not! It is a poor happiness that is built on a base of falsehood; and fancy what Adelaide's feelings would have been had this revelation come upon her a few years hence instead of now!"

"Miserable little fatalist!" he replies, half passionately, half despairingly; "and do you think that I will ever give her up? Do you think that this is to be the end?"

This is precisely the question I am asking myself, and my heart dies faintly within me as I wonder how and when the end is to come.

For the next few days Adelaide keeps her room entirely—partly for the reason that she is too ill to leave it, and partly that she is struggling for strength to bear the dreadful sense of calamity that is overwhelming her; and, although Mr. Warden comes every day to Despairé, she is firm in her refusal to see him.

"There is nothing to be gained by going over the old ground, by suffering the dreadful pain of parting with her; the inevitable reply to his passionate entreaties for just one more interview.

"I could not trust my judgment with his dear face before my eyes; his loved voice in my ears!" is the bitter little confession with which she one day receives the message I bring her; and with a set, white look on his handsome face that has grown so hard and reckless of late, Mr. Warden is compelled to depart day after day as hopeless as he came.

"She never cared for me, or she could not steel her heart against me now!" he exclaims, one day, when hope and patience are alike exhausted.

"My sin looks very black to her now; but the day will come when she will know that, bad as I am, I am not so very much worse than other men!"

"Adelaide is right, Ernest, and you know it!" I reply, utterly at a loss what to say or do to comfort him.

"She is very hard and pitiless!" he says; "and may she never regret the severity with which she has judged me! Well, Lesley, allow me to wish you good-by," he adds; and, without offering me his hand, he walks out of the house, and closes the door behind him with a force that makes me tremble with fear.

"But he knows I am right, Lesley—he must know that!" Addie exclaims, when I repeat this conversation to her a few days later. "He would despise me, as I should despise myself, if I could not bring myself to sacrifice my self-respect even for love of him!"

BRITISH FOLLOW UP THEIR SUCCESS.

LONDON, Aug. 23. (By the A.P.)—The British armistice this evening are vigorously following up their success to-day which apparently has been one of the most disastrous ever experienced by the Germans. The Germans have lost stretches of ground, and numerous towns. The British have taken thousands of prisoners and large quantities of guns and material. To the south of Miramont the British have crossed the Ancre River and have pushed the enemy forces back in the direction of Coucoulet. Already Field Marshal Haig's forces are reported south-east of Grandcourt. The British have reached Hamelcourt and are pushing towards Ervilleux, St. Leger and Oiselles. The British troops seem to be progressing well up the road from Albert to Bapaume, south of the Somme. Thirty officers and 1,600 of other ranks have been taken prisoners by the British.

FRENCH TAKE PRISONERS.

PARIS, Aug. 23. (Havas.)—Between the Oise and the Aisne during the advance of Wednesday and Thursday, General Mangin's army took five thousand prisoners, according to advices reaching Paris.

ENEMY ATTACKS REPULSED.

LONDON, Aug. 23. A battle is being fought on the line between Lihons, south of the Somme, to the Cojeul River, southwest of Arras, a front of more than 25 miles, according to to-day's war office statement. The British troops are making progress at a number of places the statement says, and adds that two enemy attacks east of Beaucourt were repulsed during the night. On the left front the British line was slightly advanced east of Le Touret, northwest of Naut Kraain and east of Outreux.

FRUITS OF VICTORY.

PARIS, Aug. 23. The Allies are reaping the fruits of the victory on July 18th and Aug. 8th in the present critical situation in which the German command finds itself. The German retirement around Noyon, it is held here, is the local sequence of these victories. The French and British are pressing the enemy so close that he is obliged to throw in his best troops to save himself from disaster in the north, and in the south the Allies are dashing upon the Germans and snapping up prisoners and booty and getting into the main enemy defense positions. General Mangin's pressure between Aug. 18th and 20th resulted in the capture of more than 10,000 prisoners, and on the 22nd he forced the enemy to retire beyond the Ailette. The army of General Von Frenck is in such a predicament, it is believed that he is bound to make a formidable counter attack to halt General Mangin, or be obliged to withdraw from the Aisne and Neule

BRITISH FOLLOW UP THEIR SUCCESS.

(By the A.P.)—The British armies this evening are vigorously following up their success of today which apparently has been one of the most disastrous ever experienced by the Germans. The Germans have lost stretches of ground and numerous towns. The British have taken thousands of prisoners and large quantities of guns and material. To the south of Miramont the British have crossed the Ancre River and have pushed the enemy forces back in the direction of Cozelette. Already Field Marshal Haig's forces are reported southeast of Grandcourt. The British have reached Hamelcourt and are pushing towards Ervillers, St. Leger and Chériselles. The British troops seem to be progressing well up the road from Albert to Bapaume, south of the Somme. Thirty officers and 1,500 of other ranks have been taken prisoners by the British.

FRENCH TAKE PRISONERS.

(Havas.)—Between the Oise and the Aisne during the advance of Wednesday and Thursday, General Mangin's army took five thousand prisoners, according to advices reaching Paris.

ENEMY ATTACKS REPULSED.

(LONDON, Aug. 23.)—A battle is being fought on the line between Lillers, south of the Somme, and the Oise River, southwest of Arras, a front of more than 25 miles, according to to-day's war office statement. The British troops are making progress at a number of places the statement says, and adds that two enemy attacks east of Beaucourt were repulsed during the night. On the Lys front the British line was slightly advanced east of Le Touret, northwest of Nauf Kraulin and east of Outterstein.

FRUITS OF VICTORY.

(PARIS, Aug. 23.)—The Allies are reaping the fruits of the victory on July 18th and Aug. 8th in the present critical situation in which the German command finds itself. The German retreatment around Noyon, it is held here, is the local sequence of these victories. The French and British are pressing the enemy so close that he is obliged to throw in his best troops to save himself from disaster in the north, and in the south the Allies are dashing upon the Germans and snapping up prisoners and booty and getting into the main enemy defense positions. General Mangin's pressure between Aug. 18th and 20th resulted in the capture of more than 10,000 prisoners, and on the 22nd he forced the enemy to retire beyond the Ailette. The army of General Von Eben is in such a predicament, it is believed that he is bound to make a formidable counter attack to halt General Mangin, or be obliged to withdraw from the Aisne and Nele to the Chemin des Dames. If the enemy does not counter attack along the Ailette it probably will mean that General Von Eben is in a sadder plight than is thought. In the north the British Third Army has pushed the Germans so dangerously near Bapaume that the German command has found it necessary to counter attack in force. The loss of Bapaume in the present circumstances would amount to a disaster, according to opinion here. The front from Lassigny to the Somme remains stationary. The expected fall of Roye has not yet occurred, but there is no hurry about that as Roye has lost its importance, now that all the roads leading to it are under the fire of the French artillery and are useless to the enemy.

ROYE AND NOYON MENACED.

(Havas.)—The French and British increased the menace to Roye and Noyon and rendered their fall near, says the Echo de Paris. It adds that Paris has been made safer by the operations of the army of General Humbert, and that Scissons has been made more secure by the capture of Pommieres and Vauxreuil. Le Homme Libre says there is reason to hope for important events in the next few days in the region of Noyon.

MANGIN DRIVING THE GERMANS WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN THE OISE, AUG. 23.

(By the A.P.)—General Mangin now has driven the Germans across the valley of the Ailette, on a front of several miles. The enemy forces on the right wing on the battle line are on the plateau between the Ailette and Soissons, and between the Ailette and the Oise, and on the left of Breteuil, the Germans are north of the Oise, except those that are hiding in fields and thickets, dead or prisoners. It is impossible to estimate the number of captives being sent to the camps in the rear, and army headquarters itself has not more than an approximate count. Only a partial count has been made of the booty, which includes at least two hundred guns, many of them of large calibre. The Germans are still stubbornly resisting the First French Army around Roye. General Debeney's men, however, forged ahead again today both north and south of that town. Cavalry is rendering service in the pursuit of the enemy. Not only are there cavalry advance guards, but other troops are following the infantry to take care of the machine gun nests left behind by the Germans to resist the advance of the French. The Germans are attempting to check the French advance.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

(PARIS, Aug. 23.)—During the night there was a violent bombardment between the region of Beauveignes, south of Roye and the Oise, notably at Plesnoy, Passilly, and Chilly Courcamp. We hold the southern banks of the Oise and the Ailette from Compiègne to the railroad at Concy le Chateau. East of Salency the French troops carried their lines as far as the outskirts of Guiny and Pont St. Mar. The night was calm on the rest of the front.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

(LONDON, Aug. 23.)—Fighting is taking place along virtually the whole front between Lillers, south of the Somme, and the Oise River. Our troops are reported making progress at a number of places. During the night the enemy twice attacked our positions in the neighborhood of Ballecourt farm east of Beaucourt. He was repulsed. On the Lys front our line has been advanced slightly east of Le Touret, northwest of Nauf Kraulin and east of Outterstein. A hostile attack northwest of Baillet broke down before our positions.

SEDITIONOUS CIRCULARS.

(NEW YORK, Aug. 23.)—Thousands of seditious circulars at tacking the American policy "toward Russia" were thrown from the roofs of buildings into the streets of the Lower East Side to-night. Police reserves and agents of the Department of Justice were immediately sent in to the district and began a search of the buildings in an effort to run down the distributors.

HAD NO TIME TO DESTROY BRIDGES.

(WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, AUG. 23.) (By the A.P.)—So hot on their heels are the French advance guards that the Germans had no time to destroy bridges behind and over the Oise. Some of these were found intact, others only partially destroyed. While the German rear-guard was making a last stand to protect the crossing of the stream, long lines of wagon trains could be seen across the river encumbering the roads leading to the north.

ON THE ITALIAN LINE.

(ROME, Aug. 23.)—The forces of the Central Powers yesterday attacked the Italian advanced lines on the front from the Lower Semine River to the heights of Mall Tomorice in Albania. It was officially announced to-day by the Italian war department. The attack was repulsed by the Italians. To the west of Point 1150, the statement added, mountain forces obliged one of the Italian advanced posts to withdraw.

MAIL BY AIR.

(TORONTO, Aug. 23.)—Mail by air has become an actuality. The Postmaster General has now given his authority for a weekly return airtel letter mail between Toronto and Ottawa which will be carried through the medium of the Royal Air Force. The service is to continue for two weeks.

CZECH-SLOVAKS.

(LONDON, Aug. 23.)—Lord Robert Cecil, British Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, announced this evening that reports have been received in London to the effect that the Czech-Slovak forces in Trans-Balkal had captured the town of Berchteddinsk, south of Lake Balkal, and had achieved a decisive victory against the Bolshevik forces.

Last Evening's Meeting

Last evening's meeting, to hear addresses from the two distinguished laborites now visiting the country, was a decided success. The large Casino Hall was filled, many of the audience being lady workers. Mr. P. Bennett, President of the N. I. W. A., was Chairman, and on the platform with him were several prominent local leaders, including the President and Secretary of the Ladies' branch of the N. I. W. A.

Mr. A. Bastien, General Organizer of the American Federation of Labor, working in the Eastern provinces of Canada, was the first speaker, and began by stating that the workmen of Canada were desirous of having closer affiliation with the workers of Newfoundland, and he had great pleasure in extending the greetings of over 210 thousand organized workers of Canada, and over 3 million organized workers of North America, to the workers of this country. He was surprised to see such a large audience present, but it plainly showed that the workers of this country were fully alive to their own interests. In an interesting manner he told of the steps the workers of Canada had taken to safeguard themselves. One thing the workers should not forget, said Mr. Bastien, and that was to patronize their own papers.

In opening his address, General Organizer Thos. Moore of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, expressed himself as being well pleased at the opportunity of coming to this country, and thanked all for their very generous treatment both to himself and his colleague during their brief stay. Years ago, when he had been here, he had been struck by the sight of old women asking alms in the streets of this city, and the early years at which children were allowed to work. But he was pleased that to-day he did not see these things. Mr. Moore's address was listened to with much interest, and the manner in which he spoke plainly showed his grasp of labor subjects.

A vote of thanks to the speakers was proposed by Mr. Geo. F. Grimes, M.H.A., and seconded by Mr. Wm. Linegar, President of the Coopers' Union. Messrs. Bastien and Moore leave for Canada by to-morrow's express.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES.

(OTTAWA, Aug. 23.)—In this morning's list of casualties 248 are reported killed in action, 46 died of wounds, 3 died, one prisoner of war, seven ill, 127 missing and 505 wounded.

AUSTRIAN OFFICERS THREATENED.

(WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.)—An official despatch from Switzerland to-day says that attempts against the lives of officers are increasing in Austria. It is reported that several commandants of Austrian corps have advised officers in the rear to have revolvers with them always.

ADMITS TRUTH OF BAKER'S FIGURES.

(AMSTERDAM, Aug. 23.)—(By the A.P.)—At last the German press has given up struggling against the truth, in a short notice, which appears in virtually all the papers, the identical nature of which suggests official inspiration. The reluctant admission is made that Secretary Baker's figures regarding the strength of the American forces in France are about correct.

OFFICIAL ON AVIATION.

(LONDON, Aug. 23.)—The official announcement on aerial operations issued to-night says: The thick mist which prevailed during the early morning of Aug. 21, prevented our air planes from taking part in the battle at the opening attack north of the Ancre. As the morning advanced the sky cleared and for the rest of the day our airmen were actively engaged. Some machines devoted themselves to the work of contact patrol and reported the positions of our advancing troops to their headquarters from time to time. Other machines attacked hostile troops and transports from low altitude with bombs and machine gun fire, scattering ammunition, wagons and columns on the march. In several cases German guns firing at our tanks were silenced by bombs and machine gun fire from the air. A great deal of work was done also in reporting active hostile batteries to our artillery fire. Twelve tons of bombs were dropped by us during the day. In air fighting 21 hostile machines were destroyed, and eight others were driven down out of control. One man balloon was shot down in flames. Eight of our machines are missing. On the night of Aug. 21-22 there was a bright moonlight and a clear sky. Our night bombing air planes dropped more than 25 tons of bombs on different targets. The Cambrai and Maroing stations were heavily attacked as well as a number of railway bridges and lines, air dromes and billets. The bridge at Aubigny, on Becan, the road connecting Douai and

The Latest Exploit?

The latest exploit of the German submarines operating in North Atlantic waters, and one which for sheer audacity takes the prize, is the seizure of the steam trawler "Triumph," captured on "Tuesday" last, some sixty miles off the Canadian Coast, and armed and manned from the U boat which took her, with the object of raiding the fishing fleet on the Banks. It appears that the Triumph which was engaged in fishing was held up by the submarine, and the crew ordered into their dories. An armed guard was placed on board, but no preparations were made to sink the vessel. The purpose of this is plain. The trawler being well known by commanders and crews of the Germans to approach schooners without suspicion being aroused, as none of them would have been apprised of the capture of the steam trawler. Once alongside the work of destruction is rapid. It needing only a bomb correctly placed to send the craft to the bottom. The craftiness and cunning of the Hun has certainly been well demonstrated in this case, and the transformed trawler has wrought much damage to the Canadian and United States bankers. A number of vessels have so far been sunk but fortunately their crews have landed safely. This particular Hun evidently has no "stink without trace" orders, or otherwise he is but an additional demonstrator of German frightfulness, toned down in the present instances to suit exigencies, and perhaps to show that the object attained by the sinking of numerous vessels engaged in the fisheries is another German triumph, calculated to change the terms which must be imposed by the Allies on Germany when the day of settlement arrives. The mode of procedure is simple, according to the stories of the captains of the sunken vessels. The "Triumph" steams up alongside and orders the crew to get into their dories. A bomb is then placed correctly, and exploded by a time fuse. Quite simple, but yet there are limits to the capacities and ingenuity of the raiders. The Triumph cannot remain long at sea, because of the necessity of recasting, ten days being her limit, but notwithstanding she can account for many fishermen during that period. When her coal supplies are exhausted and she is no longer useful, as a commerce destroyer, her days will be ended in a similar way, or either her captors will, after effecting a rendezvous with the U boat which captured the steamer, open the sea cocks and thereby save an explosive. In the meantime there is every possibility that a recapture is almost a certainty. Though we have no means of knowing, we may safely assume that many flotillas of patrol boats are quartering the ocean within the radius of the Triumph's reckless operations, and it is only a matter of time when she will be rounded up. Her recapture will indeed be a triumph for the officers and men of the vessel making it, and as the crews of the hunters are on their mettle, there is no chance of escape for the hunted. The hare is being chased by the hounds and the circle will gradually be narrowed until at length the dog will enclose the sought for prey. Up to the time of writing the vessels known to have been sunk are the "Dna P. Saunders," of Lunenburg; "Byatt and Fine" of Gloucester; "Francis O'Hara" of Boston; "Pasadena," of Mahone Bay, and "Sylvania" of Gloucester. Five in all. Captain Jeff Thomas of the "Sylvania" reported on arriving in port but ten minutes in which to leave their ship. With these exceptions parcel mail from the U. S. have been conveyed by steamer alone and as the overland system guarantees quicker and more certain delivery, we suggest to the postal authorities that an effort be made towards securing the latter service for the public. The parcel post which up to ten years ago was only in its infancy, being chiefly used for the sending of presents and small merchandise mail orders, is today performing a public service indispensable to the merchant and the public in general.

predatory operations of the enemy will receive an abrupt check. The Triumph was manned by a Canadian crew, and owned by the North Atlantic Fisheries Company, which operates a large fleet from Port Maitland, N.S. The vessel is 130 feet long, 15 feet deep with a 22 foot beam and her gross tonnage is 250. She was one of the crack boats of the N. A. F. fleet, but just what port she was sailing from when captured is not at present known.

"And So Say We All."

The official denial that there is an engagement between the Prince of Wales and Princess Yolanda of Italy must be accepted as it stands. No doubt, the Westminster Gazette says, the statement that has been made from authorized quarters on the subject were prompted by a feeling that an excellent one for such an announcement; but the Prince is believed to have no great taste for marriage while the war goes on, and there is plenty of time. "Also, if in these more democratic days it is permissible to speak with candor, it would be well to give him further opportunities of choosing for himself; and if the choice should fall on an English bride—so much the better."

Self-Government for United Ireland.

London, Aug. 19.—Political circles have been given quite a sensation by a declaration by Sir James H. M. Campbell, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, that he is in favor of "self-Government for a united Ireland." This statement was made by him at a luncheon at Dublin on Saturday.
When Sir James was appointed Lord Chancellor in succession to Sir Ignatius John O'Brien, last June, it was believed that the action of the Government meant a complete reversal of his Irish policy. His speech, however, proves that he is a convert to Home Rule, according to Liberal commentators. Sir James is quoted as follows: "From the day the war broke out, I determined, regardless of my commitments in the past and in the views of my old political colleagues that I should endeavor to the best of my ability to bring about a solution, by consent, of the Irish problem, on the only lines which it seemed to me held any promise of success—I mean self-Government for united Ireland."

American Parcel Post by Rail.

For the second time since the inauguration of the Parcel Post System in this country an American parcel mail reached the city yesterday by rail. With these exceptions parcel mail from the U. S. have been conveyed by steamer alone and as the overland system guarantees quicker and more certain delivery, we suggest to the postal authorities that an effort be made towards securing the latter service for the public. The parcel post which up to ten years ago was only in its infancy, being chiefly used for the sending of presents and small merchandise mail orders, is today performing a public service indispensable to the merchant and the public in general.

That Fence!

We have often thought that the people of this city do not sufficiently care for the historic association of our home town, as proved by the many old oaken-buckel-like articles that are mottled. Of those, is that old fence that stretches along the lower side of Duckworth Street from the Custom House building, to the bottom of Pillot's Hill. This fence, we understand, is composed of boards taken from the "Matthew," Cabot's ship of discovery. It speaks very poorly of our regard for the venerable that we allow such an historic thing to go to ruin. Why not put it in the Museum?

Fourteen Pounds of Sugar Out of Ten.

Mr. J. J. Williams, a member of the American Chemical Society, has suggested a method whereby sugar may be persuaded to do more work for us.

There are many kinds of sugars, their names ending in -ose. Success is the correct name of cane sugar, glucose for starch sugar and fructose from ripe fruits, etc. They are all composed of carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen in various combinations sucrose being expressed as C12 H22 O11, and glucose as C6 H12 O6. Now when sucrose is acted upon by acid under the correct conditions it becomes hydrolyzed and is converted into an invert sugar which is a mixture of 50 per cent glucose and 50 per cent fructose.

Fructose is characterized by its excessive sweetness, being considered approximately 30 per cent sweeter than sucrose, our usual cane product, compared pound for pound. One hundred pounds of cane sugar will yield 105.24 pounds of invert sugar which in sweetening power equals 135 pounds of cane sugar or sucrose. The food value remains about the same but since we customarily use sugar for its sweetness and not its food value, we have made a distinct gain.

Invert sugar will not crystallize and the public has become accustomed to granulated and other dry sugars so if it seems attractive to use invert sugar our kitchens may be called upon to prepare it. This is a simple matter for the reaction is one which frequently takes place in jelly making and is used to advantage by food product concerns. A convenient formula is: to 10 pounds of granulated sugar add four and one-half pints of water and one-fifth of an ounce of tartaric acid. Boil the solution slowly in a covered vessel for from thirty to thirty-five minutes, taking care to discontinue the boiling before the color of the solution darkens and a corn syrup taste develops. When properly carried out the operation yields about fourteen pounds of a syrup, one pound of which is just as sweet as one pound of the original 10 pounds of cane sugar and three-quarters of a cup of which will do as much sweetening as a cup of the sucrose.

There are several reasons why invert sugar is not a better known article of commerce such as manufacturing cost and merchandising difficulties, but it may help us to make our two pounds of sugar seem two and eight-tenths pounds while we willingly remain on ration.—Scientific American.

NEWSPAPER CONTROVERSY.

ROME, Aug. 22. The newspapers are having a further bitter controversy over Italy's foreign policy. The Corriere della Sera, of Milan, leads a portion of the press in attacking Baron Sonnino, the Foreign Minister, and asserts that he had not been sufficiently liberal and open minded in recognizing the claims of the Jugo Slavs of the Eastern Adriatic. The opposing group is led by the Giornale de Italia, of Rome, and it is argued that Sonnino must adhere to the agreement made in London in September, 1915, with the understanding that once Austria is beaten, Italy will be generous in dealing with her eastern neighbors.

Electric Lighting For Outports!

For a number of years there has been a growing demand for a satisfactory electric lighting system for use in the outports. There are dozens of so-called "farm lighting systems" on the market. Almost without exception they are unable to produce a steady flickerless current, without first charging storage batteries and then taking the lighting current from the batteries. In using this system they are up against many difficulties—batteries of fair capacity are expensive; they require constant attention. When they are new, about 15 per cent. of the current is lost when passed through batteries; after one or two years this proportion rapidly increases; this means a large proportion of the current is wasted; batteries that will produce 110 volt current are very expensive, therefore the manufacturers of most battery systems use what is known as low-voltage. A low-voltage current will only give a satisfactory light when used close to the battery. If the current is carried by wires to other buildings a short distance away, a great deal of energy is lost and it gives a poor light.

Low-voltage systems cannot use standard lighting equipment such as lamps, electric fans, electric irons, electric toasters, etc., but require special low-voltage apparatus from the factory. After comparing the various lighting systems on the market, we found one that overcomes all these difficulties. It is known as the Unielectric Lighting Machine, which is the only machine of its kind made. It consists of an engine specially designed for electric lighting purposes, directly attached to a special dynamo and electric governor. This outfit will produce a steady, flickerless 110 volt current without having to depend on batteries. It will use all standard lighting equipment in common use. Wires can be run from the engine in any direction up to two thousand feet without change.

Three of these lighting machines have been in use in Newfoundland. Monday's Reading, Pleasant, lights Church and foundry from one to two years and are giving perfect satisfaction; Rev. Father Maher, St. Lawrence, lights Church, Presbytery, Convent, and school; G. C. Pears & Son, Pleasantville, light their shop, office, fish stores, saw mill, blacksmith's shop and ship yard. We have also ordered for them an electric boring machine to be run by current from Unielectric machine and to be used in shipbuilding. We are now installing the Unielectric Lighting System for Mr. Fred Ayre in his country residence. The Unielectric Corporation of Detroit are doing their best to supply the demand for these machines, but do not expect to be able to furnish them at present prices except for a very short time. They have promised us three more machines at present prices if orders are sent in promptly.

Anyone interested in the best country lighting system ever made will receive one of our catalogues and full information by writing us. The Unielectric Engine is built for continuous service. The engine is equipped with the sliding sleeve valve and is guaranteed for five years. A small inexpensive battery can be attached to wires to allow the use of a few lights when machine is not in operation.

BRITISH PUSHING AHEAD.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Aug. 23. (By the A.P.)—British troops this morning are reported to have captured Chiennoilles and Herleville south of the Somme River. More than a thousand prisoners were taken in this operation, which eliminated the head in the line. Field Marshal Haig's forces are reported to have taken Boyelles and Bois Bequerelle, and to be still pushing forward. They are piling up prisoners and guns. The British have reached Compecourt, which is considered to be the chief point of the German defence positions. South of Compecourt the British this morning were attacking and pushing forward all along the line. A battle has developed which seems to be one of the greatest of the war. The town of Meaulte, southeast of Albert, fell early in the British drive. The British troops pressing on here are crossing the Bray-Albert road. Happy Valley, to the north of Bray, was taken by Field Marshal Haig's troops after hard fighting. Three German battalions headquarters have been taken in the locality of Happy Valley, and additional guns also have fallen into the hands of the British. A number of fresh new German divisions have been identified. They were rushed up in the hope of saving something from the disaster which threatened the whole German army on the front.

Description of Trawler

The following notice to shipowners was posted up in the Board of Trade this morning:—

"Following is a description of the trawler Triumph, communicated by the Local Intelligence Officer: Length 124 ft.; beam 22 ft.; two masts, rigged, mainmast much shorter than other and stepped through galley-house before funnel; stern engine room casing extends; galley aft; small house in stern; boat deck between this and galley. When captured hull was painted green and funnel black. No number or distinctive lettering on side, except name painted on bow in yellow."

Cod Oil Going Up.

The price of common cod oil took a jump this week on the St. John's market from $280 to $300 per ton. There is a keen demand this week amongst local dealers, and higher prices are talked about as a probability in the near future. A ship was made yesterday at $200—per oil, ready for shipment. The refined oil is still very "stunned," and the highest that can be got just now is $2.50 per gallon. The general opinion is that it will follow the tendency of the other quality before long, as the demand in the foreign market is awakening.—Trade Review.

STRIKE STILL UNSETTLED.—The strike in Port aux Basques is still unsettled and the deadlock continues.

BIG CATCH.—The Norwegian whale factory crews at Cape Breton, Southern Shore, have landed 94 whales to date.

FISH ARRIVAL.—The schooner Grise, Capt. Mansfield, has arrived at New Melbourn from the Straits, with 600 qts. of fish.

NEW MEMBERS.—The following new members have been elected to the Board of Trade: Dr. John Greene, Greatfall Mission; Mr. Robert Smith, Cupids; and Mr. A. B. Morais.

LAST EVENING'S FOOTER GAME.—Last evening's footer game between the Stars and C. E. I. was fairly well attended, and resulted in a win for the Stars by 3 goals to 1. Throughout the game both sides put up good play, but the Stars proved the stronger of the two, thereby winning the match.

"Getting" Hearst.

It was, of course, to be expected that the very pro-German, German language newspapers would be driven out of business in the United States immediately that country entered the war. Now the Staats Zeitung and the Presse, of Chicago, are anxious to resume, and as the price for that permission promises to be good, or in other words, American. The Germania, of Milwaukee, is even more repentant. It has publicly retracted every "un-American" word uttered by it during the course of the war, and now humbly sues for public favor. The pro-German, English language papers have likewise been made to feel the force of public displeasure, and a "truce" is now being made on that typically American product of United States journalism—the Hearst papers.

Hearst, in the vernacular, put the "Yell" as well as the "low" in "Yellow Journalism." He neither rendered allegiance to truth, honesty and decency in the conduct of his papers, nor, as events have proven, reckoned with a decent public opinion, which he had so often flouted. His editorial policies were moulded in the business office. He was frankly a pirate in the journalistic field, and used the fear or desire for publicity on the part of different sections of the public to his own advantage. He pandered to the sensationalists and played to the lower classes. He nourished class hatred and strove to turn the misfortune of some to the advantage of others.

Hearst found a fruitful field for selling his papers among the ignorant and the immigrant classes. Consciously or unconsciously he was the head and front of the pro-German and anti-British propaganda in the United States. Bolo Pasha and Bernstorff visited him. He was in favor of an embargo on munitions. He was against the United States going into the war. When the war news was not bad enough to suit him, he invented worse news. He "declared" war two days before Great Britain did. He "sank" the British Navy. He "defeated" the British Army. He "besieged" Paris. In fact there was nothing he did not do—in his headlines. And now Nemesis is on his trail. He outraged public opinion just once too often.

The people, the common people, are taking care of his case. They are refusing to buy his papers. They have struck him in his weak spot—his pocket. They have boycotted the news agents who sell his paper. They have organized an anti-Hearst League and each member wears a button, "I don't read Hearst papers." They are out to "get" Hearst as he "got" them, and it will be interesting to see what the result will be.—Halifax Chronicle.

Superstition re Alsace-Lorraine.

Paris, Aug. 19.—The "19" superstition has arisen and gained some vogue. The sum of the digits in 1918 makes 19. A lieutenant in the French army found time while his regiment was resting behind the lines to work out this: "Here are the dates in history on which the fate of Alsace-Lorraine has depended and in which the issue has turned out favorably for France: "1. In 1648, the treaty of Westphalia which gave Alsace to France, the sum of 1, 6, 4 and 8 is 19. "2. In 1675, the campaign in Alsace by Turanne which confirmed the French conquest. The sum again is 19. "3. In 1738, the peace of Vienna, which gave France Lorraine; 19 again. "4. In 1792, the victory of Valmy, which re-established the French frontiers in the east. Once more the sum is 19. "And that isn't all. Why are the Americans here to help us win Alsace-Lorraine? It is because we assisted them to win their independence, and in what year? In 1783. "But he pushed it a bit too far, for he tossed peace on the 1,450th day of the war, which would be July 30th, 1918. But why not on the 1,477th day, or the 1,466th or 1,465th? They all fall in 1918. Wait and see.

How Germany Utilized England's Tin Plate Scrap.

The extent to which Germany absorbed old tin cans and tin plate from England before the war and some of the processes by which the tin is removed from such material is doubly interesting at present, when we are urged to employ every means possible to save by-products and scrap of all kinds, and when tin itself has reached the highest price in its history. "Before the war a German firm established, in several parts of Great Britain, large works for cleaning tin cans, recovering the tin and solder, and pressing the clean steel into bales. In this way they shipped a large quantity of good steel to Germany. Ultimately they stopped detinning in England and merely desoldered the scrap and shipped it baled to Germany. Detinning by the electrolytic process was cheaper on the Continent, yielding, in addition to the sheet tin tetrachloride, a valuable product of silk manufacture. Tinned steel plate to the amount of some 150,000 tons, some of which is believed to have been detinned, was exported from England for many years before the war, and thus Germany obtained at small cost a large tonnage of steel and other metals that could have been worked into marketable products.

There are several methods proposed to recover the tin. One depends on the use of acids to dissolve the tin from the steel, but here there is a difficulty in preventing the steel from being dissolved at the same time. Another, in which caustic alkali is the solvent employed, has been used to remove the tin and obtain clean steel.

Comparative Values in Footwear!

With the majority of people, price is the chief consideration in purchasing footwear. That's why there are so many uncomfortable feet in Newfoundland to-day and so many dissatisfied shoe purchasers.

For low-priced shoes cannot be good shoes—the high cost of good materials and skilled labour won't permit. Then why experiment—at the expense of your comfort—with low-priced shoes? Why not wear

He Has Done It Himself.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Jan helping him change a wheel, "seem to know by instinct just the right thing to do."

The other female member (who, perhaps I scarcely need add, was younger and rather pretty) smiled her appreciation, while his wife who is plainly well used to compliments from her husband—for other women, managed to smile, too.

Nothing Measer or Buder or More Underbred.

I honored that smile. I don't think I could have achieved it. Why will men who love their wives be so hateful to them? Is there anything meaner or ruder or more underbred that a man can do, than to make that sort of derogatory comparison? And yet, men who would be ready to fight if anyone applied any of these adjectives to them, and who, in their way, do love and admire their wives, are always saying that sort of thing.

But that was not at all what I started to say. I have digressed because I can never consider that subject without waxing excited.

She Can't Help Being Awkward.

To get back to the main road,—I have seen that man's wife try to help him fix something on the machine, and I will admit she is awkward. I don't see how she could be otherwise, for her husband makes her so nervous by his way of fying out at her if she doesn't understand just what he wants, or find whatever he asks for instantly, and by his irritability if things don't go smoothly, to that if master mechanic in her place would be awkward. If she has left some tool behind, he upbraids her for its absence as if it were her fault. After the thing is finished he will perhaps make a half apology to her,—will say, for instance, that he hates machinery. But the fact remains that he will be the same next time. And then he caps the climax by blaming her for being awkward, and by praising in her presence the calmness and self possession of another woman who had no reason to be otherwise (like all men, he can be pleasant and controlled, even when fixing a wheel, if a woman outside the family is involved).

Man's Age-Long Right.

His wife is what he has made her. He has himself to blame and not her. And so have the hundreds of thousands of men like him who, by asserting the age long right of man to vent his irritability on the weaker members of his family, have made their women folks nervous and timid and awkward.

"Items" in Nfld. Fisheries.

Halibut, haddock, hake, turbot, smelts, caplin, and even squid, must be listed as items in the Newfoundland fisheries; but none of the items is of great commercial importance. The turbot fishery is promising, but no large quantities ever have been taken. The industry is growing. Smelts are taken in small quantities on the west coast during the winter months, but the methods of capture are still crude. Caplin are found in abundance, but so far no successful effort has been made to put them on the market in the fresh state in large quantities. The exports of caplin have hitherto been of the salt and smoked variety, and find their way to the counters of the saloons, presumably "to create a thirst." Hake sounds are exported in small quantities from Hermitage Bay and yield substantial returns. Dogfish are numerous and really a pest to the fishermen. Some enterprising canners are now packing dogfish for export.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

THE INDIAN GIVER.

I gave them to the country, I gave them to the sea; I was their tyrant monarch and I gladly set them free. To the blue skies and the breezes and the ocean's lapping wave, and the laughter of the summer time, my richest gems I gave. But the days are dull without them, and my nights are lark black, and I've turned an Indian giver, for I want my treasures back.

The supbeams thought them lovely and they envied their charms. The hills seemed even frowning them to nestle in their arms. And the fields of clover called them to go there to find their play. So in one great generous moment I just gave them all away.

I gave them to the gladness of the summer, but I've learned that my life is cold without them, and I want my gifts returned.

Yes, I've turned an Indian giver Hills and clover fields and sea. In the night time I am calling, "Give my children back to me!" Give me back their gentle mother, I am weary and alone. And my soul is sick with yearning for the joys it used to own. I am hungry for the laughter of my merry little pack— Home is desolate without them. Heed my plea and send them back.

Milady's Boudoir.

THE VALUE OF FRESH AIR.

The value of fresh air in the lungs cannot be overestimated. Indeed, health crusades have drilled so long on the open window for sleeping apartments that the closed window is now the exception rather than the rule.

Fresh air, however, is now a commodity that all do not know how to use it. You may romp all day in the open, but unless you breathe deep and properly, you lose fifty percent of the value of the outing.

There are five rules for breathing correctly. First breathe through the mouth, second keep the mouth shut, third breathe deeply, fourth breathe quietly, fifth keep the head up. When one starts to practice these five rules it will seem the most natural impulse in the world, harnessed under a set of hindering rules.

The fact is the very little practice will make the proper kind of breathing as natural as the other. Unless you will not be able to indulge in any kind of exercise without puffing or getting entirely winded.

An excellent breathing exercise is to stand erect, head well back, shoulders thrown back and hands on hips, take a long breath through the nose, with mouth closed, hold this for a moment and then just as slowly and gradually let the breath go.

Standing on tip toe while inhaling and sinking back to the floor again when exhaling, will sometimes help, and the breaths should come from the abdomen and not from the chest.

When you are tired, nervous from overwork or strain, or merely unaccountably sleepy or lazy, throw your window up and see what a few deep, long breaths will do for you. You will find they will act as a tonic.

As the M. O. Sees It.

Of raids carried out by his own battalion the M.O. has had plenty of warning. But it is otherwise when the Hun comes over the bags to have a dash at our front line.

My first experience of an enemy raid was near Arrmentiers. A six mile tramp on the duckboards had made me so fit for slumber that the first intimation of anything abnormal was my batman's hand on my shoulder. "Boche raid on, sir. Stretcher-bearers coming up." I rose, and made a hurried toilet that would not have done on any parade. In about three minutes we had a sufficiency of lint, wool, and bandages prepared; a solution of susol; pocket-case of instruments; spirit-steriliser; antiseptic inoculation outfit, and splints of all descriptions ready in the improvised first-line dug-out, usually the deepest and best of these often roomy caverns.

Low voices outside: "Gently, Jim," "Mind my knuckles, Bill. Oo! Eill!"—why must dug-entrances always be so narrow?—and the gas-curtain is drawn aside to admit the head and shoulders of a grimy S. B.

The man on the stretcher is muddy and exhausted. Beads of sweat on his brow testify to the pain he is enduring. His wound is a nasty, ragged gash on the outer side of the right thigh. Nothing but a small fragment could have caused it, and even as I clip away the field-dressing, and note that clotting has occurred, I can see my corporal writing: "Shell wound, R. upper thigh; severe," on the ticket which will accompany this casualty to the care of the Field Ambulance.

Soon our man has a cigarette in full blast, and a cup of hot tea in his interior, for the tea-urn is always a feature of the dressing-station, and most men would sooner have tea than run on these occasions. Next comes the "ordal of the needle."

Most Tommies would far rather face a non-vital bayonet-thrust. The inoculation in cold blood, though not very painful, is uncomfortable at first, as the injection—generally performed under the skin of the chest—is bulky, and exerts tension on the skin until the serum is absorbed. This ritual over—it is a routine nowadays—the stretcher and patient are lifted down from the trestles, warmly wrapped in blankets and duly ticketed with a brief description of wound, and other particulars, including quantity of morphia—if any—administered, and the time at which it was given.

BRACE UP.

Cheer up, the heat may take the starch from you, this time of year, but there will be no heat in March, and March will soon be here. Cheer up, though feeling half way dead, exhausted by the grind; there's always so-lace just ahead, and history looms. Cheer up, if tired of burying ice, which thins your meagre roll; for soon you will dig up the price for loads of slate and coal. Cheer up if war news shows reverse for armies of our own; the Teuts will strike a whole lot worse than ever we have known. Cheer up if bread is lacking wheat, and long on bran and chaff; the tempting loaf you do not eat means some Hun's epitaph. Cheer up if all our wires seem crossed, and government diseased; believe me, everything's not lost because you aren't pleased. Cheer up if Foch is doing things you do not understand; he's out to get some Bulgar kings, and see some kaisers canned. If some discomforts you should know, don't spring a grouchy wheeze; our boys who face the fighting foe don't balk on beds of ease. Cheer up! Let every word and deed be of a hopeful style; cheer up, for other people need the comfort of your smile.

Origin of Bread Unknown.

The origin of wheat is lost in hoary antiquity. Even the original home of the cereal plants of which bread is being made is not known, all the researches and hypotheses notwithstanding. Where wheat, spelt, rye, barley, oats, buckwheat, etc. first offered man their grainy ears for food is an unsolved problem.

But that originally bread was not roasted or baked, as moderns prepare it, but eaten as dough or paste, may be inferred from its relation with the word "broth," both of these words being derived from the root "broc-wan," "bru," to brew. In all probability it was originally the boiled coarse meal with nothing added to it but salt.

The leavening and baking of the bread was a later development. The origin of these processes is a matter of speculation; but so much is certain; that baking preceded the leavening of the bread that causes it to rise; also that the original form of the bread was not the loaf, but a kind of thin, flat cake like the matzo, or the tortillas of the Mexicans. Like these, it was probably roasted upon intensely heated flat stones.

With the discovery of the leaven the flat cake increased in height until it assumed the form of our loaf.

Dear Sir,—In reply to a request of a few days ago asking Hon. John Anderson for his opinion, as to what he thought of taking over the Electric Light and Tram Service, I was pleased to know that he was quite emphatic over it; would that all our healthy men were as Democratic and full of interest for the working class as the Hon. John. I was also glad to know, Sir, from your editorial that the issue was already a live one, and that negotiations had been opened between the Government and the Nfld. Co. on the matter. I trust for the welfare of the seventy or eighty per cent. of the people of St. John's, to whom the Electric and Tram system is of no service, that which is correct, and furthermore that the Government will view it from a favorable light. If again as you say, at the Reid Nfld. Co. are favorably disposed towards the transfer, and will in return spend the transfer money towards the betterment of our railway system and the erection of a first class hotel in St. John's, with other things along the line of railway, there is nothing left, to my mind, for the Government to do, but make the deal right.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In reply to a request of a few days ago asking Hon. John Anderson for his opinion, as to what the thought of taking over the Electric Light and Tram Service, I was pleased to know that he was quite enthusiastic over it; would that all our countrymen were as Democratic and full of interest for the working man as the Hon. John. I was also glad to know, Sir, from your editorial that the issue was already a live one, and that negotiations had been opened between the Government and the Nfld. Co. on the matter. I trust for the welfare of the seventy or eighty per cent. of the people of St. John's to whom the Electric and Tram system is of no service, that the Government will view it from a favorable light. If again as you say that the Nfld. Co. are favorably disposed towards the transfer, and will in return spend the transfer money towards the betterment of our railway system and the erection of a first class hotel in St. John's, with other things left to my mind, for the Government to do, but make the deal right.

Mr. Editor, that the Reids are right by us in offering these concessions in return. The time has passed, for us to be viewing large measures through a microscope. We shall have to get big enough to see with the naked eye if we are to moderate ourselves to existing conditions. As a City, without any laws of incorporation, we are helpless in our attempt of raising money, hence has dawned when his anticipations will be realized. Go ahead, Mr. Anderson, we know you are going to come out on top as you did with the Daylight Bill. For one can't say that the Daylight Bill is not a benefit to each and all of our people. I understand that the House Building begins on or about the 11th of September. It seems almost too good to be true. But of course we know that it is so and that before long we shall see and watch them steadily advance at no small pace. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, and wishing your paper every success, I beg to remain,

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

Sales of Newfoundland Scotch cured herring in the New York market at prices ranging from $23 to $26 have been commensurate during the past week, the bulk of this business being in winter and spring fish, and the prices being according to size and quality. Although these prices are not up to the ideas of the trade, it seems a consensus of opinion that the market will not stand a higher price at this time. Holders of fall herring, however, expect and are asking prices somewhat in advance of these quotations. It is noted, however, that offerings of fancy fall stocks have been made at prices from $25 to $27, or about $1 less per barrel than the quotations for this grade which have prevailed for several weeks. There is a limited quantity of fall Scotch cured herring available in Newfoundland and holders in this and other American markets are not prone to make any concession to buyers when offering it. Shipments have been coming forward with more or less regularity, but the supply of this grade in the New York market is by no means large. Indeed, with a resumption of an active demand for herring, it is doubtful if the present supply would be more than sufficient to meet the requirements of the market for more than a few months. It is confidently expected that prices will advance. In fact, the development of the market here seems bound to bring about an advance in the present quotations. As supplies are light in all hands, it may be expected that the first increases will come when the demand is again active.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette, Aug. 10.

The Man With the Hoe

Hoeing is a severe strain on the back. It calls into play muscles not used much in lifting or in other kinds of farm work. If you have a weak back you cannot stand much hoeing unless you use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to set the kidneys right and remove the cause of weakness and lameness of the back. Just try one pill a dose at bed time and see how much better you will feel.

Col. and Mrs. Otway's

LAST SUNDAY IN ST. JOHN'S. After three years successful leadership of the Salvation Army forces in Newfoundland, Colonel and Mrs. Otway are leaving us for Toronto, Canada. To-morrow will be their last Sunday in the city. They speak at No. 3 Hall, 118 Duckworth St., at 11 a.m., and at No. 2 Hall, 30 Adelaide Street, at 7 p.m. Hosts of friends will want to see them and say good-bye, and there are likely to be crowded halls. Their last meeting, which was intended to be next Wednesday at No. 1 Citadel, New Gower Street, will be on Tuesday instead. Further particulars of this interesting meeting will appear in Tuesday's papers. The Colonel is very grateful for the courtesy that has been shown him during his stay in Newfoundland by the press. Adjt. R. Tilley, the Supl. for the Salvation Army schools in Newfoundland, who has been in Canada for six weeks on army business, is returning on the express to-day. He is welcomed back by a host of friends.—Com.

Too Late.

Dear Sir,—How much did you laugh (I'm not finished yet), when you read yesterday that the Mayor and Councilors had the staff brought to order re watering the streets? Now did you ever, since the age of Moses hear of such bare faced stuff? Here we are, the 23rd of August, after the most dusty season ever known in this city, and only yesterday the so called Councilors opened their eyes and saw the dust. Too late friends, too late. Your doom was sealed before yesterday, and now to try and hide your eyes neglect by casting the blame on the employees is rather thin and won't work in the present age. Your resignation should be demanded by the citizens, as their trust when electing you has been badly misplaced. Yours truly, AUG. 24, 1918. LOW BACK CAR.

Forty Years in the Public Service—The Evening Telegram

Our Baseball Column.

PLACIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

(All communications in connection with this Column should be addressed to "Baseball Editor, c/o Evening Telegram.")

ANOTHER PROBLEM.

An active fan asks us the following, which is referred to our readers for an opinion:

Are base-runners allowed to advance (at their own peril) after four balls are called on the batter by the Umpire, or is the ball out of play until returned to the pitcher?

Any solution sent to the Editor of this Column will be published for the benefit of readers.

CANUCKS-YANKS vs. NATIVES.

Much interest is being manifested over the coming game between the team of Canadians and Americans and a team composed solely of Newfoundlanders. The principal need of the foreigner seems to be a pitcher. Of course it is pretty impossible to get one as good as the "Iron Man," "Tim" says MacDonald, who is going to do slab duty for them, is "some bird."

AVERAGES.

The complete averages for the 1918 season will be published in Monday or Tuesday's Column. We heard some very adverse criticisms over the averages as published some time ago. In connection with this we might state that in this League it would be quite ridiculous to charge any but the most flagrant errors to any fielder. Our new scorers, Messrs. Channing and Merner, who by the way are ardent fans with a thorough knowledge of the game, have promised to keep tab next year on every known and unknown play, so that we may look forward to something real authentic and accurate for next season.

THE OLD WILLOW BAT.

How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood.

When Fond Recollection is battling them out.

The one girl that loved me, the bully that shoved me.

The teacher that looked at my future with doubt.

How well I remember one day in September.

When father came home when I was in bed.

And tossed on my pillow a bat made of willow.

All painted and varnished in yellow and red.

A new willow ball bat.

A fat willow ball bat.

All painted and varnished in yellow and red.

How proudly next morning I hiked for the playground.

To show my young buddies my wonderful prize.

The Quintus and Gilboleys, and Hogs and Dooleys.

The "Cross-the-Creek" gang who could whip twice their size.

"Hurrah!" was their slogan, "Come, fellows, let's ALL bat.

The guy that hits furthest is ONE bat ahead."

And that was the last that I saw of my ball bat.

My nice willow ball bat all yellow and red.

My fat willow ball bat.

My fat willow ball bat.

The wonderful bat that Dad brought to my bed.

THE ROMANS HAD THEM TOO.

"Some of these classic writers," says "Demon Dug" of the Cubs, "must have known something about baseball and had pretty good ideas. There was one fellow named Gibbon. He wrote 'The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire,' and I intend to read his book as soon as I get a little leisure."

"Hound of God."

(Halifax Chronicle.)

A tribute was paid to the British Navy by Rev. Edward T. Sullivan at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston on a recent Sunday, when he preached a sermon on "The Hound of God; the British Fleet, Guardian of Our Liberty." Mr. Sullivan traced the history of the British fleet, and said twice before has the British Navy been called upon to defend the seas—when Britain's safety was threatened by the Spanish Armada; and again by Napoleon, when Nelson led his men by sleepless vigilance, and bulldog tenacity to save England and Europe from the invader, and finally gave his own life at Trafalgar Bay. "England's control of the sea was threatened for the third time in this war, but within twenty-four hours after war was declared, and both France and Britain taken unawares, the hound of Heaven had its strangle hold on Germany's throat and has since been tightening its grip and throttling the very life of the despot. More than 30,000,000 men have been sent back and forth in safety because of Britain's naval power. Her achievements are unparalleled, stupendous in conception mighty in scope. Her silent sentinels of the North Sea have made it possible to land troops everywhere. To this power and to our own wonderful Navy, man to man and ship to ship, we pay our tribute and join hands across the sea with those who serve."

At the close of the sermon Mr. Sullivan read "Nelson's Dying Prayer at Trafalgar Bay."

Super Huns.

In the midst of the falling of towns, roars of hundreds of guns, taking of thousands of prisoners, wild careering of tanks, and all the uproar that goes with the German army dissolution on the West Front, nothing is more striking by way of contrast, than the conduct of German captured officers. Most people would suppose their predicament, as the prisoner hears of the latest defeat, would affect their bearing. Two German colonels, as noted by the war correspondents on Friday, were very indignant that they had to walk to the prisoners' cage, instead of riding! Another poured a rich stream of German abuse on his British captors as not being gentlemen, they were swine, that would not take a highly placed German officer's word, etc. They did not, and withdrew neatly the valuable papers the highly placed Hun had hastily stuffed into his trousers.

SPLENDID TIME.—Horse lovers generally, and particularly patrons of the racing stallion "Howard Mann" of "Westerland" will be pleased to know that news has just come in that one of his three year old colts "Moko-Axyworthy" recently won a race on a half mile track, going the mile in the splendid time of 2 minutes and 18 1/2 seconds. The public may expect to see some fast heats on Quidi Vidi when his colts here are old enough to contest.

Sunshine Entertainment.

On Wednesday, Sept. 4th, a garden fête will be held at the residence of Mrs. John Browning, Victoria, King's Bridge Road. The management will be in the hands of Mrs. Chas. Harvey, the originator of the idea, and Mrs. W. Rennie, Mrs. F. Rennie, Mrs. Colville and many other ladies who made last year's fête such a success. The ladies are anxious to install an electric lighting system at the Jensen Camp as soon as possible, and this fête is being given with the hope that the proceeds will defray all expenses of doing so. It is enough to say that the programme, both afternoon and evening will equal if it will not surpass last year's. All will remember the beautiful outdoor tableaux that were given; this feature of the entertainment will be repeated.

False Modesty.

has led many a suffering person to neglect the treatment of piles. The itching, stinging sensations produce the keenest distress. The thought of a surgical operation brings mental anxiety which undermines the general health. Relief can always be obtained by the application of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in most cases, persistent treatment brings about complete cure. This ointment is worth trying when you think of the comfort to be obtained.

Trawler and Submarine.

Great excitement prevailed in Gloucester, Mass., fishing circles among the crews of the vessels in port as the result of the arrival of the beam-trawling steamer Walrus, Capt. Clayton Morrissey, after a sensational escape from a German submarine. The Walrus was seven miles northwest of Highland Light when a submarine appeared on the surface a scarce 150 yards from the fisherman. Captain Morrissey immediately took the wheel and in an attempt to ram her headed the Walrus directly for the submarine, which quickly submerged. The submarine came up shortly afterwards and fired two shots at the fishing boat, but both of them went wide of their mark.

Short Supplies of Butter and Cheese.

The increasing interest amongst city grocers and importers of butter and cheese was evidenced by the fact that at a meeting called by the Food Control Board for yesterday afternoon to consider this matter, some thirty persons were present. The Chairman of the Food Control Board, Sir Patrick McGrath, presided and read a series of telegrams between the local department and the Canadian Food authorities regarding the matter, showing that on July 8th an embargo was imposed on shipments of butter and cheese to Nfld., and that this was not lifted until Mr. Thomson was here last week when he undertook to remove the prohibition on condition that we claim for minimum quantities, but that on returning to Ottawa he found the situation such that it was only possible to provide licenses for the second grade of both commodities. In other words the best grades of butter and cheese are apparently being shipped to Europe for the Allied armies, and we will have to be content with what is available afterwards. The chairman stated that the position of his colleagues and himself was that our first duty here was to secure a sufficient supply of butter for the requirements of the local margarine factories in order that the production of the people should not be curtailed; and that if it was necessary, in order to do this, that the entire population, from the highest downwards, would have to use butterine, the Board would have no hesitation in enforcing such a policy. The chairman stated, however, that the Board would undertake than any supplies in excess of this requirement, if obtainable, would be distributed pro rata amongst the importers on the basis of their average import for the past two years. With regard to cheese, he intimated that we would apparently have to accept what the Canadian authorities were prepared to grant permits for, and he showed by telegrams that our own Board was now in close communication with the Canadian Department in regard to this. At his suggestion it was agreed that a committee of six be appointed to represent the importers, and assist the Board in working out the problems of importation and distribution of both commodities, and on motion of Mr. F. H. Stuer it was agreed that the chairman nominate the members of this committee, whereupon he named Hons. John Harvey and M. G. Winter as representing the butterine factories; Messrs. Rosseter and Williams on behalf of the Importers; and Messrs. Dempster and Duffy acting for the grocers. The meeting then adjourned on his intimation that as soon as the board was definitely able to work, the committee would be notified and called together.

Hymeneal.

A very pleasing and happy event took place on Tuesday, the 20th inst., at 8.30 o'clock p.m., at the S. A. Citadel, Bell Island, when Miss Jessie Abbott of Charlottetown, E.B., and Mr. Munden Wilcox of Bell Island, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Adj. Peter Sainsbury. The bride and groom both wore the regulation Army uniform, and a further military touch was given by the "Boy Scouts" and "Girl Guards" who formed a guard of honour, and added considerably to the dignity of the occasion.

The bridesmaids were Miss Laura Wilcox and Lieut. Elsie Blackmoor, and the groom was supported by Ensign J. N. Lodge, who acted as master of ceremonies, and who was assisted by Mrs. Wm. McNeill. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the groom's father, Mr. Thos. M. Wilcox, where a dainty repast was partaken of, and a very pleasant time enjoyed by all. The presents were numerous and costly and displayed the good taste of the donors, including one from the S. A. Band, of which the groom is a valuable member.

On Wednesday morning the happy pair left for Dilgo, where the honeymoon will be spent, after which they will take up their residence at Bell Island where the groom holds a responsible position in the Mechanical Dept. of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co. Ltd. The Telegram joins with their many friends in wishing the young couple many years of happy wedded life.—Com.

"Local Distilleries."

Our morning contemporary made a feeble attempt this morning to discredit our report of the "distilling of intoxicating beverages in the city, an account of which appeared in this paper yesterday. The liquor in question was found by the police at a co-operation on Springdale Street and samples were taken by Police Sergt. Long, which, when analyzed by the Government analyst, were found to contain 42.4 of alcohol by volume. The News should institute closer enquiries before contradicting any statement made by this paper.

A Garden Party will be held at Tor's Cove on next Sunday, Aug. 25th.—2225.
