The Righting of a Great Wrong. A great wrong was done to Ontario when the Grand Trunk was allowed to gobble up the Great Western and Midland railway systems. It is not a very pleasing reflection for reformers, either, that this great wrong was aided and abetted throughout by prominent leaders of their party, and by its chief newspaper organ. The Grand Trunk gobble was openly promoted by the Mowat government and by the Toronto Globe ; while Mr. Blake stood by and made no sign in opposition to it, as far as the public are aware of. Had Mr. Blake then taken the stand that he should have taken, in defence of Ontario's in terests, then to a certainty the Midland gobble would have been stopped, while the Great Western gobble would have been seriously blocked, if not altogether defeated. Surely our reform Samson was shorn of his locks when that effort in Ontario's behalf proved beyond his strength. The great wrong then done is now in process of being righted. But no thanks to Ontario's reform leaders for it; and the party will yet rue the day when through these same leaders it consented to become the catspaw of the Grand Trunk. The Ontario and Quebec road will soon give eastern On tario such redress as may still be had for the wrong perpetrated when the five or six local roads constituting the Midland system, all heavily bonused with government and municipal grants-with the people's money-were handed over to the Grand Trunk. And the Credit Valley road, with extensions and new connections which are sure to be made by an early date, will, to a considerable extent, make reduction instead of an increase of the up to the western peninsula for the loss of the Great Western as an independent and duty. mpeting railway system. The Credit Valley road cannot stick at St. Thomas: it must reach the Detroit river, and then the competing connection between Detroit and Montreal through southern Ontario will be complete. As for northern Ontario, the Canadian Pacific east, the Northern, and the Hamilton and Northwestern, the Gravenhurst, and Callander link, and the Toronto, Grey and Bruce, will diffuse a healthy competition over a large territory. The taking over of the Grey and Bruce road means more than that the Canadian Pacific acquires a first-class port on Lake Huron. though that is certainly a valuable consideration. It means also that Toronto is made, and must permanently continue, to be an important point in the Canadian Pacific railway system. In other words, Toronto is to be and remain a competing point, and a very important competing point, too. When we reflect that the Midland gobble and the Great Western gobble were designed for one thing, to destroy Toronto as a competing point altogether, we can the better appreciate the vast importance to the whole province, as well as to the Queen city, of the way in which Ontario's wrongs in this connection are now being righted, as far as it remains possible to do so.

For a long time middle men have con-trolled nearly every avenue of trade. In the dark past it was unavoidable, but the march of progress has been so great re-cently that it is now no longer necessary. Education has taught the masses to think, to reason and to conclude that their com-fort, success and convenience in life can only be attained by co-operation and mutual help. A telegraphic system that extends its marvellous network of wires over every county in this great continent, The American Malt Duty. The Globe is very far mistaken when it argues that something done by the present minister of finance was what caused our American neighbors to change the duty on malt. The real truth of the matter is that the importation of Canadian malt, on any terms, has been a grievance to American maltsters for a number of years past, and over every county in this great continent, flashes daily from centre to centre the wants and fancies of multitudes who would otheryear after year have they labored to procure some change in the tariff that would check it. But there was a lion in the path in the form of the brewers' ociation which was powerful enough to defeat all attempts to exclude Canadian and fancies of multitudes who would other-wise never know or hear of each other, un til now almost at any time the seller knows where to sell and the buyer where to buy what the one produces and the other consumes. Rail-roads, spread as they are over the land, bring buyer and seller into such close proximity, and goods of all kinds can be so quickly transported from place to place that it is as easy now for one to do busi ness with an importing house at the sea-board as it was a few years ago to do busi-mess with a store-keeper in an adjoining malt. At last both interests agreed upon the tollowing, which may have been considered as a compromise, though undoubtedly the advantage remained with the maltsters, for a time, at all events. The duty on Canadian barley was reduced ness with a store-keeper in an adjoining from fifteen cents per bushel to ten cents and the duty on malt, which before

A provision co-operative association should be made to embrace co-operation in its fullest sense by permitting farmers, who are the producers, (and indeed soliciting them), to join and so extend its benefits to them and enable them through the store in the city to reach the consumer more di-rectly than they now do, and all concerned will then feel the good effects in a short time. was twenty per cent, on the value was made twenty cents per bushel specific. Separate co-operations might be formed for handling provisions, tea and fuel, each the latter change will work may be thus explained. Supposing Canadian malt to be one under separate management, and if no mistake is made by starting with too small a capital and in the first choice of direcsold for export at a dollar per bushel, the new specific duty and the old ad valorem tors, managers, etc., success will be sure to crown their efforts and a lasting benefit entailed on those who need it most. Dr. Wild's increase in the American duty on Canadian malt. But this condition of the trade may not be permanent; in fact the probabilities are very much the other way. If the consumption of lager beer over the border continues to increase as it has done in recent years, the price of barley must rise, and in barley-raising Ontario has a national advantage that will last while seed time and harvest continue to follow each other. Whenever the time comes for malt to go beyond a dollar, then the recent change made by our neighbors will operate as a

None of the latter ever expected to sell malt in Canada; we might put a dollar a bushel on the article without making any difference to them. Recent legislation in Washington on this matter was the result of an agreement between the two interests named, after sev eral years of war. It still remains to be seen whether the change from the twenty per cent ad valorem to the twenty cents specific is to prove in the long run an increase or a decrease of the American duty.

Winnipeg Sun : The objection made to the Canadian Pacific railroad bill, that it ontained no clause specifying that the road should be completed in two years' time, has been met by the insertion of a proviso that the eastern and central sections shall be completed not later than May, 1886, and that the company shall, from month to month, in the meantime, make such progress with the work on both sections as will satisfy the government that the agreement in this respect will be fulfilled. There is evidently something wrong. The article in The World was copied from and credited to the Hamilton Spectator. Disposed of at Last.

A long-pending trial was disposed of by Judge Boyd yesterday. On Jan. 18, 1883, F. D. Brown, a contractor, and four of his workmen were charged in the police court with forcible entry and detainer. H. L. Hime was the prosecutor. The defendants broke down a gate and carried bricks and mortar through Hime's property to con-struct the addition to the office of the Evening Canadian. The case was fought in two civil courts at Osgoode hall, and Hime won each time. The action in the police court was of a criminal nature, and Mr. Denison sent the five defendants for Trial. Yesterday Mr. Brown pleaded guilty through Lawyer Murphy to forcible entry and was fined $5 by Judge Boyd. The charge against the four workmen was not pressed, and they were acquitted.

The Female Book Agent.

If female book agents are a sign of spring we will have warm weather right away. The city is full of them, and they spare no man. Once they get their clutches on a advertising agent to a dry goods man. They won't take no for an answer, and they resemble the iron duke in this particular that they don't know when they are beaten. As soon as one of them comes into a house the inmates traightway take to the woods. They are selling a book entitled "Characteristics of American Cities." Toronto is one of the cities.
