THE KING'S JESTER.

The royal feast was done; the king

The jester doffed his cap and bells And stood the mocking court before; They could not see the bitter smile Behind the painted grin he wore. He bowed his head, and bent his knee Upon the monarch's silken stool; His pleading voice arose: "Oh, Lord, Be merciful to me, a fool!

"No pity, Lord, could change the heart From red with wrong to white as wool;
The rod must heal the sin, but, Lord,
Be merciful to me, a fool!

"Tis not by guilt the onward sweep Of truth and right, O Lord, we stay; Tis by our follies that so long We hold the ruth from Heaven away.

"These clumsy feet, still in the mire, Go crushing blossoms without end; These hard, well-meaning hands we Among the heart-strings of a friend 'The ill-timed truth we might have Who knows how sharp it pierced

That day on Old Hemlock, the earlier part of it, the boys had found a great success. They had sampled the trout brook with fair "luck;" the luscious blue coated berries had been found in profusion, and they had eaten Grandma Stebbins "jolly good dinner" with a gusto peculiar to hearty, growing boys. It was perhaps two o'clock, and they were discussing plans

"That's what," replied Ham, the taciturn, deftly collecting their trophies. As rapidly as possible they made their way over the rough path that led down into the valley.

Suddenly Sam exclaimed, pointing down the valley at a grey line of storm: "Look, Ham! It's coming like sixty! It rains at grandpa's now; let's put for Uncle Stephen's!" And "put" they accordingly did at their best pace. They found the house shut up. Both They found the house shut up. Both the old people had gone away. Eig drops were already falling; so without further ceremony they made for the barn—none too soon, for as they pushed back the great roller door and slipped in, there was a roar of rain on the roof, and the Lig shower was ominous.

The boys looked at each other an instant in silence, and then scrambled hastily down the long ladder. There lay the calf exactly as he had fallen. He had not moved a muscle. Ham lifted up one of the limp legs.

"Ham, he's dead, ain't he?" quaverade Sam in an awestruck voice. "Ham, he's dead, ain't he?" quavered Sam in an awestruck voice.

His antices, as he dashed into unexpected hollows and tangles of hay, would ordinarily have called forth roars of laughter from the boys; but the situation had become far too serious for that.

The climax was indeed near at hand. Intent evidently upon enlarging his sphere of activity, the calf suddenly undertook, at tremendous speed, an extra wide circle of flight. Far out he went toward the great beam over the floor. A lot of loose scatterings lay close to the beam, and on these the triumphant calf dashed swiftly. A cloud of fine hay flew out over the floor—an instant of ominous silence, and then, far below, a portentous thud, followed by a silence still more ominous.

He says: "While I am convinced that King Edward did not utter a word on politics, yet his visit will have the hapthe two countries. Only a year ago Europe sought to let The Hagae Court die a silent death; but President Rosevelt saved the tribunal, first by subtracting to it the question in dispute between Mexico and the United States; second by obliging Germany Great Britain and Italy to take their Venezuelan complications to The Hague Court. Finally, Andrew Carnegie enriches the Court by the magnificent gift of $1,000,000. Thus, thanks to America and the Americans, the tribunal is not doomed to slow death, and even Europe has been awakened to its merits.

enlisting in the cause of Jesus Christ meant to the first disciples. Passing from this how sin entered into the world and death by sin, i. e., the death of the true man, the felt need on the part of man of a sacrifice, a propitiation, an oblation, satisfaction, how Jesus Christ provided all this by His death upon the Cross, then came this question: How is it all applied to man? How am I to get it? We are buried with Him, i. e., Christ, by baptism into His death. And then there came the purport of this—the practical side, "We are buried with Him by baptism into His death; that like as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."

At the close of the sermon, Mrs. H. Ruggles sang with deep feeling a beautiful solo, "Nearer, my God, to Thee." Mrs. Ruggles' singing is always expressive, but it seemed particularly so on Sunday evening after the bishor's masterly discourse. At the bishor's masterly discourse. At the

The Annapolis Royal Band have engaged a permanent musical director in the person of A. Stanley, late of the 53rd Regiment. Imperial service. Mr. Stanley is a Knellar Hall man, and has been connected with bands in the Imperial army for thirty years. He is at present in Montreal and leaves that city for here on Sunday. Should the new instructor be the equal of Prof. Corrison, whom they found a first class man, the boys will be lucky indeed, for few more capable than the genial professor ever wielded a baton, and while they lose him as an instructor, they have the assurance that he is always their friend. Amherst now boasts of another new industry. This time it is the Canadian Automatic Scale Co., Limited, which has lately been incorporated with a capital of $300,000. It has pending the erection of its own plant, placed an order with the Maritime Heating Co., for one thousand Combination Civic Controlled Weighing and Lifting machines.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mason on the 28th of April. Miss Alice Daniels left for a visit to her old home at Paradise West last The scheme that has been adopted by the Nova Scotia Steel & Coal Co. at Sydney Mines to erect houses and sell to their miners on the installment Miss Jeanette Henshaw arrived home plan is unquestionably a success. A ready some two hundred houses a occupied under this plan by the me and the company have decided the build as many more and to give a opportunity. The amount paid each mouth is not more than ordinary rent, but in the course of time each miner will own his own house.

The Avis Graham went on Friday last to Halifax to spend some weeks with her sister, Mrs. (Dr.) Lawrence Bratis at Hecksti's Cove. Ex-president Kruger, of South Af Reservice here again on the houses where the diptheria cases occurred will be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Poole celebrated the fifth anniversary of their marriage on Wednesday, May 6th. About fifty guests were present, and did full justice to the bountiful repast provided by the genial host and hostess. Social amusements and music, led by Mr. James Hall, occupied the evening. Several gifts were presented to and Mrs. Poole, among them a nice eight day clock. Having greatly enjoyed the occasion, the guests dispersed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Poole many more years of wedded bliss.

INSTRUCTION BY CORRESPONDENCE.

E. B. Foster has just removed a plum tree of the Frost variety. The said tree passed its jubilee year last fall and has been a great bearer. We believe this is the oldest plum tree in the county. Mr. Foster also has two cups and saucers that were a part of the wedding outfit of his wife's grandmother, and are over one hundred years old. B. C. Shaw, local representative of the International Correspondence Schools, of Scranton, Pa., was in town Monday and Tuesday looking up business for the schools. He says that a large number are now availing themselves of the exceptional opportunity large number are now availing themselves of the exceptional opportunity that correspondence instruction offers to the young men and women of the present day who are ambitious and who want to fit themselves for a trade or profession. The schools have been established eleven years, and teach 120 different courses, including about all the mechanical trades, Commercial, English Branches, Navigation, Languages, etc. They have over 500,000 students and graduates, about 2,000 of which are in Nova Scotia.

They do not guarantee to get positions for their students, but have a students aid department established to help students to secure good positions on an average for over one hundred graduates each month. This gives one a faint idea of the enormous good which this great institution is doing when one considers that the majority of students thus secure a position by their own efforts, or by taking a course of study along the line of work at which they are working to enable themselves to climb to higher positions in the same employment.

Mr. Shaw expects to be in this town on or about this same date each month, and any one who wishes to inquire further with a view to taking a card to him at Yarmouth, N. S., P. O. Box 411. Mrs. C. Corbitt has returned home rom Lower Granville.

The Empire Liniment Mig. Co.,
Bridgetown, N. S.

Dear Sirs:—I had been troubled with neuralgia in my face and head for about eighteen months. I had a doctor prescribe for my trouble but without any results. I began using your Empire Liniment in October, 1902; it has entirely cured me of neuralgia, and has entirely cured me of neuralgia, and prevented my hair from falling out, and freed my hair from dandruff. I trust that others may be greatly blest by using Empire Liniment as I have been.

THERE is no safer form of mining investment than good gold-copper deposits, as they occur in immense veins and carry regular values. Many of the private fortunes of the United States owe their origin to a lucky investment in a golds copper proposition. The property of the Eastern National Copper Company, Limited, is undoubted and one of the most valuable in the country. Besides its extensive mining claims the mining company controls timber for mining and building purposes and will also have natural water-power.

paper. They should each have a glass cover on hinges or fitted to slide in a groove.

Even if there are very few specimens to begin with, the child will be surprised to see how his collection grows. Almost every family has some seafaring relative who has brought some curiosities from far-away lands, which have lost much of their interest as the years passed by and would be willingly relinquished in the interests of science. Not a few of my most cherished specimens have been donated by casual visitors.

My museum is much beautified by a frieze of shells, many different kinds being used. Each kind is glued to a square card. Some of the smaller ones are arranged in star shape, in festoons, in circles, etc. Then all the cards are glued to the walls, exactly fitting into the space between ceiling and moulding. There is also one little cabinet devoted to Indian curiosities which were sent home from Alaska by a friend. Friends who visit the house should be cordially invited to inspect the little "museum." Their interest will encourage the youthful collectors.

A WELL-BRED WOMAN.

Always and ever the young woman in public places shows her breezing to the observing stranger, first by her walk, sedate, yet with buoyancy that does not attract undue attention, then by her talk, which is in well-modulated tones, designed for the ear of the person whom she is addressing, and not pitched in such a key and delivered in such a style as to impress one not pitched in such a key and delivered in such a style as to impress one that she is talking for the benefit of the strangers around her—a foolish vanity which some are known to indulge in; also, good breeding is shown in her general manner, which, if it betrays native vivacity in unguarded moments does not give way to vehement gestures or a dramatic display of facial expression better suited to the stage; and, lastly, count dress of facial expression better suited to the stage; and, lastly, count dress among these things, since it declares the choice of the individual very particularly, says a writer in Modern Women. Happy she whose purse is measured to her taste! Perhaps she is happier whose taste is fitted to her purse; but may the taste be not for what is gaudy or extravagant merely, but for things accurate, elegant and appropeiate—things such as enhance a woan's beauty and hang upon her body more as suggestions of the soul's enrichment than as an advertisement of the skill of the highest-priced milliners and modistes.

MODERN SCHOOL CHILDREN. MODERN SCHOOL CHILDREN.

"The home," declares Mr. Percival Chubb in the New York Telegram, 'has fallen behind. We are no longer developing in the right way. The home is asking information of the school, whereas the home should set the pace for the school to follow.

"To throw off the responsibility, to put upon the school the training of the child, is the tendency of to-day. It is a most outrageous and unwhole-some state of affairs. The public somehow entertains the notion that it is paying the state to take the children off its hands and that reverence, respect, obedience and duty should be fostered in the school rather than the home. On the contrary, children should come to school in proper fighting trim. All the virtues should have their foundation in the home, for cultivated properly.

ured properly. EDUCATION OF PARENTS. Mrs. Mary A. Livermore spoke on "Child Culture" recently before the Mothers' and Fathers' Club. "We need to do a little more," she said, "in regard to the culture of fathers and mothers than we do to the culture of the child. There are two mighty factors that enter into the making of inthe child. There are two mighty factors that enter into the making of individuals and of nations. These factors are heredity and environment. There are men and women who are unfit to be the parents of children. At the present time we have to depend upon environment. In many cases it is, better to take, children away from their natural parents, so that they may have a chance to do better. "It would not be race suicide if we were to have homes into which only were to have homes into which only two or three children were born. Qual-ity and character signifying more than GLOVE CARE. This is the proper way to treat a glove: When you spy a tiny hole mend it without delay that it may not increase in size. Mend it on the inside of the glove with fine cotton of the came color as the kid, says the St. Louis Star. Do not use silk, for it soon wears out.

Never break off your cotton, but cut it, so as not to draw your stitches

Never break of your cotton, but cut it, so as not to draw your stitches too tightly and make the seam hard and uneven. When sewing a split in a finger seam, insert a finger into the glove and draw the edges together so that they meet, and that is all; a ridge would not only be uncomfortable but would look unsightly.

When a glove is too small and slits it is worse than useless to sew up the rent. It must be patched. The patch must be of kid of the same color.

CONTENT. Recently, while talking over the im-rovements in school methods, the other of a family said to a friend: provements in school methods, the mother of a family said to a friend: "I never have to provide amusement for my little girl on rainy days. If she cannot go out to play she arranges her collection of moths, or the stones she has collected in pursuit of the study of geology, or she takes out her microscope and her pressboard and adds to her botanical collection. Although she is only eleven years old she has more varied interests than many grown women, and I find that in the summer, when we are in the country, she looks at everything with great understanding and zest."

If mothers would take a little time to encourage their growing boys and girls in Nature studies they would be well repaid. There is, perhaps, no better way of doing this than providing them with a room, or a corner of one, in which to store their collections. Every child dearly loves to make collections of one kind or another, and if the mother, or older brother, or sister, helps in arranging these they at once rise in value in the child's estimation. Her love of knowledge, which is extending, will increase with her years, and make her a happy, busy woman.

and throw them over into the next yard. Although you do not need them somebody else may.

The garden must be digged. To have it done right you must do it yourself. If your neighbors raise (with your help) chickens, or if you support a dog, you may consider that the garden will not require to be touched with a fork at all. However, chickens and dogs are ant to work unevenly.

mation. Her love of knowledge, which is extending, will increase with her years, and make her a happy, busy woman.

The boy takes books from the liverance and eagerly searches for the names of the bettles in his glass-covered box, for the names of the birds whose deserted nests he has secured, or, upon returning from a day at the seashore, he studies with ardor to learn something about starfishes, sea urchins and shells he has gathered.

Any boy and many girls can, with very little trouble, convert large, shallow boxes into serviceable cabinets, by standing them on end, fitting into each three shelves, painting the insides white and the outsides dark red or brown, and putting on the fronts full curtains of cambric to match the color of the outsides. When the loxes are finished they may be piled neatly against the wall. One of them may be devoted to mineral specimens, another to various forms of "treasure" culled from the seaside, a third to specimens preserved in alcohol, such as snakes, mice, fishes, etc., and a fourth to the treasures of the wood land, such as the nests of bird, wasp and bee, different kinds of seed vessels lichens and fungi.

On the tops of the cabinets may stand the cases for insects, which should be fastened a sheet of white drawing paper. They should each have a glass cover on hinges or fitted to slide in a groove.

Never be discouraged. If you fail, ry again. Cultivate, cultivate; and especially cultivate your neighbors' dogs.

Treat your neighbors' gardens as you would your own, and always fill up the holes.—Edwin L. Sabin, in April Lippincott's Magazine.

MAKING SURE.

One day a very nervous, timid-looking woman, accompanied by a robust farmer, came on the platform of a little railway station at a remote country spot. For a short time she seemed to devote her attention to the time-table, but not finding there the satisfaction she sought she stepped up to the station master as he came out of his office.

"Yes; about twenty minutes ago," "And when will the 4.30 be along,

"Are there any expresses before then?";
"Not one."
"Are there are twoins?" "Any luggage trains?"
"No." "Nothing at all?"
"Nothing whatever."
"Are you quite sure?"
"Certainly I am, or I wouldn't have said so."
"Then," said the timid woman, turning to her husband, "I think we'll cross the line, William."

THE LIMIT REACHED.

The prisoner, a faded, battered specimen of mankind, on whose haggard face, deeply lined with the marks of dissipation, there still lingered faint reminders of better days long past, stood dejectedly before the judge.

"Where are you from?" asked the preciserate "From Boston," answered the accused.

"Indeed," said the judge, "indeed yours is a sad fall. And yet you don't seem to thoroughly realize how low you have sunk."

The man started as if struck. "You honor does me an injustice," he sai bitterly. "The disgrace of arrest for drunkenness, the mortification of bein thoust into a poisone dungeon. It thrust into a noisome dungeon, the publicity and humiliation of trial in a crowded and dingy court room I can bear, but to be sentenced by a police magistrate who splits his infinithat is indeed the last blow."

THE BOY KNEW. A Christian Scientist, while walking the matter?"
"I ate some green apples," moaned the boy, "and, oh, how I ache!"
"You don't ache," answered the follower of Mrs. Eddy, "you only think The boy looked up in astonishment at such a statement, and then replied in a most positive manner:

"That's all right; you may think so, but I've got inside information." THE POINT OF VIEW CHANGED.
