CHAPTER LXVIII.

RETRIBUTION.

Right into the next day Hugh slept soundly and heavily, and when he did awake it was with fresh energy and renewed spirit.

The horrible events of the preceding night seemed like a dream to him, and the first question he asked was how soon he could get back to Grace.

Miss Charles said that he had sent a messenger down to Dale to tell the ladies that they, the two gentlemen, would return at once, as their services were of no further use.

"How is that?" asked Hugh, with a sigh.

"Come in to breakfast, old fellow, and I'll tell you," said Sir Charles, and he led him by the arm into the cosy bachelor room where a well-spread breakfast-table awaited them. Then, while Hugh sipped his coffee, Sir Charles gave him a brief outline of what the police had already discovered.

"It seems," he said, "that the unfortunate man brought his death upon himself. As you know already, he belonged to one of the Italian secret societies. The chief of the brotherhood was a certain Count Vitarrelli; a niece of his, a beautiful woman, and one of the chief corner-stones of the Italian rebellion, was engaged to be married to Reginald Dartmouth. For some time the rebellion has been losing ground, and the miserable man had determined to make a coup by turning traitor and disclosing the names of the members to the Italian court.

"Besides this he had managed by some infinite plotting to prevail upon the countess to go through a clandestine marriage, and the night of his death was the very night they had agreed upon for the flight. Meanwhile a certain valet of his, who bore him a grudge for a savage and cold-blooded blow, got scent of his intended treachery and disclosed it to the brotherhood. You can guess the rest. They punish treason with death. It matters not how well the traitor may have guarded against discovery and detection, they dog him out and inflict the fearful penalty; if he fly to the Arctic regions, or bury himself in the sands of Africa they will have him. How they got him Heaven alone knows.

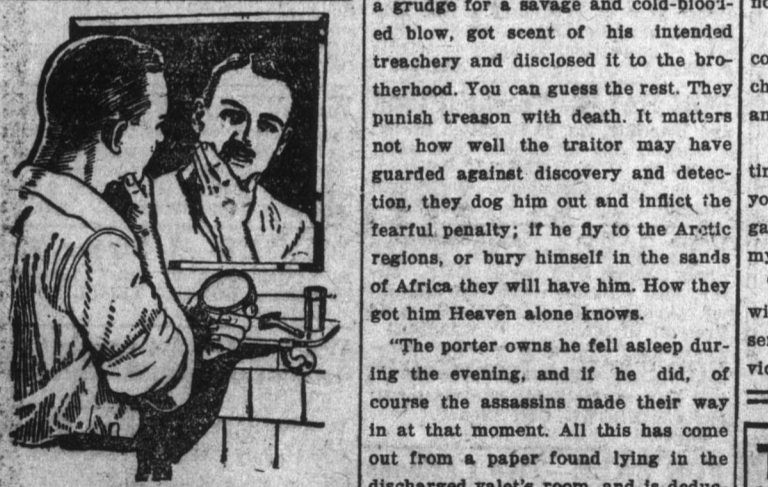

"The porter owns he fell asleep during the evening, and if he did, of course the assassins made their way in at that moment. All this has come out from a paper found lying in the discharged valet's room, and is deduced from the cross cut upon the breast. There is no tracing the perpetrators of the deed. The Vitarrelli's are of course long since out of reach, even if suspicion could be directed against them. The old meeting-place of the brotherhood is silent and deserted; not a member can be traced, or if traced, shown to be implicated in the murder. This is not the first case of the kind by very many; but in this, as in all the former ones, depend upon it, the doers of the deed, the avengers of the order, will never be discovered. There, my dear fellow, is the whole of it. It was a fearful punishment, a shocking and terrible death, but I can not forget that he merited bitter punishment and that his blood is, so to speak, upon his own hands.

Hugh sighed heavily.

"Come," said Sir Charles, "dispel this matter and turn to happier things. We will get down to the Dale at once, and leave Reginald Dartmouth and all pertaining to him. Come, man, throw it off and look forward! If you can't forget that the pitiless villain was a relation, I, for my part, can not help remembering that he—used foul play to the dear old squire, and that he kept you out of your own for all these years. By Jove, the money he must have spent! After all, it is a lucky thing for you, dear old boy, that he was not an idiot as well as a knave; he has invested some of the capital in such good things that Reeves tells me you will not be very much the loser by the term of occupation; and the Dale is, of course, wonderfully improved. Little did the villain think he was employing his talents for you!"

For Daisie's Sake

CHAPTER I.

RIVALS IN LOVE.

Dallas Bain said nothing, but his deep eyes gleamed with a subtle fire, and he resolved that he, too, would make the acquaintance of the lovely girl whose single earnest glance had thrilled him so deeply that it seemed to him already that she must be his fate.

It was strange how much business the two young men had on Temple Street the next few days, either riding or walking, and always watching eagerly for another glimpse of the fair face that had charmed them so.

Once they saw her again on the porch, and twice at the upper window, and finally they met her coming out of her gate, apparently going for a morning call.

She blushed brightly at their admiring glances, and stepped briskly in front of them, walking along for about two blocks, setting them wild with her graceful carriage, like a young princess, then stopped and went into a house whose occupants they knew as acquaintances of Mrs. Fleming.

They nudged each other, and Royall exclaimed eagerly:

"Let us go in and call on that pretty little Miss Janowitz. Then she will introduce us to the beauty."

But Dallas Bain hesitated, though his heart was following the girl inside.

He said tentatively:

"It does not look quite fair to force an acquaintance. Let us try for an introduction in a more proper way."

"A fig for the proprieties! I'm bound to get up a flirtation with that beautiful creature," vowed Royall recklessly, opening the gate and going in while nodding a gay farewell to his friend, who turned away with a jealous pang at his heart, though muttering to himself:

"If she would flirt with him, she is not worth my winning."

Royall Sherwood was cordially welcomed by Miss Annette Janowitz, a charming little brunette, as brilliant and restless as a humming bird.

"I have seen you passing several times this week, and I wondered if you were looking for me," she said gaily. "But let me introduce you to my friend, Miss Bell."

They bowed to each other, Royall with embarrassment, Daisie with reserve; for, having seen him in the vicinity of her home so much lately,

Dallas felt a keen thrill of disappointment and disgust, for Daisie's face had haunted him for many days, and it gave him a shock to think that she was like what Royall said—slimpering and giggling like a silly school-girl. The young widow had treated him to enough of that, trying to pose as girlish, despite her three years of widowhood and two of widowhood, and he decided that he did not care to know Daisie now, since even the careless Royall was no longer interested.

hundreds of people on the Beach, H. B. Brenton, Purchasing Agent of the Union Steamship Company of British Columbia, either jumped or fell to his death, in the waters of English Bay last evening, when a Seaplane, he was piloting, became unmanageable and crashed into the sea. Before the actual fall an explosion was heard, the smoke was noticed. The engine and seaplane turned over seven times in its descent. The machine was brought to shore by a tug and search is being made for the pilot's body. Brenton was a mile at sea when the accident occurred. He had previously made a flight over the city.

Commercial Men Again Discuss Fish Regulations. Another Interesting Meeting.

The adjourned meeting of the Board of Trade was held yesterday afternoon, Mr. H. R. Brookes presiding. The meeting was called for the hearing of the report of the Advisory Board on the wishes of the Board of Trade on Fish matters.

Hon. W. B. Grievé, in reviewing his report, said he conveyed to Hon. Mr. Coaker the wishes of the Board of Trade and that gentleman informed him that he would be present at the meeting then being held and discuss the matter with them. As to whether the request would be granted or not he was unable to say. At the meeting Mr. Coaker was Chairman, and he laid down the rules that would be observed by himself and the Advisory Board. Regarding Portugal the price of 75 has been set for there.

Mr. F. Moore here asked if the 75 was set by the Advisory Board or was it Mr. Coaker's own price.

No reference was made to Spain where there is 60,000 or 70,000 qtls. of old fish and probably the Spaniards will think it inadvisable to import more. There is about 18,000 qtls. of Labrador cure in cold storage and it was supposed this would realize fairly good prices. A large portion of the fish in that market will have to be condemned, but the balance will be sold. It was advised by one member of the Board that the sale of Italian fish be wanted in Mr. Hawes, but Mr. Coaker wanted the whole right and proposed to sell the fish for the trade without commission. I assume he will take good care, from what has been done since November of last year to sell his own. Greece was left alone except that 100— as the value till October, then it will drop 50—, and subsequent prices will be a matter for discussion. For Italy the price for Labrador is to be 85— or 90—. In the price for the Brazils Mr. Coaker would not recede from the minimum of 102, although I had told him that there were 8 or 10 cargoes still unsold and the Brazilians were not now wanting old fish. The retail price of fish at Bahia is 45— and three firms have repudiated cargoes, and I don't see what sense there is in trying to sell for 102, wholesale. The new fish will not be allowed to be sold under 102½ and that not before the middle of October at that rate 15 per drum profit, it is hardly likely that buyers will accept. Asked if he were in favor of reducing the price set for Brazil, Hon. Mr. Grievé replied, I did not advocate it at the meeting as it would be useless. I was only a minority. Mr. Coaker being the sole arbiter of the price of codfish in the colony. Continuing the speaker said, I have been informed that Mr. DeVere, of Brazil, has bought several cargoes of fish, the price of which will be a matter of arrangement later, the evidence or truth of my assertion I will produce at the next meeting. For Shore fish I think the prices indicated were $10, $9, and $8.50. As to the financial situation Hon. Mr. Grievé said that it is Mr. Coaker's intention when he arrives here from the West Coast, to take steps to make the Banks advance more money per qt. for fish. The present price is $5 per qt. As the fishery will be a considerable one 12 million dollars will be required to export it, and of this amount one half will be borne by the shippers. In the matter of shipping fish, Mr. Coaker would only allow cargoes for Halifax on the basis of $12 per quintal C.I.F. This gentleman is, as far as I remember, all that took place at that meeting. Mr. Coaker has not retired from his former declarations and the export of our fish will be entirely governed by him and it is for you to govern yourselves accordingly.

Mr. R. B. Job was next called upon to give an account of what transpired at the meeting.

Mr. Job—Our main mission at the meeting of the Advisory Board was to enquire if Mr. Coaker was prepared to abide by the regulations of our semi-annual meeting. I waited for some time and asked Mr. Grievé if he was forgetting it. I was not quite clear on what it meant. I think Mr. Grievé is astray as to what went on. The meeting was open but only small things were passed and I think without his opposition. He will probably be put down in the minutes as agreeing to them. Mr. Grievé has stated that one member advocated Mr. Hawes being the sole agent in Italy.

Mr. Grievé—Didn't Mr. Barr do so? Mr. Coaker said he would like to do the selling, and told me he wanted no commission.

Mr. Job—Mr. Barr thought the matter of Italy was open to consideration and Mr. Hawes' friends would like him to be one channel of selling. I would like to see others myself. Mr. Grievé claimed the right to sell through his own agent and named a man at Naples. Mr. Coaker didn't think him strong enough to deal with the Consolato, of which he is also a member. I suggested selling through Harrington and White, but Messrs. Barr and Coaker thought that inadvisable. Only a tentative decision was arrived at to have two and that Hawes be one. Nothing was really decided about Operto but the prices will be left as at present. No resolutions can be effective until approved by the Governor in Council. As to the West Coast, shippers had been offered 65— for fish, but Mr. Coaker thought it was worth more, and if the offer were accepted only loss would result. Coaker on his own responsibility held up some cargoes, and I understand some sold at 75—. I think

Golden Opportunities!

With practically every stock on the market down to rock bottom figures, the present is an excellent time for wide awake investors to acquire bargains.

A glance at our Quotation Board will convince you quickly that a large number of America's foremost stocks can be purchased at attractively low prices to net some handsome profits in the market uplift that must soon materialize.

This is an ideal time for the new investor—the young man—to get in RIGHT.

J. J. LACEY & COMPANY LIMITED,
BROKERS ON MARGIN.

Holmwood & Holmwood said it should be 80— in Operto.

Mr. W. A. Munn—Holmwood only heard some had been sold at 80— but the fixed price was 75— and think they ought to be advised about lowering of prices.

Mr. Patten—Part of the Nordic's cargo was sold at 80— for large, and 75— for small, and that at 30 days' draft.

Mr. Job—It must be apparent the old West Coast system of sending fish without knowing what it will fetch is wrong. Mr. Coaker hopes to rectify that system and hold the fish here where it will keep better. I admit there is injury when trade is interfered with but there will be benefit in the long run. It was agreed at the Advisory Board meeting that prices in Greece be arranged from time to time, but at present they must remain at 100— less 14 per cent. As to Brazil no new fish was shipped there last year till October 6, and the second cargo on the 17th. If they took old fish then I don't see why they won't do so now. The regulations will affect some fish here all right but may make more realize higher prices. I called Mr. Coaker's attention to the meeting of exporters in September, and the giving of a fortnight's notice. He said he was going to the West Coast cold fields and would not be back till Friday.

Mr. Grievé—He told me he would be present at the meeting on Thursday.

Mr. Brookes—Notice has been published of the exporters' meeting in September. I saw Mr. Coaker before he left town, and he said he did not think resolutions from the full Board of Trade as effective as if coming only from licensed exporters.

Mr. F. Moore—Last winter when fish was brought in here for Brazil it fetched $12 per quintal. Now if Mr. Job is correct about that market, why did he refuse in June to buy at all and later offered $4.50 per quintal. That is what the fishermen are looking at and they will be the sufferers. If there are to be such great prices in Brazil why didn't he give more. Yet he claims the regulations will give wonderful benefits.

Mr. Job—My answer is that we didn't want the fish.

Mr. Moore—I never saw the man yet doing business but would buy in fish if he thought he would make money by doing so.

Mr. Patten—The West Coast is a long stretch of territory, the merchants are scattered and it is hard for them to get together and confer as you do in this city. From the start of the Regulations we have read the accounts of your meetings, and particularly the statements of Sir John Crossbie, and have felt they would be a hardship on us. The regulations are a knife at the throat of the West Coast. Mr. George Penney, of Ramea telegraphed all over Europe a few days ago but could not sell the Edith Cavell's cargo at prices fixed and now is refused permission to send it forward on consignment. He threatened to send it without a permit, and was told by Coaker if he did so the penalty would be the full amount of the cargo. The vessel has been held up over two weeks, and I know that the fish in her must deteriorate. We are surprised that there is no redress, and wonder why the Legislature ever allowed the Bill to pass. It would not have done so if the outports had been consulted. Years ago we bought fish, disposed of it through Hon. W. B. Grievé and others, and were usually satisfied on getting the rise in prices later. After a time we turned to Halifax, and the West Coast forged ahead and as a result of push and energy our people became prosperous. I and others cannot see why we are interfered with in selling to the highest bidder. We are not adverse to improvement in cure but we certainly do object to pompous inspectors picking over and throwing out fish in a different grade after it had been passed by competent culter. They have not been interfered with as inspectors, but their manner of conducting inspection is objected to, and some men are ready to go further. Moulton's cargoes have been held up. As to the Nordic's cargoes part of which was sold at 80— there was no reason why it was not in consumption before as she was ready to sail on the 14th of July. It was held up at great expense to the shippers which is an outrage. The fishermen are up against it when lots of fish are dumped together on the markets.

Mr. Lake—Under what law could Mr. Coaker confiscate a whole cargo if shipped off without his permission. Penney had a cargo ready in July that was not sold up to half an hour ago.

Mr. Brookes—He has no power that I know of.

Mr. Piccott—It must be under the War Measures Act, which is very convenient.

Mr. Brookes—The only power I know he has is to take away the export license.

Mr. Piccott—From the reports of Messrs. Grievé and Job, they seem to have a different opinion of what was done at the Advisory Board meeting. As Mr. Grievé says there was only two of them then why the benefit of them on the Board. I consider the trade of the country has been grossly insulted. Is the trade, which represents the fishermen without whom the country cannot go on to have any influence at all or are the Big Three, as they are generally known to manage

MRS. LUCY DOUCETTE, of Manchester, N. H., who says she's just so happy over the way Tanlac restored her health she can't keep from telling people about it.

"I am just so happy over the way Tanlac has restored my health that I can't keep from telling people about it," said Mrs. Lucy Doucette, of 76 Stark street, Manchester, New Hampshire, a few days ago. "I suffered so long with chronic indigestion that I didn't know what it was to sit down and enjoy a single meal. My stomach was so badly disordered I had to live on the strictest diet, and nothing seemed to agree with me. At times my breath seemed to be cut off, and I would suffer terribly for hours at a time."

"I lost my strength completely and became so weak and run-down I would give out several times during the day and would have to stop and rest. I was extremely nervous and irritable, and just felt like I would break down completely."

"One day I saw a statement from a friend of mine who said Tanlac had helped her wonderfully, so I was convinced it was a dependable medicine and I began taking it immediately, and I am more than pleased at the splendid results. My appetite improved right from the first, and the horrible indigestion from which I suffered so long has entirely disappeared."

"I have now finished my fourth bottle, and can eat just anything I wish without any bad after-effects. I also sleep better and have more strength and energy. It is a pleasure to tell others what Tanlac has done in my case."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Soud Island Store, Soud Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbour; W. J. Burdock, Bellefleur; John Moray, Permause; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renew's.—adv

The whole business. To-day business is at a standstill. I have it from the banks that they will not advance money till prices are settled. The fishermen have lots of fish made and want to pay up their bills and see where they stand as to getting a winter's supplies but when they come to town they can't get any satisfaction. The question is, if the laws, and laws they are of the hardest kind, are good or bad. The fishermen want that information and look to the trade for it. If more men like the Pattens, Harris, Penneys and others could come here and give their opinions often it would do a great deal of good. These are the class of men who have worked their way up and made Grand Bank the Gloucester of Newfoundland. A cargo of Penney's is still tied up. Must such conditions prevail. The Kaiser in all his glory never issued such a decree as these regulations. In a few days that cargo will be no good. Can Penney and the men who caught that fish afford to throw it overboard. It is up to the trade to take steps to assist them as in their situation they are not in touch with legal advice and can only get their information by telegraph. It is high time the prices were settled. Britain's boat has been her open doors and freedom of the trade but here in the oldest Colony the doors are barred and the Government is allowed to sell our industry. The end will be that the young men, the backbone of the country will reel up their lines and clear out. Mr. Coaker said it was a good thing to see them going as there would not be so many to catch fish. But what is to happen when whatever fish is caught can't be sold and the banks won't advance money, but that all will have to get out. The people are satisfied with the ordinary laws but not with Kaiserism. Capt. A. Keon doubted if washing fish from the knife, as advocated by Mr. Coaker, is good, as it is questionable if it does not destroy the flavor. The regulations state that fish for Spain must be of a golden colour but do not state how to make it so. Again the Labrador fish has to be split to the crux of the tail, etc. Has it been considered what all this means to the fishermen. In 1914 and 1915 we got the best prices ever received for fish and all were better off than ever before when the regulation were sprung on them now that they are with us we are only on the verge of the trouble. Labrador fish is to be $3.00 but Newfoundland catch can be cured in the same way and a simple sum will show it to figure at $13.33 per qt. There regulations cannot be carried out except by making the fishermen suffer as when forced to dry it they lose about 30% of the weight. This is the point the fishermen want explained. Mr. Patten put it correctly when he asked, did the country need the regulations. The success of Patten, and others showed they knew their business and they carried it all on in the old way. It is better to bear the ill-effects of the law than to fly to those who know not of it.

Mr. Patten rose and stated that another who protested against the regulations was Vatcher Cluett, the big fish killer of the West Coast, and his reason was that his men are refusing to catch any more or sail until the conditions are changed. Another captain had also refused to sail but after much persuasion was induced to do so. Mr. Patten has had the same trouble with his own men who figure out that there is no sense in catching fish that can't be disposed of or as they put it, catch it only to be thrown overboard. The result of the regulations if continued will be that these men will have to leave the country and then it's easy to guess the results.

At 5 o'clock the meeting adjourned till 4 p.m. to-morrow. Mr. Coaker will be invited by Secretary Patten of the Board to attend.

Making Tobacco Test.

Twenty-four girl students of the University of Wisconsin, at Madison, Wis., will be paid forty cents an hour next winter to blow blue clouds of smoke into the laboratory of Professor M. F. O'Shea.

The same privilege is now being handed right out of the humidifier to 24 male students. And the makins' are free.

For eighteen months these students have been the subject of an investigation by Professor O'Shea, who is seeking to determine what effect, if any, tobacco has on the mental faculties.

One of the purposes of the investigation is to see if tobacco has the same effect on girls that it produces on men.

Just what the test has shown to date Professor O'Shea will not tell. He will make a complete report when it is finished.

Simultaneously similar investigations are being made at other universities. In these schools, however, the examinations are to determine the effect of tobacco on the physical body and the morals. Professor O'Shea is specializing on the mental effects only.

Other universities at which examinations are being conducted are John Hopkins, University of Michigan, Leeland-Stanford, Harvard, and Cornell.

The investigators will make their reports at the same time and their joint findings will be published.

Since chewing is also included in the test, Professor O'Shea is prepared to raise the pay a little as an added inducement when he collects his class of co-eds.

"This work is being carried on for scientific purposes only," Professor O'Shea explained. "It is not in the interest of any propaganda whatever. Personally we do not care whether tobacco is harmful or not. All we want is the scientific truth, which we will publish to the world."

The students to whom the invitations are being made have no idea what the test will show. The Professor has been very careful to keep them in the dark on that subject.

When Children Smoked

Scotch women used to enjoy a pipe she has been taught to spin but has just as they enjoyed a pinch of also learned to smoke. Smoking snuff. One of the compilers of the second volume of the "Statistical Account of Scotland," and notes the phenomenon and says: "The published in 1781, records that 'the favorable alteration with respect to chief luxuries in the rural districts these diseases have only produced a few snuff, tobacco and whiskey. Tea, greater avidity for tobacco,' and sugar are little used, but the use of whiskey has become very great. The use of tobacco may almost be said to be excessive, especially among the female sex. ## AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR THE STANDARDIZATION OF CODFISH!

WHEREAS it is essential in the interests of the Colony that the methods of preparing and exporting codfish which are at present in use should be regulated and improved:

Be it enacted by the Governor, the Legislative Council and House of Assembly, in Legislative Session convened, as follows:—

1. There shall be a Commission to be appointed by His Excellency the Governor-in-Council, which shall be known as the Codfish Standardization Commission.
2. The said Commission shall consist of not less than five or more than eleven persons, of whom the Minister of Marine and Fisheries shall be one, ex officio, and shall be the Chairman.
3. It shall be the duty of the said Commission to prepare and draft rules and regulations for the improvement of the manner in which salt or fish (hereinafter called fish) is prepared for sale and transport, and in particular governing the following matters, that is to say:—
  - (1) The manner of catching, splitting, cleaning, salting, drying, curing, pickling and preparing fish for sale and export, and generally, all and singular the operations involved in the preparation of salt codfish, from the catching of the fish to the production of the finished article.
  - (2) The culling, selecting, assorting, standardizing, and determination of the different types or varieties of fish, with a view to the establishment of grades thereof in the local and foreign markets and to the ensuring, so far as possible, of suitability for the several markets.
  - (3) The stowage, storage, packing, inspection, and weighing of fish and marketing of packages.
  - (4) The lading, stowage, protection, dunnaging, covering, and all other matters connected with the carriage and conveyance of fish whether within this Colony or from this Colony to other countries, and whether in ships, vehicles, or any other modes of conveyance.
  - (5) The establishments of standards of size, type, condition, grade and quality of fish, and the means of determining and enforcing the same.
  - (6) The fixing of differences between the prices of different sizes, types, conditions, grades and qualities in the local markets, and the provision of methods for accurately determining such sizes, types, conditions, grades and qualities.
  - (7) The fixing of penalties for the breach of any of the rules and regulations to be made as aforesaid. Specific penalties shall be fixed for breach of each particular rule and regulation.
4. All such rules and regulations shall be laid before His Excellency the Governor-in-Council for approval, and if when so approved and published in the Royal Gazette shall at the expiration of 15 days from the date of the Proclamation have the force and effect of Law if incorporated in this Act.
5. This Act may be cited for all purposes as "The Fish Standardization Act, 1920."

Scotch women used to enjoy a pipe she has been taught to spin but has just as they enjoyed a pinch of also learned to smoke. Smoking snuff. One of the compilers of the second volume of the "Statistical Account of Scotland," and notes the phenomenon and says: "The published in 1781, records that 'the favorable alteration with respect to chief luxuries in the rural districts these diseases have only produced a few snuff, tobacco and whiskey. Tea, greater avidity for tobacco,' and sugar are little used, but the use of whiskey has become very great. The use of tobacco may almost be said to be excessive, especially among the female sex. HOW TO TELL A GENTLEMAN OR WOMAN.

There is no truer hallmark of the real gentleman or the habit of consideration than the habit of consideration. I heard a man who is clever and interesting and kind hearted in his way, but not a gentleman, try to draw a friend of mine into a religious discussion with a third party the other day. She graciously but firmly refused to be drawn into the talk. Later, when the third person had gone, he taxed her with her unwillingness and called it foolishness. "You don't dare say what you think in front of Mrs. J., because she is such an old standpatter," he said.

She would not argue. "It's not a case of daring," she defended herself with justifiable spirit. "I know Mrs. J. feels very strongly about those matters, and very differently from what I do, and I don't see anything to be gained by thrusting my views on her. I don't believe in discussing religion with people when they feel so strongly and you only stir them up. It's not--she hesitated, "it's not--kind."

I wondered if she had started to say in that pause, "it's not good manners." I would not have blamed her if she had. But very likely the same consideration which forbade her to discuss religion, forbade her to say that.

That woman is a member of a fine old family and as thoroughly a gentleman as he is not a gentleman.

And because of her heritage and breeding, consideration is second nature to her.

The Thought of the Waitress.
When she was stopping at the summer hotel where I was, she changed her supper hour and I found out afterward that she did it out of consideration for the waitress who was overworked at the earlier hour.

Many of the rules of good breeding are simply an expression of consideration.

Well bred people talk in low, well modulated voices--because they have

Murdered Her Betrayer.

Forced to fly from Philadelphia, in the United States, where he had been the ring-leader of a criminal gang, Francesco di Cicco returned to his native Philadelphia, in Calabria, Italy, where he set up business among the credulous country folk as a prophet and wonder worker.

In short, the white-bearded charlatan, to whom thousands of women resorted for his exercise of supposed magical arts, amassed a small fortune.

Recently a young girl whom he had wronged when she was under hypnotic influence, stole back to his cavern with a scythe, killed him and hacked the impostor's body to pieces. Finding it impossible to obtain an emigrant's passport the girl gave herself up to the police.

While the magistrates of Milan were assembled for a preliminary hearing of the case, a big pilgrimage of the hoaxed penitents, headed by the town band, besieged the law court, demanding the immediate release of the murderer.

On her exit from court repeated but unsuccessful attempts were made to rescue the girl from the grip of the carabinieri escorting her.

The crowd then insisted upon accompanying the heroine as far as the prison gates, amid enthusiastic cheering and singing.

SUMMER DAYS.

A summer sun now hands us one, and paints our maps with freckles; we cry, "Gee Whizz!" For cooling fizz we blow our hard-earned shekels. Though summer's bad, and from the grad we willingly would drive it, some simple rules not taught in schools may help us to survive it. The heat will flay that bonehead jay who's prone to be a glutton, who fiercely eats all kinds of meats, including pork and mutton. The same galoos who live on fruits endure the summer grandly; the sun may fry the whole blamed sky, and they'll regard it blandly. I cut out hams and feed on yams, which cool my fevered bunions; I sidestep cheese and from the trees I pluck the fragrant onions. Rich pies and cakes, and chops and steaks, I find there is a curse on; I eat no more than I can store with comfort in my person. And so I live and smile and give sage counsel while I frolic, while those who eat large salbs of meat are doubled up with colic. I have eschewed all heating food, I've eschewed beer and skittles, and all my tines are based on prunes and other wholesome vittles.

Eggs at $1500 Apiece.

Naturalists who collect eggs for the sake of science have to pay very considerable sums for eggs of the rarer varieties. The most expensive egg is, no doubt, that of the great auk. Though the bird itself is quite extinct, several of its eggs are still in existence, and when one comes up for auction, its price is usually at least $1500. The eggs of the larger birds of prey are always fairly costly. Golden eagles' eggs are worth about $5.00 apiece, and those of the grey sea eagle about $6.00. Eggs of the swallow-tail kite run to $10.00 each, and a similar sum would be paid for an egg of the Greenland gyrfalcon. The pigmy owl is a rare North American bird, and recently $100.00 was paid for a set of four eggs of this variety. The egg of Barrow's Golden Eye duck is worth $5.00 or even more. The difficulty with ducks' eggs is to be certain they are genuine, for those of rare varieties are often exactly similar in shape and size to those of the commoner sorts.

TO BE DISCOURAGED.
Stand you doubting and discouraged at the gateway of your dreams? Is the goal that you are seeking worth the peril that it seems? Is it failure you are facing, is it failure you have met? Meet it bravely, meet it squarely! You may come to triumph yet.

Other men have stood to trial, other men have suffered care, All life's victors long have battled for the crowns which now they wear; There were days when doubts assailed them and when dangers hedged them in. There are days when they were failures, but they rose again to win.

There were times they were discouraged, times their goals seemed far away. And their best seemed oh so futile as they faced their darkest day. Yet they fought their way to triumph, kept their faith in God and man, And their victories now witness as they conquered so you can.

Stand you doubting and discouraged at the gateway of your dreams? Is the goal that you are seeking worth the peril that it seems? Just remember out of trials worse than those which now you face, Other men have come to glory. So press forward in the race.

Confusion Worse Confounded.

The more the Fish Export Regulations are discussed, the more their purpose and nature are revealed. They are notoriously bad, and their avowed object is to benefit the North at the expense of the West. That is as clear as daylight. Those who have followed the reports of the Board of Trade meetings can only arrive at the same conclusion. The strongest protests have been registered by West Coast firms, who have been deliberately prohibited from getting away to market their new cargoes: Legislation of sorts has been enacted at the instance of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, which is discriminatory and made with the sole object of killing the larger interests on the West Coast, in order that the North may derive advantage. There would be no objection to any section of the dominion competing with others legitimately, but invidious legislation is intolerable. That is just what the West Coast is up against. Representatives of exporting firms have made their protest and have explained their positions, but unless they take the law in their own hands, they are helpless. The Acting Premier will not come down: neither will he meet them half-way. Therefore, it is obvious, that to protect themselves they are perforce compelled to run counter to the legal regulations of the Customs' Act.

The wonder is that this has not been done long ago. The whole trade of the West Coast has been held up and the losses in consequence cannot be estimated at the moment. There is no power vested in the person or position of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries that invests him with authority to confiscate any cargo or cargoes of fish, the shippers of which order the masters of vessels carrying them to go to sea without a license from that department or a clearance from the Customs. The Fisheries Minister can refuse a permit, or can cancel the export license of the shipper. Beyond that his powers end. It is time that the trade realized this and acted accordingly. The big stick wielded by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is not nearly so threatening as it appears, but if the shaking of it scares people, the holder is delighted and continues the shaking process. Apparently he has done so to some purpose, as the whole trade now waits his commands and his permission. End this state of affairs, gentlemen! Are you not a little bit ashamed to be used as shuttlecocks by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries?

Auto Bumps Pony Trap

ANOTHER INSTANCE OF CARELESS DRIVING.

Due to gross carelessness in driving, an accident that might have ended fatally, occurred on King's Bridge Road, near the Children's Hospital, at about 10.30 o'clock last night. At this hour Mr. James J. Whelan was driving out to Logy Bay in a pony trap, when a big grey painted car came up behind and crashed into the light vehicle, completely wrecking it. The driver of the car did not blow for right of way, though Mr. Whelan, hearing the noise of the engine, pulled his pony near the curb in order to give space for the motor to pass. The motorist, however, did not appear to notice the rig ahead of him and without changing his direction deliberately collided with the trap, the impact throwing Mr. Whelan forward over the dashboard, though fortunately he escaped injury. The pony being badly frightened, started at a gallop, and was only prevented from doing itself harm by the presence of mind of Mr. Whelan, who kept tight hold of the reins and stuck to the wreck of the vehicle, until some passers by stopped the animal, when suffering from shock and fright. Mr. Whelan had to be driven home. He is very grateful to Mr. C. Marshall, who helped him pick up his belongings, which were in the trap and for his offer to take him to Logy Bay. To Mr. John Sney, who looked after the shabbling of the pony and drove Mr. Whelan home in his cab, the latter also expresses thanks. The driver of the car which did the damage and hastened away without having the courtesy to stop and investigate is known, and later he will be asked for an explanation of his conduct.

TAYLOR-KING.

In the presence of a large congregation, made up of relatives and friends of both contracting parties, Rev. D. B. Hemmeon, at George Street Methodist Church, yesterday afternoon, united in the holy bonds of Matrimony, Julia Lyda, daughter of Catherine and the late Captain Joseph C. Taylor, of Carbonar, and George Boyd King, of this city, recently returned from Western Canada, where he possesses large ranching interests. The bride, looked—as all brides look—charming, being gowned in white crepe de chene, trimmed with old Maltese lace (an heirloom of the Taylor family), with embroidered bridal veil and coronal of orange blossoms. Mr. H. J. Taylor was father giver. The bridesmaids were Miss Laura King and Miss Stella Taylor, wearing costumes of pale blue crepe de chene and saxe georgette, with picture hats to match. Little Miss Bertha Taylor, niece of the bride, was flower girl. The groom was supported by his brother, Laet. Will S. King, R.A.F., who was in uniform, giving a military color to the ceremony. Mrs. Hemmeon presided at the organ and the grand strains of Mendelssohn's bridal chorus, greeted the bride as she entered the church. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome cameo pendant, and to the bridesmaids, rhinestone shoe buckles, set in silver. The youthful flower girl was made happy by being the recipient of a bracelet. Friends of their appreciation showered a multitude of valuable presents on them, not only as tokens of esteem, but in tangible testimony of never ending friendship. Subsequent to the ceremony the wedding party and guests to the number of one hundred motored to Donovan's, where the reception was held. Following luncheon the health of the bride and bridesmaids and other toasts were proposed, and with song and dance the evening was passed very pleasantly by both young and old. The Telegram extends to Mr. and Mrs. King all the felicitations that life can offer.

Tablet to Lamented Prelate

At Muir's Marble Works there is being made a marble tablet to the memory of late Bishop Power of St. George's. It is of chaste design and has the lamented prelate's photograph, burnt on china, set in its upper portion. The lettering is set in gold leaf, being the workmanship of Mr. Joseph Murrin, the manager. The tablet will be erected in the Cathedral at St. George's.

MARGARET J. BAKER.
"In the midst of life we are in death" was sadly verified on Monday, Aug. 9th, when a message from New York was received by Mrs. Charles Daley, St. Joseph's, apprising her of the sudden and unexpected death of her sister Margaret J. Baker. Deceased was a daughter of Alban and the late Mary F. Doody, of Colinet Island, and was in her thirty-fourth year. For the past 12 years Margaret had resided in New York, during which time she visited home on several occasions. She always enjoyed perfect health until on Aug. 8th in a New York hospital, to the grief of her husband and friends, she passed through the vale of death to her immortal home. Besides her husband she leaves to mourn a brother and sister in Newfoundland. To all of these in their deep sorrow their many friends extend sincere sympathy, and fervently repeat a requiescat in peace.

Olives And Tripe.

A FAIR COP BUT NO RESULTS.
During last week some vigilant eyes espied two kegs being brought in to the home of a gentleman resident of the East End. Suspicion of smuggling immediately suggested itself and the matter was duly reported to the Inspector General. The latter immediately got his department on the scent, and a squad of plain clothes men were sent to make the capture. They duly descended on the home and after an exhaustive search they were rewarded by finding one of the kegs, which after a shaking, sounded like the real thing. It was broached and smelled, but it was not convincing so it was opened and found to contain olives. Further search was made and the other keg subjected to the same process this time with even more disappointment, as it was the last hope. This keg however contained nothing stronger than tripe. The vigilant eye has not been somewhat blinded since.

LONDON GOSSIP.

PRINCE GEORGE TO VISIT NORWAY.

The battleship Temeraire, now employed as a training ship for cadets, is about to cruise in Norwegian waters. She is to visit Christiania, and will lie off the Norwegian capital from August 18th to August 30th. Therefore she will not visit Trondhjem between those dates as originally intended. Christiania is seeing a good deal of British men-of-war just now. Sir Roger Keyes has visited the port in the Hood, and his squadron was well received. Among the cadets who are training in the Temeraire is Prince George, the youngest surviving son of the King and Queen.

LORD FISHER AND THE SCRIPTURES.

Within a few feet of the spot near the Sanctuary steps in Westminster Abbey, where the body of Lord Fisher rested during the memorial service, is the seat where the great man used to sit regularly during his later years on Sunday evenings. Close by is the text painted on a board, "Blessed is he that considereth the poor." Not long ago Lord Fisher, who, as one may say, was a "character" in his devotions as in everything else, accosted a verger and said, "My compliments to the Dean and tell him from me that this text ought to be altered. 'Considering' the poor will do them no good; it ought to read, 'Blessed is he that provideth for the poor.'"

HOLIDAY RESORTS DOING BADLY.

The holiday resorts of the South coast of England most favored by Londoners, are not enjoying the golden harvest that they expected to reap in this the first peace-time summer. The demand for accommodation to-day not only falls below expectation, but is considerably less than it was a year ago, when the resorts were besieged with the newly demobilized who came with "money to burn," and to whom expense was a minor consideration. Hotel-keepers looked for-

MEN'S WEAR.

The Men's Clothing, Outfitting and Woolen Trades Exhibition at the Agricultural Hall, Islington (in the north of London), is the first separate exhibition of men's wear. In past years it has been a part of the Drapery Trades Exhibition, but clothiers, like British manufacturers generally, have awakened to the possibilities of exhibitions for pushing foreign trade, so it has now been decided to hold a separate exhibition each year to demonstrate the changing material fashions of men. There is nothing very violent to record this year. The biggest change seems to be the rapid development in the "ready-made" trade, and it is claimed now that everybody except absolute freaks can be fitted from stock. Before the war one would never have thought of visiting a ready-made clothes store for evening clothes, but this year traders are finding a large and good-class trade in this line. "Ready-made" clothing has been brought to such a fine art, a representative of one big firm said, "that in the not distant future it will be nearly all ready-made." In the miscellaneous stalls one noticed a dearth of white collars. Shirts and collars are now made of the same material. Among hats the chief change is in the boater for next season. The crown is to be made higher and the band narrower, and the smooth edge is to disappear. Velours are again popular. They used to be made by Austria; now they come from Czechoslovakia. There is also a large display of cloth hats in the Homburg shape for golfers and sportsmen. "Caps," one salesman said, "are now old-fashioned."

ZOO ARRIVALS.

Those who saw the arrival of the great Indian collection at the Zoological Gardens, London, last week were struck by the tameness of the "wild" creatures. They seemed to have not a growl left in them after the trials of the sea voyage. The Bengal tigers, the most magnificent of the acquisition, were too bored or too resigned to move when dumped at the door of the lion house like bales of goods. They were curiously torpid—as much so as the big snakes which solved their troubles by going to sleep in Calcutta and waking up in London. The monkeys were lively enough but the heat and monotony of life in a small box was weighing on their energies. Indurani, the new elephant, will walk to the Zoo from the docks after midnight to-night, when there is no danger of her charging a bus. The regular losses at the Zoo are much larger than is realized. Only a fortnight ago one of the elephants died after a useful life spent in carrying school children. Indurani is just in time to take her place. The Zoo is now nearly as well stocked as before the war. The cages were woefully thinned during the war, and it was not possible to fill up the gaps, but importation has been going on steadily since the Armistice. Gifts have been coming in well too.

Meets Lost Love.

Of the three marshals of France, one, Marshal Petain, is a bachelor and all the candidates for the honor of being Madame la Marechale—rumor says they have been many—have come to the conclusion that his heart is as unconquerable as he made Verdun. But the truth is that he lost it long ago and was beaten by a rival. He is not the cold, immovable man of popular opinion. Once, when he was major and instructor at the Paris War School, he was in the habit of lunching at a restaurant patronized by officers at the corner of the Champ de Mars. But it was not only for the excellence of its cuisine that the future marshal went there. Perched at the desk by the door was a lovely cashier. The whole war school was in love with her, but it was supposed that the major instructor would win over his pupils.

One day the pretty cashier quitted her desk and was seen with orange blossoms in her hair, making her way to a neighboring church. But Petain was not the bridegroom. The bride had passed him by and given her affections to a younger man, to whom the major was teaching the art of war. A few days ago the Marshal was visiting in the country and the general, in command of the district gave a luncheon in his honor. On his arrival at the house the Marshal recognized in the wife of his host his lost love of long ago, now a matron surrounded by her children. As to him the war had brought honor and promotion to his successful rival.

For a moment the Marshal, who for a man of his rank is shy, was somewhat embarrassed, but the hostess put things right. With the memory, perhaps, of past favors refused, she advanced to meet her guest. "This time you may embrace me," M. le Marechal, she said; and at their ease the happy company sat down to luncheon.

Editorial Columns

(City Editor and Reporter.)

Three newspaper men were discussing their profession during their lunch half hour. Editorial columns and newspaper policies were the subject.

The waning influence of the editorial page was remarked and deplored. America to-day has few great editorial writers. They could be counted on the fingers of a one-armed man, whose remaining hand is not whole. These newspaper men attributed the trend to the weakness of most of the editorial pages and to the apparent viciousness of others.

Many editorial columns say nothing and mean less. The writing is not forceful because it lacks the power of ideas. The writer, hampered by the groveling policy of the paper, discusses trivial subjects generally, but when he comes to real issues does little more than retail the news story, with explanations. The expressions are ambiguous. The writer hopes to deceive the readers on every side of a question that their stand and that of the paper are identical. But the reader is not so easily deluded. He feels the editor's fear to state his convictions boldly and he sees in the editorial a lack of personality, force and vision. Pressing local questions in which the paper's position might have considerable influence are passed over for less dangerous national subjects, discussion of which is not likely to offend.

The contrast is found in the newspaper that takes a decided and altogether vicious stand on every question. Some editors permit personal considerations to a far greater extent than is for the public good. They oppose everything that does not meet with their approval. Thus far their policy is good, but they hold up for ridicule those parties and persons whom they oppose. Apparently the editor's theory is that he alone is right; the rest of the world, that does not side with him, is wrong, and being wrong has no right to its opinions or to an expression of them. Newspapers edited in such a manner are vicious. They apparently care not what effect their policy has on the community so long as it accomplishes their purpose. They strain freedom of speech to the limit with their own utterances, but almost go to the point of advocating a limitation of free speech for others.

Some of the people, notably those who take what they read without reasoning and thinking for themselves, are deceived by such an editorial policy. But observant and thoughtful persons are not, consequently those editorial pages and newspapers are without influence in very wide and powerful circles of citizens.

This weakness and prostitution of the editorial columns eventually should work to the good of the public. It should teach people to read the news more carefully and do their thinking with the approximate facts as a basis. Their conclusions should be sounder and have more life than those presented either by the weakness of the vicious editor. The trouble is that where an editor will stoop to perversion in his editorials he will scatter the same mental poison most cunningly and treacherously throughout his news stories. The people then do not get the facts, but are thinking on the false premises made for them by the editor—premises calculated to lead them to the same conclusions that the editor has determined they shall reach—his conclusions.

How long, the three newspaper men wondered, will the public tolerate such dangerous newspapers? Certainly, they reasoned, the people will awake some time and demand that the newspaper that provides them food for thought shall be sane, broad, forward-looking and wholesome. Surely they will bestir themselves and insist that the material for their minds shall be as untainted as the inspected food that gives them physical life.

The discussion then turned to outstanding newspaper personalities and the personal touch of a newspaper. The selfish editor who serves a vicious newspaper fills the thing with his personality. The newspaper is recognized by the readers as actually being the voice of the editor and owner. Such publications have followings, too, sometimes surprisingly large. The three men at the lunch table wished that there might be more personalities in the profession. They wished for personalities and intellects big enough and broad enough to dominate newspapers, hundreds of them, with the highest idea of the profession—SERVICE TO THE PUBLIC. They would have such personalities stand out with all their strength and boldness against the personalities that are their opposites.

As the lunch period ended the three had decided that the dominant personality in most offices was in the business office, and was concerned more with the financial gains than with the ideals of a newspaper as held in the editorial rooms.

The lunch period discussion had merely meant that the working newspaper men—the ones who have the highest respect for their profession—want more powerful and influential newspapers—powerful because they are right and genuinely seek to serve the people. And they congratulated

A Corn?

Why, a touch will end it!

A corn today is needless, and millions of people know it.

Years ago nearly every woman had them. Now women who know Blue-jay never suffer corns.

Ask your own friends. Blue-jay comes in liquid form or plaster. One applies it in a jiffy—by a touch.

The pain stops. In a little time the whole corn loosens and comes out.

The proof is everywhere. Tens of millions of corns have been ended in this simple, easy way.

This is the scientific method—the modern way of dealing with a corn. It was created by this world-famed laboratory, which every physician respects.

One test will solve all your corn problems. Make it tonight. Buy Blue-jay from your druggist.

Thrilling Escape From an Elephant.

A British officer tells of the escape a friend of his in India had from a mad elephant. The brute had been making mighty efforts to wrench up the stake to which it was chained and at last it succeeded. With the first desperate bound forward the heavy ankle chains, frayed and worn in one link, had snapped asunder, and with the huge stake trailing behind it the elephant charged down on the camp with a scream of fury.

The cry was raised, "Run, run, Sahibs, the tusker has gone mad! He has broken loose!"

The white men started to their feet and ran. The servants fled in all directions. One man was overtaken and killed, another was seized and flung into the river, and then the maddened beast vented his fury on the tent.

From the other shore of the river the Britishers could see the elephant who had thus scattered them in a perfect frenzy of rage; kneeling on the shapeless heap of cloth, furniture and poles, and digging his tusks with savage fury into the hangings and canvas in the very abandonment of rage.

Then they realized that their friend and companion, McIntyre, had been left in the tent. They held their breath and dared not look into one another's faces. Everything showed as clearly as if it had been day. They saw the elephant tossing the strong canvas canopy about. Thrust after thrust was made by the tusks into the folds of cloth. Raising his huge trunk he would scream in the very frenzy of his wrath, but at last he staggered to his feet and rushed in to the jungle.

And then to the joy of the onlookers a muffled voice was heard from beneath the tent folds: "Get me out of this, you fellows or I'll be smothered."

In trying to leave the tent McIntyre's foot had caught in a rope and the whole falling canopy had come down upon him, hurling the table and a few cane chairs over him. His escape had been miraculous. The brute in one of his savage purposeless thrusts had pierced the ground between McIntyre's arm and his ribs, pinning the Afghan coat in to the earth.

The German Foreign Minister.

The recent conference at Spa, Belgium, brought to the notice of the world a German who heretofore had been but little known outside his own country, Herr Albert Simons, Minister for Foreign Affairs in the Government of the German Republic. In the days of imperial Germany the Foreign Minister was second only to the Chancellor. When Germany launched her war, von Bethmann-Hollweg, of "scrap of paper" fame, was Chancellor, and Herr von Jagow was Foreign Minister. The men who now fill these posts under the republic are Herr Fehrenbach and Herr Albert Simons. It was from these men that the representatives of the Allies obtained at Spa a renewal of the promise given by Germany in the Treaty of Versailles that Germany would disarm. The Conference fixed a time limit. A certain portion of the disarming must be completed by October, and conditions existing then will indicate how much good faith

Germany is putting into these promises.

The position of the German Foreign Minister at the Conference was rendered especially difficult by the action of one of his countrymen, Herr Hugo Stinnes, the great coal magnate of Germany, who addressed a truculently worded harangue to the Allied delegates, and had to be called to order by M. Delacroix, the Belgian Premier, who was President of the Conference. However, Herr Stinnes' statements had been disavowed in advance by Herr Simons, the Foreign Minister, and were, therefore, ignored by the representatives of the Allies.

Ship Tomb of Queen.

The discovery of a new Norwegian Viking ship south of Aalesund, Norway, disclosing many things concerning ancient civilization and northern antiquities, recalls to a reader the finding of the "Oseberg ship" discovered at Oseberg, near Tonsberg, Norway, in 1903. This ship is the finest and best-preserved of the Viking ships, and is on display at the University of Christiania. It is more than 100 feet long and 16½ feet wide. It dates from the early part of the Ninth Century. The prow and stern are beautifully carved and the vessel contains a vastness of priceless furniture and other antiquities, a loom with a tapestry of small pictures, sledges with luxurious ornaments, implements of various kinds and a carriage which is work of art. But most interesting of all, the Oseberg ship has served the strange purpose of a sarcophagus for a Viking queen, who lived and died 200 years before William the Norman conquered Britain. Skeletons of two women were found in the ship and scientific investigation points to the probability that the remains belong to a queen and her maid entombed there.

Healthy Mothers Healthy Babies

Every true mother realizes the fact that her baby's health depends upon her own, that the very vitality of her child is influenced by her own physical condition. How important it is, therefore, to guard against any derangement of the female organs, which induce general weakness, nervousness, constant fatigue and utter inability to properly care for her child. Please remember, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and strength to thousands of such mothers.

Mitchell, Ind.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me so much during the time I was looking forward to the coming of my little one that I am recommending it to other expectant mothers. Before taking it, some days I suffered with neuralgia so badly that I thought I could not live, but after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was entirely relieved of neuralgia, I had gained in strength and was able to go around and do all my housework. My baby when 7 months old weighed 20 pounds and I feel better than I have for a long time. I never had any medicine do me so much good."—Mrs. FRANK MONTMAY, Mitchell, Ind.

Good health during and after maternity is a most important factor to both mother and child, and many letters have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., telling of health restored during this trying period by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Yesterday's Smash-Up.
The man Miller, who was seriously injured in the Trade Bakery motor smashup yesterday had not been examined as to the extent of his injuries up to shortly before noon. The hospital authorities are waiting till he gets over the shock. The other man George Dowden who was only slightly injured about the arm, is at his home and will be able to resume work shortly. The motor truck is out of commission for some time, the engine has not been damaged, but the body was badly smashed as was also some of the gears.

Sailor Injured.
The schooner Preceptor was towed outside the harbor this morning and was getting underway to sail for Sydney, in ballast, when some of the tackle aloft gave out and a block fell on a sailor, named Patrick Brake, opening his scalp for about 3 inches. The schooner put back to harbor and called a doctor who ordered the injured man to hospital.

ON THE WEST COAST.
While we hate to admit it, the fact is none the less too apparent that sections of the West Coast are on the verge of destitution. Take in Bay of Islands, for instance. Last fall the fishermen lost heavily, many had swept away in one storm from five hundred to a thousand dollars worth of fishing gear, and that almost before the voyage had begun, besides their losses later many of whom did not make enough throughout the whole voyage to pay for their first outfit. They had to draw on their little reserve—those who were fortunate enough to have same—for their winter's provisions and the spring's outfit; the codfishery has been a very poor one and there is so far little or no market for what they did secure. Many of them will not be fit for herding fishery because of the high cost of nets, etc. They have not the wherewithal to do so; the season is advancing and unless some avenue is opened up the situation will become critical.—Western Star.

Meigle's Report.
FISHERY PROSPECTS BRIGHTER.
The S.S. Meigle, Capt. Norman, experienced splendid weather on her last trip north and got back to Curling about 7 o'clock Monday evening, having made all ports of call to Battle Hr. and return. She reports trap fishing on Labrador side of Straits practically over. There is good sign of cod with hook and line from Battle Hr. to Blanc Sablon and at Bonne Esperance and Salmon Bay fair catches were made last week. Outlook for a good fishery is now very favourable from Flower's Cove to Port au Choix. The Meigle brought 50 passengers, and a large freight consisting mostly of canned lobster and salmon.

ARRESTED A DOG.
During the past week an advertisement appeared in the papers saying that the owner of a certain dog could get possession of him by applying at the police station. The owner applied for his dog and incidentally gave the police information that they wanted. It appears that a robbery had been committed and the police were sent to investigate. In the meantime the same premises had again been broken into, but in this case a dog had been left behind. The police, seeing no other culprit, arrested the canine to await developments. The owner of the dog, however, was not implicated in the robberies, the thieves being two boys to whom the dog was attached.

The Terrors of Blockade.

(Montreal Daily Star.)
There has been a tendency in certain quarters to poke fun at the League of Nations because it lays such stress upon the blockade as a weapon to be used against a nation which may defy the League. The blockade, it is argued, is a very weak weapon indeed to wield against a recalcitrant power. Yet the truth is that the blockade is not simply a weapon as war itself. Germany was subdued in large measure because of the blockade established by the British Navy. Even more recently, China gained a victory against Japan by means of the trade boycott, whereas China would have been hopelessly defeated had she taken up arms against Japan. The same nation once declared a boycott against the United States and forced that wealthy power to come to terms. Let us suppose, for the sake of an example, that Canada defied the League, and that the League instead of making war upon Canada simply declared a blockade. The United States would send us no coal; Britain might refuse to let us have any textiles or other goods; Cuba would ship us no sugar. No nation would buy our wheat, our farm products, our wood or pulp. How long could Canada flourish under such conditions? The blockade, properly enforced, is a most terrible weapon to wield against any nation, and would secure results with very much less loss of life and stirring up of hatred than our present system of going to war.

A Montreal Opinion.

(Weekly Star.)
Some Canadian yachtsmen have sent a challenge to the United States for the America's Cup. A Canadian would have several advantages over a British challenger, the boat would not have to sail across the Atlantic, and so could be of much lighter construction than was Lipton's Shamrock; furthermore the Canadian boat would be sailed by Nova Scotia fishermen, who are more familiar with conditions on this side of the Atlantic than were the Shamrock's crew. At the same time it is very difficult to appreciate what great advantage would accrue to Canada, even should we succeed in bringing the cup to Halifax. The Shamrock is being scrapped after a few days' racing; much the same fate would befall the Canadian boat. Horse-racing is of certain benefit in testing the stamina of a horse and in improving the breed, but yacht-racing—such as that which took place for the America's Cup—is of absolutely no value. It would be as if one killed the horse as soon as the race was over. In view of the extreme expense connected with the building and racing of a challenger it would seem that, under the prevailing conditions, the money might very easily be spent to better advantage in other ways.

Lions Are Fierce No More.

African lions have changed habits since Theodore Roosevelt and Edward Stewart White hunted them in their lairs and came back to write of them. Instead of leaping out on unsuspecting hunters and filling the air with tawny hostility, claws, and blood-thirsty fangs, they now slink away like the dispirited specimens in the zoo when the lady who thinks lions eat peanuts insists on interrupting Leo's peaceful nap with a goober bombardment.

At least this is the report brought back from the Nairobi and Uganda jungles by Stewart White, Chicago's mightiest hunter, who spent more than one year there and brought back two tons of trophies, including thirteen lion skins and the pelts of several tigers, leopards, panthers, and lesser game.
"When Theodore Roosevelt and Edward White hunted in Nairobi the lions jumped out on them without provocation," said White. "I was not so honored. I found that, unless the lion had been wounded, or the lioness had young cubs around, that they are very glad to move away. They have seemed to have learned that they are no match for a man with a gun."

Sympathy With Husband.

"I pity the poor, hard-working husband who comes home at night, and finds his supper uncooked, his wife away playing poker and his hard-earned money spent over a gambling table."

The speaker was Magistrate Raphael Tobias, in Washington Heights court, New York. Before him was Mrs. Florence Schlesinger, 649 West 143rd street, in whose apartments detectives found a dozen women engaged in an ardent search for a royal flush.
Detectives Foley and Donnelly, testifying at the trial of Mrs. Schlesinger on a charge of keeping a gambling house, said they found the table covered with chips and that the women had told them the value of the chips was: red, a dollar; white, a half-dollar; and blue, a dime. The detectives said the women told them they bought the chips from Mrs. Schlesinger in $20 lots, they paying her $20, but receiving $18 in chips. The $2 went to the "kitty." Mrs. Schlesinger said the $2 was used to provide cats. The magistrate decided to hold her on $500 bail for trial in general session.

"I have no objection," he said, "to the social features of card games. It's a nice way to pass an afternoon or an evening—in a friendly game. But it appears that this was a business proposition; that an income was derived from this game. This sort of thing works a hardship on the husband. Because his wife is foolish and throws his money away he gets dis-

Upright Burial.

Burial in an upright position is not unknown. There are the case of Ben Jonson, who was interred in Westminster Abbey, and of Thomas Cooke, Governor of the Bank of England from 1737 to 1739, who died at Stoke Newington, 12th August, 1753, and by his directions his body was carried to Morden College, Blackheath, of which he was a trustee; it was taken out of the coffin, and buried in a winding sheet upright in the ground, according to the Eastern custom. Mr. C. Spelman, Recorder of Nottingham, was buried in 1679 upright in a pillar in

Caesar's Purple.

We all know that "purple and fine linen" are spoken of in history in reference to kings, aristocrats, or wealthy people. Nothing but the finest linen or very expensive material was dyed purple, and the cost of purple dye was the cause of this color being used only by the very rich. The rich purple of olden times was made by the Tyrians, and the purple of Tyre is probably still the most expensive dye in the world. The dye is obtained from a small vein in little shell-fish, looking like a periwinkle, and enormous piles of their shells have been found near the ancient cities of the Mediterranean. The dye was rediscovered in the seventeenth century in Ireland, through a woman using it as a marking ink for garments; and recently a dye chemist set out to find what the wonderful purple really was.

After collecting 12,000 of the shell-fish, and extracting enough of the substance to enable him to make an analysis, he discovered that it was a kind of indigo, containing bromine. The fact that any fish or animal contained the element bromine in its body was in itself a discovery, but having determined its composition, the chemist found out how to make the dye itself, and he can now produce from coal tar the actual purple used by Roman senators. He reproduces it, moreover, at a cost of two dollars a pound, whereas the Tyrian purple was worth $5,000 a pound.

The Pony Race at St. Michael's Garden Party, held yesterday afternoon, was an interesting affair. Gosse's pacer again won the race. This pony since being taken in hands by young Cole, has shown wonderful speed. The lad Cole is only 13 years old, but possesses the true horseman's instinct, his grandfather, in the olden days, being a jockey who won fame in the local horse races of that period.

There's a Touch of Tomorrow In All Cole Does Today

A—Ordinary cold weather adjustment. Arrows indicate passage of air through shield. B—Mild weather adjustment showing ventilation of interior of car by suction. C—Warm weather adjustment. Arrows show circulation of air. D—Storm-proof adjustment indicating disposition of rain, snow or dust and ventilation of interior of car by suction. Note clear vision space between outer sections of shield marked with an X.

All Motor Cars Eventually Will Have The Vacuum Storm-Proof Windshield

Rain, snow or mist can not befog it—Clear vision under all circumstances—Ventilates interior of car by suction process—Instantly adjustable—Adapts itself to all weather demands—An invention introduced by Cole twelve months ago now adopted in the Aero-EIGHT Touredan and Tourosine—Positive in operation.

Among the distinctly new and useful features introduced in the Aero-EIGHT all-season cars is the VACUUM STORM-PROOF WINDSHIELD. Motorists long have hoped for just such an improvement, and it seems natural that it should have been a Cole innovation.

The VACUUM STORM-PROOF WINDSHIELD adapts itself to all weather conditions—insuring clear vision for the driver and effecting draughtless ventilation of the interior of the car, under all circumstances. Though it may rain in torrents; though the snow may beat down; though mist may be dense or the wind blow in a gale, a clear vision space—unobstructed by glass—is maintained constantly on a direct line with the driver's eyes and yet, not a drop of rain, nor a flake of snow nor a particle of dust can enter the car!

There is another adjustment for warm weather driving, still another for moderate weather and a third for cold weather. Each of the four adjustments is simple and requires but a moment.

Pick your own weather and let us take you for a ride in an Aero-EIGHT Touredan or Tourosine that you may see the remarkable possibilities of the vacuum storm-proof windshield. It is an advancement of significant interest to every motor car owner.

DIAMOND DUST

Nothing But the Truth—Without Fear or Favour.

No wonder John B. sadly warbled on his way homewards: "The End of a Perfectly Awful Day."

So much was expected of the once famous Cubs battery, but with 3 errors charged to Clandle and 1 to Ernie in a brief two innings, and Hall's wild pitch and Clouston's two passed balls, it looks as if they have petered out.

We thought Buchanan was wonderful, but oh! you Ray McNabb. 1450 and allowing but 3 scattered hits was pretty nice stuff.

We'll have to change the new appellation of the City team. Instead of ALL STARS they are really a ONE STAR outfit—and his name is McCrindle.

Wee Willie's work was wonderful for he was here there and everywhere and all our hats are off to him.

"I love to hit," Ray MacNabb said, "as big league players do; it always warms my heart when I can get a hit or two."

"I know you like a hit or two," Stan answered in a trice, "I oughta know for didn't you nearly bean me twice."

A short short week ago who would ever think that O'Leary was our star pitcher? In the first game the Millionaires didn't get a hit off him, and last night in his portion he held them to the tape.

Big Alex McDonald has a nice evening's work with a "Babe Ruth" and two double sackers to his credit.

The expert psycho analyst, With high prying brow Approached the brave Bambino And gently asked him: "How is it that you hit the ball With such terrific force! There is some explanation Of your success, of course."

But Alex seemed a little shy And mildly winked the other eye.

"Is it your mental attitude, Or your subconscious mind! Or do you with hypnotic eye The rival pitcher blind! Do you work psychic wizardry, Or use some mystic sense Which causes you to hit the ball And send it over the fence!"

But Alex said: "Oh, goodness knows; I simply hit it on the nose."

Did you notice that 10 visitors got to first on errors? For three innings Hiltz and Callahan emulated the long departed Rip Van Winkle. Billy came to life however when he made a dandy stab right from Big Alex.

St. John's pitchers are wild this series, but not half as wild as their manager.

The Landsturm has been called up to hold the line in a last desperate effort to stop the glorious rush of the Millionaires. Chas. John B. and Herbie have their backs to the wall.

And so we see stepping out to-night the peerless Canning for mound duty on behalf of the City (notice how we've dropped the ALL STAR title!) and we expect great things of him. Jack also swings a vicious bit of ash.

On first will be the one and only Tim Hartnett—the hero of many a hard struggle. He is also wielding the willow quite efficiently and would be useful in the pinch—only there are no pinches.

Billy Callahan is allowed to retain the guardianship of the keystone. How about one of your two baggers, Bill? You should have a few left.

There will be no hurt feelings when we say that there's only one short-stop in the League and his name is McCrindle. He's sure no drone when it comes to chasing the spheroid.

Walter Callahan will be on third and we'll bet he'll hold them close to the sack if ever any of them get that far to-night.

Chris DeMers will be in charge of left field and is all primed for hitting.

And, Bo, you can bank on it that anything Cap Quick can reach in centre-field will be gobbled up.

We can quite appreciate John B's attitude in preferring not to use Laird Orr for right field territory but the wise Counsels (yes, we're one of 'em, thank you) finally prevailed on him. There's one thing you can bank on and that is he won't perish in the batter's box without a struggle.

And Harvey Thomas is so fed up with results of the team and the failure of the coaches to arouse the latent enthusiasm of the fans that he's going to control operations on the first base lines. And further, he tells us he has a great surprise up his sleeve. Just watch his step.

Cocky Munn won't let his efforts be outdone on the triple sack lines, so there's sure to be some fun.

The Mill's new pitcher—Pushie—

Nero As a Musician.

Of course Nero did not play on modern fiddle when Rome burned every schoolboy knows that because fiddles were not known in his time not for many years after, but it is not improbable that he sang during the conflagration, for we have some little data on his musical training.

His musical career started in childhood, when he studied that art for some time. Upon ascending the throne he sent for the harper Terpion, whose playing delighted the emperor beyond all things else. In fact, it is said, he would sit for hours listening to his music master and practising far into the night.

Then, says a writer, Nero made the fatal discovery that he had a voice and so he diverted his attention to vocal music. His voice was said to be high, thin and husky, but what vocal teacher would have had the courage to reveal this fact to the domineering emperor? The teacher must rather have said: "Ah, your Majesty, what a voice! What tone! What roundness! What sweetness! What power! Only the lark soaring over the Tiber could be its equal."

Now some of the artists of to-day could equal the care Nero took of his vocal organ. Part of the day he spent lying on his back, with a sheet of lead upon his stomach, or chest. This lead sheet was supposed to improve his breathing. His food was selected with a view to bettering his voice. If his vocal quality was not quite up to the mark he took an emetic.

In order not to strain his voice he refused to deliver addresses to his army. Nero's teacher was always at hand, and if the music-mad emperor used his voice incorrectly the teacher had orders to clap a napkin over his mouth.

Nero made his debut at Naples in A.D. 63. It was sensational, for an earthquake occurred which wrecked the building where the concert took place. His other "appearances" took place in Rome—in the palace and at the public games.

Awaiting Vengeance.

Vengeance for the assassination of Essad Pasha, head of the Albanian delegation in Paris, France, is being quietly awaited by a "blood brother" of the Balkan leader, according to a circumstantial story by a French writer.

This man, now rich and influential in France, the story goes, was one of several poor young men who thirty years ago met Essad Pasha, then known as the "Black Dagger of Abdul-Hamid" in Constantinople, when he crowded into a card game and insisted upon playing with them. Fearing Essad Pasha, they protested they were too poor to play with him, but he insisted, emphasizing it by placing his revolver on the table as a threat.

To meet this, the "blood brother" put down his dagger, poisoned, he said. Essad Pasha showed his surprise, then his pleasure.

"Young man," he exclaimed, "this is the first time any one has dared defy me. Men like you are rare."

Essad Pasha took his own dagger, opened a vein in his wrist and also sucked a few drops of blood from the other, and they became "blood brothers," according to Albanian customs, sworn to avenge each other's deaths.

"I am ready," this brother now is quoted as saying, "to keep my oath, but I have confidence that French will make it unnecessary for me to interfere."

Rustem Aveni, arrested on the spot for shooting down Essad Pasha, as the latter was entering his automobile in the downtown district of Paris recently, is awaiting trial. He was a student who posed as the avenger of Albanian wrongs.

Round The World By Boat.

Captain A. L. Napper, an Englishman, is proposing to start on a one-man voyage round the world in a motor-boat. This will be a unique achievement so far as this new kind of craft is concerned, but similar long distance voyages in ordinary small and fragile boats have frequently been accomplished quite successfully. 25 years ago, for instance, Captain Joshua Slocum sailed a tiny cork-shell of a craft measuring less than thirty-seven feet in length right round the globe. Sailing, rowing and drifting he travelled more than forty-six thousand miles in three years, two months, two days thirteen hours. Many times, too the Atlantic has been crossed in small boats; and some years ago, a foolhardy individual tried to cross cooped up in a barrel weighted with lead to make it stand upright, and fitted with a sliding man-hold and a collapsible mast. He was drowned. In 1886, again, three men navigated a small boat called the "Homeward Bound" from Fort Natal, in South Africa, to Dover, White, some few years back, four members of the crew of the British ship "Mantilla" torpedored by a Hun raider in the Pacific, voyaged in the ship's small lifeboat to Pago-Pago, 1,200 miles distant.

Bedrooms & Beds

There's nothing more important to the bedroom than the Bed itself, is there? From the point of usefulness or ornament it ranks first. Does your Bed suit your taste? Does it harmonize with your room? Does it give you the sleep-comfort you need? No? Well, then it's time to discard it and get another, quick.

We are showing All-Brass, Brass and Enamel, and All-Enamel Beds in all sizes and very fine designs. Each and all of which Beds can be fitted with Springs and Wool or Felt Mattresses if desired.

Prices quoted on request.
