LADY LAURA'S RELEASE

OR THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER XXXII.

He had never loved her; but her beauty, her grace—above all, her passionate worship of himself—had impelled him to treat her with something like affection and kindness. Now, however, he was tired of her—tired of her fair sweet beauty which might have held another man's heart captive forever—tired of the love that had no charm for him—tired because she was the living barrier between himself and the woman he loved better than any other—Gladys Rane. Still, if the world was so stupid as to require some conformity to outward appearances, perhaps he had better go to Rood. He did not like the idea of it; but there were many unpleasant duties to perform in life, and this was one of them. He argued with himself that there must be two sides to everything; and, if he enjoyed the advantages of a large fortune, he must at times put up with the disadvantages of having to share the society of the one who had endowed him with it.

So one fine morning at the end of October the gates of Rood opened to admit the man who was now practically the master.

"I did not write or telegraph to you that I was coming," he said to his pale startled wife; "I thought my arrival would be a pleasant surprise for you."

"It is indeed a surprise," she responded coldly; but she did not add that it was a pleasant one.

To Angela the captain's return meant every kind of annoyance. He had been passively indifferent to her before, now he was actively antagonistic. He lost no opportunity of annoying and irritating her, and his favorite method of attack was to speak lightly or sneeringly of the father of whose grief in his eye was the great love she told her mother.

"You call this place an abbey, Laura," said the captain laughing one morning. "It is really a hermitage. Pray let us have some visitors down."

"You can invite whom you will," returned Lady Laura.

"I wish to Heaven I could!" he cried impetuously; and she knew well of whom he was thinking. "Give me carte blanche, Laura," he went on; "and you shall have the gayest party ever gathered within these walls."

Her mind went back for a minute to the noble men and the fair women

DOCTORS WANTED TO OPERATE

Mrs. Quillon Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Manitoulin, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians, without any relief at all, they advised me to have an operation. I was very nervous and did not want to do it. I read in different papers where some women were cured by taking the Vegetable Compound and I decided to try it. I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pain in my sides left me. I am now young and strong and do my own work in the factory besides I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it to my friends."—Mrs. M. L. QUILLON, 17 Morris St., Manitowish, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate some female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A. QUEST.

THE TOO BUSY FATHER.

"I'd be afraid to say to him: 'Run off, I don't bother me! I haven't time to hear you now, I'm busy as can be!'"

"I'd be afraid to look him out and send him from my door, and I'd be afraid that when he needed me he'd come to me no more."

I knew a father once who sent his little boy away, who had not time to spare for him and what he had to say. He scowled to see his eager face and ordered him to go. And what was in his little mind he didn't care to know.

The little chap was 12 years old and when his trials came he'd seek his father's counsel, but the answer was the same: "Run off and settle it yourself," he'd hear his father say. "Don't bother me with such affairs; I haven't time to do."

Now little boys are quick to learn, and as the weeks went by he'd learned to be a young man and never sought his door. And till the day it was too late he'd bothered him no more.

Then when the shame had come to him, the father hung his head. "Why should I hear this burden now he sorrowfully said. And that small voice of conscience answers him both night and day: 'You told him no to bother you. You ordered him away.'"

So when he comes by night or day I drop what I'm doing and to settle this or that. For I'm afraid the day might dawn, if I should lock my door And tell him not to bother me, he'd come to me no more.

Toronto and Women Voters.

CANADIAN LEAGUE FORMED.

TORONTO. (Can. Press.)—Spurred on by a visit from Miss Katherine Ludington, National Treasurer of the League of Women Voters of the United States, Toronto women organized the nucleus of a Canadian League of Women Voters, several hundred enrolling after hearing the address on "Recruiting for Citizenship," given by the charming representative from across the line. Miss Ludington reviewed the progress of the league in the United States since its inauguration four years ago, stating its main object to be "turning out a better brand of citizen and making women a useful element in the electorate." It was not enough for women to have political aspirations, she declared, but an actual machinery must be developed to make these ideals effective. Women were coming into the political world with a fresh viewpoint, and one old politician had described them as a clean, fresh stream of water coming into a muddy river—a reputation which the league hoped to enable women to retain. To make each woman a more ardent and effective member of her own political party through training her to think and function intelligently is the objective of the league which aims to exert educational research and advisory duties only.

NEW PERIOD IN HISTORY.

Referring to the common standpoint possessed by the Anglo-Saxon women, Miss Ludington stressed the value of co-operation in promoting welfare measures. The National League of Women Voters was a young organization and marked a new period in American history. Democracy was under fire from the extreme reactionaries, from the reactionaries, and from the student bodies, yet democracy was needed, not absolutism nor social revolution. Democracy must be made to work

Aberdeen Trawlers' Protest.

The scarcity of fish and the arrival last week of other three German trawlers which, having been at sea, knew nothing of Aberdeen fish salesmen's recent decision about landing of North Sea fish at Aberdeen by German vessels, has brought about another crisis in the dispute. On the arrival of the new-comers buyers held an informal meeting on the quay, and decided to take steps to unload the catch. Approaches were made to various salesmen, who firmly refused, however, to break the pledge they previously gave to Aberdeen fishermen and trawlers.

Mr. Nickle, M.P.

TAKES WOMEN TO TASK.

TORONTO.—Women electors are not evincing sufficient appreciation of their new responsibilities and opportunities, said W. F. Nickle, M.P., and present member for Kingston in the provincial house. Mr. Nickle spoke under the auspices of Ward Three Women's Conservative Association, concluding his remarks by criticizing the Drur administration, and prophesying a Conservative victory in the coming provincial campaign. With regard to the argument that women are unable to understand political questions, he had only to say that judging by the way in which they improve every other situation, it was incredible to believe that they could not appreciate the significance of the problems confronting the legislative bodies. A true conception of the responsibility of citizenship could only be gained through understanding the fundamentals of representative government and responsible government. Mr. Nickle's speech included a review of the history of Ontario from 1840; an explanation of the constitution of the Federal and Provincial governments; national development and centralization; the social legislation which had been put into effect especially regarding women and children; the need for upholding the principles of democracy; the status of the electors and the duties of the representatives of Parliament.

Courageous Salesman Wanted.

Buyers then held another meeting, drawn by 58 votes to 5 it was decided to express sympathy with landing of German-caught fish until home-caught supplies are equal to the demand. In the afternoon it was rumored that they were doing their utmost to secure the services of a salesman courageous enough to auction German fish, but so far salesmen have stuck together. At 7.30 in the evening a mass meeting of charge hands, fishermen, and fish market porters was held in St. Andrew's Hall with the object of making arrangements to prevent German landing catches.

A resolution was carried, amid prolonged cheering, binding skipper and mates "to take most drastic action in power even to the extent of laying up their vessels as protest against German North Sea landings at Aberdeen." At midnight pickets were elected to prevent German fish being brought ashore.

When putting cooked currants in cookies, add them to the butter, sugar and egg mixture before the flour is added.

Ruhr Occupation Not so Promising as Anticipated—Complications at Sydney Steel Works—H.M.S. Victory, Nelson's Flagship May be Transported to London.

AWAKENING TO THE FACTS.

PARIS, March 23. There is evidence of a well defined state of pessimism in discussion of the situation in Parliamentary circles where, it is said, things are going as well as they ought, and that the quantity of coal and coke, as far obtained by France and Belgium, is ridiculously small, offering the prospect that the Ruhr occupation will ever become substantially productive.

UNITY IN POLICY FIRST.

LONDON, March 23. Negotiations looking towards reunion of the two Liberal groups have apparently broken down. A meeting of independent Liberals yesterday, presided over by H. H. Asquith, passed a resolution declaring that cooperation in lobby and constituent work should precede establishment of formal machinery for reunion.

LESS NUMBERS, GREATER EFFICIENCY.

LONDON, March 23. The House of Lords yesterday passed a resolution favoring a reduction in membership.

A TALL STORY.

TORONTO, March 23. Announcement was made yesterday that the Canadian National Railway will build, on the site of their present building here, a skyscraper that will be the tallest building in the British Empire.

EINSTEIN RESIGNS.

ZURICH, March 23. Professor Albert Einstein, Father of the Theory of Relativity, has announced his resignation as member of the League of Nations commission on intellectual co-operation, saying he is convinced that the League has neither strength nor good will necessary to accomplish its task.

NELSON'S FLAGSHIP.

LONDON, March 23. The fund to save Nelson's Flagship, which has been swelled by the gift of fifty thousand pounds from an anonymous well-wisher of the Navy, for some time the Victory has been lying in the Portsmouth Drydock, but the work of restoration will soon begin. A suggestion is that the Victory be transferred to Trafalgar Square London to stand at the base of the Nelson monument.

THE GRAND NATIONAL.

LIVERPOOL, March 23. The Grand National Steeplechase handicapped valued at approximately ten thousand pounds, run over the Grand National course of four and a half miles at Aintree, was won today by Sergeant Murphy, owned by S. Sanford. Sir Malcolm McAlpine's Harvin Spadah was second and Major Dewhurst's Conjuror the Second was third. R. Cummings of St. John, New Brunswick, held Conjuror the Second in the sweepstakes winning twelve hundred and fifty pounds.

POINCARÉ AROUSED.

PARIS, March 23. M. Poincaré, angered by the Communist insinuations that he was controlled by Deputy Leon Daudet, the Royalist leader, started a scene of wild disorder when in the opening session to-day he called Communist Deputy Andrew Berton an abominable scoundrel. "That man dared to say he had against me and mine abominable evidence which I feared would be published. He lied when he said it" shouted the Premier. The presiding officer rang the bell fifteen minutes for order.

A LABOR FILIBUSTER.

WINNIPEG, March 23. In the Legislative Assembly, Labor Members carried on a filibuster that lasted all night and was broken on a technicality at 10.30 this morning. William Evans, Labor Member for Winnipeg, spoke six solid hours and was followed by John Queen who spoke three hours when the session adjourned.

ICE JAM DISASTER.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, March 23. Seven persons are reported dead and hundreds of livestock and scores of farm dwellings swept away, as the result of a sudden flood of the Missouri River—south of here to-night, caused by ice jam.

STILL HOPING FOR PEACE.

LONDON, March 23. Premier Bonar Law in a written reply to a question in the Commons states that the instructions basing the estimates on the assumption of no great war was to be expected for a decade from 1919 were still operative, with regard to the Admiralty, the War Office and the Air Ministry.

WIFE MURDERED.

HALIFAX, March 23. Mrs. Roy Green, 21, was shot and killed by her husband here tonight. The husband attempted suicide but will probably recover. No motive is known.

BRITAIN'S UNEMPLOYED.

LONDON, March 23. The Ministry of Labor gives the number of registered unemployed in Great Britain as one million three hundred thousand. Despite these figures of unemployment throughout the country it has been for a considerable time unusually free from serious labor disputes, mainly owing to the fact that the big trade unions, whose funds had been seriously depleted by previous trade struggles, find themselves no longer able successfully to resist the continued falling in wages which is shown to be necessitated through the country's stagnant trade. Recently, however, a number of disputes have developed, notably among miners, potteries, building and electrical workers and farm laborers. The output of coal from the British and Welsh fields has increased approximately one million tons weekly, compared with last year, while European difficulties in Ruhr have caused a brisk demand with rising prices. The miners consider that they are entitled to share profits more especially as, with the exception of Agricultural Laborers they are probably the worst paid laborers in the country.

THE SYDNEY SITUATION.

SYDNEY, Mar. 23. Unexpected complications are piling up in connection with the projected strike of steel workers and rumored strike of miners in Cape Breton in April. The most serious of these is the prospect of new election of officers in District 26 of United Miners Workers. Silby Barrett is leaving Sunday night for Indianapolis to lay down his commission as International Board Member for the District, and will urge international headquarters there to dissolve the present executive of District 26 and order a new election. If he succeeds the District will likely be plunged into internal strife. What seems likely, it is said in some quarters, is that Barrett will be commissioned by the International President, John Lewis, as organizer for District 26. Preparations for the expected strike continue on all sides.

Quips for the Times.

"The full flowing tide is with Squires," says the Advocate. The remark is in the wrong tense.

"The full flowing tide has been with Squires for three and a half years. A tide of unequalled waste of money."

"The ebb has now set in and is a regular 'rip.'"

Squires goes out on the ebb and there will be "No moaning of the bar when he puts out to sea."

Like flossam he came in on a popular wave, and like flossam he goes out again.

Just as ebb carried out to sea by the river quickly settles to the bottom on reaching salt water, so will Squires settle out of sight very soon.

His day of pretending to be a Pearly Nautilus is done. The fraud has been exposed.

He promised (?) well, but he ends a complete failure.

"Oh, wad some power the giffle gie us, To see ourselves as others see us."

"Bolt from the Blue" is right. Everybody is surprised to know what is wrong with the "Bolter," Poor Cap. Bona.

The literary tumbler pigeon of the Advocate made one of its characteristic flights last evening when describing the Grand Falls meetings.

He started a fanciful flight but "tumbled" in the midst of it.

The question now is did Dr. Barnes surpass "choice diction" or did the "diction" run away with Dr. Barnes. The flight was amusing.

OTHER PEOPLE'S HUSBANDS.

"You don't mean to say that Mr. Lowell was ever cross?"
 Well, I don't know that you'd call him exactly cross, but he was one of the most difficult men I ever saw. If everything about the house doesn't go perfectly he gives Mrs. Lowell fits. I don't mean he shouts or scolds, but he will be so cutting and cruel in his dignified way that I'd rather be scolded. And stingy! And hard to suit at the table! And she is a wonderful housekeeper and so economical. But he's never satisfied.

The Feet of Clay.

"Why it doesn't seem possible. He always seems so sweet tempered! And he has such lovely manners. He always rises when a woman comes into the room and puts on his wife's overshoes, and that sort of thing. Why we all thought he was a model husband and wished ours would be more like him!"

"Well, you haven't lived with him and I have. That's the chief reason I stopped boarding there. He made the atmosphere so unpleasant."

"Just to think of it! And stingy, too. That must be terrible. I'm glad Dick isn't stingy. He'd give me his last cent and never asks me what I did with it."

They've Had To Be.
 Of course this would apply the other way around, but I think it is more a masculine than a feminine habit to put on a more amicable manner outside the home.

The street angel house devil is almost always masculine. Perhaps economic necessities have molded men that way.

Other people's lots are never as rosy as they seem. Nor their husbands as easy to get along with. Of course you wouldn't trade your husband for theirs, anyway, but you may think you would trade his faults. Like as not if you did you would be wishing to reverse the bargain.

DOING WITHOUT.

Far better lack a liver pad than borrow one from Michael Maize; he may assure you he is glad to lend you his for thirty days; the rules of courtesy he'll keep, for Michael is a gentleman, but in his heart he feels you're cheap. A false alarm, an also ran. Far better do without a wig than borrow one from Hiram Hughes; his heart is generous and big, and your request he'll not refuse; but his respect for you will wilt, and he will murmur with a sigh, "That man on tawdry plans is built, who borrows what he cannot buy." Far better do without a lyre than borrow mine when you would sing; the homeless smile that men admire, at your approach I'd surely spring; and though I would not kick or carp, I'd think sad thoughts about the guy who'd ask me for my henry-harp, when lyres are in the pawnshop night. The borrower forever wends upon a lonely path and drear, and when he'd count his bosom friends, he finds there are not any near. Perhaps he wonders now and then why he's denied all human fun, and walks alone, while other men have boon companions by the ton. His neighbors are too blamed polite to tell him why he is a frest; but every time he looms in sight they hunt their holes, at any cost.

Fads and Fashions.

A small white cloche hat is turned up smartly at the back and is trimmed with a chic satin bow. Deep lace is stressed in the trailing hems of pale colored evening gowns built on sophisticated lines. An evening gown of scarlet green crepe is worn over a slip of silver cloth and griddled with rhinestones. A small dainty handkerchief of white linen is trimmed with a row of black Valenciennes insertion and a trill of black footings.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR PALLING OUT OF MAIL.

ADVERTISE IN THE EVENING TELEGRAM.

The Menace of Coakerism.

OTHER FISH REGULATIONS WILL BE IMPOSED.

Mr. W. F. Coaker is desirous of making himself very plain in his pronouncements respecting certain Fish Regulations, which he proposes introducing to the legislature—provided, of course, the present government is returned to power. In his statement which I published from the official debates wherein he placed himself on record as follows:—

"My position that I occupy in the Government is an important one and a strong one. When I propose regulations in connection with our cod fishery, and the Government is not prepared to accept them, then I will walk out of the Government. . . . I am not going to allow anyone to dictate to me what my duties are and when I made up my mind to make regulations governing the price of fish, I intended to put them through."

Assuming that Mr. Coaker will apply the same tactics despite the wishes of the Premier and his wing of the Government and those sitting in opposition will be faced with conditions as those of 1919 and the few years following, when the now generally known "Infamous Regulations" were promulgated.

The Fish Regulations have been a burden and a curse to Newfoundland since the first day they were introduced, and notwithstanding the fact that they have since been annulled the consequences still hang around the neck of every fisherman who piles his vocation around our coasts on the Banks and on Labrador as a millstone always dragging down the toiler of the deep. And just so long as a tubborn dictator entertains such hopes so long will their evil effect work disastrous results to the foreign fish trade of this colony. Mr. Coaker's last regulations antagonized all the country's best customers in the Spanish market and our best buyers in Portugal, Italy and Brazil turned to other fish producing countries for the necessary stocks to meet demands for consumption.

But Mr. Coaker threatening to introduce new Fish Regulations merchants have no confidence whatever in the future, consequently they will be compelled to curtail credits on account of fishery supplies to such an extent that will mean a serious setback to the men who look to the business to secure their fishery outfits and other commodities. If we are to have Fish Regulations as instituted by Mr. Coaker we can look forward to such conditions as those which prevailed during the past three years particularly during the months of 1920. The warning is herewith given to the electorate. If the people endorse the present government then it is quite evident they are satisfied that the Menace of Coakerism has fully completed its trail of depression and stagnation. If, on the other hand, they are ready to crush the serpent of Coakerism they have the one and only instrument to do so, and that instrument is the ballot paper, which they will receive on polling day.

Curliana.

The final game played Thursday evening for the B. B. Stafford medals proved very exciting. A good many errors of the roaring game were present and witnessed a hard fought time from start to finish. R. G. Reid carried his team through the series to victory and won the 4 gold medals. W. F. Joyce likewise doing the same, winning the four silver medals. Joyce worked his team hard to capture the gold but fell down to Reid two points at the end of the 20th head. The winners were heartily congratulated by the admirers. Following were their scores:—

New Bowling League.

VARIOUS CITY CLUBS ENTER SERIES.

On Tuesday night last representatives from the various Clubs and Societies in the city held a preliminary meeting in the Grenfell Institute for the purpose of forming an Inter-Club Bowling League. The meeting was a very enthusiastic one, all the clubs in the city signified their intentions of competing. It was decided to hold another meeting early next week, when the rules governing the pin game will be submitted for the approval of the Clubs, while the future for the season will be drawn up at this meeting. Some 14 teams in all will participate in the series and playing by the enthusiastic prevailing amongst the clubs the games can be looked forward to with ever increasing interest.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR BURNS & SCALDS.

In the Supreme Court of Newfoundland.

In the matter of the "Quieting of Titles Act, 1921," and in the matter of that piece or parcel of land situate at Heart's Content, in the Electoral District of Trinity, now in the occupation of Edgar H. Hopkins, of Heart's Content, Telegrapher, tenant of The Western Union Telegraph Company.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given to all parties that The Western Union Telegraph Company, of New York, have made application to the Honourable Mr. Justice Kent, a Judge of the Supreme Court to have their title to ALL THAT piece or parcel of land situate and being in Heart's Content aforesaid and bounded as follows:—That is to say, on the South West by a public lane, and measuring thereby twenty-four feet, on the North West by land of Thomas Wells, and measuring thereby one hundred and eight feet, on the North East by the Main Road, and measuring thereby thirty-four feet, and on the South East by property formerly belonging to the estate of Joseph Hopkins, and measuring thereby one hundred and three feet, the same being more particularly described and delineated in the diagram thereof marked "A," annexed to the conveyance of the said land from William T. Hopkins and Alfred S. Hopkins, Executors of the will of Thomas Hopkins, dated June 14th, 1921, and registered in Volume 72, folio 391 of the Registry of Deeds for Newfoundland, to the said Edgar H. Hopkins, and conveyed by the said Edgar H. Hopkins to your petitioners by conveyance dated March 2nd, 1921, and registered in Volume 72, folio 428 of the Registry of Deeds for Newfoundland and its Dependencies, of which they claim to be the owners, investigated, and for a declaration that they are absolute owners thereof in fee simple in possession by their tenant, Edgar H. Hopkins, except as against His Majesty, and the said Judge having ordered the notice of the said application to be published as required by the above named Act. All parties having claims adverse to the said title claimed by the said Western Union Telegraph Company shall file in the Registry of the Supreme Court, at St. John's, particulars of such adverse claim, and serve the same, together with an affidavit verifying the same, on the undersigned Solicitor for the petitioners on or before the 16th day of April, 1923, after which time any such claim shall be permitted to file the same or to be heard except by special leave of the Court, and subject to such conditions as the Court may deem just. All such adverse claim shall then be investigated in such manner as the said Judge shall direct.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR ACRES AND PAINS.

The West End Twister Talks "Principle."

"PARTICULARLY" INTERESTED IN WORKINGMEN.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In Tuesday's Daily Mail, the long-suffering public is again treated to an attempt to bamboozle it over that prince of hypocrites, Fitzgibbon of the West End. The heaviest type in the printing office is strewn over the first page in a glorification of the man who for many years past has seen no farther than Morris, Cashin and Bennett, and who was their leader in campaigning and chairman of their committee, and who would probably be just as enthusiastic as that type of jellyfish can be to-day, if the present Opposition had to throw out some of its good men to make way for him on their ticket. With Mr. Ken Ruby and Sir R. A. Squires as backers, Mr. Fitzgibbon pushed to the front, emphasizing the old adage again, that "the first shall be last" because if there were any "last" place than SIXTH on polling day, that's where the West End will very properly place Fitzgibbon. He opens his long-winded, meaningless set of paragraphs with the statement that "the Government has commenced the campaign with notable gains to its credit." Truly, it is to laugh, Mr. Editor, when the whole Island knows that it would require a microscope to see any of the "gains" made by the Government, or any of the merits of such gains during the past forty months. He "was there to fight for such a leader as Squires." "He was delighted with his colleagues and supporters. He had taken his stand on principle. He had faith in Squires as an honest, able leader. He had a particular interest in the West End workmen." I ask those who have known Mr. Joe Fitzgibbon for the past ten years to ask themselves where in Heaven's name is the honesty or sincerity of the apology for a man who can stand up and get that stuff off before intelligent men, when it is well known that up to the eve of his announcement as a Squires candidate he was endeavoring to foist himself on the Bennett Party with a view to being placed on the ticket either for St. John's West or Placentia, so that he might have a chance to retrieve his fortunes which were so brutally wrecked, in common with other men, by the present maladministration. And when Walsh refused to break his ticket for Placentia, and Bennett and Higgins stood, like the men they are, for Labor, in accordance with a three year old promise, and kept their third seat for Linegar, then, and only then, did Fitzgibbon swallow his principles, if he ever had any, and admit sincerity and honesty in a party that he was the very strongest in condemning for many months previously as being the double-dyed villains of the worst character.

BETRAYAL OF PRINCIPLE.
Will Fitzgibbon tell me that he did NOT say, only twelve hours before his public announcement as a candidate, that "his sentiments and sympathies were with the present Opposition, but what can a fellow do when he's down?" Will he deny that up to that very Sunday night previously, he positively asserted that he would not be "found dead in the present Government"? No, sir, he cannot deny cold true facts, because there are too many to refute his denial. But like another renegade Westender, who has since got his "price" in a nice soft chair that rightfully belongs to the man in the office who actually does the work, he was prepared to join the present Opposition if the way was paved for him, and a good soft job promised him; but when, like the other piker, he found he had to "win his spurs" before he could wear them, he then conveniently forgets all his statements and beliefs of the past six years, puts his pride in his pocket, throws honor out of the window, and gets up to tell honest, industrious, intelligent tradesmen of the West End that he is weeping and grieving over their difficulties, and this from a man whose party was responsible for more poverty and hardships during the last four years than all other parties that this country knew since we got Responsible Government.

MAY AS WELL TEAR UP CHARTER
Truly, as Mr. Higgins says, and I repeat it with no empty meaning, Mr. Editor, if through some unfortunate circumstances the Squires maladministration again overshadows us which God forbid, it will indeed be time for us as electors, while yet there is any semblance of sanity left in us, to tear up our charter and go back to the days of Crown rule, because it is absolutely inconceivable that any Government—say ANY Government, let them be like the painted Indian adorning a tobacco store—could create such havoc and such general ruin and abandon as has the present bunch of political leeches that curse our once free and prosperous country. Personally I was a friend and respector of Mr. Fitzgibbon, and thought he meant well, though poorly evidencing it sometimes, but this latest piece of hypocrisy on his part ought to, and undoubtedly will, kill him once and forever politically, and every other way. Of course it is an accepted fact that he has no chance whatever of being elected. Messrs. Squires and Campbell, who possess brains, and are not elected, not to speak of Fitzgibbon, and their putting him on the ticket only made it all the easier for the present Opposition candidates; but his friends simply hate to see him making such a catapaw of himself in the vain hope of "hauling himself out of a hole" which, if not of his own making, is certainly due to the most deliberate indifference ever perpetrated on a long-suffering but soon-to-be-relieved public.

With your permission, Mr. Editor, I shall write again on this subject.
Yours truly,
SEMPARATUS.

Mexico Plans National Necropolis.

MEXICO CITY—The legislative palace the construction of which for years has stood untouched and a prey to the elements, is to be completed, it is said in official circles. The huge structure is not to house both branches of congress as was the original intention, but will be converted into a "Home for National Heroes" where will rest the remains of the distinguished departed. It will be made one of the show places of the city. It is said that a great part of the costly material already used in the structure can be employed in the new edifice.

THE HOLY CITY.
The choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will render the sacred Cantata "The Holy City," by A. R. Gaul, in the Church on Thursday evening next. The recital will be under the capable direction of Mr. W. Moncrieff Mawer, His Excellency the Governor and suite have signified their intention of being present.

Valuable Minerals Stolen

PETROGRAD—Four pounds of pure tellurium and four pounds of osmium, two of the most valuable and rarest of precious minerals, were recently stolen from the Petrograd Metallurgical Institute. The robbers also succeeded in getting away with six pounds of platinum. All of the metals had been at the institute, as laboratory specimens, for many years.

England Incurring Heavy Liabilities in Ireland.

LONDON—The British Government has a liability to pay the British loyalists in southern Ireland whose property has been destroyed nearly $150,000,000, according to the claims made by a meeting of Irish loyalists held in London recently. Lord Carson, the leader of the Irish Unionists, was the principal speaker. Sir William Davison, member of Parliament presided. The chairman was responsible for the estimate of damages suffered. He said that before the issue the claims amounted to ten million pounds, but they had since risen to thirty millions, "and as villages are now being sent into the air wholesale, no doubt these claims are rapidly increasing." Lord Carson gave examples of the ruin in Ireland. The Great Southern and Western Railway had lost practically all its capital, amounting to millions of pounds, and all the people who held shares were ruined. He cited numerous cases of individual suffering. Told of Irish ladies recently rich who had been reduced to working in England as servants, and declared these were examples from thousands.

Woman Jurors Hard on Their Sex

BERLIN—German women, recently accorded the right to sit on juries in criminal cases, have shown an inclination to impose even more severe punishment than men, particularly in cases where the defendants themselves have been women. "I am very sorry for a woman defendant," said a Berlin judge commenting on women's entry into the jury box, "when a majority of the jury is composed of the fairer sex. My experience so far has been that the women have less mercy than men, and hold out for verdicts accordingly. Ever since Germany became a republic the women gained the right to sit on the jury, and the question of punishment brought up for discussion from time to time, there being many opportunities among the public generally and especially in the legal profession. It was long contended that women were too tender-hearted to listen to sordid details of criminal cases. But the women demurred to these contentions, kept up the struggle for admission as jurors and after nearly four years have fastened their point.

10,000,000 Pound Load Raised by Four Horses AND CARRIED 150 FEET.

Raising a building six storeys in height and weighing 10,000,000 lbs. and moving it 150 feet solely with four horses, does not bother S. W. LePlant, of Chicago, who, as head of the firm of the same name, and, in company with Seeler and Sons of the same city, is now engaged on lifting Bell's galleries, Union avenue, out of Mother Earth, and moving the whole building 150 feet north to enable an extension to Henry Morgan's store to be made.

The preliminary work has been in progress for some time and is not yet finished. Gangs of workmen, working day and night, are engaged in inserting jacks and beams in the basement of the building preparatory to the task of lifting and moving.

Briefly, this is how it will be done: In the basement of the building, fourteen runways of timber will be laid. On each of these runways are a number of small jacks. Each of the jacks is placed under more heavy beams, and when this work is completed everything will be in readiness for the lifting process.

Thirty men, each armed with a small crowbar, will be responsible for the lifting, which is comparable to the extraction of a tooth, the only difference being that the tooth is pulled and the building is pushed.

When the task commences the two men on each runway will wait for a signal. When this is received each will walk down his line of twenty or thirty jacks, giving each a quarter turn. On arrival at the end of the line each man will wait for another signal, when he will carry out the same work on the return journey.

This will continue for two weeks, by which time the whole building will have been literally pushed out of the earth bodily.

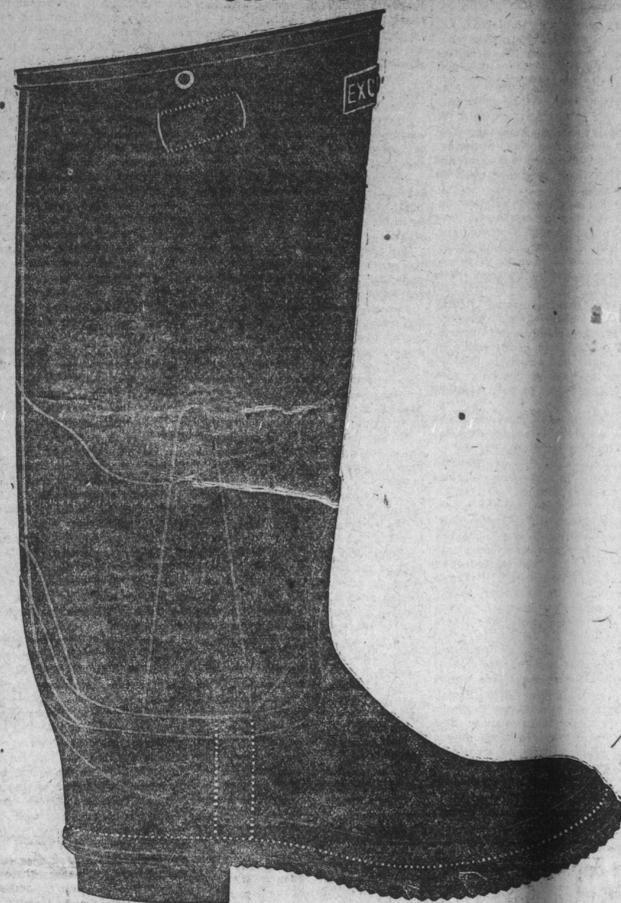

The next move will be the insertion of 14 rail tracks, under the building, on each of which there will be four separate rails. Distributed over all of these rails will be cold steel rollers, on the top of which will be placed steel plates one-half inch in width. The building, resting on the plates, will then be moved in the following manner:

Two portable capstans will be placed at the north ends of the buildings. Cable will connect the building with the capstans, in front of which two teams of horses will be stationed. Each day these teams will slowly pull on the cable and move the building northwards a fraction of an inch at a time.

The work of raising the building will occupy two weeks; that of moving it, about five weeks, and the task will necessitate the use of 250,000 feet of timber, 1,000 jacks, 700 rollers, 200 steel plates, 5,000 feet of cable, and will cost in the neighborhood of $60,000.

Millions of Dollars for One Timber Limit.

Montreal.—Pulp and paper circles are somewhat excited over the price bid this week at the biggest sale of timber limits yet held in Quebec Province, when the Ontario Paper Co. of Toronto—operated by the Chicago Tribune—contracted to purchase 2,000 square miles situated on the River Manicouagan district on the North Shore of the St. Lawrence. The bid was for $3.35 per 1,000 feet in addition to the stumpage tax now imposed of $2.70 per thousand feet, a total of $6.05. The contract calls for the development of water power and the erection of a pulp mill.

The Financial Post understands that forestry engineers figure out this price as practically doubling existing prices paid on government limits, and that as a result very important changes may be made in the near future in re-valuing limits held by the pulp and paper concerns. In place of the old cost of $1,500 a square mile the basic cost was raised to $400 but the increased stumpage dues work out at $6.05 per 1,000 feet or $3.02½ a cord, compared with $1.40 a cord, the old rate. A cost of $400 per square mile is equal to 6½ cents per cord, as compared with $1,500 a mile or 25 cents a cord. The new stumpage raises the 6½ cents to $3.00 per cord, compared with the old rate of $1.65 a cord. The valuation now set on the timber in the form of standing timber is over $2,500 a square mile. The increased stumpage will mean an excess of ten millions of dollars extra for the one limit of 2,000 square miles providing there are no bad burns in future on the limit. It is understood that the second tenderer represented Lord Rothermere, brother of the late Lord Northcliffe and publisher of the London Daily Mail.

Spreading Manure in Winter.

The wisdom of spreading manure in the snow, which many farmers may think to do, depends wholly upon the character of the ground on which it is proposed to distribute it. Where fields are level, or reasonably so, there will be no appreciable loss through leaching at the time the snow melts. Where the contour of the land is such that there is always considerable surface drainage in case of heavy rains, it will not be wise to take the chance of rapidly melting snow carrying soluble fertility away. Theoretically, the winter distribution of barnyard manure is most exact practice since the labor of handling it comes at a time when other work is not pressing. Placing the manure at that time on the fields that are to be spring plowed for corn and roots, eliminates any possibility that spring work may be still further delayed in the case of a wet, late season by the necessity of holding back the plowing in order first to manure the fields. With even some considerable slope to the fields there is apt to be less loss through snow leaching than would be the case were manure allowed to stand unprotected through the winter in the barnyard.

With pineapple salad serve a small glass of grape juice. Season squash soup with a teaspoonful of grated onion. A little lettuce boiled with spinach prevents any bitter taste. Tomato or chicken soup is delicious garnished with whipped cream. Garish cold slices of meat with thin slices of pickles or stuffed olives. If enamel is spotted or stained, use ammonia and rinse immediately. Coconut, chopped figs, raisins and marshmallows are nice in caramels. In making fondant use ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar to 5 cups of sugar. When frying doughnuts, never allow the lard to get hot enough to smoke.

Fads and Fashions.

Organdies and volles in blues and yellow are favored for kiddies frocks at southern resorts. The Jaques bodice with circular skirt coat will be shown great prominence in the spring. A novel pair of earrings are gold elephant heads with caps of black agate and red pearls. For the fuller figure, straight dresses with panels and boxed two-piece suits are planned. The Eton jacket, circular sections, and balloon sleeves are all indications of a change in the mode. A moderate waistline and conservative trimming are characteristic of many afternoon models.

Bad Placing.

Many people do not seem to realize the great importance of correctly placing the bed in the sleeping apartment. This ignorance is responsible for heaps of chills and colds that would not otherwise occur. Every day the complaint is heard—"I don't know how on earth I caught this cold!" Go into the complainer's bedroom and it is pretty obvious how the cold was caught. The position of the bed ought to be studied before sleeping. A bed should never be placed opposite or parallel with the window, unless dark curtains are hung. Light curtains in the bedroom are the cause of many headaches and eye troubles. This is due to the sunlight being too strong for the eyes of a newly-wakened person. Neither should the bed be placed parallel with the door, as a draught is always caused by the door, whether open or closed.

The Lighter Side.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—The Opposition party tried manfully to keep personalities out of this political wrangle, but without avail, for the Squires and Coaker organs, true to the instinct of the jungle find no more potent weapon than the bludgeon, with seeming oblivion to the fact that civilization has moved on a pace or two.

One by one the gentlemen who have come forward to fight over again the fight for our political freedom and economic stability have been subjected to the stammering assaults of the Squire hirelings. The last to feel the sting of outraged feelings is the author of these few lines. My name is not considered good enough to be heard in public, according to the gentleman who runs the Squires personal organ, as if some taint were attached to it.

All I have in the world is my honest and humble name, and this I intend to defend against the attacks of such men as Dr. Mosdell.

So much for the personal side of this issue raised between us. Of this I will say no more, but I intend to question and challenge the right of Dr. Mosdell to the lofty position he aspires to, as mentor to the intelligent people of this country, when they would seek wisely to decide political questions for themselves.

That Dr. Mosdell assumes and presumes too much I propose to prove from an authority he will scarcely challenge, to wit, his own publications.

This presuming gentleman imposes on the country by virtue of a middle degree which he holds. Whether he is a shining light among his professional congeners or not I do not intend to investigate. I will content myself with proving that as far as general intelligence goes and as far as being a well-rounded man is concerned he is but a poorly informed person and a decided mediocrity, with all a shabby pretender.

This gentleman by virtue of a diligent application of "scissors and paste" succeeded in getting together from the published works of others two or three small volumes, which he had the cheek to advertise as "5000 Facts." He also got together between two covers a compilation of clap-trap which bears the title "Newfoundland and Its Attractions," all filched from previously published works.

He received hundreds of dollars from the public treasury on account of those publications, for which the country received not one cent of value. The book contains seventy-two pages, seventeen of which carry Government advertisements, for which Dr. Mosdell received fifty dollars a page.

One of the advertisements that relating to the Game Laws is obsolete since 1920, or three years out of date. As proof of this I will quote part of the paragraph respecting beaver.

"Any person who shall hunt, kill or pursue or take, any Beaver within the Colony at any time from the first of October, 1913, to the first day of October, 1920," etc.

Easy money for a Squires touter. The book is advertised as "Just the thing for the business man, the school teacher and the men of all professions and callings who require a cheap and dependable ready reference work on Newfoundland."

Cheap it certainly is, but how dependable let this review show. Page one shows a map of Newfoundland, from which Bonne Bay is omitted and Conception and Hermitage Bays are mere patches showing no name whatever.

Page two presents some figures showing the trade of the country. There are five columns of figures, four of which have grave errors in the additions. And one is inclined to close up the book at this point with the reflection falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus.

When it is found to be wrong in one instance its value as a work of reference is totally destroyed. But, let us not condemn it for this one mistake. Let us give it a chance to re-instate itself in our estimation.

On page three we find the oft-quoted statement that Newfoundland is the tenth largest island, but this time there is a rhetorical caudal appendage, for it is "the tenth largest island of the seven seas." Newfoundland is not the tenth largest island, as every school boy knows.

The difference between the length and breadth of the island is about one mile, as far as our imperfect knowledge goes, but Dr. Mosdell is so careless that even this one mile is of no account in his "5000 Facts." The length and breadth are about the same. How exact! In Canada and United States they are conducting a geodetic survey, where an error of a small part of an inch is not permitted. Cape Clare in Ireland is spelled as Cape Clear.

In the next paragraph a new term in measurements is introduced for us. "Grand Lake is 56 miles long and a paradise."

In Florida they use other terms when they wish to designate distances, for instance they may tell you a spot is "two peeks and a go-by" from where you are. Dr. Mosdell should publish a glossary.

"The Island is intersected in all directions by rivers and streams which supply the inland fisherman with the finest sport."

In the compass of just these two lines are mistakes and platitudes running in all directions.

"The Humber River is 70 miles long." Where did Dr. Mosdell get the "facts"?

"Many parts of the island are mountainous and these bear a striking resemblance to the Highlands of Scotland."

What insane drivel. Why Newfoundland hills should resemble the Highlands of Scotland is a mystery except in so far as they are hills in both instances.

The great bays or fjords, indenting the coast of Newfoundland are remarkable for number, extent and attractiveness.

Just as a school boy writing his fish essay on geography might be expected to confound the premises Dr. Mosdell gets himself badly confused.

It is not the bays that are remarkable for number, but the country may be remarkable for the number of its bays. How are the bays remarkable for "extent"?

Besides this a bay is not an "inlet." Dr. Mosdell applies the diminutive to bays he was just extolling for their "extent."

"Trinity and Placentia Bays form the northern boundaries of the Peninsula of Avalon." More likely western boundaries.

"Bonne Bay is a deep indentation (not on the map) of three spacious arms, is renowned for its lofty and rugged mountains and for its unrivalled salmon streams." Not the Bay is renowned for its mountains, but it may be renowned for the mountains which overlook it.

When a man undertakes to write facts he should be very particular to have his data from some recognized authority and not repeat guess work and hearsay.

The statement is made that "seven thousand square miles of Newfoundland, or about four million acres are suitable for agricultural purposes."

This is simply a hazard for a regular survey of the agricultural lands of the country has never been made. As a specimen of Dr. Mosdell's loose way of dealing with figures notice when he converts seven thousand square miles into terms of acres, the small consideration given to the immense item of 480,000 acres.

Every school boy knows that 7,000 square miles equals 4,800,000 acres. The book of facts (1) gives the value of farm products and cattle as fifteen million dollars annually. This is a gross misstatement and deserves special analysis. I reserve this for another time. What little of understanding consideration Dr. Mosdell has given the farm topics he so off-hand deals with can be easily imagined from the following.

The census shows there are about 2,500 farmers in the country. According to Dr. Mosdell these produce $15,000,000 worth annually. We import farm products to the value of $3,879,170. (Census 1911).

Now then 2,500 farmers produce $15,000,000 worth. Dr. Mosdell says we need 10,000 farmers to supply the country with home-grown produce.

In other words we need four times as many farmers to produce $18,879,170 worth as it takes to produce $15,000,000. Did I not say that every mother's son of the Coaker-Squires crowd knows all about farming. At any rate they all talk as if they did.

One finds it hard to deal with agricultural matters for there are no reliable statistics to refer to. Only the Coaker-Squires crowd of pretenders can deal with the question, as they are not very particular as to what they say. Quantity and not quality counts with such folk. "Fools venture where angels fear to tread."

Speaking of climate Dr. Mosdell introduces us to "previous precedents." Now all precedents hitherto known have been "previous." Can you bring in a future precedent, Dr. Mosdell?

The author of the "Facts" also speaks of "anthracite coal," which is, of course, taubogite and as ridiculous as to say Brassica cabbage or carbon diamond.

Referring to the herring fishery Dr. Mosdell omits St. George's, Fortune, as well as Placentia and St. Mary's Bays as the seats of a considerable herring fishery.

Next we come to Forestry, and here again the author of the "Facts" is as indifferent as to the kind of "Facts" as it is possible to be. He quotes figures relative to the extent of Newfoundland's wooded areas with a carelessness that is almost criminal. Hearsay is his authority while he pretends to deal in "facts." He tells us with an assurance that is almost grotesque that "the timber lands of the country aggregate 10,000 sq. miles."

A wild guess and of no statistical value. The simple fact is we do not know, nor have we ever tried, to find out. Mr. Howe, the Ranger estimated there were 8,000 sq. miles of wooded area in 1920. This area has greatly diminished since through fire and cutting. It is only nonsense to be talking where there are no data to sustain, confirm or rebut. This is unfortunately our position when we come to discuss many matters of public importance in this country.

With the same indifference to ascertainable facts he tells us that our woodlands yield 10 cords per acre. I believe four cords would be extreme, but I do not know. He says the acre is capable of yielding 10 cords of pulpwood or 1000 superficial feet of lumber.

It is a revelation to know that 10 cords of wood equals only 1,000 feet of lumber, and that it is all an acre of Newfoundland forest can produce. Is this a "fact," Doctor?

The next paragraph makes utter nonsense of the forestry. It says, "The net standing volume of Newfoundland timber is five hundred million dollars."

We are told there are 4,000,000 acres of forest in Newfoundland. Each acre yields 1000 ft. of board. This puts a value on each 1000 ft. of $125 net, a preposterous figure, but it is in the book of "facts."

Then the compiler of the "facts" tells us that Newfoundland spruce and fir averages 10 inches at the butt. Watch in, of course, a very silly statement to make.

Then we are told that "Newfoundland hardwoods are wych-hazel, birch, ash, tamarack."

As for wych-hazel you may get some big enough to make a "broomstick nag" for a witch, but nothing more. Yellow birch is locally called witch-hazel, but this is a mistake, as witch-hazel is the small tree or shrub which produces the hazel nut. It is not a birch.

It is wrong to speak of ash as one of our forest trees. We have very few ash trees in this country and they are of no account. One page 29 we are told the value of exported forestry products is $50,000,000, and on page 44 we are informed it is $5,000,000. The bewildered seeker after "facts" is lost in the woods when he thought he had a guide who knew the way.

Newfoundland's chief forest areas are found on the margins of its lakes and its water courses.

This makes utter nonsense of all that has been said about the extent and value of our timber areas. A margin is a narrow strip. Are then our wonderful forests but narrow strips along the water ways.

WINDSOR PATENT
"Canada's Best Flour"

Having made such an egregious mess of his forestry "facts" we are invited by the author of the "facts" to consider the mines. The author or literary pick-pocket if you wish, introduced the subject of mines in the usual hyperbolic way, by referring to Bell Island deposits as the biggest and most extensive deposits of iron ore so far discovered anywhere. How silly this statement is anybody can prove for himself. The illiterate only can be fooled by clap-trap of this kind. There are iron mines about Lake Superior to conceal Bell Island ore it to be dropped into them. The mines of the Mesabi Range are producing yearly over 32,000,000 tons of ore.

The Fayal Mine, Mesabi Range worked as an open pit could swallow Bell Island and forget it.

A little further down the same page Dr. Mosdell displays a most remarkable ignorance for one who presumes to write a book. He confounds iron pyrites with iron ore, when he interposes with his remarks on iron ore that "Pileys Island mine was successfully operated for a number of years, exports from this location running as high as 32,000 tons of iron pyrites per year."

"Rich deposits have been prospected at York Harbor, Bay of Islands, and at Middle Arm, in the same place." York Harbor mine produced pyrites and was worked as a regular producer and not as a "prospect." After this display of ignorance respecting iron mines the "facts" writer invites our attention to the lime-stone quarries. "There is a considerable industry in Newfoundland connected with the working of extensive areas of lime-stone to be found around Bay of Islands and in the neighbourhood."

Now it happens that apart from an inconsiderate quarrying on the lower Humber, the business of lime-stone quarrying is carried on solely at Port au Port, in Bay St. George's.

Then we are told by this wonderful book of "facts" that "Newfoundland lime-stone has been found by analysis to be eminently suited for the manufacture of artificial Portland cement."

According to this there is only one quality of lime-stone fit for the making of Portland cement and this is the only kind found in Newfoundland. The Doctor is quite ignorant of what he is talking about. He has some idea that lime-stone is needed to make cement and that is all, and this knowledge he casually gleaned as a newspaper man from the scandals connected with certain "cement" claims in this country.

Magnesian lime-stone is a natural cement rock.

He is quite ignorant too of the fact that Portland cement is itself an artificial product. We are next invited to a silly treatise on oil shales.

Speaking of the deposits of oil shale at Deer Lake he first treats us to some unfounded statements respecting the extent of these shale deposits, then he founders dolefully in the technical slough.

Speaking of the values of the shale he says the "yield in crude oil and sulphate of ammonia equal to that of the Scotch deposit," and then proceeds to add: "Newfoundland shale carries much higher percentage of petrol than the Scotch. This a double distilled bit of nonsense.

In the first place it is inexecutable in any writer to use the term sulphate of ammonia. There is no such thing as sulphate of ammonia, but there is "ammonium sulphate," which is grammar while the other is not petrol is only a truncation of the proper term which is petroleum or mineral oil. How then can the Newfoundland oil shale be equal to and superior to the Scotch at the same time. Next we come to the more prosaic matter of Postal Money Orders. Of course Dr. Mosdell does not know that the building of Bonne Bay and Badger Roads is responsible for the big increase in Money Order business for 1921-22. Only through Money Orders could the 3000 or 4000 men working on those roads make remittances to their families. Dr. Mosdell makes a statement but takes no heed to explain it. Of what value are such figures if it be not explained that the inflation was due to a temporary condition.

I have about done with this book of "5000 Facts" and I think I have shown pretty clearly the type of man it is who presumes to tell this country how it ought to vote in the ensuing elections. What particular reason has this ignorant man to assume the role of arbiter of either taste in writing or what is politically sound. The cheek of the fellow passes all understanding.

Ho has learned how to ring the changes on the most common place which anybody could do provided he were daffy enough. His attempt to break into the literary field are at abortive as dipping water with a sieve. He has just done enough to make himself look silly. But of course some will not see them. You may find them reason but there the matter ends. You find it beyond the power of a mortal being to find them an understanding.

Dr. Mosdell may be like the teacher in Goldsmith's tale:

"In argument they own'd his' wonderful skill
For e'en though vanquished he could argue still."

There is just one other little item and I am done with this "5000 Facts." Dr. Mosdell says on page 29 of this abortion that "Newfoundland's forests reproduce themselves in 30 years."

A more silly statement he could not possibly make. He, as editor of the "Trade Review" made the same statement a little while ago which I pointed out to readers of the "Evening Telegram," and showed from actual records within the trees themselves how idle the assertion.

Some simpleton from Bay Roberts, attempted to defend Dr. Mosdell, but only got himself into the list of know-nothings for his trouble. He could not disprove my statement, he did not try, he merely became abusive.

In about four times thirty years, a spruce forest may reproduce itself to a size represented by an ordinary saw log as seen in this country. In other words it might be a foot in diameter. In thirty years it would not be more than a stout picket or small fence post.

My statements can be verified by reference to any authoritative work on forestry.

The annual rings on the woody stems in the Museum or on some of the "splints" being bought up by Campbell any day will prove the truth of what I say.

Dr. Mosdell can now see himself and others see him.

His ill got reputation for a knowledgeable man is burst but I do not intend to drop my iconoclastic hatch here. He has another book in his credit. I intend to review it too, for the entertainment of the public. Meaning, Messrs. Best, Cashin and Hunt and the other hangers on are making fragments of the Squires bubble reputation, and I give me, there will not be much left when they get through with it. If the chief touter has the gall to face and intelligence audience again, this, he has more of cheek than I know him to have.

TRINITY

GILES HOOSIER, AGENT AND OFFICE IN TRINITY, ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-SIX YEARS AGO.

As far back in history as the earliest town of Pogo, in Dorset, England, has been associated with commercial intercourse with the outside world, the name of Hoosier has been bound up with it, and its direct departments. Giles Hoosier was the first to come to Trinity, and he ever thought of entering upon a new venture, or planning a new undertaking in connection with colonial development, without first talking it over with Giles Hoosier, in his small but highly important office. This office was so built that every vessel that either entered or left the harbor could be closely observed by him; and every man to whom was entrusted duties, as the least to the greatest in connection with the business, passed in view before him many times a day for the performance of those duties.

There were two things that by unbroken law, were to be perpetuated in connection with the business. One was, that a male member of the Hoosier family was to be the driving force in the complex machinery; and the other was, that one of the sons of every generation was to be trained to succeed to this important position, two or three generations this had been successfully, and without interference from outside influences. The first boy of the family was given the christian name Giles; and Samuel was not more surely set apart in earliest years for a definite object, than was Giles Hoosier to the family business. At the earliest opportunity the boy's education in school and out of school, was carefully moulded to fit him for the special duties of his young manhood, which were supposed to be performed some years under his father's immediate directions in the office, and then to be undertaken solely by himself at a later period.

We know from what we have read, and from what our fathers have told us, how continuous, and with what dangers several of our business firms of a generation ago went on. Then there began that insidious process of disintegration, the effects of which were felt coming from several directions at the same time; resulting in day in honored names being all but forgotten; and extensive and once splendidly kept premises, either completely demolished, or with but enough of them left to remind us of the past, and to enable us to read ICHABOD writ large in the wreckage. A few years after old Giles Hoosier the Second, had begun to train young Giles Hoosier the Third to take his place eventually in the business in Pogo, a stroke of apoplexy, in a moment, and for ever stopped the many activities of that brain, the wonderfulness of which was known and admitted by friends and foes alike in the commercial world.

For the first time in a century the office blinds were drawn in the day-time. For the first time in the memory of the old men who had either worked on the wharves, or sailed in the vessels since boyhood, there was nothing doing beyond what was absolutely necessary. Everything on or about the premises proclaimed by its very stillness, and reminded the whole town by its silence, that a serious change had come to the old business firm of Hoosier. When after the funeral the office books were critically examined, and the will was read, it quickly became known to everybody, that, in spite of all the efforts that had been made to carry on the business at a profit, those efforts had been thwarted; the business would have to be closed, and there was very little money for the family. The business of Hoosier had been carried on for a half-century with Newfoundland and with its suspension other business men of Pogo undertook to work in Trinity, Newfoundland, as well as in other parts of the country.

The first to arrive in Trinity were two men who had practical experience in this line of business as young men in the shipping departments of other firms, and they agreed to pool their interests under the firm-name of Sleat and Read. They considered themselves fortunate when they secured the services as Agent, of Young Giles Hoosier, who had been behind the scenes in his father's office, several years before his father's death. Young Hoosier was born in 1764, and when he came out to Trinity in 1787, he was an attractive young man of twenty-three and regarded by all as an acquisition to Trinity. Arrangements were made for a stretch and width of waterfront, just below where the old Spence property had its beginning, continuation and living since. Within an incredibly short time, the wharves and stores and all things necessary to a thorough equipment of the business, were prominent on this bit of restless shore, and the business went on apace, side by side, and in competition with the greater and lesser firms, whose establishments dotted at least a dozen business vantage points inside the beautiful harbor of Trinity.

This business venture in Trinity, like those of Lester, Slade, Street, Jeffrey, Coates, Reeves, White, Farrell, and a dozen others, had their little day, and together with those names they were, passed away and are now gone. In calm, the sea-birds now rest upon the rocks, on which these buildings once stood; and in storms, the sea carvets, and races over them, as though to celebrate once again the freedom, that for a few short years man had taken from it. When young Giles Hoosier came to Trinity, he was pleased to meet one, whose family name was familiar to him in Devonshire, and whose father had personally known his grandfather long years before. This man was Joseph Newell, Esq., whose father had come to Trinity in the 17th Century, and whose grave to-day is marked by a stone on the old Newell homestead at Trinity East. Mr. Hoosier was glad to accept the kind invitation of Mr. Newell to visit his home in Trinity and to meet his wife and family. Such reminders of home life in a far away land had great attraction for him, and through the part that Mr. and Mrs. Newell had in it, he never grew less; the part that Miss Grace Newell had in it grew more and more every day.

The story of what happened during the next year is a fairly long one, and deeply interesting, if the reader would have me tell it page by page. As, however, the details are largely those of hundreds of such stories that have been told before and since, with the reader's permission I shall just skip a hundred pages or so, and quote from the last page as follows:—"1817 Jan. 12th—Married, Giles Hoosier, of Pogo, and Grace, daughter of Joseph Newell, Esq., and his spouse Hannah, of this Harbor." After three years of faithful service in Trinity (including the first year of his marriage) Giles Hoosier and his wife removed to Bonavista, where one of Mrs. Hoosier's cousins (Mrs. Alexander) lived, and better opportunities offered at the time. During the frequent visits of Rev. John Clinch to Bonavista for Priestly duties, he baptised the following children of Giles and Grace Hoosier (as found in old St. Paul's registers) "Maria, William, Elizabeth, Mary, Giles." Owing to their removal to Bonavista, I am unable to trace the family any further; though I shall be interested to hear of any one bearing that family name there to-day, as doubtless they are the descendants of Giles and Grace Hoosier of Trinity.

Since writing I have found the following entry in the Marriage Register:—"1815—Married, Aaron, son of Thomas and Hannah Field, of this Harbor, and Elizabeth, daughter of the late Giles and Grace Hoosier of Bonavista." This indicates that Giles and Grace Hoosier died in Bonavista, and that one of their daughters, Elizabeth, came back to Trinity as the wife of Aaron Field. Thus I have found the following Baptismal entry:—"1827—Baptised, Giles child of Aaron and Elizabeth Field." Here we have the old family christian name, Giles, of the Hoosier family in Pogo over two hundred years before. In addition to this, (though it is not in our own records) there is I know a Giles Field in English Harbor, in another generation, and in the same direct family line of Giles Hoosier of Pogo, England. Much of this, I know, is not very important to some of my readers; but it should be more or less interesting to the descendants of the Hoosiers, and Newells, and Fields, and also to others from a general historical viewpoint.

TRINITY IN 1802.

On Garland's premises in Trinity in 1802 was a large shop, a cooperage, with a master cooper and twenty journeymen; a long range of wharves, on which were provisions, salt, oil and fish stores; a large dock containing a saw pit, with six gangs of saws, a large forge, with a master blacksmith in charge, huge launchways for ships, a pond for spars, a large carpenter's shop, with a staff of efficient carpenters under charge of a master carpenter, and an immense sail-loft under charge of a master sailmaker. There was also a master rigger, with a number of mates under him. In charge of the whole was a skilled master shipwright, who designed and superintended the building in this dock of not only large brigs and schooners, but of large ships of 700 tons burthen, also. The man who held this responsible position in 1802 was Mr. Newell, the grandfather of the late Captain Alexander Graham and the father of Mrs. Giles Hoosier. There was an immense shed in this dock. The floor was of beaten earth, and it was used as a shelter for shipwrights when trimming timber for the building of various crafts in the dock.

As we look at "Sam White's Cove" to-day, we seldom if ever think of it as a suitable place for wharves or a business place. We have got into the habit of thinking of it only a place for casting caplin; and yet, in 1750 Joseph White had a first class fishing establishment there, fully equipped with wharves, stages, stores, etc; and the best proof of its efficiency is, when Joseph White died in 1771, he was worth one hundred and thirty thousand pounds sterling; all of which he made by fishing and trading at Trinity in the early part of that century.

Efforts are being made to reorganize the Band of the L.O.A., in Trinity. A local band in an outpost town is a most difficult organization to keep together, owing to the number of young men who leave the place, and with no efficient Band Master to give the necessary technical instruction. It was difficult enough forty-five years ago, when the instruments were new, and other things were favorable, but impossible in Trinity to-day.

The chain of friendship stretching far into days that were, with day that are."

"Govern, O Lord, the minds of all who are called to choose faithful men to serve the nation in Parliament; that, considering their sacred trust and the great issues thereof, they may exercise the same in all godliness and honesty; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Raise up, O God, politicians who will fear Thee and Thee alone, and will Thy Will, and work Thy Work, fearless and faithful unto death in the Name of Jesus Christ. Amen."

ITEMS OF INTEREST—TRINITY 100 YEARS AGO.

One of the oldest houses in Trinity, in that immediately North of Mr. Sam Grant's shop, it was built, and occupied by Dr. Skelton about 1824, on land owned by Garland, and leased by the Doctor for ninety-nine years. Since then it was occupied by Doctor Gill, Doctor Johnson, Captain Hayward, William Nelson, Charles MacFarlane, John Stewart, Mrs. E. Hancock, and others.

Robert Mayers was the gardener at Garland's; his brother John was skipper on Garland's Room. Robert Mayers was married in 1827.

Richard Anderson was the Constable and Sexton of the church. He lived where Solomon Hancock lives now. He became blind, and had to give up both of his positions. It was he who liberated Matthew Roman from the stocks. He died in 1825.

The house was owned by James Clifford near the Wesleyan Cemetery, stands on property once owned by John Crocker (1868.) He married a Miss Lander, a sister to old Mrs. Bremner. (Mrs. Bremner was married in 1824.)

Bartlett, Austin, Hall and Churchill had property in Collin's Cove, in 1800. Churchill sold his property to Brett, then it was sold to Slade, then to Patrick Murphy, then to John Gover. It is now owned by Fred. Hunt, who married John Gover's daughter.

Skipper Dwyer, master of Slade's vessels, lived on property at Hog's Cove. It was sold to William Power, Cooper, who married Dwyer's daughter. Then it became the property of William Frampton, and Thomas Maybee.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

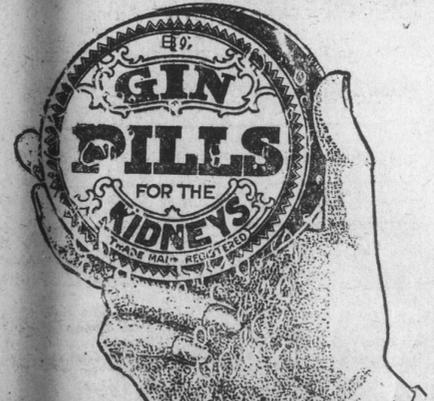

Dates.—Rev. John Clinch died November, 1819. Rev. William Bullock came to Trinity, October, 1822 and was married to Miss Clinch, October 1823. They were married by Rev. J. Burt, in old St. Paul's.

History.—Trinity was twice taken and nearly destroyed by the French—once between 1706 and 1709, and the last time in 1761.

Doctor's Cove.—Yes, in addition to the fishing premises at "Sam White's Cove," Messrs. Samuel and Joseph White had another premises on the shore from Mackerel Point to about half way across Doctor's Cove. See article on Trinity in 1802 in this issue.

Messrs. W. H. Christian, Bennett and Brett, via dog team from Port Union to Clarenville, spent Wednesday at Trinity enroute to St. John's. W.J.L.

TRINITY
GILES HOOSIER, AGENT AND OFFICE IN TRINITY, ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-SIX YEARS AGO.
As far back in history as the earliest town of Pogo, in Dorset, England, has been associated with commercial intercourse with the outside world, the name of Hoosier has been bound up with it, and its direct departments. Giles Hoosier was the first to come to Trinity, and he ever thought of entering upon a new venture, or planning a new undertaking in connection with colonial development, without first talking it over with Giles Hoosier, in his small but highly important office. This office was so built that every vessel that either entered or left the harbor could be closely observed by him; and every man to whom was entrusted duties, as the least to the greatest in connection with the business, passed in view before him many times a day for the performance of those duties.
There were two things that by unbroken law, were to be perpetuated in connection with the business. One was, that a male member of the Hoosier family was to be the driving force in the complex machinery; and the other was, that one of the sons of every generation was to be trained to succeed to this important position, two or three generations this had been successfully, and without interference from outside influences. The first boy of the family was given the christian name Giles; and Samuel was not more surely set apart

The Coaker Menace
Is going and going Because
Bennett and Better Times
Is coming and coming
A Landslide is the verdict.
The Humber Deal in the hands of the Bennett Government will be much safer than with the Coaker-Squires failures.
The young voters in the West End have smashed the last hope of the Coakerites in this district.
The attack on the people of Petty Hr. and Mr. Walter Monroe cost the Coaker party thousands of votes.
The East End campaign opens on Monday.
Higgins, Fox and Vinnicombe cannot wait any longer for the Coaker Candidates to be announced.
They are anxious to tell their story to the people.
Higgins and his colleagues will have the greatest majorities ever recorded in St. John's East.
And Sir Richard is content with telling the soldiers they were paid to fight.
Mr. Squires must be of the opinion that war heroes are the same as some of his candidates, paid to fight the districts.
How much is Coaker and Squires paying Mews, Mosdell, Clouter, and St. John to fight their cause?
How many thousands are they taking from the public chest which would be better appreciated if voted to the war widows and children of war veterans.
Strong backers of the Coaker-Squires outfit have given up Hr. Grace, Placentia, St. John's East and West, Carboner, St. Georges and Port de Grave.
They turn white when Ferryland, Hr. Main and Bay de Verde are mentioned.
They admit the fight will be in Fogo, Trinity and St. Barbe.
And point blank refuse to mention any of the West Coast districts.
Coaker times have been hard times indeed!
They will be all over in a few weeks.
Sir M. P. Cashin's challenge to Sir Richard Squires will give the Premier a chance to explain his policy.
What time is the "Agitate" going to send the Telegram that promised mailing list.
To-day is the end of the third week in the campaign.
Bennett got the verdict in the first round. He fanned the Coakerites in the second and in this, the finish of the third, he's got 'em up against the ropes.
Now all ready for the fourth!
Oh Mister Gallagher! Oh Mister Gallagher!
I'm really glad you're reading this to-day.
Everybody's making fun of the way the country's run.
And Coaker says that there's the "H" to pay.
Now Mister Sheehan! Now Mister Sheehan!
I begin to know exactly what you mean.
You can bet your woolen sock That our country's on the rocks.
Mr. Squires' fault, Mr. Gallagher? Yes, and Coaker's, Mr. Sheehan!
Bennett means a lot.

Official confirmation at the office of Henry Ford at Dearborn that this manufacturer has purchased one hundred and twenty thousand acres of undeveloped coal land in Kentucky. Ford intended to solve the coal problems of United States by using every piece of coal twice. Ford will ask all industries to use his coal and to install furnaces that will remove only gas and similar substances leaving the coal unimpaired for domestic purposes.

THE BRITISH NAVY.

MALTA, March 24. It is stated in naval circles here that when the present Near East crisis is settled the greater part of the British naval strength will be transferred to the Mediterranean and only a comparatively small fleet will be retained in home waters, thus restoring the situation as it existed before the German naval menace compelled Great Britain to keep the balance of power in the North Sea.

RIVERS IN FLOOD.

SIoux CITY, Iowa, March 24. Four hundred homes in Sioux City are menaced, as a result of the overflowing of Floyd River. Residents were abandoning their homes on Friday night and fleeing to high ground. The river is filled with backwater from the Missouri, and as a result the ice rose three feet in six hours. South of here the water is springing over the Lowlands, carrying a threat of disaster to hundreds.

Palestine Census Completed.

JERUSALEM—Palestine has a total population of 757,182, according to the figures of the census of three months ago. This figure equals approximately the population of the city of Boston as given by the official count in 1920. Ten per cent of the people in Palestine are given as Christians; 11 per cent as Jews, and 79 per cent as Mohammedans. The figures for Christians and Jews are regarded here as about correct, but there was such strong opposition to the census on the part of the Mohammedans that their number probably is considerably underestimated. In two cities only is there a preponderant Jewish population, Jerusalem and Tiberias. The former, out of a total of 62,900, 34,000 are descended from Abraham and the balance about equally divided between the followers of Jesus and the prophet of Mecca. It is interesting to note that Bethlehem is the only town in the land in which Christians predominate. Here there are 5,838 of this faith, 818 Mohammedans and two Jews. Nazareth has a population of 7,424, of which roughly two-thirds are Christians, one-third Moslem, and only 53 Jews. The principal airport, Jaffa, has about 47,000 people, of whom there are 20,000 each of Jews and Mohammedans, and about 7,000 Christians. The other large centres of population are very largely Mohammedan. The Palestine Weekly, a Zionist Organ, claims that according to Roman figures this country has supported a population of 7,000,000 but when one considers that the area of Palestine is about equal to that of Vermont and that it has about an equal amount of arable land, one questions seriously whether, with the highest development of her natural resources, it will be possible for Palestine ever to support a greatly augmented population. Vermont, in 1920, counted 352,428 people within the state.

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF AGENT FOR THE WEEK ENDING MARCH 23RD.

Was asked by Mr. Halfyard, MacFarlane Street, to humanely put to death a large Newfoundland dog belonging to him. The animal had bitten a child. The dog was a magnificent one, but rather than have any trouble, he had it shot. He contributed his subscription to the Society's funds. Also humanely destroyed a setter dog owned by J. Alex. Winter, suffering from distemper. Mr. Winter is a member of the Society. Another dog which had bitten a child was owned by Mrs. H. Carter, Duckworth Street and I humanely put this one to death also. Received some complaints about horses being lame. Some of those are lame from natural causes and can't be remedied. Such as corns, splints and spavins, there does not seem to be any permanent cure for them. I had several sent in for a rest. I have had several complaints about dogs being left out and barking night and day in different neighbourhoods. I have warned several owners about keeping them in, and will summons owners in future. I visited some stables which were in a very poor condition and saw that the owners had them attended to. There is room for a little more improvement around the drinking troughs, which I believe the different Inspectors will attend to. I would like the friends of the Society not to forget the picture of "The Horse's Prayer," which I am anxious to see displayed in public offices and buildings. Drivers are all warned about careless driving these days with the condition of streets. Unless great caution is taken many accidents will occur due to ice and depth of snow. Caution is absolutely essential.

Useful Hints.

Add an ounce of alum to the last water used to rinse children's clothes and they will be rendered uninfamable.

Iron baths must be thoroughly washed after use or they will rust, and clothes put into them will be stained with iron mould.

Washed white silk can be cleaned by washing with stale bread crumbs to which a little powder blue has been added. Black silk can be renovated by exposing with fig leaves (obtained at a florist), a good handful, to have simmered in two plates of water for ten minutes. Let the fabric cool before using.

Wash silk stockings with pure soap in water that is only just warm. Soap and hot water destroy the fibres and make the threads brittle, and "ladders" soon appear.

Unbleached calico will make nice window curtains for a bedroom window. It costs half the price of others.

and looks as well, besides lasting longer.

A Brussels carpet is best cleaned with oxalate, to be had from the butcher. Empty the bladder into half a pail of warm water, rub the carpet all over with a clean flannel dipped in the mixture, and the colours will be like new.

To lengthen the life of a wringer oil all its bearings regularly, and when not in use loosen the screws regulating the rollers or they are liable to become warped and the springs strained.

To remove a photograph pasted in an album, cover it with blotting paper that has soaked in warm water. When the paste is sufficiently softened, draw the photograph off carefully and slowly, so as not to tear it.

WEEK-END NOTES.

(C. C. MORRIS.) CHAPTER XII.

Perhaps no feature of our commercial life, as it applies to the water-front, has undergone a greater change than that of the personnel of the business firms, whose names were prominent in the sixties. Some of those names were amongst the first to engage in the fisheries, and they were instrumental in that system of credit which prevailed at that time. Those firms were very typical and representative of the British Isles, for they directly represented the three-fold nationality of the English, Irish and Scotch. It would seem that the colonization of Newfoundland lay exclusively with those three countries, and as a result the people of Newfoundland always have been, and still are, representative of what is generally accepted as the Anglo-Saxon race.

Amongst the English firms we had such names as Brooking, Bennett, Bond, Mudge, Bowring, Rendell, Newman, Duder, Goodridge, Job, Tessier, Hutchings, Kellegrew, Clift, Stabb, Warren, Gully, Holmeewood, Woods, March and others. These names represented some London and Liverpool firms; but some of them represented the west of England firms, principally Devonshire, while the name of the LeMessurier represented the Jersey firms. There were, of course, other names, but they were not directly engaged in the shipping business consisted principally in dry goods and general merchandise, which represented a more direct cash trade. But those names which I have mentioned were directly interested in shipping, and in the foreign export trade. At that time ships were owned more directly by a firm or by an individual, than they are now, as there were not as many shareholders then in a ship as one finds to-day. Amongst the Scotch names, there ranked some of our shrewdest business men—men who left their impress upon their times, and who had strong outstanding characteristics. Such names as Robertson, Boyd, McLean, Stewart, McDougall, McBride, Muir, Baine Johnson and Grievie. Amongst others of that class, who were foremost in business, but were not then interested in shipping, were such names as Pitts, Sellars, Baird, Ayre, Wilson and Cairns.

FAMILIAR NAMES.

In the history of the Irish firms, we had such names as, Shea Barron, Alsop, Brennan, Kent, McLoughlin, O'Dwyer, Meehan and Fox. These with others, comprised the list of Irish gentlemen, who after the ninth of June fire, and on to the sixties, occupied "the water-front" of St. John's. Whether those men had any faith in Newfoundland other than a fishing country, may be opened to doubt; but it is certain that they believed in the fisheries of Newfoundland, and they put their all into them, and took great risks, and whatever development we have made, or improvements we have attained, to those men whom we have mentioned, must be accorded the honour and praise, for having laid the corner stone of our present commercial fabric. They had many serious drawbacks to contend with, but they displayed their ability, and showed themselves men of sterling worth. Not their's to flash a message across the ocean, but their's to ring up a contemporary or nearby towns, not their's to get regular mails, but rather had they to wait and to wonder what the result of their enterprise would be. At that time the entire business of the country was conducted by the enterprise of pounds, shillings and pence and farthings, so that the clerical work of a firm was almost double what it is to-day, because there were the four columns of figures, and four denominations to be reckoned, instead of the simple reckoning of dollars and cents. It was in the early sixties that dollars and cents were first introduced into Newfoundland, but it was not until twenty years after that system was adopted in general commerce. It was late in the sixties that the battle of Confederation was fought, and as our readers are aware, lost. Had Confederation been adopted, the currency of dollars and cents would have been adopted also. But the cry against Confederation was very bitter, and the people wanted to save the country from the Canadians, and their window panes from being taxed, so they would have none of their ways, and so the old routine of pounds, shillings, and pence was continued until education and the conditions of business demanded the reader, and quicker, and more simplified system of dollars and cents.

GREAT CHANGES REVEALED.

A glance at the sign-boards of the water-front to-day, reveals a great change, for not many are left of those who were once so prominent, and whose influence was so felt in our commerce. The old links which connected the past with the present have been gradually severed; and a new and more advanced order has been introduced. If some of the older men to whom we have referred, could come back to St. John's some Saturday night, and look into such establishments as Bowring Bros. of to-day, or Messrs. Ayre & Sons, or G. Knowling, Ltd., or James Baird, Ltd., or the Royal Stores, Ltd., they would hardly be able to see these spacious and well-furnished, and well conducted establishments, are the outcome of their little shops, some of which had comparatively small and antiquated windows. Amongst the many changes of Water Street, we must not overlook the change of the residence of the proprietors of these firms. Fifty years ago the average merchant lived over his shop or office; and a great many of them boarded their staff of clerks. The second floor of the building was usually the living flat, consisting of dining room and parlor, and kitchen. The bedrooms were usually located on the third and attic story. The stairs in those buildings were narrow and round about; and when one occasionally visits these old-styled buildings which are left to rot, and sees these conditions of the past, one is readily convinced that life in the middle of the nineteenth century was a very much simpler experience, than it is to-day. So much then for the names, and so much for the firms, which held sway in St. John's from the ninth of June fire, in 1846, until the close of the sixties and seventies; for about the latter date some of the old names began to decline, and die out; hence the changes, which the water-front presents to-day.

Silvia Arrives.

SHIP MAKES GOOD WINTER PASSAGE.

S. S. Silvia, forty-six hours from Halifax, arrived in port yesterday at 4.30 p.m. The ship met the first ice at 8 p.m. on Thursday, when S. E. of St. Pierre Banks and was steaming through it all night until yesterday morning at daylight when heavy slob was encountered. Capt. Mitchell reports that he did not see any sailing vessels en route, but as previously reported, the Rosalind spoke to Rita M. Cluett and supplied her with provisions. While at New York this trip the Silvia went into dry dock, where her bronze propellers were replaced with steel ones in order to avoid any damage while steaming through ice. The Silvia is making a record for winter passages, and her long trip between Halifax and this port was 53 hours, which demonstrates the ability of the ship under exceptional conditions. The following passengers arrived by the ship:—Charles Dingle, W. Bentley, F. Harvey, F. Allen, H. Shaughnessy, Jas. West, John Carver, Antonio Continauri, Miss Amy Dennis, Miss Ida Moulton, Miss Lottie Salisbury, Miss M. Davenport, Fred Briska, Dr. C. Howlett, Wm. B. Neal, Geo. M. Barr, C. Wiseman, Rev. Dr. Whelan, M. E. Martin, L. C. Mews, J. F. Lawrence, E. Manuel, D. A. Summers, F. J. Shortall, Mrs. A. J. Milley, W. B. Comarford, W. C. Pearce, Mrs. K. White, J. White and five second class. The Silvia will sail again on Monday night or Tuesday morning.

BILLY'S UNCLE

"Watch Your Step" An Attractive Picture

LAST TIME AT THE NICKEL-TONIGHT.

Two of the most attractive young players on the screen portray the leading roles in the new Goldwyn picture, "Watch Your Step," now being presented at the Nickel Theatre. They are Gullen Landis, who will be remembered for his excellent work in many earlier productions, and Estey Ruth Miller, a charming ingenue appearing for the first time with Mr. Landis. The acting of these two is fresh, spontaneous and altogether delightful in a charmingly wholesome photograph. For the most part, the action of the story is laid in a village where the young hero finds himself under rather trying circumstances. Because of an automobile accident which he believes has resulted in a man's death, he wishes to conceal his identity, and finding himself in the secluded village, concludes that he may as well remain there.

He Says He can Now Do his Work

Quebec Man Used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Aubin states that they have made him well and that his kidneys are without pain.

St. Nicholas Station, Quebec, March 28.—(Special)—Gaudias Aubin, a well known and respected resident here is a true friend of Dodd's Kidney Pills. He has tried them and found them good.

"I am now very well and my kidneys are without pain," Mr. Aubin states. "Since the time I started taking Dodd's Kidney Pills, I have not had any more pain and I have been able to get to my work."

That Mr. Aubin's trouble came from the kidneys is evidenced by the relief he got from Dodd's Kidney Pills. They heal and strengthen the kidneys and put them in shape to strain all the impurities out of the blood.

It is easy to see how neglecting them may be the cause of serious illness. Rheumatism, Dropsy, Urinary Troubles, Diabetes and Heart Disease are some of the penalties that follow neglecting the call of sick kidneys.

Sound kidneys mean pure blood. Pure blood means good health. Ask your neighbor for Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the best remedy for sick kidneys.

Spring Cleaners!

IF YOU WANT TO SUCCEED—

Don't wake up one morning and decide to begin spring cleaning right away. Make a clear plan well in advance as to what is to be done, and work by method.

Don't begin at the bottom of the house and work upwards. Begin with the attic or top rooms, and finish with the scullery, and follow the same "from top to bottom and outwards" working scheme where individual rooms are concerned.

Don't thoroughly spring-clean the drawing-room and then remember that the chimney has not been swept.

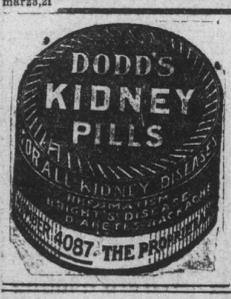

Don't try to work a sixteen-hour day. Such acts of domestic martyrdom only upset everything and everybody, including the housewife concerned. It is much better to arrange so that a little spring cleaning is done on a number of different days than to attempt to cram the whole job into a hectic half-a-week.

Don't go the best part of a day without food. It lowers the vitality and causes unnecessary tiredness, also increases labour in the end. Casseroles and gourmet cookery are both convenient for spring cleaning days, and tasty dishes can be prepared.

Don't allow the spring cleaning to be the excuse for a dirty face, unwashed hands, grimy overall, etc. Such personal untidiness is not necessary. An occasional wash in between jobs helps to keep the skin in good order, while a good supply of overalls, etc., should be available.

At the Balsam.

The following guests are at Balsam Place:—John Parsons, Bay Roberts; John Bishop, Bay Roberts; A. M. Calpin, Bay Roberts, M. Pike, Carbonear; John J. Lawrence, Halifax; Miss Amy Dennis, New York; Miss Ida Moulton, New York; Charles Dingle, New York.
